Long-time public servant Bill Shankles at a Midland hospi-Tuesday after a yearlong battle with lung can-

He was 63. "This is a with qualities that we look for in every person but don't always find. He will be sorely missed," said retired Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard.

Shankles served Howard County as a deputy sheriff, beginning Jan. 1, 1977. Standard said he was involved in criminal investigation, and solved many crimes for Howard County citizens.

"He had great insight and was an excellent performer at his job. I worked with him helpful, a most unusual person and then when he was elected justice of the peace, our association continued in that position. I never heard him speak a harsh word about anyone, he was a splendid person and a long time friend," Standard said.

Long-time public servant Bill Shankles loses battle with cancer

In 1986, Shankles was elected justice of the peace, precinct I. place 2, a position he served until retiring in 1996. Prior to his service as a sheriff's deputy, he had served as a police officer in Lamesa for 12 as Justice of the Peace, longtime co-worker Marilyn Carson was chosen to fill the position.

Margaret Ray, who retired from the Howard County Clerk position after 20 years, said she also enjoyed working with Shankles in his capacity as deputy sheriff and justice of the peace.

"He was an understanding and compassionate man, and this loss hurts. I really appreciated him as a co-worker, and then as a peer, as an elected official. He had a good heart and was understanding of everybody's problems. This is a great loss for our community," Ray said.

Services for Shankles are planned for 1 p.m. Friday at Baptist Temple Church, with Rev. Walter McCall, pastor of Midway Baptist Church, and Rev. Don Snipes, pastor of Baptist Temple Church, officiating.

Winds, dust create dangerous conditions

By JOHN H. WALKER

High winds and blowing dust caused emergency crews to work overtime from about midmorning until about mid-afternoon Tuesday.

With winds gusting to 50 miles per hour and visibility down to zero at times, firefighters in Big Spring as well as both Howard and Martin County as well as power crews from TXU Electric were hampered as they tried to do their respective jobs.

While Big Spring firefighters and TXU personnel were kept busy with reports of exploding or burning transformers, as well as actual lines down, Howard County firefighters were called to assist their neighbors in Martin County with a "fire" that stretched almost 17 miles.

A tractor-trailer carrying a load of cotton from Walcott Gin, located about four miles north of Grady School, was loaded with some hot bales that erupted in the wind.

The trucker lost smoldering bales onto Texas 176 for about a five-mile stretch before pulling ento the shoulder and unhoc ing the then-burning trailer from his tractor.

In the meantime, members of the Martin County Volunteer Fire Department, along with two passersby, were working to extinguish the first of the bales dumped onto the roadway One firefighter kept applying water to the bales while the other firefighter and the two passersby used shovels and other equipment to remove the cotton from the road.

"Walcott Gin's been on fire for about a week," one of the passersby said. "That's where this cotton came from.'

Just as the foursome was close to clearing the roadway, a tank truck from the U.S. Forest Service pulled up to douse the rest of the hot cotton — freeing the Martin County unit to head for the gin.

The two volunteers and their tanker joined other Martin County Volunteers — including units from Stanton and Lenorah — at the gin. The firefighters were working to extinguish smoldering cotton waste and blazing cotton modules as well as fires that were burning inside the gin.

At the same time, gin employ ees and others were fighting fires on other locations on the gin grounds.

Yale E. Key personnel also assisted the volunteers by supplying water from two tractortrailer tank trucks at the scene.

"I've been doing this all morning," one of the Key dri-

Firefighters from the Martin County Volunteer Fire Department work to extinguish burning bales of cotton on Texas 176, about 16 miles west of Big Spring. The tractor-trailer carrying the cotton dropped burning bales along the highway for about a five-mile stretch.

In Big Spring, the most serious problem was a power outage along Gregg Street caused when a tree split and fell into power lines at 18th and

Douglas. "The tree came into the lines and burned down wires, causing a feeder trip at the substation," explained TXU Big Spring manager Mike Nieto. Nieto said a substation feeder trip was much like a household breaker.

"It will try itself (to reconnect) three times and if, on the third time it can't work, it stays open.'

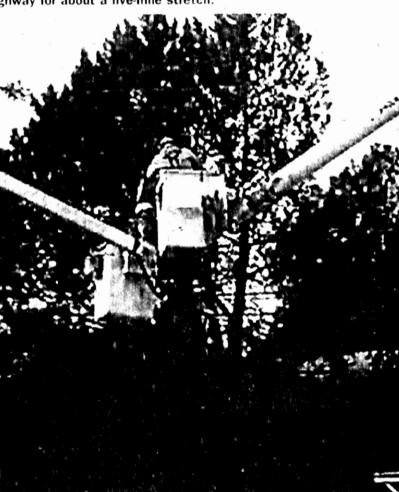

As a result, a number of businesses were without power for more than an hour

At least two eateries Herman's Restaurant and Kentucky Fried Chicken were forced to close during the lunch rush. A third, Subway, was able to serve food but only after having been without power for more than an hour. "When they got power, they were trying to match up money to tickets and get everything rung up in the cash register," one customer said.

The National Weather Service said Tuesday's high winds and dust came as the result of a low-pressure system moving through the region.

TXU linemen work to restore service as Tuesday's winds blew a tree into lines at 18th and Douglas. There were also service wire problems in Coahoma. Midland, Odessa and Lamesa as the front moved through.

Council says 'no' to staff's request to increase rates in 4-3 decision

By JOHN H. WALKER

Editor

For the second time in less than 90 days the the Big Spring City Council has voted to deny a water rate increase sought by the city staff.

Council member Stephanie Horton made the motion to deny the increase and was joined in voting against the requested hike by mayor pro tem Oscar Garcia and members Chuck Cawthon and Greg Biddison.

All four said they had heard enough from their consitutents and voted the increase down.

"Folks have said they're tired of being nickled and dimed to death," Cawthon said

City manager Gary Fuqua said city staff had gotten the

"We'll go back to the budget and see where we can find the money," he said.

The rate hike was requested to offset a $45,000 increase in the cost to deliver water by the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

CRMWD, which operates on the same fiscal year calendar as the city, was unable to provide the city with its new fee structure early enough for the monies to be included in the

The council also accepted the resignation of city attorney Jim Finley, who has accepted a similar job with the city of Longview, Texas.

Finley has been with the city for the past 3 1/2 years, coming here from an assistant city attorney's position in Wichita Council also approved repairs at the water treatment plant.

"These are three broken components we have that are in our primary stages of waste water treatment. These components have been broken the past seven years, and we have been processing this with our final stage components, which is currently overloading our final stage units," said Todd Darden, Big Spring public works director

More than 250 city-wide fifth graders to graduate DARE program

By MARSHA STURDIVANT

Staff Writer

More than 250 Big Spring fifth graders will don black t-shirts and travel to Municipal Auditorium Thursday for Drug Abuse Resistance Education graduation ceremonies.

"We'll be doing several different things, and presenting several different awards at 9:30 a.m. Parents are definitely invited," said Corp. Terry Hudson Gray, DARE officer.

Students in all fifth grade classes at Bauer, Marcy, Goliad, Kentwood and St. Mary's Episcopal elementaries will attend the ceremonies as their last official class meeting with the DARE pro-

"This is a really good group of kids and I really appreciate being allowed to work with them. I believe I'm very fortunate because I get to deal with people at their best," Gray said.

In fact, she has been teaching this group of children all semester. DARE is a fifth grade curriculum based program that educates and reinforces appropriate behaviors, saying no to peer pressure and how to resist drugs and violence.

"I really believe this is an effective program. We cover a wide range of subjects, and I try to give them insight and tools to cope with things like they are today,'

Gray said students today have stress in their live, which might be unheard of in their parents younger days. And she also helps students find solutions to problems that do not include fighting or violence behavior.

"I tell them we don't always get our own way, and that we need to avoid fights. And I'tell them that avoiding fights with their family might be the hardest. I really try to get to their level, to provide them with understanding they can use right now," Gray said.

Her efforts will finalize in the ceremony, as one student from each fifth grade class will read their winning essay, one of the last assignments of the program.

"There will be awards passed out for these essays. We received a wide range of good papers, and I picked one from each class," she said.

These essays are the final written assignment for the students, and each class winner will read their composition at the program. The essays were written from the student's perspective on how to stay drug and violence free, and how the DARE program has helped them make those life long decisions, she said.

"And we'll also do role playing on stage, where the students act out ways to say no to drugs and violence," Gray said. Students vote to select the best roleplaying team from each class to be presented at the graduation ceremony. And another award will be presented to a student selected by his or her peer fifth graders.

DARE is funded through a combined effort of the Big Spring Police Department, the Big Spring Independent School District and grants available for the program, she said.

All students received a black DARE t-shirt, as well as a workbook, pencils, erasers and other DARE material. About 13 classes will participate in the graduation ceremony. Next semester Gray will teach the DARE program at Washington, Moss and Elbow elementaries.

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. (AP) -Two friends of Linda Tripp and a former lawyer for Paula Jones gave testimony today helpful to Maryland prosecutors who are trying to put Mrs. Tripp on trial for wiretapping.

The three - all of whom were witnesses before the grand jury that indicted Mrs. Tripp — testified that the evidence they gave in the state investigation was based solely on their own conversations with Mrs. Tripp.

At a pre-trial hearing, Maryland prosecutor Stephen Montanarelli is trying to show that his case is untainted by any of Mrs. Tripp's immunized statements to Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr's investigation of President Clinton.

With President Clinton and Secretary of State Madeleine Albright declining to attend, the task of witnessing the turnover of the Panama Canal fell to former President Jimmy Carter, who agreed to the handover 22 years ago.

Carter joined President Mireya Moscoso, King Juan Carlos of Spain and five Latin American presidents in a ceremony Tuesday marking the transfer.

In prepared comments issued shortly before the ceremony, Moscoso praised what she called "the consolidation of our sovereignty and the recovery of our national territory." She said the canal will operate efficiently and securely under Panamanian steward-

"Our final objective is to guarantee safe, efficient and uninterrupted operation of the waterway to satisfy our customers and to benefit our country." she wrote.

In Washington, President Clinton expressed a "continuing commitment" to the canal's security and a determination that the strategic waterway remain open for global commerce.

"Today's ceremony underscores our confidence in the government of Panama and the Panamanian people's ability to manage this vital artery of commerce," Clinton said in a written statement.

His absence at the ceremony upset many Panamanians, who said he was succumbing to pressures from U.S. conservatives upset that the canal won't remain in American hands.

"We regret very much that President Clinton won't attend this unique and historic act," Moscoso said earlier.

Dignitaries filing into the site beside a mammoth canal lock marveled at the canal that links the Pacific Ocean and the Caribbean Sea.

The handover of the canal will end a relationship between Panama and the United States that dates to Panama's birth as an independent country in 1903, when it broke away from Colombia. The U.S. took over the canal project, which was completed in 1914.

Officially, the U.S. presence ends on Dec. 31, but the ceremonial turnover was moved forward to avoid conflict with millennium activities. Already, the Americans are all but gone.

The treaties transfer to Panama 360,240 acres of real estate that made up the Canal Zone, a fenced-in U.S. civilian and military enclave with schools, churches and federal laws. Its crown jewel was the canal, a 50-mile engineering marvel that raises ships from one ocean and deposits them in didate had lost.

giant container ships being raised into another through a system of water locks and a man-made lake.

About 14,000 ships pass through the canal every year, steered by Panamanian or U.S. pilots, and pay $540 million in tolls.

Carter signed the treaties in 1977 with Panamanian strongman Gen. Omar Torrijos, who 10 years earlier had come to power through a military coup. While Carter was criticized in the United States, the treaties polished Torrijos' image internationally and made him a national hero. Torrijos died in a plane crash in 1981.

Carter's relationship with Panama has extended beyond the signing of the treaties. In 1989, he came here as an international observer of the presidential elections and witnessed how military strongman Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega nullified the election his can-

Carter angrily denounced the maneuver and helped turn international opinion against the Panamanian military. The United States invaded at the end of 1989, arrested Noriega and sent him to a Miami prison.

Despite the ties between the Panama and the United States, Clinton declined an invitation to attend the ceremony, and Albright canceled her trip at the last minute to prepare for Mideast peace talks.

"We are not disappointed because Clinton and Albright are not coming,' Panamanian Foreign Minister Jose Miguel Aleman said Monday. "We are planning a big celebration. It is their loss if they do not come."

Clinton's absence, he said, "is an example of the lack of diplomatic attention by the United States to Latin America. The United States lost a chance to look good."

Space shuttle countdown going well, weather looks better

(AP) — NASA's first countdown in months was going well today, and the launch team anxiously aimed for a Thursday night returned to Earth in July with a liftoff of space shuttle Discovery to the Hubble Space Telescope. The mission to restore Hubble's failed pointing system and make other improvements to the nearly 10-year-old telescope is running more than two months late because of flawed shuttle wiring and other dam-

"This whole processing flow has been a challenge for us, and I think that we've done the right things," NASA test director Doug Lyons said this morning. "We're very anxious to go ahead and launch. It's been a scrutiny has been raised, so our long while, and that's what standards are up from where we're in the business to do."

The weather was looking good. Forecasters today raised a contaminated engine aboard Discovery should have soared.

conditions to 90 percent.

Shuttle flights have been on hold ever since Columbia punctured engine nozzle and a short circuit that could have forced an emergency landing minutes after liftoff. An exposed wire caused the short, and dozens of similar defects were found on all four shuttles.

More than 100 miles of wiring were inspected on Discovery alone.

"We've put in protection. We've repaired. Even though most of what we found was minor, it is much cleaner," said shuttle program manager Ron Dittemore. "Our overall level of they were.

NASA also has had to replace

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. the odds of favorable launch Discovery and, just this weekend, a dented fuel line.

Dittemore said he's looking at ways to prevent accidental damage inside the cramped engine compartment, like the bent fuel line. He suspects someone stepped on the pipe or crushed it with a work platform.

"We're not on the ground because of pieces of hardware that are breaking. We're on the ground because we have broken, and we need to fix that,"

Astronomers are eager for Discovery and its seven-man crew to get going, but not at the risk of shuttle safety. Hubble is unable to survey the universe until the astronauts deliver six new gyroscopes and other parts. The telescope's pointing system shut down in mid-November, almost exactly one month after

"We don't want anyone to feel pressure because of this, stressed NASA scientist David Leckrone. "Hubble will still be there waiting for us in January if we have to defer to January.

NASA has until Saturday to send Discovery on the 1)-week mission, otherwise it will have to wait until January to avoid any potential Y2K problems. If Discovery takes off Saturday, the fourth spacewalk would have to be canceled to ensure that the shuttle is back with time to spare

If Discovery does indeed fly this week, its crew will spend Christmas in orbit - a first in 18) years of space shuttle flight.

"It's natural that everybody would prefer to be at home with family and friends over the holiday period," test director Lyons said, "but we all recognize we've got a job to do."

Parents of Columbine victim planning to move to Houston

DENVER (AP) - Michael said. and Vonda Shoels, whose son Isaiah was killed in the Columbine High School massacre, plan to move to Houston to rebuild their lives.

The Shoelses have said they no longer feel Colorado is a safe place to raise children and are afraid Isaiah's siblings could be targets of violence.

"We had to get out of Colorado because people are using us as scapegoats," Shoels said Monday. "They want us to be quiet and to shut up and stop speaking out against the hate and racism that cut down Isaiah far too soon."

The couple made their comments as news reports detailed videotapes that gunmen Dylan Klebold and Eric Harris made before the April 20 attack at Columbine, which left 12 classmates and one teacher dead and 23 others injured. The teen-age gunmen then committed suicide.

On the tapes, both condemn blacks, Hispanics, Jews and women, among other groups. "I've narrowed it down, it's humans that I hate," Klebold intimidating letters.

Columbine survivors have told authorities the two teens stormed the school, apparent ly targeting athletes and minority schoolmates. The younger Shoels was the only black person killed at the mostly white school.

'We all know what was said in that school," Shoels said 'We know they were running through that the school hollering 'Get the n----.' I'm getting my family out of this state. I can't stand to lose another child or family member .. with this racial hatred." •

The Shoelses moved to Denver from the Littleton area after Isaiah was killed, saying they feared for their safety in Jefferson County.

The Shoelses experienced a variety of criticism after hiring high-profile Michigan lawyer Geoffrey Fieger to file a $250 million wrongful death lawsuit against the killers parents.

In a recent court affidavit, Shoels said his children were subjected to racial slurs, his home was vandalized and he received threatening and

Council quartet protects citizens from 'just' a hike

ats off to Big Spring City Council members Stephanie Horton, Greg Biddison, Chuck Cawthon and Oscar Garcia for listening to the citizens of Big Spring and saying enough is enough to these nickel and dime and $2 a month here and $2 a month there fee increases that are beating us to death.

Thanks for saying 'no' a second time to the requested fee hike that was presented as "only about 32 cents

Now, city officials will really get the opportunity to operate the city. They will be forced to look for ways to reduce expenses — rather than what has become the perfunctory increase of fees on one hand while exclaiming, "Look, we didn't raise taxes!" on the other.

We will repeat ourselves on this issue.

When a business is faced with declining revenues, or when the revenues fall short of the expenses, guess what happens? The expenses are cut.

And just as Mayor Pro Tem Oscar Garcia said when he first ran for office, the city is no more than a busi ness. And as such, with expenses exceeding revenues, it's time to do what a business does at that point — cut those expenses.

And that's the task that now faces the city staff ... to review the budget and find places to trim here and cut

But there are a few suggestions we'd like to make. First, don't take it from the street fund ... the majority of the streets don't meet the taxpayer's expecta-

Second, don't take it from the water fund ... there's still hope the water can actually be drinkable and palatable some day.

Third, don't take it from the park fund ... oh well, it's not really big enough to plunder, is it? Fourth, don't think this opens the door to an automatic tax hike next budget cycle.

As we've said before, citizens of a community expect a return on the money they spend for their municipal services — just as do customers of a retail business or restaurant.

We expect good water, we expect good streets, we expect good sanitary services, we expect to be protect ed and to receive good emergency services and we expect to have nice, clean, well-maintained parks.

While the sale of bottled water and RO units flourish in the community, while we dodge potholes on washboard-like streets, while we have to go out and clean up around our dumpsters after the garbage truck has gone by, while playground equipment lies broken and scoreboards don't work, it seems the city support staff continues to grow.

Where are we now, staffing-wise, compared to the days when our city's population was above 30,000?

How many persons sit at desks or do administrative jobs now, assisted by computers, compared to the days when it was a job done by hand?

How many "in-the-trench" workers do we have out there fixing potholes and repairing streets and picking up garbage now, compared to those days?

We're not attempting to point fingers, but rather make certain there are questions to ask and places to look rather than always wanting to dig into the pockets of we the people.

When the folks in Boston got tired of it, they held a tea party — remember?

Presidential race a symptom of society's ills

About the best way to look at the 2000 presidential races is as a symptom of our sick society, not as a solution. Surely no one believes that, out of 270 million people, the present candidates are the best leaders available. Fact is, most of the bright m inds go into the private sector, not into politics. After all, it is the private sector that controls politics, not vice versa

We should all guard against the notion that electing one person to one office will somehow magically solve the nation's conflicts and problems, though one might easily get that idea by listening to the candidates. They tend to sound like carnival pitchme n. Come one, come all, and see all your problems solved, all of your boo-boos made painless. I haven't seen so much of a certain byproduct of bovine metabolism since I left the country for the city.

As most of you know, I don't cotton to minor-party candidates cluttering up the presidential ballot. Conservative minor-party candidates help elect the liberal major-party candidate; liberal minor-party candidates help elect the conservative major-party candidate. People can yak all they want about voting for the man, not the party, but every four years when you count the votes, the overwhelming major ity of them are cast for Democrats and Republicans.

If Bill Clinton were not a sociopath, and therefore incapable of gratitude along with all the other human virtues, he would have named the West Wing of the White House the Ross Perot wing. That eccentric billionaire elected Clinton twice by bleeding off votes that would have otherwise gone to Clinton's Republican opponent.

Many Americans who are attracted to minor parties are often naive about American politics. Many think that if you come up with sensible solutions and present them to the people, they will flock by the millions to the polls and elect you president. The ga me doesn't work that way.

In the first place, Americans have lost the consensus on major issues. Thus, one man's sensible solutions are another man's political nightmares. Furthermore, I do not believe there exists in this country at this time either a conservative majority or a liberal majority. Most Americans seem to be pragmatists, which is kind of a nice word for opportunists. People interested in the public good are about as rare as people who have actually read the Great Books

People have learned that they can loot the public treasury, as that old Englishman Thomas Macaulay warned that they would. Broadly speaking, American politics amounts to a frenzied feeding at the public trough, with individuals and groups shouting and el bowing each other to get what they believe is their rightful share of loot. Joining the rabble are all those various groups with an itch to run other people's lives and that want the government to be their leg-breaker

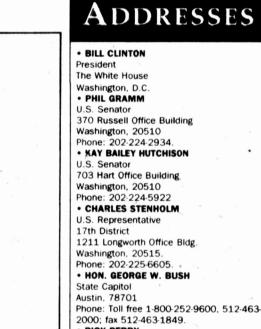

And there are still millions of Americans who are just parti-

No matter what kind of a donkey their party nominates, no matter how sparse his ideas, how bleak his chances of success are, these partisans will vote for the party nominee because that's what they've always done.

Any serious minor party would concentrate on winning local and state elections. That's how one builds a political base. It is absurd for a party that holds not one single office in the entire land to put up a candidate for president. One is always left with the conclusion that no-chance candidates are doing it for the money and the publicity, and they themselves know full well that they have no more chance of winning the White House than Yasser Arafat has of being elected president of Israel.

I am not too concerned with the elections. What concerns me is the condition of a society that produces the kinds of elections and results that we have. © 1999 by King Features the Yuletide is upon us. and a seasonal question recurs: Could I recommend some books for a writer's Christmas? You bet. The New York Times has just published a greatly expanded edition of its Manual of Style and Usage. Prepare for bad news and good news. The 1976 edition contained a single succinct line. It read: "data (pl.), datum (sing., but rare)." In the 1999 edition we find, regrettably '''data' is acceptable as a singular term: 'The data was persuasive.' In its traditional sense, meaning a collection of facts and figures, the noun can still be plural: 'They tabulate the data, which arrive from bookstores nationwide.' (In this sense, the singular is 'datum,' a word both stilted and deservedly obscure.) Those of us who write for newspapers are bound by the Stylebook of The Associated Press. Its 1993 edition says: "DATA. A plural noun, it normally takes plural verbs and pronouns." Inadvisedly the AP adds, in an entry on collective nouns, that when "data" refers to a discrete unit, it is acceptable to write, "The data IS sound." When the reference is to individual items, it is right to say, "The data HAVE been carefully collected.

My own thought is to cling to Latin and Greek formulations until their usage becomes a matter of gaudy affectation. In my book the data ARE always sound. The Supreme Court continues to speak of "fora" instead of "forums," but I suspect "fora" is a lost cause. I would hang on to alumna/alumnae, phenomenon/phenomena and criterion/criteria, but I probably would yield on "cacti" and 'croci" as the plural of cactus and crocus.

The new Times manual offers an ominous comment on "media." In deference to its grammatically exacting readership, the Times will keep it plural "for now." In this column, "media" will remain forever plural!

Despite its apostasy on the matter of "data," and despite its simplistic advice on the placement of adverbs, the revised Times manual is a valuable reference work. The manual is also in error when it condemns "absolutely necessary" as a redundancy. The editors should recur to John Marshall's opinion in McCulloch v. Maryland, construing the "necessary and proper" clause of the Constitution. The great chief justice had it right. Necessity comes in degrees

Back to Christmas books. William Safire, the Times' word maven, offers "Spread the Word," the 11th collection of his popular columns. Like its predecessors, this volume is great reading for an exceptionally literate houseguest. Safire examines such words and phrases as "cover-up," "dead on arrival" and "tough sell." In a typical column, he turns around engagingly on "maid," a medieval term that has become unsexed. The old "maidservant" has morphed into "housekeeper," but a few derivatives survive: maid of honor, maiden voyage, maiden speech. A horse that has yet to win its first race remains a maiden.

In another column, Safire looks at "Get a life!" The imperative carries a mildly scolding connotation of "get out of a rut" or "stop being so stodgy." He traces it to teenaged slang in 1983. One of his readers dates the phrase from a Star Trek convention in 1986. It became the title of a Fox Broadcasting sitcom in 1990. As a vogue phrase, Safire comments, it can be derided, "but as a waker-upper, 'Get a life!' is conservative, constructive advice. Don't knock it.' Every writer, I suppose, now and then feels the tug of foreign phrases. Nine times out of 10 the tug should be firmly resisted. When it is absolutely necessary to shift into another language, let us be certain we have the alien phrase on a leash. Toward that end, two new dictionaries promise to be useful. Oxford has put out a softcover edition of its "Dictionary of Foreign Words and Phrases." The "World Dictionary of Foreign Expressions" comes from Bolchazy-Carducci, 1000 Brown St., Wauconda, Ill. 60084. Both compilations appear to be far more comprehensive than the Mawson-Berlitz dictionary of 1975 or the Barnes & Noble dictionary of 1992.

The latter volume is the work of two African scholars, one of them a professor of ancient history in Nigeria, the other a judge and Latinist in Botswana. Oxford's new entry in the field was edited by Jennifer Speake. I checked entries under the letter "L." The Africans won, 370-178.

At the top of every book list for writers, of course, is the Strunk-White "Elements of Style." It is the "little book" that both teaches and inspires. If your writer already owns Strunk-White, give him or her the New Fowler's from Oxford but hang onto the old Fowler's for the sheer fun of reading its enduring advice.

Modest weight loss shows benefits

Overweight women who lost as little as five pounds handled everyday activities more easily and had fewer aches and pains, a study found.

Gaining as little as five pounds had the reverse effect in normal-weight and overweight women, the researchers reported in Wednesday's Journal of the American Medical Association.

The four-year study of more than 40,000 nurses, ages 46 to 71, is one of the few to show that small changes in weight can have a big effect on quality Most research on overweight people has focused on dire long-term risks — diabetes, high blood pressure, heart disease, stroke and cancer.

"The vast majority of overweight people don't end up getting those diseases. But when being able to walk up stairs. we're talking about something that potentially affects everyone," said Dr. Ichiro Kawachi, a professor of medicine who helped lead the study at Harvard-affiliated Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston. A separate study in JAMA reported that obese women are more than six times as likely as lean women to have a silent inflammation in their arteries that may boost their already elevated risk of heart disease. The study involved more than 16,000 Americans. The results were first reported in April at a meeting in Washington by obesity researcher Marjolein Visser of Vrije University Amsterdam, the Netherlands.

The findings suggest that low doses of aspirin — already also benefit the overweight.

But researchers said more study is needed before such treatment can be advised by physicians.

In the nurses' study, overweight women who shed some weight tended to function better physically and had more vitality and less pain.

Dr. Michael Steelman, past president of the American of Bariatric Physicians, specialists in medical issues related to weight, said modest weight loss can give people an emotional boost,

"It gives them the kind of self-confidence they need to move ahead with their life, perhaps to earn promotions, to change jobs, to improve rela-

And for a time Saturday night, the cancer the teen-ager had been diagnosed with in May was the last thing on her

"I was about to walk into a New York Philharmonic concert and I couldn't move," she said. "I knew I had to go on."

Johanna became only the second nonprofessional to play with the Philharmonic — the first was entertainer George Plimpton, who played gong, triangle and sleigh bells for a TV documentary in 1968.

Through most of the spring, the young oboe player had undergone chemotherapy and radiation treatments for Hodgkin's Disease.

A social worker from the cancer clinic near her home in Grass Valley, Calif., put her family in touch with the Make-A Wish Foundation, which grants the wishes of children who have life-threatening ill-

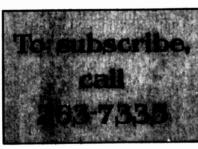

While most children ask to meet sports stars or fly to Disney World, Johanna told the foundation she wanted to sit in the middle of a great orchestra and hear the music all around

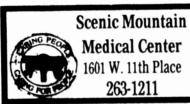

She had played the clarinet and switched to Oboe three years ago, and she was the principal oboist in the Auburn Youth Symphony, playing even during her chemotherapy. After weeks of treatment, her cancer is now in remission.

Johanna searched the Internet for principal oboe players in major orchestras and chose Joseph Robinson of the New York Philharmonic. She asked for a lesson from Robinson and to sit in the middle of the orchestra.

What she got was much more. From the middle of the symphony, next to Robinson, Johanna played during the loudest parts of Aaron Copland's "Third Symphony."

'My heart was going so fast it couldn't keep up at the end," Johanna said. "I think I played maybe three-quarters of the stuff that wasn't solo.

Y2K what?

In Egypt, computer bug mostly incomprehensible

Problems of the Year 2000, as the Y2K bug is known in Egypt, seem a light year away for the men puffing on water pipes in a small cafe in a Cairo slum.

"Let me first solve the problem of 1999," declares 50-yearold Fat'hallah Mohran.

A quick briefing about the computer malady that has consumed much of the Western world only confuses him further. Some computers can only read two-digit years and if they're not fixed they won't work properly in 2000, when they will assume "00" is 1900.

The same ignorance can be found all over Egypt, where many banks, companies and government services are computerized, but where nearly half the adults can't read and the majority of the 60 million population lives below the poverty line.

And that's exactly how Egyptian authorities want it to be, to avoid millennial hyste-

His job is not to make sure the public is Y2K savvy, but to ensure people involved with computers know what to do.

Elwy insists that although Egypt was relatively late to address it, the millennium bug has been eradicated in all vital services: electricity, water, energy, gas, telecommunications and aviation.

Some equipment in hospital intensive care units is not yet compliant, he admits, so hospitals are using a contingency plan — instead of programming the computers by the year, they are doing so by the week.

Elwy claims the government is 97 percent compliant and that its 166 mainframes and 108,518 other computers are all now Y2K ready.

But those claims have not been independently verified.

Candy makes a sweet holiday gift Our word, candy, comes from the Persian word "and" ready to dip them in chocolate.

the Persian word "qand," and although there is no one ingredient necessary to its making, the end result must be sweet.

Egyptians used honey and added figs, dates, nuts and spices. The Arabs and Chinese also made sweets of different fruits. juices and honey. The Arabs were the first to refine and process sugar and spread their knowledge of sugar cane from Persia to the Mediterranean.

Familiarity with sugar became widespread after the Crusades in the 14th Century. Venice, the aristocratic lady of the Adriatic, carried on extensive sea trade and from this port sugar was brought and made into tasty confections.

When the use of sugar spread throughout Europe, candy making was done by the apothecaries (pharmacists or druggists as we know them today). Sugar-coated caraway seeds were used as pleasurable way of settling an upset stomach after a large medieval feast.

On his second voyage in 1493, Columbus brought sugar to San Domingo. Cuba was growing sugar cane by 1511. Sugar was one of the early imports into our colonies where druggists would make "healing" candy drops containing hoarhound, wintermint and peppermint. The first real candy was made in the form of a stick.
When Admiral Richard Byrd

made his expedition to the South Pole, he took two and one-half tons of candy to supply quick energy.

While there is not much nutritional value to candy, it is a sheer pleasure to eat.

Candies fall into two classes: creamy or crystalline, and amorphous or noncrystalline.

The no-cook Buckeye candy recipe was given to me by my husbands' grandmother who resided in Ohio. Ohio is the Buckeye State whose state tree is the Buckeye, a member of the horse chestnut. Grandma Terry liked to think of her Buckeye candy as the "state candy." It is also sometimes known as Shoebox Candy, since it makes 6 pounds and fits nicely in a shoebox for mailing.

Take large handful and knead on counter top until smooth. Pinch off small amount and roll into ball (about the size of a large olive) and place on cookie sheet. Chill in refrigerator. Continue making the balls until all the mixture has been rolled.

These can now be stored in the refrigerator indefinitely, either in containers or covered with plastic wrap until you are Melt chocolate chips and vegetable shortening in top of double boiler. Stir well. When thoroughly melted and mixed, removed from stove. Take long wooden bamboo skewer (or toothpick) and dip each ball, leaving a small part uncovered around the toothpick to get the 'eye" effect. Reheat the chocolate when it starts to thicken.

*Grandma's recipe called for 2/3 of one bar of Parawax (canning wax) instead of vegetable shortening. I prefer not to use wax - it can be your option.

This recipe is very time consuming but well worth the effort as it does make an enormous amount of candy for gift giving or your own personal enjoyment. It is definitely NOT for calorie counters.

Sprinkle on bottom of 9" x 13" baking pan 2 cups whole or chopped pecans. Combine in 3 qt. saucepan, 1 1/2 cups brown sugar and 2 sticks of butter (do not use oleo).

Bring mixture to boil. Reduce heat to medium low and cook, stirring constantly, for approximately 12 minutes or until mixture reaches 300 degrees on a candy thermometer. Pour and spread over pecans. Immediately sprinkle one cup chocolate chips evenly over top. Wait about 5 minutes until chips soften, and spread. Allow to cool. Break into pieces.

Helpful hints: When melting chocolate for dipping or spreading, take care not to get temperature too hot as this will slow the drying process. Too hot a temperature can also cause chocolate to separate or

Food for thought: The smallest good deed is better than the grandest intention.

Christmas Rum Cake

Before you start, sample the rum and check for quality. Good isn't it? Now, go ahead. Select a large mixing bowl, measuring cup, etc., and check the rum again for quality. It must be just right. Try it again. With an electric beater, beat one cup butter in a large fluffy bowl. Add one teaspoon sugar and beat again. Meanwhile, make certain the rum is of best quality.

Add two large eggs and two cups dried fruit and beat well until bery high. If fruit gets stuck in beater, pry it out with a screwdriver. Sample rum again, checking for consistency. Mext sift in 3 cups baking powder, add a pink of rum, 1 seaspoon toda and 2 cup of pepper — or is it salt? Anyway, don't fret. Just test the rum again. Zowie..

Now, sift in half a pint of lemon juice, fold in chopped buttermilk and add strained nuts. Shample the rum again.

Now, one bablespoon srown tugar or whatever color is around. Mix well. Greast oven and turn on cake pan to 350 degrees. Now pour the whole mixture into the oven and...oops....Now, where did I put the mop?

On second thought, and also third and fourth, forget the oven, forget the cake, check the rest of the rum and go to bed!

A BENEFIT FUND HAS been set up for Josh and Yvette Preston, Big Spring natives whose home burned Friday, Dec. 10, in Norman, Okla. The couple, who had travelled to the local area for their wedding on Dec. 11, lost most of their belongings in the fire, which was said to be electrical. The house had just been made ready for them to move into after the wedding, according to friends.

Mike Reyes, a friend of Josh, organized the fund to help the couple get back on their feet, since insurance funds will not cover the cost of replacing all of their

"I just wanted to help them any way I can," said Mike. "That's not a good way to start out your marriage.'

It is also the time for children to mail their Santa Claus letters! We will have a special letter drop just for Santa, and at 11 a.m., Saint Nick himself will visit to pick up his letters in person.

Kentucky finds itself out of Top 25 for first time since 1990

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

While Cincinnati was No. 1 for the fifth straight week in the AP college basketball poll released today, Kentucky was not in the Top 25 for the first time in over nine years.

The Bearcats (7,0), who beat North Carolina and Mississippi Valley State last week, were again a runaway choice for the top spot, receiving 62 first-place votes and 1,740 points from the national media panel.

Stanford (6-0) beat Georgia Tech in overtime in its only game last week and moved up one place to No. 2 with eight first-place votes and 1,651 points.

No. 7 North Carolina extended the current longest streak to 167 polls today, and that is third on the all-time list behind the 221 of UCLA from 1966-80 and the 171 by North Carolina from 1972-82. The current Tar Heels moved past Marquette, which was in 166 consecutive polls from 1969-79.

Connecticut, which beat then-No. 2 Arizona in the Great Eight last week, jumped from sixth to No. 3 and was followed by Arizona, Michigan State, Duke, which has won six straight since opening the season with two losses, moved up three spots to lead the Second Ten and was followed by Ohio State, Tennessee, Oklahoma State, Texas, Maryland, Temple, UCLA, DePaul and Illinois.

The last five teams in the poll were Indiana, Gonzaga, Oklahoma, Purdue and Wake Forest.

Oklahoma (8-0) was the team that replaced Kentucky in the Top 25. The Sooners were last ranked early in the Deacons also fell from 18th to No. 25.

With Kentucky's departure from the rankings, Arizona, at 77, has the second longest current streak of consecutive polls, a run that dates to the first regular season poll of the 1995-96 season.

The week's biggest jump in the rankings was Maryland's climb from 21st to No. 15 after wins over Winthrop and Kentucky, the latter avenging one of the Terrapins' two losses this season.

The biggest drops were the seven-place falls by UCLA and Wake Forest.

claims world crown in NFR's bull riding

From staff and wire reports

While Fred Whitfield grabbed most of the headlines by become ing the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association's first black all-around champion, a former Howard College rodeo team member made a splash of his own in the bull riding at the National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegås last week.

Mike White, who earned 1997 PRCA rookie of the year honors after his two years at Howard College, won the world championship in bull riding with an impressive showing at the NFR.

The Lake Charles, La., native won $93,484 in the NFR, including the $33,105 for the average, to move from 12th to first in the world. White edged secondplace Vince Stanton of Weiser, Idaho, by $15,997.

"My goal was to ride all 10 bulls," said White, who won the average by being the only cow-even on my mind."

In the process of riding six bulls, White matched the highest scoring ride ever produced at the National Finals Rodeo, chalking up 95 points for his effort in the second performance.

White was one of three former Howard College cowboys that reached the PRCA's showcase.

Team roper Wayne Folmer of Lubbock, who went on to compete for Sul Ross University after two years at Howard College, made his first appearance at the National Finals Rodeo and made the most of it.

Folmer and teammate Steve Purcella of Hereford finished seventh in the team roping average, allowing him to finish fifth in the world standings in heeling with $100,754 in earnings this season.

Steer wrestler Byron Walker of Ennis, who attended Howard College in the 1970s and was the PRCA's 1981 world champion, also qualified for the NFR but did not finish among the top 10 in that event.

Whitfield, of Hockley, had a 9.8-second run in calf roping Sunday to finish out of the money in the final round of the NFR, but it was enough to win the average bonus of $33,105 and jump from third to first in standings with $191,727 in season earnings.

Whitfield is one of only a dozen black cowboys to have qualified for the NFR since its inception in 1959. The only other black cowboy to win an NFR event is bull rider Charles Sampson in 1982.

Whitfield had a season total of $217,818 in calf roping, steer roping and team roping. He only qualified for the NFR in calf roping.

"I never second-guessed myself," Whitfield said. "I was just out there to rope, rope, rope. I didn't draw very well all week, and when I did, I'd go for day money.

In bareback riding, Lan Lajeunesse of Morgan, Utah, won the world title by $821 ahead of Pete Hawkins of Weatherford. Lajeunesse finished out of the money Sunday, but was first in the average and earned $99,487 during the NFR to jump from 10th to first.

Mark Garrett of Nisland, S.D., won the final go-round with an boy to ride six bulls. "I didn't In saddle bronc riding. Billy this I had much of a chance to wor the world title. > The steer wrestling champion was Mickey Gee of Wichita Falls who won his first goround Sunday, but also won the average for a total of $77,244 in the NFR. He moved from 11th to first. Gee won the final round with a 3.6-second run.

> Team ropers Speed Williams of Jacksonville, Fla., and Rich Skelton of Llano won their third straight world championship. They also won the final go-round with a 4.0-second run. It was their sixth victory in 10 rounds.

> Williams and Skelton each won $94,108 in the NFR and $172,384 for the season. Jimmy Tanner of Tifton, Ga., and Brad Culpepper of Poulan, Ga., won the average

They have these slick goodbyes nowadays where a team sells out an arena for an evening, even though there's no game, and shows videotaped highlights of the retiree instead.

Hah! Just let some team try that with Charles Barkley.

It's not that he doesn't deserve his own night. Or that people in any of the three towns Barkley called home - Philadelphia, Phoenix and finally, Houston — wouldn't turn out. On the contrary. It's just there probably aren't three minutes of the Chuckster on film that would get past the NBA censor, let alone enough to fill up three hours. Barkley's retirement speech reminded us of that much.

'You have seen me go from a boy to a man." he said. "You saw me do some good things, some great things, some stupid things.

to 12th. Then it was LSU, Iowa senior, Edwina Brown.

Barkley went down with a ruptured tendon in a game against the 76ers last Wednesday night, in the early stages of a farewell tour that was supposed to last the entire season. He went on to Boston two nights later because a ceremony there had already been planned. but more likely because Barkley wanted to pay tribute to the fierce rivalry with the Celtics that had stoked him so back in his early pro days in Philly. Then he returned to Houston to go under the

As he limped out of Boston with a green piece of the Celtics' parquet floor under his arm, someone asked Barkley what he would focus on to make it through the grueling workouts to repair the knee.

"Skiing." he said.

You never knew if Barkley was telling the truth, or just saying the first funny thing that came into his head. Once it came out of his mouth, though, he swore by it; especially if it made for a good punch line.

In 1992, Barkley finished a war of words with 76ers management by insulting both general manager Gene Shue and owner Harold Katz sharply enough to get himself traded. At the Barcelona Olympics, he nearly started a war by flattening a skinny Angolan opponent with an elbow to the chest in the middle of a 46-1 run by the "Dream Team" and explaining it away as "a ghetto thing.

He came out of NBA commissioner David Stern's office so frequently with his wallet lightened that it became a game. Barkley either slammed a ref, slapped an opponent or said something he shouldn't have.

Cheerfully, he'd divulge the amount he'd just donated to charity and said it was worth every penny. But during one particularly expensive stretch, Barkley refused to say how much he'd been fined or to whom the money was going.

"I wanted it to go to the homeless, he said, "but at the rate things are going, they're going to have a better house than I will by the end of the sea-

His candor will be missed, but it's hard to imagine it will be missed for very long. Two months shy of his 37th birthday, Barkley was still producing 16 points and 11 rebounds, but he couldn't carry a team so early in a season without injured Hakeem Olajuwon for much longer. He will, on the other hand, be able to carry a television broadcast the day he decides to sit down in front of a microphone full time.

The search for his replacement is already under way. Barkley was the advice on how to handle a sticky situation with my inlaws. My husband's father carries a concealed handgun in his pocket, and in addition to this. his wife carries one in her purse. My father-in-law is in his early 70s, and it was not until recently that I learned they carried these loaded weapons everywhere they go. This includes our home. We have a child under the age of 1, and I am so afraid that the gun may go off while my father-inlaw is holding our child. The other possibility is that it may go off in a public place. My father-in-law does have a concealed gun permit, but the thought of his gun going off by accident and injuring our child or someone else has really upset me. My husband says if it bothers me, I should say something to his father. How should I bring this up to the in-laws if my husband will not talk to his dad about this?

I really do want to have a good relationship with my inlaws, but guns in my home or around my child at any time will not be tolerated. Please help! — DESPERATE IN DAL-LAS DEAR DESPERATE: Tell your pistol-packing in-laws that the world may be a dangerous and scary place, but they are safe when they are in the confines of your home. Then do what any saloon keeper in the Old West would do to safeguard the customers: Insist that they check their weapons at the door and put them in a place the toddler cannot possibly reach or get into.

DEAR ABBY: This letter is in response to the one you printed from the woman who signed herself "Lost in a around in-laws packing heat edly about a former boyfriend.

I can relate to her. When I was 13, I met my "first love." He was the same age. We lived 30 minutes from each other, but we corresponded through letters and saw each other at monthly youth functions. It lasted more than a year.

Because of circumstances beyond our control, we were forced to part. It was one of the hardest things I ever did. Neither one of us wanted to break it off, but it was something I just had to do. I saw him for the first time in about 10 years four years ago. It was very nice to see him again, but it brought back a lot of memo-

Now, 15 years from the time we broke up, I'm married and so is he. Like "Lost in a Dream," I have a wonderful marriage. But every so often I think of him and dream about him, and wonder "What if?" He was very special to me. Some people call it "puppy love," but it was real to me. And for a 14year-old, that was all that mattered. I want to tell "Lost in a Dream" that she is not alone. She is not a bad person for this. Anything can trigger dreams. I am just relieved to know that I am not the only person who experiences this. Thanks, Abby, for printing that letter. RELIEVED IN ORLANDO, FLA.

DEAR RELIEVED: You're -

welcome. I have a stack of letters from readers echoing your message to "Lost in a Dream." Dreams of a former romance are nothing to lose sleep over. However, if they are causing anxiety, it can't hurt to talk them over with a professional.

Ten years ago: A popular uprising that resulted in the downfall of Romania's Nicolae Ceausescu began as demonstrators gathered in Timisoara to prevent the arrest of the Reverend Laszlo Tokes, a dissident clergyman. Drug trafficker Gonzalo Rodriguez Gacha was killed in northern Colombia following a shootout with police.

Five years ago: President Clinton, in a 12-minute primetime address, presented a package of tax cuts for middleincome families raising children, and outlined deep reductions in government programs to help pay for them.

One year ago: President Clinton concluded his three-day Middle East journey on a disappointing note as Israel refused to resume the West Bank troop withdrawals called for under the Wye River peace accord; nevertheless, Clinton declared his trip a success.

It can start as a dare. Or youthful curiosity. Or it may be a way to escape problems at home. Whatever the reason, studies show that an alarming number of young children are trying drugs. Unfortunately, too many parents still do not believe that their children are at risk. The truth is, it's never too early to start teaching your kids about the dangers of drugs.

If you are not sure how to talk to them, call the Texas Prevention Partnership at 1-800-269-4237 and ask for the free booklet called "Growing Up Drug-Free- A Parent's Guide to Prevention. Call today because if you don't take care of little problems, they can easily grow into big ones.
