Efforts to have the Howard County Jail reopened are likely to dominate Monday's meeting of the county commissioner's court, as officials struggle to bring the aging facility into state standards.

Commissioners hope to be able to piece together a final price tag for repairs and renovations to the jail's smoke evacuation system, which failed to meet state standards twice in 2006, finally bringing about a closure order from the Texas Commission on Jail Standards in November.

'We've received a bid for the electrical wiring for the smoke evacuation system, and we're still waiting on a price on what the equipment is going to cost," said County Judge Mark Barr. "Monday we'll most likely make a decision whether or not to go ahead with that. We just want to see what all of it together is going to cost us."

The cost of electrical wiring for the smoke evacuation system has been estimated at $24,600, as the court awaits mechanical costs from Anthony Mechanical.

Commissioner Bill Crooker said he's pleased with the progress the court has made so far in making the smoke removal system operational, but would like to see it move along at a quicker pace.

"I really wish the smoke removal part of the project would move a little faster, but it's moving down the road," said Crooker. "We hope to be in the position where we can get back to the jail commission See COUNTY, Page 3A during its May meeting. It's costing a tremendous amount of money to keep the prisoners in other counties, and with the budget already stretched to the limit, this is something we have to get done as soon as possible."

Following renovations to the system in November, including the addition of a damper to bring in fresh air to flush out smoke and fumes in the event of a fire, a second test of the

CHORUS REHEARSALS

Big Spring Symphony Chorus rehearsals will begin at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 20.

They will be held at the first United Methodist Church upstairs choral rehearsal room.

The rehearsals are for the April 21 concert and will feature spiritual music and Mozart.

Everyone is invited to participate, said Dr. Keith Graumann.

"House Bill 1, which was aimed at school finance reform last session, stipulates that a school district must hold its elections in conjunction with the city or county," said Bloom. "Since neither of those school districts have a city, they would be forced to hold their elections with the county, which won't happen until November."

Bloom said there are ongoing efforts to reform the legislative edict, but whether or not they could force a change is up in the air.

"We could see some changes made to the bill this session," said Bloom, "but whether or not it will have an effect on Grady or Sands, there's just no way to know at this point. That part of the bill could be repealed,

Seliger files bill for representation of indigent defendants

Special to the Herald

AUSTIN - State Sen. Kel Seliger has filed Senate Bill 528 (SB 528) to create a specialized listing of qualifications for appellate attorneys representing indigent defendants in capital cases.

The goal of the legislation is to increase the number of lawyers who are eligible to represent defendants upon appeal by recognizing the different skill sets needed for trial and appellate attorneys.

"I believe the passage of this legislation will allow indigent defendants who face capital charges access to better representation," said Seliger.

"Input received from all areas of capital case prosecution, defense and appeals will ensure that this system is more efficient and better protects the rights of all Texans."

OUR VIEWS

Deadline near for Big Spring Day at Capitol

on't let time get the best of you. That's right, this is important. It's time for another Big Spring Area Day at the State Capitol, a chance for our community to put its best foot forward in front of our elected representatives and their colleagues, and the deadline is rapidly approaching for those who want to join the group riding to Austin on a chartered bus.

The trip to Austin is scheduled for March 7, that's more than a month earlier than the trip two years ago. And that means now is the time to get a spot reserved on the bus.

The deadline to make reservations is Feb. 27.

Remember, Chamber of Commerce officials have had little trouble filling the chartered buses in the past, so it's important to make reservations early for what will be an important day for our community.

Legislators and other state officials are in the midst of what may well be the most difficult legislative session in decades. So, it's important that our community take this opportunity to not only be noticed in Austin, but to use this opportunity to thank our state's leaders for their hard work.

Seats on the charter are $40 per person and include a box lunch on the capitol grounds. Those who take their own cars will be asked to pay $9 for lunch and need to register by the Feb. 27 deadline, as well. In addition, all those planning to attend are asked to wear Big Spring shirts and khaki pants or skirts for the event. The shirts are available at the chamber office but must be ordered and prepaid by Tuesday.

erhaps America needs a daily prison report. You know, something paralleling the stock market page. There would be a running count of population in each of our many jails; a daily tally of how many inmates were forced to sleep on the floor last night for want of a bed; the percentage of inmates who were drug offenders or mentally ill; staff shortages; teenagers; suicide attempts; and repeat offenders.

With that kind of regular info we might actually pay more heed to the incarceration problem. As it is we instead follow that time-honored practice of out-of-sight, out-ofmind. Once that door clangs shut, we lose interest. Are women being abused? Is health care adequate? Are crazy people mixed in with the evil? Is there addiction therapy? Any job training or education? Who cares?

In addition there are some big policy questions.

Should drug addiction be punished with prison in the first place? Should impecunious defendants be held until their trial date for want of bail?

What's the appropriate age of offender adulthood? How much can we afford to spend on the dregs of society?

The nice part is that once troublemakers are in the clink they can't vote, march on the legislature, conduct surveys, or get in our face. We have to wait until release to again suffer their aggressive behavior, which in any event they mostly visit upon their own social set. This pent-up hostility may generate crime headlines, but blessedly not much real impact on our personal lives.

Time to pay attention to prisons

Less yet do we care how Europe deals with prisons. Heck, they have their own troubles, especially with Arab immigrants. As with health care, they've chosen a different road from us altogether. Probably not much to learn from them. We'll somehow puzzle it out for ourselves.

Well, sorry. We still haven't learned much for ourselves yet. Our nation houses 2.2 million inmates. Another 4.8 million are on probation or parole. Meanwhile the rest of the world laughs. We have a higher percentage of folks in jail than anybody, even Russia, Earth's traditional leader.

Part of the problem is our national obsession with drugs. People have always used them, but they can be bad for you. Therefore, we made them illegal. That requires lots of cops and guards and creates a whole new unproductive industry, redolent with lobbyists. It also produces many thousands of former inmates with prison records that no one wants to hire.

Money is another grave issue. Prisons are horrendously expensive — nearly $30,000 per year for adults and $40,000 for kids. So we shortchange them to save taxes. which makes both inmates and

TO THE EDITOR:

Last year, when the Texas Legislature reduced property taxes they failed to provide equivalent relief for senior and disabled Texans whose rates had been "frozen" at higher levels. Legislative leaders told us they ran guards testy. Angry ex-cons then cause more recidivism. Special care for their at-risk families would have been much cheaper in the first place, but it's optional. Thus we don't do a lot for troubled households, and consequently more people daily slip back onto the track for crime and jail. This is policy?

A lovely current example is the sudden crusade to prevent exfelons from driving school buses. Wouldn't want to expose our little darlings to THEM.

So just where is it that we do want ex-cons to work? Certainly not in any job that pays real money or carries real responsibility. Hence they often go quietly back to jail.

Quietly, that is, until the next riot or scandal, or the next overcrowding crisis. Then the press takes a monetary interest, an investigating committee is appointed, recommendations spring forth and every one thereupon forgets.

Well, maybe all that doesn't matter too much.

Who says we have to treat criminals humanely anyway?

Besides, our credentials as a civilized nation are so suspect already from Iraq that maybe there is no longer any point in trying to keep up appearances.

citizens in the property tax cut which has universal support with divisive changes in the spending cap, legislators are using seniors as political human shields.

The Legislature should act now to start the process of voter approval of extending the tax cut to seniors and people with disabilities, then take up the issue of spending caps when they debate the budget in the coming months. These are separate issues and should be treated separately.

Let's not cheat seniors and disabled Texans out of their property tax cuts.

You hear a lot of bad things about

To register or obtain additional information, call the chamber office at 263-7641.

While the group makes its visit to both houses of the Legislature, a resolution will be read on the floor of the House and Senate and the Howard County School Choir will perform in the Capitol Rotunda

Other activities scheduled for the day include the lunch on the east grounds of the Capitol, a Coca-Cola and Blue Bell Ice Cream reception on the grounds and the taking of a group photo on the Capitol steps with legislators.

It's important to remember the trip is designed as a chance to offer the community's thanks to our legislators for their efforts. It's not a chance to complain about things that we think are wrong, but to thank people for the things they do for us.

So, make plans to join us in making another positive impression on our state's lawmakers.

You'll have a good time and go a long way toward making sure Big Spring's, Howard County's and the rest of West Texas' needs are considered during what is another crucial legislative session.

May we carry, Lord, Your philosophy with us everyday and not the world's philosophy.

L was thrilled to see many students from Big Spring and former students (now in college) were there, cheering their friends to swim. No other school had students present.

Thanks to all the parents who allowed their children to drive to Lubbock. It was quite a sight.

Of course, I was proud that my eldest grandson, Ryan Hughey, took first and qualified for state in the 100-meter breast stroke. But more than that was the great sportsmanship that Cameron Hughey showed after being disqualified in his event.

out of time.

To correct this unfairness, it is necessary to amend the Texas Constitution.

Unfortunately, legislative leaders are now using the need for this amendment as an excuse to cover for a much more controversial issue - breaking the state's spending cap to pay for last session's property tax cuts. The Legislature already has the ability to do this without a constitutional amendment.

It's time we stood up to war profiteers eorge W's war in Iraq has not been good for the thousands of Americans killed or maimed there, nor for the hundreds of thousands of Iraqi civilians killed or forced to flee their country. Bush's war has not been good for America, either, for our global reputation has been trashed and we are more vulnerable to terrorist attack than before.

In fairness, though, I must concede that the Iraq attack has been awfully good for one group: Pentagon contractors. For the makers of weapons, profits are up. stock prices are soaring, taxpayer dollars are gushing their way, and there is no end in sight for the "good times" that they are enjoying.

For example, in the past year, such war corporations as Lockheed Martin, Boeing, Raytheon, and General Dynamics have seen their stock prices jump by about a third, as Wall Street investors have turned giddy about the financial prospects of the war machine. And why wouldn't war speculators be giedy? Ir. Bush says he'll bog us down in that civil war for years to come, even escalating our military presence and asking Congress to dump another $100 billion into Iraq this year.

While war is hell, Pentagon contractors see this news as manna from heaven.

But what about those pesky Democrats who've won control of Congress and are making noises about a staged withdrawal and threatening to investigate war profiteering?

No problem - corporate lobbyists note that Democrats, like Republicans, take campaign funds from these same contractors, and that such presidential hopefuls as Sen. Hillary Clinton don't want to appear "soft" on defense - so they expect the war funds to keep flowing and maybe even increase.

As one industry analyst smugly puts it: "I think Democrats will be on good behavior as long as the war continues." "Good behavior?"

To push Democrats to stand up for the American people instead of Mr. Bush and his war profiteers, call Business Leaders for Sensible Priorities: 212-243-3416.

system by meeting the educational needs of all learners in the area. We have established a strong foundation and built upon it by adding new programs, new educational venues, new athletic programs and reaching out to our students in grades K-12. The result is always "in process" and > is what you have here today at Howard College. Our deepest roots that foster our sense of continuity are firmly planted here in Howard County. Our ability to carry on down our chosen path is due, in large part, to the continuous support of the people in Howard County. Whether you are attending an athletic event, watching a student theater production, making a donation to the Howard College Foundation or attending classes, you are helping Howard College strengthen our root system here in Howard County. Through these efforts and more, we are able to maintain our level of continuity for the people we serve now and those we will serve in the future.

So, it's easy to see how the first piece of this quote writes a story for Howard College. But it is the second part of this quote that tells the story of the future for Howard College. Change is often difficult for many but it is an element of certainty if we want to grow and reach new heights. Change brings a new perspective to the things we do and why we do them.

As HC embraces change and begins to "stretch, grow and reach new heights," we find that we must also safeguard the very things that help us keep our roots alive. As new programs are developed, we have to find open classrooms to hold the classes without disrupting current classes. As distance learning is expanded, we have to secure the proper resources without lowering the quality of the learning experience. As we recruit more students to our Big Spring campus, we must make sure our residential facilities are safe and reasonably attractive without disregarding the other campus facilities. And we can not possibly grow if we do not take care of the basic educational essentials as well.

If "change gives us branches," then Howard College wants to make sure our trees are strong and healthy. We want to cultivate the environment that will allow the college to have firm roots while we branch out and try new things to expand the educational opportunities on campus. These steps of change are not always easy but they are steps we take with you, the citizens of Howard County. Together we can build a forest of educational opportunities that will be here for many generations to come. Until next time ... remember, Education For Learning, For Earning, For Life!

Opening lead - king of spades. Declarer starts the play of many hands with only limited knowledge of how the adverse cards are divided, But as the play progresses, he learns more and more about the unseen hands, and can sometimes perform marvelous feats.

Take this deal where South performed nobly. West led the king of spades and shifted to a trump. Declarer won with dummy's queen and played a club to the jack. He was hoping East had the queen, in which case the jack would force the ace.

But West won with the queen and continued with the ace and another club, ruffed by South. Declarer then drew two more rounds of trumps, West discarding a spade on the sec-ond one, and led a low diamond to the ten, which won. Now, pursuing his quest for further clues, South ruffed dummy's last club.

When West followed suit, South had all the information he needed to make his game. He led the three of diamonds to the ace, felling the king, and so made the contract. Had South led the queen of diamonds to repeat the finesse, he would eventually have lost a diamond to East and gone down one

The key to the winning line came from what South learned during the play plus what he deduced from the bidding. He knew that if West had held:

♦AK 10x ♥xx ♦Kxx ♣AQ 109 he would have opened one club or one notrump rather than one spade. Since West had opened one spade, it followed that he held five spades and hence only two diamonds, making the low diamond lead rather than the queen the correct play at trick 10.

SHEBOYGAN, Wis. (AP) - About 40 tons of cow intestines and bones spilled onto a major highway after a truck driver became distracted by his digital music player and his semitrailer tipped over, officials said.

Authorities closed parts of Interstate 43 for about two hours Thursday while the beef byproduct was cleaned up, said sheriff's Sgt. Blaine Spicer.

The accident happened in the town of Mosel when 25-year-old Ryan Engle's truck veered off the road as he adjusted his MP3 player, Spicer said.

Engle, of Kenosha, was cited for inattentive driving and taken to a hospital with non-life threatening injuries, Spicer said.

The truck had to be towed from the scene. It is owned by Birchwood Transport of Kenosha.

... HEBRON, Ky. (AP) - A warehouse worker has been accused of pilfering high-end lingerie worth nearly $15,000 after his ex-girlfriend snitched on him, a newspaper reported.

Investigators say a manager stole Victoria's Secret lingerie from a warehouse where he worked near Cincinnati/Northern Kentucky International Airport, the Kentucky Enquirer reported.

Christopher L. Perry, 24, of Villa Hills, Ky., has not been seen since he was charged with one count of receiving stolen property, authorities said. He did not return to work and his phone has been disconnected

His estranged girlfriend, Elizabeth Gibbs, called police Jan. 31 to report that Perry was lifting lingerie from Advanced Distributions Services in Hebron, court records show.

She led detectives to a hotel room where the lingerie was stashed, the records show. The merchandise, now sitting in a police evidence locker, was of almost every style and size carried by the store.

"We believe he was just approaching people on the street" to sell the Kenton items. County Commonwealth's Attorney Rob Sanders said. "These are the kind of cases that keep this job amusing."

you. The young mother set her foot on the path of life. "Is this the way?" she asked. And the guide said, "Yes, and the way is hard. And you will be old before you reach the end of it. But the end will be better than the beginning."

But the young mother was happy, and she would not believe that anything could be better than these years. So she played with her children, she fed them and bathed them, and taught them how to tie their shoes and ride a bike and reminded them to feed the dog, and do their homework and brush their teeth.

The sun shone on them, and the young Mother cried, "Nothing will ever be lovelier than this." Then the nights came, and the storms, and the path was sometimes dark, and the children shook with fear and cold. and the mother drew them close and covered the children said, "Mother, we are not came, and there was a hill ahead and the children climbed and grew weary, and the mother was weary. But at all times she said to the children, "A little patience and we are there." So the children climbed, and as they climbed they learned to weather the storms. And with this, she gave them strength to face the world.

Year after year, she showed them compassion, understanding, hope, but most of all ... unconditional love. And when they reached the top they said, "Mother, we would not have done it without you."

The days went on, and the weeks and the months and the years, and the mother grew old and she became little and bent. But her children were tall and strong, and walked with courage. And the mother, when she lay down at night, looked up at the stars and said, "This is a better day than the last, for my children have learned so much and are now passing these traits on to their children." And when the way became rough for her, they lifted her, and gave her their strength, just as she had given them hers. One day they came to a hill, and beyond the hill. they could see a shining road and golden gates flung wide. And mother said: "I have reached the end of my journey. And now I know the end is better than the beginning, for my children can walk with dignity and pride, with their heads held high, and so can their children after them. And the children said. "You will always walk with us, Mother, even when you have gone through the gates." And they stood and watched her as she went on alone, and the gates closed after her. And they said: "We cannot see her, but she is with us still. She is more than a memory. She is a living presence."

She is always with you. She's the whisper of the leaves as you walk down the street, she's the smell of certain foods you remember, flowers you pick and perfume that she wore. She's the cool hand on your brow when you're not feeling well; she's your breath in the air on a cold winter's day. She is the sound of the rain that lulls you to sleep, the colors of a rainbow, she is Christmas morning. Your Mother lives inside your laughter. And she's crystallized in every tear drop. A mother shows every emotion - happiness, sadness, fear, jealousy, love, hate, anger, helplessness, excitement, joy, sorrow and all the while, hoping and praying that you will only know the good feelings in life.

She's the place you came from, your first home, and she's the map you follow with every step you take. She's your first love, your first friend, even your first enemy, but nothing on earth can separate you. Not time, not space ... not even death!

All mothers, we would like to thank you and ask, "Will you be our Valentine?"

Pundits News in brief puzzle Perry's motives

By KELLEY SHANNON

AP Political Writer AUSTIN - It's been a national headline week for Republican Gov. Rick Perry, who has managed to alienate some conservatives and surprise critics with sweeping proposals to expand health insurance and fight cancer.

Though he insists he's not thinking about becoming a vice presidential nominee, Perry's big new ideas could help position him as a major political player at the federal level in 2008.

The proposals in his State of the State speech on Tuesday — to sell the state lottery and use billions of dollars in proceeds to fund health care insurance, education and cancer research - and his executive order making Texas the first state to require girls to get a vaccine that fights cervical cancer aren't his usual issues.

By choosing them, he seems to be trying to attract national attention and cast himself as more moderate, said Bruce Buchanan, a government professor at the University of Texas who specializes in the presidency.

upset some Perry Republicans in the Legislature with his order requiring that Texas girls entering sixth grade be vaccinated against the human papillomavirus starting in 2008. But he was praised for the move in a New York Times editorial -

Nurse sentenced to

60 years for killing husband

WACO, Texas (AP) — A registered nurse was sentenced Friday to 60 years in prison for fatally shooting her husband in the head in the couple's bed.

Darlene Doskocil Gentry, 32, faced from five years to life in prison. She was convicted Thursday of killing Waymon Keith Gentry, 31, in 2005 in their Robinson home near Waco.

Assistant prosecutor Melanie Walker had urged jurors considering her punishment not to be swayed by Gentry's good looks or the fact that she has three young sons.

"Looks can be deceiving," Walker said. "It's an uphill battle when you have a defendant who looks like her. Nobody thought a cute little blond mommy would do what she did."

Several of Gentry's relatives had asked the jury to consider probation for the sake of her children. They said Gentry is a loving, caring mother, and that they would trust her with the care of their children, the Waco Tribune-Herald reported in its online edition Friday.

Appeals court rules BP CEO must give deposition

HOUSTON (AP) - Outgoing BP PLC chief executive Lord John Browne was again ordered Friday to answer questions about the company's deadly Texas City plant explosion in 2005 that killed 15 people and injured hundreds more. The order by a Houston appeals court comes after the same court put the deposition on hold when attorneys for Eva Rowe, whose parents were killed by the blast, settled with BP in November.

Brent Coon, one of Rowe's attorneys, says his firm still has 150 other lawsuits pending against BP and that Browne's deposition is important to these cases, including two that are set for trial at the end of the month.

"(Browne) was the one that initiated budget cuts that applied to the refining system,' Coon said. "It's clear from our investigation in this case that the budget cuts contributed to failures at Texas City."

BP spokesman Neil Chapman said the company is considering its options, including further appeals.

BP announced last month that Browne would step down by the end of July - more than a year ahead of schedule.

One dead in trench collapse

DALLAS (AP) — One worker died and a second was injured when a trench collapsed Friday afternoon along a light rail line under construction, officials said.

The trench collapsed in the Deep Ellum area of Dallas while two workers were helping reset a water line along a planned rail route, said Dallas Area Rapid Transit spokeswoman Morgan Lyons.

Firefighters dug through the rubble to find one victim, who was pronounced dead at the scene. The other victim was taken to Baylor University Medical Center.

Neither victim's name was released. Lyons said that both men worked for a subcontractor handling utility work along the line.

Vaccine order could be an issue for human services chief

AUSTIN (AP) - The state's "health and human services chief could face some tough questions next week about how he plans to implement the governor's anti-cancer vaccine mandate as members of a Senate committee discuss his reappointment.

Albert Hawkins' term as executive commissioner of the Texas Health and Human Services Commission expired Feb. 1, and Gov. Rick Perry reappointed him Wednesday.

The appointment is subject to confirmation by the Texas Senate, whose members are still irritated about Perry's order requiring Merck & Co.'s new Gardasil vaccine for girls entering sixth grade as of September 2008. The vaccine protects girls against strains of the human papillomavirus, or HPV, that cause most cases of cervical cancer.

A freshman senator who is a member of the Senate nominations committee said Friday he will withhold support for Hawkins' reappointment until Hawkins explains how he plans to implement Perry's order. Hawkins is schedule to appear before the committee Wednesday.

Many residents of Smith's hometown recall her not-so fondly

By ANGELA K. BROWN Associated Press Writer

MEXIA (AP) — Anna Nicole Smith claimed this small, working-class central Texas community as her hometown. But it doesn't claim her.

Some residents say they don't even remember her. Many of those who do are ashamed of her antics, Playboy playmate fame and pop culture status. Around town, signs boast of championship high school sports teams of days past - but a day after the blonde bombshell died mysteriously at none mentioned 39, Smith. "Anna Nicole is not somebody we consider one of our own, one of the great citizens we're proud of," said the Rev. Marcus Sheffield, pastor of First Baptist Church, who did not know Smith. "If people connect her with what Mexia is, I'm not proud of that." Smith, whose death came five months after 20-year-old son, her Daniel, died of drug-related causes in her Bahamas hospital room three days after she gave birth to a daughter, was born Vickie Lynn Hogan in Houston. When in junior high school, as she told the story, she moved with her mother to Mexia (pronounced meh-HAY'-uh), about 80 miles southeast of Dallas.

Once home to 35,000 residents after a 1920s oil boom, Mexia's older neighborhoods are now a mix of clapboard houses and mobile homes. About 6,900 live there now. Its largest employers are Mexia State School, a facility for the mentally disabled; the hospital and school district.

The median income for a family was less than $30,000, compared to nearly $46,000 statewide, according the 2000 U.S. Census. One of every five families lived below the poverty line. In Mexia, she lived sometimes with her mother, other times with an aunt, said one of her cousins, Shelly Cloud. "I can't believe it," Cloud said Friday outside her Mexia apartment. "I still can't believe she's gone."

unfamiliar turf for a conservative Texas governor.

Perry proposed selling the Texas lottery to a private company for at least $14 billion and putting the money into interestgenerating trust funds. He also called for an $8 billion endowment for education, $3 billion for cancer research and $2.7 billion to help get more Texans on health insurance. The state's rate of uninsured residents tops the nation.

Democrats had to acknowledge Perry offered some "forwardlooking recommendations" and "occasionally lofty rhetoric," but they said he'll have to prove he means what he says.

"Actions speak louder than words, and Perry's record of serving special interests and promoting their privatization agenda speaks for itself," said Boyd Richie, Texas Democratic Party chairman.

Perry spokesman Robert Black said there's more speculation outside of the governor's office than within about his national political ambition. Perry has repeatedly said he's not interested in moving to Washington, D.C., but he hasn't ruled out accepting an offer to be a vice presidential nominee.

Bill Lauderback, executive vice president of the American Conservative based in Union, Alexandria, Va., said Perry could certainly be considered for the GOP running mate when that time arrives.

She then worked as a waitress and cook at Krispy Fried Jim's Chicken restaurant. She married 16-year-old fry cook Bill Smith in 1985, giving birth to her son before divorcing two years later.

New top U.S. commander in Iraq: situation 'not hopeless'

8A

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — The new top U.S. commander in Iraq said Saturday that the stakes are high but the situation is "not hopeless" as American and Iraqi forces move to end the sectarian violence threatening to tear apart the country.

Gen. David Petraeus made the comments at a ceremony during which he officially took control of U.S. forces in Iraq from Gen. George Casey, who is going to be the next Army chief of staff.

"The stakes are high. The way ahead will be hard but it is not hopeless," he said on a platform at a former Saddam Hussein palace at Camp Victory. "We can and we must prevail. This mission is doable."

The change in command comes as President Bush overhauls his Iraqi policies and his team of top U.S. officials in the Middle East despite strong opposition by Democrats to plans to send 21,500 more troops to beef up security in Iraq.

Petraeus said the U.S. and the Iraqis needed to continue to work together in controlling the violence.

"The rucksack is too heavy for any one person to bear. We will all shoulder it here together," he said, adding that he wants to help the Iracis "make the most of this opportunity to build a new country."

Petraeus was joined by Casey, Army Gen. John Abizaid, the outgoing Central Command chief, and a chaplain for the handover ceremony, which was held at a former Saddam Hussein palace at Camp Victory on the western edge of Baghdad.

Russian president blasts U.S. for its use of force

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Russian President Vladimir Putin blasted the United States Saturday for the "almost uncontained" use of force in the world, and for encouraging other countries to acquire nuclear weapons.

Putin told a security forum that "we are witnessing an almost uncontained hyper use of force in international relations" and that "one state, the United States, has overstepped its national borders in every way.

"This is very dangerous, nobody feels secure anymore because nobody can hide behind international law," Putin told the gathering.

Putin did not elaborate on specifics and did not mention the wars in Iraq or Afghanistan. But he dismissed suggestions that the European Union and NATO had the right to intervene in crisis regions. At the same time, a judge in Los Angeles ordered that the model's body be preserved for at least 10 days for a possible DNA test related to a paternity dispute. The ruling could interfere with plans for a funeral.

Dr. Joshua Perper, the Broward County medical examiner who did the autopsy, said no illegal drugs were discovered in Smith's room at the Seminole Hard Rock Hotel and Casino in Hollywood after the 39-year-old pinup collapsed there on Thursday. He would not identify the prescription drugs.

But CNN quoted an unidentified law enforcement source as saying there were large amounts of prescription drugs, including Valium and antibiotics, as well as over-the-counter cold and flu medication.

Perper said that although toxicology tests are pending, the autopsy found no immediate evidence, either in Smith's stomach or her bloodstream, that she had taken large amounts of prescription medication. But officials "do not exclude any kind of contribution of medication to the death," he added.

Man charged with impersonating cop had own 'police station'

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — Henry Terry had all the right accessories to impersonate a police officer, prosecutors say: authentic-looking uniforms, a car with lights and sirens, a pair of handcuffs. But Terry took it a step further, setting up a personal police station where he kept records of possible crimes and sometimes interrogated "suspects" who were handcuffed to a chair, said Suffolk County District Attorney Thomas Spota.

Following the 24-year-old's arraignment earlier this week on charges of grand larceny and impersonating a police officer, the dingy fourth-floor office where he ran his operation was empty Friday except for some computer discs, a few papers on the floor, a pair of black dress shoes and a nameplate on a shelf: "Cpl. H. Terry, Unit Supervisor."

On the building directory downstairs, the space is listed as the "New York Enforcement Asset Recovery Bureau's District 2 Operations."

The office, now frigid because of broken windows, was also used for a time for the Holbrook resident's security company, and investigators were unsure when Terry started his alleged police impersonation.

"We have reason to believe the defendant has been posing as a police officer for some time," Spota said in a statement.

Obama to announce presidential plans Saturday

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Old State Capitol in Springfield, Ill. where Abraham Lincoln held office before running for president — is the setting for the latest milestone in Sen. Barack Obama's remarkable rise to prominence. The first-term U.S. senator planned to formally announce his candidacy for president Saturday in the city where he began his political career just 10 years ago.

Obama is a newcomer to the national scene, having served just two years in the Senate, but he already is considered Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton's chief rival among many vying for the Democratic nomination. He brings a wealth of political skills but a thin elective resume — the very reason he chose to stage his official campaign launch from the steps of the Old State Capitol.

Obama, who would be the first black U.S. president if elected, was tying his bid to the legacy of Lincoln — who served eight years in the Illinois Legislature — while using Springfield to tout his own eight-year record as a state senator.

In a video message on his Web site Friday, Obama said he was launching "a journey to take our country back and change the fundamental nature of our politics."

"I know a lot of you are cynical about the possibilities of that change," Obama said. "Sometimes it seems as if the game is fixed and it only works for the few and the powerful, but I fundamentally believe there is another brand of politics.

More tests needed to determine cause of Smith's death

DANIA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Prescription drugs were found in Anna Nicole Smith's hotel room, but there were no pills in her stomach, and investigators said Friday they are awaiting tests that could tell whether the former centerfold died of an overdose, as some close to her suspect.

Lake-effect squalls bury N.Y. county under 8 feet of snow

MEXICO, N.Y. (AP) — Ray DeLong took advantage of a break from the snow to use a blower to forge a path to his driveway as two contractors pushed streams of snow from the roof of his home. The brief reprieve Friday ended early Saturday as snow fell at a rate of 2 to 3 inches per hour, further burying a region already tested by nearly record snowfalls.

"Have to move fast. Want to at least get it off my roof," DeLong said, just hours before more flakes began to fall.

More than a week of bitter cold and slippery roads have contributed to at least 20 deaths across the northern quarter of the nation — five in Ohio, four in Illinois, four in Indiana, two in Kentucky, two in Michigan, and one each in Wisconsin, New York and Maryland, authorities said. No deaths were reported in Oswego County, where Mexico is located, however.

By 9 p.m. Friday a heavy lake effect band started to intensify over the county, said Tony Ansuini, a meteorologist for the National Weather Service in Buffalo.

Officials expected up to 14 inches of snow overnight, a trend that would push the seven day total beyond 100 inches and continue through the weekend.

Hybrids in, bi-fuels out under Arizona's new carpool experiment

PHOENIX (AP) — Three models of small hybrid cars will be permitted to use car pool lanes on area freeways under an experiment that also will ban some alternative-fuel vehicles that can now use the special lanes.

The federally authorized pilot project was announced Friday by Gov. Janet Napolitano's office. It will permit the Honda Insight, Honda Civic Hybrid and Toyota Prius to use the 73 miles of highoccupancy vehicle lanes if owners get required new plates and special permits. Hybrid vehicles run on either gasoline or self-generated electricity.

"We're using a variety of strategies to begin to clear the air in Arizona," Napolitano said in a statement. "Drivers who make the commitment to clean air and energy efficiency will get an easier commute." 007

COAHOMA - After a onepoint loss to Colorado City earlier in the season, the Coahoma Bulldogs were quite pleased to clinch a playoff birth after a 32point win over C-City Friday night.

Coahoma had four players in double figures and never slowed down as they throttled the Wolves 72-40 to avenge the 49-48 loss that still stings some of the Bulldog players.

"This has been a rivalry game since we were little kids." Stephen Ewing said from inside Coahoma's Elementary Gym. "We have been watching our older brothers and our friends compete against them for as long as I can remember and that onepoint loss was something I didn't want hanging around in the back of my mind. When you lose by a single point it just seems to linger a little longer than other losses coming against Colorado City ... that only made it worse."

C-City refused to lay down and despite trailing by as many as 16 points early in the game, the Wolves rallied before halftime to get the deficit under 10 points.

Coahoma's Jason Gonzales continues to light up every defense in the district. He dropped 17 points on C-City and managed 7 steals on the night.

"I really think Coahoma was just ready to play tonight," Danny Keeton, the Colorado City head coach said. "I'm proud of our kids and I really think we played with the same intensity and gave the same effort that we had when we beat them at our place. I really do, the best basketball team just won tonight.

With 1:16 remaining in the quarter, the Bulldogs were up 52-35 and despite playing some reserves, the lead continued to increase.

"This was a team win tonight," Coahoma coach Kim Nichols said. "When you have four players in double figures that means everyone is moving the ball around and getting it to the open man. That makes a coach happy.'

2 Toyotas to hit track in Bud Shootout

By JENNA FRYER

AP Auto Racing Writer DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. -Toyota will make its long awaited - but highly anticipated - debut in the Budweiser Although Shootout. the Japanese automaker hasn't ruled out winning the exhibition race, officials are approaching it as a warmup for the rest of Speedweeks.

"The information we can gain in the Shootout can be shared with all of our teams," said Andy Graves, director of Toyota's Nextel Cup program. "So we're absolutely grateful to have even one car in the race, let alone two."

Graves was with Chip Ganassi Racing back in 2001 when Dodge made its return to NASCAR, and watched as Bill Elliott participated in the Shootout then won the Daytona 500 pole the next day in a Dodge. A few days later, Sterling Marlin drove his Dodge to a victory in a qualifying race.

Now, the Toyota camp is hoping Dale Jarrett and Brian Vickers — who will pilot a pair of Camrys in Saturday night's race - can help the seven-car fleet ready for the season-opening Daytona 500.

The goal for us is to get feedback and earn some respect on the race track, with both the competition and the fans," Graves said.

Right now, Jarrett would settle for some within the industry.

MCT PHOTO/Stephen M. Dov Dale Earnhardt, Jr. crosses the finish line to win the Winn-Dixle 250 Busch race at Daytona International Speedway in 2006.

Because he's with a new team and didn't carry any points into this season, his spot in the garage pecking order is near the very bottom of the list. It meant the 1999 Cup champion had to park his team hauler in the Truck garage — a five-minute walk from the hustle and bustle of the Nextel Cup epicenter.

"There's no doubt this is Jarrett joked. incentive," "Right now, this isn't really so bad. We're away from everything and we're able to get everything done."

Ford, Jarrett is now piloting the No. 44 Camry.

"Who's that in the 44?" Kasey Kahne radioed his crew during one of Friday's two practice sessions.

That's just one of the many reactions the Toyota camp is receiving as it prepares to enter NASCAR's top series.

There are two Camrys in the 21-car exhibition event, and Jarrett will lead them to the green flag after earning the pole in a blind draw. All eyes will be on the Toyotas, with everyone is expected to tune in to check out the competition.

Rookie Young not on vacation at Pro Bowl

By GREG BEACHAM

AP Sports Writer

HONOLULU - Vince Young didn't see this trip to Hawaii as a vacation. The Tennessee quarterback figured a rookie should never stop learning, even at the Pro Bowl.

So Young mined his fellow stars for any vein of information during the week leading up to Saturday's game at Aloha Stadium. He got solid coaching advice from the AFC's Bill Belichick, while Peyton Manning spoke with him about resilience.

Oh, and every Pro Bowl player taught Young that it's important for the rookies to buy the drinks while everybody is sitting on the beach.

"It's been great. My head's kind of spinning, but it's a great time," said Young, who will back up Manning and Carson Palmer in the NFL's 57th all-star game. "I learned something every day. I'm just looking forward to playing in the game and having one more great experience to finish the year."

Young is the first rookie quarterback to make the Pro Bowl since Dan Marino, but he's just one star on the loaded AFC roster for the conferences' 37th meeting since the merger in a laid-back series tied 18-18.

Manning, the Super Bowl See YOUNG, Page 3B

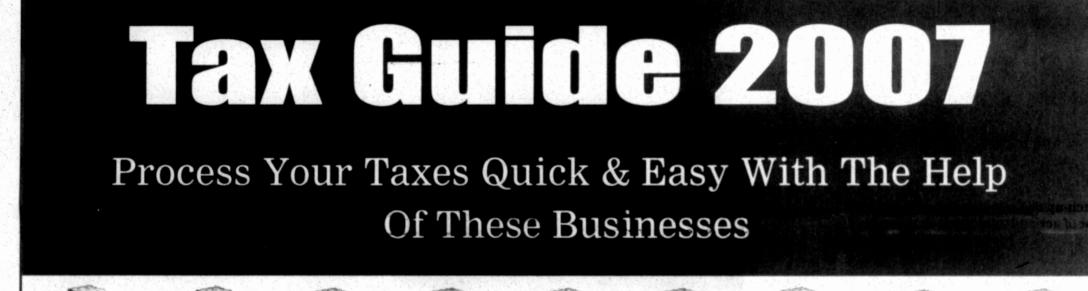

MVP, will start with league MVP LaDainian Tomlinson before an impressive defense led by Miami's Jason Taylor and Denver's Champ Bailey takes the field.

Even with standouts at every position around him, Young still attracts attention with his stunning physical abilities particularly among players who still hadn't seen him in person.

"We razz him a little bit because he's a rookie, but he seems really mature," Kansas City tight end Tony Gonzalez said. "You have to be mature at that position. He's already headed toward a great career. Hopefully Carson and Peyton can teach him a little some-'thing."

"I'm just glad he's on my team now," Indianapolis receiver Reggie Wayne said. "He's a freak out there, and there's lots of freaks at this game. He's got all kinds of skills."

Young got this opportunity through a little serendipity, since he wasn't an original selection to the Pro Bowl after a debut season he called "good, but not great." Though he went 8-5 as a starter with seven rushing touchdowns, his passing was admittedly erratic as the Titans missed the play

Dave Blaney and Jarrett, based on his past champion's provisional, are the only two Toyota drivers assured of making the 500 field, so Toyota is taking every chance it can get to gain information it can carry over into qualifying.

"I'm excited to see what we have," Jarrett said. "I'll be glad to finally get into those race conditions to see where we stack up and see how we can compete. How much work do we have to do? Or how little do we have to do?"

offs. When San Diego's Philip Rivers was forced to drop out of his first trip because of a foot injury last month, the NFL waited nearly two weeks to name Young to the game. Tom Brady apparently declined a Hawaii invitation, preferring to play golf at the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

Baltimore's Steve McNair also declined, but for a very good reason: He wanted Young, his friend and successor in Tennessee to have the opportunity he already had enjoyed.

Young should see plenty of playing time behind Manning, the Pro Bowl's career leader in yards passing and TD throws from his first six appearances. He gladly acknowledged being on cruise control all week after leading the Colts to their Super Bowl victory, and isn't likely to

But Young, a Houston native who led the University of Texas to the 2005 national title, will welcome every learning opportunity.

"He said he'd throw a touchdown pass to me, just for the people back home," Houston Texans receiver Andre Johnson said.

While Young makes his Pro Bowl debut, retiring New York Giants running back Tiki Barber will suit up for the final time in his 10-year career and Kansas City guard Will Shields also might be making his 12th and final appearance in Hawaii. Shields, the Chiefs stalwart who has opened holes for Priest Holmes and Larry Johnson, could retire in the offseason.

The NFC squad has considerably less star power, a fitting reflection of the AFC's dominance of the regular season and the Super Bowl. Drew Brees, the New Orleans quarterback who finished behind Tomlinson in MVP voting, will team up with San Francisco running back Frank Gore and Carolina receiver Steve Smith.

Yet Pro Bowls rarely turn into blowouts: Just four games since 1988 have been decided by more than two touchdowns.

"They've got a lot of good players, but I look around our practices, and we've got a ton of talent, just a ton," said Baltimore linebacker Adalius Thomas, who will start for the AFC alongside San Diego's Shawne Merriman. "All these guys together - I wouldn't want to try to stop our offense."

be a strength vs. strength match-up,' Sumrall said from the confines of Elementary Gym, where the Lady Bulldogs would have preferred to play the game. "Their post play is strong and it should be a physical and interesting match-up down low. The paint is where a lot of action is going to take place and our team is going to have to be ready to play with the intensity and emotion that the playoffs bring out in players.

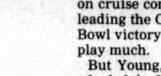

"It's definitely going to take a team effort to shut down their inside game." Janice Gonzales is the Lady Bulldogs leader in assists and steals - she averages 3 a game in both categories.

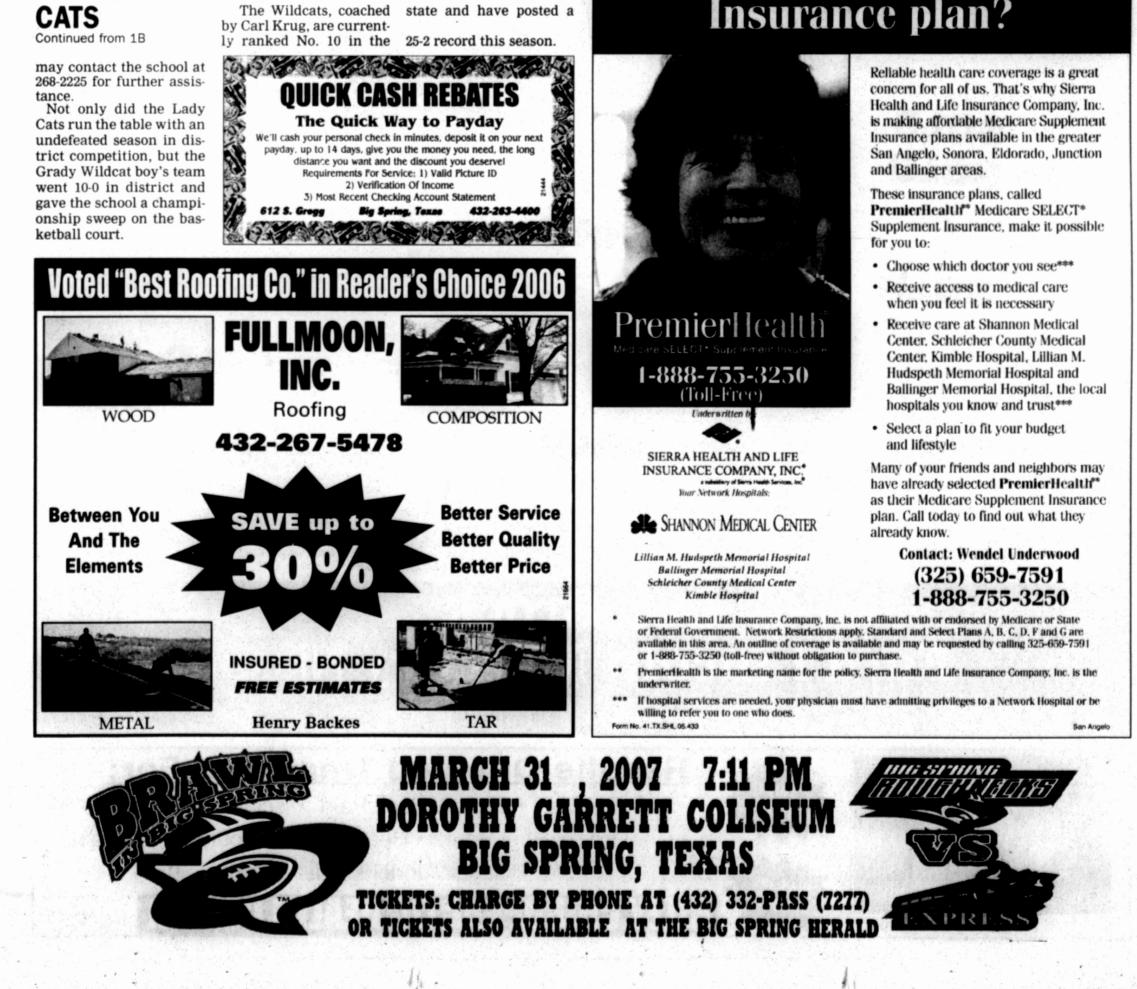

"Our guards have played really well over the past few weeks and if they can continue to play like they have recently, with the same effort and intensity when they step on the court, I think we should have an excellent opportunity of returning to Coahoma with a win," Sumrall added.

Mickelson can't wait to keep swing going

By DOUG FERGUSON

AP Golf Writer PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. - Phil Mickelson is so happy with his game that he wants to keep playing.

His original plan at the start of the year was to play four straight tournaments, all of which he has won in the past, take a week off from the Nissan Open at Riviera, then finish off the West Coast swing at the Accenture Match Play Championship.

But after two rounds in the Pebble Beach National Pro-Am that left him atop the leaderboard with Jim Furyk, Mickelson signed up for Riviera next week.

"I'm starting to play well, so I want to play a little bit more," Mickelson said after catching a good break in the windy weather and making the most of it with a 5under 67 at Pebble Beach. "I want to try to get into contention a couple more times because I wasn't in contention the first three weeks. Also, I'm real excited about how I'm driving the ball, and Riviera is a course you have to drive the ball at."

Riviera can wait.

Up next for the Masters champion is two more rounds on the Monterey Peninsula, at Spyglass Hill on Saturday, then the final round at Pebble Beach on Sunday.

Mickelson is a two-time winner of the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am, and although Furyk is highest-ranked player (No. 2) in the field, all eyes are on Lefty.

He continued to make big strides Friday on a cold, wet - but luckily for him, not windy - day at Pebble Beach. He made three straight birdies on the back nine, none of them closer than 10 feet, then finished off his round with an up-anddown for birdie on the 18th that allowed him to catch Furyk at 12under 132.

That gave the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am a good 1-2 punch at the top from the two highest-ranked players in the field.

Furyk (No. 2) and Mickelson (No. 6) had a three-shot lead over rookie John Mallinger and Kevin Sutherland, who turned in the best round of the dreary afternoon by firing off 10 birdies for a 63 at Spyglass Hill.

Sutherland thought briefly about the course record of 62 at Spyglass, just long enough to snap-hook his 3wood into the trees and out of play on the par-5 seventh. He reloaded with a two-stroke penalty, reached the green in two, escaped with a bogey and didn't let one bad hole take away from his round.

"Spyglass is one of my favorite courses in the world," said Sutherland, who has played it countless times dating to his amateur days in Northern California. "I'd rather play there than Pebble Beach. But a 63 was not the score I was thinking about when I teed off."

What couldn't escape his attention late in the afternoon was seeing Mickelson and Furyk ahead of him.

"I'm very much aware I need to make a lot more birdies," Sutherland said with a smile.

Davis Love III made a quiet climb into contention with a 67 at Pebble Beach, but perhaps the biggest surprise came from the group behind Mickelson - 57-year-old Tom Watson, playing this tournament for the last time.

Creativity and Realism Capture the Heart This Valentine's Day Experts Offer Tips on Expressing Love, Your Style

FAMILY FEATURES

HERALD

Cleveland, Ohio - We live in an age when the Internet and mass media provide access to the latest trends at the click of a mouse or the touch of a remote. As a result, people want their homes, their fashions and even their holiday celebrations to reflect their individual style and personality. Luckily, this Valentine's Day there are more ways than ever to say "I love you" with creativity and flair.

> There's good news for the unattached, too. Valentine's Day used to be the most dreaded day of the year for those who were not part of a couple. Social changes, like women marrying later, have been helped along by the influence of fictional icons like "Bridget Jones" and "Carrie Bradshaw." In today's world, being single no longer relegates women to second-class status. In fact, women use the occasion as an excuse to celebrate their friendships with a girls' night dinner party.

American Greetings offers special cards for singles, ranging from irreverent anti-Valentine's Day messages to sincere expressions of friendship. "True friends nurture the spirit and revitalize the soul," says one card. Another downplays the perceived seriousness of the day with the words: "Happy Feb. 14th" on the front. Inside, the message continues: "Oh, and have a nice Valentine's Day."

"From the turn of the century all the way through the '40s and '50s, Valentine's Day remained a pretty traditional romantic holiday," said Nicole Fraser, senior creative consultant at American Greetings, "It was all about cards with cupids, flowers and rhyming verses and presenting those big, heart-shaped boxes of chocolates. However, beginning in the '60s, people began to think of Valentine's Day as a day to express love to anyone important in their lives. Over the years, that trend has continued, and today, nearly 40 percent of all valentines are sent to other family members and friends.

"Exchanging school valentines has also become an American tradition. For most children, decorating Valentine's Day shoeboxes or paper bags and signing and delivering valentines to classmates will be one of the first times they will express their appreciation to others with a card."

If you're best known for your standout sense of fashion and design, consider an unusual format of valentine, like this one about being single from American Greetings that features romantic messages on several strips attached by a metal grommet.

Valentine's Day Entertainment Ideas

Okay, so now you've found the perfect card and personalized it with a romantic message. What's next? Consider the way you celebrate as well.

"Whether you're cooking a romantic dinner for two or planning an informal girls' night in for your single friends, today it's all about expressing your own style and adding your own creative touches," said Sandra Lee, life and style expert, New York Times best-selling author and "Semi-Homemade" Food Network star. "Here are some quick and easy ideas that will make the celebration extra special."

An Enchanted Evening for Two

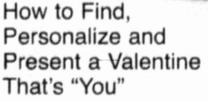

- Place a valentine with an invitation inside on their pillow the night before, or send an e-vite to work.
- Greet them with their favorite cocktail.
- Set an intimate red-and-white table for two with lots of chocolates and play romantic music
- Serve a small-effort meal with a big impact like fillet mignon topped with blue cheese, a salad and steamed green beans (even if you have to order it in because of time or culinary constraints).
- For the big finish, feed each other a sensual dessert like white and dark chocolate-covered cherries or strawberries - or maybe a rum raspberry trifle served in a champagne flute or merlot glass.

Girls' Night In

- Movie Night Send "ticket" invitations requesting guests bring their favorite chick flick and movie snack to share.
 "Just Desserts" Show your gal pals how special they are by serving a sweet buffet of decadent desserts, like a Chocolate Box (made with chocolate bars and filled with an easy mousse of store-bought pudding from snack cups mixed with whipped cream) and Wonton Napoleons (luscious layers of fried wontons, whipped cream and berry slices). More dessert recipes are available in Lee's book
- 'Semi-Homemade Desserts," or on her Web site: www.semihomemade.com.
- Queen of Hearts Card Party Settle in for a card night. Decorate with cards and dice, and crown each friend with a tiara from the toy department. Come Out 'n Play - Break out the board games. Decorate with dice, game boards
- and pieces. Dust off the golden oldies like Mystery Date, Clue, the Crazy Eight Ball or the Ouija Board and serve candy you enjoyed as a kid.

Raspberry Trifle With Rum Sauce

- 3 tablespoons butter
- 3/4 cup confectioners' sugar
- 3/4 teaspoon imitation rum extract
- tablespoons water
- 1/2 cup raspberry jam
- frozen pound cake (12-ounce), thawed and cut into quarter-size cubes containers (4 ounces each) refrigerated prepared vanilla pudding Fresh raspberries, for garnish
- Heat butter in a large glass bowl in microwave on high until melted, about 30 seconds. Whisk in confectioners' sugar, rum extract, and water, stirring to form a smooth sauce. Heat jam in a small glass bowl in microwave on high until just melted, about 30 seconds. In six small bowls or wineglasses, evenly distribute pound cake cubes. Pack cubes down slightly. Drizzle rum sauce and jam evenly over each. Spoon 3 tablespoons of pudding evenly over each. Refrigerate for 45 minutes. Garnish with raspberries and serve.

Romance is still a big part of the day, of course. The difference is that now there are cards for every conceivable stage of a relationship, from those who are just flirting, to new couples, to those who are deeply committed and in love. Today's relationships are far removed from quaint little Cupid and his bow and arrow; now cards paint a much more authentic picture of real-life relationships. The artwork and messages are as diverse as the people who send them.

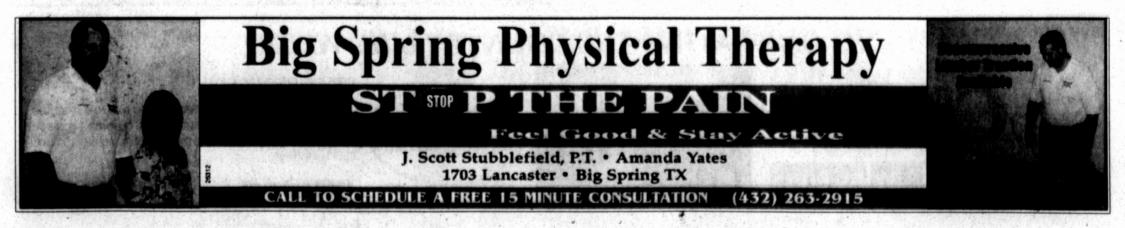

Are you a romantic who wants to express your deepest emotions? Romance will never go out of style. This year, heartfelt, romantic cards are as diverse as the people sending them. For instance, one of American Greetings' new cards says, "Hands are meant to be held. Lips are meant to be kissed. Words are meant to be spoken. Dreams are meant to come true. You and I are meant for each other." If your style is short and sweet, you might opt instead for one that pictures raffle tickets on the front, and says: "I won the prize, Happy Valentine's Day."

Are you in a new relationship? You could select a card in the nontraditional color of Tiffany blue with a heart composed of brown velvet dots with the simple words: "You're my boyfriend. I love saying that."

Looking for a slightly sultry card as a prelude to a romantic evening at home? American Greetings offers one that reads: "My husband. My hottie. Be mine ... today, tonight, 'til the end of time. Love you.'

To make the most impact, take a few minutes to write a personal message. If you're having trouble getting started, consider these tips:

- Don't get too hung up on how to say it. This is a love note for the most romantic day of the year. Express how you feel in a way that sounds natural and right for you, and it will be wonderful
- Start by making fun lists
 - Things you love about your valentine, like "your hot, passionate kisses" or what a wonderful father you are to our children'
 - Things the two of you love doing together
 - Private jokes, nicknames or code words
- Favorite memories starting with how you met
- Don't stop after finding just the right card and declaring your feelings inside. Get creative with the presentation. The unexpected surprise of discovering a card in a briefcase or the special delivery of a valentine with a single red rose on the bed pillow is sure to delight.

Crow and Long

Tracy Dawn Long and Travis Aaron Crow, both of Lubbock, were united in marriage at 6 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 25, 2006, at Trinity Baptist Church with Dr. Randy Cotton officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Frank and Glenda Long of Big Spring. Her grandpar-ents are Elbert and Monohn Long and Wanda Jones of Big Spring, Jackie Jones of Rockwall and the late Glen Jones.

The groom is the son of Richard and Margaret Crow of Austin. His grandparents are Robert and Mosby of Leander and the late Mattie Mosby and the late Keith and Vetta Crow.

Given away by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white delustered satin with a strapless design and dramatic plunging back. The bodice was enhanced with dimensional hand beaded embroidery and Swarovski crystals in a linear and scroll design. The Basque waist accents the bouffant ball gown skirt, highlighted with soft-side pleats. The embroidered motif is echoed around the hem and on the insert of the cathedral train.

bouquet of white lilims and dendrobium white orcharids.

Jamie Long, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor and Kimberly Nelson, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Stephanie Pearce, Melaine McCracken, Jearlyn Allen and Tracy Crow, sister of the groom.

Jason Crow, brother of the groom, stood in as best man. Groomsmen were Brian Jones, Blain Weiheimer, Ches Campbell, Ryan Vassar and Landon Adkins.

Tracy is a 2000 graduate of Big Spring High School. She earned her associate's degree from Howard College and she is a 2006 graduate of Texas Tech University with a bachelor of science in early childhood education.

Travis is a 2000 graduate of McNeal High School of Austin. He will graduate in May 2007 from Texas Tech University with a degree in landscape architecture. He is employed by Texas Tech and upon graduation will be employed by a landscape architecture firm in Austin. The couple went on a Caribbean cruise for their honeymoon and will make She carried a cascading their home in Austin.

King grew up in a loving family. They lived in Atlanta, Ga.

At that time in many parts of the South, people were separated or segregated.

King was a smart child.

He worked hard at school. He started college when he was just 15 years-old. Martin Luther King Jr. finished college.

He became a minister. Then he went to Boston University. He earned a doctor of philosophy degree.

That is why he has the title Dr. before his name. In Boston, he met Coretta Scott. She was a music student.

They fell in love.

They were married. The King family moved to Montgomery, Ala. Dr. King worked as a minister.

Dr. King and other leaders said her arrest was unfair. They urged Americans and their supporters to stop riding the buses.

They wanted the laws to change. In 1963, Dr. King went to Washington D.C. He gave a speech.

It was titled "I Have a Dream." He said that people should not be judged by their character.

Dr. King won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1964. This prize is given to a person who works hard for peace in the world.

Life for many African Americans began to get better. Many segregation laws were ended.

More people could vote. Dr. King was killed in 1968. People all over the world were sad.

After his death, people wanted to honor Dr. King.

Today many people celebrate his birthday as a holiday.

I stopped the car 'neath a big oak tree and wandered across the yard Where wild flowers grew in profusion In utter disregard

The door knob came off in my hand As I opened the rain-soaked door And cobwebs hung like silver thread From the ceilings to the floor

Sunshine streaming through the windows Made funny patterns on the floor And I suddenly got the feeling I'd seen this place before

Did a mother sit beside an open fire, Lamp light shining on her hair As she rocked her baby boy to sleep In her cane-back rocking chair

I seemed to hear the patter of little feet Running up and down the stairs While the sound of childish laughter Seemed to echo everywhere

I made my way through the old farm house And out the kitchen door And again there came the feeling I'd seen this place before

There were traces of some stepping stones

From the back porch to the well And half-buried in the ground beside a garden wall

Lay an old iron dinner bell

As I stook there reminiscing I could almost hear it ring and high overhead in a gnarled old tree I heard a blue bird sing

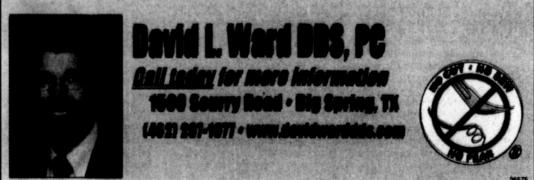

As the evening shadows deepened Tears were streaming down my face For I was born in this old house It was the old home place.

Oil Companies talking innovation,

advances By JOHN PORRETTO

AP Business Writer

HOUSTON -With dwindling oil supplies, pollution concerns and the ever-present threat of gas prices soaring again, talk of new and better ways to fuel our cars, heat and cool our homes, and power our factories has never been greater.

What's more, the conversation is emanating increasingly from a source that's been surprisingly quiet until recently - the oil companies themselves.

When some of the industry's top executives gather in Houston next week to discuss global energy challenges, finding new and more effecvive ways to produce oil and gas - as well as alternatives to fossil fuels - will dominate the discussion.

And, as the year progresses, expect to see industry leaders including the chiefs of ConocoPhillips and Royal Dutch Shell PLC's U.S. division - speaking in cities across America in an unprecedented campaign to educate consumers on energy related

FORT WORTH — Like lots of tod-dlers, 2-year-old Timothy Smith routinely plays with toys that teach him to sing tunes, repeat simple words and count to 10.

The Arlington family doesn't have to search very hard these days.

From colorful, counting maracas to huggable, talking bears, bilingual playthings have become increasingly popular as retailers and manufacturers tap the burgeoning Hispanic market.

In fact, Toys "R" Us cited bilingual products among the biggest trends of last Christmas' toy-buying season.

Industry insiders trace the growth largely to the popularity of several animated TV characters: Nick Jr.'s Dora the Explorer, a 7-year-old, probissues and discuss topics such as ethanol and renewable fuels. It's also an opportunity for the companies to polish their images.

Why now? The reasons are varied, but increased public and congressional scrutiny of oil companies because of up-and-down gasoline prices and record profits certainly is a factor. The companies' own bottom lines also play a key role: The cost of finding and tapping new oil and gas reserves is on the rise while the worldwide appetite for energy is only getting bigger.

"There's never been as much effort going into technological innovation across the whole energy industry as we're seeing said today,' Daniel Yergin, chairman of Cambridge Energy Research Associates, a consultancy, and author of "The Prize," the Pulitzer Prize-winning history of the oil industry.

CERA's annual At weeklong conference that begins Monday, dozens of the industry's heaviest hitters — the chairmen of Exxon Mobil Corp. and Chevron Corp. and a top OPEC official, among them - will discuss topics such as the tricky balance of supply and demand and initiatives to develop new sources of energy.

WASHINGTON (AP) -CB Richard Ellis Group Inc. said it approved a cash bonus of $1.5 million to Robert E. Sulentic, who joined the company as group president of development services of Asia-Pacific and EMEA operations late last year.

The El Segundo, Calif.based real estate services firm said in a filing Thursday with the Securities and Exchange Commission that Sulentic joined the company after it acquired Trammell Crow Co. on Dec. 20.

Trammell Crow is a Dallas-based real-estate services company.

The cash bonus was based on targets and performance criteria established in 2006 by the Trammell Crow and on Sulentic's performance as the chief executive of the former company, CB Richard Ellis said.

Southwest Airlines plans to return to San Francisco

Southwest Chief Executive Gary Kelly said San Francisco International "has improved operationally and is a more costefficient airport" than it was in 2001, when Southwest pulled out after 20 years there.

At the time, Kelly said, limited facilities and runways meant Southwest couldn't operate profitably in San Francisco and had no chance to expand beyond 14 daily flights.

Southwest began service between San Francisco and Las Vegas in 1982 and later added nonstop flights to San Diego and Phoenix.

Southwest said returning to San Francisco wouldn't affect operations at Oakland International Airport, where it has 142 daily departures; or San Jose International, where it has 77 daily departures. Southwest flies out four airports in the Los Angeles area, two near Washington, D.C., and two near Boston. However, it has adamantly refused to offer service at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, near its Dallas Love Field base.

Although the cartoon celebrities have a spate of products on store shelves, toymakers also have introduced an array of other items to appeal to Hispanic families and to English-speaking parents who want to add a few words of Spanish to their children's vocabularies.

"I think that parents want their kids to have a bilingual edge," said Adrienne Citrin, a spokeswoman for the Toy Industry Association. "Kids under 5, their brains are like sponges. They can really pick up that language quicker."

For the toy business, bilingual products have taken off along with Hispanics' economic clout.

Hispanics account for almost 15 percent of U.S. residents, according to the Pew Hispanic Center's most recent data. And Hispanics' buying power nationwide is projected to rise from $490 billion in 2000 to almost $1.2 trillion in ucts that can just be translated into 2011, according to a study done last year by the Selig Center for Economic Growth at the University of Georgia.

"There is certainly more of an awareness on the part of retailers that the Hispanic market is a very large market, a growing market," said Carol Fenster, an owner of Miami-based Baby Abuelita Productions.

Fenster's company launched its first products in May 2005, with the introduction of its Abuelita Rosa and Abuelito Pancho dolls. The dolls quickly won coveted shelf space at several bigbox stores, and 60,000 dolls were bought last year, she said.

The dolls - white-haired grandparents who sing traditional Spanish lullabies — initially raised eyebrows from some buyers who questioned whether children would be drawn to the elderly characters. But Fenster and her partners insisted that the dolls would hit their target.

"Because of the role that grandparents play in Hispanic culture, it seemed to kind of make sense," Fenster said. "These are products that, I think, Hispanic-Americans can really identify and connect with - as opposed to prodSpanish.'

Educational toys that simply expose youngsters to Spanish have proven popular too, especially for younger children who aren't yet in school, said Rick Muraski, the executive vice president who oversees the toy division at Chicco USA.

Chicco, which created its first bilingual toy four years ago, now sells four such talking toys and has more in the works for 2007, he said.

"It's an introduction," Muraski said. "It's your basic numbers, your basic letters, basic words in both languages - just to give a baby, basically, a feel for another language."

Although statistics aren't available on overall sales of bilingual toys, the toy association's Citrin said the products are expected to become ubiquitous.

"We're positive it's going to continue to grow," she said. "Everything from the large companies to the small companies are kind of jumping on the bandwagon." Chicco's Muraski isn't so sure.

"There's a lot of product out there right now," he said. "Now there's so many of them, it's hitting a saturation point. I still think we have a couple more years to go."

Muraski doesn't expect Spanish-speaking toys to vanish after that. But he said manufacturers will have to bring bilingual concepts to new kinds of toys if they want to keep the market fresh.

They'll find a ready audience in Alvarenga-Smith, the Arlington mom who looks for bilingual toys for Timothy and his 4-month-old sister, Helena. She hopes that speaking two languages will help the children understand their ethnic heritage, sharpen their mental skills and prepare them for career opportunities in adulthood.

With those goals in mind, Alvarenga-Smith and her husband usually allow Timothy to spend one night a week in Grand Prairie at the home of his grandparents, who help him practice Spanish. And she encourages him to play with his bilingual guitar, plastic cell phone, and a collection of books and videos that emphasize the language.

"My parents were very big on teaching me Spanish and English," Alvarenga-Smith said.

"I feel remiss that I have not done that for my 2-year-old and my baby. This is kind of one of the ways that I'm trying to make up for it."

separate national speaking tours with other representatives of their companies, talking and listening at town hall meetings in places like Edwardsville, Ill., and Little Rock. Ark.

Outlining his company's 35city tour in Houston recently, Mulva acknowledged that he and others have done a poor job of conveying to the public how their businesses operate, the challenges they face, the advances they're making.

Often, consumers' main connection with oil companies comes from filling up their vehicles or, recently, reading headlines of record profits. For example, Exxon Mobil this month shattered its own record for the largest annual profit by any U.S. company, bringing in $39.5 billion. And ConocoPhillips reported its best-ever full-year earnings, according to the federal govern-

$15.5 billion for 2006. But what folks probably don't know, Mulva said, is U.S. oil companies have invested $11 billion in North America on renewable and other forms of energy in the past five years. Still, the task of weaning Americans and the rest of the world off fossil fuels will be monumental and lengthy. At present, renewable energy sources such as wind and solar supply only about 6 percent of ment's Energy Information Administration. That figure is expected to grow only to about 7 percent in the next 20 years, the EIA forecasts, meaning fossil fuels will still carry the bulk of the load.

Mulva said all types of efficient energy sources are needed, but market forces and consumer preferences, not federal mandates, should determine how they're used.

Mulva called President Bush's America's energy needs, proposal for expanding ethanol use to reduce gas consumption

Date: Jan. 31, 2007

"very well motivated," but he said industry leaders "want a seat at the table" when state and federal officials set standards for the use and development of alternative energy sources.

"We believe very strongly the best way of meeting those metrics is to determine what they are and then let the industry ... come up with the resources and plans to meet those, (rather) than have mandates saying specifically, 'You have to do it this way and that," he said.

XCA Valentine Specials Perms and Manicures HALF PRICE during February Call HC Cosmetology at 264-5062 to schedule your appointment HOWARD COLLEGE 1001 Birdwell Lane • • • • • • • • • • ATTENTION Have you ever had auto insurance with Farmers?

If so, your rights may be affected by a proposed settlement and you may be entitled to a cash payment, but you must submit a claim form to get it.

If your car or truck was insured by Farmers Insurance Exchange, Mid-Century Insurance Company or any other affiliated company ("Farmers"), was damaged in an accident and you made a claim with Farmers, a class action settlement may affect your rights.

There is a proposed settlement of a class action lawsuit involving Farmers' specification of certain "non-OEM" car and truck parts that the lawsuit alleges do not meet the quality standards required by Farmers' automobile insurance policies. "Non-OEM" car and truck parts are generally the sheet metal exterior of a car or truck, such as hoods and fenders, that were not made by, or for, the vehicle's original maker. That is, parts that were not made by companies such as GM, Toyota, Volkswagen or Ford. A Notice explaining all of the benefits available under the settlement, including how you can receive cash if you qualify, is available at the website shown below.

To receive a claim form and more information, call toll-free 1-877-576-9983 for go online to www.AutoPartsCase.com

If you are eligible, you will receive $40.00 for each eligible hood specified by Farmers for any claim you made following an accident from June 15, 1996 to November 1, 2006. You will also receive $20.00 for any claim you made during the same period for each of the following parts that are eligible:

> Fenders Door shells Quarter panels Rear outer panels Truck beds Deck lids Trunk lids

Box sides Body side panels Tailgates Lift gates Metal bumper absorbers Metal bumper reinforcements

Information About Your Warranty from Farmers. You will also receive information about the warranty Farmers provides for each non-OEM car and truck part listed above.

If you are a member of the proposed settlement class, you also have the right to exclude yourself from this settlement, object to this settlement, seek leave to intervene in the lawsuits, and exercise other important rights. These rights must be exercised by April 17, 2007.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: The Sagittarius moon at the top of the week is a restless character who keeps peeking over the fence to see how much greener the grass is there. Well, the answer is not much. Your best bet is to tend to your own yard and let others do the same. Mercury's retrograde on the 13th is bent on mixing things up for Valentine's Day, but in most cases it only serves to make romance deliciously tension-filled. Miscommunication produces mystery. Being unsure of how you're coming across can be endearing. comically Valentine's Day comes on a classic Capricorn moon, which bodes well for traditional observances of this holiday of the heart. It's the chocolates and lace, dinner and violins, velvet and diamonds that send the message best.

about to lose his driver's license. My 13-year-old son wants to come back home to live with me.

I recently discovered some things about my cousin. He was very abusive to his children and sexually assaulted his stepdaughter from his second marriage. My wife, however, accepts everything he tells her as the truth.

I've lost my self-respect, and I feel God has deserted me. I am also in debt and have a huge legal bill. I'm likely to lose the my father and where all my children were raised. I still love my wife, and my heart will always belong to her. What do I do? — In Love Forever

Dear In Love: It is hard to recover from such a crushing blow, but it's not impossible. What you must first do is accept that your wife has left and you still have many good years ahead of you and they can be good if you will allow it. Go back to counseling. Two years is a long time to still be home I inherited from so completely adrift. If you are not making progress with your counselor, find another. And if your children are not in counseling, they can benefit from going with you. You each need to find a way to come to grips with this, so you can look to the future with optimism.

> Dear Annie: My wife and I recently purchased tickets to a sporting event. We paid a lot per ticket and ordered for others who said they also wanted to attend the event. Everyone who requested a ticket has paid us except for one family member who decided, after the ticket was purchased, that he didn't want to go. I told him we'd already paid for the ticket, and he said he "sure felt bad" about it, but he never once offered to pay, and he can afford it a lot better than we can.

an. I am so mad I can't see straight, and haven't spoken to him since. We tried to sell the ticket to someone else, but couldn't find anyone who wanted just one. So, can I tell him that this will be his birthday present for the next four years? What else can I do? - Sucker Written on My Forehead

Dear Sucker: Some people need to have things spelled out. Say, "Ed, we couldn't unload the ticket you ordered, so you still owe us $100." If he refuses, offer to split the difference. At least you'll get half. If he still refuses, tell him you'll consider it his future birthday gift --- until whenever.--

Dear Annie:"I read this in my choir's local publication and thought you'd enjoy it. — Roxann, North Shore Choral Society, Evanston, Ill. Dear Roxann: We love it. Thanks. Quotations from gradeschool essays on classical music:

"Agnus Dei was a woman composer famous for her church music."

"A virtuoso is a musician with real high morals."

"Refrain means don't do it. A refrain in music is the part you better not try to sing."

"I know what a sextet is, but I'd rather not say." "My very best liked piece is the bronze lullaby."

"Probably the most marvelous fugue was between the Hatfields and the McCoys."

"Music sung by two people at the same time is called a duel."

"Henry Purcell is a well-known composer few people have ever heard of."

"Most authorities agree that music of antiquity was written long ago."

Will There Ever Be a Little Gold Band?

Dear Margo: I am 27 and procrastinates. He can have been dating a wonderful man for four years. He is older

(by years), but that never an We always had a great nection.

Ι

14C

MARGO knew from early HOWARD on that he was the man I wanted to spend my life with. We have both been divorced and have children. When we first started dating. I told him my goals (marriage and at least one more child). He was all on board.

Flash forward four years later. I have started wondering if he ever meant to make any kind of permanent commitment to me, and if all the talk in the beginning was just to make me happy and keep me around. He hasn't made any reference to a future with me and my son. He rarely invites me on outings with his daughter.

I started bringing up my concerns, but he just says, "I know I need to make a decision." Even his mom (whom I barely know) has said, "You can't make that girl wait forever." I have asked him if he still wants children, and he said that he does.

I believe it is unfair to make me wait while he make babies until the day he dies, but I only have so long. I don't want to leave him because I love him so very much and we get along so great. What do you think I should do? -To Be a Desperate Housewife

Dear Des: I don't know that you want to drag him, like a mule, to the altar, and from where I sit it sounds like that's not where he wants to go. As to what you should do, you have two clear-cut choices. You can tell him adios because you are serious about having another child and getting married. Or . . . you can stick around because you love him and he's great company — but on his terms.

If you go with the first option, you will be calling his bluff and he may pop the question, but he may just as easily bounce out the door. Life is choices, my dear, and I suggest you make yours in the near future. - Margo, ultimately

Another Commitmentphobe

Dear Margo: I am currently a happy exchange student in a South American country. Last month, I went to visit my boyfriend of almost three years in New York City, where he has an internship this term with a prestigious company.

He bought the plane ticket (it was a really good deal, what can I say?) and fed me for the week. Normally I feel guilty when someone buys me a soda, let alone a trip to New York. We had a fantastic week.

A week after I got back, decided he was he "uncomfortable with the status of our relationship" and that it was over. After a month of some pretty heavy-duty depression and anger, I've come to terms with this and I'm ready to go out and find some cute novios (translation: boyfriends).

Now he's sending me messages about how he's sad and confused and how he misses being with me. Short of telling him que vaya al infierno (translation: go to hell) what should I do with this kid? He wants to come visit over spring break. -Gringa in Quito

Dear Gring: These back and forth guys are a pain; they break up, they make up. The distance and irregularity of the relationship may be getting to him, or whatever.

Unless you want to go through this routine a couple more times, tell him you took him at his word when he said he was "uncomfortable with the status of the relationship" and you've made other plans for spring break.

I think your instinct to tell him que vaya al infierno is the correct one without actually saying it. -Margo, definitivamente

Choosing Up Sides Is for the Playground

Margo: I'm going to speak to you like I would a close friend. Hope you don't mind.

Frankly, I have no idea how to address this issue. I have two wonderful friends whom I adore. They happen to be married to each other. They also happen to be driving me nuts.

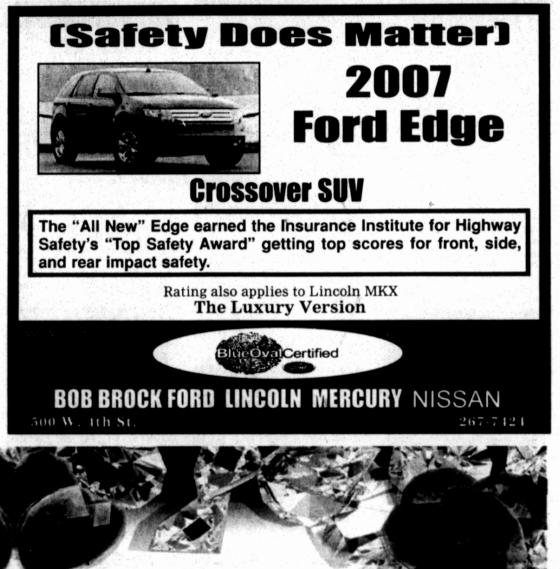

Lately, the couple is having difficulties in their three-year marriage, and divorce is a possibility. I've been dragged into it by his sister, who has had issues with me since junior high school. She's accusing me of sleeping with the female in the relationship! (Um, totally not true, btw; we are both straight girls.) He doesn't believe it, as he trusts his wife and me, as well. Of course, that's not the issue, but it's definitely a pain in the old backside. I don't want to be in the middle of this already tense situation, but I want to be supportive of both friends. My question is: What do I do if they get divorced (which I'm afraid is going to happen)? Can I continue being his friend as well as hers, or do I have to choose? There's nothing really unforgivable causing the upset — no cheat-ing, stealing, huge secrets. They just don't get along and aren't really in love anymore. -Bumfuzzled

Dear Bum: Forget the loony sister. She is a sideshow. As for being in the middle, you're really not. I have recently lived through what you're talking about — except that the couple I love are ending a much longer marriage than you're talking about. It was their stated here's two words that are guaranteed to cause even the hardiest macho man to run for the hills, yelling and screaming every step of the way.

"Chick Flick."

That's right, there are guys out there who could look at their recently severed arm with little more than bemused detachment, but tell them they'll have to spend some quality time with the missus, cuddled up on the couch watching romance movies.

and they start wimpering like itty-bitty babies. And the sad thing is that this doesn't have to be.

As a card-carrying guy myself, I have found that through copious research, steel determination and the ability to keep a straight face, watching a romance movie with your signifcant other can be more than two hours of wretched misery.

It can even be enjoyable.

OK, scoff if you want. Mark my words - you'll thank me later. Here are a few fast-and-simple rules that can greatly enhance your romance movie watching enjoyment:

 THE NEAT TWIST — The thing that most romances can't get past is that we know how things are going to turn out at the end.

Most romantic movies follow the following formula - boy meets girl; boy loses girl; boy gets girl back.

Now, this isn't set in stone. For example, sometimes the premise of the movie is that the girl is the lead character (or, in the case of "Brokeback Mountain," the girl is pretty much written out of the equation). But the basic formula pretty much stands.

That's why you need a twist some deep, dark secret or some kind of unique obstacle standing in the way of our couple and true happiness.

When that happens, at least us guys can wonder, "How the heck are they going to get out of this?" That's right, ladies, give us a puzzle and we're happy (or at least happily diverted for a bit). MANLY ACITIVITY — If you can't have the neat twist, at least give us guys something to which we can relate. For example, give the movie a sports setting. One of my all-time favorite movies is "Bull Durham," which has more than its share of the icky, romantic stuff. What nicely counter-balances that, however is the movie's setting – a minor league baseball team.

So, while your girlfriend can appreciate the movie for the way it explores male-female relationships, you can appreciate it for baseball action (not to mention all the jokes about bodily functions).

It doesn't have to be about sports. If they ever came out with a movie in which the male lead was a construction worker, guys would probably buy tickets in droves.

 SHE SHORE IS PURTY — The following might land me in hot waters in some quarters, but the truth needs to be told - and the truth is, watching a romance movie mainly to appreciate the beautiful women is perfectly acceptable.

And before you women out there protest, take a moment to be honest with yourselves. Don't you ever pop a movie in the DVD player mainly to secretly ogle « over the hunky male cast? Admit it.

Go on, admit it.

Well, what's good for the goose is good for the gander, I say.

However, fellow guys, please, in the name of all that's holy, use some discretion. Drooling or piggish comments, for example, could lead to disastrous consequences - and pain.

As a starter kit of sorts, I've included mini-reviews of three romance movies I have in my DVD collection. Remember, romance movies can be fun. Really.

THE NEAT TWIST

THE LAKE HOUSE

Actually, this qualifies under She Shore Is Purty, also, because Sandra Bullock is definitely an attractive woman (not that that's important, dear).

The movie follows Kate (Bullock), a doctor who begins a correspondence with architect Alex (Keanu Reeves). The two find they have many interests in common, including the titular lake house. Soon, a romance blooms.

There's one doozy of a problem, however: The two are writing from different times.

Just go with it.

Kate is writing from 2006, while Alex is corresponding from 2004. With the help of a magic mailbox (again, just go with it) they develop quite a relationship, giving the temporal handicap they find themselves under.

If you're the highly technical sort, this movie will drive you nuts. You'll spend most of your time scratching your head over some of the plot points.

If, however, you're able to surrender to the sheer absurdity of it all, this is a very charming movie. Bullock, in particular, is solid in her role, while Reeves has definitely left his Surfer Dude days behind. (More reviews, page 3)

MANLY ACTIVITY

FOR LOVE OF THE GAME

Gee, Kevin Costner in a baseball movie - whoda thunk it? Baseball is the backdrop of a Costner vehicle for the third time (following "Field of Dreams" and "Bull Durham") in this film costarring Kelly Preston.

The movie follows the day in the life of Detroit Tigers' pitcher Billy Chapel (Costner), who is nearing the end of a Hall of Fame career.

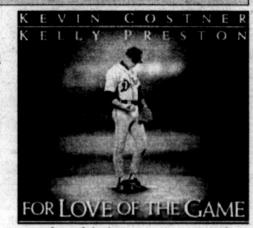

During the course of his final start of the season, against the hated Yankees in New York, Chapel examines his life, including his relationship with magazine writer Jane Aubrey (Preston).

OK, that sounded more maudlin than I intended.

There is plenty of sports action, and the movie follows Chapel inning by inning as he attempts to accomplish one of the rarest feats in the sport - a perfect game.

Can he do it? Can he hold off the ravages of age? Can the lowly Tigers keep the mighty Yankees at bay? Can Chapel accomplish the near impossible?

Far be it from me to give away any salient plot points, but remember this is a romance movie at its core, and too many disappointments would be against the rules.

Costner is in familiar territory here, and he delivers the goods admirably. He performs his own stunts and pitching in this movie and while he looks every bit of a man in his late 40s at times (check out that 50 MPH fastball, folks!), it doesn't take too much of a suspension of disbelief to see this guy on the mound.

As for Preston, she's fine in her role. I must admit, though, that I had a hard time watching Mrs. John Travolta have a steamy romance with Costner's character. Was I putting way too much

SHE SHORE IS PURTY

JUST LIKE HEAVEN

Just for the sake of clarity, let me reiterate a very important fact about watching romance movies: There is absolutely nothing wrong with appreciating the, uh, attractiveness of the female lead.

And when the female lead happens to be Reese Witherspoon, it is almost impossible not to appreciate her beauty.

Which is a good thing, because she's in almost every scene of this movie, which co-stars Mark Ruffalo, who a female friend described as "ruggedly handsome." Yeah, whatever.

The point is, Ms. Witherspoon is drop-dead gorgeous, OK?

Before you think me a callous pig, however, let me be the first to admit that looks alone can't carry a movie. Fortunately, Witherspoon - who happens to be an Academy Award-winning actress is more than up to the task.

And Ruffalo ain't bad, either.

Dr. Elizabeth Masterson is too busy trying to establish her residency at a San Francisco hospital to worry about trivial things like a boyfriend.

After a long shift at the hospital, however, she allows her sister to talk her into meeting a friend of a friend.

En route to the meeting, however, Elizabeth's car runs head-on into a delivery truck. Yikes.

Some time later, landscape architect David Abbott rents the apartment formerly occupied by Elizabeth.

See where this is going?

Soon, David is being tormented by an ethereal woman who looks just like Elizabeth.

Is she dead?

Far be it from me to give anything away. Suffice to say, David and Elizabeth get to the bottom of the situation. And a relationship blooms.

Didn't see that coming, did you? But this really is a good movie, with lots of decent humor.

And did I mention it has Reese Witherspoon?

OTHERS YOU MIGHT TRY, GUYS

 SERENDIPITY — Two words: Kate Beckinsale. Any questions?

But there's something for the ladies, too, in the form of John Cusack.

The plot's paper-thin, but there's plenty of humor, especially when Jeremy Piven ("Entourage") is on the screen as the Cusack character's well-meaning friend.

 CITY OF ANGELS — Heavy romantic drama starring Nicolas Cage and Meg Ryan.

Cage plays an angel (just go with it) who falls for a lovely surgeon (Ryan).

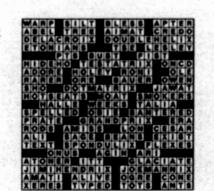

This one is a tear-jerker, so have plenty of hankies around.

Not for you, of course. For your girlfriend. Oh, and Dennis Franz steals this movie.

 MUST LOVE DOGS — Another Cusack movie I'm including only because I've had a crush on Diane Lane for the past 20 years. Cusack plays a recently divorced boat builder (I know, just go with it) who does his best to strike up a love connection with Lane.

Hey, who doesn't? OK if you like Cusack and/or Lane. Otherwise, forget it.

SOMMERSBY — Period piece drama set just after the Civil War. The plot: Man (Richard Gere) returns from the war to his wife (Jodie Foster) and family a changed man. No longer a brute, he's now a loving, decent, caring individual.

So, of course, everybody thinks he's a fraud. The leads are very good.
