Annual lunch slated Tuesday at coliseum

By THOMAS JENKINS
Staff Writer

Big Spring's future will be the topic of choice Tuesday, as Mayor Russ McEwen prepares to give his annual State of the City address during a community luncheon.

The annual luncheon, sponsored by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, is an excellent time to look at where the city has been, and where it is headed, according to Chamber Director Debbye ValVerde.

"It's a chance for people to come together and talk about what we've done, but it's also a chance to share ideas on the future of our city," she said.

McEwen said the Big Spring economy will be a large part of the presentation.

"We'll look at the state of the state of the economy and the things that are going on in the city of

Bell: Future for local VA facility solid

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

After two years of uncertainty, there's a lot of good news to spread about the Big Spring VA Medical Center, and its new director is more than happy to be the messenger.

Michael Bell, who was named interim director of the facility in July, recently assumed the post full-time. His career with the Veterans Administration has taken him to numerous postings in five states and he's more than happy with his latest assignment.

HC trustees to mull possible bond election

□ The board meets at 12:30 p.m. Monday in the SUB Tumbleweed Room.

Another bond election may be on the horizon for area taxpayers.

Howard College trustees will decide whether to place a bond issue on the May 12 ballot when they hold their regular monthly meeting at 12:30 p.m. Monday in the Student Union Building Tumbleweed Room.

College President Dr. Cheryl Sparks gave no definite monetary figure on the possible bond, but said it could reach as high as $21.5 million.

The bond would pay for building renovations and utility upgrades. Targeted for renovation are the Practical Arts, Music, Administration, Student Union and Science buildings, while officials plan to upgrade sewer, electric and HVAC systems throughout the campus.

This would mark the first bond election in the junior college district since 1975, when voters approved construction of

Sparks

Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Other bond elections have been held in 1946, 1955 and 1965.

Most renovations target building more than 50 years old, Sparks said.

Officials also want to

Jail woes on tap for county Monday

By THOMAS JENKINS
Staff Writer

Howard County commissioners are to meet Monday morning, as discussions concerning the repair of the existing jail and design of a new facility continue — possibly into an executive session.

County Judge Mark Barr said there are at least three issues commissioners may take up in executive session during the meeting, but declined to discuss the nature of the items.

"It's possible these things could be taken care of early in the meeting and make the executive session unnecessary, but we just don't know at this point," said Barr. "I'd rather just wait until the meeting to discuss these items."

DAY IN AUSTIN DEADLINE

The deadline to get on the bus headed to the state capitol March 7 for Big Spring Area Day in Austin is 5 p.m. Tuesday.

The $40 trip rate includes round-trip transportation and lunch at the capitol. Those going should bring their own breakfast and the bus will stop for supper at Cooper's BBQ in Llano for a dutch treat meal on the way home. The bus will leave Big Spring at 4:30 a.m. and return at 10 p.m.

To make reservations, contact the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce at 263-7641. There are also Big Spring denim T-shirts available at the chamber office for those who need them.

WTAM BAND COMING

The West Texas A&M University Symphonic Band is coming to Big Spring.

The band, directed by Don Lefevre, associate professor of music, and Russ Teweleit, assistant professor of music, will perform at Big Spring High School at noon Tuesday.

The concert program includes works by Jean Baptiste Arban, James Barnes, Donald Grantham, Johan de Meij, Arnold Schoenberg and John Philip Sousa.

Dr. William Takacs, assistant professor of music, will be a featured trumpet soloist.

The concert is free to the public. For more information, call 806-651-2840.

CHILDREN'S CHOIR SLATED

The internationally acclaimed African Children's Choir will be performing at Baptist Temple in Big Spring.

The public is invited to the concert, set for 7 p.m. Friday, March 2. There is no admission fee. A love offering will be taken.

Since its inception in 1984, the purpose of the African Children's Choir has been to bring hope and joy and the love of God to people and communities throughout the world, shining the spotlight on the millions of children of Africa living in conditions of extreme poverty, war or AIDS.

Rotary Club seeks area professionals for exchange project

Special to the Herald

Rotarians of District 5730, which includes the Big Spring and Greater Big Spring Rotary clubs, are seeking four outstanding professionals to visit Argentina and Uruguay in May as part of the Group Study Exchange (GSE) program of The Rotary Foundation.

Through the program, teams of professionals exchange visits between paired areas in different countries. The awards involve four-week visits May 1 through May 29, during which team members share personal knowledge of their own country and experience the customs, vocations and lifestyles in other countries.

The purpose of a Group Study Exchange is to promote international understanding and goodwill through person-to-person contact.

While abroad, team members stay in Rotarian's homes and have the opportunity to meet their professional counterparts. They will also give presentations to Rotary clubs and other groups about their home country.

The Rotary Foundation provides a round-trip ticket and local Rotarians in the host country provide meals, lodging and group travel in their district. Team members pay for personal and incidental expenses.

People interested in applying should be employed full-time in a recognized business or profession. Young professionals within the age range of 25 to 40 are encouraged to apply.

Applicants must live or be employed in Rotary District 5730, which includes the following cities — Amarillo, Andrews, Big Spring, Borger, Brownfield, Canadian, Childress, Colorado City, Dalhart, Denver City, Dimmitt, Dumas, Floyddata, Hereford, Kermit, Lamesa, Levelland, Littlefield, Lockney, Lubbock, Midland, Monahans, Muleshoe, O'Donell, Odessa, Pampa, Panhandle, Pecos, Perryton, Plainview, Post, Ralls, Seagraves, Seminole, Shamrock, Snyder, Spearman, Sweetwater, Tahoka and Tulia.

For an application and additional information, contact Rosemartha Cates at GSE Team Leader, 2807 S. Parker, Amarillo 79109, or call (806) 433-1132 or e-mail rosemartha@cox.net.

Applications must be in by March 11.

spend $7 million to replace the men's and women's dormitories, but will likely finance those projects through revenue bonds, which would be repaid through student fees, Sparks said.

If trustees call for the election, it would be the fourth such issue placed before county voters within the last year — the others being Coahoma Independent School District, city of Big Spring and Howard County — and Sparks said trustees are very aware of the threat of overloading the voters.

"The consideration of a tax bond election has always been taken very seriously and cautiously by the board of trustees," Sparks said.

Also Monday, trustees will consider:

- A lease agreement with Big Spring ISD concerning the use of Memorial Stadium.

- A proposal to re-roof the diagnostic center at SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf.

- Handbook and catalog changes.

- District administrative officers' contracts.

No funeral for Anna Nicole Smith before Tuesday, attorney says

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Anna Nicole Smith's funeral will not take place before Tuesday, the court-appointed attorney for the starlet's baby daughter said Saturday.

Richard C. Milstein said in a statement he was working as quickly as possible on the funeral details for the former Playboy centerfold, who died in a Florida hotel Feb. 8 at age 39.

Circuit Judge Larry

Seidlin ruled to let Milstein decide where to bury Smith. Milstein agreed with Smith's longtime companion, Howard K. Stern, to bury her in the Bahamas next to her son.

Smith's mother, Virgie Arthur, filed an emergency motion Friday asking Seidlin to reconsider his decision. Arthur, who wants to bury her daughter near her home in Texas, will likely appeal in West Palm Beach if Seidlin refuses her emergency stay.

It also was unclear Saturday when another Florida judge would rule on whether he has jurisdiction in the paternity dispute over 5-month-old Dannielynn. She was born and lives in the Bahamas with Stern. Stern, Los Angeles-based photographer Larry Birkhead and Frederic von Anhalt, the husband of actress Zsa Zsa Gabor, all claim to be the infant's father.

"The town has been very hospitable to me ... and it has shown a great deal of support for the VA and our services," Bell said during a reception in his honor Friday morning at the medical center.

"There was a cloud over us ... That's been lifted, and now we can look forward to a new mission."

The cloud Bell referred to was the two-year federal study that looked into the possible closure of the facility. Not only is that period of uncertainty past, there's plenty of positives to now focus on, Bell said.

"There's going to be new construction here ... and we'll also focus on our primary care facilities and providing rural access to healthcare for veterans."

The hospital's role in providing VA healthcare to rural areas is particularly important, he said.

"Without this hospital, many veterans would have to travel a very long way to receive healthcare," Bell said. "Although we don't provide every medical specialty, we are able to provide the initial diagnosis and determine what further care the veteran requires."

Bell also pointed to plans for a facility on the grounds that would provide long-term care for veterans suffering with mental health or substance abuse issues.

"That will probably pull patients to us from a large area, because other facilities don't provide that kind of care," Bell said. "We haven't received final approval for the facility yet, but we feel very confident that's forthcoming."

Another hospital service Bell pointed to was the in-house nursing home facility, which currently treats 38 veterans. Officials are currently busy transforming it to make it more "home-like," Bell said.

Big Spring," said McEwen. "Things certainly are looking more upbeat this year."

"When we did the address last year, we had a lot of things hanging over our heads, from the situation with the VA Medical Center to the attempt to bring the Air Force training center here." McEwen said the Crossroads area seems to have traded those instabilities for a sound foundation going into 2007.

"There really seems to be a tremendous amount of stability right now in Big Spring, as far as I'm concerned," said McEwen. "We'll touch on that, as well as the future and what it may hold for the city."

ValVerde said the luncheon offers an opportunity for residents to take a close look at what's to come in 2007.

"The chamber sponsors the community luncheon each year," said ValVerde. "It's a chance for the mayor to inform the city of what his plans are for the coming year. For the chamber it's a chance to represent our members and try to focus on promoting community and economic development. I think this a perfect example — a perfect chance — for us to promote that through the mayor's state of the city address."

Tickets, $15 each, are on sale at the Chamber office, located at 215 W. Third Street.

standards.

The state commission ordered the facility shut down because of several items, including the lack of a standpipe to deliver water to firefighters and a non-functioning smoke evacuation system.

The county recently gave the go-ahead for construction of a standpipe, and is in the process of gathering cost estimates for the materials necessary to bring the smoke evacuation system into state compliance.

The county is also in the process of designing a new jail facility.

Among Monday's other agenda items, County Auditor Jackie Olson will present the commissioners with invoices and purchase requests. Olson is also expected to present commissioners with budget amendments.

County Treasurer Teresa Thomas is to present personnel considerations and a payroll report, while County Road and Bridge Administrator Eddy Jameson will present pipeline crossings and a report on county road maintenance.

County Elections Administrator Sandra Bloom is also expected to meet with commissioners to discuss the May 12 elections and to have the court sign resolutions pertaining to the election.

Constable Bill Holden is slated to meet with the court concerning constable duties.

Monday's meeting is set for 10 a.m. in the commissioners' courtroom on the second floor of the county courthouse.

OUR VIEWS

Needed: advocates for children

Do you love children? Would you like to make a difference in the life of a child? There are many adults willing to go to bat for a child as a Little League or Little Dribblers coach. We applaud those men and women who volunteer their time to help mold our children through physical skills and teamwork. Our plea today, however, is adults willing to go to bat in a different way — in court, if need be.

A Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) is a man or woman who stands up for the rights of abused or neglected children. Literally, CASA volunteers can be the most important person in a child's life. The volunteer — appointed by a judge — provides factual information on behalf of a young boy or girl caught in the legal process.

If that sounds demanding, it is because it can be. However, becoming a CASA volunteer isn't something you go into blindly. Volunteers are required to participate in training. This assures that CASA advocates have an understanding of "what it takes" and how to represent the children for whom they will serve as advocates.

We encourage you to consider becoming a CASA volunteer. To learn more about the program, call volunteer coordinator Tonya Eckert at (432) 683-1114 or (877) 316-8346. Training sessions begin March 5, Sept. 4 and Oct. 29.

Call today.

A SMALL PRAYER

by K. Rae Anderson

Moderation through You, Lord, and Your word enhances our lives.

Amen

So who really is the most pathetic?

Random thoughts while firing up my air conditioner.

Because I know a good thing when I see it, I'm following Congress' lead and issuing a non-binding resolution that I'm rich, smart and good-looking.

If that works out, I'll have another one next week outlawing work on Saturdays.

I'm all in favor of true love, but the following makes me ill:

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — With help from a judge, a man being sentenced to five years in prison also got a life partner.

After sentencing 23-year-old David Kite on Wednesday to prison for stealing a lawnmower from a home, St. Clair County Circuit Judge John Baricevic obliged Kite's request to marry girlfriend Victoria Smith in the same courtroom.

The groom sported an orange jumpsuit, shackles and handcuffs during the five-minute civil ceremony; the bride had on a T-shirt and sweat pants.

A day later, Baricevic described the short ceremony as polite, with no visible grudge toward him by the lovestruck man he'd just punished with prison.

"If there's any resentment, you'd have to ask the other guy," Baricevic said. "Judges in all states marry people. Obviously, the situation involved here was not a usual one. It's very unique."

Oh, puh-leeze.
Let's play a game — let's call it

"Who's the Most Pathetic?" — and try to discover who's the saddest sack in this sad little story.

Is Mr. Kite the most pathetic? Well, there's certainly a good case to be made — after all, I can't remember every detail of my wedding day wardrobe, but I'm fairly sure it didn't include an orange jumpsuit and handcuffs.

For a second, I felt sort of sorry for the guy, getting five years in prison for swiping a lawnmower. Then, it hit me — this obviously isn't Mr. Kite's first rodeo — and I quickly got over any sense of sympathy toward this loser.

But, as contemptible as he is, he's got stiff competition for the Most Pathetic title.

When Victoria Smith looks back on her wedding day, what will she remember the most? How her stunning T-shirt was nicely complimented by her stylish sweat-pants? That there were armed deputies in attendance? That her dream man was in handcuffs? Or that her maid of honor ... oh, wait, there wasn't a maid of honor.

Don't you dare try to tell me this is a case of true love. Don't you dare.

Just how desperate was this woman to nab herself a husband? Think about it — the dude's a convicted felon, plus he's about to be sent away for five years. But, dang, she got herself a MAN!!!!

Just what kind of glorious future do you envisage for the happy couple? Personally speaking, if this guy gets back from prison and finds a loving home waiting for him, I'll keel over.

The Maryland Legislature is apparently heck-bent on saving society, as the following attests:

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Fake

bull testicles and other anatomical-ly explicit vehicle decorations would be banned from Maryland roads under a bill pending in the state legislature.

The measure was filed in the General Assembly Monday by Delegate LeRoy E. Myers Jr., who says children shouldn't be exposed to giant plastic gonads dangling from pickup truck trailer hitches. The bill also would ban displaying images of naked human breasts, buttocks or genitals, with offenses punishable by fines of up to $500.

"It's time to take a stand," Myers told The (Hagerstown) Herald-Mail.

The American Civil Liberties Union objected to Myers' bill.

"The legislation is overly broad, and would probably make it illegal to have a sticker on your car of the Venus de Milo from an art museum," ACLU of Maryland spokeswoman Meredith Curtis wrote in an e-mail.

Pamela Campbell, whose Bullhead City, Ariz., business sells fake bull testicles, suggested that the swinging decorations can prompt healthy discussions about anatomy and reproduction.

"Do we have to neuter all dogs that walk by us?" she asked.

"Where does it stop?" Last week, Arizona's legislature rejected a measure that would have banned vehicle splash guards bearing racist terms or silhouettes of naked women.

Sometimes, the best thing a writer can do is simply shut up and say, "Good night."

Good night.

Much ado about 'I'm sorry'

Much ado has been made about Hillary's so-called "mistake" in recent days, as the question of whether the frontrunner will apologize for her vote for the war — she won't — has been much discussed in the press and on the trail. Her refusal to apologize has been reported as a careful strategic decision, attacked as an expression of stubbornness and arrogance, and widely regarded as a key test of the campaign.

John Edwards apologizes for his vote all the time.

Barack Obama was against the war then and in no position to vote.

The question being asked about Hillary is not (even if it should be) where is she now, but where was she then, and why. For those looking for a mea culpa, and there are some, none is forthcoming. A strategic judgment? An expression of arrogance? Or could it just be the truth?

It's not that hard to convince a politician to apologize when they know they were wrong. That's largely a matter of timing and tactics; in politics, apologies are an art form.

It's convincing a politician to apologize when they think they were right that's a major, often insurmountable, problem. One of my jobs in 1988 was trying to convince Michael Dukakis to apologize for Willie Horton being let out on furlough. Problem was, he didn't think the program was wrong. Convincing someone to apologize for a mistake they didn't make, especially if that someone is a lawyer, is no easy task.

Ask Hillary whether she was misinformed before her vote to authorize the war, and it's an easy yes.

Ask her whether there would have even been a vote had we had adequate intelligence, and she'll say of course not, and of course she wouldn't have voted for presidential authority in those circumstances, no one would.

Ask her whether the war's been conducted well, and you'll get an earful. She didn't authorize this.

But ask her whether she was wrong to vote as she did, given the information she had, and I think I know the answer.

She didn't make a mistake. She was misled, not mistaken.

The "right" vote was to give the president the authority he asked for, given what we knew at the time.

She has to believe this, or it would make no sense not to be apologizing. The argument that a woman can never afford to be wrong about foreign policy would certainly not seem to apply here, where the greater danger is losing within your own party because of your insistence that you were right. It would be the easiest thing in the world to deal with a mistake by calling it that, unless you're convinced you did nothing wrong.

Any good criminal defense lawyer will tell you, only half in jest, that the worst clients are the innocent ones. The guilty ones will do anything you tell them. The innocent ones are the ones who won't listen. You think you don't need to listen-if you did nothing wrong. You think you know the answers. Sometimes, you think wrong.

You could argue, certainly with hindsight, that when you vote for a war that turns out to be a disaster, leaving our troops trying to maintain order in someone else's civil war, you are by definition mistaken, no matter whom you relied on for your information. If information was the problem, you should have known better or insisted on more. If haste was the issue, you should have waited.

Whatever you did, you did wrong.

Of course, that's not how legal responsibility actually works. You look at intent, at the facts as they appeared to be from the perspective of the one being judged, to determine whether a person is blameworthy. It's not a matter of what turned out to be the case, but of what they thought they were doing at the time they did it that is generally decisive of blame.

The problem with Hillary's stance on her vote is that the country needs a leader not a lawyer. It is not only that her defense is too technical, but also that it is too small. She may be right about the intelligence provided to Senators, and right about the role the Senate should play in authorizing the president to use force, but the question here is not whether she was a good Senator — she got re-elected to that job quite nicely — but who should be president.

Hillary has yet to really shape her story of the war and what went wrong. Whatever that story is, it has to take place at a level larger than the definition of bad intent in voting. Hillary's story of this war needs to be about how we were mistaken, most of us, and won't be again, on how she understands the past as a prelude to the future she would build.

Feds move to end hospital's Medicare payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government has given a West Texas physician-owned hospital two weeks to fix problems that it says are a serious and immediate threat to patient health and safety.

The Centers for Medicaid and Medicare Services said it found West Texas Hospital in Abilene is not meeting Medicare rules concerning its governing body, patients rights, nursing and emergency services.

Those problems must be fixed by March 17 or Medicare payments will end, Ginger Odle, chief of the centers' division of survey and certification, said in a letter to the hospital.

"We are currently conducting an internal review and will be submitting a plan of correction early next week," hospital CEO Ron Rives said in a written statement Friday night. "We fully anticipate that CMS will accept our plan of correction and upon revisit will certify us as in full compliance with the applicable regulations."

The Centers' warning came after Sens. Max Baucus, D-Mont. and Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, and U.S. Rep. Pete Stark, D-Calif., asked for a review of $4 million in Medicare money the hospital has received since 2005.

The lawmakers asked for the review after a patient death. Hospital staff called 911 when there were complications in the patient's spinal surgery.

"The action taken by CMS is a good first step in protecting patients from a hospital with unsafe conditions," Grassley said. "That said, I have serious concerns with the fact that it took a patient death to spur action. Patients who are treated at a facility holding itself out as a hospital need to know that minimum standards for post-operative emergency care are met."

The centers gave the hospital until next Sunday to provide a plan to correct the problems and demonstration that the plan is working, as well as the name of the person responsible for correcting the problems. That will trigger a visit from state regulators to check compliance.

Manager laundered checks through supermarket

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — The manager of a family owned supermarket was sentenced to two years in prison and must pay more than half a million dollars in restitution for laundering the proceeds of stolen U.S. Treasury checks through the supermarket's bank account, prosecutors said Friday.

Jaime Miguel Lopez, 39, who was manager of his family's M.A. Lopez Supermarket, was sentenced Thursday.

Lopez pleaded guilty to bank fraud in June 2004, admitting that from 1999 to 2000 he acquired stolen U.S. Treasury Checks from an individual in Mexico and imported the checks into the United States. Lopez fraudulently endorsed the checks and co-mingled the proceeds with legitimate receipts from the supermarket that were deposited into the supermarket's Texas State Bank account.

The Centers for Medicaid and Medicare Services contends that West Texas Hospital in Abilene is not meeting Medicare rules.

He then withdraw cash from the account and split the proceeds with the individual in Mexico. The bank lost $1.2 million dollars in "charge backs" as a result of the scheme.

The scheme was discovered in early 2000 when the intended recipients of the US Treasury checks, who live in Mexico, filed claims they didn't receive their checks.

Head of Texas Youth Commission resigns

AUSTIN (AP) — The head of the Texas Youth Commission resigned Friday amid allegations that high-ranking officials at an isolated state juvenile prison molested young male inmates.

A statement posted on the agency Web site said Executive Director Dwight Harris had planned to retire this summer but decided to do it now.

A Texas Youth Commission internal investigation found that many prison staffers at the West Texas State School in Pyote had complained about the abuse to their immediate bosses and to officials in Austin, but for more than a year, no one in charge did anything to stop it.

A Texas Rangers investigation in early 2005 found that the prison's assistant superintendent and the school's principal had repeated sexual contact with inmates.

"If I had known about allegations of staff sexual misconduct, I would have called in the Rangers myself," Harris said in the statement on the Web site. "But, that is irrelevant now. This happened on my watch and I own the ultimate responsibility for it."

Harris had been executive director since February 2004 and his resignation comes a few days before a Senate committee was to take up a bill to create more investigation oversight of agency operations. He was expected to be called to testify at the hearing.

"I love too much this agency, the fine men and women who serve here, and the troubled children who come to us as a last hope to let myself be a distraction to the greater mission," Harris said. "I wanted to stay through this session to promote our requests, but it's clear to me now that my presence might actually get in the way of those things we gravely need."

Neil Nichols, the agency's general counsel, will serve as the agency's temporary acting executive director.

Families file lawsuit to block vaccine order

AUSTIN (AP) — A group of Dallas-area families have filed a lawsuit seeking to block Gov. Rick Perry's executive order to vaccinate Texas schoolgirls against the virus that causes cervical cancer.

Perry, a Republican, has defended the order as critical to saving lives. But it has inflamed conservatives who say it contradicts Texas' abstinence-only sexual education policies and intrudes into family lives. It also upset many state lawmakers in his own party and a bill to override the order is working its way through the state House of Representatives.

Perry wants to require the vaccine, called Gardasil, for girls entering sixth grade as of September 2008. It protects girls and women against strands of human papapillomavirus, or HPV, that cause most cases of cervical cancer and genital warts.

Supporters of the vaccine mandate say it offers a unique opportunity to fight a cancer that kills 3,700 American women each year.

Kenneth Chaiken, the attorney representing the families, said he believes it is the first lawsuit filed by families with children who would get the vaccine. He said the families don't believe Perry has the legal authority to issue such an order.

"They are families who very significantly object," Chaiken said.

The lawsuit was filed in Travis County on Thursday.

Perry spokeswoman Krista Moody said the governor is confident he had the authority to issue the order.

"He takes his job as the leader of the state of Texas very serious. He sees this vaccine as not only a fiscally responsible order but also one that has the potential to save the lives of thousands of women in Texas," Moody said.

The lawsuit also seeks to block any state money from being spent on the vaccine until the legal questions over Perry's authority are resolved, Chaiken said.

"The school-age girls of Texas are not guinea pigs who may be subjected to medical procedures at the apparent whim of Texas' governor," the lawsuit states.

Quarry owners sent to prison for harboring illegal immigrants

EL PASO (AP) — Two brothers who admitting hiring and harboring illegal immigrants at their West Texas rock quarry have been sentenced to prison.

Romulado Soto was sentenced to five months in federal prison and five months of house arrest Friday. His brother, Jose Cruz Soto, was sentenced to four months in prison and four month of house arrest on Feb. 1.

In November both men pleaded guilty to charges that they employed and housed illegal immigrants at a rock quarry in El Paso County.

The Soto brothers were arrested last April, when El Paso deputy sheriffs raided their business and found more than two dozen illegal immigrants.

They had faced up to 10 years in prison.

Prosecutors say dancers won't face criminal charges

LUBBOCK (AP) — A troupe of Chippendales dancers won't face criminal charges for a West Texas performance featuring "pelvic thrusts" that prompted police to shut down the show and jail the dancers.

The Lubbock County District Attorney's Office told police Thursday that eight dancers, their manager, a promoter and a manager at the sports bar won't be prosecuted on misdemeanor charges, and city officials also said they wouldn't pursue the case.

The men were arrested Feb. 16 at Jake's Sports Cafe during the first of three sold-out shows for the troupe famous for its beefcake dancers. Police alleged that the dancers were performing a sexually oriented show without the proper permits. The show was shut down after one dancer, whom police said has his pants open, made "pelvic thrusts" in front of a woman's face.

The group spent a night in jail before being released without having to post bond.

Scott Stephenson, owner of Jake's Sports Cafe, said he was plans to invite the all-male review back.

Texas governorship weak, but Perry presses big plans

By KELLEY SHANNON
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — Big actions are his aim, but Texas Gov. Rick Perry may be running into barricades set up by the Texas Constitution.

Two of his executive orders are under assault: A judge blocked his order fast-tracking the permitting process for coal-fired power plants, and a legislative committee voted to override his mandate that girls be vaccinated against a virus that causes cervical cancer.

To top it off, Perry is finding little support among fellow Republicans for his idea to sell the Texas lottery for at least $14 billion.

It all underscores the fact that the Texas governor is a constitutionally weak position — trumped by the force of the Legislature and strictly limited to holding only a few specific powers. Some wonder whether Perry is trying to grab too much control, but he insists he's within his authority.

"I never think I overstep my bounds," he said Thursday in Dallas after he was asked about whether his cervical cancer vaccine order went too far.

Lawmakers say the Legislature should decide such an important measure. Sen. Jane Nelson, a Lewisville Republican, is asking the Texas Attorney General's Office for a ruling on the executive order's legality.

Judge Stephen Yelenosky ruled Tuesday that Perry's 2005 executive order to speed up the coal plant permitting process was invalid and nonbinding on the State Office of Administrative Hearings.

Perry has issued 65 executive orders since taking office in December 2000, most of them far less controversial than the ones on the cervical cancer vaccine and coal plants.

Gubernatorial executive orders are tightly constrained in scope under the state constitution, said Austin attorney Steve Bickerstaff, a long-time constitutional expert. Through executive orders, the Texas governor can create task forces or advisory groups and announce his opinion, Bickerstaff said Thursday.

"The governor cannot through an executive order direct a state agency to do anything," Bickerstaff said.

Ted Royer, a spokesman for Perry, said the governor views his role as leading the state, and that's what he is doing with his order telling the Texas Health and Human Services Commission to adopt rules requiring the vaccine against the human papillomavirus, or HPV.

Executive orders issued by Texas governors since 1971:

- Rick Perry: 65
- George W. Bush: 45
- Ann Richards: 53
- Bill Clements: 66
- Mark White: 47
- Bill Clements: 69
- Dolph Briscoe: 53
- Preston Smith: 14

"He's not creating any new authority for the agency that's being directed. He's not granting them authority. He's directing them to use authority they already have," Royer said.

Bickerstaff wasn't surprised by Yelenosky's ruling that the governor doesn't have the constitutional authority to control the timeline for the coal plant hearings.

"He has no inherent power," Bickerstaff said. "It's not an order at all. It is an opinion expressed by the governor."

The constitution spells out specific powers for certain offices, and the governor's powers include appointing boards and commissions, vetoing legislation and calling 30-day special legislative sessions.

"All the powers that are not given to someone are vested in the Legislature," Bickerstaff said. So, the lieutenant governor and House speaker, as legislative leaders, hold a great deal of power.

The arrangement is rooted in a constitution enacted in 1876 in the post-Civil War period of Reconstruction. Framers of the constitution were reacting to the tremendous power the Reconstruction governor held and wanted to limit future governors.

Texas is unusual for still having that type of constitution; other southern states have since changed to a strong governorship, Bickerstaff said. Texas tried to do it in the 1970s, but failed, said Bickerstaff, who took part in that constitutional convention.

Environmentalist citizens groups raised the weak governor scenario in court Tuesday when they succeeded in blocking Perry's fast-track executive order on coal. Attorney David Kahne said there aren't any powers "vested" in the governor and that Perry was grabbing power he didn't have.

"All the governor gets is prestige," Kahne said.

Perry, a former lieutenant governor, acknowledged shortly before taking office that the true power of the governorship lies in the use of the bully pulpit.

But Royer adds his boss is not limited to that role.

"The bully pulpit is a tremendous asset for any governor but the office is not designed as an empty shell," he said.

"The office, the job of governor, is to lead, and that's what the governor has done, not only by various executive orders but by putting forward solutions in the Legislature."

If lawmakers pass a bill that overrides his cervical cancer vaccine order and the governor signs it into law, it would take precedence over his executive order, Royer said.

order, Royer said. Perry hasn't said whether he would sign or veto that bill, if it reaches his desk.

As for the coal ruling, the governor's office still contends his order is binding and is considering its legal options, Royer said.

Perry, meanwhile, defends his coal and vaccine orders and notes that his proposed sale of the state lottery will help set up a $3 billion cancer research fund.

"Big ideas always have people who have concerns about them," Perry said.

"I think finding a cure for cancer and having an adequate supply of energy for the continued economic development of this state are both admirable goals to be moving towards."

Lubbock artist to present BSAA-sponsored workshop

Special to the Herald

The Big Spring Art Association is sponsoring a workshop by Laura Lewis of Lubbock.

The dates are March 20-22. The medium will be oil. For information on fees and supplies needed, contact Jean Money at 267-1037.

Laura Lewis is a landscape artist from Lubbock who paints West Texas scenes. She has studied under artist Glenna Goodacre and attended the University of Texas at Austin.

After one semester there as an art major she changed to pre-nursing and had a long career in health professions with a specialization in neurodiagnostic testing.

Throughout her years in the medical arena Laura continued to paint portraits, learned print-making techniques and studied with accomplished artists such as Paul Milosevich, Tim High, Carroll Collier, George Strickland and others.

Laura has received numerous awards, including two from national juried shows.

She was the judge for the fine arts division at the Howard County Fair in 2006.

Her work can be viewed at www.LauraLewis.artspan.com

Howard HawkLines: Lots of activities going on at HC

Do we dare even suggest that spring has arrived in West Texas? Probably not (and hopefully I didn't just jinx us!) But here at Howard College, we are well into our spring semester and our campus is hopping with activity. You want it, we've got it... You've been enjoying our men's and women's Hawk basketball games for a couple of months now. But we've also got softball and baseball, rodeo, music and drama, just to name a few.

We're not being selfish; we'd love to have you on our campus so you can share in the excitement of the students and their many activities and accomplishments. There are multiple opportunities for you to come on out and support our student body and you can consider this your formal invitation!

Do songs like "New York, New York," "I Only Have Eyes for You," "I've Got the World on a String" and "My Way" take you back to a memorable moment? If so, then you're in luck. Our theater department is putting on a production of "My Way: A Musical Tribute to Frank Sinatra." This production has these and many other popular Sinatra songs that have been put together to celebrate Frank Sinatra through the music that he loved to sing. This respectful tribute will be performed by the talented students of our theater department. They have put in many hours of rehearsal and are sure to keep your toes tapping and your fingers snapping to the tune. Take a break from your busy schedule to join us at Hall Center for the Arts. You won't be disappointed as "The Best is Yet to Come."

Or would you prefer to enjoy one of our recent spring-like days outside in the fresh air, soaking in the warmth of the sun while you watch some very talented athletes leave their heart and soul on the field? If so, then we've got the ticket for you. Hawk softball and baseball have started their respective seasons showcasing their winning attitudes and skills. There's a spot just for you in the bleachers — don't let another game pass you by!

Speaking of outdoor sports...what would West Texas be without some bulls and broncs and barrels in the arena? The Howard College rodeo team is gearing up for the spring season and will be posting their first marks at Ranger Junior College on March 8. Don't worry folks, if you're not able to travel with our team to watch these awesome athletes, they'll be home to give you a memorable performance at the Howard College Rodeo on April 12-14. Mark your calendars now as this is an activity you won't want to miss!

And everyone knows you can't have spring without sandals! Has it been a while since you got that last pedicure? Well, it's time to break out of your winter habits and make your way down to the Howard College cosmetology department for a good old fashioned spring makeover. Our students are ready to get you primed for the new season, all you have to do is get creative and call ahead for an appointment.

As we take in this seasonal change, we are revived with the energy from our student body. Whatever they do, they do with excitement. Their commitment to their education, to their activities and to making a difference in this world is inspiring. We hope to see you somewhere on campus so you can experience first-hand what makes us so proud. If you need more information about a sporting event or activity, please go to our Web site at www.howardcollege.edu and click on the Big Spring Campus page.

Until next time...always remember, Education... For Learning, For Earning, For Life!

Lady Bearkats playoff schedule

Garden City's Lady Kats will face Roby today in Fort Worth.

Tip-off is set for 3 p.m. Saturday at Wilkerson-Greines Coliseum.

Roby has a record of 33-3 and after Friday night's win over Guthrie, Garden City is 31-3 this season.

Wear red to the Hawks game Saturday for free admission.

Howard Hawk athletic schedule

Saturday afternoon the Howard men's baseball team was to start a doubleheader against Lubbock Christian University at Jack Barber Field.

First pitch was scheduled for 1 p.m. The Hawks are currently 12-2 this season and boast the second best team batting average in the country — .414.

Saturday night at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum the Howard women's basketball team will host Clarendon College at 5 p.m. and the men's basketball team will face Clarendon at 7 p.m.

Big Spring girl's softball registration

The Big Spring Girl's Softball Association will be holding sign-ups to register for the upcoming 2007 season.

Females from ages 4 to 14 (as of Jan. 1) are eligible to participate in the league.

Sign-ups will be held each Saturday, beginning Feb. 24, through March 17, at the Big Spring Mall.

The registration fee is $40 and there is a discount for the second child. This fee will cover full uniforms.

A division for boys between 4 and 6 years old will be available this season.

Roughnecks escape Buffaloes in playoffs

MIKE GRIMES
Sports Editor

ANDREWS — Down by nine points with under four minutes to play, the Forsan Buffaloes made a gallant effort Friday to come back and upset the Sundown Roughnecks but ended up bowing out of the Class A Division I playoffs in a 50-44 loss.

For the first two quarters, neither team could pull away from the other and the game was filled with turnovers and missed opportunities. The Buffaloes turned the ball over 12 times and the Roughnecks committed eight of their own.

As the teams left the court and headed for the locker room at intermission, the score was 18-16 in favor of Sundown.

Adam Bailey, the Buffaloes' leading scorer this season, had 9 points and 9 rebounds while playing all 16 minutes of the first half.

"We felt like Bailey was their best player no matter who was on the court," Sundown head coach Carlton Henderson said after the game. "Our game plan was to make him work for every shot and every basket. He's an impressive player, but I think we did a good job defending him. That was a key to stopping them."

Opening the third quarter, the Buffaloes' Jeremy Robbins converted an old fashioned 3-point play. His free throw cut the Roughnecks' lead to 2 points.

However, the lead stayed in favor of Sundown and halfway through the final quarter the Roughnecks held the largest lead of the game, 42-33.

But the Buffaloes refused to give up.

In the fourth quarter, Nathan Atkerson, the Buffaloes, sophomore in the middle, had five blocked shots. He finished the game with zero points, but according to the Forsan coaching staff, the defensive effort by him and Blake Grantham kept the game within reach.

"They are both big kids and we use them to compliment one another," Forsan head coach Terry McDonald explained. "Nathan had some really big blocks that led to layups for us, but he was fresh down the stretch because of the minutes Blake gave us."

Forsan Buffaloes leading scorer Adam Bailey shoots for two of his team-high 13 points. The Buffaloes were defeated by Sundown Friday night, 50-44, in Andrews. Forsan finished the season 18-8.

On consecutive trips down the court, Cameron Parker and Seth

Johnson made back-to-back 3-point shots and cut the Roughnecks' lead to 44-41 with only 2:52 remaining.

With under a minute to play, Johnson drained another 3-point shot to bring Forsan to within two points, 46-44. A quick basket off the inbounds play by the Roughnecks and the lead was

FORT WORTH — After disposing of Guthrie 52-42 Friday night behind what the coaching staff said was a game won at the free throw line, the Garden City Lady Kats are now one win away from advancing to the Class A Division II state basketball tournament.

The Lady Kats (31-3) were to face Roby (33-3) at 3 p.m. Saturday at Wilkerson-Greines Coliseum in Fort Worth.

Garden City took a commanding lead in the first half of the contest and headed to the locker room up by 14 points, 28-14.

The Lady Kats were led by Erin Hirt, their 5-foot-5 senior point guard, as she dropped 18 points on Guthrie and continued to make 3-pointers in the playoffs. She is averaging 17.5 points a game in post-season play and according to Garden City head coach Brent Kirkland, she has been running the offense and knocking down 3-pointers all season.

In the second half, the lead expanded to as many as 20 points, but the Lady Jaguars were not about to lay down after posting 25 wins against only 3 losses this season.

With under 2 minutes left in the final quarter, the Garden City lead was sliced to 5 points.

Guthrie showed they belonged in the playoffs and the crowd was in a frenzy.

"Guthrie is not a very big team," Coach Kirkland said after the game. "They just never quit. They played hard and never gave up tonight. Anyone who saw this game knows that they made a heck of a comeback and played a terrific basketball game."

K'Lann Niehues added 12 points and 8 rebounds for the Lady Kats and TUSCOLA — The Coahoma Bulldogs picked the wrong night to get off to a slow start and as a result were bounced from the Class 2A Region I playoffs by Brady, 64-40, Friday night.

The game could not have started off worse for the Bulldogs (23-10) as they managed to score only five points in the first 8 minutes. That allowed Brady to jump out to a nine-point lead, 14-5, and never look back.

Bulldog's head coach Kim Nichols declined to say whether the time off between the last regular season game and the first playoff game — more than a week — might have been a factor.

"We just didn't play well tonight," Nichols said after the surprising loss. "We dug ourselves an early hole and then we couldn't recover. That was our fault and nobody else's. Our kids played hard, as they have all season, but tonight was just not our night."

At the half the Bulldogs deficit remained nine points, 24-15.

Astros' Biggio chases 3,000 hits Sosa arrives at Rangers camp

By CHRIS DUNCAN

AP Sports Writer

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) - Craig Biggio's first love was football. He was a star running back in high school and only turned to baseball after slacking off in the classroom cost him a chance to earn a Division I football scholarship.

Back then, he never dreamed of becoming one of baseball's all-time greats. He just wanted to avoid injuries, last 10 years and earn a pension.

"You don't set personal goals," Biggio said. "You want to survive."

Two decades later, the 41-year-old Biggio is on the verge of joining one of baseball's elite clubs and securing his place in Cooperstown.

He'll start his 20th season with the Houston Astros just 70 hits shy of becoming the 27th player to reach 3,000.

"It's not even the numbers anymore," Biggio said Friday. "It's the clientele you're having your name associated with in certain categories. That is overwhelming."

Biggio is already in the company of Hall of Famers on several other all-time lists:

- He hit his 625th career double June 4, passing Hank Aaron and into ninth place.

- His next hit will move him past Rogers Hornsby and Jake Beckley into 30th.

- His 2,709 games played rank 25th, 21 behind Mel Ott.

- His 10,359 at-bats rank 16th, 68 behind Honus Wagner.

Biggio won't be ready to reflect on his accomplishments until he retires, a decision he'll put off until the end of this season, when his contract expires.

"I think when you're done, you'll look back and say, 'I did some things well,'" he said. "You were a good role model for the team, a good role model for kids and you played the game the way it was supposed to be played."

A seven-time All-Star, Biggio played catcher in his first four seasons after he was drafted by the Astros out of Seton Hall.

He made his first All-Star game in 1991, but the Astros moved him to second base in 1992, a position he had never played. But he made the All-Star team again, ranking in the NL's top 10 in runs, walks and stolen bases.

The Astros acquired Jeff Kent in 2002 and Biggio moved to the outfield. When Kent signed with the Los Angeles Dodgers in 2004, Biggio was back at second.

Through the position changes, Biggio's numbers were always good, sometimes great. He batted .318 in 1994, .325 in 1998, .292 in 2001, and .281 in 2004.

But Biggio's production at the plate has tapered off recently, especially late in seasons and away from Minute Maid Park. He batted .178 on the road in 2006 and .193 overall the last two months.

Manager Phil Garner still has Biggio penciled in as his leadoff man for 2007, still believes Biggio has some big hits left in him. He'll make his 19th consecutive opening day start, extending his franchise record, but should get plenty of relief from his new backup, free agent Mark Loretta.

"You don't just fall into 3,000 hits," Garner said. "He's a talented hitter. You can make him look bad in his first couple of at-bats, but he could still burn you in that ninth inning, when it counts."

And Garner still sees the enthusiasm Biggio had when Garner became an Astros' first-base coach SURPRISE, Ariz. - Sammy Sosa returned to the field Friday after a year away from the game, greeted warmly by fans before his first spring training workout with the Texas Rangers.

The 38-year-old slugger, fifth on baseball's home-run list, got to the complex several hours before the Rangers' first full-squad workout. Sosa has a minor league deal with his original team, hoping for a chance to get back to the major leagues.

On his way to the practice field, Sosa passed through a small group of fans, with one yelling, "Good luck, Sammy." He stopped and posed for a picture.

"I just expect Sammy to come in and be Sammy," first-year manager Ron Washington said. "We're going to do everything we can to try to get him going and maybe he can help us win some ball-games."

Wearing a short-sleeve shirt with yellow and light blue stripes when he first arrived around dawn, Sosa joked with reporters by looking at his watch as if to remind them he showed up early.

Sosa completed his physical and greeted teammates in the clubhouse. With a bat in hand, he smiled and said, "Back in business." The Rangers planned an afternoon news conference for the former NL MVP and seven-time All-Star who has 588 homers.

Rangers owner Tom Hicks, who was in camp for Sosa's first day, said he's anxious to see how things are going for Sosa after a few weeks in camp.

"He says all the right things," Hicks said. "He just has to go out and do it now. I think he will."

Sosa was 16 when Texas signed him from the Dominican Republic in 1985. He was still a lanky kid in 1989 when he made his major league debut and hit his first home run, the only one he had in 25 games for the Rangers before being traded to the Chicago White Sox.

When Sosa's minor league deal with Texas was announced last month, Sosa was fielding the same steroids questions that dogged him when he left the game after the 2005 season with Baltimore.

Before his season with the Orioles, when he hit .221 with 14 home runs and 45 RBIs in 102 games, Sosa was one of several players who testified before a congressional committee looking into steroid use in professional baseball.

Like Mark McGwire, Sosa is suspected by some of having used steroids before they were banned by baseball after the 2002 season. Sosa said last month his comeback isn't about disproving the rumors that performance-enhancing drugs elevated him among the game's most feared power hitters.

If Sosa makes the team, Washington expects him to be primarily a designated hitter and bat in the middle of the lineup behind three-time All-Star shortstop Michael Young and switch-hitting 8 rebounds for the Lady Kats and Lauren Plagens tossed in 10 points.

"Our seniors stepped up and played pretty well," Kirkland added. "The difference in the game was our free throws down the stretch — we made them. We played tough and we fought all the way through this game and that's what it takes to advance."

Garden City converted 11-of-19 from the charity stripe and also connected on 11-of-18 from beyond the 3-point arc.

"Tomorrow (Saturday) is going to be a physical game and the team that executes the best will probably win and move on," Kirkland said in regards to the game against Roby's Lions. "Hopefully that will be us."

in 1989.

"He does everything the same way, plays hard, plays to win, has a great deal of respect for the game," Garner said.

The respect, Biggio said, came from keeping his ears open and his mouth shut as he picked up advice from veterans in the Astros clubhouse in the early years.

"They were always like, 'You're not bigger than the game, don't ever think you're bigger than the game,'" Biggio said. "That sticks in my mind today. You just respect the game, be humble."

"When things are good, walk away and let the younger kids take the credit for it. When things are bad, stand in front of your locker and take the heat for your team."

Garner has cut down Biggio's road starts in the past three seasons, a pattern that will increase the chance that he'll get his 3,000th hit in Houston.

Biggio wouldn't want it any other way.

Except for the now-retired Jeff Bagwell, Biggio is probably the franchise's most popular all-time player, active with charities in the community and admired for his gritty approach to the game.

Together to two players will remembered alongside other great Houston athletes like Nolan Ryan, Hakeem Olajuwon and Earl Campbell.

"I'm excited from the standpoint of my family and truthfully, for the fans in the city of Houston," he said. "I couldn't think of anything better to give back to them after 20 years. That would be the ultimate thing, as a player, to give back."

Biggio considered leaving Houston only once, when he became a free agent in 1995 and had an offer from the Colorado Rockies.

Owner Drayton McLane said he called Biggio every day for three straight weeks to convince him to stay with the Astros.

"He's done everything we've ever asked him to do and much more," said McLane. "He's identified totally with Houston. He's an important part of this team and the Houston Astros history."

Biggio never considered leaving again, rare in the era of inflating contracts and free agency.

"The grass isn't always greener on the other side," Biggio said. "A lot of times, a lot of players have a misconception of, 'I want to go play there,' and then when they get there, they took a little extra money, but they're not as happy.

"The bottom line is, if you're happy where you're at, if you're making a good living, there's no sense leaving."

Biggio has also never wondered what might have been if he had studied harder in high school and taken one of those football scholarships that were being dangled in front of him in his younger days.

"I think things happen for a reason," he said. "I'm very grateful that it's worked out for me."

Things worked out for baseball purists and Astro fans alike. Biggio should be remembered as one of the ambassadors of major league baseball, but only time will tell.

Right now he just wants to focus on giving something back to Houston.

His 3,000th hit of his career.

pushed back to a two-possession game.

The Buffaloes' season was slipping away.

With 36 seconds remaining on the clock, according to Coach McDonald, Forsan was looking to penetrate to the basket for 2 points and then use its final timeout to make a final defensive stand or foul an opposing player.

The problem was getting to the basket.

As precious seconds ticked away, the Buffaloes were unable to score and were forced to use the timeout with only 9 seconds remaining.

The Buffaloes' final 3-point shot was off target and the Roughnecks grabbed the rebound.

"That was just a malfunction — we were trying to get a quick score and we couldn't get to the basket," McDonald explained. "We had a play we were trying to run — we were down two baskets and we just didn't get to the basket. That happens. I am extremely proud of this team and they showed a lot of guts and determination in this game. This is a very good basketball team we have."

Aaron Emory, the Roughnecks' shooting guard who entered the game averaging 10 points, finished as the game's leading scorer with 18 points — 13 of which came in the second half.

Bailey and Robbins each had 13 points to pace to Buffaloes and Johnson added 9 more.

DOGS

Jason Gonazales, the leading scorer for Coahoma this season, ended the night with 17 points. Stephen Ewing added 7 more.

In the second half, as the game began to get out of control, the Bulldogs were outscored 40-25.

As a team, the Bulldogs shot a dismal 28 percent from the floor.

"I'm very proud of these kids — all of them," Nichols said. "I told them in the locker room that there is no reason to let one bad game take away everything they accomplished this season. We just played a bad game tonight, but these kids have had a terrific season. We had a great group of seniors and I feel for them — I really do. This was not that way we wanted to end our season, but they have no reason to hang their heads."

Posting 23 wins in a season is something Coahoma can be proud of and being crowned Class 2-A District 5 champions is something the loss to Brady can never take away.

"We have a good group of kids returning next season and I'm really looking forward to working with them in the off-season," Nichols added. "Right now this loss hurts, but we have a chance to come back next year and finish what this team started. That should be the goal for all of our kids returning. We owe that to this group of seniors, our student body and our fans. We'll be back."

Hawks women keep each and every game close

By ERIC C. RODEWALD

Special to the Herald
There is an old saying, "That close only counts in horseshoes and handgrenades." That quote was an appropriate one Thursday night at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum as the Howard College Women's basketball team suffered a heartbreaking 54-53 loss at the hands of the New Mexico Junior College Thunderbirds.

The loss marked the eighth time this season the Hawks have lost a game by seven points or less.

This includes a four-point loss, 50-46, to start February off versus No.1-ranked South Plains College (27-1, 11-1 in the WJCAC) and a pair of losses to No.5 ranked Odessa College (22-2, 10-1), falling 65-to-59 and 54-to-47.

Thursday, the Hawks had two shots at the basket with less than 10 seconds remaining in the game, but a 3-point attempt and a missed put-back left the Hawks a point short.

Howard jumped out to an 8-0 lead with 13:53 remaining in the first half, and pushed their lead to 22-10 before a few costly turnovers allowed New Mexico JC to pull within four, 22-18, with 4:18 until intermission.

The Hawks actually led 26-25 when the buzzer sounded, but a foul on a failed 3-point attempt allowed NMJC's Paris Dunford to knock down three free throws and give the Thunderbirds a 28-26 advantage.

Howard built a seven-point lead with 9:05 left in the game, but a 16-10 NMJC run cut the Hawks lead to one, 53-52, with 1:26 to go.

The Thunderbirds connected on a 2-pointer and held on for the one-point victory. Once again the Hawks came up just short on the hardwood.

Leading Howard in scoring was Kandace Griffin, the guard who has led the Hawks in scoring during conference play had 15 points. All of her points came on 3-point shots.

Also in double figures were Candace Lambert with 12 points and Monica Jones with 10, shooting a perfect 5-for-5 from the field.

Rounding out the scoring for the Hawks were Sara Rondeau, 6 points; Joy Ikechukwu, 4; Nicole Linen, 2; Kim Gilyard, 2; Ronnie Wilson, 2.

Howard (12-16, 2-10) plays host to Clarendon College (12-16, 1-11) Saturday night at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum at 5 p.m.

As a promotion for the final home game of the season, any fan that wears red will get in free.

Immediately following the game, any girl who participated in the Howard College Women's Basketball Hawk Buddies program or attended camp is invited to have pizza courtside with the Howard Women's basketball team.

Howard's men will play host to the Clarendon Bulldogs at 7 p.m. tonight.

A birth in the Region V basketball tournament is on the line for the Hawk men and a win could secure their spot.

"Obviously, taking a year off, it's tough to predict what he's going to be able to do," Young said. "The great thing about him is that he has that burning desire to go out and succeed. He's a proud guy. He's not going to go out here and just play to be average."

Sosa's MVP season was in 1998, when he batted .308 with a career-high 66 homers and 158 RBIs for the Chicago Cubs. That year he was in the home run chase with McGwire, who became the first major leaguer to hit 70 homers.

Maturing Busch now a favorite

By MIKE HARRIS

AP Auto Racing Writer
FONTANA, Calif. — Age is no longer an issue for Kyle Busch.

For a while, his accomplishments were attributed to precocious driving. His mistakes? Simply youthful errors. Now, starting his third Nextel Cup season and approaching 22, Busch is ready to be judged strictly on his merits.

Busch had a good week at Daytona, but a rookie-like miscue on the last lap of Sunday's Daytona 500 ruined everything he had built to that point.

"We were running in second at the green-white-checkered finish and I was on Mark Martin's bumper pushing him because that was two Hendrick Motorsports engines working together," Busch said. "I tried to move up for a block (on Kevin Harvick), but it was too late."

"I settled back in line and when we went down the frontstretch I got loose from the air off the 17 car (Matt Kenseth) and went down to the apron and spun out."

Busch slid into Kenseth and a seven-car crash ensued. Harvick, ahead of the melee, outraced Martin to the finish line by the length of a hood to win the season-opening race. Busch couldn't even face the media following the race, scrambling out of his battered No. 5 Hendrick Motorsports Chevrolet and walking off to be alone with his thoughts.

"It was the last lap of the biggest race of the year and there were five guys going for a win," said Busch, ready to bounce back in Sunday's Auto Club 500 at California Speedway. "It could have happened at any point during the race, but it happened then."

NASCAR NEXTEL Cup drivers Kyle Busch and Tony Stewart (right) talk in the garage during a break from practice last week at the Daytona 500.

"I didn't want it to end that way and I know no one else did, either. It's unfortunate because we really stepped up this year and had a dominating performance throughout the entire week."

Busch held the lead in each of the four NASCAR events he entered at Daytona and led more laps (120) than any other driver during the nine-day stretch. He led 39 laps in the Budweiser Shootout, 31 in his 150-mile qualifying race, 46 in the Busch Series race and four in the Daytona 500. He finished seventh in the Shootout, fourth in his qualifier, 37th in the Busch race — thanks to a faulty fuel pump — and 24th in the 500.

"That certainly wasn't what we expected going into Daytona," Busch said. "This team is capable of better, and so is the driver. Now, we just have to put that behind us and get ourselves headed in the right direction. Fontana is a good place to make that happen."

Busch, along with Hendrick teammates Jeff Gordon and Jimmie Johnson, will be among the favorites at California Speedway, a track where he has already had some success.

Gordon won the pole, Busch was 18th and Johnson 23rd in Friday's qualifying.

slugger Mark Teixeira. Sosa will get a $500,000, one-year deal and could possibly earn up to $2.1 million more in performance bonuses if he makes the 40-man roster.

"We're excited to see what he can bring," Teixeira said.

In his career, Sosa has batted .274 with 1,575 RBIs with three 60-homer seasons.

What's your B.H.I.Q.?

(Black history intelligence quotient)

BY ELI SANDERS
The Seattle Times

Black History Month began with historian Carter G. Woodson, who early in the last century came up with the idea for a "Negro History Week," which he envisioned as a celebration of black history and achievement, as well as a time for education.

In 1926, with the support of the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History, the first "Negro History Week" was held during the second week in February. The timing was meant to honor the birthdays of abolitionist Frederick Douglass and President Lincoln. Over the years, the event grew in popularity, and in the early 1970s, the association (which later changed its name, replacing the word "Negro" with "Afro-American") expanded the celebration and renamed it "Black History Month."

Now, in keeping with Woodson's idea of focusing on black history and education, we offer this Black History Month quiz:

- The founder of the Nation of Islam was:
  - Elijah Muhammad.
  - Elijah Wood.
  - Ralph Ellison.
- Thurgood Marshall was:
  - A prominent black thinker and architect of the Marshall Plan.
  - The first black Supreme Court justice.
  - A Harlem Renaissance writer.
- Negro League pitcher Satchel Paige played with which famous band leader?
  - Benny Goodman.
  - Duke Ellington.
  - Louis Armstrong.
- Which amendment to the Constitution guaranteed black people (and all citizens) equal protection under the law?
  - The 15th.
  - The 26th.
  - The 14th.
- Black people, women and people ages 18 to 21 have all been kept from voting at some point in the history of the United States. In what order were these groups given the right to vote?
  - Black men, then women, then people 18 to 21.
  - People 18 to 21, then black men, then women.
  - Women, then black men, then people 18 to 21.
- What landmark 1954 Supreme Court decision struck down the idea of "separate but equal" schools for black people and whites?
  - Plessy v. Ferguson.
  - Brown v. The Board of Education of Topeka, Kan.
  - University of California v. Bakke.
- The incarceration rates for black people in America have long been decried as a reflection of a biased justice system. At the end of 2000, what percentage of all black males in the United States ages 25 to 29 was in prison? (For comparison, the answer is 2.9 percent for all Hispanic males in that age group, and 1.1 percent for all white males.)
  - 5.6 percent.
  - 9.7 percent.
  - 24.3 percent.
- The holiday Juneteenth commemorates the day in 1865 when:
  - Abraham Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation, thus freeing slaves.
  - Word reached Texas that Lincoln had signed the Emancipation Proclamation.
  - Lincoln declared war with the South over the issue of slavery.
- Former U.N. Secretary-General Kofi Annan, the first secretary-general from sub-Saharan Africa, is from what country?
  - Ghana.
  - South Africa.
  - Nigeria.

True or false:

- When the United States' founding fathers wrote "all men are created equal," they meant black slaves, too.
- In the "Tuskegee Experiment," the United States monitored 399 black men with syphilis for 40 years to see what would happen to them — even though the men were never told they had syphilis and a cure for the disease was discovered decades before the experiment ended.
- The holiday Kwanzaa was created by black activist and scholar Maulana Karenga in 1966.
- Participants in the Harlem Renaissance included Jean Toomer, Langston Hughes, Zora Neale Hurston and Claude McKay.
- The historically black college Howard University is located in Atlanta.

15. Match the following black Americans with their ideas:

- |  |                          |
|--|--------------------------|
| A. "It is not integration that Negroes in America want, it is human dignity!"  | ■ Martin Luther King Jr. |
| B. "I have a dream that one day this nation will rise up and live out the true meaning of its creed: 'We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal.'"   | ■ W.E.B. Du Bois         |
| C. Encouraged black people to pick themselves up by their "bootstraps" and said: "In all things that are purely social, we can be as separate as the fingers, yet one as the hand in all things essential to mutual progress."   | ■ Malcolm X              |
| D. Wanted to start a colony of black Americans in Liberia and said: "There shall be no solution to this race problem until you yourselves strike the blow for liberty."  | ■ Booker T. Washington   |
| E. Wrote "The Souls of Black Folk" and said of Booker T. Washington: "(When) Mr. Washington apologizes for injustice, does not rightly value the privilege and duty of voting, belittles the emasculating effects of caste distinctions, and opposes the higher training and ambitions of our brighter minds ... we must unceasingly and firmly oppose (him)."                                   | ■ Maya Angelou           |
| F. Read the poem, "On the Pulse of Morning" at President Clinton's inauguration: "You, created only a little lower than/The angels, have crouched too long in/The bruising darkness/Have lain too long/Face down in ignorance/Your mouths spilling words/Armed for slaughter./And the Rock cries out to us today, you/may stand upon me/But do not hide your face."                              | ■ Zora Neale Hurston     |
| G. Wrote the poem, "Harlem," a passage from which reads: "What happens to a dream deferred?/Does it dry up/like a raisin in the sun?/Or fester like a sore — /And then run? ... Maybe it just sags/like a heavy load./Or does it explode?"   | ■ Langston Hughes        |
| H. "I do not belong to the sobbing school of Negrohood who hold that nature somehow has given them a lowdown dirty deal and whose feelings are all hurt about it. Even in the helter-skelter skirmish that is my life, I have seen that the world is to the strong regardless of a little pigmentation more or less. No, I do not weep at the world — I am too busy sharpening my oyster knife." | ■ Marcus Garvey          |

Amber Nicole Vierra and Stephen Bradley Stokes of Big Spring exchanged wedding vows and were united in marriage Nov. 25, 2006, at Saint Thomas Catholic Church with the Rev. Felix Cubelo officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Vierra, the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ramirez and Mrs. Eulalia Viera and the late Mr. Jesus Viera, all of Big Spring.

The groom is the son of Ms. Janie Rodriguez of Big Spring and Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Stokes of La Porte, the grandson of Mrs. Maria Rodriguez and the late Mr. Pedro Rodriguez of Big Spring and Mrs. Mary Lou Stokes of San Angelo.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Henry Vierra. She carried a cascading bouquet of auburn calla lilies and green dendrobium orchids accented with coffee beans.

The bride carried with her bouquet a crystal rosary given to her by her maternal grandmother and a memory locket with pictures of her late great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Juan D. Ramirez, made and presented to the bride by her aunt Mrs. Connie Ramirez of Denton.

For her wedding, the bride wore an ivory organza and satin strapless gown with a chapel length train designed by Oleg Cassini.

The fitted bodice was made of ivory matte satin and embellished with metallic silver and ivory embroidery that was accented with tiny beads and a tiered fingertip length veil with ivory ribbon edge.

Pearl and crystal necklace and earring completed her ensemble.

The maid of honor was Marissa Yvette Vierra of Big Spring, sister of the bride.

Attendants were Ms. Erica DeLeon, Mrs. Sydney Dickson, Ms. Amy Grant, all of Big Spring. Mrs. Autumn Copeland and Ms. Rhonda Barnett, both of San Angelo, all friends of the bride.

The bride's attendants wore vintage pearl halter brocade tea-length dresses with a sage colored ribbon and brooch at the waist. Each carried a single auburn calla lily with a sage ribbon.

Ms. Katherine Behrens of Denton, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl and she wore a tank satin and organza dress accented with chocolate bows and a chocolate organza bow at the waist.

She carried an ivory pearl accented basket.

The best man was Bryan Stokes of College Station, brother of the groom.

Groomsmen were Robert Acuna of Alice and Chance Vineyard of Lubbock, both college roommates of the groom, Adam Partee of Fort Worth, Ross Copeland of San Angelo and Russell Grant of Lubbock, all friends of the groom.

Mr. Dain Copeland of San Angelo, friend of the bride and groom was the ring bearer.

Amber and Stephen Stokes

Ushers were Justin Born of Lubbock, friend of the bride, and Jason Willis of College Station, friend of the groom.

During the wedding ceremony, the couple was presented with gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ramirez of Denton, uncle and aunt of the bride, presented the couple with a lazo (to symbolize unity). Mr. and Mrs. Joe Lopez of Kingwood, uncle and aunt of the groom presented the couple with 13 coin arras (to symbolize the groom's promise to support his family). Mr. and Mrs. Eleno Paredes of North Richland Hills, uncle and aunt of the bride, presented the couple with a Bible.

Mrs. Cindy Chavez Rosa and Mr. Steve Chavez provided music for the ceremony. Mr. Arthur Olague was the scripture reader.

Following the ceremony, the guests attended a reception dinner and dance at the Dora Roberts Community Center.

The bride's table featured a four-tier ivory wedding cake accented with alternating sage and champagne ribbons and ivory pearls, a replica of the bridal bouquet topped the cake.

The cake rested on a round silver tray. The table was draped with an ivory tablecloth and a sage organza overlay and accented with amber crystal bead.

The groom's table featured a double-layered, square chocolate cake with a miniature football and replica of the groom's college football jersey.

The bride is a 2001 graduate of Big Spring High School. She graduated from the University of Texas of the Permian Basin in 2005. She is employed by Midland ISD.

The groom is a 2000 graduate of Big Spring

High School. He graduated from Eastern New Mexico University in 2005. He is employed by Midland ISD. Following a wedding trip to Las Vegas, the couple are making their home in Midland.

50 years on the job

By THOMAS JENKINS
Staff Writer

To say local resident Annette Howard is consistent in her professional life might be the understatement of the year.

Howard, who has worked in the business office at Pollard Chevrolet for 50 years — even several years before Pollard took over the dealership — said there's no real secret to her occupational longevity.

"It's just something you have to do. You have to get up and go to work each day," said Howard. "And when it gets tough, the paycheck has to keep you going."

The only other person at Pollard Chevrolet that comes close to Howard's employment record is Bill Pollard himself, and even the local business owner falls several years short. "I actually inherited Annette," said Pollard with a laugh. "When I took over the dealership she came along with it."

"He didn't come along until 1961, and I started in 1957," Howard said. "Working with him has been just like working with family. It's been really nice. I'll miss it all terrible."

And while there seems to be some confusion over just when Howard will retire from her half-century tenure — two days, two weeks or even longer — the Big Spring woman was adamant she will miss the job and her coworkers.

"I know I'll miss it, but I have to retire sometime," said Howard.

Annette Howard goes over some paperwork with Bill Pollard, owner of Pollard Chevrolet, at the local dealership's business office. Howard has been an employee of the dealership for more than 50 years.

BURNED OUT?

By NIKI SULLIVAN

McClatchy Newspapers

TACOMA, Wash. — Your job is a drag, your co-workers are baboons and your favorite movie is "Office Space."

Ever considered that you might be the one with the problem?

Work burnout — that persistent, nagging feeling that you loathe the hours between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. — may not be a clinical disorder, but it is serious: About three-fourths of workers will experience it at one time or another, according to some studies, said Dr. Alan Shelton.

He should know. Shelton was doing everything he was supposed to: He had an active life, enjoyed great relationships, worked as the medical director for the Puyallup Tribal Health Authority and was a faculty member at Tacoma Family Medicine Residency program for doctors in training.

Then, gradually, he lost his energy and enthusiasm.

"I felt like it was a struggle to go to work. I was cranky, I didn't have compassion for my patients, and I was getting resentful."

To sum it up: "I wasn't ... very nice to work with," he said, laughing riotously.

So he did more of all the things he was supposed to: He tried taking a vacation, changed his hours, ramped up his social life. Nothing worked.

His burnout got so bad that a coworker scheduled him an appointment with an American Indian healer without telling him. He learned of the lunch-break appointment only minutes before.

McClatchy Newspapers graphic

Not finding an excuse (and he did try), he went to the appointment. He was surprised that the "healing" consisted of one question, some stories and a chant.

He was even more surprised when, despite his healthy level of doubt, Shelton returned to work that day feeling like he was finally "back."

"I was how I used to be when I was a good doctor," he said.

But, as you'd expect, it wasn't so easy: About a month after his session, he had slowly faded back to his burned-out state.

That time, he'd had it. Convinced he needed to make a change, he took a leave of absence so he could study his problem and learn how to deal with it.

12 SIGNS OF BURNOUT

1. Do you wake up tired first thing in the morning?
2. Have you lost the feelings of satisfaction, accomplishment and enjoyment that originally inspired you to choose your present job or profession?
3. Are you more irritable and impatient than usual? Do you often feel, "I'm not myself"?
4. Do your co-workers frequently ask you, "Are you all right?" or inquire whether something's wrong?
5. Does taking a vacation give you a temporary sense of relief, but as soon as you return to work you feel tired and have no energy or enthusiasm for work?
6. Do you take longer lunches and breaks than you used to? Is it hard to make yourself go back to work once you're on lunch or a break?
7. Does life seem like "all work and no play"?
8. Do you often feel overwhelmed and too tired to do your work?
9. Do you look for excuses to stop what you're doing (procrastinate), and do you welcome interruptions?
10. Do you spend time doing nonwork activities so you won't have to face your work?
11. When you're doing your work, is it accompanied by a feeling of inescapable fatigue?
12. Do you daydream about "running away" and quitting your job?

— If you answered "yes" to three or more of the questions, you should consider taking action to reduce your stress at work.

— Four to seven "yes" answers means your attitude at work is suffering and serious burnout is on the horizon, so you should take action now.

— Eight or more "yes" answers means you're experiencing acute burnout and should seek help immediately.

Work burnout can have many causes: stress, long hours, lack of a life outside work, the accumulation of general negativity or even underlying health problems.

Shelton also writes that it's often experienced by people who feel a lack of control, those who have to suppress emotion at work (caregivers, for example) and workaholic types who strive for perfection. The three main symptoms, Shelton writes in his book, "Transforming Burnout," are exhaustion, withdrawal and lack of job satisfaction.

Rodriguez honored by UPS

MIDLAND — Charlie Rodriguez, a tractor trailer driver for UPS, was recently recognized by the company for completing 25 years without an accident. Rodriguez works out of the facility located at 2701 Market St. in Midland. He presently provides service in the Midland area. Manager Ron Morris presented Charlie Rodriguez with the 25-year safe driving award, recognizing his achievement. Rodriguez lives in Big Spring.

Boll weevil vote upcoming

Cotton producers in the Permian Basin Boll Weevil Eradication Zone who wish to represent the area on the Texas Boll Weevil Eradication Foundation's statewide board of directors have until March 12 to place their names into nomination. The deadline comes as cotton farmers and landowners who farmed cotton in 2006 are set to decide in an April 12 referendum whether a boll weevil eradication program should continue in the Permian Basin Zone. Cotton producers who farm in the zone and who have at least seven years of experience as a cotton grower may place their names on the ballot for the board member position. In addition, the signatures of at least 10 other eligible cotton growers in the zone must support the nomination. Producers can mail the form to the Texas Department of Agriculture at P.O. Box 12847, Austin 78711 or fax the form to (800) 835-2981. The nomination must be received on or before March 12.

the first thing to do is get a physical to rule out other health problems, including depression. "If you're dreading going to work but enjoying other elements of life, it points the finger strongly at burnout," Goelzer said.

When health problems are ruled out, it's important to assess if you're doing everything you can to avoid or cut off burnout.

"It often comes from actually being out of balance: Too much of one thing, not enough of the other good things in your life," said Phillip Prudhomme, a Tacoma mental health counselor.

"That's why we have vacations or we take up hobbies. It's something to shift that focus."

Prudhomme said it's also important not to compare yourself to others — whether at work or in your personal life — but to establish reasonable goals for yourself.

But Shelton was doing all those things. When he started to study the problem, something the healer had said stuck with Shelton. The healer has told him he needed to do something to tend to his spirit.

At the time, Shelton thought he was doing just fine. But later, he considered it: He kept his body fit, his mind sharp and his relationships healthy but wasn't doing anything consistently to take care of his spiritual side.

He compared being spiritually connected with maintaining physical fitness. "You can't go work out once a month; it needs to be something daily," he said.

During his time off, he found that meditation and prayer were both good ways to nurture his spirit. He was also surprised to find how much damage he was doing every day.

"I did this little experiment where I saw how many times I'd complained in a day," he said. It went something like this: When the alarm clock went off, he cursed. When he got out of bed, he griped about the rain. The shower wasn't hot enough. He worried about his patients. His co-workers got on his nerves ...

He soon realized how much his negative internal voice was affecting him.

"Those kind of things, over time, erode the spirit," he said.

So he reversed his thinking. When the alarm went off, he reminded himself it was the start of a new day. When it rained, he tried to appreciate that it takes rain to live in the lush, forested Pacific Northwest.

"As my spirit became more well, I had more enthusiasm for my work. Work is your calling. There's actually a sacred element to it if you're open to that," he said. "There's a reason you're doing what you're doing, and there are ways that you can help people."

Armed with optimism, he returned to work and presented his findings to a group of physician residents. To his surprise, they were fascinated.

The following year, he gave the same talk. Soon, other groups were asking to hear it. When lines started forming after he spoke, it told him burnout was something a lot of people were struggling with.

"That's when I said, 'I probably should write this down.'"

What he found out was simple: Our culture encourages a healthy, balanced physical, emotional and mental life, but not many people consistently pay attention to their spirit.

To make matters worse, with his academic background, he had learned to be an unflinchingly critical thinker.

"When you extend that into all areas of life, you end up being negative a lot," he said, laughing.

But nourishing the spirit isn't about false optimism. And it doesn't need to be a religious thing.

"I think it is important to differentiate religion and spirituality. Religion is rules for spiritual life, but the first thing is our spirit. Spirituality is really about trust, it's about being open to the divine working in our life and being grateful," he said.

Things like complaining, resentment, carrying grudges and worrying all chip away at the spirit, which is possibly why, he said, there are more people in this country unhappy with their jobs than there are people happy with them.

Shelton's routine to avoid burnout is simple. He prays or meditates daily, tries to avoid TV programs that suck his spirit and listens to music that moves him.

But that doesn't mean he's suddenly the office cheerleader.

"There's good days and bad days, just like before," he said. "But when I spend my time in prayer or meditation at the beginning of the day," it's easier.

FIVE WAYS TO BATTLE BURNOUT

1. Prevention is key:

Tend to your spirit, stay physically fit, have a life outside of work, get plenty of rest and avoid alcohol and drugs. If you're in good health, work doesn't overwhelm your life, said Dr. Alan Shelton, a burnout veteran.

"People probably get tired of hearing 'exercise,'" said mental health counselor Wallace Goelzer, but it's for a reason: Exercise helps ease tension and keeps the body and mind happier.

2. Meditate, pray, practice yoga or relax daily: Shelton starts his day by meditating to get connected with what he calls "the Divine."

The important thing, he said, is to feed your spirit frequently. Goelzer said research has shown that meditation leads to a more productive day. Make it a priority, and you'll begin to feel more balanced, which brings us to ...

3. Prioritize: There are more demands on our time than ever at work now, from constant e-mail to instant messaging to a greater workload, Goelzer said.

To avoid getting overwhelmed, he recommends prioritizing your workload at the beginning of the day, then reassessing later if necessary.

By creating priorities, you can better judge, for example, if you should be replying to a friend's e-mail while you're on deadline. (The answer is no.)

4. Breathe: When Shelton is put in a particularly taxing situation, he has a simple exercise. "It's really important to just pause, take a breath and think about your breath. That sort of centers you," he said. Then pray or meditate. When he's calm, he tries to "respond to whatever it is out of a place of wisdom and love rather than out of a place of reactivity."

5. Consider the root of the problem: If you've tried everything and you're still feeling anxiety over work, maybe your job really is the problem.

Goelzer stressed the importance of using your support network of family and friends to help develop an action plan and support you in your efforts.

You might also consider contacting a therapist if the problem persists.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

BY HOLIDAY MATHIS

Do you exist in multiple dimensions? If you're open to such a possibility, Mercury urges you to have a talk with the you who is in the timeless, formless spiritual dimension. Gather insight about the best way to deal with your current time/body/financial constraints. Do this before Mercury backs out of spiritual Pisces tomorrow.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). When things happen that are beyond your control, it's an opportunity for you to shine in a way you wouldn't under normal circumstances. You're focused, and you get it done quickly — regardless of what "it" is.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You're on your way to recovering all that has been lost. This takes a few days. Don't fret. You're going to be just fine — one breath at a time. A Sagittarius person is your ally.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). There are only about 120 reasons why you should keep your original appointments and agreements now. If this is inconvenient, it's nowhere near as inconvenient as it will be to change things.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Your extreme interest in a subject is mistaken for extreme interest in the person who is knowledgeable on the topic. Then again, it stands to reason that others who share your interest would be attractive, like you are to them.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You're in a sassy, loud, sarcastic mood, and that's just why loved ones adore you. The key is in keeping some kind of social balance. You can get away with using more humor than others, but don't push your luck.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). A small amount of discipline can take you all the way toward becoming a master. Fifteen minutes a day adds up quickly. Devote yourself to practicing what you long to be great at.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Life doesn't have to be hard, although you're used to a certain amount of struggle. When you're with an unflappable person, take notes. You'll soon face a challenge with equal grace.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). It's remarkable how quickly you can work when you know what the amazing benefits will be. Focusing on what you get will help you produce better and give more.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). What you're drawn to and what's good for you may very well be two different things — or maybe you were just taught to believe that. Try to figure out what the basis is for this irresistible attraction.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Knowing what you want makes you a killer in business and a hot item in your personal life. So get back in tune with your desires and motivations. A Libra person helps with this purpose.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). It's a challenge to keep expectations in the realm of reality. So don't. Chances are the reality in question was never really yours anyhow. Think bigger than your parents, friends and everyone you know.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Think about it: No one has lived precisely as you have on this planet. The stars urge you to retell parts of your life story. Better yet, write it down. An Aries person is the perfect audience for you.

Losing weight

There is no secret — it just takes good, old-fashioned diet and exercise

By CHERYL TRUMAN

McClatchy Newspapers

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Tiffany Groves' epiphany about needing to lose weight came when she realized that she became breathless walking from her couch to the kitchen.

She was 15.

She weighed 294 pounds, which hung heavily even on her 6-foot, 3-inch frame.

Tiffany is now a University of Kentucky junior. And she weighs less than half what she did before: 139 pounds.

Toyota worker Tom Eul had his revelatory moment when he stepped on the scale and saw that he weighed 320 pounds.

Eul, 57, realized that he didn't know whether he'd be around to see his granddaughter grow up. "I was hobbling into work and hobbling back home," he said.

Eul is now 130 pounds lighter. His friends at work tease that he's half the man that he used to be. Almost.

Lori Simpson of Waco, Ky., "tried every diet known to man," she says, but her moment came when her health insurance company turned her down for gastric bypass surgery. She logged onto the Weight Watchers Web site and found herself a nearby meeting.

She was 311 pounds.

Now, 108 pounds later, she's hoping to lose at least 25 more pounds.

Faith Warren-Agee got a daily reality check from her patients in a Lexington, Ky., stroke unit: "Do I need my food enough to be able to risk having a big stroke, not having independence at all?" she asked herself.

She did not need her food that much, she decided. So she lost 90 pounds.

Sometimes it's more subtle. P.J. Danhires of Lexington, who lost 50 pounds (her husband, Gregg, lost 80), just didn't realize how the weight had crept up on her. "I knew I'd gotten bigger, but I didn't know I weighed that much," she says of the shock of weighing in at 211 pounds. "I was once pregnant with twins and didn't weigh that much."

Mike Rogers of Winchester, Ky., weighed 307 pounds, then he said to himself: "I'm going to start today and see what happens." He figured that, while he was losing the first 20 pounds, nobody would notice.

Rogers lost 90 pounds and is today an advocate of high fiber, heavy walking and Fat Free Pringles, which he calls "incredible."

Groves, Eul, Simpson, Warren-Agee, Danhires and Rogers don't claim particular wisdom in weight-loss technology or metabolic jump-starting. Instead, they use a technique almost frightening in its simplicity:

They eat less. They exercise a lot more.

We'll get back to the diet. What kind of exercise?

Eul swears by the 10,000-steps method, which works out to about five miles a day on the treadmill. He also has free weights, a "total" gym for more resistance, a stair-stepper platform, a medicine ball and an inflated beam for crunches.

Mike Rogers walks four miles a day five days a week. Bart Steele of Lexington — "I hate exercise. I hate it with a passion" — spends a lot of time outdoors doing landscaping, and he takes the stairs instead of elevators. He's 98 pounds lighter than he was at his heaviest.

Hilary Miller works in as much as two hours of exercise a day in the early mornings. She takes "rest days" only two or three times a month.

"The body loves to exercise," says Theresa Barry-Greb, who works with groups that are learning "The Solution" system. The Solution focuses on establishing healthy limits and emphasizes "mastery living" skills, including adequate sleep, eating a balanced and appealing diet, and making time to "restore."

How do people lose extreme

HOW DID THEY DO IT?

What do people who have lost large amounts of weight have in common? If they do it without the benefit of drugs or surgery, two things: They eat differently. And they exercise a lot. Here are some of their tips.

- Exercise: Make it a daily habit. Those who lost the most weight were most committed to their exercise routines — and indeed, they find it hard to skip exercising.

- Sugar: No, a little chocolate won't kill you, but those who lost a lot of weight were careful about sugar and fat intake.

- Fast food: Although Bart Steele still likes his McDonald's breakfast sandwich and Krista Alexander has the occasional cheeseburger Happy Meal, most of those with the biggest weight losses avoided fast food. They also kept track of their cheese consumption and eventually found they weren't as fond of burgers as they had been while heftier.

- Keep a record of what you eat, and when you eat it. Steele scaled himself back from a McDonald's breakfast that included a breakfast sandwich, a cinnamon roll, hash browns and a large soda to just the breakfast sandwich and soda. These days, he's weaned himself from the soda as well.

- Watch out for eating patterns that show you're eating out of emotion rather than hunger.

- Look for calories in places where you don't think you're chalking them up. Several of our weight-loss champs gave up their sugared soda habit.

amounts of weight without pills or surgery?

Some — many, in fact — swear by the Weight Watchers point system, but others embrace behavior-modification programs such as The Solution, and still others simply reason their way through, figuring that a reduced-calorie diet and increased calorie-burning via exercise must add up to something.

"It's all diet and exercise — unfortunately," says Faithe Warren-Agee. She runs and attends a spin class, but she also looks for other opportunities to stay active. "Even when I'm not working out, I'm doing things like walking the dog," she said.

The news that a slimmer life is possible via the extensive consumption of skinless chicken breasts and obsessive use of treadmills and weights is hardly new.

But in a world where pricey gastric bypass surgery often is denied by insurance companies and the two big weight-loss drugs — Xenical and Meridia — are only moderate successes, diet and exercise might appear the old horses in the weight-loss stable.

Still, they appear to work.

And by the way: Most who lose don't call the new eating plans "diets." They think of themselves as making permanent lifestyle changes.

"What had caused problems for me all my life was diets, diets that were too restrictive," Hilary Miller says. "When I couldn't stand it any longer, I would eat too much out of rebellion."

Bart Steele is even more blunt: Diets, he says, are "a setup for failure."

Many of those who have lost large amounts of weight still nurture a little fascination with junk food, although most of them have limited their sugar consumption. Lori Simpson likes an occasional order of Wendy's fries, which clock in at 7 points on her Weight Watchers allowance.

The rewards are, after all, more substantial than a chunk of Hershey bar.

"My husband stuck with me through the fat years," Lori Simpson says.

"He never gave me grief about my weight. And he's about to get his skinny wife back."

Nancy Cole demonstrates the decline single curl.

Kick up your heels on 'leg day'

By NANCY COLE

McClatchy Newspapers

It's leg day. Are you ready to kick up your heels and go solo? Try the decline single-leg cable curl. Unlike the hamstring curl machine, which operates in a fixed track, the movement of the cable is regulated by your leg. You're forced to balance and control the movement.

Set the cable machine to a low setting. Then, position a decline bench far enough away from the low cable pulley on the weight stack so that the plates do not make contact at the bottom of the movement when you perform the exercise. Attach an ankle strap to the low cable and wrap it securely around your left ankle. Lie prone on the decline bench with your left leg extended. Place your right foot on the floor with your knee slightly bent to balance yourself.

Contract your hamstring and curl your leg up toward your glutes while keeping your thigh in contact with the bench. Further squeeze and pause at the top of the movement. Then, slowly control your leg back down to the starting position. Maintain a slight bend in your leg at the bottom of the rep and go immediately into the next repetition. Finish 12 to 16 reps with your left leg and then switch to your right.

Exercise experts pick top 10 fitness myths

By AMY BERTRAND

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Most fitness professionals have seen or heard it all. Miracle diets, perfect workouts, promises of flat abs in two minutes a day. Chris Hoover, fitness supervisor, constantly sees people acting on that misinformation.

"I don't know what it is," he says. "They see a big muscle guy come in with his muscle magazine, and he sounds like he knows what he's talking about, so before you know it ... word of mouth, it's on someone's Web site, and suddenly everyone has this (wrong) information."

So, with help from Hoover and another fitness expert, Jeremy Koerber, we've devised a list of the top 10 fitness myths.

1. Sit-ups or crunches will burn fat off your abs.

"A lot of people say they want to lose their stomach," Koerber says. "I say, 'Modify your diet and start working on a treadmill,' and they look at me like I'm crazy. You could have abs like Schwarzenegger, but if you have a layer of body fat over them, you will never see them." Don't get us wrong — abdominal exercises are great for strengthening your abs and core, but they're not going to take the fat off."

2. There is an easy way to lose weight.

Nothing could be further from the truth. Fines have been levied against diet pills that claim to have the quick fix. "There is no magic fix," says Koerber, who teaches a class called "infomercial myths" at BJC WellAware. "It's called work. (That person in that ad) didn't get that body in 20 minutes a day, three days a week. It's just not possible."

3. If you don't have time to get in the government's recommended 30 to 90 minutes a day, you shouldn't bother.

The truth is, anything you can do will be beneficial. Studies have shown that even splitting up those 30 minutes into 10-minute segments is good for you.

4. Weightlifting makes women big and bulky.

"That's just not true," Hoover says. "Unless they are using steroids, it's not going to happen." He says many women are so afraid of this that they lift weights that are too light to properly tone and strengthen their bodies.

5. You aren't working hard enough if you aren't dripping in sweat.

How much you sweat depends on much more than just how hard you are working. Your body temperature, the clothes you are wearing, genetics and more determine how much you sweat. "Some people can get in a great workout without breaking much of a sweat," Hoover says.

6. Workouts should hurt.

Though feeling sore a day or two after a new workout can be fairly normal, you should never hurt beyond that. "If the soreness worsens, or if you have it four, five or six days after the workout, something's wrong," Hoover says.

7. If you stop exercising, your muscles will turn to fat.

Muscle tissue and fat tissue are completely different, Hoover says. If you stop exercising, your muscle will become smaller and perhaps atrophy. But that doesn't necessarily mean you will get fat. You'll gain weight only if you keep eating the way you were when you were exercising. If you eat less to make up for not burning calories, you won't get fat.

8. As you age, you will lose muscle and gain fat.

Though there is some truth to this, it's not an absolute. As you age, your metabolism decreases, but resistance training can increase and help you maintain lean muscle mass. "You can maintain your muscle — you just have to work a little harder," Hoover says.

9. Workouts must be intense to burn fat.

Actually, the body burns fat as efficiently when you do low- to moderate-intensity workouts. Unfortunately, though, it takes longer to burn calories in a low-intensity workout as compared with a high-intensity.

10. Stretching isn't important because it won't make you thinner.

If you think about the fact that without proper stretching you could become injured, thus missing many workouts, it's vital, Koerber says. It's also important to maintain your body's range of motion as you age.

Just a cough?

Coughing is a part of everyday life. It is the body's way of keeping us healthy by removing material from the air passages and lungs that should not be there.

Coughing is natural and necessary, but it can also be a sign of a serious medical condition. Understanding the various types of coughs can help people know when they may be symptoms of a larger issue.

Coughs can be differentiated according to whether or not they produce discharge like mucus or phlegm. Dry coughs occur for various reasons. A piece of dust or some other particle that becomes trapped in the throat can cause a dry cough, as can the common cold and the flu. Allergies and asthma also cause this type of cough. On the other hand, a cough that produces mucus or has a congested sound to it may indicate bronchitis or another respiratory infection.

Bronchitis is an inflammation of the airway to the lungs. It is generally caused by a viral infection, though it can also develop as a result of exposure to chemicals, polluted air or tobacco smoke. A cough that produces mucus is one of the main signs of bronchitis, but others include sore throat, wheezing, fever and chills.

The two different types of bronchitis are acute and chronic bronchitis. Acute bronchitis is spread from person to person and is common in the winter months. It may accompany a cold or the flu, and healthy people who contract acute bronchitis generally improve in two or three weeks. Chronic bronchitis is a serious condition that can last for years and requires regular treatment. Smoking is a notorious cause of chronic bronchitis, but regular exposure to pollution or harmful chemicals can also be responsible.

Coughing is a symptom of things going on inside the body. Some coughs are harmless. Some are indications of significant medical conditions. Becoming informed about coughs and other common symptoms can help you know when it is time to see a doctor. If you are curious about bronchitis and other respiratory infections, contact your physician to get more information.

Mental fitness

Seniors see improvement in brain-training classes

CHICAGO (MCT) — Betty Hall, 85, jumped at the chance to take a "brain fitness" class at her senior living complex in Wheaton, Ill., when the program started in late November.

"I thought my brain could use a little help," said Hall, who lives independently but worries about signs of forgetfulness, such as misplacing her keys and grocery lists.

Since Thanksgiving, Hall has sat at a computer five days a week, matching words with different sounds ("fit" "wit" "admit"), listening for salient details in stories ("the cape was green," "the field was full of sunflowers") and practicing other brain-enhancing exercises.

Each session is an hour, and the program gets harder over each of its eight weeks.

Now Hall has a problem of a different sort. "I've won four times out of the last five at bridge club, and I think the players are going to shoot me because I keep remembering the cards people have," she said, laughing. "It's much easier for me to concentrate ... and I brag about it everywhere I go."

Will health-minded seniors such as Hall, who walks two hours daily, focus on keeping their minds as fit as their bodies in the years ahead? Experts are convinced that this is an up-and-coming priority for aging Baby Boomers as well as people already in their 60s, 70s and 80s.

"Over the next few years, we will see these (brain health) programs burst into the mainstream with great force," predicted Dr. Elkonon Goldberg, a clinical professor of neurology at New York University School of Medicine and co-founder of Sharp Brains, a company that evaluates and helps markets brain-fitness programs.

A growing body of scientific studies supports the trend.

The newest research comes from a large, well-designed study known as Advanced Cognitive Training for Independent and Vital Elderly (known as ACTIVE), published in December in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Unlike previous studies, this one has a relatively long-term horizon. More than 2,000 healthy seniors in Baltimore; Birmingham, Ala.; Boston; Detroit; Indianapolis; and State College, Pa., were evaluated multiple times over five years.

Participants were divided into four groups. Three received special training in specific mental functions (memory, reasoning and speed of processing) and one group, with no training, served as a control.

The major finding was stunning: Relatively short training regimens — 10 sessions of 1 to 1.5 hours each over five or six weeks — improved mental functioning as long as five years later. Booster sessions helped advance these gains, and some people found it easier to perform everyday tasks, such as managing finances, after mental workouts.

"I think what this shows, conclusively, is that when healthy older people put effort into learning new things, they can improve their mental fitness," said Michael Marsiske, a member of the research team and an associate professor at the University of Florida at Gainesville. "And even if structured learning is relatively brief, you should be able to see the benefits of that learning for some time to come."

Left open is the question, Can cognitive training help offset the impact of brain conditions such as mild cognitive impairment, a condition that frequently precedes Alzheimer's disease, and dementia? And can it work with people with schizophrenia, which is an illness of the brain, or cancer survivors whose thinking becomes blurred after chemotherapy?

Some evidence suggests that training may delay mental decline associated with mild cognitive impairment, chemotherapy and schizophrenia, but so far there is no evidence that brain exercises can prevent Alzheimer's or other forms of dementia.

Women: Heart Health

Guidelines urge women to curb heart, stroke risk

By MARILYNN MARCHIONE

AP Medical Writer

Nearly all American women are in danger of heart disease or stroke and should be more aggressive about lowering their risk — including asking their doctors about daily aspirin use, the American Heart Association said Monday in new guidelines.

It is the first time guidelines have urged all women to consider aspirin for preventing strokes, although specialists warn that it can cause ulcers and dangerous bleeding. They said it is probably not a good idea for young women with no big health problems.

"We do not want women to go to the drugstore and just start taking this themselves. It is critical that every woman talk to her doctor," said Dr. Lori Mosca, director of preventive cardiology at New York-Presbyterian Hospital and chair of the expert panel that wrote the guidelines.

The guidelines also advise daily exercise and less fat, and declare

New advice for women to avoid heart disease

The American Heart Association issued new guidelines Monday saying women should consider aspirin use, exercise more, and eat less fat. The advice:

- ASPIRIN. Consider for preventing stroke unless a health condition or bleeding risk makes this unwise. Consult a doctor first.
- EXERCISE. At least 30 minutes most and preferably all days; 60 to 90 minutes if you need to lose weight.
- DIET. Mostly fruits and vegetables, whole grain and high-fiber foods, fish at least twice a week, and little salt.
- FAT. Limit saturated fat to less than 10 percent of calories, 7 percent if possible, and trans fats to less than 1 percent.
- ALCOHOL. No more than one drink a day.
- SMOKING. Don't. Use nicotine replacement products if needed to stop.
- WEIGHT. Keep body-mass index under 25.
- SUPPLEMENTS. Consider omega-3 fatty acids (fish oil) if you already have heart disease. Do not take extra folic acid or antioxidants like vitamins E, C and beta carotene, for heart disease prevention. They don't work.
- BLOOD PRESSURE, CHOLESTEROL. Keep under control, with medicine if necessary.

vitamins C and E, beta carotene and folic acid supplements worthless for preventing heart disease.

The guidelines were published in the journal Circulation with related studies on women's health, including one suggesting that hormone skin patches may be safer than pills for menopause symptoms.

In general, the guidelines aim to get women and doctors to focus on the long-term risk of high blood pressure, smoking, lack of exercise or being overweight — even if a woman's current health seems fine. Even a single risk factor at age 50 greatly raises the chance of heart disease or stroke later, and only about 10 percent of American women are free of these problems.

"We do not want women to wait until they develop symptoms to begin to take action," Mosca said.

The guidelines were drafted by dozens of groups worldwide, including the American Academy of Family Physicians and the U.S. government. Of the 33 people who wrote the advice, 13 have financial ties to heart drug makers, only three of them to a large degree.

"This is a really good gathering of evidence in women," after years of studies done mostly on men, said Dr. Sidney Smith, heart disease chief at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and past heart association president.

The evidence shows that many more women than thought are at risk of heart disease and stroke — even those whose only weakness was failure to exercise every day. Heart disease is the leading killer of men and women worldwide.

The advice:

- Exercise. Get at least 30 minutes of moderately intense exercise on most and preferably all days, 60 to 90 minutes if you need to lose weight.

- Diet. Eat mostly fruits and vegetables, whole grain and high-fiber foods, fish at least twice a week, and little salt. Limit saturated fat to less than 10 percent of calories, 7 percent if possible, and trans fats to less than 1 percent. Limit alcohol to one drink or less a day.

- Don't smoke. Use nicotine replacement products if needed to stop.

- Weight. Keep body-mass index under 25.

- Supplements. Consider omega-3 fatty acids (fish oil) if you already have heart disease. Do not take extra folic acid or antioxidants like vitamins E, C and beta carotene, for heart disease prevention.

- Blood pressure, cholesterol. Keep under control, with medicine if needed. Keep LDL or bad cholesterol under 100 if at high risk of heart disease and under 70 if at very high risk.

- Aspirin. Daily use is already urged for women at high risk, and the guidelines now say the dose can go up to 325 milligrams. All other women should consider 81 milligram "baby aspirin" daily or 100 milligrams every other day for stroke prevention.

The last is controversial. Aspirin is recommended now to prevent heart disease in men 45 and older; but in women, a large study found it prevented heart disease only for those 65 and older.

Aspirin did prevent strokes in women, but again, the benefit was substantial only among older ones, said Dr. JoAnn Manson, a Harvard University women's health expert who helped lead that study.

Putting young women on aspirin for stroke prevention is not justified by the evidence, Manson warned. In the 10-year study, aspirin prevented only one additional cardiovascular problem among roughly 35,000 women under 65 and led to 20 cases of bleeding requiring transfusion, she said.

Aspirin also can be dangerous for people whose blood pressure is not under control — another reason women should see their doctor before starting on it, Smith said. Many people are unaware they have high blood pressure.

Dr. Elizabeth Nabel, director of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute, said the benefits of low-dose aspirin must be weighed against the risk of internal bleeding. Check with your doctor first.

Diet, regular exam key to prostate cancer prevention

The second most common cancer in American men, prostate cancer often develops without obvious symptoms.

The American Cancer Society reports one in six men will get the disease during their lifetime, and 1 in 34 will die from it.

Diet and early detection are critical in reducing the risk of prostate cancer and improving treatment options for those diagnosed with the disease, said K. Scott Coffield, M.D., professor of surgery in the Texas A&M Health Science Center College of Medicine.

Symptoms include a weak urine flow, frequent or painful urination, blood in the urine or semen, and pain in the lower back, pelvis or upper thighs.

"Diets and early detection are the two responses men can make to help prevent prostate cancer at its earliest stage and permit curative therapy," said Dr. Coffield, urologist-oncologist at the Scott & White Clinic in Temple, a prostate cancer expert.

A diet low in animal fat with ample vegetables, particularly those that mature with a red or orange color, can reduce the risk for prostate cancer, Dr. Coffield said.

A multiple vitamin supplement is recommended for men over age 50.

Men should begin having an annual prostate exam and prostate-specific antigen (PSA) blood test at age 50.

Those with a strong family history of prostate cancer and black men should start these tests at age 45, Dr. Coffield said, as the disease is more common in blacks than whites in this country.

'Jackass: Number Two' side-splitting, mindless fun

OK, so I admit the entire "Jackass" franchise isn't for everyone.

It's certainly not for children, for fear they might try to emulate the life and limb threatening stunts the cast and crew pull off. It's not for the elderly, who see the premise behind the entire series and movies as immature and foolhardy. I doubt it will do well with the ultra-conservative, who will dismiss it with nothing more than a wave of the white-gloved hand.

Thomas Jenkins

On the other hand, there's guys like me and my closest friends. We're the kind of guys that still watch the "Three Stooges" flicks, laughing at the black-and-white offerings to the television comedy deities. We still laugh when someone accidentally — or even on purpose — takes a shot to the groin. We've even been known to run out in the snow wearing only our underwear to make snow angels, otherwise known as "dork angels," in the middle of the freezing cold.

"Jackass: Number Two" is unassailably hilarious from beginning to end, and is easily the funniest movie I've seen since its predecessor. Once again, those assembled fling themselves into the abyss with enthusiastic abandon, and rest assured no one escapes unscathed, as there are plenty of groin shots and thoracic trauma to go around.

In the four years since the first "Jackass" movie hit theaters and graced us all with visual delights like Johnny Knoxville getting shot with a riot gun and Dave England enjoying a urine-soaked snow cone, the crew of lovable reprobates responsible have scattered to the four corners of Celebritydom.

Knoxville embarked on an intermittently successful movie career ("The Ringer," "The Dukes of Hazzard"), Bam Margera has his own MTV show as well as a Sirius radio program, and Steve-O and Chris "Party Boy" Pontius applied their former show's mentality to a quasi-nature program called "Wild Boys."

There's no real plot to discuss, no hidden meaning or social message to be found in the film. It's simply more footage of the crew hurting themselves and performing stunts that no one in their right mind should ever even consider attempting.

The film starts off with a fun beginning where the guys are chased through a suburb by bulls to the tune of an Ennio Morricone's "The Ecstasy Of Gold" from "The Good The Bad

And The Ugly."

Somehow, seeing grown men getting chased by bulls to one of the most beautiful pieces of music ever composed for a film is completely appropriate. It shouldn't work, but it does — which pretty much applies to all things Jackass.

From there the audience is bombarded with one stunt or prank after another.

The guys attach propulsion systems to BMX bikes and shopping carts to try and launch them over ramps while Pontius MC's in a pink track suit.

Knoxville and Dunn ride 'old timey' bicycles over curbs and over jumps only to land on their faces. Look for cameos from Tony Hawk, Matt Hoffman and John Waters of all people — though considering Knoxville was in "A Dirty Shame" maybe it's not so odd to see him here after all.

The highlight of the movie has to be when the crew pulls a prank on an unsuspecting Ehran McGhehey, who poses as a Muslim terrorist.

His intent is to freak out a cab driver who they've called to take him to the airport, but the joke is on him when the driver (played by Jay Chandrasekhar from "Super Troopers" and "Beerfest") turns out to be tougher than Ehran banked on. It's not in the least bit politically correct, but it's certainly funny to watch.

In the end, it's what some might call senseless humor, but I call it 90-plus minutes of fun.

And while watching people get hurt — in one scene Bam, Ryan and Knoxville all take a blast from an anti-riot device that leaves you truly questioning their well-being — is part of the humor, it's certainly not the focal point for me.

The part about "Jackass: Number Two" that really drew me in was the good-natured fun and camaraderie between the cast and crew.

It's really hard to see your best friend branding you several times on the rear-end as being good natured, but bear with me — I really am moving toward a point.

The guys of Jackass do some of the meanest, most heinous things to one another anyone — present company included — can cook up, but when it's over they laugh, smack a few high-fives and move on to the next skit.

For the most part, no one even gets mad.

For example, Bam Margera has a fear of snakes. Don't feel bad Bam, I can't stand the slithery lil' devils myself. Luckily for me, however, Director Jeff Tremaine and Knoxville aren't out to get me.

Going after the whole "prank within a prank" method, Margera ends up with a king cobra — defanged, of course — lobbed into the horse trailer where he's doing a stunt.

Suspended from a corner like some sort of spider monkey, Margera lets the cast and crew know exactly what he thinks of them as he looks for a way out of what he certainly sees as his demise. At one point, Knoxville asks him, "Dude, are you crying?" "Yeah," shoots back a frightened, if not humbled, Margera.

When it's over, however, Margera doesn't do what you would expect most people to do. He doesn't assault Knoxville, the snake handler, or anyone else, for that matter. He climbs atop a van to wait for shooting to end.

Why? Because he knew, just as well as Knoxville, that the whole thing was funny. And if Bam Margera, who those in the Jack-tary takes us through the various stages of production from the first day of shooting, where the cast reunites, and then it goes on from there.

Highlights here include a naked Wee-Man wandering around a hotel conference center, an interview with director Tremaine who states that there were nev-ass circles know has an ego that weighs more than a giant gorilla, can laugh at himself, why can't the rest of the world?

As strange as the word may sound in describing anything involved with Jackass, you get the distinct feeling the cast and crew really do trust one another, and on film, just as in life, that's priceless. You simply can't "act" it.

Needless to say, the DVD features plenty of extras.

There is a twenty-five minute documentary entitled "The Making of Jackass Number Two," which gives us a look into what went into making the picture. It begins with the typical intro from Knoxville, then hits us with a montage of stunts and clips from the movie.

From there the documener any plans for a sequel and how Knoxville rallied everyone together to get the second picture going.

There's some interesting footage of Pontius getting ready for the 'puppet show' skit that is seen in the picture, as well as interviews with Bam, Pontius, Steve-O, as well as a clip where Knoxville gets injured on the set. At half an hour in length, it's a pretty interesting segment that does a good job of showing us what it was like behind the scenes of the movie while still remaining true to the spirit of Jackass.

There are also plenty of deleted scenes and outtakes, as you would expect from such a motley cast.

Some will undoubtedly question the merits of such so-called humor, decrying "Jackass" once again as one of the final bells tolling for civilization's demise.

I maintain that if you weren't singing the same tune when "America's Funniest Home Videos" came out — a show every bit as cruel but with the added bonus of using unwilling participants — you're without a leg to stand on here.

Nobody's getting hurt on screen except those who bring it upon themselves, and better that than driving around shooting pellet guns at pedestrians or paying the homeless to beat each other up.

Frankly, I've grown tired of defending "Jackass" to its critics. Comedy, like most everything else, is subjective, and this may be the greatest example out there of "getting it" or not.

If you thought the first movie, the original TV show, the Three Stooges, or "Football in the Groin," was funny, chances are "Jackass: Number Two" is right up your alley. You'll laugh 'til you puke, if you don't puke first.

For those people who want to win the battle over Acid Reflux Disease, we'd like to say
"Bravo."

The area's only Bravo pill system is now available at Scenic Mountain Medical Center for the treatment and diagnosis of Gastroesophageal Reflux Disease (also called GERD). The new Bravo pill procedure allows you to monitor your acid levels without the insertion of tubes or cameras, and without drinking unpleasant barium solution. It's as simple as wearing a pager and as easy as using a TV remote. Talk to your doctor or call 432-263-6018 for more information.
