Not too early to start planning for that Valentine's Day surprise

By DEBBIE L. JENSEN
Features Editor

A little early to start planning for Valentine's Day? Not for Big Spring State Hospital volunteers.

The group is taking orders starting Thursday for its annual fundraiser, selling Valentine gifts and singing telegrams. Volunteers will deliver a variety of mugs, candy, stuffed animals, balloons and plants, or sing a love song to your special someone.

Orders will be taken until Valentine's Day, but early orders are advised since the gifts tend to sell out.

"We run out pretty quickly, and when our supplies are gone, they're gone," said Kathy Johnson, director of community development for the hospital.

For an $8 donation to volunteer services, you can arrange delivery of a terra cotta pot containing a living ivy plant, a holiday mug filled with homemade candy, a bud vase with two cut carnations, or a stuffed animal and a small box of Russell Stover candy.

"Everything is made up by our volunteers and delivered by them," said Johnson. "With the balloons attached, everything looks so festive."

If you prefer to make more of a scene, a group of vocalists will serenade your friend or loved one for a $20 donation. They will sing from a holiday repertoire of songs, visiting your Valentine at the office or even while eating lunch at a local restaurant.

Orders for singing telegrams especially should be placed early, so they can be scheduled, Johnson said.

While orders will be taken through Feb. 11 during business hours, they will also be taken

Sunday, Feb. 13 from 1-4 p.m. to accommodate last-minute shoppers.

To place an order or get more information, call 268-7535.

This fundraiser is one of the ways volunteers work each year to raise money for patient services, Johnson said. The 250-plus members of the volunteer council give parties, clothing and arrange for other special needs not covered in the hospital budget.

Jack and Jill Day Care prekindergarten and preschool classes toured Fire Station No. 2, where Big Spring Fire Department driver Mitch Gill demonstrated firefighting equipment to the 3-, 4- and 5-year-olds.

Big Spring Area Chamber directors look for positive activities, growth during 2000

By MARSHA STURDIVANT
Staff Writer

Members of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Wednesday headed into the new year with plans that brings 2000 into Big Spring in a big way.

"We're in a really good cash position and have enough money to last us the whole year," said chamber treasurer Mark Morgan.

And past president Chuck Williams said, "We're headed into another fun year."

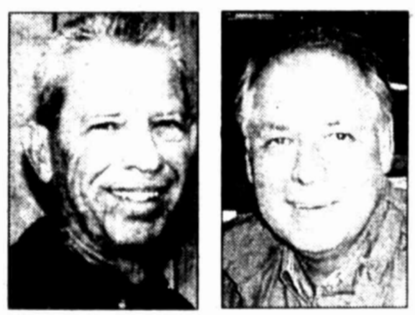

Vice president reports indicate that plans are being made for events throughout the year. Richard Steel, vice president of governmental affairs, said his goal is to have the transportation committee more active this year.

"And we had Charles Stenholm here last week, and that was well attended," Steel said.

Membership in the chamber declined in 1999, but executive vice president Terri Newton said she is hopeful that at the next year will see membership increase.

"We're going to spend the next several weeks working on membership and preparing for the year's events," Newton said.

John Weeks, vice president of

business development, said preparations for Business After Hours events are under way.

"We have great interest in this program, and many individuals are asking to host a Business After Hours. So we are looking at expanding the program and having more events," Weeks said.

Amber Rich, vice president for public affairs, said the chamber banquet earlier this month proved to be a success, and 272 people attended the evening event.

"I've hear good comments from many people, who said they enjoyed the different format and the entertainment by the Big Spring Symphony and Chorale," Purcell said.

Rich said plans are in the works for the annual Ag Expo and luncheon, set for March 23, and the Health Fair, set for April 15.

"This year the theme for the health fair will be cancer awareness," Rich said.

"We've decided to team up with local, state and national organization and have a specific topic to focus on each year with the health fair," Rich added.

Barbara Morrison, vice president for the Cultural Arts committee is set for later in January, and the convention and visitors bureau is focusing on coordinating events with one to two weeks, to help bring tourists to Big Spring.

"We'll know more about the Cultural Arts and the Sports Committee at the next meeting. Right now we are concentrating on rodeo days," Morrison said.

Weeks, general manager of KBST, offered his radio personality employees to help with the AM station that airs a continuous broadcast about chamber and community events.

"We'll take care of that if you'll get the information to us," Weeks said.

Newton said efforts are under way to place billboards that advertise the radio station.

And city manager Gary Fuqua said plans are still in the works to bring the Pioneer Plaza to downtown Big Spring.

Crime

Three adults, one juvenile in custody, charged with beating other individuals

LYNDEL MOODY

Big Spring police arrested three male adults and one juvenile late Wednesday on a charge of engaging in organized crime.

Lupe Hinojos, 26, Christopher Valencia, 17, Gene Hernandez, 19, and an unnamed juvenile were arrested by police for allegedly assaulting three individuals with a claw hammer and a table leg, according to Sgt. Roger Sweatt, Big Spring Police Department public information officer.

According to Sweatt, the victims — two adults and one juvenile — were taken to Scenic Mountain Medical Center, where they were treated for cuts and abrasions. One of the adult victims was transported to Odessa Regional Medical Center for treatment and later released.

Sweatt said police had responded to reports of a disturbance in the 1000 block of Main Street around 11 p.m.

"The officers found a little bit of blood and followed a blood trail until they approached two of the victims," Sweatt said. "The officers received a description from the victims of four suspects who committed the crime."

Police were able to locate the suspects at a residence on the north side of town, according to Sweatt.

The three adults are being held at the police station, awaiting arraignment, and the juvenile is currently being held at the juvenile detention center, according to Sweatt.

The two adult victims refused to further prosecute the case, but the juvenile has decided to press the case, according to Sweatt.

The case is still under investigation, and is currently being handling by Detective Lupe Liedecke, Sweatt said.

Police have received reports that the incident is a result of an ongoing disagreement between the alleged perpetrators and the victims.

"I would not say it was anything like a feud," Sweatt said.

"We have received reports from acquaintances who say this may have been ongoing from previous problems. The people involved may have had previous words."

Garrett estate contests ruling by Internal Revenue Service

By BILL McCLELLAN
News Editor

Dorothy D. Garrett's estate is prepared to go to court, if that's what it takes, to get the Internal Revenue Service off its back.

The estate has filed a petition asking the U.S. Tax Court to overturn a ruling by the IRS that the former Big Spring business woman made $5.03 million in property gifts to the Dorothy Garrett Family Partnership in 1995.

An attorney for the estate, Lawrence Sherlock, said there are two issues: one, that the estate and the IRS differ on the amount of a gift, and second, that the IRS contends there was a second gift.

"She made a gift in that year, valued and reported it on the return and paid taxes on it. The IRS says the gift that was made should have been made at a higher amount, and also says there was a much bigger gift," said Sherlock. "And we deny that."

A gift tax return was filed in 1995 for $590,147 in taxable gifts. However, the IRS contends the gift has been estimated by the IRS as closer to $1.05 million.

"I haven't see the appraisal the IRS is using, but I do think what we put on the return was correctly valued. So I think this

Autopsy ordered in unattended death of man, 41

An unattended death was reported by the Howard County Sheriff's Department Wednesday, and an autopsy has been ordered for 41-year-old Ollen Ray Mayo.

"I have ordered an autopsy because of his age, and I do not know at this time the cause of his death," said Justice of the Peace Marilyn Carson, who pronounced Mayo dead about 9 a.m. Wednesday.

Mayo's cause of death remains undetermined at this time, Carson said.

According to Carson, Mayo had a history of seizures and could not have been dead more than 12 hours.

"He (Mayo) was seen by at least two people in the afternoon the day before, about 5 p.m.," she said.

Mayo was found when a relative driving by his residence Wednesday morning noticed his lights were still on.

Mayo had a history of heavy sleeping and the relative stopped by because she was worried he had overslept, Carson said.

Chamber secretary Debbye Valverde described Kernick as enthusiastic and energetic, and her abilities should lend themselves well to her position at the center.

Kernick and her husband have a five month old son who was born just two weeks after they located to Big Spring.

Chamber executive vice president said seeking a caterer for the center has become a priority, and that while tea and coffee will still be available for patrons, a charge will be assessed for the beverages.

"Finding a caterer for the center has not been an easy job, and we have run into problems having our own caterer if a client chooses to have their event catered from the outside," Purcell said.

is over-reaching by the IRS," said Sherlock. "It's grossly overstated."

The IRS also claims that Garrett has made $5.64 million in taxable gifts during 1995, rather than the $590,147 claimed.

Sherlock said the second "gift" wasn't a gift at all, but a transfer of certain oil-producing funds to the family partnership.

BIG SPRING AROUND THE TOWN

"They are trying to tax the estate on a transfer which wasn't a gift at all," said Sherlock.

"Like any other estate, we filed the proper information and paid what we were told to pay. It seems like every time the IRS deals with an estate, they always like to go back and see what they can do about getting more money," said Stan Partee, co-executor of the estate.

"They want to see if there is a chance they can find some discrepancy. We are going to fight it in court if need be. We're fully prepared to do that," Partee added.

The IRS has 60 days to respond to the estate's petition, which was filed Jan. 3. If the parties fail to negotiate a settlement, the case could go before a tax court judge.

Lipscomb tells jurors the money he received never affected his vote

AMARILLO (AP) — Dallas city councilman Al Lipscomb's trial should go to the jury today following cross-examination of the 74-year-old, who decided to take the stand in his own defense.

Lipscomb is charged with 65 counts of bribery and corruption for accepting more than $36,000 in monthly payments from Yellow Checker Cab Co. owner Floyd Richards.

Lipscomb told jurors Wednesday that accepting money, food, clothing and other benefits is a way of life for him. He also said it was the way people who couldn't participate in his civic struggles to help him, while remaining in the background.

"Coming from my era ... I have always made it an effort to protect the people who have helped me in the struggle," the 74-year-old civil rights leader said. "Mr. Floyd, bless his heart, I know what my intentions were and I thought his were the same."

"In my heart, knowing Mr. Floyd, I thought his intentions were good. What caused him to change, I don't know."

Richards, of Dallas, pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy in exchange for his testimony Tuesday against Lipscomb. Federal prosecutors say the money affected the way Lipscomb cast his votes on taxicab related issues while serving his second term on the city council. The payments began prior to Lipscomb's re-election in 1995 and have continued until as recently as last week-end.

"On Saturday, I gave him $1,000 because I felt like he needed it," Richards told jurors during his testimony. Richards testified he gave the money to Lipscomb because he knew he needed it. He later said he expected Lipscomb would vote in his favor.

Lipscomb said he never did. "Emphatically NO,"

Lipscomb said when asked if the money he received from Richards influenced his votes. "Check the record on those things. My votes were to enhance the city of Dallas on every one of those issues."

Lipscomb acknowledged blanks on campaign finance reports had cast a cloud of suspicion over him. He said he put "not applicable" on the forms to protect those who had contributed to him.

He said the practice of protecting those who helped him became a way of life because of his experiences during the civil rights movement when whites like Richards would be called "nigger lovers" and Lipscomb may have been labeled an "Uncle Tom" by the black community for accepting money from him.

The Rev. Zan Holmes, a theology professor at Southern Methodist University, said Lipscomb's fears are very real.

"If it was known within the black community that you were receiving support, you would be considered a sell out," he said. "There would be blacks (during the civil rights movement) who would be very suspicious of an activist who received support from white individuals."

That continues today, Holmes said.

"I've been called in and questioned," the Methodist pastor said. "That would have been dealt with in our community."

Lipscomb said he realizes his actions look one way. But he told the jurors his intentions were the diametrical opposite.

"I can see now it takes more than your actions because there are some extended things such as those forms I should have filled out that I didn't," Lipscomb said. "In today's time of operating it takes more than it once did, or else you end up where I am now."

"I guarantee you, I would do every 'I, cross over 'I, and put an exclamation point," he said.

Drop in cigarette sales could cost state millions

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A nationwide drop in cigarette sales means Texas could lose as much as $104 million over the next two years as the tobacco industry readjusts the payments made to states for tobacco-related settlements, according to officials.

The possible shortfall is born out of a formula in the historic settlements that allows tobacco companies to reduce their payments after sales have markedly dipped.

According to figures released by the Texas comptroller's office, the state was expected to get $1.6 billion from the tobacco industry as the first installment of a multiyear settlement of litigation over tobacco-related health problems.

But because U.S. tobacco consumption has unexpectedly gone down 14 percent, the much ballyhooed $17.3 billion tobacco settlement could be reduced by 10 percent or more, said James LeBas, an investment analyst with the state comptroller.

For Texas, that means a shortfall of between $72 million and $104 million in tobacco payments over the next two years, LeBas told the San Antonio Express-News.

"We've got to anticipate that there is going to be some sort of reduction in the amount of money that is being paid to the state by the tobacco companies in future years," Sen. Royce West, D-Dallas, said last week.

But the funds already have been allocated, forcing lawmakers to brainstorm ways to make up the shortfall.

One possibility involves dipping into interest earned from endowments set up to create health initiatives across the state, including cancer research and expanded medical training, West said.

"That is assuming that we have, in fact, interest above and beyond what we appropriated," he said.

West vowed to make lawmakers examine all the implications of the tobacco settlement shortfall and the options used cover it.

James Guckian, the University of Texas System Vice Chancellor for Health Affairs, said he believed the interest from the endowment funds was to be rolled back into the funds to build them up.

The university system controls the majority of the endowments.

Even if it means less money to study cancer and other health initiatives, Bob Price, executive vice president of the UT Health Science Center, said the drop in tobacco sales is a good thing.

"If you look at it from the long haul, the result would be what we would want — that is greatly reduced tobacco consumption," Price said.

Figures released at the end of last year by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Economic Research Service showed cigarette consumption had already fallen 8.6 percent in 1999.

The continuing dip in sales has been attributed to marketing restrictions and a 50-cent-per-pack price increase that the tobacco companies implemented to pay for the settlements.

Officials said the shortfall should not affect funds from the settlement that were distributed to Texas counties.

Outspoken prisons official scheduled for board meeting

McALLEN (AP) — An outspoken Texas prisons official is expected to voice his complaints about inadequate guard training at the Texas Department of Criminal Justice Board meeting, which begins today.

Charles Godwin, director of training, is scheduled to appear before the board Friday, and he says he has a plan of action.

Today, board committees are set to meet in several sessions in McAllen.

It's unclear whether any of the committees will discuss Godwin's complaints, although the institutional division committee is to discuss training officers in hostage negotiation and crisis intervention.

Godwin is at the bottom of Friday's agenda and the board is also set to discuss "personnel matters" involving TDCJ Executive Director Wayne Scott, institutional division director Gary Johnson and Godwin in a closed executive session afterwards.

Godwin has taken his concerns about guard training to the media, going as far as demanding Scott's resignation.

"My thinking on it is, the correctional officers of Texas are being assaulted (by inmates) at unprecedented rates and with unprecedented violence," said Godwin, who began his career 21 years ago as a guard and has run the training program since 1994.

"You have to look not only at the number of assaults, but also at the nature of the assaults themselves."

Prison records show that inmates assaulted prison employees 1,649 times last year, compared to 720 attacks in 1995. Among the 1999 attacks was the slaying last month of guard Daniel Nagle at the McConnell Unit near Beville.

Guards have held rallies in recent weeks demanding better pay. They blame low wages for the prison system currently being short 1,700 officers.

A prison spokesman has denied Godwin's allegations of undertrained guards, although Scott is withholding comment until Friday.

Godwin said he will call for a pay raise "at least to the national average," increases in defensive tactics training, improved training facilities, class-size limits, improved employee retention and new safety measures for guards, such as body alarms and pepper spray.

Godwin already has sent a report he wrote on the subject to Gov. George W. Bush. A representative of Bush's office is expected to attend the McAllen meeting and report back to the governor, officials said.

A&M regents approve up to $1 million in spending on bonfire probe

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Texas A&M University System regents voted unanimously Wednesday to allow spending up to $1 million on a commission's efforts to find the cause of last year's deadly bonfire accident.

The independent commission, chaired by Houston construction executive Leo Linbeck Jr., has hired four high-profile consulting firms to investigate all aspects of the collapse of the 7,000-log bonfire stack. The Nov. 18 accident killed 12 Aggies and injured 27.

After the regents' meeting, A&M President Ray M. Bowen speculated that if the commission's expenses exceed $1 million, "it won't be much over."

"It is a lot of money, everybody knows that's a lot of money," he said. "But it's a big issue. We lost our students. We have an obligation to the families to provide good information about what caused this."

Contracts with the four consulting companies have not been finalized, in part because neither Bowen nor A&M System Chancellor Howard D. Graves had authority to approve contracts over $300,000.

The board of regents waived that policy for Graves Wednesday.

"What we are attempting to do is have the bonfire commission proceed in a timely and orderly fashion," Graves told the regents, "while at the same time we want to be responsible in our duties as a public institution responsible to the citizens of the state for being good stewards."

Asked how regents arrived at the $1 million spending limit, Graves said, "Obviously, we're in contact with the members of the commission, and that number wasn't just pulled out of the air."

Veterans Home construction a welcome sight

We realize work on the Big Spring Veterans Home has been going on since October, but the sight of framing finally going up on the residents' wings is certainly something to get excited about. It seems such a long time since groundbreaking was held at the site west of U.S. Highway 87 back in August of 1998.

Moving the project forward, of course, was the signing of the defense bill last November. Though some preliminary dirt work had started a month earlier, that's when things really began to get under way.

We expect that the project will begin to take shape quickly now, though the home's opening isn't anticipated until mid-November.

We've mentioned it before, but the Big Spring Veterans Home is about as positive an endeavor as one could ask for. In fact, it's hard to find anything negative about the project.

First, construction of the 76,000-square-foot facility represents more than 100 jobs locally, for most of a calendar year. Secondly, the home will add a minimum of 150 jobs to the local payroll — and we've heard that number could actually exceed 200.

Once built, other local businesses will benefit from the home, this boosting their business.

Finally, and most importantly, the home will give 160 or more veterans a place to receive the care they need and deserve. Our motels, restaurants and other businesses will benefit from the families who come to visit their loved ones.

Lastly is the pride we all have from knowing that the hard work put in on bringing the home to Big Spring has paid off.

Watching the facility rise from the West Texas dirt is going to be fun. Knowing what it took to get it here, and the rewards it brings to not only Big Spring, but to the entire area, will be even better.

A new curator for a prestigious old home

When last I saw Bill Griffith, he was frowning and bouncing on the balls of his feet, testing a weak spot in the front lobby floor of Rowan Oak.

A literary shrine without a good foundation is not a good idea.

A quiet, deliberate sort, Griffith, 32, is approaching his new job as curator of the William Faulkner home in a way it's never been approached. His background is not English, and he readily admits he "can't talk seriously about the Snopes trilogy."

What Griffith does know is the science of museums — how to take care of, display and interpret the precious physical things in the South's most sacred literary landmark. And how to preserve the house itself.

At this point in the long life of Rowan Oak, Griffith seems like an excellent choice.

An anthropology and museum studies graduate of Southern Illinois University, Griffith recently replaced curator and novelist Cynthia Shearer, who had been at Rowan Oak since 1993. Her background was in English and grant writing, but Cynthia had inventoried the house for the first time ever and pushed hard for the idea of hiring a trained museum hand as her replacement.

Griffith, formerly the collections manager of the University of Mississippi Museums, was one of 72 applicants for the job.

There were a few surprises, none of them unpleasant, during his first month, Griffith told me.

"I'm surprised how many visitors come from the Midwest and West, for one thing," he says. "For some reason, I had assumed the majority of people would be from the South."

"When there's a football game, we stay busy all day. The fans of the visiting team all flock to Rowan Oak."

Pilgrims to Rowan Oak encounter their own surprises. "Most are amazed that the house has a history that predates Faulkner."

(Rowan Oak was built in the 1840s by Col. Robert Shoggo. When Faulkner bought it in 1930, it was known as The Old Bailey Place and was practically falling down.)

Faulkner gave it loving care and the name "Rowan Oak" after the legend of the Rowan tree in Sir James Frazer's "The Golden Bough." The story goes that Scottish peasants placed a cross of Rowan wood over their thresholds to ward off evil spirits and give them peace and privacy.)

Visitors often marvel at the plain, rather sparse furnishings. The Faulkners evidently had simple tastes.

Griffith says about 15 percent of the guests decline his new tour, which is more historical than literary, "but that doesn't hurt my feelings." Passionate, hard-core Faulkner buffs often prefer, he says, to fly solo through the rooms where the writer found peace and privacy.

An avid angler and hunter — not to mention a newlywed; his wife, Ashley, is a nurse — Griffith has resigned himself to missing a few seasons in the great outdoors. He finds by midweek he's put in at least 40

RHETA GRIMSLEY JOHNSON

Health is cheap, but disease is not

As the two Democratic presidential candidates compete in promising Americans health care, it's a good idea to remember that health is cheap. It's disease and injury that are expensive.

Aside from our genes, over which we have no control, the factors of good health are sound nutrition, moderate exercise, eight glasses of water a day and the personal choice not to indulge in substances or practices that will injure our health. Following these practices, of course, will not always prevent infection either by bacteria or viruses.

But we should always make a distinction between health and treatment of disease and injury. You need a doctor for treatment of disease and injury. All you need for health is common sense and enough money to buy healthy food.

Of course, the Democrat wannabes — Bill Bradley and Al Gore — are, as usual, simply ignoring the main problem with the disease-and-injury treatment system in the United States.

That main problem is the very high costs. It's no surprise that politicians ignore the problem of high costs because they are the ones who are mainly responsible for it.

Conservatives need to realize that talk of a free-market disease-and-injury treatment system is pointless. No free-market system exists, and it is politically impossible to return to it. The first nail in the coffin of free-market medicine was private health insurance, which introduced the third-party payer system. A true free market is when patient and doctor negotiate the fees for service. Private insurance, which became prevalent after World War II, ended that.

Because as long as the doctor was willing to accept the fee set by the insurance company, the patient didn't care what it cost. A $10 procedure for which insurance companies were willing to pay $100 became a $100 procedure.

The stake through the heart of what was left of a free-market system were Medicaid and Medicare, enacted by Congress during the Lyndon Johnson administration.

Now you had socialized medicine for the poor, socialized medicine for the elderly and third-party payer insurance for the leftovers in the middle. Every incentive for reducing the costs of treating disease or injury had been removed. Now add the factor of consistent monetary inflation.

As a result, costs began a steady escalation to the point that today, all but multimillionaires can be bankrupted by serious surgery and a few days in the intensive-care section.

Thus, we have achieved the worst of both systems. We have the rationing and regimentation and high taxes of the socialized system and the greed and profiteering of the capitalistic system.

It's too bad American politicians are so dishonest. When Medicaid and Medicare costs got so high, they started forcing people into health maintenance organizations. Of course, they neglected to say that the whole purpose of a HMO is to ration treatment.

As soon as people complained about that, the politicians acted as if they had never heard of HMOs and starting promising to rescue people from these alien invaders.

What a crock of bull that is. It seems to me that the only solution is a uniform, government-paid system of insurance for the whole population.

There's no way you're going to find Congress willing to repeal Medicaid and Medicare, so we might as well include the people in the middle who now are paying for their own care, as well as the care for the poor and the elderly.

But everybody going in should recognize that it means rationing treatment and a reduction of personal choices; not to mention a tax burden.

I don't see any other doable solution. This solution need not be the bureaucratic monster created by Hillary Clinton and her neo-Marxist friends, however.

South Carolina governor says Confederate battle flag must be moved COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hodges has announced that the Confederate battle flag should be removed from the Capitol dome, his boldest statement yet on the issue and one that drew immediate criticism for its lack of specifics.

In his State of the State address Wednesday, Hodges said it was time to resolve the dispute that has led a national civil rights group to boycott South Carolina amid charges of racial insensitivity.

"Let's resolve this issue," the Democrat said to applause

Wednesday night. "We must move the flag from the dome to a place of historical significance on the Statehouse grounds. The debate over the Confederate flag has claimed too much of our time and energy."

GOP leaders appeared lukewarm about the proposal.

"I think we all expected him to come out with a specific plan, to say this is what I think should happen and I'm going to call on both sides to come to that point," said Republican House Speaker David Wilkins of Greenville. "We didn't get that We didn't get anything new."

As a state legislator, Hodges supported previous attempts to remove the flag, and earlier this year said he personally did not think it should fly above the dome. His address came two days after nearly 50,000 people rallied on the Statehouse lawn, urging the Legislature to bring the flag down.

The flag was raised in 1962 to commemorate the Civil War centennial, and South Carolina's Legislature has the sole power to remove it. Legislative leaders have said in recent days that the question is no longer if it will come down, but where on Statehouse grounds the flag will be displayed afterward.

"The question of what to do about the flag is one of South Carolina's thorniest issues. Hodges' predecessor, Republican Gov. David Beasley, has said his public support for removing the flag was partly to blame for his election loss.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which helped organize Monday's Martin Luther King Day rally, has urged tourists to boycott South Carolina because it flies flag, which the group considers a racist symbol.

"The entire nation is watching and listening to us," Hodges said. "Most importantly, South Carolina's children are watching and listening to us."

Hodges also said South Carolina should recognize King Day as an official state holiday. It is currently an optional holiday for state employees, who also can pick several Confederate holidays or a day of their choice.

Also on Wednesday, the wife of Republican presidential candidate and Texas Gov. George W. Bush rejected arguments that the flag is racist.

"It is not a symbol of racism," Laura Bush told television station WOLO as she campaigned in South Carolina for her husband. "I grew up in south Texas. It's just a fine in our history that we can't erase."

President Clinton's spokesman Joe Lockhart said Tuesday that the president "thinks the flag shouldn't be flown."

Dietary standards to specify new alcohol recommendation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nutrition experts rewriting the nation's dietary guidelines will likely specify for the first time who might benefit from moderate consumption of alcohol: middle-aged men and women.

The proposed new guidelines, expected to be made public soon by an 11-member advisory committee, also will tell Americans to cut down on foods rich in saturated fats such as meat and dairy products, according to a working draft of the standards.

They will include a change in wording intended to make it easier for consumers to adhere to the maximum fat intake — renaming the maximum as "moderate" in fat, instead of "low in fat, according to a working draft of the new standards.

The revised guidelines also will put more emphasis on eating whole grains, fruits and vegetables and will include a special section on food safety.

"These guidelines will be better than they have ever been," Margo Wootan, a senior scientist with the Center for Science in the Public Interest, a nutrition advocacy group, said Wednesday.

First published in 1980, the guidelines are revised every five years to reflect the latest developments in scientific research.

Federally funded nutrition programs, including school lunches and Meals on Wheels, are required to adhere to the recommendations, and they are also widely used by professionals and dietitians in advising consumers.

As for alcohol intake, the existing guideline says "moderate drinking is associated with a lower risk for coronary heart disease in some individuals."

The draft guideline specifies who those individuals are — men over 45 and women over 55 — and says there is "little health benefit for younger people."

Moderate drinking is defined as one drink a day for women and no more than two daily for men.

The current guidelines on fat recommend that people follow a diet that is low in total fat. The new recommendation is for a diet that is "moderate in total fat," but low in saturated fat and cholesterol.

The recommended maximum fat intake will not change; it will remain 30 percent of total calories, or 65 grams a day in a 2,000-calorie diet.

Research by the food industry indicates consumers are put off by the term low-fat and see a moderate-fat diet as easier to follow, even if the fat content is the same.

FCC expected to allow 'very local' FM radio stations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cajun, zydeco, swamp pop, jazz, rock. The Louisiana music scene boasts a range of styles that the state's artists work to keep alive each day.

But getting the eclectic mix of music onto the airwaves poses another challenge altogether.

"A lot of Louisiana music falls through the cracks because of commercial radio programming," said Steve Picou, assistant director of the Louisiana Music Commission.

Federal regulators are poised to move ahead with a plan that could help the music commission and hundreds of other groups tap into local interests: the creation of low-tech FM radio stations.

A proposal that would allow for at least 1,000 low-power FM stations run by community groups, churches and schools to spring up nationwide was expected to win approval today from the Federal Communications Commission.

It would mark one of the most significant changes in FM radio in decades.

The plan would let groups obtain noncommercial licenses for 10-watt and 100-watt stations and tailor their broadcasts to the interests of people in their listening areas. The power of current FM stations ranges from 6,000 watts up to 100,000 watts.

The plan has faced opposition from commercial broadcasters, who fear low-power stations would interfere with existing FM stations.

One strong proponent is the FCC chairman, Bill Kennard, who hopes the plan would allow for greater diversity on the airwaves at a time when the media industry is consolidating.

"The airwaves can accommodate lots of voices," Kennard said Wednesday.

He hopes the low-power stations "will allow some of these nontraditional voices to speak to their community."

For example, high schools could set up their own radio stations or local broadcasters could serve non-English speaking groups or distinct musical interests in their regions, Kennard said.

A 100-watt station, using a 100-foot antenna, could serve a 7-mile area, according to FCC officials. Smaller stations of 10 watts would cover a 4-mile radius.

Kennard estimates these power levels will allow for at least 1,000 new stations around the country. The plan will contain some limitations on the number of licenses a single entity can own and will have some requirements to ensure that license holders have a base in the local community, according to Kennard.

Opponents such as the National Association of Broadcasters have commissioned studies to document what they say would be the degradation in service to listeners that could result from such low-power stations.

Circumstantial evidence convicts teen in dad's death

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A widowed mother cried out in anguish Wednesday after a Bexar County jury convicted her teenage son of killing his father at the family home more than a year ago.

"Oh, dear God, no!" cried Madeline Vaughn after the verdict against Brian Vaughn, 17. "I can't lose them both."

For his own part, the defendant reacted to the verdict first with a faint look of surprise, then weeping as bailiffs handcuffed him for his trip to Bexar County Jail.

The trial's sentencing phase is set to begin today. The teen could be sentenced to five to 99 years in prison for the murder of Leslie Vaughn, but juries can recommend probation.

The San Antonio criminal defense lawyer was found shot in the head Nov. 10, 1998, at the couple's Bexar County home. His son maintained his innocence when he testified on his own behalf Tuesday.

From the start, prosecutors told jurors their case was circumstantial: They produced no gun, no bloody clothes, no damning DNA evidence.

Instead, Brian Vaughn's own words proved his guilt, said Assistant District Attorney Jill Mata in her closing argument. "He killed his father that night, and he will not take responsibility for it," Ms. Mata told jurors.

The teen testified he heard a "pop" about 1:30 a.m. the morning his father's body was found. Concerned, he gathered his younger brother from elsewhere in the house to his own bedroom, then went to check on the father. He said he heard snoring, so he went back to his room.

Minutes later, he grew alarmed when he heard the snoring get louder and "wet," so he once again moved his brother and returned to his father's door. He got no answer when he called out through the locked door, he testified.

Next, he called 911, hustled his brother to a neighbor's house, and returned home to await authorities and his mother, a nurse who was working a night shift.

But prosecutors said Brian, then 16, shot his father and staged the killing to look like a break-in. They say he threw a rock through the glass balcony doors in the master bedroom after the shooting, then took his brother to neighbors and called 911 only after returning home.

In his closing argument, defense attorney Ed Bartolomei focused on the timing of events that followed the "pop" noise. He said neighbor Elliott Floyd had to be wrong about the time the brothers got to his house, because it didn't fit with the rest of Floyd's time line for when he showed up at the Vaughn house.

Meanwhile, defense attorneys scoffed at the notion that Brian Vaughn had reason to kill his father. They also suggested sloppy police work might have buried evidence of the real killer.

Slow learners don't profit from repeat of school grade

QUESTION: Is retention in the same grade ever advisable for a child who is not a late bloomer? How about the slow learner?

DR. DOBSON: There are some students who can profit from a second year at the same grade level, and many who will not. The best guideline is this: Retain only the child for whom something will be different next year.

A youngster who is sick for seven months in a academic year might profit from another run through when he or she is healthy. And as I've indicated, a late-developing child should be held back in kindergarten (or the first grade at the latest) to place him or her with youngsters of comparable development.

For the slow learner, however, the child who has below-average ability -- a second journey through the same grade will not help. If he was failing the fourth grade in June, he will continue to fail the fourth grade in September. The findings from research on this issue are crystal clear.

DR. JAMES DOBSON

the curricular content of each grade level is very similar to the year before and the year after. There is considerable redundancy in the concepts taught; the students in each grade are taken a little further, but much of the time is spent in review. The arithmetical methods of addition and subtraction, for example, are taught in the primary years, but considerable work is done on these tasks in the sixth grade, too.

Thus, the most unjustifiable reason for retention is to give the slow learner another year of exposure to easier concepts. He will not do better the second time around! Nor is there much magic in summer school. Some parents hope that a six-week program in July and August will accomplish what was impossible in the 10 months between September and June. They are often disappointed.

QUESTION: You have suggested that women should seek to meet their emotional needs outside of marriage. What do you mean?

DR. DOBSON: This principle is particularly important with regard to an emotionally vulnerable woman who is married to a stoic, unromantic man. If she looks to him as the provider of all adult conversation and the satisfier of every emotional need, their marriage

Two musicians make all-state 50 junior high band members make all-region

Two local high school students will take their place among the best when the All-State Band and All-State Choir perform next month in San Antonio.

Laura Davis, a senior Big Spring choir student, placed among the top alto II singers in the state. The daughter of Sheryl Allen and Robby Davis, she has been in choir since the sixth grade.

"I was the last to sing, so my nervousness kept building," she said. Laura's audition included two pieces from Mozart.

Valeria Aguirre, a junior trumpet player in the Steer Band, will perform with the state ensemble after scoring among the top three in the area.

She is the daughter of J.J. and Esthela Aguirre.

"I wasn't that nervous," she said of her audition. "It wasn't anything new."

Both Laura and Valeria will join their all-state honor ensembles for a performance during the weekend of Feb. 12-13, as part of the Texas Music Educators Association convention.

Meanwhile, other local high school band and choir students are busy preparing for solo and ensemble competitions.

Junior high band members are celebrating their success at the recent all-region band tryouts. Fifty of the local kids earned spots in the top band, more than at any time in recent memory.

"We think this shows the quality of kids we have," said band director Ray Weaver, one of four directors who work as a team to lead both the junior high and high school bands. "With this new facility (at Big Spring Junior High) and the ability we have to work individually with our players, we are excited about this group."

Among the other competing schools, including Andrews, Pecos and Fort Stockton, the closest in number was Andrews, which gained 31 seats in the honor band.

Death notices

How they can help reconstruct a family

One of the best ways to reconstruct your family is by using death notices. With information from the death notices of various family members, you can reconstruct your family.

By watching for people's names that are not listed, you can get an estimate of a death date. If your relative was listed in a death notice of 1951, but was not listed in a notice of 1955, this indicates that the person most likely died between those dates. If you cannot find that person listed in death records in the state where he was associated, you may have to try looking in another. Often the death notices will help you track where your relatives lived.

Some states will list the deaths in indexes, others will not. If you are lucky enough to live in a state that does have the indexes, as we in Texas do, then this can save you years of research. The Texas State library in Austin has the indexes. The information listed in the indexes varies.

The earlier ones listed the death date and the county, but often not the spouse or parent. The more recent index in Austin will list the spouse, the parents, and the birthdate. They also have the file number of the certificate, which is at the Texas Department of Health also in Austin.

By using the information your gather from the indexes for deaths, you can order the death certificate and death notice. Most newspapers now days are microfilmed. Many of the earlier papers were not.

One source for newspaper accounts of people in Texas is the Eugene C. Barker library on the campus of The University of Texas at Austin. They are indexed, but to what extent I do not know. When I asked for the surname Rawls, they found 20-some-odd instances for the name from the 1830s until just after the turn of the century.

They included Rawls that were listed with the troops in various companies of Austin's army. Among other notices, there was a fire in Dallas that consumed the home of Silas Rawls, civil war troops among other entries on the Rawls family. This can be very enlightening.

It takes many years of work and a tenacious attitude to get the best results in your quest for knowledge of your ancestors. The more you put in, the more you get out. Taking short cuts can save years of research, but be sure to get documentation yourself, and making sure you are on track.

Mass hysteria: Study examines dynamics of incidents

By JEFF DONN

Associated Press Writer

It started with nothing more dramatic than a funny smell.

A teacher noticed it first in a school kitchen. She felt sick to her stomach. Several of her students felt strange. Soon, by the dozens, students throughout the school complained of nausea, dizziness, headaches and drowsiness.

Before it was over, more than 170 students, teachers and others sought emergency treatment during the November 1998 outbreak at Warren County High School in McMinnville, Tenn. The school of 2,000 students was closed for more than two weeks. Nearly $100,000 was spent on emergency care alone.

A raft of government investigators studied the school grounds and analyzed blood samples. They examined puddles and grease traps and even checked an air space above the foundation. They looked for viruses, germs, pesticides, herbicides, poisons -- anything that could conceivably make so many people ill so quickly.

They found... nothing. In an article published in a recent New England Journal of Medicine, they blame the outbreak on mass hysteria -- real symptoms set off by spreading anxiety.

The investigators say such outbreaks

Hundreds of outbreaks of mass hysteria have been documented over the past century, often among schoolchildren, soldiers and factory workers.

are much more common than recognized at schools and in other close-knit communities. And, they say, cases of mass hysteria -- now called "psychogenic illness" -- will probably become more frequent and more severe with rising public worry over biological terrorism.

New technology may also be promoting new forms of hysteria. Dr. Ron House, a University of Toronto researcher who has studied mass hysteria in Canada, said Internet messages about real or imagined symptoms of conditions like chemical sensitivity now appear to be touching off such outbreaks in people at great distances from one another.

The phenomenon, though, has long historical roots. Hundreds of outbreaks of mass hysteria have been documented over the past century, often among schoolchildren, soldiers and factory workers. Some historians attribute a feverish medieval mania of jerky movements, known as Saint Vitus' Dance and once blamed on demons, largely to mass hysteria.

"In a previous era, spirits and demons oppressed us. Although they have been replaced by contemporary concerns about invisible viruses, chemicals and toxins, the mechanisms of contagious fear remain the same," said Dr. Simon Wessely of Guy's School of Medicine in London.

The Tennessee investigators are emphatic in saying that no virus, chemical or toxin spread the illness through the school.

"We did the most thorough environmental and epidemiological study that was humanly possible," said Dr. Timothy Jones, a federal epidemiologist now at the Tennessee Department of Health and lead author of the report.

He said it is still possible the outbreak was touched off by a real chemical smell, though such a chemical was never discovered. But he said mass hysteria soon took over and brought on the vast share of illness.

The investigators found some classic hallmarks of contagious anxiety: Victims were about three more times more likely than others to have seen another sick person or to know that a classmate was ill. Sixty-nine percent were women, compared with 52 percent of the school population.

Psychogenic illness is imperfectly understood. Females have long been thought prone to it, though some experts now dismiss that as the bias of male researchers. Others suggest that working women feel less control over their environment than men -- another classic factor in hysteria. Outbreaks, often worsened by news reports, are also thought to be more likely in groups under great psychological or physical stress.

The impact was so profound at the Tennessee school that it remains a sensitive topic for Principal George Bolding.

He said he smelled an odor himself and came down with a headache. But he agrees that the outbreak later did turn into hysteria. "Kids are unreal about copying," he said. "They see someone get sick, and they get sick."

Researchers say outbreaks can sometimes be stemmed with fast reassurances. But people often resist the mass-hysteria explanation, because they find it embarrassing. Also, there are real environmental and biological threats that often can't be ruled out without time-consuming tests.

'Killer' asteroids not as common as thought

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Earth may be threatened by fewer killer asteroids than astronomers thought.

Scientists had estimated that 1,000 to 2,000 mountain-sized asteroids periodically cross Earth's orbit. That translated into about a 1 percent chance in the next 1,000 years of one of those asteroids slamming into Earth with catastrophic consequences.

New research suggests that Earth shares the inner solar system with only half as many of these large, "near-Earth" asteroids -- about 700.

Though the new findings cut in half the chances of a giant asteroid collision in the thousand-year time-frame, that doesn't mean humans can let their guard down when it comes to watching the skies for potentially life-snuffing asteroids, said David Rabinowitz of Yale University, the study's co-author.

"I'm not getting any more sleep knowing this. I'm just happy that we're well on our way to finding most of these asteroids," he said.

The asteroids being counted have diameters between two-thirds of a mile to six miles, or big enough to wreak global disaster if they smacked into the planet.

Rabinowitz and colleagues at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory reported their findings in a recent issue of the journal Nature.

They used a one-meter telescope in Hawaii that is equipped with a highly sensitive device that captures digital images of the night sky.

A few years ago, astronomers had to perform that task themselves by laboriously comparing photos -- a time-consuming chore prone to error.

Senior Deidra Hirt and freshmen Bonnie Pelzel and Chelsea Schwartz, along with high school band members, cheerleaders and dancers from across the United States, performed during the parade, pre-game and half-time shows.

While there, the three Garden City girls were treated to a meal at "Medieval Times" and visited "Southfork Ranch" for New Year's Eve. Between practices for the show, they had time to visit the Galleria, the West End and the Sixth Floor Museum.

can quickly run aground. He has no clue about how to deal with her "soul hunger" or how to make her happy. When she begins to realize that he will never be what she wants of him, discontent begins to brew in the relationship.

What can be done, then? A woman with a normal range of emotional needs cannot simply ignore them. Something deep within her cries for fulfillment. One answer is for women in this situation to supplement what their husbands can give by cultivating meaningful female relationships. Having lady-friends with whom they can talk heart to heart, laugh and cry, and raise their children can be vital to mental health.

That is precisely how women dealt with social needs in centuries past. Men worked 60 or 70 hours per week and had little time or energy for what might be called romantic activities. But a well-integrated society of women filled the void. They worked together, reared babies together, cooked and canned together, and went to church together. And somehow, it was enough.

Why does feminine society not exist in the same way today? Because many women are employed (the neighborhoods are empty) and because the world has become so mobile. The extended family has disintegrated and the culture has moved on. Thus, female companionship is often difficult to find, and many younger women, especially those with two or more preschoolers, abandon the search for friendship. It is simply too much trouble.

To the young wives who are reading these words, I urge you to invest some time in your female friends - even though you are all busy. Resist the temptation to pull into the walls of your home and wish for someone to talk to. Stay involved as a family in a church or a club that meets social needs. Remember that you are surrounded by many other women with similar feelings. Find them. Care for them. Give to them. And in the process, your own self-esteem will rise. Then when you are content, your marriage will also flourish.

It sounds simplistic, but that's the way we are made. We are designed as social creatures who don't do well in isolation. Don't let that happen to you.

Jones progressing slowly in search for new Cowboys coach

IRVING (AP) — A few chats with friends and former employees is about the extent of Jerry Jones' work so far to find a fourth coach in his 11 years as owner of the Dallas Cowboys.

Since firing Chan Gailey last week, Jones has slowly started putting together a list of candidates through visits with colleagues at NFL meetings in New York and the Senior Bowl in Mobile, Ala.

Who is on the list remains a secret.

Jones has given few hints and no timetable for ending his search. He took 34 days two years ago, an eternity compared to his slam-dunk selections of Jimmy Johnson in 1989 and Barry Switzer in '94.

Jones has not returned phone calls from The Associated Press, but while in Mobile he told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram: "I find coaches and scouts to be extremely candid with their comments. In a forum like this, there isn't a lot of sensitivity, and so their comments are especially objective."

The Senior Bowl is a chance for college players to strut their stuff for NFL officials. The gathering also makes it easy for Jones to ask other organizations for permission to interview members of their coaching staffs, some of whom may already be in Mobile.

On Monday, Jones sought advice — not resumes — from former Dallas offensive coordinator Ernie Zampese and former Cowboys tight ends coach Robert Ford. Zampese holds the same job in New England and Ford is Miami's receivers coach.

Jones wanted to know about other coaches around the league who are familiar with the offense Dallas used to win Super Bowls in 1992, '93 and '95.

Zampese is the grandfather of the timing-based scheme, having taught it to Norv Turner before he became the Cowboys' offensive coordinator. Turner then became Washington's head coach in '94 and Zampese replaced him in Dallas.

Zampese and Ford, who joined the staff in '91, were among a group of coaches swept out when Switzer left following the '97 season.

There are five NFL assistants well-versed in the Zampese-Turner offense:

Ford, New England quarterbacks coach Jack Reilly, Washington quarterbacks coach Rich Olson and receivers coach Terry Robiskie and St. Louis quarterbacks coach John Ramsdell.

Reilly was Dallas' quarterbacks coach in 1997 and he's been with Zampese at the Patriots the last two years. The pair have been friends more than 20 years.

Gailey was both head coach and offensive coordinator in Dallas, so both jobs are open.

If he hires another team's position coach to be offensive coordinator, Jones would likely promote a current staff member to head coach. Defensive coordinator Dave Campo and special teams

Howard squads set to host NMJC

By JOHN A. MOSELEY

Sports Editor

Howard College's Hawks and Lady Hawks draw another Western Junior College Athletic Conference (WJAC) challenge tonight when they play host to New Mexico Junior College's Thunderbirds and Lady Thunderbirds.

It's the 6 p.m. opener at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum that pits the Lady Hawks and Lady Thunderbirds that promises to be the most competitive game of the day.

At least that's the way Lady Hawks head coach Ron Mayberry sees things — even though his Howard team enters the game sitting atop of the WJAC women's standings with a 15-4 record overall and 3-0 conference mark, while NMJC enters the game with a 1-2 conference slate and 6-10 on the season.

But records can be deceiving, and Mayberry will quickly remind anyone who'll listen that win-loss records don't mean anything.

What is meaningful, Mayberry maintains, is how the Lady Hawks have fared against the Lady T-Birds this season — a one-point scrimmage loss and a two-point win in a pre-conference game.

Those results are anything to swagger about.

"Believe me, New Mexico is just about even with us, they've proven that the two times we've stepped on the floor with them," Mayberry said following the Lady Hawks' practice session Wednesday afternoon.

"In fact, they've been a lot like us," he added. "They've been a hot and cold team all year long. They opened conference with an 85-67 win over South Plains, then lost up at Frank Phillips when they had to go up to Borger."

The Lady Thunderbirds' loss to Frank Phillips, a team the Lady Hawks beat 85-45 on Monday night, was not really a surprise to Mayberry.

"You can't look at their loss to Frank Phillips and expect that to be indicative of what they'll do here Thursday," he explained. "Sure, I expected them to beat Frank (Phillips), but you're never surprised when somebody loses up there in Borger. If you don't go up there prepared and don't do what you're supposed to do, you're going to lose to Frank Phillips in their gym."

What's more important to the Lady Hawks coach is how his team will play.

"The importance is whether we show up and play our 'A' game or our 'B' game," Mayberry said. "We've already shown that we're capable of beating anyone in this conference and that we're just as capable of losing to anyone in the league on a given night. That's why we can't afford to be overly confident."

"For the first 12 minutes or so Monday night, we kind of played our 'B' game and Howard guard Taneisha Harris (11) pulls up in the crease and hits a jumper between Frank Phillips defenders Tonya Robertson (23) and Melissa Kennear during the first half of the Lady Hawks 85-45 win over the Lady Plainsmen. The Lady Hawks play host to New Mexico Junior College's Lady Thunderbirds at 6 tonight in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Frank Phillips was able to play with us," he explained. "But once we stepped it up a notch ... started playing our 'A' game, we blew them out."

"What we've got to do is demand the very best of ourselves all the time," Mayberry added. "So far, we haven't gotten to that point. Unless we change that, we're always going to be vulnerable."

While the evening's opener figures to be a contest of similar teams, the nightcap will pit a couple of teams with somewhat different styles, according to Hawks head coach Tommy Collins.

Duke needs overtime to win 27th straight in ACC play

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

One of the most impressive streaks in college basketball was kept alive with one of the wildest finishes of the season. Duke blew a five-point lead in the final 9.6 seconds of regulation, but the fifth-ranked Blue Devils came up big in overtime for a 92-88 victory over North Carolina State.

The win was Duke's 27th straight in the Atlantic Coast Conference, tying the record set by North Carolina State from 1972-75. The Blue Devils (14-2, 5-0), who won their 14th straight overall and 44th straight at home, can break the record Saturday at Wake Forest.

"Any time you can win 27 in a row in this great league, it says you're playing hard all the time, 110 percent every time you step out on the court," said Chris Carrarwell, Duke's only senior, who finished with a career-high 30 points and played all 45 minutes.

Carrarwell had five points in overtime, one less than freshman teammate Carlos Boozer, who finished with 24 points.

"Carrarwell was a magnificent warrior," Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "I was truly honored to be his coach. He has developed into such a tough kid."

Oklahoma State dumps Texas

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oklahoma State's Desmond Mason couldn't be stopped, scoring 14 points in a row at one point in the first half and then getting another eight straight to start the second.

By the time it was over Wednesday night, he had 30 points in helping lead his 12th-ranked Cowboys to a 73-65 Big 12 victory over No. 14 Texas.

Mason broke out after scoring a total of just 20 points in his team's three previous games.

"A player like that's not going to slump too long," said Texas center Chris Mihm, who led his team with a season-high 24. "He came out and really lit it up."

In other conference games, Jaquay Walls scored 28 as Colorado won its first Big 12 game of the season, an 88-80 upset of 17th-ranked Oklahoma. Nebraska, also winning for the first time in the conference, got 18 points from reserve Louis Truscott in beating Texas Tech 70-67, and surprising Iowa State, unranked but tied with Kansas for the Big 12 lead, won its 13th in a row, a 72-61 victory at Kansas State.

Texas (11-5, 3-1 Big 12) had been holding opponents to 39 percent shooting, and the Oklahoma State players over that Mason combined to shoot just 32 percent (12-of-37).

throws on the technical and two on the ensuing possession.

But after a layup by Marshall Williams of the Wolfpack and a turnover by Duke with 2.8 seconds left, Shane Battier fouled Gainey from 3-point range with 0.8 seconds left.

The senior point guard made the first, missed the second, then missed the third on purpose, and Williams put back the rebound for a 79-79 tie at the buzzer.

Television relays appeared to show the red light was on, signaling no time left before the shot left Williams' hand.

"To be able to recover from situations like that is a sign of outstanding kids, and my kids really responded," Krzyzewski said. "That's one of the better things I've seen any of my teams do. They did it, I didn't do it."

"It's an emotional downer when you feel like you had the game won, but we played so magnificently in the overtime."

No. 1 Cincinnatiati 75, Memphis 55

Kenyon Martin had a career-high 28 points, grabbed 13 rebounds and tied the school record with 10 blocks as the Bearcats (17-1, 5-0 Conference USA) extended their home winning streak to 40 games.

Cincinnatiati turned a close game into a blowout with a closing 21-9 run. Keiron Shine had 22 points for Memphis (8-9, 1-3), which started the game 1-for-20 from the field, the only points coming on a goaltending call against Martin.

First State to Vote

Iowa From A to Z

On Jan. 24, Iowa will hold the nation's first official election for presidential candidates.

In the Iowa caucuses, there is no set way to vote. Voters might raise their hands, fill out a ballot or sign a sheet of paper.

In this picture, Republican caucus voters drop their presidential ballots in bins in Cedar Rapids during the 1996 election.

Although New Hampshire will hold the first presidential primary on Feb. 1, Iowans vote in a different type of election, a caucus (KAW-kus).

"Caucus" is an American Indian word for a meeting of tribal chiefs. Today's caucuses are like town meetings.

In the Iowa caucuses, people gather in the evening in private homes or public places. People from different parties meet at different spots.

This is different from primaries, where polls are open most of the day. People vote in private. Polling places are in public buildings.

Although Iowa's population, about 3 million, is small compared with most states, candidates flock to the state because of its early caucus.

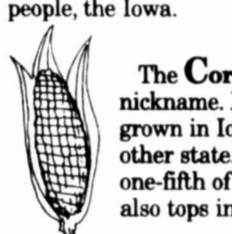

Agriculture and food processing are very important. More than 90 percent of the land is used for farming. On the average, one Iowa farm family grows enough food to feed 279 people.

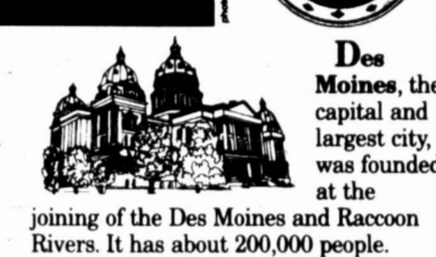

The Amana Colonies are seven German villages founded in the mid-1800s. Their residents make food and crafts of that earlier time.

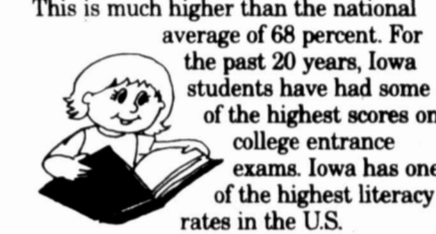

"Beautiful land" is one meaning of "Iowa," which also is the name of a Native American people, the Iowa.

The Corn State is its nickname. More corn is grown in Iowa than in any other state. It grows about one-fifth of all U.S. corn. It is also tops in grain production.

Des Moines, the capital and largest city, was founded at the joining of the Des Moines and Raccoon Rivers. It has about 200,000 people.

The Eastern goldfinch is the state bird. Education is highly valued. In 1999, 84 percent of students graduated from high school. This is much higher than the national average of 68 percent. For the past 20 years, Iowa students have had some of the highest scores on college entrance exams. Iowa has one of the highest literacy rates in the U.S.

Funny Phonics
It's fun to learn phonics, or the sounds letters make. This week's target sound is the one made by the short A.

Q: What is smaller than an ant's mouth?
A: Anything that goes into it!

Q: If you crossed an apple with a cotton ball, what would you get?
A: Fruit of the loom!

Q: If athletes get athlete's foot, what do astronauts get?
A: Missile-toe!

Go on a word hunt in your newspaper. What other words can you find beginning with the letter A? What sound do you hear?

Rookie Cookie's Recipe

- 1/4 cup brown sugar

What to do:

- Place apple slices in bottom of a greased pie pan.
- Combine remaining ingredients in a medium bowl. Mix well.
- Sprinkle mixture evenly over apples.
- Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven for 30 to 35 minutes. Serves 6.

More About Iowa

Fishing and other outdoor sports are big attractions. Many rivers and streams flow into the state. Lakes such as Okoboji are great sites for water sports.

Great River Road is one of the longest scenic historic drives in the country. It follows the Mississippi River for about 3,000 miles, from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico, including many miles in Iowa.

Indianola, home of the National Balloon Museum, hosts the National Balloon Classic. Many Iowa towns have hot-air balloon festivals.

The Johnny Clock Museum in Lockridge features more than 50 clocks made by one man and carved with scenes from Iowa.

Kalona is the biggest Amish community west of the Mississippi. The Amish live as they did 150 years ago, with no electricity, cars or phones.

The Loess Hills, home of beautiful prairie plants and animals, stretch for about 200 miles in western Iowa.

Snake Alley in Burlington is the most crooked street in the world. Bicyclists climb it during a yearly race.

Trainland U.S.A. in Colfax is a toy train museum showing how railroads were built across the country.

Ushers Ferry Historic Village in Cedar Rapids shows life as it was 100 years ago.

Voters are about evenly split among Republicans, Democrats and independents. In most states, independents are only a small minority.

The Wild Rose is the state flower.

The Sioux (Soo), Illinois, Iowa, Omaha, Miami and Missouri people were some of the early residents of the area.

Yellow River State Forest in northeast Iowa has trout streams and paths for hiking and horseback riding.

The National Czech & Slovak Museum & Library in Cedar Rapids features art and history of the Czechoslovakian immigrants who settled in Iowa.

HOROSCOPE

HAPPY BIRTHDAY FOR FRIDAY, JAN. 21:

Be as clear as possible in all forms of communication this year. You will see confusion erupt more often than in previous years. Others don't seem to speak the same language as you. Don't be hard on family or yourself. Recognize that you have unusually high expectations. If you are single, your ability to draw others remains your strong suit. A friendship could become a lot more. If you are attached, you clearly enjoy each other's company. Your mate or significant other could be changing. Be willing to adapt. You have a lot of fun together. LEO often challenges you.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

Your imagination takes you in many directions. You could be confused by what a friend offers. Verify plans. Make sure everyone is on the same page. Make long-distance calls; another is clearly delighted to hear from you. Tonight: Kick up your heels!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Take care of basics. There is much confusion and a lot of misunderstandings. You feel trapped in a pressure cooker. Ask a partner for help and feedback. Together you break patterns. Trust your instincts. Tonight: The party is close to home.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Confirm plans. Reiterate what you expect from another. You might not be speaking the same language. A friend or associate chips in and helps you clear out problems. Good news happens naturally. Just go for what you want. Tonight: Let your hair down and enjoy.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

Deal with financial matters head-on if you don't want chaos hitting your wallet. Be more direct in chasing your desires. Put in 100 percent at work. Bosses appreciate your enthusiasm and ideas. Learn new techniques, but don't be rebellious. Tonight: Your treat!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Your personality sparkles, even when pressure from others builds. You have expectations, as do others. Somehow, none of you are clear about what the others want. A relationship heats up. Your flirtatious ways can get you in trouble. Tonight: Your high magnetism speaks.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Know when to take a back seat. Another means well but causes you trouble by not listening completely. Be understanding, yet verify that your words have been received. Family might need to be put on the back burner until you finish work. Tonight: Let a loved one coax you out the door.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Invite friends over. Make and return calls. You have many choices, but you need to be clear with a loved one. A close tie is simply confused, not trying to create uproar. Communication opens a door. Popularity grows. Tonight: Reach out for another.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

Listen carefully to those in charge about a get-together or work-related matter. Your ability to concentrate and get to the essence of a problem separates you from others. Let the good times happen - don't hold back. Tonight: First join co-workers, then go with the flow.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

You are on communication overload. You might not be able to put a halt on the present chaos. Verify news. Another could confuse you. Plunge into living, not thinking. A child or loved one lets you know how important you are to him. Tonight: Play out your perfect Friday night.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

Build on your relationships with others. Work as a team. You might question another about a money matter. If you receive an odd reaction, don't be surprised. You certainly head in a new direction. Your optimism helps everyone come to an agreement. Tonight: Togetherness counts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

You clearly think differently than most. Don't minimize what is going on. Allow others to give you feedback. Be willing to work with others. Give up eccentricity for the moment. Friends help you turn a dream into reality. Tonight: Hook up with the gang.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

You might need to verify plans concerning work. Another simply doesn't think like you do. Spending needs to be tamed, even though you want to add to the quality of your life. Design a strong budget, and vow to keep it. Accept another's help. Tonight: Squeeze in some exercise.

Widower's loss compounded by friends who turn away

DEAR ABBY: My late wife and I were married for more than 60 years. My reason for writing is to express how shocking it is to find many friends and relatives have given me the cold shoulder since my wife's funeral. I cannot understand why.

The isolation and sense of loss at a time of life when one needs support and encouragement have been hard to cope with. The funeral expenses and the need to curb my activities because of the decrease in income are heavy enough changes to absorb, but the rejection by people I thought were friends hits even harder.

Is there a specific reason for these cold shoulders and lack of phone calls - just when the opposite is needed? Several of these previous "friends" are strong church attendees. I served my country in World War II and was wounded twice. During my years of service, I never met any servicemen who turned their backs on me. - HURTING IN LAKE FOREST, CALIF.

DEAR HURTING: Please accept my sympathy for the loss of your beloved wife. I'm sure the loss is compounded by the isolation you are now feeling. However, since I do not know the friends and relatives you mention, I cannot guess at the reason they have dropped away just when you need them most.

DEAR ABBY: We get an awful lot of catalogs that we never requested. I don't know how we got on so many mailing lists. Is there a way to call or write someone to stop getting so many catalogs? - ALAN W. IN TUCSON, ARIZ.

DEAR ALAN: There certainly is. To have your name deleted from these lists, write to: Mail Preference Service, Direct Marketing Association, P.O. Box 9008, Farmingdale, N.Y. 11735. The lists are purged only once every quarter, so it may take some time to notice a change in the volume of unsolicited mail you're receiving.

P.S. There is no charge for this service. WORTH PONDERING: "It's not enough to have lived. We should be determined to live for something. May I suggest that it be creating joy for others, sharing what we have for the betterment of personkind, bringing hope to the lost and love to the lonely." - LEO F. BUSCAGLIA (1924-1998)

To order "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, IL 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)
