Motorists reminded to exercise caution in school zones

By LINDY BARR
Staff Writer

Starting Monday, Aug. 20, Big Spring school buses will be loading up students early in the morning and parents will go back to the normal routine of dropping their children off at school.

Also starting that day, those familiar yellow and red lights on signs and buses — a reminder to every driver on the road that children could be crossing and to be extremely cautious — will begin flashing.

It's not just in school zones that drivers must be cautious. When a bus makes a stop and children are getting on or off, drivers need to be as attentive as possible.

This year, there will be more than 23 million children across the country who will be making that familiar journey to school every day for the next 10 months. Many will put their lives in the hands of the drivers that pass them by.

Local authorities are making sure Big Spring motorists have plenty of incentive to obey speed limits, crossing guards and the requirement to stop for loading and unloading buses.

"Motorists who speed in a school zone will be fined with a ticket of $155," warns Big Spring municipal judge Timothy Green. "If you fail to stop while a bus is loading or unloading, you will receive a ticket that will cost $155. And a motorist who does not stop will not be able to take defensive driving to get it off their record."

According to Green, the price of school zone violations will be going up next year.

"Starting next year, the prices of tickets will be going up by $28," said Green.

According to Big Spring Police Lt. Drew Bavin, Big Spring has a no tolerance policy when it comes to speeding in a school zone or not stopping for a bus.

"There is no excuse to be speeding or not to stop. We have to protect our kids

Bivins announces re-election bid; stresses his dedication to Big Spring

By ROGER CLINE
Staff Writer

Big Spring isn't an "afterthought" in Texas Senatorial District 31 — that was the message Sen. Teel Bivins (R-Amarillo) told members of the Big Spring Rotary Club during their luncheon meeting Tuesday.

Bivins announced his intention to run for re-election in 2002 before about 200 Rotarians and their guests in the East Room of Howard College's Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

"My name is Teel Bivins and I have come to Big Spring, Texas, and have chosen this site to announce that I plan to seek re-election," Bivins said. "It's not by accident that I chose Big Spring to make this announcement."

The recent redistricting map approved by the Legislative Redistricting Board takes Howard County out of Sen. Robert Duncan's District 28 and places it in Bivins' District 31, along with Midland, Odessa and Amarillo.

In answer to a question from the crowd, Bivins said that Big Spring will play a key role in the newly-formed district, opining that the leadership will probably be determined by the Republican primary more than the actual election.

"The north and the south part of the district is pretty well balanced. There's 34,000 people in Big Spring that, as I view it, can become a king maker in deciding who will be the next senator for Senate District 31," Bivins explained. "If elected, I will have an office in Big Spring."

Bivins said he doesn't know whether the newly-drawn districts will be given the thumbs up by the judiciary.

"It (plan approved by the Legislative Redistricting Board) will go to court," he said, citing that every legislative redistricting plan since 1960 has been challenged in the courts. "I don't know how it will end up, but I want to get to work."

Bivins said he sees the problems facing the state as a challenge.

"The reason that I have made the decision to run again is the problems that Texas is facing, and they are enormous," he said.

Bivins cited demographic shifts as Texas' most pressing political issue, noting that during the first part of the 21st century, white populations are expected to increase 47 percent, black populations by 69 percent and the Hispanic population by 249 percent.

The average Texan is also getting younger, Bivins said.

"By 2030, Texas will have the youngest population of any state," he said.

The burgeoning ranks of young people will make education an even more critical issue in the upcoming years, he said.

"I believe very strongly that education is the most important thing that state governments do," he said.

Bivins outlined a plan for a marketing campaign based on the popular "Don't Mess With Texas" anti-litter campaign and aimed at young schoolchildren.

"I'm looking at a marketing campaign for public education targeted at first-, second- and third-graders, to change the mindset that 'I'm not college material.'"

Answering a question about teacher pay, Bivins said the state had already provided an across-the-board $3,000 teacher pay raise and that increases in benefits packages are upcoming.

"The reality is there is no

BBB stresses resurgence of familiar con scheme

HERALD Staff Report

Crossroads area residents are being cautioned that con artists are bilking people out of their money with "bank examiner" schemes again, according to the Better Business Bureau (BBB).

Though the schemes are resurfacing across the country, the Permian Basin BBB hasn't received complaints about the scam yet.

"And we would really like to keep it that way," said Dick Rowland, Permian Basin BBB president. "We would much prefer to let consumers know this might happen as opposed to informing people that it has happened."

In the scheme, con artists post as bank examiners, FBI agents, police officers, detectives or bank officials. The usual ploy is to pretend to need your help in conducting an investigation. As a "valued bank customer" you are asked to withdraw your money and hand it over to the investigator. The con artist promises to redeposit it after the investigation is complete. That never happens, of course.

Rowland said that in the last decade, swindlers have incorporated fake 911 calls into the scam by telling victims they can dial 911 to

Coahoma ISD taxpayers may see slight rate hike

By LYNDEL MOODY
Staff Writer

Coahoma Independent School District residents may see a slight increase in next year's maintenance and operation tax rate as the district continues to combat a loss of enrollment.

According to CISD superintendent Dr. Bill Kingston, trustees may be considering raising the tax rate slightly although no dollar amount has been set.

CISD taxpayers have not seen a rate increase in the last three years.

"For the last three years, we have been able to hold the line and even reduce the tax rate," Kingston said.

The current tax rate of $1.39 per $100 valuation is a decrease from three years ago when the rate was $1.41.

The district may see an $22,000 increase in the 2001-2002 school year budget with a possible projected budget of $6.328 million.

"Our problem has been two-fold," Kingston said. "We have had a drop in student enrollment that causes a drop in state funding with a very little drop in expenses."

A drop in the daily average attendance means loss of state funding, a problem school districts across West Texas have faced for the last several years.

The increase in the district's taxable value will also cause a loss in state funding due to "Robin Hood" law that requires wealthier school districts to give money to poorer ones.

According to Kingston, if taxable values increase, money from the state decreases to equal funding.

The loss of enrollment is one of the main reasons

Bivins also claimed to be in tune with the needs of the area.

"I'm an advocate of rural economic development," he said. "I'm an advocate of clean and available water. I'm an advocate of affordable energy."

Bivins also fielded questions from the crowd on library funding and energy deregulation.

CISD may end the financial year with a $200,000 deficit, Kingston said, but the board is attempting to eliminate the problem.

Some of the larger increase in expenditures figured into the budget this year include increases in utilities bills along with health insurance.

Kingston said the board is anticipating entering the 2001-2002 year with a balanced budget.

The board will meet to discuss the tax rate at 7 p.m. Monday, Aug. 20, at the Coahoma ISD Administration Building at 600 N. Main.

somehow," said Bavin. The Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT) is reminding all motorists to do their part in helping increase safety around school zones by using extreme caution when approaching a loading or unloading school bus.

Drivers will need to increase safety by:

• Slowing down. Always obey the speed limit when traveling through neighborhoods and school zones.

• Being attentive. Watch for children gathering near bus stop and walking in the street, especially where there are no sidewalks.

• Remaining alert. Hurried children may dart into the street without looking for traffic.

• Flashing yellow lights indicate a school bus is preparing to load or unload children. Motorists should be prepared to slow down and stop.

• Flashing red lights or an extended STOP arm indicates children are loading or unloading a school bus. Motorists must stop.

• Vehicles can begin moving again when the flashing red lights are turned off or the extended STOP arm is withdrawn.

• Motorists traveling on roads separated by a median are not required to stop for school buses traveling on the opposite side of the road.

verify that an investigation is taking place. What the victim gets is someone posing as a 911 operator. To avoid detection, the con artists use police scanners and hire others to make the pick-ups so they cannot be identified. Before the con artists make a call, they know whether a victim has enough money to make it worth their while.

To avoid losing money to this scheme, Rowland suggests the following:

• Trust only people you know. Do not trust someone because he or she has a friendly voice or appears to be an authoritative figure.

• "Swindlers usually are friendly and have honest faces and pleasant personalities. That is how they gain your trust — and steal your money," Rowland said.

• No financial institution or government agency ever uses customers to conduct internal investigations. Many financial institutions request that customers read and sign a form when they wish to withdraw a large amount of cash. The form alerts consumers to these scams and encourages them to talk to a law enforcement officer.

• Verify the legitimacy of any "investigator." Call the Big Spring Police Department, Howard County Sheriff's Office or other relevant law enforcement office or financial institution.

"If the situation seems unusual or if you feel uncomfortable, just walk away," said Rowland.

Anyone who believes they have been approached by someone attempting to use this scheme or any other should contact the proper law enforcement agency or contact Rowland at (915) 561-9435.

Couple sentenced in ministry Ponzi scheme

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A minister was sentenced Monday to 27 years in federal prison for his role in a pyramid scheme that promised followers that God would double their money.

Gerald Payne, 65, was the head of a Tampa-based church that used Bible verses to lure contributors. His wife, Betty Payne, 61, was sentenced to nearly 13 years Monday for her part in the scheme, which cost some people their life savings and homes.

Investigators estimate as many as 18,000 people from across the country invested about $448 million, money the church said came from shrewd deals in gold and platinum mines and generous interest from overseas banks.

Investigators called it a classic Ponzi scheme in which early investors were paid off with money from later investors until the program collapsed. Only about $10 million has been recovered. Authorities have yet to find the missing millions, which they believe may be stashed in secret, offshore accounts.

Researchers vow to attempt human cloning

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of a Bahamas biotech firm, hinting that human cloning experiments were under way in her lab, defended what she said was a human right to reproduce using one's own genes.

"We should not be the cause of public fears," Brigitte Boisselier told a committee of the National Academy of Sciences on Tuesday. "I am doing it in a very responsible manner."

Boisselier, a research scientist and director of a company called Clonaid, said reports of serious congenital defects and fetal death among cloned livestock have not swayed her determination to attempt to clone humans.

Her comments came during a hearing designed to allow academy committee members to gather information for a report on human cloning expected to be released next month. The academy is a private, non-profit organization of distinguished scientists and engineers. It is chartered by Congress and often does research at the request of government agencies.

Boisselier declined to confirm or deny that her company had cloned human embryos, but she told the committee her lab was able to identify cells that can be safely cloned and that she was "comfortable with those results."

"I am doing it and hope I can publish that soon and show it to you," she told the committee of experts.

She dismissed ethical concerns about reproductive human cloning, calling it "the arrogance of telling people what they should do with their own genes."

"We should be able to use our genes the way we want," said Boisselier. "It is your right to reproduce yourself using your genes."

Boisselier also told the committee that there is no need to refine the cloning technique with further animal research.

"I believe we have enough information to proceed with human cloning," she said. "I don't believe working with animal cloning will give us much more information."

Two other researchers, Panayiotis Michael Zavos, director of the Andrology Institute in Lexington, Ky., and Dr. Severino Antinori of the University of Rome, said they were continuing with human cloning research as a means of allowing infertile men to have children. However, they said they had not yet attempted to clone a human being.

The comments came during a day of angry exchanges between people on both sides of the cloning issue. While scientists gave testimony in the auditorium, people on opposing sides met in the stately lobby of the National Academy's building, and, under the glare of television lights, shouted at each other. One side contended cloning was a human reproductive right; the other said it would be an unethical, perhaps dangerous form of human experimentation.

Animal researchers warned the committee that cloning produces a high level of failures, with many animals dying before birth and others born with abnormalities.

Asked if these problems might be corrected in human cloning experiments, Alan Colman, director of PPL Therapeutics, made clear his opposition to such research.

Microsoft says high court should take antitrust case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saying the trial judge should have been thrown off the case because of derogatory comments he made about the company, Microsoft Corp. asked the Supreme Court to overturn rulings that it violated antitrust laws.

The software giant argued that U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson should have been dismissed before he ruled that Microsoft acted as an illegal software monopoly.

"The threat that the judge's misconduct poses to the public's perception of judges and the process of judging is palpable," Microsoft wrote.

Microsoft petitioned the nation's highest court two days before an appeals court was due to send the case to a new judge to decide what penalty the Redmond, Wash., company should face.

The company is set to release the newest version of its Windows operating system this fall — a product that several state attorneys general and other critics fear will extend Microsoft's monopoly in the software market.

The Justice Department and the states that brought the original antitrust charges against Microsoft must decide whether to attempt to block the release of Windows XP even as the two sides explore possible settlements in the current case.

The Justice Department said the issues raised by Microsoft's latest appeal were old.

"This was an issue addressed by the Court of Appeals," Justice Department spokeswoman Gina Talamona said. "We will respond promptly to their filing."

"The states will resist Microsoft's appeal to the Supreme Court and its motion to stay," Connecticut Attorney General Richard Blumenthal said

Tuesday. "We think the public is best served by moving forward again in the District Court."

Some legal experts questioned whether Microsoft's petition to the high court was designed to buy the company time until its new operating system gets to the market.

"The Supreme Court is not going to reverse the Court of Appeals, Microsoft is not going to walk free, so it's a delaying tactic," University of Baltimore law professor Bob Lande said. "They have no realistic chance of getting this overturned."

Windows XP is scheduled to be delivered to computer manufacturers at the end of this month and to be on store shelves in October.

Microsoft simultaneously asked the federal appeals court to delay sending the case to a new lower court judge until the Supreme Court decides whether it will take the appeal.

NEWS BRIEFS

Probe finds $1.3 million stolen

NEW YORK (AP) — A probe into the finances of a Harlem charity for drug-addicted and abandoned babies found that its ousted president, the daughter of the charity's founder, funneled about $1.3 million in donations to private bank accounts, according to a published report.

Lorraine Hale was ousted in May for alleged mismanagement of Hale House's funds.

The Daily News reported Wednesday that a probe found she had kept $800,000 from donations in a secret account and cashed in a life insurance policy paid for by Hale House, taking $488,000. The newspaper did not identify its sources.

Stephen Somerstein, an attorney for Hale, said the account was not a secret account. "Hale and her husband are adamant in their position that there is no wrongdoing," he said.

State Attorney General Eliot Spitzer is investigating Hale, including allegations that she funneled a half-million dollars to an off-Broadway play produced by her husband, did not follow proper adoption procedures when placing children, and turned the charity into a fund-raising machine without spending appropriately on the children.

Hale House's new board of directors, appointed by Spitzer in May, hired a private firm to also review the charity's finances.

Feds to announce indictments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal authorities are expected to announce a crackdown on what is being called one of the largest commercial child pornography businesses ever uncovered, law enforcement officials said.

Subscribers to a child porn website connected to a Texas couple are among those expected to be indicted following a two-year probe by the U.S. Postal Inspection Service and other federal authorities, officials said.

A federal judge on Monday sentenced Thomas Reedy, 37, to life in prison and his 32-year-old wife Janice to 14 years in prison. The Fort Worth couple was convicted last year on charges that included sexual exploitation of minors and distribution of child pornography.

The Reedy's home-based company, Landslide Inc., provided a credit card verification service that admitted customers into Web sites containing graphic pictures and videos of children engaging in sex acts with adults and with each other, the government said.

Landslide charged customers $29.95 per month for access and netted more than $1 million between 1997 and 1999, the government said.

The Web site had about 250,000 subscribers. Holmes said authorities tracked down some of them using electronic and credit card information gathered in an investigation conducted by the postal inspection service, U.S. Customs Service, FBI and the Dallas Police Department.

Condemned inmate set for second trip to death house in two months

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Condemned killer Mack Oran Hill has been down this road before.

Two months ago, he got within about two hours of his execution before the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals halted the punishment to consider a last-ditch appeal.

But with that appeal resolved and rejected, Hill was again set for lethal injection Wednesday, four days before his 48th birthday, for the murder of a business associate in Lubbock 14 years ago.

"It's really a strange experience," Hill said recently of his brush with death June 6, when he got word of his court-ordered reprieve while in a small cell just a few feet from the death chamber, eating a hamburger steak that was intended to be his final meal. "I had thought it was too late to get my hopes up."

"This second time is a lot rougher. I feel like my head's on a chopping block with a sword hanging over it... You can argue they shouldn't even take you over there (to the death house) while something is pending in the courts. It's barbaric."

The U.S. Supreme Court, without comment Tuesday, refused Hill's request to halt the punishment.

Hill insisted he was not responsible for fatally shooting Donald Johnson, taking the victim's money and truck, then stuffing the Lubbock man's body in a 55-gallon drum and dumping it in a lake.

At the time, Hill was on parole for aggravated robbery in Tarrant County after serving less than four years of a 12-year sentence.

In August 1987, a fisherman on Montague County's Amon Carter Lake, some 200 miles east of Lubbock, spotted the drum and called authorities. Inside the container, weighted with concrete, was a mummified body wrapped in carpets and blankets and tied with neckties.

Johnson, 43, wearing a T-shirt that advertised his paint and body shop, was identified as the victim.

Hill, a body shop worker, was arrested and charged with the slaying. He had been driving Johnson's truck and living in Johnson's travel trailer.

An acquaintance, Herbert Elliot, testified he saw Hill shoot Johnson March 3, 1987, at the Lubbock body shop where Johnson lived, use a knife and hammer-like kitchen tool to open wounds to drain Johnson's body of its blood, then wrap it in the carpet and blankets.

OUR VIEWS

SWCID's goals are ones to be admired by all

SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, which recently received more than $870,000 in state funds for two renovation projects, continues to be an innovative asset to our community.

Not only is the SWCID campus improving its facilities, but officials have announced their plans to enhance the institution's diagnostic center with the purchase of new equipment.

Last week Howard College trustees, who oversee SWCID, approved a bid of $38,665 from an Arizona firm for software to be used in the diagnostic lab.

Diagnostic services focused on vocational assessments for the deaf are very limited. But as the only self-contained junior college for the deaf, SWCID will be offering another service for its students and the deaf community as a whole.

SWCID's goal is to become the top diagnostic center for the deaf, not only in Texas but for the entire nation.

That vision, coupled with the $700,000 in renovation to the SWCID Student Union Building and stage area in the school's auditorium, makes it clear there's a dynamic atmosphere on the campus for both students and faculty.

Another project calls for a road on the campus to become a "pedestrian plaza" complete with a landscaped walkway with trees, shrubs, benches and additional lighting.

SWCID has shown a steady increase in student enrollment over the past few years.

Clearly the institution's administrators plan to continue making the campus one of our community's assets, and in the process, provide services the deaf can find virtually nowhere else.

I am a social worker who tries to help the elderly who are overcome by illness. Sometimes I find that their circumstances present a real challenge to their hopefulness, sense of purpose and even their individual essence.

Although the Bible can be a great comfort, I recently stumbled onto another comforter that works very well — a hymnal of gospel music. The genius of the lyricists interprets meanings in the Bible beautifully, offering hope, endurance, peace and emotional healing.

A gospel hymnal could be a very appropriate gift for those who find life overwhelming.

Bingo holds on to its protected status

My mother and my nephew Scott are Bingo playing fools. They exhibit the kind of passion for the game that most of us reserve for something important, like college football.

We play around the dinette at Mother's. "Beeeee... 4!" the appointed Bingo master calls with the dramatic voice of an Old Testament prophet.

Scott slaps his forehead and looks accusingly at those of us lucky enough to have the numeral "4" under the letter "B."

"Why couldn't he have said B-3?" Scott whines. "Ohhhhhhhhh... 64!" comes the call. "Shoot, that's not what I needed," complains my mother.

"Eeeeeeeeeee... 29!" "Bingo!" screams my mother. "I've got it. I've got it." She looks triumphantly at little Scott.

Scott arranges his pretty features into a virtuoso post as my mother picks a prize, some dollar-store dandy — a bouquet of Tootsie Roll Pops, a perfume bottle made in Taiwan, a sack of florist rocks.

The two of them are the most competitive Bingo buffs I've ever known. Seven decades separate them, but they act the same while playing Bingo.

Possessed. We never let either one of them be Bingo master.

Bingo gets to a lot of us. My home county recently turned thumbs down on the notion of a proposed Indian casino, marched in to vote "No" to gambling while on the way to the Bingo parlors. We already have several of those.

I'm not sure why Bingo has kept its protected status in a nation that gets so wrought up about gambling. Bingo has retained its aura of innocence, is considered about as threatening as a gospel singing or a benefit barbecue. The preachers generally leave it alone.

When I was growing up Baptist, I had wonderful Training Union leaders one year, a husband-and-wife team well past retirement age. For the uninitiated, our Training Union was like Sunday School except at night, and if you hurried home afterward you wouldn't miss "Bonanza."

I remember but won't tell you their real names — lest they, or the statute of limitations, have not passed — but, like a lot of us, Mr. and Mrs. Training Union preferred to stay home on Sunday nights. So they hatched a rather unorthodox plan.

For one year, every Sunday afternoon about 5 o'clock, I'd put on my proper, churchgoing dress and shoes and hike around the corner to my leaders' home. There we'd play the most rollicking game of Bingo a bunch of Baptists ever beeeeeee-held. And the T. Unions would nurse their drinks, which even then I suspected packed a punch. They provided the prizes. Nice prizes, too. Jewelry boxes, Old Maid cards, New Testaments. Glittering costume rings.

I always went home with a lot of loot. I was lucky at Baptist Bingo.

I doubt if our substitute for regulation Training Union would have passed muster with the head honchos at church.

But none of us was about to squeal on adults who hosted such wonderful evenings. What the deacons didn't know wouldn't hurt them.

The alternative, the approved TU competition, was the Bible Drill, a horrid, militarist approach to scriptures scholarship. It went like this:

All of us would form a line, our bibles held down at our sides. "Attention!" the leader would say, our signal to stare straight ahead, at the ready.

"Draw swords!" the leaders would holler, and up would come our bibles to rest on our left hands, face down, ready to flip open.

"Matthew 2:12," the leader directed, or "John 3:16." Then, "Charge!"

The first to find the verse would step forward, read it aloud, then return to the drill line. The Kendrick kids always found the verses first; they usually went on to win district and even regional Bible Drill competition.

I fumbled around enough to look busy, but I never got to the right book or verse first. Bible pages are really thin.

That year of respite was a rewarding time. My prizes piled up, and I hated when the time came to advance to the next level of religious training.

Four days on the road in Texas

On the way to East Texas I stopped in DeLeon and visited with Wallace Cook, a man who spends most of his time collecting jokes. In Comanche I listened to Patti O'Donnell tell me how she had a dream that she owned a gift shop in an old house. She actually found a house that looked exactly like the one in the dream. She bought it and opened a gift shop in it.

In Moody, I visited with a beer can collector and poet and heard about the cotton gin festival coming up in September.

In Crockett I met Vince Patrick who gets up at 3:30 in the morning at his home in Oakwood, drives to Crockett and does a morning radio gig at KIVY, then goes back to Oakwood to take care of his deer ranch. In Oakland, Dale Shroyer gave me some background on the community where he lives. I interviewed Joanne Warner, a Cajun woman who loves Cajun food and music.

Jerry Gentry has a unique business in the Davy Crockett National Forest. He offers the Ribeye Trail Ride which includes a two-hour horseback ride, a candlelight ribeye dinner and a log cabin for the night, all for $60 per person.

Jerry House is a minister in Crockett who also owns a general store in the tiny village of Leona. He cooks barbecue on Saturday nights at the store, then hightails it back to Crockett to fill the pulpit Sunday morning.

Dennis Ivey of Crockett told me how he used to play in bands around the state and wrote a song that is popular around Christmas time. He got into music by hearing tunes on the juke box in his mother's cafe in the Madison County town of Midway.

Suzanne Conway told me about working as a saw filer at a sawmill. She lives at Stubblefield, the gateway to Nogales Prairie and Brownlee Hill. Tim Culp brought me up to date on Crockett's world champion fiddler's contest. At Alto I learned about how ropes were sold in hardware stores long ago.

In Jacksonville, Robert Nichols told me about hunting big game in Africa. At Rusk I interviewed Mike Hall, an Elvis impersonator.

TJ Hunter of Lone Oak is a helicopter mechanic now working in Bogota, Columbia, keeping the helicopters working in the war against drugs.

I interviewed Max Schochler of Rusk, a day lily expert and Marion Lindsey of Alto, whose family has been in the fur business for generations. Between Alto and Rusk I met Tom and Jan Townsend, who raise miniature horses and cows and provide military vehicles and equipment to movie companies. Some of their stuff is in the movie Pearl Harbor.

My last interview on this trip was with Darel Massey, an inmate at a state prison in Rusk. He is behind bars for DWI. He has an exceptional talent in art and has done murals in the Cherokee County Courthouse.

Lorenzo Music, voice of Garfield, dies at 64

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lorenzo Music, who provided the distinctive voice of "Garfield" the cartoon cat and worked on television series including "The Bob Newhart Show" and "Rhoda," has died. He was 64.

Music died at his home Saturday of lung cancer that had spread throughout his body.

He worked until about a month ago, when he recorded Garfield's voice for an automobile advertisement, said his wife, Henrietta.

"The most compelling thing about him was the sort of relentless, easy, everyday humor," she said Tuesday.

He had a dry, sharp wit and it was quick. He was cracking jokes on Thursday; we were all sitting around in his room."

Music won an Emmy as a writer for the "Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" in 1969 and went on to become a story editor for "The Mary Tyler Moore Show."

He co-wrote with his wife the theme song for "The Bob Newhart Show," which he helped create.

Music and his partner David Davis created "Rhoda," a spinoff to "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," and Music became the voice of Carlton the doorman, who communicated through an intercom but was never seen.

Music went on to work full time as a voice actor, portraying several cartoon characters and eventually voicing "Garfield" in prime-time animated specials and for a Saturday morning series that aired for seven years.

Music born Gerald David Music on May 2, 1937, in New York City and grew up in Duluth, Minn. He attended the University of Minnesota, where he met his wife. The pair formed a comedy act that lasted eight years. Music later took the first name Lorenzo for spiritual reasons, his wife said.

Music is survived by his wife and their four children.

Deadly heat wave sends mercury soaring in Midwest

The Associated Press

The heat wave spreading torrid temperatures from the Plains to the Northeast is taking a punishing toll, knocking out power for thousands and making life miserable for millions.

Temperatures in the 90s and low 100s and stifling humidity created unbearable conditions Tuesday, and relief wasn't expected in parts of the East until Friday.

On Tuesday, searing heat stretched from the Dakotas and Minnesota to Philadelphia and New York, where the temperature hit 99 degrees in Central Park. The humidity made temperatures feel even hotter, with most states experiencing heat indexes of more than 100 degrees.

"There's folks out here getting overheated. It's dangerous," said Jimmy Cornelson, coroner in Madison County, Ky., where heat was blamed for the death of a man working on a roof on Monday.

"If you walk out there right now and you're doing strenuous work and you don't compensate with fluids, you're asking for trouble," Cornelson said. "It's hot. It's bad hot."

Last week, the heat was blamed for at least six deaths in the Midwest, including NFL player Corey Stringer, who collapsed from heat stroke on the second day of Minnesota Vikings practice at Mankato, Minn.

In Newark, N.J., where the heat index reached 106 degrees on Tuesday, six firefighters suffered heat exhaustion while battling a house fire. And in Wisconsin, several Green Bay Packers players overheated at their training camp and had to be treated with ice towels and water.

The heat led to blackouts in New Jersey and in Minnesota. About 12,000 customers lost power Tuesday in New Jersey on Tuesday but service was restored during the night. Some 2,400 Xcell Energy customers in Minnesota had no power early Wednesday for a third day.

Boston declared its first heat alert of the summer as temperatures exceeded 90 degrees for the third consecutive day. The weather pushed electricity demand to record levels across the Northeast, but grid operators purchased power from Canada.

Pennsylvanians girded for the longest stretch of 90-degree days in at least six years.

"If we worked a horse in this heat, we'd go to jail," construction worker David Stacey said in Harrisburg, Pa., his T-shirt soaked with sweat. "But we don't really have a choice. We've got to be outside."

At the Fairfax Pool in Eau Claire, Wis., manager Tara Edberg said some of her life-guards had grown dizzy and vomited because of the heat. Elsewhere, high school football coaches canceled outdoor practices.

Jefferson City, Mo., mail carrier Craig Holliday, 51, found no relief inside his postal truck: "It's like driving around in a little oven."

Boycott looms as drugs hit world championship

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Gabriela Szabo pulled away from the field in the final stretch of the 1,500 meters, then rushed out of Commonwealth Stadium without saying whether she'll boycott the 5,000.

Szabo, who sprinted into the lead with 150 meters remaining Tuesday night to win her first world championship in the 1,500, is favored to win her third straight world title in the 5,000.

But she said last week she'll drop out of that race if rival Olga Yegorova is allowed to run. Yegorova was suspended after testing positive for the banned endurance-boosting hormone EPO, but reinstated Sunday because the drug test was not carried out properly.

"I want to sleep all night and make the decision tomorrow," Szabo said after her 1,500 victory.

Szabo's manager, Jos Hermens, said she would announce her decision today. The first round of the 5,000 is Thursday night.

"I'd like to see her racing," Hermens said. "Why give medals away to admonish people, and two weeks later nobody knows she didn't run?"

While Szabo was weighing her decision, world track officials were completing drug tests on several athletes whose initial tests at the world championships indicated possible use of EPO.

Arne Ljungqvist, the IAAF's anti-doping chief, said blood tests on 7-to-10 athletes — including Yegorova — showed elevated levels of red blood cells. That can signal the use of EPO, but high levels also can occur naturally.

Those athletes now will have urine tests to check for EPO. It was not clear when the results of those tests would be available.

A positive drug test would be the first at these championships. Venolyn Clarke, the Canadian women's champion at 100 meters, was suspended because a premeet test showed traces of stanozolol — the steroid that cost Ben Johnson his 1988 Olympic gold medal.

Clarke was eliminated in the second round of the 100 this past weekend, and was scheduled to run on Canada's 400-meter relay team. Now she faces a four-year suspension.

And Brazilian 800-meter runner Fabiane dos Santos also was kicked out of the championships Tuesday because tests at a May meet in Rio de Janeiro showed her testosterone level was too high.

Szabo let Russia's Natalya Gorelova set the pace, then swept into the lead on the final turn and pulled away to win in 4 minutes, 00.57 seconds. Her Romanian teammate, Violeta Szekely, was second and Gorelova was third.

Szabo and Szekely embraced after the race, but they are far from friends.

Steers' future depends on youth

By DOUG LAW
Sports Editor

Youth and enthusiasm will be the key to a successful football season for Big Spring's Steers.

That's the assessment from Steers head coach Dwight Butler following the first two days of two-a-day practices.

"They have a chance to be a good team but some of them will have to make a huge jump forward," Steers coach Dwight Butler said. "It's what's inside of them that will make the difference, unity and leadership will be the keys to this team's success. They shouldn't care who gets the ink, what they do should be for the team. We all win."

The Steers have got off to a good start at practice, despite the stifling heat.

While the Steers won't have the experienced line of last season, one thing they do possess is lots of very energetic, athletic players with good skills.

If those younger players can learn the system and mature, they could make a big contribution to the team, Butler said.

"They are all very attentive, they want to learn how to play football," Butler said. "They've come to practice with a great attitude and they're ready to learn. We have a lot of young people at the skilled positions, like receivers and backs. We've got quite a few good defensive backs."

The Steers roster will be filled with sophomores and

The 2001 Big Spring Steers are preparing for the upcoming football season and will feature a young team. They are holding two-a-day practices this week and will put on pads Friday. The Steers host Midland Lee in the first scrimmage of the Steers' season Saturday, Aug. 18 with the varsity taking the field at 12:30 p.m.

juniors with a small senior class.

The key to the Steers' success this season may well depend on the performance of as now inexperienced linemen.

Big Spring lost all its starting and backup linemen to graduation last year, but that group didn't really jell until the third game in 2000.

"We'll have a real battle for the offensive and defensive linemen positions," Butler said. "The hardest thing for the big guys is to get in shape in the heat."

We're trying to put together five good offensive and four good defense players so they don't have to double up. That's our biggest challenge.

Many questions will be answered when the Steers start practicing with pads on Friday.

Allowing the linemen to play just offense or just defense, will make learning their assignments much easier than if they were two-way players.

"The longer the linemen work together as a group, the better they will be," Butler said. "A lot will depend on the heart of those linemen. We have a lot of eager young men, but we have a lot of questions. They'll be answered when they put on the pads and scrimmage against Midland Lee."

The Steers host the three-time defending state champions in Class 5A for their first scrimmage of the season Saturday, Aug. 18, at Memorial Stadium. The freshmen play at 10 a.m., the junior varsity play at 11 a.m. and the varsity will take the field at 12:30 p.m.

"The players aren't complaining about the heat at all, they are very receptive to the coaches," Butler said.

"We have a good group of defensive backs and some very athletic kids. We want to arrange the assignments so the good athletes contribute to the team and not just stand on the sidelines.

"We have a lot of young, athletic players at the receiver positions," Butler added.

The Steers have three seniors — Clarence Wilkins, Larry Thompson and Adam Solis — who are expected to provide strong leadership skills and help younger receivers.

"Those three will give us needed leadership," Butler said. "A young team like ours must have great leaders. Any team will have its ups and downs and the kids have to keep their cool. They must learn there is no need to panic. They have to learn from their mistakes."

The Steers' reputation of making the playoffs has created a tradition that helps motivate the younger players.

"We've been in the playoffs quite a bit over the past 12 years and they want to keep that tradition going," Butler said.

Tigers defeat Rangers

ARLINGTON (AP) — The Detroit Tigers were relieved to see the Texas Rangers in the other dugout.

The Tigers snapped a six-game losing streak and remained unbeaten against the Rangers in seven meetings this season with Tuesday night's 7-3 victory.

Detroit has won 11 of its last 12 games against Texas, which lost its fifth straight.

"I'm not going to overanalyze it," Detroit manager Phil Garner said. "We've played some nice games against them. Let's leave it at that."

Tony Clark hit a tiebreaking RBI single in a four-run eighth inning for the Tigers, who lost 13 of their previous 16 games.

Detroit's run total in the eighth was more than the Tigers scored in any of their previous six games.

Rookie starter Adam Pettyjohn remains winless in five career starts for the Tigers, but he showed progress by getting a no-decision after losing his first four outings. Pettyjohn allowed three runs and five hits in 6-2-3 innings.

"It feels good that the team battled back for me after I kept them in the game," Pettyjohn said. "It

Cowboys try to keep Harris healthy at tight end

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys have a good reason to limit tight end Jackie Harris in preseason workouts.

They want to do everything they can to make sure the 33-year-old Harris, who is going into his 12th NFL season, stays healthy. He's the only tight end left with any real playing experience that isn't injured.

"There's no question that Jackie's the guy who has to shoulder some of the load until we find out what our status is," Cowboys coach Dave Campo said. "He gives us experience."

"The concern with Jackie obviously is that he's an older guy and you'd like to have some guys to go along with him. I don't believe that he's going to be capable of going every down, every game."

David LaFleur's career could be in jeopardy because of a continued back problem, Chris Fontenot is out 6-8 weeks with a broken right wrist suffered in last weekend's preseason opener and Mike Lucky still isn't back from torn knee ligaments.

That leaves the Cowboys with Harris and the trio of James Whalen, Johnny Huggins and Ryan Collins.

With a month before the season opener, Harris is the only proven commodity at tight end. He caught 39 passes for 302 yards and a team-leading five touchdowns last season, his first with the Cowboys.

While Whalen may be undersized for the position at 6-foot-2, 228 pounds, Campo is impressed with the hands of the second-year player. The coach has even said that if the Cowboys decide to keep six receivers that the sixth receiver "better be better than Whalen."

Whalen was on the other side of the situation last year, pulling his hamstring in training camp for Tampa Bay before getting cut. He later signed with the Cowboys and wasn't on the active roster until December.

"It's an odd situation. It's one where you go from being hurt and watching somebody else make the team to being that guy that's still alive," Whalen said. "Obviously, this is advantageous to me. You never wish that upon anybody, but you still welcome the opportunity."

Huggins, cut by the Cowboys last year, caught 16 passes for 167 yards in NFL Europe this spring.

Collins, who played in the National Football League, seems to have a better opportunity to make the team as a deep snapper than a tight end.

Campo isn't sure how the tight ends will rotate for Saturday night's preseason game against Denver. Fontenot started last week, but Harris still may not play this week.

"It depends on how much we want to look at guys like Whalen and others that can help us in a possession attack, and Ryan Collins to see what he can do under fire," Campo said.

Harris said he's doing more coaching than anything these days.

Maddux, Bonds make history with pitching, big bat

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Greg Maddux made history with his precision. Barry Bonds is doing the same with his power.

Maddux wasn't at his sharpest Tuesday night, but he had enough control to set the National League record for consecutive innings without a walk as the Atlanta Braves beat the Houston Astros 6-5.

"The streak's nice, but it's important that it doesn't interfere with what we're trying to do, which is win," Maddux said.

Maddux pitched six innings to extend his streak without a walk to 70 1-3 innings, surpassing the record of 68 set by Christy Mathewson in 1913 and matched by Randy Jones in 1976. Bill Fischer holds the major league record with 84 1-3 consecutive innings without a walk in 1962.

Bonds' power feats have been much more dramatic than Maddux's pinpoint location. Bonds led off the 11th inning with his 48th homer, starting a six-run rally that swept surging San Francisco to a 9-3 victory at Cincinnati.

Bonds reached the 48-homer mark faster than anyone in history — 113 games, one fewer than Babe Ruth in 1921.

His solo homer also was his 30th at Riverfront Stadium-Cinergy Field, the most by any opposing player.

"Some ballparks you play well in, some you don't," he said.

In other National League games, it was Chicago 5, Colorado 4; Los Angeles 2, Pittsburgh 1; Philadelphia 7, San Diego 3; Florida 10, Arizona 4; St. Louis 3, Montreal 1; and New York 3, Milwaukee 0.

In American League games, it was Tampa Bay 3, the New York Yankees 2; Cleveland 7, Minnesota 2; Baltimore 7, Kansas City 3; Detroit 7, Texas 3; Seattle 5, Toronto 4 in 14 innings; and Anaheim 9, Chicago White Sox 3.

Braves 6, Astros 5

Brian Jordan and Marcus Giles homered as Atlanta beat Houston for the seventh straight time at Turner Field to remain three games ahead of Philadelphia in the National League East.

Maddux (15-6) allowed five runs — four earned — and 11 hits in six innings. Maddux improved to 11-1 in his last 13 starts and hasn't walked a batter since June 20.

"He may keep his streak going indefinitely if they keep calling pitches around the ankle strikes," Astros manager Larry Dierker said.

Giants 9, Reds 3

Bonds led off the 11th with the first of three San Francisco homers off Danny Graves (5-3). He also drove in runs with a single and a double.

Andres Galarraga added a two-run homer, and Marvin Benard had a solo shot as the Giants sent 10 batters to the plate and took advantage of two errors.

"Never pitch on your birthday. That should be the headline," said Graves, who turned 28 Tuesday.

Jason Christiansen (2-1) pitched out of a two-on, no-out threat in the 10th to get the win — and a homer dedicated by Bonds.

"That was excellent," Christiansen said. "He said that one was for me. I appreciate that. At was a big win, especially with this long losing streak." With the game tied at 3, Rob Fick led off the eighth with a double off Mike Venafro (4-3), who failed to retire any of the four batters he faced. Fick went to third on Bobby Higginson's infield single and scored the go-ahead run when Clark singled. Randall Simon's sacrifice bunt moved Higginson to third. Higginson scored and the other runners moved to second and third when Venafro threw wildly to first after fielding the bunt. Shane Halter's two-run double off Brandon Villafuerte made it 7-3. Venafro has been one of the Rangers' best relievers with a 0.98 ERA over his previous 18 1/3 innings, but he struggled against the Tigers. Matt Perisho (1-2) pitched 1 1/3 innings for the win. Damon Easley's solo homer off Aaron Myette in the top of the seventh gave Detroit a 3-2 lead, but Gabe Kapler tied it with a solo shot off Pettyjohn in the bottom half. Alex Rodriguez homered in his third straight game, hitting a two-run shot to give the Rangers a 2-1 lead in the first. Rodriguez also executed a convincing fake at shortstop in the fifth as the Rangers caught Juan Encarnacion on a baserunning blunder that resulted in a double play. Encarnacion was on first after getting hit by a pitch. Jose Macias followed with a fly to center field, and as Encarnacion ran toward second, Rodriguez faked fielding a grounder. Encarnacion never caught sight of the ball and slid into second. By the time Kapler caught the ball in center and threw to first, Encarnacion was unable to get back in time. Myette, making his ninth big league start, gave up three runs and seven hits.

least he's not yelling to me from the other dugout: 'That one's off you.'" Terry Adams beat Pittsburgh for the third consecutive time this season, and Eric Karros homered for his second straight game-winning hit for Los Angeles. Adams (8-4) improved to 6-2 since moving into the starting rotation with his second excellent start in three weeks in PNC Park. Tony McKnight (1-2) lost his second straight start since being acquired from Houston. Phillies 7, Padres 3 Brandon Duckworth pitched six solid innings to win his major league debut as Philadelphia defeated visiting San Diego by a 7-3 margin. Bobby Abreu, Pat Burrell and Scott Rolen both crushed home runs homered for the Phillies off Bobby Jones (7-14).
