Veterans prepared for Saturday's Poppy fund-raiser

Saturday is Poppy Day, when members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will sell red poppies to benefit former soldiers who now face hard times.

"This will benefit our veteran's fund," said VFW Post 2013 Commander Leo Welch, a veteran of the Normandy invasion in World War II. "That fund helps veterans in need, with any kind of need they may have."

The VFW supplies needy and down-on-their-luck vets with everything from hygiene items to gasoline.

VFW members will be at various locations throughout Big Spring on Saturday, selling the bright red "buddy" poppies. The small flowers, assembled by disabled veterans, have a wire stem that can be inserted into a buttonhole.

"We hope people will wear the poppies, keeping them on from now through Memorial Day," said Welch.

Look for VFW members on Saturday at Wal-Mart, Big Spring Mall, Denny's, Herman's and other locations beginning about 9 a.m.

Christians will take to the streets Saturday

By DEBBIE L. JENSEN

Features Editor

When they step out to proclaim their faith Saturday morning, participants in the March for Jesus will end months of work to organize the citywide event.

March for Jesus occurs around the world on the same day. Local organizer Jack Nixson called it "a global worship celebration of Jesus."

A steering committee has been meeting since February to plan the march, which begins at 10 a.m. on the Howard County Courthouse lawn. March for Jesus features music and choreographed flag routines, with marchers of all ages and denominations.

Nixson said the committee has worked with the dedication of people called to their task.

Assistant organizer and choreographer is Lisa Wiggins. Will Lovelace has served as site organizer.

Marsha Douglas was committee secretary, while Ron Alton worked as publicity chairman. Geoff Hughey serves as treasurer for the group.

"There's a lot of work to it, when you do it like it needs to be done," said Nixson, who will the body of Christ. ... We will Saturday, and anyone is welbe joined by hundreds of people from more than a dozen local churches when the march

Excellent Experiences integrated youth and community

Big Spring High School students who shared Excellent Experiences, a mentoring program sponsored by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, performed more than 400 hours of service to the community.

"This was very successful, with 100 percent completion. We had no community. The teams worked together toward learning various community projects, as well as the career and job duties of "They also did three fund-raisers, and raised the money for their own graduation banquet, which we had at the Dora Roberts Community Center May 7," Earle said.

The students were required to perform all the duties for their own volunteer work and projects, she said. A chairman was appointed for the banquet.

"They did all the hard labor and all the leg work, and they

Edens, won the grand award for the most number of hours of volunteer work. Edens donated 280 hours to the Big Spring Police Department, working with the animal control officers and his mentor, Police Chief Lonnie Smith. "I though this was a good way for kids to get involved with the community. When we first started out, I didn't really know any of the other kids in the program, but by the time it was finished, we were all really good friends," Edens said.

He received many prizes for his efforts, from about 17 local merchants who helped sponsor the program, she said. "For every 10 hours of volunteer work, Kevin Ritz (movie theaters) donated a movie to the student, and a local restaurant (Santa Fe, Furr's, Sonic, Kentucky Fried Chicken and Pizza Inn) donated a meal. So per 10 hours of volunteer work, the student got a free movie and a meal," Earle said

The program proved to be such a success, Earle has designated graduates to be coordinators for Excellent Experiences 2000.Chris Painter, who was paired

West Texans eyeing lawsuit over low-level bomber flights

Staff and Wire Reports

PECOS — Although a lawsuit filed over the Air Force's plans to increase low-altitude bomber training flights in New Mexico has no connection to a proposal being sought by Dyess Air Force base, it will be interesting to see the outcome, area opponents contend.

Holloman Air Force in New Mexico is proposing to bring B-1B and B-52 bombers from several bases to train at altitudes as low as 300 feet over areas mostly in New Mexico. The area includes a small portion of

A group of farmers and ranchers sued the agency over plans to boost low-level flights over much of the region by more than 1,000 a year.

Apparently, the Air Force is backing off, although the plaintiffs are ready to go to court, they say, if it doesn't.

"The Air Force came along with an offer to settle, and they are really trying to stay out of court." Karre Remme, co-owner of McCov Land and Cattle Co. and one of the five plaintiffs in the dispute, said.

"If it's not settled pretty quick, we'll be going to court on Aug. 8," he said.

Remme blames the overflights for loss of sleep by residents, structural damage and harm to livestock, and contends that it constitutes a violation of the Third Amendment, which says citizens should not be forced to quarter military troops during peacetime.

"Some people laugh" at the Third Amendment argument, Remme said. "The people who did not file lawsuits in the past they've been quiet, so they're called patriots.

Meanwhile, West Texas farmers and ranchers are awaiting the outcome. They, too, plan to file suit if the Air Force doesn't back off from its proposals to conduct flights over a wide expanse of the area.

"We'll be looking at what happens in that case to see if private property means anything," said Buster Welch, president of the Heritage Environmental Preservation Association, a group formed to fight the Air Force's proposal.

Long-time educator George White retires as Forsan superintendent

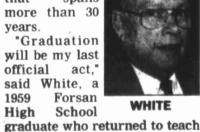

By MARSHA STURDIVANT

Forsan superintendent George White retires as the school year ends, leaving behind a legacy of leadership with the Forsan community that spans more than 30 years.

"Graduation will be my last official act," said White, a Forsan School High hopes to start school in the fall, to be a funeral director and mortician, he said.

"My wife says I've got to have a job to do. I think of being a funeral director as a special service I may provide and assistance I may give in a time of grief," he said.

However, the next available mortician school begins in November, and he said he may have another position that interests him by that time. "I just know I've got to keep working. I'm too young not to," he said. White's career in education has always provided diversified interests. White began his biology and general science. "When I decided I was going to just teach, I became junior high school assistant principal," he said. The junior high principal position followed, and then high school principal. He assumed the superintendency six years

"I've enjoyed everything I've done in the school business, it has all been fun. That's one of the reasons I've got to go to work, I'll miss it, probably," White said

The fun in education is one emphasis White has placed upon his career, and in his dealings with students and faculty. He said sports activities have such subjects as earth science, changed little in his 36-year

Currently, Dyess AFB in Abilene is proposing a training plan that would open up Texas skies to low level flights. There are three areas Dyess has been studying. One, the Lancer Operations Area includes most of (MOA), Borden, Dawson, Scurry, Kent, Fisher, Stonewall, Garza and Lynn counties. Another, called the Texon MOA, includes an area around Big Lake. The third is over New Mexico.

Like the plaintiff's in the New Mexico suit, farmers and ranchers in West Texas who are opposed to the flights because they believe it will affect their quality of life.

"I can promise you one thing, B-1 bombers don't mix well with ranching, farming, hunting, horses, grandkids or sleeping good at night," said Welch, a rancher. "That environmental statement they have released mentions the impact would be 'minimal.' Who in the hell gives them the right to come on my property and cause 'minimal' damage?

"They don't realize this is an intensified businesses. I wish I could take them around with me and see what they are doing. I'm concerned the Air Force has not adequately addressed the problems. We bought a one-way ticket here. We can't go anything else. We're here. We can't move. They can."

"A senior stood there, who was not in athletics or playing football. He says to me 'Coach, I'd like to play football, I think I can help'," he said. "I have a lot of fond memories."

Moving from the classroom and the football field to the administration offices was a transition for White. He said at first he missed the interaction with the students, and then he feared he had lost his rapport with his students.

"I tried to go our and meet with the students, so they would know who I am. As superintendent I deal a lot more with the money and regulations, and I am responsible for everything. I guess I could say I'm a jack of all trades and a master of none," he said.

White acknowledges upheaval in todays educational system, from students succumbing to violent actions to a system that requires eight days of testing in three weeks.

But he said the changes occurring parallel changes throughout the course of a history.

Capping three months of wrangling, lawmakers sent Clinton the Kosovo legislation Thursday on a 64-36 Senate vote. The House approved the measure on Tuesday.

Clinton said he would sign it, citing its funds for the U.S. military, farmers, and residents of Honduras and other Central am fully prepared to do so

But in a written statement after the vote, he warned that he opposed provisions lawmakers included "that reward special interests, weaken environmental protection, and undermine our campaign to stop teen smoking.

He added, "I call on Congress to end these stealth attempts to weaken environmental and public health protections. I have vetoed bills in the past because they contained anti-environmental riders and, if necessary,

Clinton also criticized language forbidding the federal government from claiming any of the $246 billion the states have won from tobacco companies in a legal settlement. Clinton wanted to use some of that money for health care and anti-smoking initiatives.

Senate Republicans voted for the bill 32-23, with many of the most conservative members voting against it. Democrats supported it by 32-13, with opponents citing excessive spending or objectionable environmental amendments.

In a split at the top of the GOP hierarchy, the measure was supported by Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., but opposed by Sen. Don Nickles of Oklahoma, the No. 2 Senate Republican and a leader of the chamber's conservatives.

Conservatives criticized the package because it is stuffed with local provisions that they said were hardly the emergencies the bill proclaims them to be. These included $250,000 to help revitalize a downtown Los Angeles neighborhood; $2 million to intensify security at the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum in Washington; and increased federal payments to Defenders focused on the bill's $12 billion for the conflict with Yugoslavia, the Kosovo Albanian refugees, Balkan countries near the fighting and U.S. forces around the globe. They said rejecting the package would hurt American troops in combat something few lawmakers want to be accused of doing.

CONYERS, Ga. (AP) - The first bell hadn't sounded yet and the students in the commons area at Heritage High School were gabbing and munching on cinnamon rolls. It was the last day of class for the seniors.

The gunman was identified by friends as Thomas Solomon Jr., nicknamed T.J. He was charged with aggravated assault and other charges were being considered. Solomon must appear in juvenile court before he can be charged as an adult, something not expected before Monday.

Rockdale County Sheriff Jeff Wigington said today that the suspect broke into a locked gun cabinet in his family's base-

'Apparently he was shooting at the hip, basically. He was not aiming the rifle at one particular person," Wigington said.

After the shooting, Assistant Principal Cecil Brinkley followed the student outside toward the football field and asked the suspect to hand over the handgun, which was raised

Here's a way to dramatically improve television: Get rid of the "Jenny Jones Show." It is tasteless, insensitive and seems designed to appeal to the lowest common denominator of its audience.

However, that should be a decision left to the court of public opinion, not the legal system.

The recent $25 million verdict against the show stands : as an example of how people in this country — sometimes jurors, sometimes elected officials — often want to overlook constitutional protections of whatever they regard as obnoxious. .

What we see happening is that juries want to find ways of punishing people they don't like. However, the conequence of tearing down such safeguards as the First Amendment — among the most important hallmarks of American civilization — is that everyone's freedom is endangered. It's not just the popular that have rights, and it's not just the unpopular that will suffer if the rights of all are not protected.

The leading case, under the same state law of New York, is known as Lamb's Chapel. This was the 1993 case that inspired the macabre metaphors of Justice Scalia. It involved a request by an evangelical church to rent a school room to exhibit a film on rearing children according to Christian principles. The law clearly permits discussion of child rearing. It was the Christian principles that local authorities found constitutionally intolera-

In an opinion by Justice Byron White, the court agreed unanimously that school administrators cannot discriminate by reason of content. If the law permits "discussion" of child rearing, the discussion cannot be fenced to keep religion out.

Now comes the Full Gospel Tabernacle with its suit against New York's Community School District 27. The facts are not in dispute. The state's education law permits local school districts to make school premises available for a wide variety of uses "pertaining to the welfare of the community.'

The permitted uses include "instruction in any branch of education, learning or the

A manual of regulations provides: "No outside organization or group may be allowed to conduct religious services or religious instruction on school premises after school. However, the use of school premises by outside organizations or groups after school for the purpose of discussing religious material or material which contains a religious viewpoint or for distributing such material is permissible. The regulation recalls the famous instructions given to little Billy by his mother as he headed for the swimming hole: "You may hang your clothes on a hickory limb, but don't go near the water." A congregation may freely DISCUSS the Bible, so long as no one professes belief in it.

Members of the Full Gospel Tabernacle may sing the old hymns to their hearts' content, so long as the singing is for entertainment and not for worship.

Surely something here is seriously askew.

New York's Community School District 27 has approved hundreds of applications for use of its school facilities.

The Tabernacle's petition cites dance recitals, basketball programs, union meetings, gospel singing, a "sacred concert," and Congressman Charles Schumer's town meet-

Only religious "services" are excluded.

The Constitution does not demand such hostility to religion. The Founding Fathers had no such animus. They dated their document on the 17th day of September "in the year of our Lord 1787." They approved the First Amendment: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." Then they provided at once for chaplains in the military and in the chambers of Congress. No law? Congress has made Thanksgiving a national holiday. In our own time we have added "under God" to the Pledge of Allegiance. Our tax laws accord favored treatment to churches. The Supreme Court itself opens its sessions with a prayer to God "to save this honorable court.'

It is only in recent times that establishment-clause jurisprudence has lapsed into what Scalia has termed a strange geometry.

The lines are crooked and they rarely intersect. A Christmas creche in a public park is OK if it includes Santa Claus with Mary and Joseph. A state may provide maps and a globe for a parochial school, but not a bus trip to the zoo.

My thought for a sound public policy is to treat the evangelical applicants like everybody else, in a class with unions, shareholders, veterans and basketball teams. There's nothing wrong with letting Christians use a vacant gym on Sunday mornings — as long as they pay the rent.

Guns are not more accessible in America today

he current push for more federal gun control is fueled by the Littleton, Colo., tragedy and based on a lie that is repeated over and over not only by guncontrol ideologues but by talk-show hosts and politicians.

The big lie is that guns are more accessible today.

This is factually false. It is demonstrably false. The truth is that despite the Second Amendment, guns are less accessible today than at any time in American history. There are more than 20,000 gun-control laws and regulations already on the books.

CHARLEY

REESE

Prior to 1968, there was no federal regulation at all of ordinary handguns and long guns. The only federal regulation was one passed in the 1930s that did not ban guns but required a special license to purchase fully automatic weapons, sawed-off shotguns and silencers. Prior to that legislation, anybody who wanted to could buy a submachine gun, fully automatic, at most any store without filling out any paperwork at all.

Guns are to America what the sword is to Japan. We would not exist as a country today without guns. For the majority of America's history, guns were as common in an American household as a broom or cooking pot.

Today, most states will not allow children to own a BB gun or to shoot one unless an adult is present. I received my Daisy BB gun at age 5, and I shot it unsupervised. I received a .22-caliber rifle for my 8th birthday, and I already possessed my own pistol, a .380 semi-automatic which had been given to me by my brother-inlaw, who had fought at Normandy. It was among a duffel bag full of pistols he brought back from the war. American soldiers brought home all kinds of enemy weapons -- pistols, rifles, true assault rifles, submachine guns. Today, even an admiral or a general is forbidden to bring back a rifle as a souvenir.

There have been changes. and one change is that guns are less accessible than before. Another is that more and more Americans have been born and reared in big cities, where they had no opportunity to use a gun recreationally or for personal security. Another is that with the end of the draft back in the 1970s, fewer and fewer Americans have had an opportunity to be trained in weapons use in the military. Another change, probably related to the others, is that more journalists and politicians are simply ignorant of firearms, though that never stops them from talking about guns and wanting to regulate their ownership and use.

What happened in Littleton had nothing to do with firearms. Every other kid at that high school had the same access to firearms as the two shooters, and that's true in all the other school shootings. If you're going to argue that all the other kids had the same access to culture and they didn't go berserk (therefore, you can't blame culture) then you must acknowledge the same argument applies to firearms.

What you are seeing all around you is the old Hegelian principle at work - thesis, antithesis, synthesis. First you create or call attention to a problem, then you generate hysteria about it, and then, voila, you offer a solution. In this case, you have two kids go berserk, you fan hysteria and propose, as a solution, restrictions on the right of all Americans to acquire and own firearms.

The land of the free is gradually becoming the land of the unfree. There are Americans, you know, who don't believe in freedom - at least not for others. We should never forget that humans are humans regardless of their nationality. There are always some people who have a terrible lust to control the lives of other people.

Better to be free in a society with risks than a safe slave in a dictatorship.

Texas House tentatively passes electric deregulation legislation

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas House has endorsed legislation for utility market deregulation, which lawmakers predicted could mean lower electric rates for most of the state's residential

The bill by Rep. Steve Wolens, D-Dallas, faces final House approval today after getting preliminary approval late Thursday by a 142-4 margin. It will then be sent back to the Senate which passed its version of the

"I truly believe this will provide economic development for our state," said bill sponsor Rep. Steve Wolens, D-

Under the legislation, electric rates R-Lubbock. would be frozen until 2002, when most electric customers could begin shopping for a new provider.

Among those voting against the legislation was Rep. Tom Uher, D-Bay

"There is no guarantee that this will result in lower prices," he said. Uher said utility deregulation was still an experiment and data from other states, including California, indicated industrial customers — not residential users — would see the largest benefit. Also voting against the bill were Reps. Zeb Zbranek, D-Winne; Ron Wilson, D-Houston; and Delwin Jones,

The bill has been criticized by some consumer groups that complained that it didn't go far enough in assuring lower prices for residential customers and in keeping incumbent utilities from keeping their market power.

"While we're uncertain whether deregulation will work this bill has many good provisions," said Tom Smith of Public Citizen.

Smith said he liked some of the environmental and consumer protection measures, including one in which facilities that have been grandfathered from environmental regulations for nearly three decades would have to reduce emissions by 2003 or close

Janee Briesemeister, senior policy analyst for Consumers Union, said the bill improved significantly as it made it's way through the legislative

"The bill now includes many of the provisions we've been pushing for,' she said, noting a measure to provide assistance to low-income customers. Still, she said, her group could not endorse the bill. "Electric deregulation is not something consumers in this state are demanding," Ms. Briesemeister said. She added that consumers are being asked "to take a leap of faith that deregulation will be good for them.'

Bill supporters expect utility companies to be enticed into moving to Texas to offer lower prices and new technology, which could range from selling 'green power" to providing gadgets that tell consumers when they are wasting the most electricity.

"This bill represents a momentous action by the Texas Legislature in recent history," said Tom Baker, president of TU Electric's distribution business unit. "Electricity customers in Texas should soon be able to choose options and new technological innovations," he said.

Senate approves gun legislation

Propelled by a shocking outbreak of school violence, the Senate passed legislation Thursday night to require the sale of safety devices with handguns and expand a system of background checks for firearms purchasers. The vote was 73-25, and came a few hours after Vice President Al Gore eagerly broke a 50-50 tie in favor of an amendment to require background checks for all firearms transactions at gun shows and pawn shops.

Passage sent the measure to the House, where Speaker Dennis Hastert, R-Ill., has signaled support for fresh restrictions on guns. Republican and Democratic leaders were discussing plans to bring the issue ble at best until the shootings in to the House floor as soon as mid-June.

"What we have seen today is for the first time in a major kind of gun control issue, rejection of the National Rifle Association and a vote for common sense," Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said as the bill neared final passage.

Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott. R-Miss., said Democrats "think gun control is a good political issue and that will solve everything. I say we got all these laws on the books that are already there" that should be more strongly enforced.

A triumph by gun control advocates in the Republicancontrolled Senate was improbaa Colorado high school a month ago caused a marked shift in public opinion. A shooting at an Atlanta-area high school earlier in the day gave fresh impetus to the measure

The legislation requires background checks for all sales at gun shows. It also would close what gun control advocates said was a loophole that allows anyone to pawn a gun and reclaim it without undergoing a check.

'Secure gun storage or safety devices" would have to be sold with handguns. But the measure also extends liability protections for a gun owner who uses a safety lock and whose gun is stolen and used in a

Nuclear waste plan could be unconstitutional

AUSTIN (AP) — A nuclear waste disposal bill pending in the Texas Senate could violate the U.S. Constitution, the state attorney general's office says. According to the opinion released this week, the measure proposing to privatize a radioactive waste dump would be unconstitutional if it also prohibits the state from accepting waste from other states.

Gov. George W. Bush voiced concern about legislation to allow private companies to store and bury low-level radioactive waste, saying he doesn't want Texas to be the nation's nuclear dump.

A Texas Senate committee last week approved a bill that would allow private companies, not a state agency, to store or bury low-level waste.

The sponsor of the proposal, Sen. Buster Brown, R-Lake Jackson, said it would provide for a limitation on the amount of waste the private companies could receive. He said Bush's concerns are addressed in the bill, and that he shares the position that Texas shouldn't be a dumping ground. However, the AG's opinion suggests that it would be difficult, if not impossible, for the state to privatize a waste site without also losing control over the sources of shipments. The opinion concluded that a law barring private companies from accepting low-level waste from the Department of Energy

Culligan Water

Conditioning

would unconstitutionally interfere with interstate commerce and federal activities.

Two private companies, Envirocare of Texas and Waste Control Specialists, are lobby ing for the low-level waste site and regard the Energy Department as a lucrative source to supplement smaller quantities that would be shipped from generators in Texas, Maine and Vermont under an interstate compact.

The Senate proposal would eliminate a state agency formed in the 1980s to operate a low-level radioactive waste dumpsite. Under the House plan, only the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Authority could obtain a license.

CHURCH NEWS

First United Methodist Church

The First United Methodist Church invites children of our community to a castle adventure sent in merry old England. They will be transforming the church into SonCastle Faire, where children will discover the joy of using their talents to serve the King of Kings. They will have lively songs, skits, crafts, games, Bible studies, and snacks. On top of that, kids will be helped to discover their own unique abilities and learn how to use them to serve God and others.

The SonCastle Faire Vacation Bible School begins June 7 and draws to a joyful conclusion June 11 at 12:10 p.m. with and Mini-Musical that will be fun for the whole family. Classes are from 9 a.m. to noon each day and all children from 3 years of age to those who have completed the fifth grade are invited to attend.

"The Unseen Warrior" (Acts 2:1-4) is Dr. Ed Williamson's message this Sunday at the First United Methodist Church, 400 Scurry. The message is about the Holy Spirit, as this is Pentecost Sunday. Worship is at 8:30 and 10:50 a.m. Our home know how much I love them. It made me realize how quickly life can be taken from us through unexpected circumstances and people.

As I watched the events of the aftermath take place, the funerals and memorials, I was once again reminded of the deep need of people to express themselves in some sort of spiritual ritual. All of the funeral and memorial services took place in a church of some sort, and even the President of the United States was calling the people of America to lift their prayers on behalf of the families who had been so traumatized by this event.

I am continually amazed at how quick we were to take Bible reading and prayer out of our schools, and yet how quickly we call on fellow citizens to pray in a time of disaster. If we recognize the need of prayer to God during a disaster, how is it we cannot seem to understand that the same God who brings us comfort and peace in disaster is the God who would bring order and qc peace to a world of disorder and chaos?

We are a strange people students to roam the halls of our schools with satanic symbols on their T-shirts, we kick other students out of school who attempt to carry their Bible and pray during their lunch hour.

While we allow some students to use foul language in the classroom, we kick other students out of school who speak out about their faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. But let calamity come to the hallways of our schools, and even the President asks for people to pray

Have we finally come full circle? Are we finally at a place in time when we understand our need for God? Something seems to be terribly wrong with our priorities.

As we approach graduation at thousands of high schools and colleges around the country, the ceremonies in hundreds of those schools will be closely watched by those who are intent on suppressing the exercise of religious freedom by insuring that no religious words are used in the speeches of student and special speakers, and that no prayers are offered on behalf of these graduating students.

While they decry "censorship," they will make sure the student speeches are "censored" and meet their criteria for an acceptable speech. The way I see it, in this world the only hope our students have of surviving is a prayer that is

Nebraska keeps winning streak going at Big 12 tournament

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - The calendar says it's May, but the way his team is playing reminds Nebraska coach Dave Van Horn of late February and March.

His Cornhuskers won 16 of 17 games during one stretch at that time, and now they've won nine of 10 including the first two games of the Big 12 tournament.

'The last two weeks we played really well, and I even made the comment over a week ago that we're starting to get it back and play like we did in March," Van Horn said after a 14-7 victory over Oklahoma on Thursday night. "It just seems like things are falling into place frus'

Thursday's victory means the fifthseeded Cornhuskers (39-16) are off until Saturday, when they play the winner of today's elimination game between No. 1 seed Texas A&M and Oklahoma.

The tournament's other unbeaten is Baylor, which defeated Texas 8-2 in a game that stretched into early today. Baylor will play Saturday against the other loser's bracket survivor, either Missouri or Texas.

Nebraska is 2-0 in the conference tournament for the first time since 1990, when it went on to lose two straight and get eliminated.

Jarod Bearinger shut Oklahoma down after coming on in the third inning and Nebraska put together 15 hits to beat the Nebraska scored four runs in the first inning off Kyle Denney (4-6) and never trailed. However, Oklahoma (30-28) kept things interesting by scoring three runs in the second inning and one more in the third to tie the game.

Bearinger (3-1) came on in relief of Shane Komine, got out of the thirdinning trouble and went the final 6 2/3, allowing just three more runs, two of 14 runs, that's the bottom line." OU coach Larry Cochell said. "We're going to have to play our best game of the year (against A&M) and we're going to have to pitch better than we did tonight."

Texas A&M's Casey Fossum pitched a complete game as the Aggies stayed alive by eliminating Oklahoma State, 4-2.

Fossum (10-5) struck out 10 and walked two. The Aggies (45-13) will be seeking to avenge a 10-5 loss to Oklahoma that knocked them into the loser's bracket. Oklahoma State (40-17) went two and out in the conference tournament for the first time since 1979.

"I knew that my job was to pitch a complete game so that we could save some people that will be ready tomorrow," Fossum said. "I'm a little tired, but it was worth it.'

The victory was the 661st for coach

Chandler atop the A&M career list

The first extra-inning game in the three-year history of the Big 12 tournament ended with Missouri eliminating Texas Tech, 8-7. Jake Epstein's single in the bottom of the 12th drove across the winning run.

Missouri (36-18) led 7-4 after s innings, but a three-run homer by Jos Bard in the seventh tied the game. Bar finished with four RBIs for Texas Tec

The last game of the night, which ended early this morning, saw freshman Jace Brewer hit a grand slam in the top of the sixth inning.

Jaime Bubela joined Brewer in provid ing punch for the Baylor batting attac with a pair of hits.

The Longhorns were led by Rya Brooks with a pair of hits hits Longhorns' starter Scott Dunn (9-5) wa

Lady Hawks dominate all-conference voting

Lopez leads seven-woman HC contingent By JOHN A. MOSELEY

Howard College's Lady Hawks, having just completed their first season of play, grabbed a large share of the honors when Western Junior College Athletic Conference coaches met to select their allconference softball team.

The Lady Hawks, who finished the season with a impressive 45-19 record and advanced to the NJCAA Region V tournament in Abilene where they finished third behind WJCAC rival El Paso's Tejanas and Collin County's Lady Express.

Seven Lady Hawks players arned all-conference honors, while still another was among those named to the honorable mention squad.

That meant the Lady Hawks, despite finishing second in the WJCAC standing behind El Paso, took the lion's share of the all-conference team posi-

Not surprisingly, sophomore Maria Lopez — a third-team all-American last season while playing for Lady Hawks coach Andy Mace at Eastern Oklahoma - led the way for the Lady Hawks in the all-conference balloting

Lopez, who suffered a stress fracture to the fifth metatarsal in her right foot and was forced to sit out the Lady Hawks' final conference series with El Paso as well as the regional tournament, was selected as both a pitcher and the designated hitter on the all WJCAC squad.

At the time Lopez was sidenea the the injury, she was the nation's strikeout leader.

Joining Lopez on the all-conference team's pitching staff freshman teammate was Brandy Smith, El Paso's Jennifer Bayless and the Midland College tandem of Jennifer Chavira and Tonya as Valerie Wood was named Thompson.

The Lady Hawks other allconference performers were outfielders Christy Shafer Carlee Ledford, catcher Teresa Johnson, shortstop Josie Rosovich and third baseman Diana Julian.

Howard's only honorable mention honoree was freshman second baseman Andrea Julian, the only other sophomore on the Lady Hawks roster, also doubled as a catcher in the Howard lineup.

Not surprisingly, the conference champion Tejanas took the top two individual honors, the league's most valuable player while El Paso coach Kathy Rudolph was her peers choice as the WJCAC's coach of the year.

Two former Big Spring Lady Steers stars were named to the all-conference team. Midland shortstop Melissa Martinez and second baseman Jessica Cobos headlined the list of five Lady Chaparrals that were placed on the team

The Lady Chaps other allconference honoree was outfielder Crystal Shelton.

El Paso's other two players on all-WJCAC squad were outfielder Lori Pollard, infielder Sarah Dokie.

Late birdies give Flesch first-round lead in Colonial

FORT WORTH (AP) - Until 1998 knows better Steve Flesch wins his first PGA Tour event, he's going to have to get used to the tee time he had in the first round at Colonial Country Club - late afternoon, when the wind gusts are at full strength and the greens are crusty and hard.

On Thursday, such conditions were not a problem.

"I like it when it's windy, Flesch said after closing with two birdies for a 4-under-par 66 and a 1-stroke lead in the MasterCard Colonial, "If you're a good iron player, the wind can only help you.'

If anything, the wind kept scores relatively high and gave Flesch a fighting chance.

Nelson Classic, he had a late that shot him out of the pack at starting time in the first round warp speed. Hoch made three already at 8-under by the time from the fairway for eagle at the ground at No. 1.

In the Colonial, he glanced over at the leader board and saw no one better than 2-under.

"Teeing off at 2 p.m., it's kind of hard not to notice what's going out there," Flesch said. 'Last week, I was eight strokes back before I hit my first shot. This time, I was only two strokes down, so I knew something was going on."

Long after Jeff Sluman posted a 67 by chipping in twice for birdie, and Vijay Singh joined him with one-putts on six of the last nine holes, Flesch was trying to keep pace on a course that averaged 2.75 strokes over

He hit a pitching wedge into 12 feet for a birdie on the 17th, then hit a 9-iron that stopped about 8 feet below the hole on

The best tee times are reserved for PGA Tour winners and the top players on the money list, so most of the crowd had already gone home. They missed seeing the first-round leader.

"Standing over that last putt, I thought it would be nice to lead overnight," Flesch said. But the rookie of the year in I'm feeling pretty good."

"I've still got three more long days," he said. And he'll have a bunch of players not too far behind when the second round begins today.

Steve Elkington, in his first tournament back since his latest bout with viral meningitis. was among six players at 68. Mark Calcavecchia, Scott Hoch and the resurgent Corey Pavin were among six more at 69.

In all, 43 players were within five strokes of the lead. And that doesn't include Davis Love III, who had two double bogeys in his round of 72 to join Phil Mickelson and Fred Couples.

Hoch had a chance to leave the rest of the field in his wake A week ago, in the Byron with a torrid four-hole stretch and saw that Tiger Woods was straight birdies, then holed out No. 10 to get to 6-under. Then he started missing greens, missing short putts and wound up with bogeys on five of the last seven Singh attributed his great play last year to his putting his wife persuaded him to go crosshanded, and he won the PGA Championship and the Sprint International. But his solid stroke left him after winning the Honda Classic in March, and the hardest work ing man in golf was bent on getting it back.

"I understand the long game," he said. "I figured now would be a good time to learn to putt. I worked so hard over the last two weeks on my putting.'

Despite being hospitalized for five days, Elkington picked up where he left off. He had a 65 in the third round of the Houston Open, when he complained of severe headaches, and once again had to go through a battery of tests.

"It's a reoccurring meningitis syndrome is what they think,' he said. "It's not dangerous, and it's not career-threatening. I've had it three times now since 1986. My sickness is not as bad as in the past. Obviously,

Ventura makes doubly grand entrance into record book

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Robin Ventura made a grand entrance into the record book

Ventura hit grand slams in both games of a doubleheader, the first major leaguer ever to accomplish the feat, as the New York Mets swept the Milwaukee Brewers on Thursday night.

"You go up and think this can't happen again," Ventura said. "Grand slams don't happen that often because you don't get that many situations."

Ventura connected off Jim Abbott in an 11-10 win in the first game at Shea Stadium, then hit another one off Horacio Estrada to highlight a 10-1 vic-

"It seems like there have been a ton of grand slams this season," Mets teammate Mike Piazza said. "But that's a good week, even a good month by most guys' standards.'

In other NL games, Chicago beat Atlanta, Florida defeated Pittsburgh 4-3 in 14 innings, Houston topped Los Angèles 4-3 in 10 innings, Colorado downed Arizona 8-4 and St. Louis stopped San Diego 6-4.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

In AL games, New York topped Boston 3-1, Anaheim beat Baltimore 6-4, Toronto downed Detroit 7-0, and Kansas City beat Oakland 7-1.

Ventura became the first player to twice hit two slams in a day. He had two slams for the Chicago White Sox in a game against Texas on Sept. 4, 1995.

Estrada made his major league debut in the second game, and the first batter he faced was Ventura with the bases loaded. Ventura hit his 12th career slam.

Ventura became the third player this season to hit a pair of slams on the same day. Fernando Tatis did it in one inning for St. Louis at Los Angeles on April 23 and Nomar Garciaparra hit two in a game for Boston against Seattle on May

Cubs 6, Braves 5

Sammy Sosa hit his fourth home run in four games and Greg Maddux struggled again as Chicago won at Atlanta. Lance Johnson's sacrifice fly in the 12th inning gave the Cubs their fourth straight win. Gerald Williams hit a tying homer in the ninth for Atlanta, which had won four in a row

Sosa hit his 13th homer in the first inning, giving him nine home runs in 15

Maddux nearly lost his fourth consecutive start, something he has not done since dropping eight straight decisions in 1990. The four-time Cy Young winner gave up eight hits before getting an out in the fourth inning.

Marlins 4, Pirates 3 Florida ended its 11-game home losing streak when Derrek Lee hit an RBI single with one out in the 14th inning. There was a rain delay of 1 hour, 30 minutes before the first pitch, then the game took 4 hours, 11 minutes. Brian Giles homered, tripled and had a sacrifice fly for Pittsburgh. He also made a diving catch in center field that prevented Florida from scoring the winning run in the ninth.

Cardinals 6, Padres 4

Mark McGwire, Eric Davis and Joe Mcking hit home runs as St. Louis won at San Diego.

The Padres put runners on second and third with two outs in the ninth inning. but Ricky Bottalico retired Tony Gwynn on a routine fly ball. The previous night, Bottalico walked the only three batters he faced, helping San Diego rally for a win in the ninth. McGwire homered for the second time in two games, giving him 10 this season.

Rockies 8, Diamondbacks 4

Kurt Abbott, just 3-for-28 entering the game, went 3-for-4 with his first home run as Colorado beat Arizona. Randy Johnson (4-2), who beat the Rockies with a complete game last Saturday, was hit hard in Coors Field debut. He allowed seven runs and nine hits in six innings.

Darryl Kile (3-3) won for the first time in five starts, and also threw a brushback to Johnson.

Astros 4, Dodgers 3

Derek Bell doubled home the go-ahead run in the 10th inning and Houston hung on at Dodger Stadium despite closer Billy Wagner giving up his first two home runs of the season.

Trail Blazers' 84-81 win evens series with Jazz

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

One of the biggest knocks on the Portland Trail Blazers this season has been their lack of a consistent scorer who can get that crucial basket with the game on the line.

On Thursday night, Isaiah Rider filled the role nicely with a little help from his broth-

Portland beat the Utah Jazz 84-81, but the Blazers couldn't exhale until John Stockton's layup with two seconds to play went in and out. Rider scored six straight points in the game's final 1:39 as the Blazers barely held off a frantic Jazz rally and evened the second-round playoff series at 1-1.

The notoriously unstable Rider has been a steadying force for Portland during the playoffs. He averaged a teamhigh 20 points in the Blazers' first-round sweep of Phoenix, but in Portland's 93-83 loss in Game 1, he was held to 12.

"My brothers called me and let me know, 'Hey, that was terrible. All you're doing is shooting 3-pointers," Rider said. "They keep an eye on how I'm playing, and they keep me focused sometimes. I have good brothers."

Rider scored 21 of his 27 points in the second half, beating the Jazz with his outside shot and an array of post-up moves against Jeff Hornacek and Shandon Anderson.

"They had Hornacek and Anderson on him, and he's stronger than both of them," Portland's Rasheed Wallace said. "We made sure he had a chance to score."

In the night's other game, the New York Knicks defeated Atlanta 77-70 to take a 2-0 lead over the Hawks.

Tonight's game features the Philadelphia 76ers returning to their home court trying to avoid falling behind 3-0 in their series against Indiana.

Hornacek's jumper with 1:58 to play cut Portland's lead to 76-73, and on the next three possessions, the Blazers went straight to Rider. He was fouled all four free throws with the raucous Delta Center crowd screaming in his face. Stockton's 3-pointer cut the lead to 80-78 with 37 seconds left, but the Blazers found Rider in the low post, and he turned and made a layup with Hornacek hanging all over him. But the Jazz still weren't done. Hornacek hit a 3-pointer with 12 seconds left, pulling Utah to 82-81. Greg Anthony made one of two free throws, setting the Jazz up for a final shot.

Stockton, who has scored most of the biggest last-second points in Jazz playoff history, was the natural choice to take the final shot. He drove the lane the first two times, and he made and drew contact with Jim Jackson, but the ball went in and out.

Game 3 in the series is Saturday, with Game 4 set for Sunday night.

Knicks 77, Hawks 70

Latrell Sprewell scored 31 points for the second straight game for New York at Atlanta. After winning both games at the Georgia Dome, the Knicks are heading home with a chance to sweep the series. Game 3 is Sunday at Madison Square Garden, with Game 4 the following night.

Marcus Camby added 11 points, 13 rebounds and one resounding dunk over Dikembe

AVONDALE, Pa. (AP) - Jack Nicklaus took a moment to recall the days when he was young and greedy, a time when he felt he could do anything on a golf course and pushed his body to give him what he demanded.

His gait was much quicker, his hair shinier and closer to the color of sand in a bunker. Nicklaus felt invincible back then, and he believes that is part of the reason he now must step gingerly into a sand trap, steadying a 59-year-old body that is now partly supported by a ceramic left hip.

"I think that my hip problem and the early aging resulted basically because of cortisone injections," said Nicklaus, who returns to competitive golf today for the first time in nearly a year. "I had 25 of them in a 10-week period when I was 23 years old.

"They wouldn't do that any more, but that's what they used to do in those days. A lot of my back problems, I think, came from cortisone. By the time I was 19, I'd had my back injected in seven different places and some of them repeatedly.

There is nothing Nicklaus can do about it now, except what he has always done. Play golf.

Warming up for his first tournament since having his left hip replaced in January, Nicklaus shot an even-par 72 Thursday in a pro-am round just four months after the experimental operation. Teeing off today in the Senior PGA Bell Atlantic Classic, Nicklaus ends a 299-day layoff — his longest since turning professional in 1961. He last played in the U.S. Senior Open on July 26, 1998.

Waving to the crowd and then slicing his first tee shot into the rough, Nicklaus tried to see beyond the moment. Even as he gets his golf game back into shape, Nicklaus is dreaming of one final charge that will cap his brilliant career.

"I'll play a little bit this fall, just because I want to play next year," Nicklaus said: "My goal" next year is to try to play the four majors and try to be as competitive as I can be. Beyond that point, I'm not saying that's going to be the end of my playing major championship golf, but it'll probably be the end of my playing all four of them in one year.'

Out of habit, impatience, or a little of both, Nicklaus clutched a microphone as if it were a 9iron while discussing his quick comeback from an operation that forced him to miss his first Masters in 40 years.

He was told he couldn't return for six months, and Nicklaus eagled that estimate, so to speak, beating it by two months. Doctors were amazed at the deterioration in Nicklaus' hip, which had been bone-on-bone with no cartilage for several years.

"I never expected to be able to do things so soon," said Nicklaus, who played about 20 practice rounds at home in North Palm Beach, Fla., before making his comeback official. "I certainly don't want to do it again, but it was no big deal."

If all goes well this weekend at this senior tournament in the Philadelphia suburbs, will play the Nicklaus Memorial Tournament on the course he designed in Dublin, Ohio, June 3-6. Then he plans to play in the U.S. Open, U.S. Senior Open and Senior Players Championship.

"I doubt that I'll go to the British this year," Nicklaus said. "That's too many weeks in a row. I might play the PGA Championship and I might not I haven't made up my mind."

Nicklaus teed off on No. 10 in the pro-am, bogeying the first hole and double-bogeying the fifth. He finished with four birdies.

"I just don't have my strength yet," Nicklaus said. "I mean, I'm not terrible. I surprise myself every once in while and hit one pretty good. But I'm 85 percent top form.' Playing to the crowd and signing autographs, Nicklaus walked nearly all of the hilly course. He plans to do the same in the tournament. "I didn't think that I played great, but I played better than I've been playing," he said. Nicklaus made a terrific second shot on the par-3 11th, coaxing a short chip 3 feet from the cup before sinking the easy putt-for par.

rectly friend

announced that Mary Helen had done it wrong, confirming her worst fear — that she was responsible for Bill's death. Needless to say, she took the news very hard and blamed herself.

Several weeks later, a doctor told Mary Helen her brother had been suffering from a form of heart failure. Unfortunately Bill had mistaken his symptoms for the flu. After much discussion, the doctor insisted that Mary Helen had performed the CPR correctly, and even if Bill had been in the hospital, his death was inevitable.

tongues. We don't need a guilt trip. My CPR efforts failed when my husband had a heart attack several years ago. I was 31 years old when I performed CPR with all my might in my nightgown on the floor of our bedroom while our small children slept down the hall. There are people who wondered aloud if I had done everything I could to revive him.

Mary Helen and I already know what it is to lose sleep asking ourselves: "Did I count the breaths wrong? Should I have pushed harder or faster? Is it my fault he died?

The death of a loved one is hard enough — but it's even worse when you've tried to do everything right, and someone says you did something wrong. implying the death was your fault. Thank you, Abby, for allowing me to vent. EILEEN IN PORT ANGELES. WASH.

DEAR EILEEN: Even when CPR is performed by a trained professional, it doesn't always save lives. You and Mary Helen should have been praised for your efforts rather than chastised because they didn't succeed. Time and again, studies have shown that any CPR efforts are better than none. Be secure in the knowledge that you made every possible effort to save your loved ones when you' didn't hesitate to get involved.
