Amphitheater to be the scene for family fun Saturday

By LYNDEL MOODY
Staff Writer

A free showing of the animated movie "Recess: School's Out," is set for Saturday at the Comanche Trail Park Amphitheater, beginning about dark.

CRANE

"Our last showing was a huge success," said Becky Crane, city parks and recreation director.

More than 750 people attended "The Emperors New Groove," the first free movie shown at the amphitheater last month. The show followed the day-long splash-in event to open the newly renovated city pool.

Though the temperature may still be warm at dark, Crane recommends bringing a blanket and a backrest to this showing.

"They might want to bring a blanket to sit on because the seats are hard," she said.

The United Girls Softball League will have a concession stand, selling popcorn and hot dogs among other food items.

In "Recess: School's Out," Evil Principal Benedict plots to use a laser beam to eliminate summer, forcing his students to attend school year-round.

TJ and his friends team up with teachers to thwart the principal's sinister plans in the family adventure based on the TV show "Disney's Recess."

Crane said officials hope to show a movie every third Saturday of the month and are currently looking for sponsors to help with the cost of the film.

A film costs about $300 to rent, she said.

In the fall, the city may bring in some PG and PG-13 rating movies to appeal to a broader audience, Crane said.

According to Ron Alton, state park manager, the movie will not conflict with the annual Stargazing on Saturday.

That event, set on top of Scenic Mountain, is expected to last until midnight or 1 p.m.

Staff writer Lindy Barr contributed to this article.

McGuire indicted for kidnapping, auto theft

HERALD Staff Report

A woman who allegedly abducted a 4-year-old girl from the Big Spring Movie Gallery parking lot in May on has been indicted in U.S. District Court on charges of kidnapping and interstate transportation of a stolen motor vehicle.

Jessica Denise McGuire, 19, was indicted by a federal grand jury in Lubbock on Tuesday. The indictments charge that on May 24, she kidnapped 4-year-old Alicia Mayhugh-Moody and transported her to Oklahoma using a stolen vehicle.

She is still being held in Oklahoma, where she is awaiting transportation to Lubbock, according to Roger L. McRoberts, assistant U.S. attorney.

"She will make an initial appearance before a U.S. magistrate, who will read her her rights and explain the charges. If she needs an attorney, one will be appointed for her," said McRoberts.

Exactly when McGuire will be transported to Lubbock is unknown, he said.

McGuire was formally arraigned in a criminal complaint of kidnapping during proceedings held in Muskogee, Okla., following her arrest.

According to the complaint, McGuire drove Mark Mayhugh and his daughter, Mayhugh-Moody, to the Movie Gallery video store on Gregg Street in Mayhugh's 200 Honda Civic to rent a video on May 24. Mayhugh went inside while

Humane society joins weekend adoptathon

Herald Staff Report

After being bathed, clipped and groomed, several Howard County Humane Society dogs, cats, puppies and kittens will make their grand appearance at the Pet Adoptathon 2001 beginning today.

Scheduled for today, Saturday and Sunday, the Howard County Humane Society, along with animal welfare organizations from Midland and

TURRENTINE

Odessa, will meet at Petsmart in Midland to offer animals at special prices.

According to Fran Turrentine, shelter manager, the Howard County Humane Society will offer dogs at $35 and cats at $25. The cost includes include shots and spaying or neutering the animal.

The event kicks off at 11 a.m. each day and lasts at least until 5 p.m. The animal welfare organizations have the choice to stay until 8:45 p.m. today and Saturday. On Sunday, the event ends at 6 p.m.

According to Turrentine, people can find all different kinds of animals from pure breeds to mixed breeds during the adoptathon.

"It's quite an extravaganza," she said. "The manager of Petsmart highlights an animal every hour and parades them through the store."

In addition, Petsmart Charities will be giving the animal welfare organizations a $75 gift card for each day of participation.

While animals will be in abundance, peace and quiet will be in short supply.

"It's kind of like a little circus," Turrentine said. "The animals are in cages all around the store, so there sure will be a lot of barking."

"It's really exciting because of the adoptions, but it's exhausting work."

The Howard County Humane Society will start off taking approximately 11 animals to the event but is in no shortage of animals to replace those that may be adopted.

In fact, the facility has approximately 125 dogs and 70 cats. But while many people are eager to claim a kitten or puppy, the shelter has a hard time finding homes for its larger inhabitants.

"Our major problem is our larger dogs," Turrentine said.

"They're sweet, but most people are looking for a small dog they can keep in the house or travel with."

State park featuring Stargazers

By LYNDEL MOODY
Staff Writer

Two amateur astronomy clubs are ready to show the public a view of the stars at the annual Stargazing event set on Saturday night at Big Spring State Park.

"You can read only so much science but there is nothing like talking to someone whose hobby it is and can tell you what you are looking at," said Ron Alton, park manager.

Members of the West Texas Amateur Astronomy club of Midland and the San Angelo Amateur Astronomy club will be at the park pavilion about 9. They will set up their equipment for those wanting a view of the night sky.

Saturday should be the best time to look at the craters and mountains of the moon because it will be the second day after the new moon.

The only planet the clubs expect to see is Mars. "Mars will be up close to the earth's orbit," Alton said. "With a good sky, we might be able to see the polar ice caps and polar region of the planet."

The clubs hope to see a number of deep sky objects — from globular clusters, or balls of millions of stars grouped closely together, to nebulas, including the Ring Nebula and a double star.

Stargazing kicks off with

UBS reminder: Time to give blood

Herald Staff Report

Among the many summer activities on many people's lists, United Blood Service hopes the public will remember to take time to donate blood.

"Everyone is out playing and traveling," said Johnna Pevey, community relations representative for United Blood Services. "This makes the need for blood increase but the number of donors decrease. Please show your support at one of these blood drives."

There will be a drive Saturday from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. at the Sonic on FM 700 under the organization of Troy Tompkins of the Big Spring Rotary. From noon until 5 p.m. on June 30, Kathy Lusk is organizing a blood drive across from Hallmark in the Big Spring Mall.

All area residents 17 or older, weighing at least 110 pounds, and in good health are asked to donate. Those wishing to donate blood are asked to bring proof of identification and know the the others stayed in the car. When Mayhugh left the store a short time later, he was unable to find the car, his daughter or McGuire. He phoned a friend who took him to his apartment, where he discovered McGuire's clothing was missing. After checking the video store, he notified authorities.

An investigation by the FBI and Big Spring police determined that McGuire knew several people who lived Ardmore, Okla. Further investigation indicated that McGuire had been employed at the Wal-Mart there, and had not picked up her final paycheck. FBI agents visited the store and asked that they be contacted if McGuire came back for the paycheck.

According to the affidavit, at 3:40 a.m. on Saturday, May 26, McGuire and the child entered the store. Wal-Mart personnel immediately contacted Ardmore police, who placed McGuire under arrest.

The Honda Civic was located in the Wal-Mart parking lot, seized by authorities and later searched by the FBI. It was determined that the license plates that were on the vehicle at the time of the alleged kidnapping had been switched. The affidavit states that McGuire admitted to switching the tags to avoid detection by law enforcement personnel.

In an unrelated case, McGuire had been arrested in Big Spring in January and charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle along with unlawful carrying a weapon.

McRoberts said that after her initial appearance before a magistrate in Lubbock, a trial must be held within 60 days, assuming McGuire enters a plea of not guilty.

a planetarium program at the pavilion to show many of the sights the public may see during the night. The program will be projected on a screen.

The event usually draws an average of 200 to 250 people, and Alton said the stargazing is expected to last until midnight or 1 a.m. "I just encourage anyone to come out," he said.

Admission is the entrance fee to the park set for adults at $2. Children 12-years-old and under are free.

Earlier that night at 8, the public will have the last chance to take a nature walk around the park led by Alton. The Sunset Nature Walks will start off at the pavilion.

Alton reminds those interested the walk is along a steep incline and he recommends people do not wear sandals.

Appointments can be made by calling 1-915-653-1307 or 1-800-756-0024. For the Big Spring Rotary blood drive, call 263-0180 for an appointment. Call Lusk at 267-3853 to schedule a time to donate blood for the Big Spring Mall drive.

"For everyone who thinks they can't donate blood, give us a call because we like to dispel as many misconceptions as we can," Pevey said. "Patients will always continue to need blood right through the summer, regardless of vacations or school holidays."

In order to supply the 12 area hospitals, United Blood Services must collect more than 300 units of blood each week. Blood products have a shelf life of five to 42 days.

To keep up with the demand, the blood center needs about 50 people to donate each day. Currently, only about 40 people daily show up to donate. Each donation goes to two or three recipients.

Crocodile caught in New York's Central Park

NEW YORK (AP) — An alligator wrestler made good on his word to capture an elusive reptile in Central Park.

A day after a TV crew captured what they thought was an alligator on videotape, Mike Bailey and his wife Tina caught the creature — which turned out to be a 2-foot-long caiman — in less than 20 minutes Thursday night.

"For this situation, he was a pretty easy catch," said Mike Bailey, a 23-year-old wildlife worker from the Seminole Tribe's reservation near Hollywood, Fla. "As long as you can visualize and see them, they are not too hard to get hold of."

The reptile had been on the loose since Saturday.

First Church of God

"How do we grow spiritually?" (James 2:17) is the title for Pastor Darrell Hendrickson's message on Sunday at First Church of God located at 2009 Main St. Our services are Sunday school 9:30 a.m., morning worship, 10:45, evening worship 6:30, and Wednesday Bible study at 7 p.m. Pastor Hendrickson's message will address the five areas which are essential if we want to grow spiritually. Those areas are worship, fellowship, discipleship, ministry and evangelism. First Church of God welcomes you to join them in the great adventure of growing spiritually.

Carroll O'Connor dies of heart attack at age 76

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — Carroll O'Connor, whose gruff charm as the cranky bigot Archie Bunker on "All in the Family" pioneered a new era of TV comedies that brought race relations into America's living rooms, has died of a heart attack. He was 76.

O'Connor collapsed at his home and was rushed to Brotman Medical Center, publicist Frank Tobin said. His wife of nearly 50 years, Nancy, was at his side. Despite declining health, O'Connor remained active until the end of his life.

Personal tragedy darkened O'Connor's later years.

His only child, Hugh, a co-star with his father on the TV series "In The Heat of The Night," shot himself in a drug-related suicide in 1995.

A talented actor who appeared on stage and in many movies, O'Connor's image was forever branded in the public's consciousness as Archie Bunker, the outspoken, blue-collar bigot who railed against a changing world he no longer understood.

On Jan. 12, 1971, Archie began a 13-year sputtering tirade over minorities, liberals and his long-haired, hippie son-in-law Mike (Rob Reiner), whom he called "Meathead" and "Pinko."

The character was redeemed by his die-hard affection for his wife, Edith (Jean Stapleton), lovingly referred to by Archie as "Dingbat;" their daughter, Gloria (Sally Struthers), who he often called "Little Girl;" and his grudging affection for "Meathead."

Legendary bluesman John Lee Hooker dead at 83

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For six decades, John Lee Hooker's rich sonorous voice coupled with a brooding rhythmic guitar inspired countless musicians and electrified audiences with songs like "Boom Boom" and "Boogie Chillen."

The legendary bluesman from the Mississippi Delta sang of loneliness and confusion. Neither polished nor urbane, his music was raw, primal emotion — and remained hypnotic and unchanged throughout his career.

"There are no superlatives to describe the profound impact John Lee left in our hearts," musician Carlos Santana said Thursday after learning of Hooker's death. "When I was a child he was the first circus I wanted to run away with."

Hooker, who had estimated he recorded more than 100 albums, died of natural causes at his Los Altos home, said his agent Mike Kappus. He was 83.

Even in the '90s, when his fame was sealed and he was widely recognized as one of the grandfathers of pop music, Hooker remained a little in awe of his own success, telling The Times of London, "People say I'm a genius but I don't know about that."

"John Lee's power and influence in the world of rock, R&B, jazz and blues are a legacy that will never die," artist Bonnie Raitt said. "Getting to know and work with him these last 30 years has truly been one of the great joys of my life."

YOUR VIEWS

TO THE EDITOR:

In response to the Herald's front page article on June 15 regarding converting the Runnels building to "transitional housing" we live within a block of the building and in our view this will pretty much finish off our neighborhood.

Maybe its already too late. We already have what should be a neighborhood's quota of dogs perched to trees on the front lawns and broken down sofas on front porches. Mr. Pryor was quoted as indicating this would not be a homeless shelter, but transitional housing. Are we to understand that this is preferable to a homeless shelter? And would our homes retain their current values?

If our poor memories serve us, this building was unsuitable for children or teachers because of safety issues and studies indicated renovation was not "feasible," and should serve as property for school storage. This is where we live and pay taxes and raise children and we should have some say as to what comes into our neighborhood.

TO THE EDITOR:

I have been in the Covenant hospital for several days. Dr. Haddad performed surgery on me and I was never treated better in my life. Everyone was real nice to me and I am doing fine.

I would like to say thank you to everyone who had a part in helping me. Dr. Stokes and Dr. Haddad have sure helped me to a better life.

The nurses were wonderful.

Thank you to the nurses and employees at the hospital and may God bless you in your work!

Executing the retarded and patients' rights

First, we Texans would like to salute the only governor we've got, Rick ("Goodhair") Perry, the Ken Doll, for vetoing the bill to outlaw executing the mentally retarded. We are Texas Proud. Such a brilliant decision — not only is Texas now globally recognized for barbaric cruelty, but a strong majority of Texans themselves (73 percent) would prefer not to off the retarded.

Gov. Goodhair's decision — in the face of popular opinion, the Supreme Court and George W. Bush's recent conversion on this subject — is a testament to his strength of character. Or something. His Perryness announced, anent the veto, that Texas does not execute the retarded. I beg your pardon, Governor. Johnny Paul Penry, now on Death Row for a heart-breaking murder and the subject of two Supreme Court decisions, has an IQ between 51 and 60, believes in Santa Claus and likes coloring books.

And that's not counting the other six we know about for sure since 1990. One retardate we killed thought he had been sentenced to death because he didn't know how to read and kept trying desperately to learn while he was in prison. Another kept asking his legal-aid lawyer what he should wear to his funeral, under the impression that he would be there for the social occasion. And there is a possibly apocryphal story — I've heard it from good sources but never been able to confirm it — about a retarded inmate who asked for pudding for dessert with his last meal. When the guards asked why he hadn't eaten the pudding, he said he was saving it for later.

And how happy we Texans are to see Washington revisiting one of our favorite old debates, the patients' bill of rights. The Texas Legislature did this twice, first in '95 and then '97, with great screaming bellows of rage and threats both times. Basically, the line-up is your insurance companies, your HMOs and your bidness community against your doctors, your lawyers and your consumer groups.

The African proverb, "When the elephants fight, the grass gets trampled" is useful here — the people most apt to get hurt are patients, but nobody ever mentions them. Insurance industry ads are now shrieking that should the dark day ever come when patients are allowed to sue their HMOs, insurance costs will skyrocket, and companies will have to cut benefits and even drop coverage. These are the same people who told us the last increase in the minimum wage — and the one before that and the one before that, etc. — would cause unemployment to skyrocket. They're all having such a good time scaring people to death with their doomsday predictions they may not want to run a reality check, but one is available.

Texas, as George W. Bush proudly pointed out in one of his debates with Al Gore, had the strongest patients' bill of rights in the country. The upshot after four years is that we now have a grand sum total of 10 lawsuits filed against HMOs — the predicted "flood of lawsuits" isn't even a drip. Insurance rates in Texas have not shot up, they are below the national average — and no one's health insurance has been cancelled because of the law.

During his presidential campaign, F.ush, who likes to have things both ways, claimed he personally had gotten "Re publicans and Democrat. together" in Texas to pass this strong bill of rights. Actually, he vetoed it the first time and then refused to sign the right-to-sue provision the second time, after it was passed by a veto-proof majority. Because he did sign other, less important parts of the package of bills, however, for campaign purposes he proudly claimed authorship of the very bills he had fought. Now he's back to threatening to veto a patients bill of right with any teeth in it.

In California, a strong patients' bill of rights that provides for unlimited damages, as well as access to second opinions and an HMO regulator, has been in effect since January and so far exactly zero lawsuits have been filed. Pretty scary, huh? During the California fight, insurance and HMO's predicted not a "flood of litigation" but "an explosion."

More like a wet Cherry Bomb.

Carefully conceived curriculum a must

With education now a primary issue, it's useful to look at how our students are doing. Certainly in Texas test scores are very promising, though ch a n t e r schools continue to disappoint. In California the end of bilingual classes in favor of total immersion in English is producing dramatic results, with second graders leaping an average of nine percentage points over two years ago. Those same students improved their average math scores by 14 points. This excellent news reverberated in Arizona and Colorado where bilingual education was also an issue. The question is growing more acute in New York and Massachusetts as well. While other factors, such as reduced class size, no doubt had a part in the success in California, it's hard to refute the effect of persistent instruction in English.

Even so, a survey by Public Agenda in New York indicates that school reforms still are not achieving all that they should. College professors and employers remain dismayed by the graduates who come to them with inadequate preparation in math, grammar, spelling and writing, though they are better with computers.

More is needed in basic instruction, and with this end in mind, E.D. Hirsch, a professor at the University of Virginia, has expanded his Core Knowledge Foundation to include 1,100 elementary schools in the United States. Through his foundation, Mr. Hirsch supplies schools with a carefully conceived curriculum for grades K-6. It is designed to build a body of information that will strengthen students' vocabularies (the principal possession of those children who succeed and the main deficiency of those who don't) and make more extensive learning possible.

Mr. Hirsch argues that the fashionable idea of students devoting themselves to a single project at the expense of broad study in several subjects inhibits their ultimate ability to learn. It doesn't work, he says, to disregard specific facts on the theory that they're changing all the time anyway and one can always look them up on the Internet.

Cognitive psychologists have confirmed that it takes some background in an area before new research can soak in.

He offers this example of a student looking up "planets" on the Web.

"Planet: any of the non-luminous bodies that revolve around the sun. The term 'planet' is sometimes used to include the asteroids, but excludes the other members of the solar system, comets and meteoroids. By extension, any similar body discovered revolving around another star would be called a planet."

"A well-informed person would learn a good deal from this entry," says Mr. Hirsch, "if, for example, he was uncertain about whether asteroids, comets and meteoroids should be called planets. A novice, even one who 'thinks scientifically,' would learn less. Since he wouldn't know what planets are, he probably wouldn't know what asteroids, comets and meteoroids are. Even the simple phrase 'revolving around another star,' would be mystifying, since he probably wouldn't know that the sun is a star. ... An imaginative novice would no doubt make some fortunate guesses after a rather long time. But looking things up turns out to have an element of Catch-22; you already need to know something about the subject to look it up effectively."

A Johns Hopkins study found that Core Knowledge students use the library more often than others because their grounding in history, science and literature is sufficient to understand what they're researching. A study of Oklahoma City schools revealed that children who had been in the Core Knowledge curriculum for at least three years showed "statistically significant learning gains in reading comprehension, vocabulary, science and social studies," regardless of their ethnic or economic background.

Another argument for a core curriculum, Mr. Hirsch points out, is the high mobility of disadvantaged students, many of whom move several times in a single year. If they can find familiar books and subjects in their new setting, they won't be so disoriented, he says.

Hirsch quotes the saying that "a child's mind is not a bucket to be filled, but a fire to be lit."

"Yes," he assents, "but you need some kindling."

Christianity is a call to a healthy, vital relationship

I was reminded recently of an incident from my teenage years when a friend of mine was encouraging me to attend a party where the attractions were an assortment of illegal/immoral activities.

CRAIG FELTY

I was a church member but not a Christian at the time and this friend had on many occasions talked to me about my need for Christ. I remarked that this seemed wrong and besides, my parents would ground me into the next millennium. (I would have been released from a 30 year sentence the first of this year). My friend's response seemed oddly inappropriate. "They won't find out and God will forgive us." He went on to relate how Jesus paid for our sins and we would be forgiven.

I did not know that debates had raged for centuries over the truth of that statement and that the opposing views had fancy names like Calvinism, Armenianism, antinomianism, and so on. I just knew that it sounded strange that someone who loves Jesus would want to do things so contrary to what He taught.

I don't want to argue theology. Jesus said that we are to come as children and I know very few children that can spell or even pronounce antinomianism.

What I do know after the 30-odd years of my walk with Christ is that my friend's comments reflected a legalistic rather than relational view of God, focusing more on the contractual aspects of the Gospel than the loving interchange between God and His creation.

Jesus was constantly reminding us that our relationship with God had contractual aspects, but is primarily and at its core a love relationship. It is not just a head relationship, but a body, mind and soul covenant.

Mk. 12:30-31 (NIV) "Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind and with all your strength. The second is this: 'Love your neighbor as yourself.' There is no commandment greater than these."

The Bible uses marriage to help our understanding of this vital dynamic in our relationship with God. My wife and I met and fell in love. A short time later we stood before our friends and family and declared our love for each other and fulfilled the requirements of our church and the state of Texas to be legally married. That contract gave our relationship definition and boundaries, but it did not replace the love that has made our relationship powerful and long lasting. The contract could not make me fall in love, but love makes me fulfill the commitment. My wife and I have a long-standing (26 year) marriage because we put effort into maintaining our communication and avoiding those things that break down our relationship. The rewards of that effort are wonderful and life-changing. The joy of being together has grown more powerful through the years.

The Christian life should be the same way. When we come to Christ we begin a new life. We embark on a relationship adventure.

The sad fact however, is that many people make the vow, but don't pursue the relationship. It is as if they stood at the altar, got married and then returned home to live with mom and dad. They would be legally married, but separated and unchanged for all practical purposes. The law of marriage would treat their possessions according to the fact that they are married, but they would not reap the benefits or joys of the growing relationship such as children and common history.

In the same way, we separate ourselves from God by continuing to live by our old habit patterns. We may have changed our eternal destination, but we are not participating in our destiny. The Bible calls this separation and the attitude that causes it Sin. Many Christians confuse freedom from sin with freedom to sin. The grace of God is the power over sin, not the license to sin.

Today, Jesus Christ continues to call us into that personal, vital relationship that is begun by our covenant with Him: "Jesus, be the lord of my life."

We can know Him. Christianity is not just a ticket to a better life in the hereafter.

It is a call to a healthy, vital relationship with the resurrected, living Son of God. Enter in today. If you have already made that step, remember to build your relationship.

Craig Felty is pastor of Cornerstone Church.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

**** Your fire ignites another's passion, for better or for worse. You have a way of stating your case and explaining your ideas so that others listen loud and clear. Express dismay later; meanwhile, allow your daily life to take on a whimsical quality. Tonight: Be a naughty Ram.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

*** You're happiest when close to home. Everyone, including the tough Bull, needs time for relaxation and withdrawal. Deal with an investment once you gather facts. Don't try to project the outcome of a situation. Tonight: Order in.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

**** Others admire your self-expression. Nearly anything can happen if you are spontaneous. You might feel the need to limit yourself. Think in terms of happiness and opportunities. Someone might be tossing a monkey wrench into your thinking. Tonight: At a favorite spot.

CANCER (June 21-July 21)

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

**** Think in terms of freedom and self-expression. Where would you most like to be? Do exactly what you want to do -- do not settle. Get together with friends, and allow a friendship to develop. Don't pull back, but, at the same time, let this person help you move forward. Tonight: Do only what you want.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

*** Pressure from someone you listen to might mar a potentially carefree day. Do what you need to do, and manage responsibilities. You might need to take some quiet time for yourself. Your fatigue marks your decisions. Take some time off ASAP. Tonight: Do your own thing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

**** Gather with friends and make plans that suit you. Events might encourage a change of plans, and you could opt to stay closer to home. A budding relationship confuses your schedule. You might suspect that a child or loved one might not be revealing the whole story. Tonight: Go for what you want.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

**** You're in the limelight. Others seek you out. Though you might not be sure about what a partner desires, do what you want. Don't be surprised if someone gives you the cold shoulder! Be realistic about what is going on here. Don't

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

**** Reach out for someone at a distance. Doing anything halfway could prove to be controversial and somewhat iffy. Listen to your inner voice about a loved one. You might be confused, but if you detach, you will find the right answers. Tonight: Off to some distraction.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

**** Deal with someone on a one-on-one level. Someone stalls, and you might not be able to motivate yourself, but don't let a partner or loved one help. Work with a partner and as a team. Togetherness helps you express better judgment. Tonight: Go along with another's plans.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

**** Let others make the calls and decisions that need to be made. Be light-hearted. Others mean well, even if you find them extraordinarily confusing. Allow popularity to flourish, and make decisions that make you happy. Socialize and share friendship. Tonight: Just don't be alone.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

**** Clear out errands and steer clear of problems. You could get upset and obsess about a personal matter. Listen to someone who sometimes could be overly touchy or difficult. This person has a strong sense of what is right and what is wrong. Listen. Tonight: Early to bed.

Bulldogette stars Hart, Bingham named to all-state team

HERALD Staff Report

Two Coahoma Bulldogettes were honored when they were named to the 2A Texas Girls' Coaches Association All-State Softball Team.

Honored were Amber Bingham, who pitched and played in the infield along with teammate center fielder Brandie Hart. Both girls were seniors at Coahoma High School.

"Bingham was a four-year starter who always threw hard," Coahoma coach Robby Dickenson said. "She is a tremendous competitor, she's mentally tough on the diamond. She really knows the game. She set a State Tournament record at Austin for most strikeouts as a freshman."

Bingham was a versatile player and did everything well. She was a strong pitcher and played great defense.

She did everything well. "She threw a good fastball and had a good rise ball and was a good fielder," coach Dickenson said. "She was a good defensive pitcher and also played second and third base. She provided us with the senior leadership, was a good hitter and pitched well in relief."

Bingham will attend nursing school in Lubbock but not play softball, Dickenson said.

The Bulldogettes competed in the regional semifinals this year. The previous three years they competed in the State Tournament.

Also named to the 2A All-State Team was center fielder Hart, who was also a four-year starter.

She hit 20 home runs during her prep career, including a pair of inside-the-park homers this year, coach Dickenson said. "She was a real fireball, she led by example. She was very fast and played strong defense. She set a State Tournament record for triples."

Coach Dickenson will have a rebuilding season ahead of him for next year as he lost seven seniors.

"They'll be hard to replace, they did a lot for the Coahoma Softball Team," Dickenson said. "We would play 5A schools and be competitive."

Irvin indicted in drug case

PLANO (AP) — Once again, Michael Irvin finds himself in the midst of legal battle.

The former Dallas Cowboys receiver was indicted Thursday by a Denton County grand jury on a felony cocaine possession charge.

Irvin's attorney, Howard Shapiro, said Irvin planned to plead innocent to the charges and ask for a jury trial.

Shapiro was incredulous at Assistant District Attorney Lee Ann Breeding's remark that prosecutors will likely recommend jail time rather than probation because of Irvin's previous offenses.

"I would say that's the most ridiculous statement I've ever heard," Shapiro said at a news conference at his Plano law office. "If you can tell me that you believe that Michael Irvin deserves to go to the penitentiary for what you know about this case, then my whole system of what's right or wrong is out of whack."

The penalty for felony cocaine possession is six months to two years in jail and up to a $10,000 fine, Breeding said.

Shapiro said Irvin, who has a home in Dallas, would surrender to authorities once a warrant was filed.

"He's not going anywhere. He's not a threat to society," Shapiro said. He said the warrant could be filed as late as Monday.

Irvin was arrested Aug. 9 at a North Dallas apartment where law officers said they found marijuana and drugs. The ex-Cowboys star had completed four years of deferred probation on a no-contest plea to felony cocaine possession less than two months earlier.

FBI spokeswoman Lori Bailey said the case evolved after officers with the Collin-Denton County Drug Task Force, of which the FBI is a part, attempted to arrest Rhonda Adaham on a federal warrant at her apartment.

Adaham was not there, but her sister, Nelly Adaham, and Irvin were found and arrested. Nelly Adaham was indicted also on the same charge as Irvin, but Rhonda Adaham was not indicted, Breeding said.

Breeding couldn't comment on specific evidence presented to the grand jury, nor would she discuss the nature of the arrest, why Irvin was at the apartment, or how he knew the women.

Authorities said they found less than 2 ounces of marijuana along with ecstasy pills. Irvin was not charged after the arrest.

"Our intent that day was not to initiate a drug investigation," Bailey said. "But based on evidentiary materials that were found that day, an investigation had to begin. It just takes time to conduct an investigation."

Breeding said they didn't receive the case until February, and further investigating and additional laboratory testing took several additional months. She also said a key Plano officer involved in the investigation was injured in a motorcycle accident in March and wasn't available until earlier this month.

But Shapiro was critical of the indictment's timing.

"Why did it take 10 months for this case to get to the grand jury?" Shapiro said. "What evidence exists now that didn't exist 10 months ago? I think this is overaggressive, overzealous prosecution."

Irvin, who retired shortly after his probation was finished, has been adamant about his innocence in the latest case and said he was simply in the wrong place at the wrong time.

Shapiro was skeptical of Irvin's treatment by Denton County prosecutors.

"They say this will be treated like any other case," Shapiro said, "but it's not being treated like any other case I've handled in 28 years."

Breeding said Irvin's celebrity status would not be a factor in his prosecution.

"I'm confident that the jurors here and judges ... will treat his case like every other case. The only other difference is the media attention," she said.

Irvin established himself over 12 seasons as one of the NFL's best receivers.

The final catch of his career was No. 750, tying him for 10th in league history. He holds every significant receiving record for the Cowboys and is ninth in receiving yards in NFL history.

Irvin was a member of three Super Bowl champion teams with the Cowboys.

Martinez returns to rotation, Red Sox rally to win

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Boston Red Sox liked the start by Pedro Martinez, and they really enjoyed the finish by Manny Ramirez.

Martinez returned to the Red Sox rotation with five effective innings, and Ramirez's double capped a four-run rally in the ninth as Boston beat the Tampa Bay Devil Rays 7-4 Thursday night.

Martinez missed a scheduled start at Atlanta last Friday because of tendinitis in his right shoulder. The three-time Cy Young winner limited the Devil Rays to one run on four hits, striking out six.

"I felt good," he said. "I was just looking forward to feeling a little bit better and see if the inflammation came down, hopefully get some work in and not feel as bad as I did the last outing. It was exactly the way I wanted it."

In other AL games, Seattle outlasted Oakland 12-10, Cleveland beat Minnesota 9-6 in a game shortened to six innings by rain, Chicago blanked Baltimore 6-0 and Texas topped Anaheim 4-3. New York's game at Detroit was rained out.

In National League games, Florida edged Atlanta 3-2, Chicago beat St. Louis 5-2, San Francisco defeated San Diego 8-3, Philadelphia topped Pittsburgh 6-3, Montreal routed New York 10-3 and Cincinnati got past Houston 8-7 in 11 innings.

Martinez was pulled after 89 pitches by manager Jimmy Williams.

"It was just about the right amount," Williams said.

The Red Sox scored the tying run with two outs in the ninth on a wild pitch by Esteban Yan. After a walk reloaded the bases, Ramirez hit a three-run double.

The win at Tropicana Field improved Boston's record to 9-0 against the Devil Rays this season.

The Red Sox have won four in a row overall, and Tampa Bay has lost six straight.

Mariners 12, Athletics 10

Edgar Martinez hit a go-ahead double in the eighth inning as Seattle won a homer-filled game at Oakland.

Bret Boone, Mike Cameron, Al Martin and David Bell homered for the Mariners, who trailed 6-0. Boone drove in three runs and leads the AL with 76 RBIs.

Giambi, Jeremy Giambi and Eric Chavez homered for the Athletics. The Giambi brothers connected in the same game for the third time, the first this season. The win gave Seattle a 19-game lead over Anaheim in the AL West.

White Sox 6, Orioles 0

Jose Canseco doubled in his return to the majors, and Kip Wells pitched eight scoreless innings as Chicago won at Baltimore.

Canseco, signed a day earlier after playing for the Newark Bears of the independent Atlantic League, went 1-for-5. He is taking the spot of injured Frank Thomas as the DH for the White Sox.

Carlos Lee, Paul Konerko, Jeff Liefer and Royce Clayton also homered for Chicago.

Indians 9, Twins 6

Juan Gonzalez homered and drove in five runs as Cleveland moved a half-game ahead of Minnesota for the AL Central lead.

The game at Jacobs Field was delayed by rain for 41 minutes in the second inning. It was called in the top of the seventh after a 61-minute delay when the grounds crew could not cover the field because the water-logged tarp was too heavy to pull.

Marlins 3, Braves 2

Pinch-hitter Derrek Lee hit a two-out, two-run homer in the ninth inning off Atlanta's John Rocker.

Kevin Millar fouled off two 3-2 pitches before drawing a one-out walk. Charles Johnson nearly hit into a game-ending double play, but barely beat the relay throw on a bad-hop grounder.

Lee then connected, only the fourth blown save in 23 chances for Rocker (2-2).

Rider eyes rejoining LA roster

EL SEGUNDO, Calif. (AP) — Relegated to practice fodder during the Los Angeles Lakers' run to the NBA title, Isaiah Rider wants to return to the team that left him off its playoff roster.

Known for his tardiness and errant behavior, Rider nonetheless remains a favorite with his teammates, and Lakers general manager Mitch Kupchak concedes, "He's kind of endearing to be around."

Rider, a free agent, recently told Kupchak and coach Phil Jackson that he wants to return and even offered to play on the Lakers' summer league team — mostly the domain of players looking to catch on with a team.

"We haven't closed the door," Kupchak said Thursday. "There's a twinkle in Phil's eye when we talk about Isaiah. Phil doesn't give up on players, and I think he likes the challenge, and he recognizes something there that is redeeming in value."

Kupchak believes Rider will attract free-agent offers and said Rider showed a greater aptitude with the triangle offense in the final six weeks of practice than he had all season.

At the same time, Kupchak said, "I don't think we can say it's a player that we're going to mark down and be able to count on next year."

That's not the case with Shaquille O'Neal, Kobe Bryant, Derek Fisher and Rick Fox, who will be back in pursuit of a third straight title.

Kupchak said Fisher earned a starting spot as Bryant's backcourt mate with his stellar postseason play, especially his 3-point shooting.

The Lakers don't have any selections in next week's draft. Vancouver has their first-round pick because of a trade with New York, and the Lakers traded a second-round pick to San Antonio.

But management has plenty of decisions to make, including the futures of aging Horace Grant, Ron Harper and Brian Shaw.

Grant turns 36 in July and Harper will be 38 in January. Both are free agents and want to return. Shaw is 34 and has another year on his contract, which isn't guaranteed until December.

Kupchak said Grant could provide frontcourt help, but he indicated his salary would figure into whether he's retained.

Kupchak expressed doubt whether Harper has another season in him because of his age and bad knees.

Personal issues cloud Robert Horry's future, although he has publicly said he won't opt out of a contract that would pay him $10.6 million over the next two years.

Horry's family lives in Houston and his young daughter requires constant medical attention, leaving him torn about spending most of the year in Los Angeles.

"We asked him two days ago and he said, 'I haven't made my decision yet,'" Kupchak said. "We're hopeful in the next day or two that we get some type of notification that he stays here."

Horry and Greg Foster both have until July 1 to opt out of their contracts. Foster was injured and barely saw action in the playoffs.

If Grant and Horry don't return, the Lakers may add another frontcourt player. Although they like power forwards Mark Madsen and Slava Medvedenko, both are young and played very little.

Guard Tyrone Lue helped his cause with outstanding play against Allen Iverson in the NBA Finals. The Lakers fielded inquiries about Lue during the season, and they're likely to get calls about him when the free-agent period begins July 1.

Sacrifices of motherhood making her miserable

Dear Ann Landers: I am the mother of a 2-year-old girl. I wish I could say that I am happy about it, but the last two years have been miserable.

When I became pregnant, I gave up caffeine and alcohol, even though I enjoyed both. I watched my weight, which was difficult and exasperating at times. I regretted becoming pregnant. When my baby was born, I did not feel "the joy of motherhood" I'd read about. I was forced to quit my full-time job and spend my days and nights fulfilling my daughter's needs.

My husband loves our child dearly, but I see her as nothing but a burden. She will be expensive and require constant sacrifices on my part. I have considered leaving, but I adore my husband and would be miserable without him. My life is depressing and rotten, and I don't know how to make it better. Please tell me how to love this child. Ann, I need your help. -- Unwilling Mom in New York

Dear Mom: Your letter is a heartbreaker. No child should be unloved, and no mother should be so miserable. Please get counseling at once. It sounds as if you may be suffering from postpartum depression. Ask your doctor to refer you to a therapist who can help you. I hope you will do this immediately -- not only for your sake, but for your family.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a mother-in-law, and I thought I was a pretty decent one, too. After nine years, my son and daughter-in-law have decided otherwise. It is not unusual for them to take the children away if I displease them in any way, but this has gone too far.

For the past four years, my grandchildren have spent Saturday afternoons at my house. I love those children more than words can express. So why am I in trouble? It seems the oldest grandchild, now age 7, told his mother that he loves me a lot. He said, "Grandma listens to me. I wish she was my mommy."

Now my daughter-in-law is convinced that I am filling his young mind with these ideas. It is not true. I only want to love them. It is not unusual for kids that age to say things like that. My son and his wife have now decided that the children can no longer come to my home for any reason. If I want to see them, I must go to their house for supervised visits. That way, my daughter-in-law can make sure I am not telling the kids anything she disapproves of.

This is painful and humiliating for me. Should I swallow my pride and play with the kids while my daughter-in-law watches and listens, and makes me feel like a criminal? Or should I refuse to be treated like this, knowing I will lose my grandchildren? Please help me. I am -- Hurting in Oregon

Dear Hurting: Don't allow your pride to get in the way of your relationship with your grandchildren. They love you and need you in their lives.

Your daughter-in-law sounds insecure and more than a little worried about her parenting skills. Reassure her that she is a wonderful mother and that you have no desire to raise children again. Tell her it's much easier to be a grandparent.

Visit the kids in their home under their mother's supervision, and do it with a smile on your face. While you are there, use the opportunity to strengthen your relationship with your daughter-in-law. Find something about her to admire, and tell her what a fine job she's doing. When she realizes you are not competing with her, she will relax and trust you to spend time with the children alone. Problem solved.

Gem of the Day (sent in by O.G. in La Mirada, Calif.): Shake any family tree long enough, and a few nuts are sure to fall out.
