Water line installation undertaken

Big Spring residents in the 2300-2500 blocks of Runnels, Main and Scurry streets experienced water outages this morning because the city was working on water lines in the area.

Jim Piper, Distribution Collection Supervisor for the city, said the project is designed to kill water circulation to old water lines and open new lines.

Water was cut off in the area around 9 a.m. this morning, and Piper said he hoped it would be back on by around noon. Affected areas included Runnels between 23rd and 25th St. and Main and Scurry between 24th and 25th St.

The work is a continuation of an unfinished project to install new water lines in the College Heights area, Piper said.

Gun-wielding man still being sought in Stanton bank robbery

By ROGER CLINE

Staff Writer

STANTON - Nearly a month after a lone gun-toting bandit robbed a Stanton bank in broad daylight, law enforcement agents haven't been able to put the pieces together and solve the puz-

Monday, July 9, a man walked into the First National Bank in Stanton and robbed a teller at gunpoint before escaping on foot. FBI agents, who are involved in the case because Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation insured the money, say they believe the man may have gone to a small, white car and driven off.

"We're still looking for information about that white car," Agent Bill Vanderland of the FBI said. "It's a smaller one. We're tending to think it's a twodoor, but that might not be the case."

The FBI still isn't releasing information about the amount of money stolen in the robbery, Vanderland said.

"That's not something that we typically release,' he said.

Vanderland said security cameras in the bank provided a good lead.

"In this case we have an excellent photograph," he said.

The bureau is working on matching the photograph against descriptions of known armed robbers.

"Obviously, there are some people in our area that have reputations as armed robbers," he said. "We're taking that description and trying to match it with anyone who has a history of prior (offenses) or has been a suspect in other armed robberies.

Vanderland said the perpetrator had a tattoo on his forearm, which has been added to the description.

 May have escaped in a small, possibly two-door, white car

"If we find someone who matches the description, and they have tattoos, and they have a history of armed robbery, then certainly we're going to be looking at them very closely," Vanderland said. "We have a few people like that that we're looking at."

The FBI believes the crime was committed by somebody from the West Texas area, Vanderland said.

The man was reportedly trying to deposit about $1,155 in cash and checks around 11:20 Wednesday when a white male, about 6'2", with short blond hair grabbed his bank bag and ran off.

No one was injured and the robber was apparently unarmed, said a police spokesperson.

Police are treating the case as a "theft from a person," and the case is still under investigation.

Library lot resurfacing set Monday HERALD Staff Report

A resurfacing project for the Howard County Library parking lot will block patrons from parking in the lot for about two hours Monday morning, Howard County road administrator Eddy Jameson said Friday.

"We got it all cleaned up already," he said. "We're ready to start pouring asphalt Monday morning." Jameson said the work crew would arrive on the scene about an hour before

Howard County employee Tony Bustamante sprays tar to reseal cracks in a parking lot at the corner of Sixth Street and Scurry. Other county workers at the scene cleaned debris from potholes and shoveled asphalt into them. The work was part of a routine maintenance project, the workers said.

acted quickly, so he can take the helm," said White House spokeswoman Claire Buchan said.

The FBI has been caught in endless criticism for mistakes in investigations involving Oklahoma City bomber Timothy McVeigh, spy Robert Hanssen, the bloody Branch Davidian and Ruby Ridge standoffs and Los Alamos National Laboratory nuclear scientist Wen Ho Lee.

While voting for Mueller's nomination, Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, one of the bureau's harshest critics, said the new director may be underestimating his task.

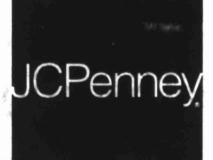

"I have concerns that Mr. Mueller doesn't completely understand the culture problem at the FBI," Grassley said. Unlike his predecessor, Louis Freeh, Mueller, a former Marine, has no personal history with the FBI.

Senators also have said they will keep a close eye on the FBI through the Judiciary Committee's oversight powers. "We are not doing the job we should be doing," said Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa.

TO THE EDITOR:

Last week, April Ward contacted me to gain information for an article on the Howard County Humane Society.

While chatting with her on the telephone, I discovered that April is to begin her senior year at Big Spring High School this fall.

Frankly, because of her inexperience, I was a bit concerned that the article would be accurate.

I even considered calling, asking that you review the article before publishing it. But, the following afternoon, my fears were allayed - the article was wonderful. Not only was it accurate and succinct, it was quite well written.

My faith in the education system has received a boost if April is an example product. Whether that faith is justified across the board or not, I just wanted to tell you what an outstanding employee you have in April. Perhaps you should consider cloning her.

Who cares about the stories that matter?

K, it's a great country, but you've got to admit, it is a little strange. One of its strangest aspects is the relative attention paid to fluff compared to the stuff that actually makes a difference in people's lives. Take the-whalewith-ropearound-its-old argument - and I yield to no one in my fondness for dogs, cats, birds, fish, hamsters, etc. but stay with me for a minute, because there is something truly weird going on. God bless all the humane societies, and the vegans who refuse to wear real leather, and the savers of uncuddly beasties, and everyone who puts time, care and thought into helping other creatures. PBS just ran a wonderfully dotty documentary on "The Natural History of the Chicken." Good on you all.

I realize this is a trite =

But an unscientific survey of the Internet since June 10 shows 239 articles about the-whale-with-ropearound-its-jaw, which has also been a popular feature on the nightly network news. The whale's plight, the efforts to rescue the whale and the attendant who-ha are a big-time media attraction, and in my opinion, more interesting than Gary Condit's love

During that time, I have seen exactly two articles about some hideous things being done to human beings in this country. One was the July/August cover of Mother Jones magazine titled "The Most Dangerous Job in America," about conditions in the meatpacking industry that make Upton Sinclair's 1906 novel "The Jungle" look tame. The slogan in meat-packing, where workers' body parts keep getting severed with depressing regularity, is, "The line must keep moving." Well, it's not just meat-packing. The Wall Street Journal, that reliable friend of the working man, ran a frontpage article by Timothy Aeppel last week on the trend in manufacturing toward plants that run 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Aeppel writes of "the unspoken reality of manufacturing: Increasingly it is structured around the machines, rather than the people who run them. The reason is economics. Every hour a costly plant sits idle is a drain on the company's bottom line, something no one can afford in the face of today's sharply slowing economy."

The most common pattern is 12-hour shifts, with a three-day weekend every other week. The stress on workers is grueling. Have you ever worked an eighthour shift in a factory Any idea what that feels like when you're getting on toward 65?

Aeppel reports: "Running factories nonstop can take a heavy toll on workers, disrupting homes and relationships. Single parents, Little League coaches, stu-dents as well as preachers must contort their lives to meet their schedules, or give up the things they love to do. The pressures affect not only the workers' quality of life, but also their health and safety. Plastics, tires, toothpaste

- one expert says it's a "massive conversion" to 24/7. What the corporations do is close down about 40 percent of their production facilities and consolidate the work in the remainder. Says Aeppel: "As plants become more automated, they are often designed to run nonstop." The Journal article then goes on to discuss whether alternating day/night 12-hour shifts causes fatigue, stress, depression, accidents and ill-health, as though there might be some doubt about it. Some unions have acceded to the 24/7 demands, while others fight it. Samuel Gompers must be rolling.

Sooner or later, we are going to have to re-think exactly what the point of this society is. If profits are above people, let's just put it out there. We already know illegal workers are cheaper than legal workers. Slave labor would be even cheaper. Hey, manufacturing has to compete in a world market these days.

When anti-globalization protesters first showed up, the media were like Freud on the subject of women: "What DO these people want?" Since Genoa, they have settled on the conventional wisdom that the protesters may have some points, but their message is too confusing — has too many messages in it. Grave disapproval from the professional harrumphers. You can't have more than one point.

Unless, of course, what's happening permeates your whole life, causing everything from strokes to not being to able to coach Little League. (More than one point there, sorry.) Can't anyone in the media think outside the damn box? Does anybody remember when labor was a beat, right along with business?

Why is "The Fleecing of America" always about some screw-up by government? Doesn't anyone notice that we're getting fleeced by banks and pharmaceutical companies and utilities and energy companies and our HMOs and big, international companies in general? Why is this a non-story?

I know the whale has a rope around its jaw. That's sad. But there's an awful lot of people out here with the equivalent of ropes around their jaws, too.

Another alternative to Social Security

By JOHN CUNNIFF Guest Columnist

Though it's the most discussed plan for reforming Social Security, letting workers invest some of their payments in the stock market isn't the only way to save the system.

There's another way, and it's already been proved and not in theory or tests, but in the real world. And not in Chile, whose plan is often cited as a successful example, but right here in the United States

This alternative plan, already in use for 20 years, is destined to gain a broader hearing now that the stock market has demonstrated anew its tendency to go to extremes, erasing billions of dollars of market

The so-called Galveston Model doesn't worry about stock market volatility because it doesn't invest in

Instead, it lends the pool of money from participants to a top-rated financial institution.

In doing so, it obtains a better rate than you or I or any other small investor might receive. Over two decades the returns have ranged from 5 percent to 15.5 percent, averaging out to 7.5 percent to 8 percent a Returns of that sort aren't what might be expected from prudent stock investments, but the risk is vastly reduced. And it's been time tested. And now the Institute for Policy Innovation, a Lewisville, Tex. think tank, and resident scholar Merrill Matthews Jr., think it deserves study.

Twenty years ago county officials in Galveston, Tex. opted to withdraw from the Social Security system (an option ended in 1983) and accept a retirement plan devised by Rick Gornto, a financial planner. Matagorda and Brazoria Counties followed suit.

Currently, according to Matthews, there are about 2,740 fulltime employees contributing a percentage of their payroll tax to retirement savings. First Financial Benefits of Houston then pools the . money and loans it out to the best bidder at a guaranteed interest rate.

The employees bear little risk. "They get their interest whether the stock market goes up or down — and they have done so for 20 years," says Matthews.

He cites these figures from First Financial Benefits:

-A low-income worker ($17,124 a year) retiring at age 65 would get $782 per month from Social Security, but $1,285 from what is called the Alternate er ($51,263) at 65 will get $1,540 from Social Security, versus $3,846 from the Alternate Plan

In addition, the Galveston model includes a life insurance policy that pays three times a worker's salary between a minimum of $50,000 and a maximum of $150,000. It pays double for accidental death. While stock market

-The high-income work-more than 10 percent over the past six decades, that average includes huge gains in some years and big losses in others, a factor that opponents are bound to stress. Matthews holds a doctorate in philsophy but his motives are pragmatic. The stock market model, proposed by President Bush, has worked in other countries, and could here, he says, but opponents have ammunition.

That ammunition has been provided by the stock market utsekf, whose plunge over the past year or so, coinciding with the Social Security debate, has erased as much as $5 trillion of stock valuations. Poor timing, he says.

Therefore, he suggests, it would be wise to consider the Galveston Model to counter political posturing and "risky scheme dema-goguery."

"A model that is as safe at your bank," he says, "may be the only viable political option."

instructed, and overflowing with gratitude." (Colossians 2:6-7)

Charles Colson tells the story of Mickey Cohen, a gangster during the years following

MULLINS World War II. One night he attended an evangelistic meeting and showed some interest in what he was hearing. Some people considered the impact that the conversion of an infamous gangster would have on Christianity and began to call on Mr. Cohen.

One night he decided to put his faith in Christ. However, as time went by there was no noticeable change in Mickey Cohen's lifestyle. He still pursued a life of crime.

When he was confronted with the obvious lack of change, he said that no one had ever told him that he would have to give up his work and his friends. He pointed out that there were Christian athletes and Christian bankers and Christian cowboys. Why couldn't there be Christian gangsters?

When he was told about repentance, he decided he wanted nothing to do with Christianity. He had accepted Christ as his Savior, but was not willing to embrace Christ as his Lora.

The story points up a truth that can easily be lost on people who find Christianity attractive. Being a Christian is more than accepting Christ as Savior. It also involves submitting to Christ as Lord. Yes, it involves accepting His forgiveness. but it also involves accepting His authority.

Sadly, Christianity in America seems to have lost sight of the Lordship of Jesus. Many people go looking for peace of mind and freedom from the sense of guilt, but without a change of lifestyle.

However, a religion that promises salvation without submission falls far short of the religion of Christ, who is both Savior and Lord. "For to this end Christ died and lived again that He might be Lord both of the dead and of the living" (Romans 14:9).

Perhaps, then, we all would do well with a little spiritual inventory.

Can other people tell by your conduct that you have given your life to Christ? Do you consistently excuse yourself from repenting by claiming "It's my life" or "That's just the way I am"?

Where does the Bible fit in your life?

Do you look to see what God has to say on the issues of the day or do you fall in with the prevailing cultural ideology regardless of the mind of God?

When you look at your life through the standard of the word of God are you ready to change your life?

When you confront God's word do you say, "Yes, Lord" or do you say "Yeah, but I think"?

Is Jesus really the Lord of your life? Russ Mullins is minister last decade, the Dallas Cowboys had cared so little about preseason games that sometimes they didn't even discuss who they were playing. The main objective was not getting hurt.

IN BRIEF Cowboys taking preseason games seriously

Newcomers probably find that hard to believe. All they've heard since the start of this training camp is an emphasis on winning at all times, even in games that don't "We're talking a lot about competing, being successful in everything they do," coach Dave Campo said.

"We still have to evaluate people, but I feel strongly that we need to get back the winning attitude, the everything."

The Cowboys have lost six straight preseason games and 14 of the last 15. They haven't had a winning record in the preseason since going 3-1 in 1989, when they went 1-15 in the regular season.

Their first chance to change the trend comes Saturday night in Oakland.

"We've spent more time trying to prepare for the game, like the regular season," safety George Teague said. "We've been watching film on Oakland, studying their tendencies, learning their personnel."

Coming off a 5-11 season and being without a playoff win since WICHITA FALLS (AP) - Over the winning work ethic - the winning 1996, it's understandable why Campo wants to build intensity.

But even if Dallas does have a good preseason, team history shows little correlation with postseason results. Early wins didn't pay off. .

The Cowboys have had a winning preseason record in only two of their eight Super Bowl seasons. It happened in one of their five championship years.

Longtime college coach Jimmy Johnson had trouble accepting the concept of a meaningless game when he came to Dallas in 1989. He demanded that all games be taken seriously, even if opponents didn't.

Johnson eased up as the team improved, realizing there was no need to go hard in August with a squad likely to be playing in late January.

Starters began playing less and less, just enough to get comfortable with new teammates and systems. Coaches figured more could be lost than gained by leaving in Troy Aikman, Emmitt Smith and others.

"We always cared," linebacker Darren Hambrick said. "But the emphasis of winning wasn't always there. If we lost, we thought, 'Oh well, it wasn't a real ballgame.'

But Aikman and most other veterans are gone. Now the Cowboys a young team filled with position

Rangers crush Yankees, 12-2, with five home runs

NEW YORK (AP) - The Texas Rangers might have struggled at Yankee Stadium in recent years. Alex Rodriguez hasn't.

Rodriguez delivered on his pep talk, hitting a three-run homer in Texas' six-run third inning against Mike Mussina as the Rangers won their first series at Yankee Stadium in eight years, beating New York 12-2 Thursday.

"I told the guys before the series that we had success here when I was in Seattle. We always played well here some reason,' Rodriguez said. "It's how you think when you come here. You have to want to play the best.' While the Mariners won nearly half their games in New York with Rodriguez, Yankee Stadium has been a house of horrors for the Rangers.

They lost 34 of 44 games - including the postseason - in New York before take ing two of three this week for their first series win in the Bronx since August

It was Texas' first series win of any kind against the Yankees since July 30-Aug. 1, 1996. New York had won 42 of 55 overall games against Texas since losing the opener of the 1996 playoffs.

"We have made some Narron said. "It's been a while since we came up here and won a series. I know that. This shows-

The Yankees' big bats fueled their run of nine wins in 10 games. But Myette (1-1) held them to two hits and Texas provided the only power.

Stringer's death doesn't halt practice

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) the Minnesota training camp resumed without Korey Stringer, grief prevailed over guilt. His coaches said no one was to blame for the Pro Bowl tackle's death from complications from heatstroke. He collapsed after an intense Tuesday morning practice a day after he skipped a sweltering work-

"I hope that our team doesn't feel any guilt," coach Dennis Green said.

The 335-pound Stringer had trouble with the heat on Monday, and the heat index in Mankato reached 110 degrees the next day on the team's first day in full pads.

. Some could have been critical of the Vikings for allowing him to practice, but offensive line coach Mike Tice said Stringer showed no warning signs. needed water, was said. Still, hat him terase the

He Tooked good on 111m, too. He had a fantastic practice. He was sharp. He was crisp. He got all his blocks."

Longtime trainer Fred Zamberletti recalled Thursday how Stringer, 27, walked off the field on his own and entered an air-conditioned trailer set up as a makeshift training room on the practice field.

"He went in there, walked around there,' in Zamberletti said. "The kid did everything perfect. The paramedics thanked us and said they appreciated what we've done here."

Green again declined to discuss any medical topics Thursday.

"I think that people can talk about guilt, but tragedies are something that aren't explainable.' The state of Minnesota is investigating to determine whether the team was negligent, a standard practice for deaths that occur in the workplace.

James Honerman, spokesman Minnesota Department of Labor and Industry, said the agency met with Vikings officials "and they were very cooperative with us in our investigation."

State officials are talking to the team about "what type of training the staff and employees might have received with regards to illnesses.' heat-related Honerman said.

Filing past bouquets and balloons left by fans, the team returned to the field to focus on football in conditions considerably cooler than earlier in the week.

"Going on the field was hard for me," Tice said. "I didn't think I could do it. Going to practice was good for us. It kept your mind on positive things.

Players looked crisp throughout practice, and Cris Carter and Randy Moss made several spectacular catches during a scrim-pain. "Losing him is tearing a hole inside of me," Tice

He added that Stringer was upset and embarrassed Tuesday at a newspaper photo that showed him doubled over during Monday's practice. Some Vikings reportedly needled Stringer about the picture.

"He wasn't really thrilled with that picture," Tice said. "He was out to prove he was a leader and wasn't going to let anyone embarrass him like that."

While Green emphasized the importance of returning to work, he said the football part wasn't that important.

"A lot of good things happened on the field, and I think we took a small, baby step that's important to keep the team together," he said. "At some point we'll be working on a championship, but not right now. Right now, we're working on the team staying togeth-

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Cincinnati Reds had fun in Los Angeles at the expense of the NL West-leading Dodgers.

The Reds hit six home runs Thursday night and completed their first sweep of the Dodgers in Los Angeles since 1986 with a 7-4 win. Jason LaRue and Dmitri Young each homered twice, and Ken Griffey Jr. hit one for the second straight game as the Reds won their sixth in a row. Aaron Boone also homered for the Reds, who swept consecutive series of three or more games for the first time since June 1999.

"We're getting some confidence and feeling like we're going to win when we take the field," Aaron Boone said. We haven't had that feeling all year, so it's nice to have." The Dodgers lost their fourth straight and lead Arizona by onehalf game in the West. San Francisco, with an eight-game winning streak, is just one back. We're not in first place, so the only thing we're playing for is ruining chances for everybody else," Young said. In other National League games,

Milwaukee beat Florida 4-3,

Philadelphia downed Colorado 4-2, San Francisco shut out Pittsburgh 3-0. Montreal edged Arizona 1-0. Houston defeated New York 4-3 in 10 innings and Atlanta stopped St. Louis 2-1.

In American League games, it was Minnesota 9, Toronto 4, Texas 12, New York 2; Tampa Bay 3, Baltimore 2; Anaheim 13, Boston 4; Oakland 17, Cleveland 4; and Kansas City 6, Chicago White Sox 3.

Cincinnati hit four homers in a span of 11 batters off Dodgers starter Luke Prokopec (6-6), who is winless in 11 starts with a 5.54 ERA since winning six of his first seven decisions.

"Not everyone is going to go out there and throw an awesome game every single day. But tonight I just stunk," Prokopec said.

Boone hit his 13th homer of the season to lead off the second inning, LaRue homered one out later and Griffey hit his 10th of the season in the third. Griffey can become the youngest player ever to reach 450 home runs if he hits two before Aug. 24.

Young, who had his first multihomer game of his career, hit a tworun shot in the fourth to give the Reds 5-0 lead.

Giants 3, Pirates 0

Kirk Rueter allowed one hit in seven innings, and Jeff Kent drove in two runs as San Francisco defeated Pittsburgh at Pac-Bell Park for its eighth straight victory.

The Giants completed their first three-game sweep of the Pirates in five years.

Since a three-game losing streak. Rueter (11-7) has won seven of eight decisions. Tony McKnight (1-1) lost in his first start since being traded from Houston on Tuesday.

Padres 4. Cubs 3

Ryan Klesko's grand slam in the eighth inning lifted San Diego to a big 4-3 victory over visiting Chicago.

Jeff Fassero (4-3) relieved Jason Bere, who gave up just three hits and struck out 12, in the eighth and allowed singles to D'Angelo Jimenez and pinch-hitter Alex Arias. After a one-out walk, Klesko hit his seventh career grand slam.

Reliever Chuck McElroy (1-0) got one out for his first decision with the Padres. Trevor Höffman got his 26th save. Fred McGriff homered and drove in all three runs for the Cubs.

Expos 1, Diamondbacks 0

Javier Vazquez and Scott Stewart combined for a three-hitter and Orlando Cabrera homered as Montreal won at Arizona.

Vazquez (10-10) gave up three hits in eight innings. Stewart worked a perfect ninth for his second save in as many games.

Cabrera homered in the fourth against Albie Lopez (0-2).

Rockies 2 Pat Burrell homered in his third straight game as Philadelphia won at Colorado.

David Coggin (2-1) won for the first time since July 4, allowing two runs and nine hits in seven innings. Jose Mesa converted his 14th consecutive save opportunity, pitching a scoreless ninth to pick up his 28th save in 30 chances as the Phillies notched their 4-2 win over the Colorado Rockies.

back. Tony Banks will play at least the first quarter against the Raiders. Top draft pick Quincy Carter will replace him, then Anthony Wright and Clint Stoerner. Stoerner will see the least time, Campo said.

Carter and Wright are fighting to be Banks' back-up. Campo said Wednesday that Wright has looked the best of all four QBs thus far, but added that he's been with the team the longest.

It'll be somewhat difficult to evaluate the offense Saturday as several linemen are hurt and Smith, Joey Galloway or Raghib Ismail won't play. Tight end Jackie Harris won't play much, if any. All four will see plenty of action later in the presea-

Instead, Troy Hambrick will start at running back, Damon Hodge and Chris Brazzell will be the starting receivers and Chris Fontenot will start at tight end. Mario Edwards and Duane Hawthorne are the likely starters at cornerback.

There will be heavy rotation at every position, though, as Campo searches for winners.

"I told the players, 'I guarantee if you make plays in the preseason, you'll have a chance to make the team," Campo said. "We're looking for intensity."

Myette said he would give the game ball to his father. "It's exciting," he said. "My team put some runs on the board for me and I was able to take it from there." Notes: Myette had been 0-3 with an 8.90 ERA in his first seven starts in the majors.

Kapler hit his first homer in 36 games. He last homered June 21 against Anaheim. ... The 18 hits allowed were a season record high for New York. ... Yankees 3B Scott Brosius went on the 15-day DL with a hairline fracture in his left hand and DH David Justice was activated from the DL and went 0-for-4. Brosius is expected to miss 3-to-4 weeks of action
