300 people expected to attend 40th annual dance conclave & Round Dancers 40th annual conclave.

The event will be held at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum beginning with registration and hospitality between the hours of 1 and 5 p.m. on Friday, March 16. According to Joe Clark, co-chairman of the conclave, the event will be drawing quite a bit of business to Big Spring for the weekend.

"We will be having folks from all over Texas coming in and will be staying here for a couple of nights," said Clark, who chairs the event along with his wife Kay. "We have already booked over 20 couples at the Best Western Motor Lodge located out on Interstate 20 and some will be staying at the Texas RV Park or at the Whip-In Campground." Clark said that Permian Basin Square & Round Dance Association is the host club.

"We have four state meetings a year," said Clark. "Our last meeting was held in Mesquite last January. During this meeting we will be electing officers for the new year for the Permian Basin Square & Round Dance Association."

Clark said that on Friday after the registration period is over, the request rounds would begin at 7 p.m.

"We will have Carol and Harold Franklin as the cuer," said Clark. "The request rounds will last until around 7:45 at which time we will have the grand march, which will last approximately 15 minutes. We will finish with both squares and round dancing from 8 until around 10:30 p.m.'

Clark said the cost for Friday night will be $5 per person and $7 per person for the Saturday session, which will get started at 8:30 a.m. with coffee and fellowship.

Big Spring Independent School District trustees approved insurance for the district and formally accepted the resignation of long-time superintendent William "Bill" McQueary on Thursday.

Trustees approved a $119,689 bid from TASB Risk Management Fund for coverage on property, general liability and professional legal liability that cost the ISD $43, 670 for the same coverage by the same company last year.

Plumlee, assistant superintendent for business, the insurance company said the risk of the district being in the I-20 corridor for both hail and wind damage was one reason for the increase in price.

The major increase came despite the fact that the school district has not filed a claim in the last five years, Plumlee said.

Plumlee said the district had its property value reappraised as required by the insurance company to include the value for replacing any lost structures. The appraisal raised the position of Big Spring See BSISD, Page 2A

Arson has been ruled as the cause as the latest in a series of fires at Hunan's Restaurant, according to Big Spring Fire Marshal Carl Condray "This building has sustained a number of incidents of fires beginning in September of last year," said Condray. "The latest one occurred during the early morning hours of Feb. 28. On that date someone did intentionally cause a fire to occur in the restaurant."

Condray said that the restaurant, though sustaining an undisclosed amount of damage, was back open and in operation after being closed for only a day.

CONDRAY HORSEMAN

"The restaurant is fully open and able to accommodate its customers as it has been for 14 years now," said Condray. "The most recent fire, as well as those that previously occurred, are being investigated as arson. Arson is considered a felony in the state of Texas."

Tax cut plan faces tough fight in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) -President Bush's across-theboard income tax cut plan, after hurtling through the House, is about to come to a screeching halt in the Senate, where Democrats and Republicans say it will take time and compromise to produce a final agreement.

"The size and scope and fate of this bill will be determined in the Senate," said Sen. Max Baucus of Montana, senior Democrat on the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee.

The panel's chairman, Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, said it will be May before the committee starts working in earnest on its version of Bush's 10-year, $1.6 trillion tax cut package. By that time, the House likely will have passed several other items in Bush's tant at the quick House vicplan to add to the $958 billion income tax cut that Republican leaders pushed through on Thursday.

"My goal is to get as much as we can for the president," Grassley said. "The most sacred goal we have to accomplish is as big a marginal rate cut as possible.

Even as he basked in the 230-198 House vote in favor of the income tax cut, Bush recognized there was much work ahead. There are 50 Democrats 50 and Republicans in the Senate, giving Democrats much greater clout.

"One House down, and now the Senate to go," Bush told an audience Thursday in Fargo, N.D., a state represented by two Democratic senators opposing his plan. Republicans were exultory, which came only 48 days into Bush's term, and promised in the coming weeks to send the Senate other parts of the president's tax plan. Candidates for the next measure in the pipeline include those addressing the "marriage penalty" paid by millions of two-income couples, doubling the $500 child tax credit, repealing the estate tax and expanding tax breaks for charitable contributions.

"Our message to the American people is: Help is on the way," said House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas.

The income tax legislation would gradually reduce and condense the current five graduated income tax rates of 15 percent, 28 percent, 31 percent, 36 percent and 39.6 percent. By 2006, rates would be pegged at 10 percent, 15 per cent, 25 and 33 percent.

To provide relief immediately, the measure also would create an interim 12 percent bracket, retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year and continuing in 2002, that would be applied to the first $12,000 of taxable income for couples and $6,000 of taxable income for individuals. That bracket would drop to 11 percent in 2003 and then to the permanent 10 percent level in 2006.

Taxpayers could see an estimated maximum tax cut this year of $360 for a couple and $180 for an individual, Republicans said. The Bush administration estimates that when the entire tax plan is fully in place, 6 million families would no longer pay federal income taxes.

(AP) — As frightened teenagers and men scrambled into life rafts outside the USS Greeneville, Cmdr. Scott Waddle grabbed his periscope and saw their fishing boat sinking fast.

He ran to the bridge while divers suited up and his crew cleared the mess hall to take in anyone wounded.

"Are you all right?" Navy officers shouted. They couldn't understand the responses because they were in Japanese.

While confusion and helplessness filled the minutes after the fast-rising submarine ripped through the boat, Waddle and his crew acted "remarkably professional," the Navy's chief investigator into the crash, Rear Adm. Charles Griffiths Jr., testified Thursday before a Navy court of inquiry.

When asked by Waddle's attorney whether the commander was criminally negligent in the operation of his submarine, Griffiths replied: "In my opinion, he was not criminally negligent."

Waddle, who along with two other officers could face disciplinary action, cried as Griffiths recounted the moments after the Greeneville collided with the Ehime Maru on Feb. 9. Nine people were killed.

After the court session. Waddle offered an apology to the relatives of some of the victims, telling them tearfully, "I'm accountable for the incident.'

"I can't ask for forgiveness," Waddle told the families. "This is a burden I will carry to the grave."

Ryosuke Terata, whose 17year-old son died, said afterward, "Now I feel kind of sorry for Waddle, too."

Waddle's father, retired Col. Dan Waddle, asked Friday that people remem- fied.

Greeneville's crew. "Everyone in this world is praying for those people in Japan that lost their loved ones," he said on ABC's "Good Morning America." "But you know, the crew of the Greeneville was suffering too. They need some prayers.

The inquiry will help determine the fate of Waddle; Lt. j.g. Michael Coen, the Greeneville's officer of the deck; and Lt. Cmdr. Gerald Pfeifer, the second in command. They could face no disciplinary action or anything from a reprimand to court-martial and imprisonment.

After four days detailing mistakes aboard the submarine, Griffiths wrapped up his testimony Thursday by praising the officers for their rescue efforts. While sea swells made it unsafe for the crew to transfer survivors into the sub, the vessel moved closer to one raft that had a lone victim in case he needed assistance.

"They never did see a person who was not in a raft,' Griffiths said. "If they had seen that, their swimmers would have immediately gone in.'

The officers' lawyers sought to shift blame to a crewman who they say neglected to report that another boat was in close range minutes before the crash.

About six minutes before the collision, the fire control technician obtained data showing a boat 4,000 yards from the Greeneville. This happened as Coen and Waddle were conducting periscope scans for surface vessels. Both officers verbally reported seeing no close ships.

The technician should have heard that call and questioned it, Griffiths testi-

Texas expands controversial deer export program

SAN ANTONIO (AP) -Texas has expanded a controversial wildlife program that sends deer trapped in nets to Mexico.

The move is an attempt to curtail damage to vegetation caused when deer forage in suburban areas. They are blamed for more than $1 million in landscape damage in the Fair Oaks Ranch suburb in northwest Bexar County since 1995.

About 20 percent of the estimated 3,000 deer roaming the area will be removed under the program, which aims to rebuild the dwindling white-tailed populanew deer soon will replace those caught and carted away. Participants in the netand-relocate project call it the most humane way to solve the problem of deer moving into this city and others across the nation. Some cities have hired teams of professional sharpshooters, Bryan Richards of Wildlife Department told the San Antonio Express-News.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department amended the program permit to let Fair Oaks Ranch join the Austin suburb of Lakeway, where 676 deer have been netted since December.

Lakeway and Fair Oaks Ranch were picked to take part in the Mexico project because they have bad problems with their sizable deer populations, Richards said. Rebuilding the population of whitetails in Mexico will benefit more than just hunters, said Alfonso habitats of native vegetation will reduce overgrazing by cattle, he said, thereby helping preserve precious groundwater supplies.

Martinez, dean of the Forestry College of the University of Nuevo Leon. Creating deer-friendly

But not everyone is behind the deer roundup. People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals wants the city to "adopt a deer management program that relies on humane, longterm methods of control for resolving any perceived conflicts with these animals."

Tax-cut is equivalent of Rich pardon

f you aren't confused about George W. Bush's tax-cut package by now, you haven't been paying attention. The beloved Mark Twain's line about "lies, damned lies and statistics" has been working overtime as our happy political spinners — many bers on our innocent heads. Numero Uno: Nothing about taxation is simple Steve Forbes and his flat tax are only the latest in a long line of goofy tax-simplifiers from Upton Sinclair, with his Single Tax on real estate (not a bad idea, actually), through munists and the Heritage People in the Bible com-

Ages complained about tax collectors, and in Rome

The progressive income tax is the single fairest form of taxation ever invented. Getting it passed took decades, humongous court fights and a constitutional amendment.

> Numero Two-o: The single figure that you have probably heard most often about the Bush tax cut is that somewhere between 40 percent and 45 percent of the total cut goes to the richest 1 percent of Americans. Despite the gobbling of Bush's tax team, the number is not mysterious or difficult to arrive at, nor is it widely disputed. That's people making more than $373,000 a year. The richest 10 percent get 60.3 percent of Bush's cut, leaving a whopping 37 percent for the other 90 percent of us.

This is not a "vulgar" argument about "class warfare." This is a matter of fairness and logic.

What do you want the society to look like? If you could see a graphic of wealth in this country, it would look roughly like a pyramid - except fatter at the bottom, until you get near the very top, when it suddenly shoots into the air and rises higher than a skyscraper. Why would we want to make this deformation worse?

The wealth gap in this country is even more staggering than the skyrocketing income gap. According to a 1995 study by the Federal Reserve, the richest 1 percent of American households (at that time worth a measly $2.3 million) owned 35 percent of the total wealth.

By 1997, the richest 10 percent owned 73.2 percent of total wealth, leaving an impressive 25 percent for the other 90 percent of us. These people do not need our assistance. We do not need to transfer more of the tax burden from them to the rest of us

Now the first thing you hear from the Bush spinners, who get quite indignant about this (as though someone were trying to mislead you), is, "But you're counting the abolition of the death tax in that!"

("Death tax" is what Republicans call the estate tax. It's one of their "cute" things, like saying "the Democrat Party.") The reason, actually, that we include the abolition of the estate tax when figuring out the effects of the Bush tax package is because the estate tax IS included. I hope you got that. I know it's complicated. If you do take out the estate tax, the richest 1 percent still get 31.3 percent of the tax cut. According to The Washing on Post, 'Even a conservative economist such ε s the Heritage Foundation', William Beach agrees with that.' We could debate, I suppose, whether the estate tax is a death tax. It is paid, actual ly, by those who inherit money; cnce you're dead, they car t make you fill out any more IRS forms as long you stay dead (though they may by waiting for you after 'he rapture – I have'i't checked the theology on that).

BIG SPRING HERALD

Friday, March 9, 2001

When Bush says, "It's an across-the-board tax cut," most people think that means everyone's going to get about the same cut, like, across-the-board. They certainly do not envision 'an across-the-board tax cut" being 44.3 percent for the richest 1 percent of the people.

The Republican argument is that rich folks pay more of the total taxes. According to the U.S. Treasury, the richest 1 percent pay about 20 percent of all federal taxes including income, payroll and estate, and there's no way you can make this case. This whole deal is the tax

State Sen. Florence Shapiro, R-Plano, has proposed legislation that would change the way the state pays for transportation needs that is getting a lot of attention. Creating the Texas Mobility Fund would allow the state to issue bonds for transportation needs

Texas, which has funded transportation needs on a pay-as-you-go basis, is in serious need of infusing new money into roads, bridges and other transportation needs. The current system covers only 36 percent of needs for our transportation infrastructure construction. Shapiro's bill would change that by supplementing the system by using bonds. For about $200 million, state Department of Transportation officials say they could finance about $2 billion in bonds that would let the state move forward.

The decision in this matter would rest with Texas voters because it would require a constitutional amendment. However, voters have previously authorized the use of bonds to build prisons and water development bonds. If Texans understand the need, it should pass. Once, Texas had the finest road system in the nation. However, the popu lation has increased 20 percent in the past decade that's 4 million new Texans and is expected to increase another 20 percent in the next 10 years. That said, Texas highway spending per capita has fallen 34 percent since 1980, and now trails the national average by 12 percent, ranking Texas 46th in the nation

Shapiros legislation is supported by a recent report by the Texas Public Policy Foundation (TPPF) titled, The Road Ahead: Innovations for Better Transportation in Texas (available at www.tppf.org). The study documents the cause of inadequate funding for transportation infrastruc ture needs in Texas

Texas must be aggres sive in improving and in maintaining its transportation infrastructure. But that takes money that is not now available. that's why Shapiro's bill to permit the issuance of bonds is a sensible solution to the problem.

Bush means what he says about budget

Thether one agrees with President George W Bush's ideas, any reasonable person must admit

CHARLEY predicted, following up on REESE his campaign promises precisely. His budget speech was concise and intelligent. Had he not been interrupted 80 times by applause, the speech would have run his planned 35 minutes The Democrats' response predictably was based on lies. That is now their style demagoguery and lies. One example will suffice to illustrate the point:

The Democrats said Ronald Reagan cut taxes and the result was a recession. Couldn't be more wrong. The recession was caused by the Federal Reserve Board, which, to combat double-digit inflation caused by the previous Democratic administration, pushed interest rates as high as 22 percent.

As for the deficits, that was the fault of the Democrats who controlled Congress. Reagan's budgets were unceremoniously tossed in the waste can as soon as they arrived.

It's a wonder to me why any respectable person would wish to be associated with a party that clearly has degenerated into a party of leftist and racist extremists with the morals of a sewer rat. It has become the party of abortion, reverse racism, foreign interventionism and neo-totalitarianism. But back to the budget. It's a good idea to review the structure of our government, which is laid out in the Constitution. The House and the Senate, of course, are elected independently. They have no obligation to do anything a president suggests Furthermore, the Constitution squarely puts responsibility for the federal budget in the House of Representatives. All appropriations and tax bills must originate there Appropriations and taxes. of course, are the federal budget. Presidents can only recommend a budget. Presidents can veto appropriations and tax bills, but the legislative branch has the power to override his vetoes.

It is unlikely that Congress will pass the president's budget, including his proposed tax cuts, as he presented it. He will, however, likely get most of what he has recommended. At that point, voters will see another characteristic of Bush. He will not react to legislative defeat with bitterness, name-calling and recriminations. He simply will move on to the next item on his agenda with the same cheerful civility.

It would be a sad day indeed if Americans cannot appreciate such a man. Liberals especially should appreciate Bush because he is making the federal government respectable again. Bush's conservatism is not only compassionate but quite moderate and pragmatic

In my opinion, the federal government has no legitimate role at all in education, welfare or medical care. I certainly disagree strongly with the need for an anti-missile defense system. If deterrence worked against the Soviet Union with 20,000 or more warheads, it will certainly work against a little country with two or three.

Nevertheless, Americans have come to accept a federal role in education, welfare and medical care. Therefore, Bush is trying to make that role effective and limited. I can't fault him for that Traditionalists and libertarians need to recognize that we are a minority. America in 2001 is not the America of 1945, much less the America of 1850. The only way you would ever take Medicare and Social Security away would be at gunpoint. Let us live in the world as it is and work to improve it.

Why God won't let us off the hook

Charles Colson, in a book entitled "Who speaks for God?" tells about John Eckerd, founder of Eckerd Drugstores. After retiring from active management of his company Mr. Eckerd made a commitment of his life to Jesus Christ. One day,

RUSSELL observed MULLINS "Playboy' and other sexually explicit magazines prominently displayed for sale in the stores. He immediately began encouraging the CEO to remove all such magazines from all stores. The store managers, however, protested because they were big-selling items. He even stood to lose money as the largest stockholder.

Still, he persisted in his quest and eventually got all sexually oriented magazines removed from all Eckerd Drugstores. He then began quietly campaigning to get other retail stores to do the same. When he was asked what motivated him in his endeavor, Mr. Eckerd replied, "God wouldn't let me off the hook." His submission to the Lordship of Jesus would not allow him to shrug his shoulders at ungodliness.

Listen closely to our world. In particular, academia, the news media and the entertainment industry seem to be actively hostile to the Lordship of Jesus Christ. The popular culture sends the clear message that our religious faith is an invalid basis for deciding how we will respond to the world around us ception of Jesus has dramatically changed. Listen carefully and you will hear such words as fairness, justice, love and grace in describing Jesus. The popular definitions of these words have effectively watered down the true character of Christ.

Fairness and justice are used to suggest that Jesus is a pluralist who honors every divergent view of truth and morality. Love and grace suggest to many people that Jesus is a relativist who would never condemn people based on the archaic Biblical view of right and wrong.

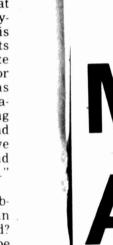

While Jesus is fair, just, loving and gracious, that never means that just anything goes. In fact, it is His graciousness that expects us to live by an absolute standard of morality. "For the grace of God has appeared, bringing salvation to all men, instructing us to deny ungodliness and worldly desires and to live sensibly, righteously and godly in the present age." (Titus 2:11-12).

So how do we live in submission to the Lord Jesus in a clever and hostile world? First, we will strive to be people of integrity. The Lordship of Jesus expects nothing less than doing what is right just because it

Religious leaders mobilize new effort against capital punishment

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) Religious leaders in the South and around the nation are speaking out against capital punishment more loudly than ever, emboldened by a shift in public opinion and cases of innocence on death row.

"We may be finding the courage we didn't have before, given the climate," said the Rev. Joe Vought, a Lutheran minister based in Harrisonburg who has served as chaplain to seven executed inmates

The leadership of many Protestant churches, the Roman Catholic Church Reform and and Conservative Judaism have been on record opposing the death penalty for decades, but many in their congregations didn't share their views.

"People in the pews had fairly strong views for the death penalty, so a lot of (clergy) just didn't want to push the issue for fear of alienating their parishioners," said Davidson Douglas, a professor of law at the College of William & Mary who has studied the history of religious attitudes toward the death penalty. "I think the religious groups, frankly, didn't make this a high priority. There weren't many sermons about it.

But improved DNA testing has proven some capital convictions were mistakes, shifting public opinion and churches' increasing activism.

A Harris poll in July found 64 percent of people supported the death penalty, down from 75 percent in 1997. An NBC News/Wall

The statement came as the investigative arm of the General Assembly is examining how the death penalty is applied in the state.

The Diocese of Richmond has asked a Norfolk Circuit Court judge to order release of evidence in the murder case of Derek Rocco Barnabei so that DNA can be tested in an effort to prove his innocence. Barnabei, 33, was executed Sept. 14 for the 1993 rape and murder of a 17-year-old girl In North Carolina, the Death Penalty launched a convicted statewide campaign last year to get the state to put capital punishment on hold, and a legislative commission is studying the administration of the death penalty.

In Mississippi last month, religious leaders testified before a legislative committee, asking lawmakers to put the death penalty on hold.

And last April, even conservative religious broadcaster Pat Robertson endorsed a short moratorium on the death penalty nationwide, saying it is not always applied fairly

Meanwhile, Moratorium 2000, a Louisiana-based nonprofit group lobbying to stop capital punishment, is distributing literature to help the clergy tackle the difficult subject with their congregations.

"For a long time the church wasn't saying anything, and people assumed (the death penalty) was right and, more importantly, that it was applied correctly," said Robert Jones, spokesman for Moratorium 2000

Besides the release of wrongly convicted prisoners following DNA testing, Jones cited other factors eroding support for the death penalty: reports of racial and economic inequities in how capital punishment is applied, and lack of proof that the death penalty deters crime.

According to Amnesty International, between 1973 and 2000, 87 people have been released from death rows after they were found People of Faith Against the to have been wrongfully INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - With a Friday deadline looming for Bob Knight to take action, his attorney sent Indiana University a letter notifying the school of the former coach's intention to file suit.

The letter calls Knight's termination "wrongful" and accuses the university of slander, libel, inflicting emotional distress and interfering in Knight's subsequent job search. It claims the university's actions cost Knight more than $7 million.

"If the university doesn't negotiate with us, we have no choice but to sue," wrote his attorney, Russell Yates.

Knight had 180 days to notify the has talked to Texas Tech about contained in the notice of tort university of his intention to sue. By sending the letter, Knight could file suit in the next two years.

Knight was fired Sept. 10 after 29 years at the school for violating the university's "zero-tolerance" policy. The firing came after Knight grabbed a freshman student by the arm and lectured him on manners after he greeted the coach informally.

Yates said Knight was driving to his home in Arizona after he spent time with the St. Louis Cardinals at spring training in Jupiter, Fla., and was unavailable for comment.

Yates said Knight, who reportedly

Lady Hawks fall in opener

By KAMILAH WARD Sports Writer

LUBBOCK — It wasn't just another conference game, their was season on the line.

That season ended for Howard College's Lady Hawks with an 83-73 loss to Grayson County's Lady Vikings in the opening round of the Region V tournament Thursday afternoon.

The game was what's expected about this time of the year -a real battle where the seedings don't always mean what they should. But the ending Howard had hoped for didn't materialize.

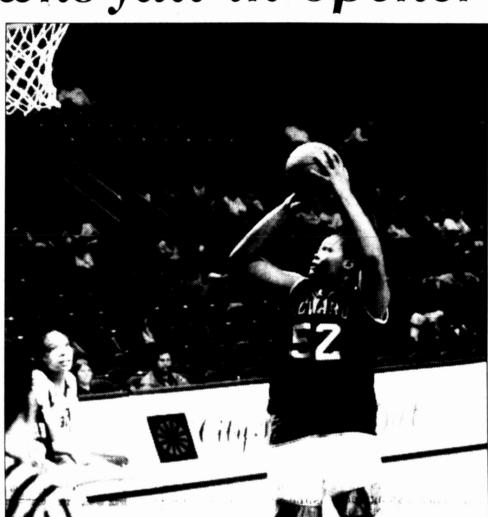

Instead of preparing to face Weatherford in the semifinals, the Lady Hawks took an early seat.

It's hard to pinpoint what went wrong for the Lady Hawks. Both teams finished the contest with 25 made shots, an equal number of 3point shots made even the turnovers were pretty close with Grayson turning the ball over just five more times than Howard.

So what was the difference?

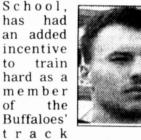

For starters, the Lady Hawks found themselves in foul trouble early in both halves finishing the game with a team total of 31 fouls. -----

The Lady Vikings were able to capitalize, hitting 29-of-38 from the charlstripe. Meanwhile, Howard went to the line 27 times and converted on 19 of those attempts. There's the 10-point difference

If that wasn't enough, Grayson utilized its size advantage, snatching 59 rebounds while the Lady Hawks could muster just 37 boards.

Even with all of that stacked against them, the Lady Hawks only lost the game after Grayson went on a couple of big runs at key points in the game.

"I wish we could've come out with a win," sophomore forward Vanessa Lehrmann following the loss.

The Lady Hawks opened the game with a 3-pointer by Grace Gantt and managed to stay on top throughout the remainder of the first half.

In the second half, however, momentum favored Grayson. The Lady Vikings were able to cap a big run with a long bomb from Jordie Soso. The 6-foot-2 freshman who hails from Me¹bourne, Australia, was one of four G ayson players in double figures Gantt who finished the game with 29 points, six assists and four rebounds combined with Shameika Buckley to get the Lady Hawks going in the first half.

Bucklev finished the contest with 16 points and 11 rebounds. She played a major role in the Lady Hawks' battle on the boards, as she was the only player to finish the game with double digits in rebounds.

Gantt and Buckley traded baskets the first few possessions taking an early 9-4 lead in the game. The Lady Hawks seemed to be in a position to control the tempo, but Grayson made it very obvious that it would not be counted out so easily.

The Lady Hawks saw a 10-point lead vanish after a foul on the other end sent Melanie Massey to the free throw line for three quick freebies with 4:30 remaining in the first half.

From that point, the Lady Hawks went ice cold and picked up only one returned to take their first lead of the game with a trey from Massey. Buckley answered with a quick basket on the other end, but Grayso went on to score the next eight points to add to their 53-46 lead at the 16minute mark mark

Both teams traded baskets for the next few minutes before Howard's Taneshia Harris got the ball rolling in the right direction. She was the spark the Lady Hawks needed, coming in on different occasions in the game to get things going.

The Lady Hawks scored the next 10 points to tie the game at 51-all. Then they scored nine more unanswered points to take a 60-53 lead with 8:40 to

Tryon, 16, close to record feat finishing two strokes behind leaders

CORAL SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) -High school sophomore Ty Tryon was understandably nervous on the first tee of the Honda Classic. He decided to make a bold debut by hitting a driver, and ripped it 300 yards down the middle.

It was the first sign that his debut on the PGA Tour would be impressive - even better than Tiger Woods.

The 16-year-old Tryon, who got into the Honda Classic as a Monday qualifier, birdied the last three leaving him just 2 strokes behind the leaders.

Jesper Parnevik, Ben Ferguson and Geoff Ogilvy each shot a 7 under and shared the first-round lead on the TPC at Heron Bay. Eighteen others, including Tryon, were within 2 shots heading into Friday's second round.

"I had a great time out there," Tryon said. "I really enjoyed it. Plaving well is definitely a plus, but it was awesome. I had a lot of fun.'

Woods was 9 months younger holes Thursday for a 5-under 67. than Tryon when he was given a sponsor's exemption into the Los Angeles Open in 1992, but Woods missed the cut with rounds of 72-75.

His caddie told him he should hit a 2-iron on the first tee.

His coach, besides the sinking feeling in his stomach, felt the same thing.

But Tryon couldn't put aside the urge to start his career with something more memorable. So he asked for the driver.

"Because it was my first pro tournament, I just wanted to rip a driver down there," Tryon said.

He did, and it carried him through the first round.

On a perfect day for scoring. Tryon made seven birdies. He birdied each of the four par-5s and closed with birdies on four of the final five holes

Even though Tryon was nervous before his opening tee shot, he settled down quickly. The only time he got rattled was after a 3-putt on No. 10. He missed a 3-footer for par.

Tryon recovered well, parring the next three holes and setting up a dramatic finish.

Belle's career over; Beltre needs surgery

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Albert Belle's career and the New York Mets' chances to get Gary Sheffield have come to an end.

The Baltimore Orioles said Thursday that Belle was "totally disabled and unable to perform as a major league baseball player.'

Belle was examined by two team doctors Wednesday and found to have a severe case of degenerative arthritis of the right hip.

"Belle has agreed that he is physically incapable of performing as a player and concurs with the findings of the doctors," the Orioles said

Belle was to be placed on the 60-day disabled list Friday – the first step to protect the Orioles' insurance coverage of his contract, which guarantees the slugger $39 million in the next three years. About 70 percent of that total will be reimbursed to the team by the insurance company.

"It's a very sad event for a young man 34 years of age not to be able to play baseball again," said Syd Thrift, the Orioles' vice president of baseball operations.

When he played the game, Belle did it with vigor and sass. He hit 381 homers and drove in 1,239 runs in 12 seasons. He also was disciplined repeatedly for runins with fans, media and other players.

"He was a fierce competitor, the kind of person you love on your side," Orioles right-hander Pat Hentgen said.

The addition of John Randle in Seattle and Jeff Hartings in Pittsburgh was bad news for Cortez and Kennedy Levon Kirkland.

The Seahawks released Kennedy, an eight-time Pro Bowl defensive tackle, on Thursday. They signed Randle last week to play the same position.

"Cortez has accomplished a great deal for this franchise over the last decade," coach-general manager Mike Holmgren said. "He has always handled himself with class and been a dedicated member of the Seahawks.

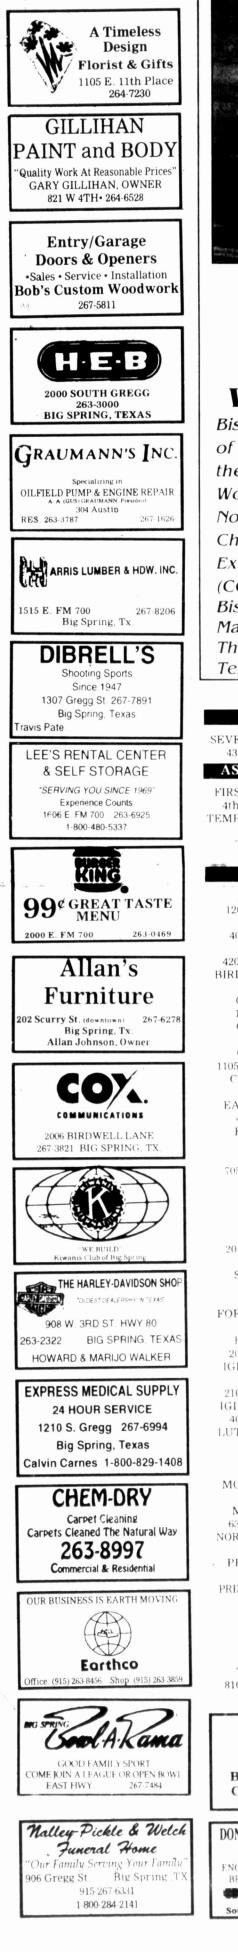

"It is for that we thank him and wish him well in all his future endeavors both in and out of football.' Kennedy's salary was to count $7.3 million against the cap next season. So the 1992 NFL Defensive Player of the Year is out two days before he was to receive a $2 million bonus.

Hartings got a $24.75 million, six-year contract to replace seven-time All-Pro center Dermontti Dawson in Pittsburgh even though Hartings has been a guard throughout his NFL career. To make room for the former Detroit Lion, the Steelers released inside linebacker Kirkland.

Kirkland, 32, as is Kennedy, once was the Steelers' highest-paid player. He would have made a base salary of $4.775 million in 2001 and had a cap value of $5.745 million – or about 1-12th of the Steelers' total cap.

"You always want to finish with the team you play for, that you start out with," Kirkland said. "I thought that was going to be a possibility with me. I see that it isn't, and so we have to move on.

Kirkland, who played for the Steelers since 1992, had 100 tackles or more in each. of the last five seasons and a high of 137 tackles in 1998, his second consecutive Pro Bowl season.

Hartings, 28 signed a $24.25 million, six-year contract that includes a $5.75 million signing bonus. His 2001 salary will be $750,000 and his 2001 cap value will be $1.71 million.

Hartings was a Pro Bowl alternate for the Lions in 1998 and 1999. The last time he played center was for Penn State.

Another former Seahawks, guarterback Jon Kitna, signed with Cincinnati. Kitna, who lost his starting job last season in Seattle, agreed to a fourvear contract with a $4 million signing bonus. The deal is expected to be for close to $10 million.

But that doesn't guarantee him a starting spot. Coach Dick LeBeau said it will be an open competition between Kitna and Akili Smith, the starter at the outset of 2000 who was demoted during the season.

"Coach LeBeau was very honest with me about the fact that he is not giving up on Akili Smith, and he wants the best for everybody involved," Kitna said. Kitna is the second free agent signed this week by the Bengals, who were farther under the salary cap than any other team. Former Minnesota defensive tackle Tony Williams signed Tuesday.

Both agreed to a loyalty clause, meaning they could lose part of their signing bonuses if they criticize the team. The Bengals came up with the concept last season, and an arbitrator upheld it.

"I don't have any problems with that," Kitna said. The Giants kept their most productive offensive threat when running back Tiki Barber re-signed for six years and $24 million, with a $7 million signing bonus.

"I built my reputation here, and this is where I wanted to stay," Barber said. "It's great that we got it done, and hopefully I'll be able to finish my career here.'

Grandparents put out by daughter-in-law's attitude live quite a distance from our oldest son and went to visit him last month. We arrived on Tuesday and intended to stay until Sunday. We see our grandchildren only once a year and were looking forward to this visit.

ANN feels "out of LANDERS control when there are visitors. I don't understand this, Ann. We did not impose on her in any way. In fact, she made it clear that she was not going to alter her schedule to "accommodate" us. Except for breakfast, we ate every meal out. Our son stayed home from work to spend time with us and made sure we were taken care of. Our daughter-inlaw barely said a word after "hello."

It cost us $1,000 to change our tickets and leave earlier, which we did. We believe our son should have told his wife to be a little more hospitable since we visit only once a year. I love my son, and the grandchildren are a joy, but "the Mrs." is the one who controls the household. We are reluctant to visit them again. Any suggestions? – Feeling Unwelcome in the East

Continue to visit and make reservations to stay in a hotel. You sound like a lovely couple. I wonder what her problem is. She: obviously has one, and I'll bet it has nothing to do with you. (I wonder where she parks her broom.)

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to respond to the young woman who was reluctant to accept hermother's wedding ring as a keepsake.

My mother died in 1978, and I was given her wedding ring, along with my grandmother and greatgrandmother's wedding rings. Those rings have created a great interest in our, family tree. My great-grandmother was married in Galway, Ireland, during the potato famine, and every time I look at that little ring, I think of the hardships and the courage it must have taken for her to stay alive.

Whenever I return to Ireland to visit, I am inundated with requests from nieces and nephews to see those history-laden rings. I hope one day my wedding ring will join the others and be given to my oldest daughter.

Anne in Canada

Dear Anne: Those rings should never leave the family. Make it your mission. In years to come, your children and grandchildren will be grateful.
