Museum seeks volunteer chefs for food festival

Chefs are being sought for the March 24 "Around the World in 80 Bites" food festival at the Heritage Museum.

The event offers participants a bite-size taste of foods from different regions, countries and cultures. Chefs are asked to prepare about 300 tastes of their dish and serve it during the festival from 5:30-7:30 p.m.

About 50 cooks are needed for the event. All proceeds benefit the museum; its fund-raising goal is $2,500.

For more information, call the museum at 267-8255.

Mailings go out for annual Denim and Diamonds gala

By VALERIE AVERY
Herald Correspondent

The first mailings for Big Spring State Hospital's Volunteer Services Council's "15th annual Denim and Diamonds Gala" were sent out this week to more than 500 Howard County residents.

The hospital's major fund-raising event is scheduled for the evening of May 4 at the Big Spring Country Club and is sponsored by the Dora Roberts Foundation.

A reception — "A Touch of Class in the Style of the Old West" — begins at 7 p.m. allowing patrons to mingle and become reacquainted with old friends.

"Everyone loves to catch up with each other's lives during the past year," said Billie Russworm, Big Spring State Hospital director of community relations. "This is one event where they know they will see each other. It's just a fun time for everyone."

Hors d'oeuvres prepared by the chefs and culinary staff at the Big Spring Country Club will be served during the reception.

"We've heard many, many good things about the food they serve at the Big Spring Country Club," Russworm said. "We are just elated about moving the gala to such a wonderful facility."

This is the first time the Denim and Diamonds Gala has been held at the Big Spring Country Club, and the first year the reception and dance have been held under the same roof. During the past 14 years, the reception was typically held in a person's home and the dance was held at the dance hall.

"We just decided to try it this way," Russworm said.

"We think it will work out wonderfully."

Jody Nix and the Texas Cowboys have entertained patrons for the past 14 years and will perform again from 8 p.m. to 12 a.m.

Dress for both events is casual.

Honorary Chairpersons are Stan and Sue Partee. Mrs. Partee's mother, Dorothy Garrett, was a long-time honorary chairperson of the fund-raiser. Carol

Census

Rural Texas districts stand to lose some representation, population numbers indicate

By BILL MCCLELLAN
News Editor

House District 70, the district represented by State Rep. David Counts, is far short in terms of residents, according to 2000 census population numbers.

According to the Texas Legislative Council, each of the 150 House of Representative districts must have 5 percent more or less than the "ideal population" of 139,012. That's up from 1991's required "population" of 114,000.

District 70 falls 28,781 short, according to the statistics.

"The region looks like it's much worse than we anticipated," said Counts, D-Knox City. "We hadn't prepared for this great a shock. It's not pretty."

Many rural Texas counties fall short of the required number. They include Sen. Robert Duncan's Senate District 28, which is 41,370 short, and Rep. Rob Junell's House District 72, which is 18,276 short.

Both Counts and Duncan, R Lubbock, represent Howard County.

Others include: House District 73, Rep. Bob Turner, 7,041;

- House District 74, Rep. Pete Gallego, 894;
- House District 80, Rep. Gary Walker, 28,634;
- House District 82, Rep. Tom Craddick, 18,271;
- Senate District 24, Sen. Troy Fraser, 44,646.

Projections indicate that rural West Texas may lose two or three House seats to faster-growing areas. Census numbers show that Texas' population is up dramatically from 1990, but the increase is primarily in urban and suburban areas.

Counts, visiting in Big Spring several months ago, indicated that West Texas would likely be less represented following the district realignment which takes place every 10 years following the census. District 70 currently includes Borden, Fisher, Garza, Howard, Jones, Kent, King, Knox, Lynn, Nolan, Scurry and Stonewall counties. That group could be expanded or changed altogether under a new realignment.

"The census is over and the numbers are out," said Counts, who serves on the House Redistricting Committee. "We just have to deal with reality and see how we might be able to keep communities of interest together."

To date, lawmakers are armed only with county-by-county population figures. Within the next few days, redistricting officials will for treatment. Sheriff Dale Walker said the altercation occurred when jailers were preparing to take an inmate, Albert Diaz Resendez to court. Resendez was being held on a criminal trespass charge and two traffic violations.

"It is our standard procedure when they are taking someone to court that they be handcuffed, have leg irons and a belly chain. The prisoner made a comment that he was 'no animal' and would not be restrained," said Walker. "Jailers attempted to explain to him that it was standard procedure and after a few minutes he stood up and said 'OK, go ahead.'"

Walker said once the jailers put the belly chain on Resendez, the inmate turned around and began slinging it, striking one jailer in the head and face.

The jailers were able to subdue Resendez, and called 911 at about 10:30.

Council gives OK to seek weather station for airpark

HERALD Staff Report

Big Spring can move forward in its effort to obtain an Automated Weather Observation Station (AWOS) for McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark. The city council officially signed off on the project Tuesday night.

Without comment, the council unanimously approved allowing $60,600 in federal non-primary entitlement funds to be used as Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT) matching dollars toward an $85,000 AWOS system.

The system would allow pilots to receive up-to-the-minute weather information over Big Spring and the vicinity and could be accessed by pilots either in the air or before takeoff.

AWOS systems provide temperature, dew point, wind direction, wind speed, peak gusts, altimeter setting, density altitude, visibility and cloud height. The systems operate 24 hours a day, with weather information updated every minute.

The application will now be forwarded to TxDOT for its approval. Officials have said that even when approval is gained, it could still be 18 months before Big Spring gets the station. Most of that delay would involve the Federal Communications Commission's lengthy permitting procedure, officials said.

Also Tuesday, city staff announced that the new terminal building at the airpark is almost completed. A ribbon cutting and open house is scheduled for 2 p.m. on April 25.

Swing your partner and promenade!

More than 300 square and round dancers are expected to start arriving Friday for the Texas Federation of Square & Round Dancers 40th annual conclave.

As in years past, the conclave will be held at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum with registration and hospitality being held from 1 until 5 p.m. at the Best Western Motor Lodge, 700 West Interstate 20.

Festivities begin at the coliseum at 7 p.m. with the request rounds. Cuers will be Jim and Kathy Oliver of Abilene. At 7:45 the grand march will begin and it should last for around 15 minutes.

Square and round dancing will begin at 8 with David Davis of Hobbs, N.M. doing the calling. An after-party will start at 10:30, culminating activities for Friday.

According to Kay Clark, co-chairman of the event, more than 240 individuals have already made reservations at local motels and RV parks.

"At last count we had around 194 booked at the Best Western Motel, another 46 at the Texas RV Park and another half dozen or so at the Whip-In time, another business item handled by council members Tuesday provides some key dollars for the city. The council approved a contract with the Bureau of Prisons, which calls for the city to receive 77 cents per day per inmate.

Officials said they were discouraged to learn that a Texas Community Development grant they were hoping to receive for Phase II of the Capehart Subdivision had fallen through. Phase I of the project is scheduled to begin this summer through a $350,000 grant.

In other business, the council appointed Jane Hammond and Shirley White as election judges for the May 5 council and mayoral elections and Darla Swindell and Delores Pearce as alternates. The council also: • Approved permission to advertise for bids for a small motor grader; • Established criteria to be used in the redistricting process and agreed to hire the University of Texas at the Permian Basin to provide redistricting services; • Tabled approval of a plat of Belarco Subdivision because the address listed on the agenda was in error and passed on considering approval of an agreement with the West Texas Narcotics Enforcement Task Force because the accompanying information was a different ordinance. • Decided to let each council member appoint one individual to serve on a citizen's advisory committee on redistricting. Those appointments will be made in late March or early April.

Clark said that the cost to dancers on Friday night would be $5 per person and $7 per person for Saturday's session, which follows the same time schedule. There is no cost for those who want to come and watch.

Also on Saturday, an election of new officers for the Texas State Federation of Square & Round Dancers will take place during the business meeting which starts at 9 a.m.

The conclave will conclude on Sunday with a devotional at 8:30 a.m. at the Best Western Motor Lodge. Anyone having questions on any of the activities for the weekend may call Joe and Kay Clark at 267-7043.

Remains of missing atheist believed found

AUSTIN (AP) — Led to a shallow grave in the Texas Hill Country, federal investigators pulled from the ground human remains they believed to be missing atheist activist Madalyn Murray O'Hair and two of her family members.

After two trials and a plea bargain from a third suspect, investigators believed they had solved the 1995 disappearance of O'Hair, her son Jon Garth Murray and her adopted daughter and granddaughter, Robin Murray O'Hair.

The bodies were partially dismembered and no cause of death could immediately be determined.

Seven weeks later, authorities have scheduled a Thursday news conference to release the results of forensic tests on the remains.

The O'Hair family disappeared from San Antonio in 1995 along with $600,000 in gold coins.

Originally believed to have fled the country, the family wasn't feared dead by the authorities until investigators started asking questions about the missing money.

Since then, investigators believe the family was kidnapped, robbed and killed before their bodies were dismembered and dumped on a remote Hill Country ranch near Camp Wood, about 125 miles west of San Antonio.

Of the four suspects believed to have taken part in the alleged kidnapping and murder plot, one is dead, allegedly at the hand of his partners, and three more have been convicted of various charges, including extortion. None has been convicted of kidnapping and none faces murder charges.

It was the plea bargain of David Roland Waters, O'Hair's former office manager, that led authorities to the bodies.

Waters, 53, pleaded guilty in January to one federal count of conspiracy to interfere with commerce by robbery and extortion.

In exchange for his plea, Waters led authorities to the place where the bodies were buried.

Already serving a long prison sentence on other state and federal charges, Waters faces up to 20 years in prison when sentenced on the conspiracy charge. Prosecutors agreed to drop the other charges in the indictment and recommend that Waters not face other charges in the case.

Among the items found in the grave was a metal hip replacement. O'Hair had hip replacement surgery a few years before she disappeared.

Dental records, DNA and possibly a serial number from the artificial hip also were to be used in identifying the remains.

David Glassman, chairman of the anthropology department at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos, assisted with their removal and identification.

O'Hair called herself the most hated woman in America. She was involved in successful court battles in the 1960s to ban school-sponsored prayer and Bible-reading in the nation's public schools.

O'Hair's son William, 54, who was the subject of her landmark lawsuit, is now a Christian evangelist and head of the Religious Freedom Coalition in Washington, D.C.

Hutchison says she will not run for Texas governor in 2002

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison ended months of speculation Wednesday when she said she will not run for Texas governor in 2002.

HUTCHISON

Hutchison said talk about her future had become a serious distraction and it was time to end the rumors. "I will not be a candidate for governor in the Republican primary of 2002 with (Gov.) Rick Perry and I wish him well," Hutchison said.

Hutchison told Perry the news Wednesday in a phone call. Perry has said he wants to try to keep his job. Perry was lieutenant governor and assumed the governor's office when George W. Bush became president.

Perry did not address questions about whether he was happy that Hutchison would not challenge him in the primaries.

"Texas is beginning to have two United States senators with substantial authority and maturity from the standpoint of their appointments. We look forward to working with the senator and with Senator (Phil) Gramm," Perry said.

The possibility that Hutchison might run for governor generated speculation about how a Hutchison-Perry primary might affect the Texas GOP and whether it would ultimately help Democrats.

"Anytime there's a contentious primary, it's possible that the whole Republican family can suffer," said Texas Republican Party spokesman Ted Royer. "So Republicans are happy to know that we won't face that, and we'll be able to keep both Senator Hutchison and Governor Perry in leadership positions."

Republican consultant Bill

Miller in Austin said Hutchison's decision allows Perry to focus on the Democrats' candidate — possibly South Texas multimillionaire A.R. "Tony" Sanchez Jr. Marble Falls attorney Marty Akins also is considering a gubernatorial bid as a Democrat.

Hutchison, Texas' junior senator, said no one asked her not to run for the sake of party unity.

Hutchison said she wanted to end an "environment of rumor." Her every move, she said, was being scrutinized for hints about her future plans. She said the distractions could end up being blamed for diverting attention from the state's problems.

"It was just a matter of so many stories coming out that were putting a spin on something that was not accurate," Hutchison said. "I hired a wonderful young man for my Dallas office and all of a sudden it was, 'Well this must mean she's running.'" Hutchison said.

Perry appoints first black to state Supreme Court

AUSTIN (AP) — San Antonio attorney Wallace Bernard Jefferson, a descendant of a slave who was owned by a state judge, was appointed Wednesday by Gov. Rick Perry to serve on the Texas Supreme Court.

Once he is sworn in, Jefferson, 37, will be the first black to serve on the state's highest civil court. His appointment is subject to Senate confirmation.

By appointing a Republican, Perry assured that the nine-member court remains solely in the hands of the GOP.

Jefferson will fill the seat vacated by Al Gonzales, who resigned in January to serve as President Bush's chief White House counsel.

"Wallace Jefferson will be a fair, balanced and conservative judge who will strictly interpret our laws and constitution in the best interest of Texas," Perry said.

The NAACP praised Jefferson's "historical" appointment.

"He will provide a perspective that has been missing from the court's deliberations," said Gary Bledsoe, president of the Texas chapter of National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. "Mr. Jefferson is a reasonable person and a man of integrity."

Jefferson has built a reputation as an expert in appellate law and successfully argued two cases before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Jefferson said most of his legal work has been in civil appeals, including defense of insurance companies.

He is a partner in the Crofts, Callaway & Jefferson law firm, which has several cases before the court. He also is a member of the State Commission on Judicial Conduct.

Jefferson's great-great-grandfather, Shedrick Willis, who once served on the Waco city council during Reconstruction, was also once a slave owned by state District Court Judge Nicholas Battle.

"This is a very historic appointment and I understand that," Jefferson said.

"I think it can't help but shape me and my life to know of that history and that background," he said. "It makes this appointment personally that much more important to me."

Perry spoke at length of Jefferson's ancestral background when announcing the appointment.

But when asked if race played a key role in his decision, Perry said it was important to find the most qualified person.

"We were looking for the most qualified individual we could find in the state of Texas who brought a brilliant legal mind to the Supreme Court," Perry said.

"We found that in Wallace Jefferson."

Racial profiling could be combated via extra fee

AUSTIN (AP) — Members of five civil rights groups said Wednesday they would support raising the cost of traffic tickets by $1 to pay for video and audio equipment in law enforcement vehicles to help curb racial profiling.

The fee was suggested by Sen. Royce West as a method of funding his bill, which prohibits law enforcement agencies from engaging in racial profiling and requires them to install video cameras and voice activated microphone equipment in patrol cars.

The bill, without funding, was unanimously approved by the Senate Criminal Justice Committee.

Acknowledging the high cost of video cameras, West, D-Dallas, told the committee, "It is not my intention to pass this bill without providing a funding mechanism."

That mechanism would be added later in the process.

William Harrell, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union, was one of those to support the fee.

"It's worth the cost," Harrell said. "People of color are paying a war tax in the war on drugs by being stopped and harassed on a regular basis."

Harrell said fees are often tacked on to court charges and citations to pay for things such as the state's crime victims' fund.

"People of color are victims of the crime of racial profiling," Harrell said. "Why not raise the fee to create a fund for their victimization?"

It's unclear how much the technical equipment would cost law enforcement agencies.

The fee would generate at least $7 million and as much as $10 million, based on the number of citations issued annually by state, county and city law enforcement agencies, said Maj. Ricky Smith of the Department of Public Safety traffic and law enforcement division.

Tommy Bogard, chief of police in the Panhandle city of Sunray, said the bill would be nearly impossible for his department to implement without state aid.

"I don't have the funding nor the manpower. I don't have a secretary," said Bogard, whose city has about 2,000 people.

West's bill would also require law enforcement agencies to adopt and implement detailed written policies addressing racial profiling beginning Jan. 1.

The policies must define racial profiling acts; include a process through which individuals may file complaints alleging racial profiling; mandate corrective actions if an officer is proven to have engaged in racial profiling; and mandate that data is collected on citations issued and arrests made from traffic stops.

The data must include information on the ethnicity of the individual stopped and be evaluated quarterly. An analysis of the data is to be sent to a local governmental body once a year.

Texas Senate passes teen driving restrictions bill

AUSTIN (AP) — New drivers between the ages of 16 and 17 would be prohibited from driving after midnight unless a person 21 or older was in the car with them under a bill approved by the Senate on Wednesday.

Teens would be exempt from the rules if they were driving home from school activities, under an amendment added to the bill. Other exemptions include those driving to and from work or cases of medical emergency.

The bill by Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, now moves to the House.

The approved bill would require that for the first six months that 16- and 17-year-olds are able to drive, someone 21 or older must be in the car with them between midnight and 5 a.m.

The original bill would have required those drivers to have someone 21 or older in their car from 11 p.m. to 5 a.m. and did not provide for the exemption allowing them to drive home from school activities.

Those amendments were offered up by Sen. John Whitmire, D-Houston, who has been a critic of the bill and said the Legislature needs to stop "being the parents" of everybody's children.

Whitmire said that students who are not doing anything wrong should be allowed to try to make it home from a football game or a band activity without fearing that they will get a ticket.

"We've got to quit punishing the good kids to get at a few bad apples," Whitmire said.

"I am not out to punish anyone," Bivins responded. Bivins said the bill is meant to save lives.

In 1998, more than 320 Texans between 15 and 18 died in automobile crashes and another 40,324 were injured, he said. Single vehicle collisions represent nearly half of fatal crashes involving 16- and 17-year-old drivers, he said.

Under the bill, the teen drivers could be alone in the car between 5 a.m. and midnight.

Everyone in the vehicle must be wearing a seat belt at all times, including in the back seat.

Senate agrees to end debate, vote on bankruptcy overhaul

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is moving toward passage of legislation that would make it harder for people to wipe out debts in bankruptcy court after quashing Democratic attempts to restrain banks in handling credit cards.

Senators voted 80-19 Wednesday to cut off debate on the most sweeping overhaul of bankruptcy laws in 20 years. A final vote was expected late today or Friday.

The legislation overwhelmingly passed the House on March 1, and President Bush has signaled he would sign it.

Secretary of State Colin Powell said Wednesday, however, that the administration opposed a provision in the legislation that could block insurer Lloyd's of London from collecting debts from some U.S. investors.

"We strongly oppose it," Powell said in testimony before the Senate Budget Committee. "It will cause us international difficulties, and it opens up other opportunities for others to try to seek similar relief."

The bankruptcy legislation was vetoed in December by then-President Clinton, who contended it would hurt ordinary people and working families.

It has been pushed by the banking, credit card and retail credit industries, which have paid millions of lobbying dollars in recent years. Consumer groups and unions have opposed it.

Forward air controller now focus of bombing investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A central focus of the Pentagon's investigation of the fatal bombing accident in Kuwait will be the actions of an Air Force enlisted man who was responsible for directing a Navy pilot to his target and who survived the still-unexplained attack.

Marine Corps Lt. Gen. Michael P. DeLong, deputy commander of U.S. Central Command, arrived in Kuwait today to begin the investigation, the U.S. Embassy announced. Central Command, which is responsible for all U.S. military operations in the Persian Gulf, said DeLong will complete his probe by April 16.

The remains of the five

American servicemen and one New Zealand military officer killed in the accident were to arrive at Ramstein Air Base in Germany today, Central Command said.

DeLong's investigative team will visit the scene of the bombing in northern Kuwait. The are also expected to go aboard the USS Harry S. Truman, the aircraft carrier in the gulf from which the Navy F/A-18 Hornet was launched to conduct the practice bombing at Kuwait's Udairi range.

The investigators also are expected to interview the three U.S. servicemen who were injured in Monday's accident and who are recovering at a U.S. military hospital in Germany.

Ex-nurse could get death penalty for killing patients

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Kristen Gilbert was hired as a caretaker, but the accusations that followed painted a gruesome picture: The nurse allegedly killed four patients at a veterans hospital with drug injections to impress her boyfriend.

Gilbert now faces the death penalty after a federal jury convicted her Wednesday of three first-degree murder charges and one second-degree murder count. She also was convicted of trying to kill two other patients who did not die.

The same jury that spent nearly 12 days deliberating after the three-month trial is to reconvene Monday to consider if the 33-year-old mother of two should be executed or sentenced to life in prison.

"Now, I can go to the cemetery and feel good that vengeance has been done," said Julia Hudon, the 67-year-old mother of one of the victims, Henry Hudon.

Massachusetts banned capital punishment in 1984. But the case was tried in federal court, where murder can be punishable by death because the crimes took place on federal property, at the Veterans Affairs Medical Center in Northampton, Mass.

Gilbert bent her head and wept quietly as the verdict was read. Her parents, Richard and Claudia Strickland, of Setauket, N.Y., sat behind her in the courtroom. Richard Strickland covered his face with his hand as the verdict was announced.

The victims' families cried and let out gasps of relief, but they are split on what Gilbert's punishment should be.

Christine Duquette, the sister of Hudon, says Gilbert should die.

"She is a serial murderer. Nothing is going to stop these people," she said.

Julia Hudon says life in prison may be a harsher sentence.

"She is a young person, and every day she would have to relive what she did," Hudon said. "She was e-mailing her lover while my son was dying."

Prosecutors said Gilbert injected patients with overdoses of epinephrine, or adrenaline, sending their hearts racing out of control.

They said she wanted to attract attention, especially from her lover, a hospital security guard.

The boyfriend, James Perrault, said she once told him, "I did it! I did it! I injected those guys with a certain drug." But later, Gilbert told him she was only trying to make him angry, Perrault said. They were breaking up at the time.

Prosecutors said she once climbed atop a patient and straddled him, apparently so Perrault could see her garter belt.

Gilbert's lawyers blamed the emergencies and deaths on natural causes.

OUR VIEWS

We're taking steps toward a bright future

The numbers are in for Census 2000 and what they show isn't unexpected. The Lone Star State has grown in population; that certainly comes as no shock. There's been a significant shift in population from rural to urban areas; and that's no surprise either.

Because of that population shift, it appears that, indeed, West Texas will lose some representation in state government. Of course, we've been anticipating that for some time also. Exactly how that affects us hasn't been determined and won't be for awhile.

That Big Spring and Howard County have gained in population over the past 10 years is really no surprise either, though we'll admit to having a smile on our face when we saw the numbers. True, that increase in population can be attributed largely to the upsurge in prisons and inmate population, but that's not at all discouraging. Those facilities provide income for the city and hundreds of jobs for taxpaying citizens.

What is encouraging has little to do with census numbers actually, and more to do with the foresight our community leaders have had in the past and continue to have.

Consider that just in the past couple of years we have seen StarTek and Solitaire Homes open. The Texas State Veterans Home will begin accepting residents this spring.

The Beals Creek project has been completed, ensuring that portions of our city won't flood during times of heavy rain. The city is doubling its efforts at replacing ages-old water and sewer lines and the county has instituted policies requiring landowners to keep their property from being unsightly.

The U.S. Highway 87 reconstruction project is well on its way to completion; we'll soon have separate offices for 118th District Court downtown; and the Social Security Administration will be housed in new facilities out on FM 700. And in just a few weeks, visitors flying in to Big Spring will be able to walk into a new and impressive terminal building.

Moore Development For Big Spring is focused on bringing to our community higher-paying jobs and new technology. It's becoming a "high-tech" world out there, and we want to be, as they say, "on the cutting edge."

Some of what has been happening is cosmetic, such as the tearing down of the Permian Building, Howard House and Apache Bend Apartments. Those are important. They show the pride we have in our community.

It is also necessary out here in West Texas to pool our resources and work with other cities and counties. To that end, our community leaders are working feverishly to see that the Ports-to-Plains Trade Corridor runs through Howard County. That corridor will draw traffic to and from Mexico to the Central United States, and eventually, to Canada.

An offshoot of that will be a reliever route on the city's west side. It should be very attractive to industry. In addition to being on a major north-south highway, it will also be readily serviceable by both air and railway.

West Texas is also moving forward as an agricultural corridor. Much of what Texas has to offer in the way of cotton, sheep, cattle and other commodities can be found along that Ports-to-Plains Corridor. It only makes sense that processing plants, mills, other related industry and manufacturers be located along that route as well.

What this all means is that census numbers are not a clear indication of what is happening. Certainly not in Big Spring, and not in much of West Texas.

Through vision and leadership, we can march steadily and confidently into the new millennium.

Enough of teams shaking down cities

Orlando, Fla., is facing a familiar dilemma. The billionaire owner of an NBA franchise is demanding a new arena and is threatening to leave if the city and county taxpayers don't ante up.

CHARLEY REESE

Well, the proper reply to Rich DeVos, the owner of the Orlando Magic, is, "Goodbye."

In a recent press conference, DeVos trashed the local hotel owners. He said that they should take their "grubby little fingers" off a resort tax, the revenue from which DeVos thinks should finance a new arena.

First, the hotel industry generates the tax revenue, not the Orlando Magic. Tourism is Orlando's major industry, and the mediocre National Basketball Association team DeVos owns contributes zip to the tourist-tax revenue. No matter how you measure it — jobs, investment dollars, tax revenue — Orlando's attractions and hotels dwarf the DeVos operation.

Second, Orange County, Fla., commissioners should do the same kind of cost-benefit analysis that a proposed state law would require for developments I firmly believe that if they do, they will find that, from Day One, the Orlando Magic has been a losing proposition for Orange County taxpayers. These taxpayers still owe $16 million on the present arena.

Third, Orlando doesn't need any publicity. Orlando was known worldwide as a top tourist destination long before there was a Magic basketball team.

Fourth, falling attendance isn't the fault of the arena. It's the fault of the Orlando Magic, which obviously is one of the poorest-managed franchises in the league. It had a national-championship-caliber team but couldn't win the national championship. Then it let its winners go their separate ways.

Neither the fans nor the taxpayers have any influence on Magic organization decisions. A new arena wouldn't help what ails the Magic.

Fifth and finally, it certainly would be a feather in Orlando's hat to be one of the rare cities in America to tell the professional-team shakedown artists to take a hike.

More cities should do this. Sports franchise owners are engaging in a polite form of a shakedown when they tell local taxpayers: Build us a new arena or stadium or we'll leave.

DeVos used to sing the praises of free enterprise to his soap salesmen, but he seems to have decided that a little socialism for himself wouldn't be a bad thing. It's funny how many billionaires and other corporate big shots like welfare as long as they are the recipients.

Taxpayers naturally should no more build sports facilities for private corporations than they should build newspaper offices for communications companies. Professional sports are private businesses. They should have no claim whatsoever on the public purse.

When people like DeVos make a bad investment or mismanage their sports business, it isn't up to the taxpayers to bail them out.

Professional sports today, the province of billionaire owners and millionaire players, are like transnational corporations. They have no loyalty to the place where they happen to be located and no loyalty to their fans. They are strangers conducting a for-profit business in our cities, which they look upon as a "market."

They have to employ public-relations people to simulate some interest in the community and the fans, but it's just that, simulated.

Sports fans owe team owners and players no loyalty. A sports team is just a business dressed up in hype.

Fans should pressure their politicians to resist the shakedown routine. Let the team owners build their own facilities. That's what other businesses do. Or take a hike.

YOUR VIEWS

TO THE EDITOR:

When enough of those years creep up on you, at some point you'll begin to notice the seniors' world of silent little struggles. Later, you may begin to better appreciate the accumulated "grace, beauty and wisdom" among our elderly. It's all around us. We have almost three million seniors in Texas, and that population is growing rapidly. Still, too many among us continue to see our elderly as little more than "antique furniture to step around."

Texas has one state agency focused on the unique set of circumstances and needs of our elderly. It is the Texas Department on Aging (TDoA). That agency is about to be abolished. The agency is small, about 35 people. It costs the state so little. 89 percent of its budget is federal money, which merely flows through it to Area Agency on Aging offices throughout the state.

TDoA is certainly concerned about the health needs and long-term care issues of the elderly, but it is much more. It helps our older citizens carry their dignity and independence with them into those later years. To that end, it is concerned with providing a variety of services including nutrition, nursing home ombudsmen, transportation, information and assistance, benefits counseling, care management, in-home assistance and more. Most of these services include major support from volunteers and local contributions, encouraged and coordinated by TDoA.

The core reason for the existence of TDoA is service and a comprehensive system of access and assistance to Texas seniors. Abolish TDoA, and you abolish the only office of our state government focused on and dedicated to assistance for our senior population.

Will Texas save money by abolishing TDoA? No! The Texas Commissioner of Health and Human Services says any cost savings which could be achieved by consolidating TDoA with others could be achieved without consolidation. The Commissioner also stated that he recognizes the value of keeping TDoA as a separate agency, and that there is a clear risk that TDoA's way of doing business (its focus on senior needs) would be lost in a larger setting.

Who wants to save TDoA? I am one of 116 members of the Texas Silver-Haired Legislature, elected by seniors throughout the state. Our number one priority is saving TDoA. We are joined by a host of organizations attuned to the needs of seniors. Included are the Texas Retired Teachers Association, Texas Senior Advocacy Coalition, NAACP, Gray Panthers, Telephone Pioneers and many others.

Who opposes it? The leadership and spokesmen for only two groups. Advocates for saving TDoA believe individual members of these two groups, if informed and polled by their spokesmen, would also support saving TDoA. These are the two groups:

1. Advocates for people with disabilities. These advocates apparently see a consolidation of services for the elderly and services for people with disabilities as a way to elevate emphasis and delivery of services to those with disabilities. Of course, gains for that group in such a consolidation represent a concurrent loss of emphasis and delivery of services to our elderly. This trade-off pits one deserving group against another.
2. AARP. Although the AARP claims that it has at no time advocated for the abolishment of the TDoA, its spokesmen nonetheless endorse existing legislation which would abolish the agency. AARP's spokesmen have inexplicably concluded that reorganization (consolidation) actually strengthens access and delivery of services to the elderly.

Advocates for saving TDoA reject this notion and believe AARP's position is contrary to the best interests of Texas seniors. The TDoA would have ceased to exist in 1999, but its abolishment was temporarily postponed through negotiations by Senator Zaffirini and others. We are urging the legislature to build on that favorable extension by now granting added years to the TDoA.

Members of the Silver-Haired Legislature urge anyone

- who is a senior,
- who has senior parents,

or

- who expects someday to be a senior

to contact their Texas state senators and house members with this message: Our seniors have enough to deal with without losing this small agency focused on their needs.

They do not need additional unnecessary changes in their lives. The Texas Department on Aging should not be abolished-it should be saved.

Letters do make a difference! Write your sen. and rep. today! Senator Robert Duncan, 401 Austin, Big Spring 79720. Representative David Counts, P.O. Box 338, Knox City 79529.

HOROSCOPE

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, March 16, 2001: Your abilities to communicate and to make a difference separate you from others. You have a strong presence, and others often react to you. Understand your power and charisma. Your intuition guides you. You often get your best ideas from yourself, even in your sleep. Listen to your inner voice. You gain insight. You build security this year, especially through domestic matters or real estate. Your career gains as well through this sixth sense. If you are single, in the next year you will have to decide whether you want to change your status. If you are attached, the two of you make music together. SAGITTARIUS pushes you. The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult...
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Surprises and excitement start your day, but the need to resolve problems could end your day on a down note. The challenge remains to not let the ups and downs get to you and for you to remain optimistic. Others need your leadership. You're a role model! Tonight: Invite others to join you.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Dealing with someone in your day-to-day life always proves to be a challenge. Why would today be any different? Your abilities to bypass problems and to maintain a high profile bring long-term gains. Acknowledge another's "bright" idea. Tonight: Do something special with your significant other.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Deal with someone carefully and understand more of what is important to him. News spurs actions. You discover that nearly anything is possible if you go with spontaneity and use your intelligence. The combination proves to be a winner. Tonight: Go on an old-

Knight to come to Texas Tech today to discuss job

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

LUBBOCK (AP) — Before Texas Tech officials decide whether to make an offer to Bob Knight, dozens of faculty members want to make their opinions known. At least 58 faculty members have added their names to a petition against hiring the fired Indiana coach in advance of his three-day visit to the campus, beginning Thursday afternoon. Asked about the petition Wednesday night on Bob Costas' "On the Record" show on HBO, Knight said it was the first he'd heard of it. "I'm not sure I know a single person or have ever met a single person on the Texas Tech faculty," he said. "And I would certainly, if I coached there, reserve judgment about the faculty until I meet them." A few hours earlier, associate professor of philosophy Walter Schaller turned in the petition at Tech president David Schmidly's office. Schmidly was not in Wednesday. In the 2,000-plus-word e-mail, Schaller argues that Knight's ability to build a clean and winning program should not outweigh his repeated misconduct. "Having Mr. Knight as the basketball coach at Texas Tech would bring much negative publicity and damage our reputation in ways that are completely unnecessary," Schaller wrote. "At a minimum, the announcement of his hiring would be accompanied by the film clip in which he throws a chair across the basketball court, except this time the name of Texas Tech would be attached to such antics." Earlier in the day, athletic director Gerald Myers said he was not aware of the petition. Knight, a Hall of Fame coach who led Indiana to three national championships, was invited to visit the campus by Myers, a longtime friend. He planned to address the media at an early evening news conference, but will not take questions.

Whether he ends up succeeding James Dickey, fired last week after Tech's fourth straight losing season, "depends on how they feel and how I feel about the things that we talk about," Knight told Costas. "I obviously think there are some things that are necessary in the building of a basketball program that can be successful," he said. "If they think and I think that those are the same things, then we'll just see what happens." Knight's 29-year reign at Indiana ended in September when he was fired for violating a zero-tolerance behavior policy when he grabbed a freshman student by the arm to lecture him on manners.

Magic win without McGrady; Kings lose with four suspended

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

The fallout from the Tracy McGrady-Bobby Jackson fight hurt the Kings more than it hurt the Magic. Orlando shrugged off the absence of its leading scorer and got 18 points from Pat Garrity, including four 3-pointers in the fourth quarter, to defeat the Cleveland Cavaliers 97-87. McGrady missed the game as he began serving a two-game suspension for his fight with Jackson on Tuesday night. Jackson was suspended one game, as were Vlade Divac, Scot Pollard and Art Long, all of whom left the bench during the altercation. With so many players missing, including two centers, the Kings lost 114-104 at Miami. "We were really over-matched," Sacramento coach Rick Adelman said. In other games, Phoenix defeated Portland 84-79, San Antonio topped Minnesota 106-100 in overtime, Philadelphia downed Chicago 85-67, Utah coasted past Golden State 102-83, Charlotte beat Vancouver 100-95, Denver defeated Indiana 95-83 and Washington topped Detroit 103-96. Garrity finished 7-for-10 from the floor in 19 minutes for the Magic, who learned two hours before tipoff that McGrady had been suspended two games. "He's carried us plenty of times, so I hope he got some rest," Garrity said of McGrady, who was barred from the building and couldn't even watch his teammates from his hotel as the game wasn't televised locally in Cleveland. Although they were without McGrady's 27 points, 7.8 rebounds and 4.5 rebounds per game, the Magic were able to handle the pathetic Cavs, who have lost nine of 10, 21 of 24 and were booed off the floor at the final horn. Mike Miller scored 18 points and Darrell Armstrong had 15 and eight assists in three quarters for the Magic, who after playing at home Tuesday night didn't arrive in Cleveland until 4 a.m. "I asked them right before the game, 'Who's going to step up?'" said Magic coach Doc Rivers. "And everybody said, 'We're all going to step up.' That's exactly what it was, a team win." Heat 114, Kings 104 At Miami, Anthony Mason returned from a one-game banishment and had 25 points and 13 rebounds, and Brian Grant added 23 points as the Heat snapped Sacramento's five-game winning streak.

"I think they missed Bobby Jackson the most," Heat coach Pat Riley said. "He really disrupts with his full-court pressure. He's tough as nails. Then not having their two bangers inside, Divac and Pollard, leveled their game." Mason shot 12-of-21 and added four assists and a block. Tim Hardaway emerged from a shooting slump to score 20 and seldom-used Cedric Ceballos provided a spark as a reserve, adding a season-high 21 points and 11 rebounds. Suns 84, Trail Blazers 79 At Portland, Shawn Marion had 26 points and 13 rebounds as the Suns took advantage of Portland's sloppiness down the stretch and handed the Blazers their fifth straight loss. Rasheed Wallace had 29 points and 11 rebounds for the Blazers. Spurs 106, Timberwolves 100, OT At San Antonio, Derek Anderson scored a season-high 30 points, Tim Duncan had 23 points and 20 rebounds and David Robinson scored 18. "It was a heck of a game, just like every time we play each other," said San Antonio coach Gregg Popovich.

UConn ends Fogler's run at South Carolina

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eddie Fogler went out quietly. Edmund Saunders is still making some noise in his final days at Connecticut. Connecticut (20-11) ended Fogler's coaching career at South Carolina on Wednesday night, beating the Gamecocks 72-65 in the first round of the National Invitation Tournament. "I wanted our kids to have fun and play hard. Win and we go on. Lose, we lose," said Fogler, who resigned Monday after his contract was not extended. "I think they played hard and had fun." Saunders, one of three seniors who played on UConn's 1999 national championship team, had 15 points and 11 rebounds. "I want to go out with a bang, get as many wins as I can," Saunders said. "We just have to keep going." The Huskies (20-11) will play Detroit in the second round. The Titans advanced with a 68-49 victory over Bradley. "We kept saying to the kids, 'It's a 32-team field and there's a championship to be won,'" UConn coach Jim Calhoun said. "It is not the one we aspire for, but right now it is the only one." Jamel Bradley had 19 points for South Carolina (15-15). A crowd of only 3,200 attended the game at the usually raucous 10,000-seat Gampel Pavilion. In other games, it was Purdue 90, Illinois State 79; Auburn 60, Miami 58; Dayton 68, North Carolina-Wilmington 59; Pittsburgh 84, St. Bonaventure 75; Mississippi State 75, Southern Mississippi 68; Minnesota 87, Villanova 78; Tulsa 75, UC Irvine 71; Texas-El Paso 84, McNeese State 74, Pepperdine 72, Wyoming 69; and New Mexico 83, Baylor 73. In the final two first-round games, South Alabama is at Toledo on Thursday night, and West Virginia will play at Richmond on Friday night. Detroit 68, Bradley 49 At Peoria, Ill., Rashad Phillips scored 17 points, and Greg Grays added 13 for the Titans (23-10).

The 19-point loss was the worst ever in postseason play for Bradley (19-12). Eddie Cage led the Braves with 13 points. Purdue 90, Illinois St. 79 At West Lafayette, Ind., Maynard Lewis scored a career-high 26 points, and Carson Cunningham had 22. The Boiler-makers (16-14) will play Auburn in the second round. Tarise Bryson led Illinois State (21-9) with 38 points. Auburn 60, Miami 58 At Auburn, Ala., Kyle Davis set an NIT record with 13 blocked shots and Marquis Daniels scored 15 points. The Tigers (18-13) held the Hurricanes (16-13) to 17 points in the second half. James Jones led Miami with 20 points and 15 rebounds. Dayton 68, N.C.-Wilmington 59 At Dayton, Ohio, Keith Waleskowski scored 19 points, and Tony Stanley and Ramod Marshall added 11 apiece. The Flyers (20-12) will play the winner of Friday's West Virginia-Richmond game. Brett Bizzard led the Seahawks (19-11) with 18 points. Pittsburgh 84, St. Bonaventure 75 At Pittsburgh, Ricardo Greer scored 26 points as Pittsburgh (19-13) advanced to a second-round game against Mississippi State. J.R. Bremer led St. Bonaventure (18-12) with 26 points. Mississippi St. 75, Southern Mississippi 68 At Starkville, Miss., Marckell Patterson scored 18 of his 21 points in the first half for the Bulldogs (17-12). Mario Myles led the Golden Eagles (22-9) with 20 points. Minnesota 87, Villanova 78 At Minneapolis, Kevin Bursleson scored a season-high 21 points, and Terrence Simmons added 16 in the second half. Minnesota (18-13), which won the NIT in 1993 and 1998, will play Tulsa in the second round.

Ramirez hurts hamstring, Lopez sidelined for Braves

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

The losses keep piling up for the Boston Red Sox. Manny Ramirez became Boston's latest big-name player to walk off the field with an injury, leaving Wednesday's game because of a mildly strained left hamstring. "I don't think it's severe," Red Sox manager Jimmy Williams said in Fort Myers, Fla. "It's good he didn't take a chance out there." A day earlier, David Cone pulled himself after pitching only one inning because of soreness in his right shoulder. Red Sox star Nomar Garciaparra has not played this spring with a split tendon in his right wrist. Infielder John Valentini is trying to come back from a ruptured tendon in his left knee, first baseman Jose Offerman is recovering from a groin strain and third baseman Chris Stynes has a strained left calf. Boston beat Minnesota 4-3, but still leads the majors with 12 losses this spring. Ramirez, who signed a $160 million, eight-year contract with the Red Sox, appeared to pull up while chasing Matt Lawton's deep hit, which fell in for a double, in the third inning. Ramirez, hitting 143 with homer this spring, came out of the game after talking to center fielder Carl Everett. Last year, Ramirez pulled the hamstring with Cleveland and missed 44 games, but this injury is not in the same spot, the Red Sox said. Atlanta catcher Javy Lopez will miss 3-to-4 weeks after breaking his left ring finger. He hurt himself in a game Tuesday, though the injury was not diagnosed until later in the day.

"What can you do?" Atlanta manager Bobby Cox said. "I'm trying to make him feel better, and he's trying to make me feel better. We cry on each other's shoulder, I guess." Cox isn't optimistic that Lopez will be ready by opening day. "That might be pushing it," he said. Backup Eddie Perez had surgery after tearing his right rotator cuff early last season. He has yet to appear in an exhibition game and is not likely to be ready for the opener. The Braves have catchers Paul Bako, Jesse Levis and Dax Norris. "We'll cover it," Cox said. Yankees 6, Rangers 5 At Tampa, Fla., Cuban defector Andy Morales made an impressive American pro debut, hitting a two-out, two-run double in the bottom of the ninth inning to win it. Texas shortstop Alex Rodriguez had two hits and was loudly booed. Royals 4, Reds 2 At Sarasota, Fla., Pete Harnisch pitched six shutout innings. Scheduled to be Cincinnati's opening day starter, he has thrown 14 1-3 scoreless innings this spring. Mets 0, Braves (ss) 0 At Kissimmee, Fla., Atlanta's Tom Glavine gave up three hits in four innings. The game was called after eight innings because of rain. Indians (ss) 6, Braves 4 At Winter Haven, Fla., Karim Garcia hit a two-run homer off Jake Robbins in the 10th.

Sorority sisters don't agree about boyfriend

Dear Ann Landers: I am in my second year of college and live in the dorm with a younger but very likeable girl. "Lorna" and I are sorority sisters, and we have become good friends. I am concerned about her welfare and hope you can tell me what to do to help her.

Lorna has been dating "Damien" for several months, and they are having sex regularly. Damien does not treat her with respect. He never calls her (she always calls him), and he has been known to sleep around. When I told Lorna he's "bad news," she became angry.

It is obvious that Damien is using Lorna for sex. I truly care about her and don't want her to be hurt. Every time I mention Damien, she tells me to mind my own business. Please tell me how to get her to listen before it's too late.

At a Loss in Gainesville, Fla. Dear Gainesville: Drop the good Samaritan role. It's not appreciated. Lorna will learn life's lessons, like most people, from getting her lumps firsthand. There is nothing you can do. File it under "Lessons Learned the Hard Way," and lay off.

Dear Ann Landers: I read with interest the letter from the Ohio woman who wanted her mother to be buried wearing her wedding ring, which, she said, "was so much a part of her." You advised against it, saying, "It makes no sense whatsoever to bury jewelry" when there are children, grandchildren, nieces, nephews, and so on, who would be honored to have those pieces. My father died in an auto accident when I was a young man, and I insisted he be buried wearing his Masonic ring. I felt it was part of his identity and should remain with him forever. What a mistake that was. Several years later, I joined the Masons and would have given anything to have had my father's ring. It would have meant the world to me.

I now have a grandson and plan to leave my Masonic ring to him. I hope he will cherish it as much as I did. -- Larry in Traverse City, Mich. Dear Larry: Yours is a letter to remember. Thanks for writing.

Lonesome? Take charge of your life and turn it around. Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.25 (this includes postage and handling) to: Friends, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $5.15.) To find out more about Ann Landers and read her past columns, visit the Creators Syndicate web page at www.creators.com.

An alcohol problem? How can you help yourself or someone you love? "Alcoholism: How to Recognize It, How to Deal With It, How to Conquer It" will give you the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.75 (this includes postage and handling) to: Alcohol, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.
