Howard County commissioners voted 3-2 Friday morning to go ahead with a countersuit against local architect Phil Furgueron, in what County Judge Mark Barr described as an attempt to recover county funds.

Commissioners Gary Simer and Emma Brown, as well as Barr, voted in favor of the suit - expected to cost the county approximately $5,000 in and arbitration deposits - while commissioners Jerry Kilgore and Bill Crooker opposed the

"After reviewing the contract between him (Furqueron) and the county, it appears to me there was a contract for one Phase 1 drawing," Thomas told commissioners Friday.

"We should have paid $138,000, instead of the $326,000 we paid."

The court's decision to send a countersuit into arbitration came after Furgueron, represented by local attorney Tim Yeats, filed for arbitration of approximately $32,000

Small savings on evac system welcome news

By THOMAS JENKINS

Howard County commissioners received some good news Friday morning, as the cost of the mechanical contract necessary to replace the smoke evacuation system in the jail fell by approximately $20,000.

Crooker According to Bill Crooker, negotiations between the county and Anthony Mechanical have yielded money-saving compro-

"We held a meeting with the contractors Thursday," said Crooker.

"Both the mechanical and electrical contractors were there. We've worked it out so the county will provide the plaster and paint work called for in the contract. In essence, the contract will be for approximately $202,000, instead of the $223,000 we originally talked about.

"We're just waiting for them to submit a final contract, which will include a 2 percent performance bond, which will amount to approximately $9,000 more. So we're looking at about some $210,000 for this."

> Crooker said the contract is expected to be completed in 75 days.

"If any luck is with us, it might even be sooner," said County Judge Mark Barr.

The county jail was shut down by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards in November, after the facility's smoke evacuation system failed to meet requirements during a pair of tests in 2006.

Since the jail's closure, inmates of the Howard County Jail have been housed elsewhere, including Dickens, Glasscock and Lamb counties.

Commissioners received positive word on efforts to construct a standpipe in the courthouse, which would deliver water to fire fighters in the event of an emergency.

"From what I understand, the standpipe is 90 percent complete," Barr told the court. "Now we're just waiting for them to install the fire department connections the trucks will hook into."

Sheriff Dale Walker confirmed Friday afternoon the standpipe was indeed functional.

"The water is flowing right now," said Walker. "The courthouse - not just the jail - is now safer, which is a definite source of relief for me and my staff. I'm very pleased to see this part of the project finished. Now we just have to get the smoke evacuation system up and running."

In other businesses, Barr appointed commissioners Crooker and Gary Simer to a committee to begin looking at site possibilities for a proposed new jail facility.

The last site the court considered - the old Kmart building located near the intersection of Birdwell Lane and FM 700 was recently optioned Trinity Baptist Church, putting it beyond the court's reach, according to Barr.

The court has yet to announce any new sites being considered.

the local architect claims the county owes him in termination fees that were a part of his contract.

Furqueron's contract with the county was terminated by the court in January, due to what Barr described as a "political climate."

"Phil, you've been an advocate of this big jail that's been defeated, and I think that's hurt you," Barr told Furgueron during the court's Jan. 8 meeting, following the defeat of a $10 million bond issue. "And I think the political climate as such, if we are to proceed with this matter, is to start over and get some new ideas."

According to Kilgore, countersuit uncalled for.

"Have you looked at the minutes of the meetings? The commissioner's court clearly directed him (Furgueron) to do additional drawings," said Kilgore. "I know for a fact we had him do at least three drawings. The first one met resistance early on, so we had him come up with a second one, which was a law enforcement center. Then, after the city pulled out on us, we had him go back and do a third one that didn't include the space for the city or the sheriff's office. We directed him to do those drawings and he was paid for them. This just doesn't make any sense."

Thomas told Kilgore Friday was the last day for the county to file a countersuit in the arbitration, and the merits of the case shouldn't be discussed at this time.

"There will be a time for discovery," Thomas. "If we don't file this today, however, it will be lost. This is not the place to discuss the merits of this (situation)."

Barr made the motion to proceed with the countersuit, seconded by Simer.

OUR VIEWS

Lawmakers' aim to replace TAKS an excellent idea

t sometimes seems chances to praise ideas formulated by the Texas Legislature come along about as often as blue moons, but that simply hasn't been the case with this year's legislative session. There really are some good ideas that are earning consideration in Austin this year.

We have already twice praised our lawmakers this year — offering kudos to State Sen. Kel Seliger for his call to end TAKS testing at the elementary school level and State Rep. Joe Heflin for his initiating legislation to reinstate the CHIP program to provide for healthcare for low income children.

And now we're in that position again, as Seliger has stepped to the forefront in the bid do away with the TAKS entirely and replace it with a series of 12

Under the proposed law, the exit-level TAKS would be replaced with end-of-course exams in the core subject areas under the proposal filed Thursday in the House by Republican Rep. Rob Eissler, who leads the House Public Education Committee.

We have long complained to our lawmakers that the current assessment system forces our public school teachers to do little more than teach their students to take the TAKS test, rather than really educating their students.

Replacing the high school TAKS with end-ofcourse exams would ease some of the most common complaints about the test, Eissler said.

We agree. End of course exams will allow teachers to focus on content and not simply "teach the test, That's important, we believe, because if teachers are to really educate our children, they must be able to focus on the deep content, rather than wasting classroom time reviewing material just to make sure they pass the TAKS.

Seliger noted last week that the current system often results in "undermining the number of learning days, the academic days that go into a school year and this new testing regimen should put the emphasis back on learning, not on testing.'

All that said, we want to make sure state officials heed the warnings of the state's teachers groups, which so far have offered a somewhat tepid response to the proposal.

The one concern teachers have with any new assessment system is that it not take on the highstakes end all, be all that the TAKS test evolved

Does that mean we want to take away accountability in our schools?

Of course not.

But we believe that tests are not a really good measure of what children learn. In fact, any knowledgeable educators will tell you they're probably a mediocre teaching tool (i.e. we seem to remember things we had trouble with on tests, as well as those we did really well on for many years after we take

But virtually everything in public education has become tied to the TAKS test, making it impossible for teachers to do anything but spend valuable time teaching their students to take the test.

That needs to stop ... and stop now.

by K. Rae Anderson

May we use the many talents that You have given us, Lord, for You.

It's time to do our job as parents

m I an over-protective parent? I'm sure it's a question all parents, at some point in their children's lives, have to ask them-

Recently, while observing how other parents at my daughter's school treat - and in some cases, ignore - their children, I had to take a much closer, candid look at my life and how I'm raising my only child.

Of course, I'm not silly enough to think my views might not be a touch skewed, so I enlisted the help of an old college friend who actually went on to do something with his degree in psychology

THOMAS Hey, we can't all be JENKINS shrinks, right?

We talked for more than an hour - naturally, I'm now homesick for my sweet South Carolina, which will be alive with blooms of every color soon - and the question we got down to was this: Am I an over-protective par-

The answer, coming from a licensed child psychologist, was ...

And while it was nice to get a clean bill of health for the way I'm raising my little angel — yes, she has me wrapped firmly around her little finger — it was very disturbing in the sense of what I have seen from other parents.

Children, 5 and 6 years old, walking several blocks in the freezing cold — alone, mind you to school each morning.

Children of the same age crossing major thoroughfares -Birdwell Lane and 11th Place, for example — without an adult anywhere in sight.

The list goes on and on. It seems to me the gap between good parents and bad parents is getting smaller and smaller, as literally thousands of children in the Crossroads area find themselves responsible for their own upbringing while mommy and daddy go

Cong. District)

"Ed, Edd and Eddy" and "Codename: Kids Next Door" can raise your kids to be well-adjusted adults, you better hope you never have to rely on them in your golden years. Don't get me wrong, I understand how hard it can be at times. Being a single father who works full-time as a reporter, my hours and schedules can be as erratic as the West Texas weather.

But that's no excuse. In fact, there are no "good" excuses when it comes to our kids.

Children have a relatively healthy expectation that mom and dad, regardless of what they do or don't do - for a living, will protect them from dangers, both foreign and domestic.

Foreign threats being the predators walking the streets or the rusty nail sticking out of the end of the swing at the park. Domestic threats, on the other hand, are our kids themselves.

Yes, just like adults, they can be their own worst enemies.

Bear in mind, I'm not saying we should deify our children. I've seen parents who basically worship the ground their children walk on, and I figure this is just as destructive as not caring at all. Children need a certain level of discipline, otherwise they grow up to be criminals and politicians.

Given the choice, a life of crime doesn't sound so bad, does it?

We must also be careful not to force our children to grow up in bubble-like fish bowls, completely shielded from the outside world. I've seen the effects of this treatment up close and personal. It's not pretty.

However, we must maintain a healthy level of responsibility with our children.

We've all seen the news reports about children being abducted by complete strangers and hauled off to God-knows-where.

We've seen that many of them never come home.

We've heard the horror stories, over and over again, played out in the media, which is more than happy to bombard us with every

My name is Billy Acosta and I am currently in the U.S. Navy serving on an six-month deployment overseas.

I am just writing to ask if you would be so kind as to possibly putting a "shout out" to my family there in Big Spring. All I want it to say is:

"Hello to Robert, Mom, Collin and Anthony from your son and brother Billy Acosta. The seas are fair and land is near. Please keep the light on because I will be home soon enough."

Though I no longer reside in Big Spring, I continue to follow the news and happenings of my "hometown" with much interest. I find it difficult to believe that there is going to be a recall election for Russ McEwen for doing something that almost every town and city in the state is doing, and that is, passing a no-smoking ordinance.

Money that could be better spent in other places - ie. new jail. street repairs, etc. - now have to be wasted on this recall election. Those opposed to this ordinance, should simply run for office at the next scheduled election and not waste tax dollars to satisfy their hurt egos, or what they perceive to be an infringement on their personal life styles.

From my visits to Big Spring, it is easy to see that every cent the city has should be used toward civic improvements, not recall elec-

Were I still living in Big Spring, be assured that I would be supporting Russ McEwen. But since I am not, I would like to encourage all my friends and family members to cast their vote for McEwen. He has done, and will continue to do a good job as mayor of Big Spring.

You know how some people come into your life, maybe stay a while and then one day they're gone "out of sight, out of mind" - and the world just keeps turning?

Then there are those who come into your life, stay for a while and then one day they are gone — "out of sight, but not out of mind." That is because they impacted your life in such a positive way that you can never forget all of those wonderful memories. Marge Salhus and Norman Mosley left just such an impression on the veteran community of Big Spring a few years ago in the relatively short period of time they lived here.

Marge was a social worker/homeless coordinator at the VA Medical Center. Her husband, Norman, was a disabled veteran and a member of Disabled American Veterans Chapter 47. He was unemployed due to health reasons.

But when Norman was physically able, at every chance he would help Marge in providing help to a homeless veteran or another comrade in need. Despite his own handicaps, Norman was always eager to help make someone else's life just a little bit brighter. His selfless attitude and friendly disposition was recognized by everyone who was fortunate to meet and know him.

Sadly, Norman Mosley, age 70, a loving husband, father and brother and grandpa, passed away on Friday, Feb. 23, 2007, following a long, courageous battle with cancer. He died at home in Burleson, surrounded by those who loved him. Burial was Tuesday, Feb. 27, at the Dallas/Fort Worth National Cemetery.

The family lost a loved one and the world lost a friend. Norman will be sorely missed and also graciously remembered for all the help he provided to Marge and DAV

As a citizen of Big Spring I have seen and learned that many people who suffer from physical as well as mental depression, are treated unfairly in today's views of severe cutbacks and low income.

We write our senators and governors and what we get is white washed letters or answers to questions that don't pertain to the questions we seek answers to.

But still the wrong overcomes those who have no one to fight for their rights and no one wants to come to the rescue.

I ask this of you: Print this and investigate those who have been done wrong and if you can't find the person to help in the investigation then ask me I will research and find the answers that need to be heard.

This letter is adressed to all those that support our troops. On March 12 there will be a caravan coming through Big Spring heading to Washington, D.C., to support our troops.

This is in response to an anti-war rally being held there, headed by Cindy Shehan and Jane Fonda. This caravan is a group called Move America Forward and is going to construct a city of flags to let people know that we do support our troops and what they are doing.

They are asking that people support them along their route to the capitol.

There is nothing in the Development Corporation Act of 1979 — I assume this is "the statute" Mr. McLellan is referring to — that refers to or limits any specific financial amount to be spent on an economic: development

Professor to study Spanish language TV and emergency warnings

When Dr. Abraham Benavides, assistant professor of public administration at the University of North Texas, saw a thunderstorm warning scroll across the Dallas-Fort Worth network affiliate that he was watching one evening last fall, he wondered if the local Spanish language affiliate was carrying the same warning.

But after flipping the channel, he saw nothing. Nor did he see warnings on three other Spanishlanguage stations.

"People who were watching the Spanish channels could have had no idea that the thunderstorm was coming," Benavides said, adding that he also recalled Dr. David McEntire, UNT associate professor of public administration and former director of the department's emergency administration and planning program, mentioning a 1987 tornado in Texas.

On May 22, 1987 a F4 tornado - with winds of 207 to 260 miles per hour — touched down at 8:15 p.m. in the small town of Saragosa in Reeves County. More than 80 percent of the structures in the town were destroyed, and out of 183 residents, 30 were killed and 121 were injured.

Benavides said that when the tornado fouched down, many residents in predominantly the Hispanic town were watching the Univision affiliate, which did not carry the emergency weather announcements being broadcast on the English language affiliates.

"When I turned to the Spanish channels last fall, I thought that things had changed and the Spanish language stations did carry warnings," he said.

"As the Hispanic community continues to grow in the U.S., it is important that the Spanish language media be properly prepared to transmit emergency warning information to all its customers." Benavides recently received a $2,000 grant from UNT's Center for Spanish Language Media to survey Spanish language television stations in the U.S., particularly those in metropolitan areas with large Hispanic populations. He will determine if the stations have emergency response procedures and use the Emergency Alert System; if the stations provide emergency information via open captioning, crawls or scrolls at the bottom of the screen; and if personnel receive training in how to alert the public, among other areas. He said he will also examine Federal Communications Commission regulation of Spanish language media, pointing out that while English language stations are required to carry Emergency Alert System bulletins, the Spanish stations may not.

"Many programs on Univision don't originate from the U.S., so you cannot break in on the programs," Benavides said.

§"Technology does exist to transmit information via crawls at the bottom of the screen without interrupting the programming, so it's a matter of knowing why some Spanish stations don't use it. Another problem may be that someone must be available to transmit emergency weather bulletins into Spanish. It could be an expense that the station doesn't want to have." Benavides plans to finish gathering data on the Spanish language stations and have a report prepared by the end of the year. He notes that other U.S. television stations that transmit in languages other than English should also be prepared and equipped to transmit weather warnings and other emergency information to their audiences.

"If I was a station manager, I would want to do this as part of the station's public service duties and responsibilities," he said.

As for your advice from counsel, I suggest you get a counsel who knows and interpret Development Corporation Act of 1979 with its amendments.

After refusing to vote for a positive for our community, the Moore Board was enthusiastic about a $5,000 paint job for the Settles.

I too thank Rufus Duncan Jr. for his offer, but I feel there is much reconstruction to be done before we can paint the Settles.

Do you realize that, as the governing authority. the city council can override the Moore Board's decision on the Howard College project?

In a Texas Attorney General's opinion it is stated, "Any decision made by an Economic Development Board is subject to review and supervisory authority by the city council, and the city council may disapprove the action.'

Since the city council tabled the discussion of its authority regarding expenditures of Moore Board until its next meeting, perhaps it should add the decision on Hard College's request to its agenda.

awmakers push foster care bills in wake of child deaths

DALLAS (AP) — In the violent moments that led to her death, 6-year-old Katherine Frances never stood a chance.

She suffered a fatal brain injury, police say, when the 14-year-old bio-logical son of her suburban South Dallas foster parents repeatedly body slammed her.

Her death in DeSoto last year, linked by lawmakers to the recent deaths in foster homes of a 3-yearold girl in Arlington and a 1-year-old boy Corsicana, has prompted a new round of foster-care reform measures in the Legislature.

Two years after lawmakers overhauled and privatized the system, they are looking to redefine the rights of foster children and beef up the state Department of Family and Protective Services' management role. At least 13 children in foster care have died of abuse or neglect by foster caregivers since 2003, according to state figures.

"The oversight that should be taking place has broken down in our foster system," Sen. Jane Nelson said. "We have had some horrible, preventable tragedies."

Katherine died Dec. 5, after her foster brother slammed her to the ground several times, apparently upset that she had wet her bed, police said. The boy faces a murder charge.

His mother, Joyce Burks, faces a charge of injury to a child. She did not seek medical attention for Katherine for at least four hours, instead washing a comforter and pillow the girl vomited on suffering her injuries, police Capt. Ron Smith said.

The Department of Family and Protective

Services has blamed private agency Therapeutic Family Life for mismanaging Katherine's foster care. In a Dec. 21 letter to Therapeutic, a state licensing supervisor wrote that the company's mistakes "directly con-tributed to ... a foster child dying at the hands of that 14 year old."

A Jan. 22 letter to Therapeutic notified the company that state investigators in other cases had also found inadequate background criminal checks and "little to no support or training for foster parents" who spoke limited English. The state also found instances in which the company's mandatory reports on individual foster families had been cut and pasted from reports on other foster families.

The state has suspended placements into homes run by Therapeutic, said Patrick Crimmins, a spokesman for Department of Family and Protective Services.

a result As Katherine's death, lawmakers are calling for tougher state oversight and more rigorous background checks of foster families. Under current law, placement agencies must examine criminal backgrounds, but they don't have to check whether police have visited a home on disturbance calls.

Police had visited the DeSoto home 4 where Katherine died about four times on unrelated disturbance calls in the year before she was killed. Smith said.

Rep. Helen Giddings said she is drafting a bill that would require foster parents to disclose police visits. It would also create a database by which state workers could track police visits to foster homes, Giddings said.

In addition to better background checks, Nelson's bill broadens the authority of police to remove children from homes in which there are drugs. The current law allows police to turn children over to the state "no questions asked" when meth is involved, Nelson said. Her bill would add crack, cocaine and heroin to that list.

provision Another would require the state to make unannounced inspections each year of every foster home, Nelson said. Currently, state officials inspect about onethird of all foster homes each year.

"They will have them each year, if I can get the money and the budget," Nelson said. "We should never place a child with a family where we have any kind of cause for concern that it might not be a safe environment."

A bill, sponsored by Sen. Carlos Uresti and Rep. Eddie Rodriguez, would create a foster children bill of rights. That includes the right to an allowance, to attend religious services of the child's choosing and "to not be locked or otherwise confined in any room.'

Critics, while welcoming the attention being paid to foster care reform, say the lawmakers' efforts are belated.

"The state tends to be reactive instead of proactive," said Roy Block, president of the Texas Family Foster Association. "They never give these items attention until there is an issue and right now that's a child's death.'

Block said the biggest problem facing the state is a lack of resources.

Perry makes changes at TYC but stops short of takeover

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Rick Perry took important steps Friday toward overhauling the state's youth prison system where sex crimes were widely reported, but he stopped short of taking over the Texas Youth Commission as the Senate had demanded.

Instead, Perry appointed an outside investigator to figure out how complaints and investigations showing agency officials molested young inmates went unheeded for years.

He also ordered the commission's new acting executive director to work with state auditors on a rehabilitation plan that addresses problems the investigator

"We will develop a long-term plan that will rebuild this broken agency from the ground up and refocus it on its mission of rehabilitating young Texans," Perry said in a statement.

A recent discussion of the agency's budget drew attention to a 2005 Texas Rangers investigation that found the assistant superintendent and the principal at the West Texas State School in Pyote had repeated sexual contact with Lawmakers also recently learned of a later internal investigation that confirmed the findings and reported that top officials knew of the abuse but did nothing to stop it.

Three newspapers reported Friday that a commission investigation found that an employee sexually abused three girls at Ron Jackson State Juvenile Correctional Facility in Brownwood. The officer has not been charged.

A former inmate and former guard at the Brownwood facility said jail officials ignored their complaints about the problem in 2003 and 2004. But the facility's former superintendent said officials investigated and submitted their findings to police.

Outraged by the alleged abuse and cover-up, the Senate met in a rare evening session on Wednesday and passed a resolution aiming to persuade the governor to name a conservator for the agency.

But the governor had been reluctant to take such a drastic step that would essentially neuter the board he appointed. The Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse is the only state agency that has ever been put in a conservator-

Video appears to show uncle teaching nephews to smoke pot

WATAUGA (AP) — A 17-year-old faces a felony charge of injury to a child after police found a videotape that appears to show him and another man teaching his 2- and 5-year-old nephews to smoke marijuana, police said. The video shows two children being taught to smoke marijuana and the men encouraging them to "get high," police said. A man can be seen placing a marijuana cigarette into a baby's mouth and, in another part of the video, a different boy is shown smoking on his own.

"The video contains disturbing images of the young children being badgered into smoking a marijuana cigar, commonly referred to as a 'blunt,'" according to a release from the Watauga Department of Public Safety.

The bail for Demetris McCoy, 17, was set at $150,000. He remained in jail Friday night, police said.

Police found the video Feb. 22 while investigating McCoy and Vanswan Polty, 18, in connection with some area burglaries.

Astronaut charged in Florida with attempted kidnapping

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - Florida prosecutors charged an astronaut Friday with trying to kidnap a woman she saw as a rival for a space shuttle pilot's affections, but they declined to file an attempted murder charge that had been recommended by police.

Lisa Nowak, 43, was formally charged almost a month after she was arrested at an Orlando airport parking lot.

Police have said the Houston mother of three had raced 900 miles in her car from Texas to Orlando on Feb. 5 to confront the woman. She donned a wig and trench coat, then sprayed a chemical into the woman's car when she wouldn't let Nowak in, police said.

In addition to attempted kidnapping with intent to inflict bodily harm, state prosecutors charged Nowak on Friday with burglary with an assault using a weapon and battery.

A spokesman for Nowak's attorney declined to comment because he hadn't seen the charges. Nowak is free on bond with an ankle tracking device.

Nowak believed Colleen Shipman was romantically involved with Navy Cmdr. William Oefelein, a pilot during space shuttle Discovery's trip to the space station last December, according to police. After the confrontation, Shipman drove to a parking lot booth for help.

Associated Press Writer

SAN MARCOS (AP) Every so often, Scott Wade will drive his Mini Cooper up and down the rough, gravelly road near his Texas Hill Country

But Wade isn't taking pass after pass on the inhospitable road to test his shocks or for the thrill of the ride.

He needs the dust for art's sake.

Wade, with his scraggly graying hair and a fondness for shirts with wacky prints, doesn't wash his car when it first develops a fine coating of limestone dust. For the past four years he's created art on it instead.

self-proclaimed "dirty-car artist" uses typical tools such as brushes to "paint" surprisingly detailed works on the rear windshields of his Mini and Mazda.

But this isn't the "Wash me now!" or team mottos that grace dusty jalopies all across America. Wade has painted a good likeness of the Mona Lisa, superimposed over a replica of Van Gogh's "The Starry Night." Less high-fallutin' is his rendition of the black-velvet classic of dogs playing poker. Botticelli's "The Birth of Venus" is also represented in the dusty canvas of a car windshield.

Rather than applying paint or charcoal to his "canvas," Wade, 48, reveals the glass windshield and dark interior of the car by removing

"Every time they see a window, people can't resist," said Wade, who lives with his wife, Robin Wood, and daughter in the hills near San Marcos. "I've always drawn pictures on dirty windows."

But Wade's first drawings turned out simple and cartoon-like because he used his finger. Then he experimented one day with a frayed Popsicle stick and he realized he could get a whole range of gray tones to create more complex pieces.

"It wasn't a conscious decision to develop a new art form," he said. "It was just looking for art in everything.'

It takes about two weeks with little rain to develop what Wade calls a natural canvas, which has a layer of dust that doesn't blow away because it's caked

on with the help of morning mist. But if he feels a calling sooner, he spends some time driving in the car on the local roads to fill in the gaps. He can also coat the windshield with vegetable oil so dust sticks faster or apply a dust-like substance called pyrolite.

Most pieces take an hour or less, depending on the quality of the canvas. Even a natural canvas, which Wade considers the best, can get too thick and clumpy to work with if it's been baking in the sun for too long.

Wade periodically licks the end of his tools to get through the dust and take in what he's done so far. Wade, who is a graphical user interface designer by day, has also done an ode to late Texas Gov. Ann Richards and to his late collie mix, Drifter. "There's something about doing the dearly departed that's very appropriate," he said. "It reminds me that life passes us by very quickly and we have to enjoy it while it's here." Fans have even suggested that he offer up his services for funerals, using the ashes of someone who was cremated to create their likeness.

Wade estimates he's done 50 pieces so far. He rarely washes them off, preferring to let them fade naturally with the wind or rain. And he never tries to preserve them, except in photographs.

"You tend to keep wanting to fuss with it," Wade said. "Since it's temporary it doesn't have to be perfect. You don't have to belabor it."

Now Wade, who has a degree in art from Texas State University, is putting together a coffee table book and seeking out commercial work. He also sells a few prints from his Web site. He's already made appearances both locally and Texas State University art and design professor Brian Row, who taught Wade, said temporary art is legitimate.

"They're really transient art which, again, artists have done," Row said, citing performance art. "You experience it once and it's gone. ... It certainly falls within the range of the way artists work."

"The canvas is created as he drives down his driveway and then he works on it and then it gets washed off, it disappears. In some ways it's kind of like a snow storm, you can see beautiful scenes but it's a very transitory experience," he said.

Army Secretary Francis J. Harvey steps down amid probe into hospital scandal

WASHINGTON (AP) — It began with reports of mice and moldy plaster, but after two weeks of outrage, the scandal over poor conditions at Walter Reed Army Medical Center has claimed several careers — including the secretary of the Army's.

Secretary Francis J. Harvey's abrupt dismissal Friday came under withering criticism from Pentagon chief Robert Gates, who said the Army's response to the substandard conditions for the war-wounded was defensive, and not aggressive enough.

And it left the door open for more personnel changes, as investigations continue and Congress prepares for hearings next week.

Harvey's departure was the most dramatic move during two weeks of furor over the treatment of soldiers at one of the military's highest-profile and busiest medical facilities.

President Bush has ordered a comprehensive review of conditions at the nation's network of military and veteran hospitals, which has been overwhelmed by injured troops from the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Ohio college grieves after 4 school baseball players, 2 drivers, killed in Atlanta bus crash

BLUFFTON, Ohio (AP) — At a university smaller than some high schools, where many athletes live in the same dormitory, the deaths of four baseball players in a bus crash has left an entire campus feeling a profound sense of loss.

Football players from Bluffton University froze during a morning workout when they heard that the bus carrying the school's baseball team went off a highway overpass in Atlanta and fell 30 feet to the interstate below early Friday. They, and other students, scrambled to call baseball players' cell phones.

"It hits home harder than it would if it had happened at a bigger school," said Steve Rogers, an assistant football coach at the Mennonite-affiliated university of 1,155 students.

Sophomore Courtney Minnich said, that at a college as small as Bluffton, "even if you didn't know everybody, it will hurt, because you've seen them on campus."

Killed were freshman Scott Harmon of Lima; David Betts, a sophomore from Bryan; Cody Holp, a freshman from Arcanum; and sophomore Tyler Williams of Lima. The driver and his wife, Jerome and Jean Niemeyer, also died.

Bush tours twister damage in Alabama

ENTERPRISE, Ala. (AP) — President Bush got a birds-eye view Saturday of Alabama's tornado damage as his Marine One helicopter followed the deadly storm's path and flew over the battered high school where eight students died.

From the air, Bush got a panoramic look at the devastation across this town in Alabama's southeast corner. More than 30 tornadoes killed at least 20 people across the Midwest and Southeast on Thursday.

The helicopter tracked the Enterprise storm's estimated eight-mile path. Bush saw trees without tops, roofs pockmarked by holes and debris strewn everywhere. Next to some wrecked homes were others untouched by the tornado.

The town's white water tower — with the words "Enterprise, City of Progress" — stood tall. But nearby, Enterprise High School looked like a wrecking ball had struck it.

Anna Nicole buried in Bahamas

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Anna Nicole Smith — dressed in a designer gown, her coffin covered in a pink rhinestone-studded blanket — was buried in an extravagant funeral, but the fight over her baby and a potential large inheritance remains.

The reality TV star was mourned at a lavish memorial service Friday, with her companion Howard K. Stern, her mother Virgie Arthur and her former boyfriend Larry Birkhead — all battling for custody of her 5-month-old Dannielynn — in attendance her 5-month-old Dannielynn — in attendance.

Smith's mahogany coffin, topped by the pink blanket with rhinestones spelling out her name, was carried into Mount Horeb Baptist Church as hundreds of tourists and fans watched from behind steel barricades guarded by police. Some in the crowd cried out "Anna! Anna! We love you!"

15 deaths reported in Midwest

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Fierce wind blew snow across roads and stranded hundreds of drivers on Midwestern highways Friday, as thousands shivered without power and airlines were forced to call off hundreds of flights.

At least 15 storm-related deaths have been reported since the snow began falling Wednesday, including a 10-year-old Wisconsin boy who died Friday in a car accident.

The storm left more than a foot of snow in some areas Friday. Even as the flakes stopped falling by afternoon, gusts of 40 mph prompted blizzard warnings and prevented major highways from reopening.

Officials at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport canceled 500 flights, blaming bad weather elsewhere.

Bearkats strong down stretch in regionals wir By JOHN A. MOSELEY

FORT WORTH - Garden City's Bearkats kept their playoff string intact Friday, breaking open a tight contest in the final five minutes to take a 58-51 win over Roby and advance into the Class 1A, Division II Regional Tournament finals.

The Bearkats and Lions were deadlocked at 43-all when Garden City began to pull away down the stretch, Colton Schwartz knocked down a shot to make it 45-43 and Bo Eggemeyer added another to make it 49-43. That's when Taylor Niehues, the Bearkats' leading scorer on the season, added two of his gamehigh 23 points to make it a 49-43

From there it was just a matter of mopping up. Evan Jansa hit a pair of free throws with 59 seconds remaining for a 51-46 Garden City lead and Niehues added a shot to keep the lead "almost comfortable" at 54-48 with 32 ticks remaining on the Garden City now advances to the Region II tournament final where were slated to face Rankin's Red Devils, who advanced to the finals with a 51-48 win over Rule, in a 3 p.m. Saturday showdown. Results from that game were not available as the Herald went to press Saturday afternoon.

The winner advances to next week's UIL State Basketball Tournament at the Frank Erwin Center on the campus of The University of Texas at Austin.

At the outset of Friday's game, it looked as if the Bearkats were going to have their way, as they jumped out to a 9-2 lead.

Roby, however, had other thoughts and went on a wild 21-2

The Lady Kats never led by more than three in the game but were ahead when it counted most when K'Lann Niehues scored off an offensive rebound with two seconds left to give Garden City a 37-35 victory and a chance to play in Saturday night's state final against perhaps the most storied girls' basketball team in Texas - Nazareth's Swiftettes (30-5).

Coahoma's Bulldogs Stanton's Buffaloes were well represented when District 5-2A boys' basketball coaches gathered to select their all-district team at the close of the regular season.

Not surprisingly, Coahoma took home the lion's share of the individual awards, as senior Jason Gonzales, a 5-foot-9 guard, was named the league's Most Valuable Player Award winner, and Colter Morgan, a 6-foot-7 junior, was picked as the district's Defensive MVP.

In addition, veteran Bulldogs coach Kim Nichols was picked by his peers for Coach of the Year honors.

Anson's Michael Rosson, a 6foot-1 sophomore, was selected as the district's top newcomer.

Coaoma's Stephen Ewing earned first-team accolades, the 6-foot-2 senior, joining a trio of Stanton players — 6-foot-5 senior Jarron Sparks, 5-10 senior Mike Carmona and 6-foot-2 junior Garrett Fulton — on that squad. Rounding out the first team were Haskell's D.J. McCulloch and John English, Hawley's Brenden Bounds and Justin Bristow, Merkel's Brandon Mounts and Kenny Dye and Stamford's Jeffrey Lisle.

Coahoma seniors Blaine Kerby and Curt Lang earned secondteam honors, as did Stanton junior Chase Pinkerton.

Turnovers plagued the Lady Kats all evening, including the first quarter, where Garden City saw a three-point lead turn into a 9-5 deficit after eight minutes of play.

"We were wound so tight," Lady Kats head coach Brent Kirkland said of the scary start. "It was ou first time being here ... country girls in the city. I think we were getting frustrated."

Kennard continued to add to the lead in the second quarter, using an 11-5 run to build a 20-10 edge.

The Lady Kats finally came to life with a minute to play in the first half when Erin Hirt nailed back-to-back jumpers and Niehues knocked down a pair of free throws to cut the Kennard lead to four over.

at halftime, 20-16. Hirt cut the lead to one with a three to open the second half before Lauren Plagens gave the Lady Kats their first lead since the first quarter with a put-back basket.

Tiffany Adair answered with a jumper to put Kennard back in the lead and a back-and-forth struggle followed.

Hirt gave Garden City back the lead with layup but Erica Adair answered for the Lady Tigers.

Another Hirt jumper put the Lady Kats up 25-24 but Erica Adair banked a shot off the glass to give the lead back to Kennard with 4:40 to play in the third quarter.

The teams continued to trade baskets for the remainder of the quarter as Kennard took a slim 30-29 lead into the fourth.

Kennard used a stall offense to use up clock early in the fourth and a jumper by Tiffany Adair pushed the Lady Tiger lead to 35-31 with 2:20 to play.

Then the Lady Kats took

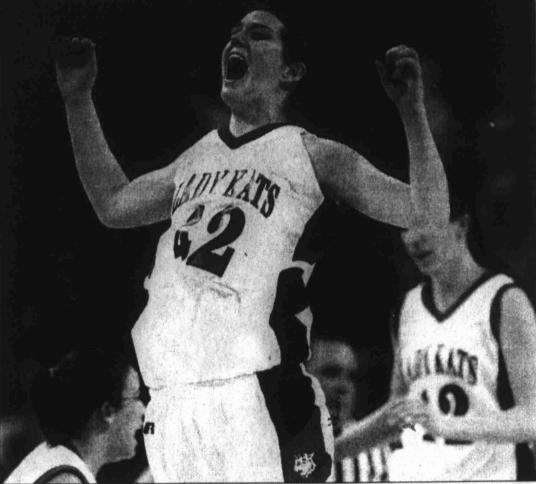

Plagens cut the lead to two with a shot off the glass and Niehues tied the game on a back-door layup with 1:55 to play.

Kennard stalled once again in an attempt to get the final shot but could not score, leaving the door open for the Lady Kats. Niehues' shot put the

Rockwall to face CyFair in Class 5A girls' title game

AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN Shelby Adamson scored 15 points and Rockwall advanced to its second straight Class 5A championship game with a 54-46 win over Mansfield Summit on Friday night.

Rockwall led by 17 going into the fourth quarter and was cruising to an easy win until Summit staged a furious rally to get within six before faltering down the stretch.

Haley Day added 15 points for Rockwall (39-0) in a rugged battle with Summit's Shayln Martin under the basket. Martin scored 17 and Tamara Simmons scored 16 to lead Summit (33-6).

Rockwall lost in the championship last season. Its return sets up a clash of Texas and national titans in Saturday's game against Cypress Fairbanks (39-0), which won its semifinal San Antonio Churchill by 31. Rockwall and Cypress Fairbanks are ranked No. 3 and No. 5 in the nation respectively by USA Today.

The winner of the title game will join Dallas South Oak Cliff (1980) and Duncanville (1997) as the only state champions to go 40-0. There have been 15 undefeated state champions, but only those two had won 40 games in a season before Saturday.

stunned Summit Rockwall with a fast start as Tamara Simmons opened the game with a 3and Starr pointer Crawford hit two quick buckets inside.

When Simmons hit another 3, this time from the left corner, Rockwall. which had blazed through four playoff wins by an average of 27 points, suddenly found itself down 13-3 in the first quarter.

The Yellowjackets finally slowed Summit with fullcourt pressure defense that forced misfired passed and bad decisions.

Genevieve Campbell hit a 3-pointer, Sunny Satery hit two more and Adamson made consecutive layups after turnovers in a 23-6 run to halftime that put 26-23. Rockwall up Summit's only basket of the second quarter came on Simmons' third 3pointer.

It was more of the same in the third quarter.

Day hit two running bank shots, then swished a 3-pointer from the left wing. Slatery hit another 3-pointer and Day split the lane for another tough break with a layup. Rockwall led 48-31 going into the fourth.

The Yellowjackets needed the cushion. Summit started using its own pressure defense to force the pace of the game and got Day and Genevieve Campbell to foul out.

With those two out, Rockwell started throwing the ball away, committing five straight turnovers in one stretch.

Rockwell went six minutes without scoring as Summit trimmed the lead to 48-42 before Adamson hit a layup, made two free throws and got a critical rebound on a missed 3pointer that finally snuffed the rally.

Cypress Fairbanks 77, San Antonio Churchill 46

Sisters Chiney and Nneka Ogwumike combined for 38 points and 20 rebounds to power Cypress Fairbanks past San Antonio Churchill 77-46 Friday in the Class 5A semifinals.

Chiney, a freshman, scored 23 points, and the second half in foul trouble. Each grabbed 10 rebounds.

Nicole Morris and Meghan Daniel each scored 12, hitting all six of their 3-point attempts for Cypress Fairbanks (39-0), which came into its first state tournament ranked No. 5 in country by USA Today.

The Bobcats outscored Churchill 22-6 in the second quarter and led by more than 20 the entire second half. Sammy Katz scored 12 to lead Churchill (38-3).

It was clear Churchill was in for a long after-Nneka noon when Ogwumike, rated as the No. 4 junior forward by some recruiting services, powered through the lane twice in the opening minutes for baskets.

Churchill's Christine Flores, at 6-foot-2 center with long arms, couldn't stay with either of the Ogwumike sisters, who shouldered past defenders on the left and right. Carli Bakondy drilled a 3-pointer and Nneka Ogwumike the end of the first.

Fairbanks broke the game wide open in the second.

Nneka Ogwumike opened the quarter with a 3-point play when she took the ball in the post, took one pivot step and pushed Flores aside for the basket. Morris hit a 3pointer and Nneka Ogwumike again muscled through the defense for another basket. She had points and nine rebounds in the first half.

Morris hit another 3pointer and the rout was on. Watching the deficit get larger by the minute, Churchill began a desperate attempt to close the gap by firing wild passes that led to 15 first half turnovers. Fairbanks turned them into 20 points and led 39-16 at halftime.

With her sister sitting on the bench with four fouls, Chiney Ogwumike scored eight points in the quarter. After their disastrous second quarter, Churchill matched Fairbanks with 18 points shot before Samantha Nneka, a junior, scored 15 swatted a Churchill shot in the third but couldn't Shaw finished a fast despite spending much of as the Bobcats led 17-10 at stop Ogwumike from gobbling up rebounds for putbacks and couldn't begin to close the gap.

Nazareth 51, Calvert 30

Heidi Ramaekers set a state tournament record with seven 3-pointers, leading perennial smallschool power Nazareth to a 51-30 win over Calvert in the Class 1A Division II semifinals Friday.

Ramaekers finished with 28 points, including 7-of 11 shooting from 3point range. She broke the tournament record of six 3-pointers in all classes set by six players, most recently by Nicole Dunson of Corpus Christi Carroll . in 1999. Ramaekers' last came with 2:39 to play and made it 47-30.

Nazareth (30-5) moves on to Saturday's Division II final, where the Swiftettes will play for a national record 18th state championship in their 22nd tournament appearance.

"Hopefully I'll have more for tomorrow," said Ramaekers, who hit 10 3pointers in a game earlier this season. "I didn't come here to set a record, but it's nice to put the Nazareth name on it."

Daronisha Wallace scored 11 to lead Calvert (27-3) in its first state tournament.

The Trojans kept it close early but soon lost track of Ramaekers on the perimeter, who seemed to be able to pick her shots.

She hit three 3-pointers from the wings in the second quarter as the Swiftettes took a 23-10 lead. Her fourth made it 34-14 in the third.

Calvert got it as close as 13 in the fourth before Ramaekers ended any threat of a rally with her last two 3-pointers. Calvert starting ripping off 3-point attempts of its own in a desperate bid to rally but went 0-for-14.

Ramaekers had 10 field goals, one more than the rest of her team.

Winnsboro, which blew

a 14-point lead in the fourth quarter of a 3A semifinal loss in 2005, nearly did it again as Panhandle hit two 3-pointers in the final minute and tied it at 52 when Kara Looton hit one of two free throws.

After Looton missed the second free throw, Morton, who has signed to play at Houston, raced upcourt and drove the lane to draw a foul. She missed her first free throw but made the second for the lead.

Panhandle (26-8) tried to set up a game-winning shot and got the ball to 5foot-8 Katherine Gray near the basket. But the 6-2 Taskila stood tall in the lane and easily swatted the shot, essentially just grabbing it away and kicking it out to Morton.

Poth 62, Hughes Springs 51

Whitney Wehmeyer scored 22 points and Poth used a late burst in the fourth quarter to pull away from Hughes Springs for a 62-51 win Friday in the Class 2A semifinals.

Poth (31-5) led 48-40 when Hughes Springs rallied behind two 3-pointers by Brittany Roberson and Rikki Smith to get within Poth quickly three. snuffed the rally when Lauren Waclawczyk popped a 3-pointer from the left wing then fed Wehmeyer with a long outlet pass for a breakaway layup that made it Poth then did the rest of its scoring from the free throw line, hitting eight of 10 over the final 1:56. Poth went 19-of-24 from the line for the game.

Hughes Springs (30-6) got to the line just five times and committed 17 turnovers, which Poth turned into 24 points.

Wehmeyer, who scored 17 in a 49-46 semifinal loss to Canadian last season, was 6-of-16 from the field and hit all eight of her free throws.

Poth, which shot just 25 percent in falling behind 25-21 at halftime, improved to 54 percent in the second half.

Roberson scored 22 to lead Hughes Springs. Kasey Harlos scored 14 for Poth.

"We were up 9-2 there early and things were just exactly the way we wanted them and the next thing you know, it's 23-11 in their favor," Bearkats head coach Koby Abney said. "It's not like we weren't playing good defense. In fact, we were forcing them to take some pretty tough shots ... they were just getting them to fall.

"We just kept telling the kids to stay focused ... that people aren't going to be able to keep that up for the entire game, that it would even out and it did," Abney added..

The Bearkats stayed within striking distance and entered the final period of the game with the score tied at 36-36.

As has been the case all season for the Bearkats, Niehues and Schwartz led the way from the field. Niehues not only led Garden City in scoring, but in rebounding as well. In addition to his 23 points, he pulled down six rebounds and had three steals. Schwartz added 18 points and three rebounds.

Evan Jansa and Eggemeyer had six points apiece in the win — all of Jansa's coming in the final period — while Wade Jansa added three and Jason Flores chipped in two more.

"You've got to give a lot of credit to Colton and Evan Jansa in this one," Abney noted. "Evan went to the line twice and nailed four free throws that kept them from being able to cut into our lead down the stretch. And Colton had an awesome game. He scored a career high 18 points and played great defense against one of their best people. that was important.

"It's been that way for us throughout the playoffs," Abney added. "Every game we've had one player that's stepped up and performed better than our opponents could have expected. In this one, it was Colton."

Caesar's Corner

Culinary legend ascribes creation of the cherished classic, Caesar salad, to Italian chef Caesar Cardini, who owned a restaurant in Tijuana. Mexico in the 1920s. As the story goes, Chef Cardini found himself with just a few odd ingredients (the requisite romaine, pantry standards Worcestershire and canned anchovies, a lemon, a piece of Parmesan and stale bread) and unexpected guests he needed to serve. Truth or myth, the rest of the salad story is history. And we love variations on this classic Caesar theme — topped with grilled chicken, shrimp, bacon and other cheeses. - teaspoons anchovy paste
- teaspoon grated lemon rind teaspoon lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

Heat broiler or grill. Meanwhile, in small bowl stir together butter, anchovy paste, lemon rind, lemon juice and pepper; cover and chill. Broil or grill steak to desired doneness. Garnish each serving of steak with a dollop of chilled butter; cover and refrigerate leftover butter.

he goes down. Presenting declarers with such guesses is part of the strategy of defense, and any defender who misses such opportunities is selling himself short.

This having been said, however, the fact is that if declarer plays correctly, he makes the contract regardless of how the diamonds are divided. All he has to do is to lead the four of diamonds to dummy's eight at trick two. This guarantees at least two diamond tricks against any lie of the cards.

If the eight wins, a low diamond to the queen produces a second dia-mond trick. If the eight loses to the jack, South later overtakes his queen with the king to assure two diamond tricks.

Contest will honor heroic veterinarians

By STEVE DALE

McClatchy-Tribune News

LAS VEGAS, N.V. - The Morris Animal Foundation (a not-for-profit funding humane health studies to advance veterinary medicine) and Merial (an animal health pharmaceutical company) announced at the Western Veterinary Conference contest to honor veterinarians. At a luncheon Feb. 20, Dr. Patricia Olson, president and CEO of the Morris Animal Foundation, said, "Vets are on the front lines, and recognition is long overdue."

According to a 2006 Gallup Poll, veterinarians ranked only a nose behind nurses and pharethical professionals.

"We help animals and in doing so we help families," said Dr. Janet Donlin, assistant executive vice president of the American Veterinary Medical based Association, Schaumburg, Ill. That's true, but what makes vets special is their unselfish way of going without fanfare.

Dr. Greg Hammer, of Dover, Del., president-elect of the American Veterinary Medical Association, just returned from a trip to New Orleans. "I can tell you so many heroic stories of veterinarians who risked their own lives rescuing pets and (during that they are co-sponsoring a macists as the most honest and about it - and almost always Hurricane Katrina) that never made the papers," he commented. "One example is an equine veterinarian who went into flooded pastures to scan dead horses for microchips to determine if any belonged to her clients. She climbed over alligators to do this."

As its new line hits store shelves, El Segundo, Calif.based Mattel is trying to combine two of its best sellers — dolls and cars.

The company recently introduced its initial collection of 25 Polly Wheels cars driven by its Polly Pocket dolls - at the American International Toy Fair in New York.

Tumbleweed receives an international award for video

Herald Staff Report

Syndicated newspaper columnist and radio feature artist Tumbleweed Smith has won an international award for a video documentary he produced for the National Ranching

Heritage Center. This was Smith's first entry of a video production in any contest although over a span of 10 years he has produced, "20 to 25 mostly as a hobby," he said. "The first one I did was the balloon fiesta Albuquerque and it turned out pretty well."

His affiliation with the Ranching Heritage Center led him to create a documentary on John Merrill.

"I did that one and it was wellreceived," said Smith. "I was thrilled when they asked me to do another one and a lot of people liked it too so I thought I would give it a try."

The documentary, titled "Helenita," is a tribute to Helen Kleberg Groves of King Ranch.

She is the great-granddaughter of Richard King, who founded the world famous ranch.

The video was shown at the Ranching Heritage Center's annual Golden Spur Award event in Lubbock, which recognizes people who have contributed greatly to the ranching industry.

The documentary earned an Award of Distinction from the Communicator Awards, an international awards competition that recognizes outstanding work in the communication field. Entries are judged by industry professionals who look for companies and individuals whose talent exceeds a high standard of excellence and whose work serves as a benchmark for the industry. The Award of Distinction is awarded for projects that exceed industry standards in production or communication skills.

For Smith, winning the award was icing on the cake for doing something he loves to do.

"I'm getting paid for it now, which is really nice," Smith beamed. "I was extremely pleased to do the first one and really worked hard on it. It has been a pleasure to work for such a fine organitoday's doll-playing set — and the parents who shop for them will want them.

One expert in gender and development, who has studied how boys and girls choose toys, sees promise in the idea.

By adding the doll and using themes such as taking a trip to the mall. Mattel introduces a social dimension to the Polly Wheels race cars that is more likely to appeal to girls, said psychologist Gerianne M. Alexander, an associate professor at Texas A&M University.

Studies have shown that as many as 40 percent of women recall playing with toy cars and trucks, she said.

"They would have a harder time selling baby dolls to boys,' Alexander said of Mattel's marketers. "Girls are more receptive and more interested in these nongender-typical things."

Elissa Barnes of Los Angeles said her two daughters - particularly her 5 1/2-year-old Polly fan - might be interested in the cars as accessories for their

Still, she said she didn't think Polly Wheels would have the same staying power as a collectible that Matchbox has had with her son.

"They'll play with it as long as they're into Polly Pocket, but I don't think it will go on longer than that," said Barnes, 37. "You always feel bad making the stereotypes, but boys and girls play differently."

The idea wasn't appealing to Los Angeles resident Carolyn Mahboubi, 39, who works in the luxury goods industry and has a 7-year-old daughter and a 5-year-old son.

"It's almost a cliched femininity, sparkling and smelling and pink and going to the mall," Mahboubi said.

"That's not part of our lifestyle.

Despite such skeptics, Mattel seems to have history on its

Girls for decades have played with bigger cars that could accommodate Mattel's iconic Barbie and other dolls, snapping up pink convertibles, music-blaring limos and floweradorned recreational vehicles.

And every year, $200-plus Barbie-themed ride-on cars are among that category's best sell-

Although many women recall playing with Matchbox cars, mostly borrowed from their brothers and friends, the small metal racers modeled on real cars weren't made with a girl user in mind.

That all changes with the new Polly cars, which are not your brother's Matchboxes: In addition to their candy colors, they also come with tiny removable Polly Pocket dolls, and frosted plastic covers the metal chas-

In the fall, Mattel will follow up with 25 more Polly cars, each with a color-coordinated scent: blueberry for blue, grape for purple and so on.

Then, in time for the holi days, Mattel, which also makes Hot Wheels, plans the ultimate melding of traditional boys' and girls' play with a track set for the Polly cars called Race to the

The winner of the game, the first car to make it up the shopping center's elevator to a boutique, is rewarded with a magnetic shopping bag that "jumps" into the car.

Mattel said the track-set theme, as well as the cars themselves, were ideas that came from girls. "Girls were the ones who gravitated to this," said Chuck Scothon, general manager of Mattel's girls division. "Sometimes the best ideas are the simplest ideas."

CONTEST

Dr. Kevin Fitzgerald, of Planet's Animal "Emergency Vets," added, "I can tell you about heroic efforts right here in Colorado (Fitzgerald prac-Denver). tices in Veterinarians participated in saving livestock when we were overwhelmed by early snowstorms this winter. But it's also the little things. I know one vet student who paid for a service dog out of his own pocket because the person in need was on disability. That's quite amazing; vet students, after all, have their own loans to pay off. Or how about the vet who cares for a classroom gerbil. and pays for that care because he feels the teacher shouldn't have to. I could go on forever. I am so proud to be a part of this profession.'

There's something unique about veterinarians, said Dr. Bob Menardi, technical marketing manager-companion animal enterprise at Merial, Duluth, Ga. "The old adage is that if your car or truck is ever broken down in a small town, you'll have more luck being rescued by a veterinarian than the auto club - and most certainly if you happen to be traveling with a dog."

All small-animal veterinarians in private practice have received thank you notes and gifts after euthanizing a pet. "It's because we're able to compassionately end suffering with dignity," said Hammer. "It's tough on us sometimes; ending a life is not fun. I saw clients through three euthanasias today. But I also consider ending suffering a privilege."

"People who have pets in their lives are special people," added Donlin. "Veterinarians are extremely fortunate to be able to work closely with them to be sure their animal companions receive the best care possible."

To nominate a candidate for the vet appreciation contest, go to www.thankyourvet.org. Every veterinarian nominated will receive a certificate of appreciation. There will be four regional winners and one Grand Prize, a $5,000 research scholarship from the Morris Animal Foundation toward a research project.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

BY HOLIDAY MATHIS On this day after the total lunar eclipse, you may feel somewhat spent - as though all your ideas and energy got zapped up in the flurry of last night's excitement. So rest. Your relaxation may include pondering the meaning of it all. By the end of the day, you'll come up with one important new rule you'd like to implement immediately.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Blame is an insidious thief, robbing the blamer of the growth opportunity he or she would incur by making the choice of perresponsibility. sonal When "Blame" rears his head, stamp him down.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You'll happen onto information that you weren't supposed know. There was a time when eavesdropping was a crime. But your only punishment now will be having to decide what to do with this information.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Relationships require fun and whimsy in order to flourish, and you are a seasoned expert in the field of fun and whimsy. But sometimes you forget to use it. This is a good time not to forget.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Being afraid to lose makes you less effective. Know what you're afraid to lose, and come to terms with it. When you realize you can survive and even thrive after a loss, you're more able to keep what you have.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). It's an upside-down day. The crazy things are true. The true things are crazy. Anything that seems sane and false is suspect. Sort VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You're feeling a bit stifled, which makes it a good day to push your luck. Ride the edge of normalcy. Do something outrageous. If it doesn't work, do something else outrageous.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). The outcome is only glorious if it was fun to make the effort in the first place. Knowing what feels authentic and doing only that will lead to success in love, in finance and in general.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Spiritual lessons come in the most mundane circumstances perhaps having to do with the way the laundry turns out or the lawn gets mowed. You're openminded and you accept the gift.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You're observant, but also imaginative. You're willing to see things as they are — but also as they could be. Warning: Don't fall in love with someone's potential.

FORECAST FOR THE

WEEK AHEAD: The sun's annual transit through Pisces is like the sounding of the bell tower. It heralds a celebratory event, declares it's time to pray or simply honors the hour of the day. For whatever reason it rings, its resonation means the same thing — be conscious of now, now, now. This moment will never return, and yet "now" is an eternal state. Each astrological sign has its own way of leading us back to the moment. Aries' is through action. Taurus' is through appetite. Gemini's is through communication. Pisces' way feels profound because it's through spiritual alignment. Pisces is the enlightened master on the hill, the sensei, the Yoda who urges us to "use the force." As we are now in the thrust of the Pisces solar transit, it's a wonderful week to ask yourself how your own spiritual journey is going. But if the idea of dealing in this unseen realm makes you uncomfortable, know that you can get spiritual benefit from practical action. Roller-skating. Laughing. Playing pattycake with a baby. Cooking for your family. Singing to yourself in the car. Extending kindness to someone you don't know. Dreaming luscious dreams. Gazing hopefully PISCES (Feb. 19-March into the night sky.

Annie's Mailbox .: Advice for those in need

Dear Annie: I am a 27year-old mother, and I have a nephew, by marriage, who is 24. We'll call him "Brandon." He is a wonderful person with two small children.

The problem is, Brandon lives 40 minutes away, and every time he visits, his 3-year-old child is sitting in his lap in the car — in the driver's seat. I've never seen either of the children buckled in. His live-in girlfriend, who is the mother of these children, usually holds the younger one in her lap.

I don't understand how they cannot see the harm in this. It only takes one little accident and the children would be dead. I've told Brandon that he must put them in car seats and buckle them up, but he doesn't listen. They do have a car seat for the baby, but it's not strapped into the vehicle, so what good is that?

How can I protect my great-niece and great-nephew? I'm infuriated and scared to death at the same time. I know they would never forgive themselves if their children were hurt when it could have been prevented. Please help. — Angry Auntie in Kentucky

Dear Angry Auntie: We are shocked by your nephew's lack of interest in his children's welfare. He is not only foolish but guilty of child endangerment. It is not safe for Dad to hold a child on his lap while driving, even if Dad is belted in. In even a minor crash, the child would be crushed between Dad and the steering wheel. It is not safe for Mom to hold a child on her lap, either, because at impact, that child could be crushed or thrown.

According to the National Safety Belt Coalition, even after the child's body comes to a complete stop, their internal organs are still moving forward. This can cause serious or fatal injuries. If this information doesn't wake up your nephew, we'd report him to the police the next time he drives off. Better angry than grieving.

Dear Annie: I just started high school, and my brother is in kindergarten. I have calmly and maturely tried to convince my parents to let our family get a dog, but they just say, "Not yet."

Several years ago, we had to put both of our cats to sleep, and since then, we have only owned pond fish. My parents constantly remind me that pets interfere with traveling, they can be expensive and that our family is not ready to be responsible for an animal. I have stated that I would be able to handle a lot of responsibility in caring for the dog, but still Mom and Dad have told me to wait.

How can I prove to my parents that our time as a family together is slipping away, and sooner is better than later to get a dog? — Lonely Teen Lacking a Dog

Dear Teen: We suspect your parents worry that your enthusiasm will wear off after a few weeks and they will be stuck walking the dog in the early hours of a cold morning. We think dogs are great, so ask your grandparents, uncles, aunts and family friends to intercede for you, but ultimately it's your parents' decision.

Dear Annie: I read the letter from "Confused in California," who thinks her husband may be gay. You told her to get checked for STDs, "just in case he's been playing both sides of the fence."

If the man or woman were only playing one side of the fence, would you tell the person to get checked for STDs? The subtext to your message seems to be that only gay men have STDs. — Jamaica Plain, Mass.

Dear Jamaica Plain: You weren't the only reader angry with us over this, and the misunderstanding is entirely our fault. We wanted the wife to know her husband was probably gay, but obviously, you can get STDs no matter which side of the fence you are on. Here's what we should have said: Get checked for STDs, in case your husband is cheating. Period.

Dear Annie: I have never seen you address adult children abandoning their parents.

Our son, "Jay," with no warning, confronted my husband and me about resentments that had been building for years. We had simply attributed his sudden remoteness to the fact that he worked six days a week and lived several hundred miles away. We were blown away by his comments. What's worse is that after we talked, he came back a month later and confided that the real source of his complaints was that his older brother had abused him in childhood.

This was the most devastating news anyone could hear. I have literally lost weight over it. The fact that his older brother is a cancer survivor did nothing to mitigate Jay's resentment. Jay refuses to talk to his brother, or respond to our many attempts to contact him. He even ignored his own grandmother's funeral last summer.

What really galls me is that we are the kind of family that often spoke of love and sincerity. We settled disputes fairly. The kids had a wonderful upbringing. I cannot fathom how Jay's counselor could recommend that he throw this firebomb and then drive away. How on earth can a counselor advise a client to follow a path that will surely split a family? How can we mend our broken hearts and bond the two brothers again? -- Lost and Bereaved in Connecticut

Dear Lost and Bereaved: We know this is difficult, but we'd worry less about bonding the two brothers and more about Jay's healing. He was abused. He needs his brother to make amends for doing it and his parents for not protecting him, whether or not you were consciously aware of the abuse. No reconciliation can take place until those things happen. If Jay won't allow contact, you should seek family counseling and find out what steps will help you achieve some measure of peace.

Dear Annie: I have a problem with my sister, "Jo." She wants to date my ex-boyfriend, "Roger," whom I dated 15 years ago. I'm not comfortable with this and told her so. Roger was more than a boyfriend. We were an item for five years. He was my first everything, and I was very much in love with him. I ended the relationship because I caught him cheating on me (more than once). But I still have a soft spot in my heart for him and always will.

I've been married for 12 years. Jo says I am being ridiculous and need to get over it. Who is wrong? I think it is pretty disrespectful and gross. Should I let her date him, or should I set my foot down? -- Sally

Dear Sally: There's no foot to put down. It's Jo's decision whether or not to date Roger, not yours, although she should understand that such a choice may estrange her from you and we don't recommend it. However, we do agree with Jo that it's time you got over it. A happily married woman should not be carrying a torch for a guy she broke up with 15 years ago.

Dear Annie: My mom is 83 and in a long-term care residence. She recently said to me, "I cannot believe no one else takes the time to call or visit me. It would be so wonderful to have visitors to break up the monotony of being in this place."

Just because someone is in a care facility doesn't mean they have stopped living. Where are the brothers, sisters, cousins, nieces, nephews, friends and neighbors? My mother always helped others over the years. Where are people now? Perhaps if we get in the habit of visiting those less fortunate, when it is our turn, others will visit us, too. -- A Sad Daughter

Dear Daughter: Most people have no idea how much a short visit or call can mean to someone in a care facility. Please, readers, pick up the phone or drop by and interrupt the monotony. You won't regret it.

for the agency who heads the SEC practice at Porter Wright Morris & Arthur in Washington, D.C.

Insider trading typically involves someone with advance knowledge of an event that would influence the financial markets — such as an analyst recommendation or a corporate acquisition — trading ahead of the public release of that information. The gains these insiders usually reap come at the expense of investors who didn't have the same knowledge.

The emergence of hedge funds as a major force on Wall Street has added a new dimension to an old scam.

Early this year, the SEC opened an investigation into whether stock brokerages were supplying hedge funds with advance notice of customer orders for big trades. The hedge funds are suspected of buying or selling shares ahead of these orders and repaying their tipsters by steering trading business their way.

In the case disclosed Thursday, the SEC brought civil charges against 11 people, two hedge funds and a daytrading firm. The U.S. attorney's office in New York lodged criminal charges against 10 of those people and three

News of the insider-trading charges rippled through Wall Street investment firms.

"Any time you have something that taints the industry, it's a topic of conversation," said George Rodriguez, a managing director TradeTrek Securities, an institutional brokerage firm in Newark, N.J.

Holly A. Stark, a veteran trader now working as a consultant, said traders "have been talking for ages" about suspicious price movements in stocks ahead of significant news.

"There's always been a sneaking suspicion that there's information leakage," she said. "It's like, These guys are just not that smart.' "

In the UBS case,

Guttenberg, 41, Manhattan, and Franklin, 39, of Denville, N.J., concocted an elaborate scheme to trade on information available to Guttenberg, authorities said. Guttenberg was a manager in UBS' stock research department and sat on a committee that held daily meetings to review analyst recommendations, according to charges brought by the SEC and the U.S. attorney's office.

Their meeting at the Oyster Bar, a seafood eatery in Grand Central Station, took place in November 2001, just weeks after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks.

After Franklin recouped his $25,000, the two men shared the trading profits, with Franklin giving Guttenberg cash, according to the SEC's complaint, which was filed in U.S. District Court in Manhattan.

He routinely tipped off Franklin to pending ratings changes on stocks such as Amgen Corp., Whole Foods Market Inc. and Union Pacific Corp., the SEC said.

Franklin then used this information to illegally trade securities for himself and two hedge funds he managed — Q Capital Investment Partners and Lyford Cay Capital, a hedge fund at Bear Stearns Cos., the SEC said.

Franklin also provided information to Mark E. Lenowitz, authorities said, who used it to make illegal trades for himself and a hedge fund he managed, DSJ International Resources.

Q Capital and DSJ were included in the charges, but Lyford Cay was not accused of wrongdoing.

UBS said in a statement that it "is assisting the authorities to the fullest extent possible in their investigation into the alleged actions of a single UBS employee," adding that the U.S. attorney "has described UBS as a scheme. Other people learned of the illicit trading as the scheme progressed and tried to profit themselves.

Robert Babcock, a Bear Stearns broker who processed Franklin's trades, began monitoring and secretly mimicking many of Franklin's trades, according to the SEC. Two other Bear

Stearns brokers did the

"The actions described in the complaint are clear violations of our policies and procedures," Bear Stearns spokesman Russell Sherman said Thursday. "We have and will continue to cooperate fully with the investigation."

When Guttenberg passed tips to another friend, David Tavdy, his trades were secretly mirrored by David Glass, the owner of the day-trading firm where Tavdy did business, the SEC said. Glass and Tavdy later teamed up in their trad-

'Flushed' is swirling fun on l et's get one thing straight from the very start. I'm a huge fan of the Marvel Comics Wolverine character, comic books, action figures and subsequent cartoons and spinoffs - even the little, stubby action figure bobblehead things of late.

I am not, however, a fan of Hugh Jackman.

While the Aussie actor may have brought the Wolverine character to life in the silver screen version of "The X-Men," his dry, lackluster performances leave more than a few things to be desired. Even a topless Halle Berry couldn't save him in "Swordfish," and

Thomas Jenkins

'The Prestige" remains sitting on my entertainment center, unopened.

With all of that in mind, it's sort of hard for me to understand why "Flushed Away." the Aardman Animation offering with ladle after ladle of pure Brit humor poured on, was so much fun to watch.

The film was genuine fun.

Aardman takes a giant leap towards the future with the film, their first fully CG-animated film, and while they do try to keep the low-tech vibe alive in the picture, it only distracts from the fun and sheer velocity of the movie

Aardman Animation has made a name for itself through its retro, yet pioneering usage of stop-motion animation. Just last year came the delightful "Curse of the Were-Rabbit" feature film that delivered big on both laughs and visual majesty, while also being the rare, clever family film that wasn't a complete drag to sit through.

Using a program that replicates the jittery movement of stop-motion, it seems pointless for the filmmakers to even try and pass itself off as a faux Plastacine creation, especially when the rest of the movie shimmers with traditional CG smoothness and precision. Everything looks Aardman, from the big gumball eyes to the English overbites, but it has a hightech touch to it that doesn't digest right when trying to replicate a very unsophisticated process of anima-

Shane Richie ("Silent Soul"), a loutish, soccerloving thug. In an ill-fated scheme to get rid of Sid, Roddy tries to convince his unwanted flatmate that the toilet is actually a Jacuzzi. Sid, however, outwits Roddy and flushes him into the London sewer, the unexpected home of a vast, subterranean city populated by rats, singing slugs and the evil crime boss Toad, voiced by Sir lan McKellen ("X-Men," "The DaVinci Code").

Desperate to return home, Roddy strikes an uneasy deal with Rita. voiced by Kate Winslet ("Titanic," "All the King's Men"), the tough, no-nonsense sewer rat captain of a ramshackle boat, the Jammy Dodger. Although they take an instant and intense dislike to each other in time-honored romantic comedy tradition, Roddy and Rita must put aside their differences when Toad sets his dim "henchrats" Spike, voiced by Andy Serkis ("The Lord of the Rings,' "King Kong") and Whitey, voiced by Bill Nighy ("Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Man's Chest," "Underworld") after them.

For only Rita and Roddy can stop Toad from pulling off his evil plan if, that is, they can stop squabbling long enough to evade his henchrats or the slimy, webbed clutches of Le Frog, voiced superbly by Jean Reno ("The Professional," "The DaVinci Code"), a ruthless mercenary from the Parisian sewer.

A team of five writers, including veteran partners Dick Clement & Ian La Frenais ("The Commitments") and "Frasier" alums Christopher Lloyd and Joe Keenan, peppers the gag-laden screenplay with cheeky satirical jabs - at all things French and class-conscious Britain that hit their mark but never sting.

And pop culture references, the bane of too many animated films of late, are kept to a refreshing minimum under the nimble direction of firsttimers David Bowers and Sam Fell. If a few of the jokes lack punch, the film's energy never flags, thanks to the ingenious visuals and the spirited turns by the entire cast.

Jackman and Winslet invest their animated rodent alter egos with jaunty charm to spare, while McKellen and Reno play their villainous roles to the tongue-in-cheek hilt.

It's not a completely original story by any means, but "Flushed Away" manages to entertain with colorful characters and clever - or in some cases, obvious - dialogue, not to mention first-rate animation.

The story can't help but hit a few snags along the way, though; it's oddly paced and feels stretched

"Flushed Away" actually gets off to a bit of a slow start, with the uninspired introduction of foppish hero Roddy St. James (Jackman), a mouse in a literally gilded cage. While his upper crust owners are away on holiday, Roddy amuses himself by playing golf with a passel of dolls and watching the telly (that's Brit talk for television, by the way).

His solitude comes to a rude end - and the film kicks into high gear with the stinky arrival of sewer rat Sid, voiced by in many areas, even though it's barely 75 minutes before the credits roll. Those looking for a worthy successor to "Wallace and Gromit: The Curse of the Were-Rabbit" may walk away disappointed. even though it offers a few laughs and surprises along the way. Though a surprising portion of the humor was a bit on the corny side - at least for an Aardman project, of course - younger audiences should enjoy the ride.

Additionally, a number of clever sight gags and nods to other films and characters - from "Star Wars" to "Marcel Marceau" - remind us that Flushed Away was created by folks that simply love movies. Even with a few minor quibbles along the way, it's a fairly satisfying adventure that the whole family should enjoy.

The more traditional Special Features section includes a feature-length Audio Commentary with directors Dave Bowers and Sam Fell, presented with optional English, Spanish and French subtitles. Overall, this is a fairly straightforward track; we learn a few interesting tidbits, but there's frequent lapses into silence and roughly half of the comments are chuckles and basic observations. A third participant — or a moderator, at least — could've helped to spice things up, but fans should at least enjoy a portion of what's shared.

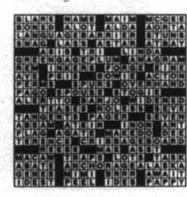

Also here are a pair of brief featurettes, including "The Music of Flushed Away" and "Meet the Cast." Both are fairly standard promotional pieces, but there's some good material scattered about including some voice recording in the studio. It's odd that we don't get any coverage of the computer animation, visual effects and post-production, but both featurettes are worth a look.

Also tacked on are a pair of newly-produced Slug Songs, including "I Don't Feel Like Dancing" and "Pump It"; they're cute enough, but they don't really fit in with the rest of the material in any way. Closing out this section is a series of song selections and previews for other Dreamworks features, including "Madagascar," "Over the Hedge" and "Wallace and Gromit: The Curse of the Were-Rabbit.'

The "Dreamworks Kids" section starts off with a selection of "Flushed Away Tunes", allowing direct access to the film's musical numbers. Also here is a pair of how-to featurettes, including "Build a Slug" with supervising animator Jason Spencer Galsworthy and "Learn to Draw Roddy." The sculpting session looks fun, but it might prove difficult for those under age 10 or so; the second lesson is less direct, so kids may find it a bit easier to follow. Closing things out is an interactive "Maze of Pipes" game, as well as an additional round of goodies available as DVD-Rom content.

"Flushed Away" combines all of the elements of a quality family movie a heartwarming story, simple plot, humanized animals and the idea that a whole other world exists under our very noses presented in a way that is visually inspiring, and throwing in some overtheir-heads jokes to keep the adults interested.

Diversions

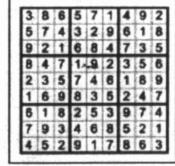

Though it's not the most extraordinary animated film I've seen, I found myself still chuckling at some of the jokes, humming some of the movie's tunes which were sung in beautiful harmony by the sewer slugs - and reiterating some of my favorite lines.

Overall, it was entertaining and comical enough to put my mind at ease for a fleeting 84 minutes.
