According the the MDA office in Midland, 159 people have committed to participate in the Big Spring "lockup." All funds raised will go to help patients in the Permian Basin with neuromuscular dis-

Those participating will be "locked up" at the Big Spring Mall until they make bail their goal for the fund-raiser. The benefit begins at 10 a.m. and ends at 3 p.m.

"Stop by the Big Spring Mall on May 19 to see the jailbirds behind bars for good," said Trudy Espinosa, MDA district director. "The public is urged to contribute to their release or make a contribution to help keep their favorite jailbird in jail."

Muscular Dystrophy is a degenerative disease of the muscles for which there is no known cure.

Bail for most participants is $750. Many volunteers have been working over the past several weeks to help raise the funds, and may not have to be locked up, Espinosa said.

Participants who have not raised their bail by the time of their arrests will be allowed to make phone calls from the jail to ask, beg, plead, borrow or barter the amount of their bail.

Martin County commissioners in flap over hospital board appointments By MARSHA STURDIVANT

Staff Writer

The Texas Open Meetings Act will be the focus of a lawsuit filed by representatives of the Martin County Hospital against Martin County's judge and commissioners.

"We're trying to do what is best for our hospital," said Robert "Walt" Haislip, coadministrator for the hospital and a plaintiff in the suit.

Haislip, along with plaintiffs Alison Barnhill, fellow coadministrator of the hospital, and Dr. Pablo C. Teveni, claim Martin County Commissioners Court violated the Open Meetings Act by listing agenda items in an unspecified man-Specifically, an item on the April 26 agenda read "Consider Hospital Board appointments. and three new board members were appointed through action.

"This appointment was done without discussion or opposition," the petition filed in 118th District Court says.

The petition goes on to declare that the appointments were made "without specifically stating that new board members would be appointed that day, thus denying full appraisal and notice to the Plaintiffs and to the general public."

Haislip said "there is no doubt" that former administrator Rick Jacobus resigned his position with the hospital due to disagreements with commissioners court. Haislip and Barnhill became co-administrators April 2, following Jacobus' April 1 departure.

Defendants listed in the suit are county judge Charles "Corky" Blocker, and commissioners Doyle Hale, Homer Henson, Eldon Welch and Wade "I have no comment to make.

Fire Academy class gains insight into emergency responses

By MARSHA STURDIVANT

Staff Writer

Citizens Fire Academy students learned the importance of Emergency Medical Service during their fourth class.

"We are pre-hospital, emergency care. We stabilize the patient and get them to the hospital. That is our job and our number one priority," said Brian Jensen, director of Big Spring's EMS

An EMS paramedic's job begins the moment a 911 call is received, Jensen said. One of the first points a worker needs to be aware of are the outside weather conditions, and which way the wind is blowing, he

"People are always asking me why a fire truck follows an ambulance, and I always answer, because we need the personnel," Jensen said.

For every 911 call received at the police department, first response is an ambulance and a fire truck. Many of the Big Spring firemen are paramedics, and because of the position of the fire stations and ambulance. often those men will reach the scene first. Also, lifting patients may require more than two people to place the patient on a gurney and then into an ambulance, he

"We have a good functioning system, and we have good response," Jensen said.

Each paramedic is trained in field diagnosis, determining the mechanics of an injury, and what emergency measures may be needed to stabilize a patient for transport.

"You might think of us as detectives, because our first job is to gather evidence to make an accurate field diagnosis of the person," Jensen said.

A person in a car wreck who is cold and clammy, with thready pulse and rapid breathing, along side a bent steering wheel, might be an indication of internal bleeding, he said.

And a broken windshield, combined with a unconscious

"It takes aptitude and desire to be in EMS, and a lot of people, after undergoing the training, decide not to continue in the work. For them the sight of a dead body is just overwhelming, and that can be a frequent occurrence. Stress is a big burn out for EMS and policemen and firemen," Jensen said.

The four commissioners three farmers and one retired Department of Public Safety trooper — were not home when called for comment.

The lawsuit is seeking to void commissioner appointment of three new members to the hospital board April 26. The suit was filed Friday and a court date has been set for May 28, Haislip said.

118th District Court will convene in Martin County to hear the case with District Judge Ray McKim presiding.

"Judge (Robert) Moore refused himself because he said he knew too many of the people involved," Haislip said. Under debate is the appointment to the hospital board on April 26 of Jimmy Wheeler, Jerry Cox and Loyd Mims. Members not reappointed to two-year terms were Charlotte White, board chairman, Bobby Graves, vice chairman, and Letita Cox, board secretary.

The suit seeks to prevent the new appointments, and also to require commissioners to adhere to the Texas Open Meetings Act rule that a quorum, three or more members, may not meet and discuss business outside posted meetings.

A carport and fence were burned, in what investigators may only determine was an intentional fire. "There was no tall grass and

OCALA, FL -- An ingredient derived from hot peppers that decreases inflammation in racehorse's legs, is now recognized as safe and effective for human use The ingredient has been formulated into a product called ARTH-Rx™ and comes in a strength designed for humans. Researchers are excited and say the formula can relieve arthritis pain for millions

Developed by the Phillips Gulf Corporation, ARTH-Rx is a breakthrough in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis, backache and more. Although the mechanism by which ARTH-Rx works to relieve pain is not totally clear, scientists suggest that pain is relieved because ARTH-Rx intercepts the messenger substance that sends pain signals to the brain. ARTH-Rx is available in a convenient roll-on applicator without a prescription.

> The committee's plans, obtained by The Associated Press, map bills with domestic cuts so deep that even many Republicans wonder how they will ever be approved by the GOP-controlled Congress, let alone get signed by Clinton without a headline-grabbing veto fight.

"The early reports about the Republican plan suggest their 2000 budget is simply not tenable," said Sylvia Mathews, the White House deputy budget director. "The level of cuts it would get $78.1 billion, $10.7 bil- the Veterans Affairs and would require would do enormous harm to critical areas that Americans care deeply about."

"It's not going to be easy." said House Appropriations Committee Chairman Bill Young, R-Fla.

Of the other three, always controversial domestic spending bills, the committee would spend $30.5 billion for the Commerce, Justice and State departments, $2.8 billion less than this year; $11.3 billion for the Interior Department, or $2.7 billion less; and $66.2 billion for Housing and Urban Development departments, the Environmental Protection Agency and other agencies, $5.8 billion below this year's level.

These committee figures do not include additional billions in so-called emergency spending enacted this year - money that does not count against spending limits. Even with that extra money, however, the fiscal 2000 bills come up short compared with this year, and even shorter compared with the amounts Clinton would like to

Texas House endorses religious freedom bill

AUSTIN (AP) - State and local governments would need a compelling interest such as protection of public health or safety — before they could limit the practice of religion under a bill given preliminary House approval Monday.

The legislation says that the state would have to prove a compelling interest to enforce laws that would, for example, bar a Jewish man from wearing a yarmulke in a courtroom. It has already passed the Senate and needs final approval in the

The Texas Religious Freedom Restoration Act has been a priority of Republican Gov. George W. Bush.

"He feels it's important legislation because it restores the bedrock principal of religious freedom in Texas," said spokeswoman Linda Edwards

In 1997, the U.S. Supreme Court struck down the 1993 federal Religious Freedom Restoration Act, which had been invoked by a Catholic church in Boerne that wanted to triple the size of its sanctuary.

City leaders didn't want the church's stone walls torn down and refused to issue a permit, noting the sanctuary was in a local historic district. The church wanted to expand to accommodate a growing con-

The Supreme Court ruling left room for states to draft their own legislation to require local governments to have a compelling reason before limiting expressions of religion, said bill sponsor Rep. Scott Hochberg, D-Houston.

"The real basic question is, is the constitution enough? ... It was until 10 years ago," he said.

Examples of cases that could be affected by such a law include children who are not allowed to make up work when they miss school for religious holidays and a case in Oregon where state officials were taping confessions of Catholic prison inmates to priests, according to bill supporters.

The bill has been supported by some religious organizations that said current law allows the government to dramatically infringe upon religious liberty as long as it does so unintentionally

"Our religious freedoms are given to us by God. We should not have to ask the government for permission to exercise them,' said Kelly Shackelford, chief counsel of the Liberty Legal Institute.

With the bill, "the government will again be required to justify its infringements on religious freedom," Shackelford said.

Poll finds less support for Kosovo conflict now

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Kosovo conflict, 60 percent in majority of Americans say they support the efforts by the United States and its European allies in the Kosovo conflict. but a poll indicates they're bombing campaign.

More than half favor negotiations to settle the conflict, says an ABC-Washington Post poll released Monday.

A majority, 59 percent, supports the air war, and just over half, 52 percent, would support ground troops as a way to end the conflict, according to the

But support for the air war has slipped 9 percentage points since early April and support for ground troops to end the conflict dropped 5 percentage points in that time.

A majority, 56 percent, opposes sending in ground troops if there is a good chance that some U.S. soldiers would be killed in the fighting.

"This is not a sea change in public opinion," ABC News poll director Gary Langer commented. "Most people still support the allied effort, but we do see signs of fatigue with the conflict."

Approval of President Clinton's handling of the early April, is at 53 percent in the latest poll.

Two-thirds said civilian casualties in the NATO airstrikes against Serbia are unavoidable growing weary of the lengthy accidents of war. But three weeks ago, more than threefourths agreed with that statement.

> Last week, Clinton explained in detail to military personnel why he thinks the Kosovo policy is justified, and the White House has hired a veteran campaign adviser to help publicize the NATO campaign and the plight of refugees during the coming month.

Ivo Daalder, an expert on the Balkans at the Brookings Institution, said the slippage is an indication that other news; from the tornadoes in the Midwest to the school shootings in Colorado, are capturing the public's attention.

"It's not surprising that you have not just fatigue, but a shifting of attention, from human interest stories in the Balkans to human interest stories at home," he said.

"I don't think there is any reason yet for the president to worry that his current policy won't have substantial support." said Daalder

New $15 fee hits travelers to Mexico in July

Mexico will need to open their man of the Border Trade wallets a little wider starting midsummer.

The Mexican government will begin implementing a $15 perperson fee for travelers heading into Mexico's interior starting July 1. It will not directly affect border towns.

Still, critics say the fee could discourage travel to northern Mexico and to towns that are not traditional tourist meccas.

"This is another obstacle to really not producing any addi- economy," he said Monday. tional service to the cus-

While a tourist taking a oncein-a-lifetime vacation to a resort town like Cancun or Puerto Vallarta is unlikely to be bothered by the new fee, Vale said, it could hit hard travelers driving from the U.S. border into northern Mexican towns.

"It seems like a small amount. but it adds up. It's a lot of commerce and tourism that is money being taken out of the

However, Vale said the fee probably will be used to supplant lost oil revenues, on which the Mexican government is heavily dependent. He said it also could be the Mexican government's way of answering a new $45 fee the United States plans to charge Mexicans who travel along the border.

"It appears to be more of a titfor-tat." Vale said.

States can't pay less welfare to new residents, Supreme Court determines

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A U.S. Supreme Court ruling that thwarts state plans to provide lower welfare payments to new residents is a welcome message to the needy, advocates to $275 for such a family's first for the poor say.

"California and other states now can take down their 'Poor People Keep Out' signs," said Mark Rosenbaum of the American Civil Liberties Union of Southern California.

The court's 7-2 decision Monday dashed the plans of California and 14 other states. and was a defeat for Congress and the Clinton administration.

Ruling in a case involving three newly arrived California residents, the court said the state's desire to limit their welfare payments would violate their constitutional right to travel. Although the word "travel" is not in the Constitution, the freedom to move from one state to another has long been considered a bedrock right.

"The state's legitimate interest in saving money provides no justification for its decision to discriminate among equally eligible citizens," Justice John Paul Stevens wrote for the court.

"Citizens of the United States. whether rich or poor, have the right to choose to be citizens of the state wherein they reside," he said.

California's policy, enacted in 1992 but never enforced because of lower court rulings, would have given people who lived in the state for less than a year only the amount of welfare they would have received in their previous home state.

For example, a mother and one child are eligible for $456 a month in California but only $275 in neighboring Arizona. The policy would have limited the California monthly benefits year in the state.

The ruling was unlikely to have a major effect on state budgets, state officials said.

In California, the law was aimed at trimming roughly $11 million from the state's $2.9 billion annual welfare budget. Gov. Gray Davis, who supported the law, nonetheless had budgeted the money for this vear in case the high court ruled the way it did.

"I'm not wild about the ruling, but I don't think it's going to create a problem," Davis

In New York, Jack Madden, a spokesman for the state Office Temporary Disability Assistance, said a similar law has been on the books for several years but was never implemented because of questions about its legality.

The ruling is unlikely to mean an increase for many Georgia recipients because the state's benefits are among the nation's lowest, said Joyce Goldberg of the Georgia Human Department Resources. Georgia provides up to $280 per month for a family of three.

In the California case, three women had moved to the state to escape abusive family situations in Louisiana, Oklahoma and Colorado.

The lawsuit said the limits on their benefits, coupled with California's high cost of living. could deprive them of the basic necessities of life.

Take advantage of summer events planned at the Y

The YMCA is making itself more accessible to the community through new programs and better facilities. The wealth of programs ensure they will reach many people who have not had the opportunity to participate in YMCA programs before.

Two new programs are baseball for kids age five through 12 and a mini-gymnastics camp.

For those needing swimming lessons, the YMCA offers even the smallest children an opportunity with its parent/tot classes. There are classes, of course, for older children as well, extending to intermediate and

The YMCA pool is open to the general public from 2 until 5 p.m. and 7 until 9 at night. That ensures that almost anyone who wants to take advantage can do so. Later this month, on May 24 in fact, YMCA Day Camp will begin.

This unique program keeps kids busy all day long with swimming, field trips and other activities. Parents can drop their children off at 7 a.m. and pick them up at 6 p.m. Lunch is provided. That's a comfort for families who have two working parents.

The new fitness center is featured in the summer programs with a wealth of aerobic fitness classes, as well as other activities.

Don't forget, either, that the child care center has been enlarged. Parents who want to participate in the activities don't have to be concerned about contacting baby sitter. The child care center will take care of that while mom and dad enjoy some recreation.

We applaud the efforts of Pete Thiry, executive director, and all of the YMCA workers who have put together a solid program.

Now, it is up to us to respond and take advantage of it. Take time to check out the 'Y' this summer.

mentary for music on the last

Each morning before Chestnut Log classes start, soothing music floats over the school's intercom system, and one of Judy's 12 student DJs explains the selection. (Some schools "broadcast" live; others, like this one, prerecord.) Often, but not always, the music is classical. Sometimes it may be Big Band, jazz, country or pop.

Music in the Morning is an offshoot of FAME, which stands for Friends of Arts and Music Education. Concerned parents and teachers in Douglas County, Ga., started FAME five years ago when the school district failed to fund an art education program. FAME believes the survival of a fine arts education is not only important but essential, and that volunteers can take up the slack when tax money disap-

Music in the Morning is just one example of what the group has accomplished. For the calming morning music, FAME sought help from record companies and other businesses, securing CD players and classical music collections for the district's 21 schools and 15,000 students.

'We started out with about a dozen interested folks, and FAME has proven that it really doesn't take a lot of people to be effective in your community," FAME founder Lynn Bailey says. A Douglasville parent, Lynn says art education helps test scores and cultural understanding — and reduces dropout rates.

And, it turns out, young people love classical music, especially when it's introduced by their peers. At Chestnut Log they may have trouble pronouncing "Tchaikovsky," but they know his birthday is May 7. They may not know Rossini from zucchini, but they absolutely love the cannons of "William Tell." During Black History Month, they learned to recognize the work of ragtime composer Scott Joplin.

"I wouldn't know how to teach without music," Judy Young says. A Texas native' and veteran teacher, Judy herself has sung second alto in the Atlanta Symphony's chorus for 30 years. She sang at director Robert Shaw's first performance and at his last. Her Maureen O'Hara looks and enthusiasm keep the kids enthralled. They quote poetry aloud for her, laugh at her jokes — and there's a waiting list to be a morning disc jock-

Judy, in turn, keeps blank cassettes in her desk for children who want copies of the songs they've heard. She gets requests. She smuggles her husband's classical tapes from home to expand the class

A FAME manual makes daily music suggestions. One day's sample: "Toccata and Fugue in D Minor"; "Phantom of the Opera"; "Woolly Bully." The manual also helps with commentary. Students routinely check to see what happened on a given day in history.

Sixth-grader Shirlee Cotton was nervous the first time she took a turn, but not any more. Kira Bishop says her friends never recognize her sophisticated intercom voice. Eighthgrader Paul Bailey has taken piano lessons for years, but his cohorts Karen Sowell, Jessica Menard, Carla Adams, Kristina Wallace and Patrick Boring have had no musical training. But, like the rest of the school, they've all learned to listen.

The popular (and often politically expedient) perception that fine arts in public schools are mere frills is just wrong.

Lone Ranger joke points out problems

the Lone Ranger and Tonto crested a hill and discovered about 5.000 hostile Indians charging toward them. "We're in real trouble. Tonto," the Lone Ranger said. "What do you mean we, white man?" Tonto replied. Lot of wisdom packed into that hokey joke. The Lone Ranger's use of the word "we" was based on the assumptions that the approaching Indians would view Tonto the same as it did him, and that Tonto would fight on his side. Trust me, "we" is a word fraught with danger.

CHARLEY

Its prevalent use by Americans is a clear sign of faulty thinking.

Our world is a particular planet in a particular place in the universe. On its surface are particular people and particular places. It is not one foggy gob of collectivist goo. When two particular people shoot other particular people at a particular place at a particular time, "we" do not have a problem. Most of us, in fact, do not even have any direct knowledge of the people only secondhand information transmitted by gadgets. What is happening - and it's important for mental health to understand the process - is that particular events are being transformed into abstractions and then broadcast far and wide. People can now be made aware in real time of a local event in a far-away place. This process, however, is used in a selective manner and generally only when some tragic, violent or unusual event has occurred. The cumulative effect, however, is to give folks a bad case of angst. Moreover, make no mistake, the power to select which events get publicized is the power to propagandize. Crime rates continue to go down in the United States, but you'd never know it from watching television.

More to the point, the habit of transforming a local event into a national problem simply further empowers the central government. Tom Fleming, the editor of Chronicles magazine, has said it so well: Each and every time the government is asked to solve a problem, it expands its power over the peo-

That's why Americans should break the habit of saying, after every tragedy (man-made or nature-produced), "We must do something to see that this never happens again." No, we mustn't, because an entirely safe society is impossible. Human progress is largely an illusion, except in the area of technology — and that's not all good. A cave man with a club was a whole lot less dangerous than a modern man with a hydrogen bomb. The enlightened political leaders of the 20th century have made the mass murderers of the past look like angelic kindergart

To be grounded in reality – the definition of sanity - is to realize that a human being's influence is pretty much limited to the sound of his voice and the reach of his hands. You can help a child you can see and touch, but you can't do anything for the abstraction "children." Children don't exist as a collective abstraction. They exist as particular individuals in particular places at particular times. Each moment a person focuses his or her mind on an abstraction, on memories, on imagined things, that person has cut loose from reality. A frequent cause of automobile collisions is the habit of a body driving the car while the mind is somewhere else. I believe the sum total of positive accomplishments increases when more people are reality-bound and decreases when more people spend their waking hours wandering in the wilderness of abstractions. Let us do the work before us and trust that others in other places will do theirs.

Dallas Stars eliminate St. Louis Blues, 2-1, in OT thriller ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Brett Hull who helped eliminate the St. Louis Blues from the playoffs bore little resemblance to the superstar sniper he was on his former team.

Hull, who scored 527 goals in 10 seasons with the Blues, set up both goals as the Dallas Stars advanced to the Western Conference finals with a 2-1 overtime victory over the Blues in Game 6 Monday night.

"He had to be a grinder," coach Ken Hitchcock said. "I told him he needed to be a warrior. The game has changed, and it's not going to go back to the way it was seven or eight years ago."

Hull, who scored 72, 86 and 70 goals in a three-season stretch of brilliance with the Blues from 1989-90 through 1991-92, had two goals in the series. He was demoted to the checking line for two earlier games and the series as a setup man.

"Brett was really into the game, playing hard," said Mike Modano, who got the game-winner on a rebound shot at 2:21 of overtime. "He was probably hungrier than anybody. He wanted to get this game and get it over with in St. Louis." Blues coach Joel Quenneville downplayed Hull's impact on the series.

"The challenge of beating the No. 1 seed is a heck of a challenge." Quenneville said. 'They've got a lot of dangerous guys, including Hull. We didn't really get isolated or distracted with Brett."

Modano scored his fourth goal of the playoffs after Craig Conroy's clearing effort in the neutral zone knocked off a linesman. Hull took possession and skated around the net before flinging a backhander at Hull reached the third round for stopped Modano's first effort, but the second got through for his fourth goal and 11th point of the playoffs. Hull also helped end Fuhr's bid for a shutout when he set up Derek Plante's tying goal with 6:02 to go. That goal was more of a fluke, as Plante slid a soft shot just out of the reach of Blues center Craig Conroy and between the legs of teammate Mike Keane en route to the net, but the outcome was the same. "He did all the grunt work for both goals," Modano said. Throughout the series, Hull maintained he had no special incentive to beat his former team. He and the Blues parted ways last summer because the team refused to give him a no-trade clause, then they ended up giving one to Al MacInnis. After the series ended and was most valuable throughout Grant Fuhr's skates. Fuhr the first time in his career, he MacInnis said. "Maybe we kind finally changed his tune.

"You kind of slough it off and you don't want to make a big deal of it," Hull said. "But obviously, with me being let go in the summer, it was obviously something that I really want-MacInnis scored his only goal of the second round, on his 29th shot, as the Blues scored first for the only time of the series. He'd been stymied all series by goalie Ed Belfour, who made 28 saves in the clincher.

"To me, Ed Belfour was the difference in the series," Hitchcock said. "Grant Fuhr was very good, Ed Belfour was better.'

MacInnis, who scored on a slap shot from the right point at 6:51 of the second period, said the Blues perhaps went into a shell too early.

"We let them back in it;"

of tried to hold the lead too much, because they've got a lot of firepower."

The series was a lot tighter than might have been expected, considering the Stars had the NHL's best regular-season record with 114 points and the Blues had 87. Four of the last five games went to overtime, with each team winning twice.

"We certainly didn't get outplayed, that's for sure," defenseman Chris Pronger said. "We gave them a run.

The Blues went to overtime in seven of their 13 postseason games. They won four times, including a double-overtime victory over Phoenix in Game 7 of the first round, which capped a comeback from a 3-1 series

The Stars now await the winner of the Colorado-Detroit

Spurs, Pacers take wins in series openers

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — When it came to guarding Shaquille O'Neal, four San Antonio Spurs players took a turn.

Their plan paid off as San Antonio defeated the Los Angeles Lakers 87-81 in the opening game of their Western Conference semifinal series

Monday night. "He's a big guy, so I had to be determined against him," said Tim Duncan, who was assigned to O'Neal much of the game. "I knew help was there if I needed it. But it was quite a challenge. But it was also kind of fun.

David Robinson, Will Perdue and Malik Rose also had a chance at the 7-foot-1, 315-pound O'Neal. O'Neal, averaging a leaguebest 29.5 points in the playoffs before facing the Spurs, was held to 21 points on 6-for-19 shooting. "Their double- and tripleteams came really quick and I missed a lot of shots I usually make," O'Neal said. "We have double-teams and get better shot selections.

Duncan scored 25 points as San Antonio fended off a fourth-quarter Lakers threat to hold on for the victory. The Spurs managed to win despite committing nine turnovers in as a team and as individuals."

the final quarter and missing some critical free throws.

"We had three or four turnovers in the last two to three minutes, and that's bad," Spurs coach Gregg Popovich said. "When you are missing free throws and turning the ball over, that's a bad combination.'

Game 2 in the best-of-7 series is Wednesday night in San Antonio.

O'Neal appeared upset about the officiating in the highly physical Lakers-Spurs game and approached referee Steve Javie from behind after the game. Lakers coach Kurt Rambis intervened and kept his star center away from the official.

Both Rambis and O'Neal refused to discuss the quick confrontation.

to make them pay for those thing happened, you all would throws down the stretch when O'Neal said.

Rambis said physical play is typical of the playoffs.

"That's the way the NBA playoffs are," Rambis said. "You just have to adjust to that Asked what frustrated him for Philadelphia with 16 points most about the aggressive play, O'Neal snapped: "I never get frustrated.

Pacers 94, 76ers 90

Jalen Rose made his point to Philadelphia coach Larry Brown and Indiana made five free throws over the final 23 seconds Monday night in a 94-90 victory in the opening game of the best-of-7 Eastern Conference semifinal.

Rose, who was tormented in a stormy season when Brown was coach of the Pacers, came off the bench to score a career playoff-high 27 points. It was one less than the career high he scored against his former coach's team last month.

The Pacers, who had lost the season series 2-1 to the 76ers. used balanced scoring to overcome the 35 points of league scoring champion Allen Iverson.

Indiana's Reggie Miller had "Nothing happened. If some = 18 points, including three free point deficit to two. Mark Jackson scored 14 for the Pacers, including two free throws with 5.2 seconds left that sealed the victory.

and 11 rebounds. It was the 11th consecutive home playoff victory for the Pacers. The 76ers went more than three minutes without scoring as the Pacers went on a 7-0 run. Two free throws by Travis Best, a layup by Rose and a 3pointer by Sam Perkins gave Îndiana its biggest lead, 81-68, with 8:16 to go. Philadelphia rallied to cut the deficit to 91-88. A technical foul was then called against Tyrone Hill of the 76ers for reaching out of bounds and deflecting an inbounds attempt.

Miller hit the technical free throw and after Eric Snow of the 76ers cut the deficit to 90-88, Jackson hit the final free

The Pacers helped themselves by making 26 of 32 free throws, while Philadelphia was 15-of-23.

The first half was tight all the way with 17 lead changes and eight ties. Philadelphia's biggest lead in the opening half came when Iverson scored the game's first six points. Indiana's biggest lead of the half was four points6.

The other conference semifinals open tonight with New York at Atlanta in the East and other major offensive weapon Portland at Utah in the West.

Tech

United Spirit construction costs keep increasing

LUBBOCK (AP) — The cost to build the United Spirit Arena at Texas Tech keeps growing.

Chancellor John Montford told university regents Friday the arena will cost nearly $8.4 million more than expected.

The new $59.4 million price tag is 16 percent higher than the latest estimate of $51 million and 26 percent higher than the $47 million estimate Montford quoted when he first became chancellor in 1996.

He said most of the increase is because of "excessive" change orders, ranging from scoreboards to concession stands to structural testing Other cost hikes came from increased construction costs, design revisions and requests for information. Opening of the arena has been delayed repeatedly. It originally was to open in November 1998. The date was pushed to January 1999 with promises that it would be ready for part of the 1998-1999 basketball season. The latest estimate is Sept.

The arena has been plagued with problems since construction began in March 1997. Just last week, builders conducted a $200,000 stress test on the facility to make sure a handicapaccessible balcony would stand.

"This is going to be the most famous arena in the world when we get through," Montford told regents.

The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal reported Saturday that as of April 1, 190 change orders were pending. Montford said Friday those all have been taken care of, but when pressed further he said "two or three" might be unresolved.

Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board rules state that universities must seek approval when construction projects exceed their budgets by more than 10 percent.

Montford said Tech must go before the board next month to ask for approval to spend the additional $8.4 million.

When Mo Vaughn left Boston for Anaheim and Roger Clemens came to New York, few people thought the Yankees and Red Sox would be fighting for first place in the AL East.

But that's the case after Boston rallied in the ninth inning to beat the Toronto Blue Jays 8-7 Monday night, setting up a Yankees-Red Sox showdown at Fenway Park tonight.

The Red Sox needed to score five runs in the ninth, including Brian Daubauch's first career homer, to set up the showdown between the top two teams in the AL East.

Pedro Martinez, coming off consecutive 15-strikeout games, is 7-1 with a 1.81 ERA and has allowed 44 hits and 11 walks in 59 2-3 innings. "He's the best pitcher right

Trailing 4-3, Boston scored five runs in the ninth off Graeme Lloyd (3-2). The Blue Jays answered with three runs off Tom Gordon, who struck out pinch-hitter Kevin Witt with two runners on to end the game.

Lloyd hit Damon Buford with a pitch to open the ninth. One out later, pinch-hitter John Valentin singled and Jose Offerman followed with an RBI single to tie it. Pinch-runner Troy O'Leary was thrown out trying to advance to third.

Sammy Sosa's performance in batting practice was a sign of things to come.

Sosa put on an impressive show before Monday night's game against the Florida Marlins, hitting seven balls out of Pro Player Stadium, including a tape-measure shot into the upper deck in left.

The Chicago slugger also displayed his power during the game, hitting two homers in the Cubs' 8-1 win.

Sosa hit a two-run homer in the first off Ryan Dempster and a solo shot off Braden Looper in the eighth, giving him 11 homers this season and seven in 12 games. Both balls were hit to left-center, the deepest part of the stadium.

"I think I'm a much better hitter when I hit it to center and right field," said Sosa, who hit 66 homers last year. "When I try to pull everything, that's when I have trouble. When I hit it to center field, that's a good sign right there." The other Cubs star was Kevin Tapani, who pitched a four-hitter and drove in three runs with a bases-loaded double despite a broken bone in his left hand. Tapani (3-1) broke the bone May 7 when he was hit by a line drive from Cincinnati's Eddie Taubensee. It doesn't affect his pitching, but batting and fielding can be painful.

The Marlins lost their ninth straight home game hours after Fredi Gonzalez was named interim manager. Gonzalez took over after John Boles had emergency surgery for a herniated disc. Boles could be back as soon as Thursday.

Braves 2, Pirates 1 Walt Weiss hit a two-run single in the seventh inning and Kevin Millwood pitched seven strong innings at Atlanta. Millwood (3-3) allowed only one run and four hits, giving him a 1.69 ERA in his last four starts. John Rocker pitched a perfect ninth for his fifth save. Pirates starter Todd Ritchie (2-3) limited the Braves to two runs and six hits.

Brewers 7, Mets 6 Mark Loretta had two hits, drove in two runs and scored twice as Milwaukee won at Shea for the first time since 1975

The Brewers' last win at the ballpark came on June 18, 1975, against the New York Yankees, who were forced to move to Shea in 1974-75 because of renovations at Yankee Stadium. Milwaukee went 0-3 at Shea last year, its first season in the National League.

Reds 7, Rockies 2 Pete Harnisch gave Cincinnati another strong pitching performance, limiting Colorado to six hits in 8 1-3 innings at Coors Field. Greg Vaughn and Sean Casey homered for the Reds, who have won three straight games for the first time this season. Cincinnati has given up only four

HAPPY BIRTHDAY FOR WEDNESDAY, MAY 19:

You could often be challenged by others, especially at work. Keep talking and allow communication to remain open. Sometimes you might want to put your foot down and say 'Enough is enough!'' Root out problems at work, where you'll develop a reputation as a trouble-shooter. Others will ask for and appreciate your help. If you are single, meeting people is easy; selecting the right one for you is another issue. Be wise and deliberate in your choices. At least one romantic suitor you meet will be emotionally unavailable. If attached, share your fears and vulnerabilities; talk about your feelings often. Spending time together, indulging in favorite pastimes encourages the health of your union. Leo can sometimes bring you down!

227 days left in the year. Today's Highlight in History:

On May 18, 1896, the Supreme Court endorsed the concept of "separate but equal" racial segregation with its "Plessy v. Ferguson" decision, a ruling that was overturned 58 years later in the case of "Brown v. Board of Education." On this date:

In 1642, the Canadian city of Montreal was founded. In 1804, the French Senate proclaimed Napoleon Bonaparte emperor. In 1897, a public reading of Bram Stoker's new novel, "Dracula, or, The Un-dead," was staged in London

In 1899, the First Hague Peace Conference opened in the Netherlands.

In 1926, evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson vanished while visiting a beach in Venice, Calif.; she reappeared a month later, claiming to have been kidnapped.

In 1933, the Tennessee Valley

Authority was created. In 1951, the United Nations moved out of its temporary headquarters in Lake Success, N.Y., for its permanent home in Manhattan. In 1953, Jacqueline Cochran became the first woman to break the sound barrier as she piloted a North American F-86 Canadair over Rogers Dry

Lake, Calif. In 1969, astronauts Eugene A. Cernan, Thomas P. Stafford and John'W. Young blasted off aboard Apollo X. In 1980, the Mount St. Helens volcano in Washington state exploded, leaving 57 people dead or missing. Ten years ago: Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev concluded his historic visit to China, which officially marked he end of a 30-year Sino-Soviet rift. Five years ago: Israel's three decades of occupation in the Gaza Strip ended as Israeli troops completed their withdrawal and Palestinian authorities took over. One year ago: The government filed an antitrust case against Microsoft Corp. The Supreme Court, in a sweeping endorsement of broadcasters' free-speech rights and journalistic discretion, ruled that even public stations owned and run by states need not invite marginal candidates to political debates they sponsor.
