Youth to get first-hand look at effects of alcohol abuse

By ROGER CLINE
Staff Writer

Big Spring will host a Victims Impact Panel on underage drinking Monday in the Big Spring City Council chambers.

The panel will present

underage drinkers with testimony from people whose lives have been adversely affected by alcohol consumption, said Shann Thomas, executive director of the non-profit Victim Services of Big Spring. The program will start at 5:30 p.m. Monday and should last an hour, she said.

Judge (Tim) Green (of the Big Spring Municipal Court) has juvenile offenders that are charged with an alcohol-related offense," she said. "Some sort of alcohol-related crime like drinking and driving, public intoxication, minor in consumption, etc."

Thomas said Green has sentenced the juveniles to attend the program.

"We will have Nita Williams of Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD)," Thomas added. "She will be telling the story of how her son was the victim of a drunk driver. Then we'll have an inmate convicted of intoxicated manslaughter, so they'll hear about it from that side, too."

Thomas said there are plans for the program to be presented monthly.

"I am hoping that (the juvenile offenders) will come to a better understanding of where the victim is coming from and what they're feeling," she said. "To make them think about their choices."

Parents of the offenders have been invited to attend the program, but Thomas said plans are in place to require parent attendance at the next panel.

"It's not mandatory on this one," she said. "On the next one, it will be."

Parents often have the wrong attitude about their children's drinking, Green said.

"A lot of these kids are under the age of 16," he explained. "We're not saying it's the parents' fault they were drinking, but they need to see that there's

Diminishing profits force Lions to close bingo hall

B..... no more. The Lions Club of Big Spring has shut down its bingo hall on Third Street.

"It was just a lack of funding, we didn't make enough profit," said Bob Noyes, club president.

According to Noyes, the shutting down of the bingo hall is going to affect the Christmas in April Program, the Lions Queen Contest, the eye glass program and St. Thomas Catholic Church, which has been holding its bingo games at the hall.

"Christmas in April is the only program in Big Spring that helps senior citizens that can't maintain their homes. This was done at no cost to them. We were there when they needed the roof patched or their bathroom floor fixed," said Noyes.

According to Noyes, the Christmas in April program was held at the end of April every year and the Lions Club would get up to 500 volunteers to help seniors repair their homes.

"Now the Christmas will be filtered down to emergency services only throughout the year," said Noyes.

The Lions Club has also been supplying donated eye glasses to those who needed them.

"We supplied more than 600 pair of glasses to the needy of Big Spring over a period of four years," said Noyes.

According to Noyes, the Lions Club would conduct an eye screening and get the prescription that the children or adults needed.

"The bingo hall was our money maker to keep all of these programs running. We didn't have any sponsors to fund us money anymore, and the bingo hall just wasn't making it," said Noyes.

The Lions Club will still be able to meet other places. According to Noyes, the club is not disbanding. But the fund-raisers have been difficult.

"We also had a lot of competition when it came to bingo. There were other places in Big Spring to compete with and it just got to be really tough. Our bingo was controlled by the state; it was not gambling," said Noyes.

According to Noyes, the 15 members of the Big Spring Lions Club are trying to resolve the problems.

"We would just like to say thank you to all of the people in Big Spring who did support the bingo hall, and we are sorry. It just didn't make a profit," said Noyes.

Rain!

Area doused Thursday; more moisture forecast for today and this evening

HERALD Staff Report

Crossroads area residents were greeted with some significant rain Thursday evening and could see more today.

Area rainfall reports ranged from two-tenths to three inches, although the National Weather Service in Midland reported that radar indicated pockets of moisture up to six inches around Sand Springs and Coahoma.

According to the United States Department of Agriculture Research Station, Big Spring received 1.43 inches. Elbow residents reported 1.8 inches while a resident one mile north of Coahoma reported three inches and hail.

Farther north, the rainfall was more spotty, with three-tenths to one-half inch reported.

The weather service reported that Garden City received 1.45 inches while Snyder got just one-tenth. Midland International Airport received almost a half-inch, while areas north of Midland received more than an inch and a half.

"It was nice to be able to go to bed last night and hear that rain for a change," said Brian Curran, meteorologist with the National Weather Service. "Right now, conditions look pretty good for Big Spring to get some more."

Curran said the forecast calls for a 40 percent chance today and tonight, decreasing to 20 percent on Saturday.

"There is a weak cold front across the Panhandle and it is slowly sagging south," Curran said. "It might not reach us, but it could increase the possibility of rainfall in our area anyway."

The rain comes from a persistent upper level low situated over Roswell, combined with a moist and unstable air mass across most of Texas, Curran said.

Despite the rain, there is no break in the drought.

"The word is we are in a long-term severe drought and it may be as severe as it

Bush backs limited medical research on embryonic stem cells

WASHINGTON (AP) — Confronting President Bush's decision allowing federal funds for limited stem cell research, scientists on Friday pressed for more latitude to avoid possible treatment delays. Political conservatives urged restraint.

"We should take a lot of time to think through the steps that we're proceeding down before we rapidly move down this road. ... This is a new world for us," said Sen. Sam Brownback, R-Kan., a leader of abortion opponents concerned that embryos are destroyed for stem cell research.

Dr. John Gearhart, a researcher at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, said he was disappointed Bush limited funding only to 60 or so lines of existing stem cells. He said it could slow research unless new stem cell lines are drawn from additional embryos.

"This limitation the president has put on this is going to delay, I believe substantially, the progress we need to make to bring these types of therapies to the bedside," Gearhart told NBC's "Today" show.

But Bush's health secretary, Tommy Thompson, said the 60 cell lines were adequate to push research ahead and pursue possible new cures for diseases as diverse as diabetes and Parkinson's. "We feel that that is enough to really carry on the research," he told CNN.

While Bush's middle-ground decision evoked a wide array of reaction, both sides found something to cheer. Scientists were relieved that at least some federal funding was permitted, while research opponents found solace

Religious leaders have mixed reactions to decision

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Roman Catholic leaders condemned as "morally unacceptable" President Bush's support of limited federal funding for embryonic stem cell research. Conservative Protestants said they were disappointed but encouraged by Bush's thoughtful approach.

After weighing the issue for months, Bush announced Thursday night that he would support federal funding for the research, but only on existing lines of embryonic stem cells, restricting research to cells from embryos that already have been destroyed.

"The fact that he is not putting federal funds in the support of killing additional babies is a very critical line not crossed," said Richard Land, president of the Southern Baptists' Ethics and Religious Liberty Commission.

Pope John Paul II had personally urged Bush to reject research on human embryos. Bishop Joseph Fiorenza, president of the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops, called Bush's choice "morally unacceptable."

"The federal government, for the first time in history, will support research that relies on the destruction of some defenseless human beings for the possible benefit to others," Fiorenza said in a statement. "It allows our nation's research enterprise to cultivate a disrespect for human life."

in the limits Bush placed.

Confronting what he called "a difficult moral intersection" for the nation, Bush told the nation Thursday in a nationally televised address that he decided to allow some federal funding for embryonic stem cell research, but to restrict it to the limited number of cell lines.

Under the decision, the government would pay for research on stem cells derived from human embryos — but only with lines already created. If new embryos are either created or destroyed, the government would deny tax support for that research.

"This allows us to explore the promise and potential of stem cell research without crossing a fundamental moral line by providing taxpayer funding that would sanction or encourage further destruction of human embryos," he said in an 11-minute speech nationally televised from his Texas ranch.

Scientists believe that embryonic

Bush's own denomination, the United Methodist Church, had urged him to uphold the ban on federal funding, but leaders said they were satisfied the president had thoroughly considered all the ethical issues involved.

"We would have liked him to continue the moratorium that was in place, but if you're going to do this research with federal funding, he narrowed it as much as he could," said Jay Dee Hanson of the United Methodist Board of Church and Society in Washington.

Bush had no obligation as a devout Christian to reach a different conclusion, Hanson and Land said. "I think he had an obligation as a Christian to do what he thought was right," Land said.

Hanson said it was naive to think Bush's spiritual concerns would completely outweigh his political ones. "I feel as president, he is obligated to take into account all of the religious traditions in this country," he said.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, which opposes abortion in most cases, has taken no position on embryonic stem cell research but has said it "merits cautious scrutiny." Utah Sen. Orrin Hatch, a Mormon, had urged Bush to lift the federal funding ban.

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) was alone among major Protestant denominations in endorsing embryonic stem cell research.

members and friends. He said there were more than 60 genetically diverse stem cell lines already in existence "created from embryos already destroyed."

He said he would limit federal support to these cell lines because "the life-and-death decision has already been made."

The research would be limited to stem cells that had been removed from embryos that were surplus or abandoned by couples at fertility clinics. Such embryos are usually destroyed. Federal rules would require that the donors give consent and not benefit from the donation.

Bush said he considered the origin and fate of the embryos when thinking of his decision.

"As I thought through this issue I kept returning to two fundamental questions," he said in the speech.

"First, are these frozen embryos human life and therefore something precious to be protected? And second, if they're going to be destroyed anyway, shouldn't they be used for a greater good, for research that has the potential to save and improve other lives?"

Bush said the issue "forces us to confront fundamental questions about the beginnings of life and the ends of science."

"It lies at a difficult moral intersection, juxtaposing the need to protect life in all its phases with the prospect of saving and improving life in all its stages," he said.

Stem cell researchers said they were surprised to hear there were more than 60 existing embryonic stem cell lines. Most said they knew of only a dozen that would meet strict guidelines.

Charity drop-off sites become dumping grounds

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Drop boxes at places like Goodwill and The Salvation Army have become a dumping ground for everything from dead animals to busted-up furniture, costing charities around the country millions of dollars that could be spent to help the needy.

Local dumps often won't take the garbage for free, meaning charities have to pay large amounts of money on disposal.

"Some of the stuff is just nasty," said Pete Dunan, operations manager for Goodwill of San Luis Obispo, Calif.

Dunan said college students have been known to unload an array of rubbish — once even a live fish in a bowl. Other charity managers report dumpings of syringes, mattresses and sofas without cushions. When garbage is tossed into collection boxes, it can contaminate the good donations and often the entire contents must be thrown away.

Salvation Army Maj. Paul Hodges manages 10 stores in the Pittsburgh area and calls dumping "a major, major headache ... It's been getting worse every year." The charity's trash bill is about $100,000 a year, he said.

Goodwill's headquarters in Bethesda, Md., doesn't track disposal fees, but individual charities report high costs. Goodwill locations in California alone last year spent more than $7 million on trash disposal, said Christine Nyirjesy Bragale, spokeswoman for Goodwill Industries International.

"Every dollar that we spend on trash is a dollar we can't spend on job training," Bragale said.

Terry Fitzpatrick, chief operating officer of Goodwill Industries of San Francisco, sends four men out in two trucks each morning to clean up items left at its 18 donation sites.

Not all is junk, but scavengers sometimes rip through bags and boxes looking for useful items and leave a mess, he said.

The yearly trash cost, not including the drivers' pay, is about $150,000, enough to give 50 people computer training, he said.

Elizabeth Anders, spokeswoman for Goodwill and Easter Seals in Minnesota, said disposal costs for its 13 drop-off centers are close to $500,000 a year. She estimates only 20 percent of donations Minnesota's stores, with the rest either being thrown out, recycled or sold to rag dealers.

People don't realize that charities can't accept things like mattresses and broken furniture, Bragale said. Goodwill no longer repairs furniture, and mattresses cannot be resold because of health concerns.

A frequent refrain from people wanting to unload items such as sofas without cushions is "that it's good enough for the poor," said Hodges, of the Salvation Army.

"What kind of nonsense is that? When we give to a poor family, we give the best we can," he said.

Most people dump at night, particularly on Sundays after flea markets close, and prefer unattended drop boxes and trailers.

Navy says man's Purple Heart, SEAL claims false

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The Navy says a decorated Nebraska veteran lied about being part of the elite SEAL force and being wounded in combat.

Sen. Ben Nelson, D-Neb., pinned a Purple Heart on Timothy Webster's chest at an April 17 ceremony in Columbus, Neb. Webster wore a SEAL Trident pin at the ceremony.

Afterward, people called Nelson's office to question the veteran's claims and Nelson asked the Navy to investigate.

The review "revealed that he did not receive SEAL training, he was not wounded in combat, and is not a recipient of the Purple Heart Medal," T.E. Decent, a special assistant in the Navy's congressional liaison office, wrote to Nelson.

A spokesman for Nelson, David DiMartino, said Webster had presented a convincing memo from the Navy regarding the Purple Heart, which is awarded to people wounded in combat.

The senator "was saddened that someone would take advantage of the system," DiMartino said.

DiMartino said he did not know whether Webster could face legal ramifications.

"That is not up to us to decide," he said.

Navy officials said Webster is no longer on active duty, and therefore no longer under the military's jurisdiction.

Webster, who lives in Columbus, 70 miles west of Omaha, said he had not heard from the Navy. He said he has requested his service and medical records, and until he receives those, he declined to comment.

Navy officials have said Webster's name did not appear in the SEAL database and the Trident he wore may have been bought

Marine Pfc. Gomer Pyle gets 'promoted' to lance corporal

HONOLULU (AP) — Surprise, surprise! After 37 years, fictional Pfc. Gomer Pyle on Thursday achieved the promotion to lance corporal that eluded him during five years in the Marine Corps on the popular television sitcom in the 1960s.

Actor Jim Nabors, who starred in CBS's "Gomer Pyle, U.S.M.C.," was pinned with the lance corporal insignia, a PFC stripe with crossed rifles, by Gen. James Jones, commandant of the Marine Corps.

It took place during a no-nonsense ceremony on a parade ground at Camp H.M. Smith, headquarters of the Marine Forces Pacific and the U.S. Pacific Command. "Sgt. Carter would be amazed," said Jones, adding that personnel in other services probably are asking: "What in the world are the Marines doing today?"

Although Gomer Pyle, the Mayberry service station attendant Nabors created on "The Andy Griffith Show," had trouble adjusting to the Marine Corps, he displayed the attributes of a good Marine, Jones said.

"He's honest and embodies integrity. He is filled with determination. He extensively attempts to do the right thing in every circumstance. He is selfless ... and he is loyal to a fault," he said.

Nabors, 71, who lives in Honolulu, told the 300 Marines and family members attending the ceremony that reruns of "Gomer Pyle" have given him celebrity with a new generation.

While walking through O'Hare Airport in Chicago recently, he heard a passing boy say: "Look, mother, there's an old Gomer Pyle."

Nabors said Gomer wasn't stupid like many people thought "but actually it was he only wanted to see the good side of everybody and everything."

"I'm very honored that Gen. Jones did this. It was a total surprise to me," Nabors said.

OUR VIEWS

We salute:

Each week, the Herald salutes individuals and groups from our community and area who have been recognized for special achievements or accomplishments.

We recognize these special people for working to help make our region a better place to live, work and play.

This week we salute:

- THE LAMUN-LUSK-SANCHEZ STATE VETERANS HOME, which opened its 32-bed secure Alzheimer's unit this past week. Currently, the unit has six patients.

- SACRED HEART CATHOLIC CHURCH, which had another successful summer festival.

- THE THOMAS FAMILY of Howard County and the HILLGER FAMILY of Glasscock County, named Pioneer Families of the Year during the Old Settler's Reunion.

- UNITED WAY OF BIG SPRING AND HOWARD COUNTY, which added ISAAH 58, to its list of agencies.

Is there an individual or organization in our community that you feel should be saluted? If so, please send us their name and why you think they should be recognized. We must have your name and telephone number and you must provide it in writing.

YOUR VIEWS

TO THE EDITOR:
The wise men that advise our president plan to change his image. In other words, how to speak, never stumble over microphones and to portray the perfect image to all people.

What a joke. You can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink. The horse is a horse and always will be a horse.

I entered the ministry in 1952. I tried to be all things to all people and to act like others did. I tried my best and, in the process, had a nervous breakdown.

The president is a Texan. He was raised in Texas and needs to continue to act like a Texan — wear his western hat, cowboy boots and continue to say "Y'all" and "I reckon."

One thing I have learned in life is to do the best you can and be yourself. If anyone doesn't like the way you talk or do things, that's their problem.

For 50 years I tried to be all things to all people and the result was the biggest failure of my life. President Bush has enough trouble. Just wait until the "know-it-alls" get through with him. God help him, because he'll need all the help he can drum up.

J.W. ABERNATHY
BIG SPRING

TO THE EDITOR:
Sacred Heart Church would like to thank each and everyone who helped to make our festival a great success.

We are so grateful to all the businesses and all of the individuals who donated merchandise, food and money, and to all of the volunteers who worked long hours preparing food and manning the booths.

Thanks also go to all who worked before, during and after the festival; to all who purchased tickets for the drawing; to all those who donated cakes and soft drinks; as well as to the basketball teams and the live band.

The First Amendment is in deep trouble

You would think the First Amendment's directions on freedom of speech and of the press ("Congress shall make no law") would be pretty clear to everyone by now. But here we are in the middle of 2001 with a journalist in jail in Texas and another citizen in prison for writing his thoughts in a private journal.

MOLLY IVINS

Vanessa Leggett, a freelance writer and teacher at the University of Houston's professional writing program, was sent to jail July 20 by U.S. District Judge Melinda Harmon for contempt because Leggett refused to turn over her notes and tapes on a murder case.

As it happens, it was one of those high-profile, rich white trash cases for which Texas is famous. The victim was Doris Angleton, wife a millionaire bookie, shot to death in her River Oaks mansion (does River Oaks have an unusually high murder rate, or does it just seem that way?). Her husband, Robert the bookie, was charged with murder, his supposed motive being to save himself millions in a divorce proceeding. He was acquitted in 1998.

Robert's brother Roger was also implicated, but he committed suicide in jail before his trial. He left a note saying he had killed his sister-in-law in order to frame his brother.

Apparently the feds are still hot and bothered about this, and the Justice Department demanded Leggett turn over the tape of an interview she had with Roger while he was still in jail, as well as all her other material. Leggett is working on one of those true-crime books about the case and has neither money nor a publisher to back her.

The case was a huge embarrassment to the Houston Police Department because, among other reasons, Robert Angleton turned out to be one of its informants.

Leggett was jailed without bail (writing teachers are such a menace to society) after a secret hearing and could face 18 months in prison.

Look, this is pretty simple. The cops and the Justice Department have people with guns and badges and subpoenas and the entire criminal justice system to back them up. A journalist is a citizen with a notebook and a pencil — and in this case, a tape recorder, as well. Her lawyer, Mike DeGuerin, said, "The government is annexing the news media as investigative agents of the government by this process." Of course they are.

The case of Brian Dalton, 22, of Columbus, Ohio, reminds me of the late John Henry Faulk's dictum: We all think we're in favor of free speech, but actually defending it tends to make you "about as popular as a sick whore tryin' to get into the SMU School of Theology."

Oh good, now the civil liberties team has to defend a guy who has sick fantasies about molesting children — what a delightful assignment. Makes a nice change from the Nazis and the KKK.

Nevertheless, Dalton, who has never even been accused of actually molesting a child, was arrested for violation of probation after his parents turned his private journal over to his probation officer, hoping it would get the young man some mental treatment. Instead, he got seven years.

Dalton had pleaded guilty in 1998 to possession of pornographic photos of children and was then given probation. His crime this time was writing a fictional account of three children being kidnapped, caged in a basement and sexually tortured. According to those who have read it, this is sick stuff. Nevertheless, it does not involve real children and it was not intended for sale or distribution.

Dalton is doing seven years for what he thought about. His lawyer says the reason Dalton pleaded guilty to the probation violation is precisely so the contents of the journal would not be made public.

How many of us have said from time to time, "I'd like to hit that so-and-so," or, "I could just murder that SOB"? That doesn't make us guilty of assault or murder. Actual child pornography, involving photos or films of real children, is clearly harmful to the children and appropriately illegal. But the Ohio law under which Dalton was charged is both broad and vague.

If writing one's thoughts, no matter how sick, in a private journal is against the law, the First Amendment is in deep trouble.

Medical privacy cries out for common sense

Media attention has been focused on a patient's bill of rights to allow people denied treatment to sue their health plan or HMO.

JACK ANDERSON

Unknown to most voters is another fight on the medical front, and that is the one for the right to medical privacy. Rules written by the Clinton administration last year to increase "the culture of confidentiality" are being challenged by the medical profession as unrealistic and cumbersome. The health-care industry is waging a fight that doesn't capture headlines, but that significantly boosts the likelihood that the Clinton-era protections will be weakened.

The electronic age has made patients more aware of how a variety of interests, from medical specialists to insurance companies, can access their records. Never before has there been such a need to balance the necessary sharing of information with an equally necessary protection of privacy. If federal regulations are extreme, they could have an inhibiting effect on medical care, which relies on the compiling of information and statistics to make critical decisions about dispensing treatment. On the other hand, nobody wants medical or genetic information to be used against them unfairly in hiring or acquiring a mortgage, or in violating a personal zone of privacy.

Striking the right balance proved so difficult that Congress failed to act, which is why the task fell to Clinton's Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala. Given the complexity of the problem, Shalala made a good beginning in ruling that medical information could not be disclosed outside of a patient's plan without written permission from the patient. But there are all sorts of loopholes. If a medical plan contracts with a third party, such as a drug company, for example, information can be shared for marketing purposes. Over the next year, the Bush administration will be interpreting the Clinton rule and issuing guidance on its implementation.

Consumer advocates were nervous when the Bush administration initially said it would "review" the Clinton rule. But Bush had little room to roll back privacy protections after he was hammered for overturning Clinton's environmental policies, especially the one reducing arsenic in drinking water. The approach being used instead by the Bush administration is to respond to medical industry concerns and quietly alter the way privacy protections are interpreted in the marketplace. Stressed-out medical workers are Bush's first line of support. If you have visited a doctor lately, you may have noticed that your medical folder is placed facing the door of the examining room so that passersby cannot see your name. This is a minor inconvenience in a busy clinic. But there are other more invasive changes. Seriously ill patients who have signed papers indicating they do not wish to be resuscitated, for example, can no longer be identified as DNR on their hospital bracelet, denying medical personnel making split-second decisions the convenience of a quick glance.

Medical privacy is an area that cries out for common sense, yet it is rife with rumors and wild exaggeration. The Clinton rule prohibits unnecessary "oral communication," which is meant to discourage medical workers from discussing a case in an elevator where they could be overheard, for example. Industry lobbyists seeking to weaken the rule claim that this constraint could lead to government requirements for brick walls or soundproofing in emergency rooms and clinics.

The easy access of electronic records has hastened the debate over how much privacy a patient can realistically expect. It is possible with today's technology to prevent people from seeing medical records except on a need-to-know basis. Software is available that installs an audit trail so that everybody who comes in contact with a patient's record leaves a signal behind. So before we yearn for the good old days before computer sharing of information, we should point out that an electronic system is arguably more secure than a paper folder in a filing cabinet that anybody can rifle through.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal judge rejected a $1 billion damage award against tobacco giant Philip Morris as excessive. The judge offered a $280 million award instead — the largest award in an unusual lawsuit against a tobacco company.

Superior Court Judge Charles W. McCoy Thursday was in a quandary when he ruled on a motion by Philip Morris arguing for a punitive award of $1 billion. McCoy said the award would get a retrial. The judge said the punitive damages award was excessive for a cancer-stricken

The body recovered Thursday evening was buried by poor visibility at the Palace Inn Motel. One victim, an 8-year-old boy, had been under water for at least 30 minutes but was found in the green water, police officials said.

Law officers, paramedics and firefighters fully tried to revive three victims, including a 6-year-old boy and a 10-year-old girl. The children were taken to Shepherd Medical Center where they were pronounced dead. A fourth child was ordered to be buried.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Parents of a pregnant Jersey school teacher in a suicide bombing in Jerusalem condemn the act and called on the U.S. State to support defense efforts.

"In order to make a moral point, terrorists ordered our only daughter her future child," said Hayman, reading a statement Thursday. Hollywood home wife, Shifra, wept side. Judith Greenbaum, 31, of N.J., was among 10 killed when a Palestinian suicide bomber set off a nail-studded explosion inside a crowded early Thursday.

"She was there to the eternal home of the Jewish people," he said.

in reprisal

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. and British warplanes bombed three sites in Iraq today in response to increased efforts to increase air defenses to shield allied pilots, defense officials said.

It was the largest strike against Iraq since February.

Today's strike was carried out by about 20 British attack planes about 30 support aircraft, said Army Lt. Col. Campbell.

The U.S. plan launched from the carrier USS Enterprise the Persian Gulf, officials said, and the bases in the region. The official would describe in detail the support aircraft that flew from Saudi Arabia.

The planes struck a communications center, a surface-to-air launching site and a range radar — all of Iraq's integrated defense network.

Tobacco trial judge rules $3 billion in punitive damages excessive

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge rejected a record $3 billion damage award against tobacco giant Philip Morris as excessive and offered a dying smoker $100 million instead — still the largest award in an individual lawsuit against a tobacco company.

Superior Court Judge Charles W. McCoy's ruling Thursday was in response to a motion by Philip Morris arguing that the punitive award was excessive. McCoy said the company will get a retrial on the punitive damages only if the cancer-stricken plaintiff won't accept the $100 million settlement.

His ruling left both sides unhappy and the tobacco giant promising an appeal.

McCoy denounced Philip Morris' actions as "reprehensible in every sense of the word, both legal and moral."

The firm "refused to accept even a scintilla of responsibility for the harm it has done," the judge wrote in a 27-page ruling.

But the punitive damages a jury granted to Richard Boeken, 56, in June were far above the usual ratio of punitive to compensatory damages, he ruled.

Boeken, a lifelong smoker with lung cancer, was given until Aug. 24 to agree in writing to accept the $100 million settlement. The judge upheld an additional $5.54 million in compensatory damages for Boeken's medical expenses and lost earnings.

Boeken's attorney, Michael J. Piuze, said "we are grateful for having been afforded a fair trial" but disagree with the judge's decision to reduce punitive damages.

"Philip Morris was fined one week's earnings," he said. "This is the same as a $1,000 fine against a $50,000-a-year wage earner. Philip Morris truly was not punished enough. The punishment did not fit the crime."

Philip Morris, which argued that it will likely face similar cases and could not pay $3 billion to every plaintiff, said the entire case would be appealed.

"This case became an exercise in punishing an unpopular industry," William S. Ohlemeyer, company vice president and associate general counsel, said in a statement. "Our appeal will request a complete reversal and retrial on multiple grounds, not the least of which was the passion and prejudice the jury displayed in reaching its verdict."

"It's simply not believable that anyone living in America for the past 40 years could testify under oath that they were unaware of the risks of smoking."

Three children drown in motel pool

LONGVIEW (AP) — A Northeast Texas hotel's dirty swimming pool proved deadly for three children who drowned after a teenager left to watch the youngsters wandered away from the water.

The body recovery early Thursday evening was hampered by poor visibility in the Palace Inn Motel pool. One victim, an 8-year-old boy, had been underwater at least 30 minutes before he was found in the murky green water, police and witnesses said.

Law officers, paramedics and firefighters unsuccessfully tried to revive the three victims, including the boy's 6-year-old brother and a 10-year-old girl. The children were taken to Good Shepherd Medical Center where they were pronounced dead. Autopsies were ordered.

"The pool is so murky you can't see the bottom," said police Sgt. Shaun Pendleton said.

He said the victims' names were not yet released because all relatives had not been notified.

The children's 43-year-old mother, who spoke no English, did not learn of the deaths until she returned to the motel more than two hours after the drownings. The grief-stricken mother had to be hospitalized and restrained after she tried to hurt herself, police said.

The children's older sister, who had arrived at the motel before her mother, collapsed in tears after witnesses told the 20-year-old that the children had died. The family had been living in the Longview area, police said.

Pendleton told the Longview News-Journal that law officers traced the victims to a motel room where they found several young children, some of them in diapers, who appear to be related to the deceased children, possibly including siblings.

A total of eight children were living in the motel, said police Sgt. John Ray. All the children were in the custody Friday of Child Protective Services.

A police criminal investigations team was sent to the pool. But officers said it was standard procedure when an accidental drowning is reported.

One motel guest walking by the pool saw a child's body floating in the pool and, upon investigation, found a second body shortly before 6 p.m.

"We get there and think there are only two victims," said Ray.

However, a 14-year-old who had been left in charge of the children arrived later and told officers that three children had been swimming in the pool.

Parents mourn death of pregnant daughter murdered during suicide bombing in Israel

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Parents of a pregnant New Jersey school teacher killed in a suicide bombing in Jerusalem condemned the act and called on the United States "to support Israel's defense efforts."

"In order to make a political point, terrorists murdered our only daughter and her future child," said Alan Hayman, reading a brief statement Thursday at his Hollywood home as his wife, Shifra, wept at his side.

Judith Shoshana Greenbaum, 31, of Passaic, N.J., was among 15 people killed when a Palestinian suicide bomber detonated a nail-studded explosive inside a crowded pizzeria early Thursday.

"She was there to learn in the eternal home of the Jewish people," her father said.

"Israel must act to preserve the lives of its citizens and we hope that President Bush will support Israel's efforts to defend itself and its own people."

Islamic Jihad and Hamas, militant Palestinian groups that have been carrying out bomb attacks against Israel for years, both claimed responsibility for the bombing.

Greenbaum, who was four months pregnant, was finishing up a six-week visit during which she had been taking graduate classes in education. She was to have returned to the United States on Monday. Her husband, Shmuel, already had left.

"Now everyone's going to start feeling what happened in Israel," the couple's friend, Abraham Baruchov, told The Star-Ledger of Newark. "This brings it home."

The Haymans will miss their daughter's funeral in Israel on Friday because they couldn't make plane connections that would get them there in time. They will attend a memorial service later to place a stone at her grave, said Rabbi Marvin Hier, executive director of the Simon Wiesenthal Center.

Hier condemned the bombing as the work of "maniacs."

"The terrorists knew that families eat there," he said. "So who are they attacking? Women and children. ... That's who their war is against."

Warplanes bomb three sites in reprisal directed at Iraq

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. and British warplanes bombed three sites in southern Iraq today in response to increased efforts by Iraqi air defenses to shoot down allied pilots, defense officials said.

It was the largest allied strike against Iraq since February.

Today's strike was carried out by about 20 U.S. and British attack planes plus about 30 support aircraft, said Army Lt. Col. Steve Campbell.

The U.S. planes were launched from the aircraft carrier USS Enterprise in the Persian Gulf, another official said, and from land bases in the region which the official would not describe in detail. Some of the support aircraft apparently flew from bases in Saudi Arabia.

The planes struck a military communications center, a surface-to-air missile launching site and a long-range radar — all elements of Iraq's integrated air defense network, Campbell said.

"All of these targets were contributing to the effectiveness of the Iraqi air defense system," Campbell said.

The spokesman said he could not immediately provide other details.

All three targets were in southern Iraq, where U.S. and British planes have been enforcing a "no fly" zone since shortly after the end of the 1991 Gulf War to protect Shiite rebels against attacks by government forces.

Iraq in recent months has stepped up efforts to shoot down the allied planes patrolling "no fly" zones in both southern and northern Iraq.

At Incirlik air base in Turkey, where planes patrolling the northern zone are based, a spokesman said allied aircraft flew a patrol over northern Iraq today and Iraqi gunners opened fire with anti-aircraft guns and surface-to-air missiles but the aircraft did not strike back.

The best way to teach high standards to our children is by example

When I was a young man, I was very active in church functions. I attended meetings every Sunday and participated in programs endorsed by the Boy Scouts of America on weekdays.

During Sunday mornings, I was taught to foster Christlike attributes. I was taught to be prayerful, and to seek inspiration when faced with situations which required making important decisions.

I was taught the principles of patience and brotherly kindness; of being respectful and kind to others.

I was taught to be sensitive to others' needs, to be honest in my dealings with my fellow men, to respect young women and to avoid being too intimate before marriage.

I was taught the value of families and the qualities necessary to be a good parent.

I learned that even though I would sometimes fail to meet these high standards, I must make corrections in my life and continue to strive to be better.

During Scouting activities during the week, Christlike principles were re-enforced, such as being "trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent."

I learned to do a "good turn daily," to "be prepared," "to help other people at all times" and "to keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight."

When I was 19 years old, I served as a missionary in Argentina for two years. I learned the value of sacrifice by contributing my time, talents and financial resources for others.

All of the values I learned while participating in Scouting and Sunday church activities were put to good use during those two years.

There are many ways to serve others which are not as intense as serving a mission.

Beautifully our community, offering out time and talents in serving the needy and the elderly and showing kindness and friendship to others are but a few of the ways we can have a positive impact on our society.

On Nov. 12, 2001, Gordon B. Hinkley, president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, admonished the youth of the world these virtues: to "Be Your Best, Be Grateful, Be True,

Be Smart, Be Humble, Be Clean and to be Prayerful."

He told them that if they practiced these principles, they would be shielded from the evils of the world and they would have the capacity to be great and noble.

This is an age of great opportunities.

Never in the history of mankind has life been filled with so many opportunities and challenges.

Challenges have been experienced by every generation that has walked the face of the earth. As I reflect on my life, I realize the uplifting things I have been taught in church and through the scouting program have helped me be truly happy.

Being kind and honest to others alleviates hurt feelings and nurtures friendship; whereas, gossip and deceit harbor ill will to others.

If our youth learn to practice great and wholesome truths, they will become great leaders in our communities and in our nation.

If not, lives will continue to be shortened through acts of hatred and innocent people will continue to suffer.

Prisons will continue to absorb our very society.

As parents, we must teach high standards to our children.

The best way to teach them is through example.

May they see in us a God fearing and righteous people and may our children become a righteous generation.

Larry Dille is First Counselor in Bishopric of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Family contests estate bequest to spiritual healer

IRA, Vt. (AP) — Two weeks before she died, Llewella Day willed an estate worth an estimated $720,000 to a spiritual healer who calls herself "The Voice of the Spirit World."

Now Day's family is contesting the will, which left everything to Rosemary Altea, a healer and best-selling author.

A hearing was scheduled for Friday.

Day was 73 when she died Jan. 20, after a battle with cancer. She never married, and kept a farm and animals on 580 acres in Ira.

Her first will, drawn in April 2000, left her possessions and farm to family members and friends. But she filed another will Dec. 14, leaving the entire estate to Altea.

Court records do not indicate how Day came to know Altea. Peter Langrock, lawyer who drafted the final will, said he didn't know why Day changed her mind.

"I didn't cross-examine her," he said. "She knew what she wanted."

Peter Langrock, Altea's lawyer, said Day wanted her home to become a healing center administered by Altea.

"In many ways she looks at this inheritance as an albatross because in her mind it comes (with the condition that) the home be continued as a healing place," Langrock said. "My client feels she has an obligation to commit herself to that."

A corrosive shell disease is disfiguring lobsters from Cape Cod to Rhode Island

BOSTON (AP) — A new strain of a corrosive and fast-spreading bacteria is disfiguring lobsters from southern Cape Cod to Rhode Island.

The shell-eating bacteria does not affect the quality of the meat, but leaves lobster shells pitted, cracked and discolored, making the crustaceans a hard sell.

"If you saw this thing sitting in a tank, looking like it was hit by a blowtorch, you're not going to buy it," said Bruce Estrella, a biologist at the Massachusetts Department of Marine Fisheries.

Lobstermen fear the disease is affecting reproduction and weakening lobsters, making them more vulnerable to predators.

"We don't have a handle on what it's done," said Russ Wallis, 52, a Newport, R.I., lobsterman. "It is scary."

The disease is caused by the chitinolytic bacteria that eats chitin, a cellulose-like substance in lobster shells. It's been around for years, but now appears to be spreading more quickly than ever, Estrella said.

"It's a different strain of bacteria, more virulent and fast-moving," he said.

The first affected lobsters were found in Massachusetts near Woods Hole and the Elizabeth Islands in 1997. The disease now has spread north to the Cape Cod Canal, south to Martha's Vineyard and throughout Rhode Island's inshore waters.

Visualize and verbalize more of what you want and expect from others. You might be delighted by the results, or at least by another's efforts toward you this year. Your creativity remains unusually high; you find solutions with ease. Count on your ability to wow others. Your way with words attracts many. If you are single, you will tend to flirt up a storm and not be ready to settle down yet. Still, take a hard look at someone very special. If you are attached, the two of you need a fun outlet together. Take up a new sport or hobby and work on communication. LIBRA always responds to you.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 Others seek you out and lead you to do new things. Share more of what you would like. Let someone know how very serious you are. Seek out other resources, if possible. If one person doesn't support you, someone else will. Tonight: Accept an invitation out.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 Someone inspires you to plunge into work. Together, you seek answers involving finances and a partnership. You certainly gain a different perspective as a result of a discussion and research. Don't commit any of your funds, if possible. Tonight: Get some exercise.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 Many might find you very serious, but actually that might be just your act. You don't want everyone to know exactly what is going on with you. If single, a flirtation could develop into a lot more. Someone who has been difficult reverses his direction. Tonight: Add your personal touch to a relationship.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

 Family and a domestic issue take high priority. Check out property with care, if you're considering an investment. Dig into work with enthusiasm. You'll feel unusually gratified by what you accomplish. Take time for a walk or a brief workout at lunch. Tonight: Go for peace and quiet.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 Others, even a flaky friend, go out of their way for you! You get to see how much you are cared about. Let others know just how serious you are about a project or an issue. Your creativity finds a way to get you exactly what you want. Tonight: Visit with your pals.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 Be realistic about how much you can do. Go for financial gain and security. A family member agitates to get more. You don't need to get upset. Simply have a heart-to-heart conversation. Don't make anything harder than it needs to be. Tonight: Order in.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
 Your smiling ways draw others in. Someone might be more enamored of you than you realize. Before you start flirting, consider how you feel about this person. You're personality-plus right now, and others respond. Tonight: The world is your oyster.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
 Rather than taking action, sit back and see what others offer. Your nerves could be fried. As a result, you could be spending way too much. Take a deep breath and stop acting out. Tonight: Do your own thing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
 You have what it takes to hit a home run in any area of your life. Just go off and do it. Someone might not be reading you loud and clear, and vice versa.

Don't let confusion continue. Stop and have a much-needed discussion. Another might not be as optimistic as you, but he follows your lead. Tonight: Do only what you want!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

* Run with the ball. Your intuition tells you exactly how to reach the goal line. Don't leave details to chance, as you need to follow through with a key project. Capricorn identifies with work; this is particularly true now. Tonight: Make a must appearance.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
 Your ability to see what others can't distinguishes you. Share a vision as clearly as you can. Friends give constructive advice. A meeting proves to be unusually important as well. A child or a special friend might appear particularly somber. Tonight: Listen to favorite music.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
 Listen to feedback from a partner or a special friend. What this person wants is to make your life more worthwhile and more to your liking. A boss helps point you in the right direction. Don't test your limits. Zero in on what you want. Tonight: Togetherness counts.

Additional information doesn't help

Dear Ann Landers: I was married young and had a baby boy before divorcing my husband. although the marriage didn't last, I forged a strong bond with my mother-in-law. It continued after the divorce. When I remarried, "Mom" came to my wedding and rejoiced with me. She remained a strong and important presence in my life and in my son's life, as well.

ANN LANDERS

Last year, Mom was having trouble in her marriage and was considering divorce. Stupidly, I confessed that her husband had made several passes at me, thinking it would make her feel better about her decision to leave him. However, they reconciled, and from that day on, Mom shut me out of her life completely. She no longer calls or writes, and refuses to see her grandson, who is now 11 years old.

Yesterday, I stopped by her house while she was working in the yard. She said, "You are not welcome here. Get out." I left in tears, but at least I know where I stand. However, I don't know how she could do this to her grandson. I miss my friendship with my ex-mother-in-law, but I can get over it. I want to do what is best for my son. I cannot believe she no longer cares about the child. Should I keep sending her photos of him? Should I continue to hope she will come around and welcome us back into her life, or give up and move on? -- Unhealed in Massachusetts

Dear Unhealed: Keep sending the photos and hope time does its work. Beyond that, there's not much you can do. For my readers, there is a lesson here: When a wife (or husband) is having marital difficulties, it doesn't help for you to provide information that pours salt in the wound and makes the person feel like more of a fool. Remember, "A closed mouth gathers no feet."

Dear Ann Landers: A while ago, you printed a letter from "Too Busy in Virginia." She said her 10-year-old son had a playmate whose mother, "Lorna," insisted on hanging around whenever she dropped off her son to play. "Too Busy" couldn't figure out how to get rid of the pest. You said, "Be blunt." I was never brave enough to be blunt, so I came up with a different solution. I decided if my "Lorna" wanted to help, I would put her to work. I had her washing dishes, doing laundry and vacuuming the living room. The next time she brought her daughter over to play, she left promptly, citing several things she had to do.

Tell "Too Busy" to suggest that Lorna shell the peas, hoe the garden and wash the windows. It works like a charm. -- Having Fun in Colorado

Dear Fun in Colorado: A beautiful solution to a pesky problem -- far better than mine. Thank you.

Furyk, Henninger share early lead at Buick Open

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — A break from competition seems to be just what Jim Furyk needed.

Furyk, nursing a sore wrist since last October, is playing this week for the first time since missing the cut at last month's British Open.

Furyk shot an 8-under 64 Thursday at Warwick Hills to share the first-round lead with Brian Henninger in the Buick Open.

"I just have to be cautious that I don't play too much," Furyk said. "It's kind of hard right now because I'm so excited about playing."

Phil Mickelson was one stroke behind the leaders after missing a 6-foot putt on No. 18 for his only bogey.

Jean Van de Velde, Briny Baird,

John Cook, Steve Flesch, Ian Leggatt, David Peoples, Craig Perks and Kenny Perry were all at 66.

Mark O'Meara was among a group of 10 another stroke back.

While Furyk looks to win for the second time this year, he's seeking his third berth on the U.S. team.

"It's in the back of my mind, we are all human," Furyk said. "You can say just go ahead and forget about it and play golf, but you are thinking about it."

Furyk is 11th on the Ryder Cup points list.

The top 10 on the points list after next week's PGA Championship will automatically make the team, and captain Curtis Strange will add two other players.

Six of the top 10 players on the Ryder Cup points list are playing this week. The only player from fifth to 19th that took the week off was No. 7 Scott Hoch.

"I would definitely like to have a real strong finish here or next week," Furyk said, "and solidify a spot on the team and not have to try to rely or hope to be a captain's pick."

The average winning score at the Buick Open the past 10 years has been 17 under.

At least one player said this year's winner might need to be at least 20 under to take home the $558,000 first-place check.

Firm fairways after several 90-plus-degree days are making drives longer while soft greens, which obviously have been watered a lot, have encouraged players to shoot for pins.

"I think the golf course is much more difficult than the scores are showing," Mickelson said.

Furyk's 62 in the second round of the 1995 Buick Open set the tournament record, which Sonny Skinner tied two years later. His only win this season was at the Mercedes Championship on Jan. 14.

Henninger won a tournament in 1994 and another in 1999, but to say he has struggled this year would be an understatement.

He has made just four cuts in 20 outings, and his best finish was a tie for 26th at the Houston Open.

Forsan veterans prepare for battle

By DOUG LAW
Sports Editor

FORSAN — After enduring a difficult 2000 football season, the Forsan Buffaloes' roster is loaded with returning varsity players as they prepare for today's first workout in pads.

"The kids have worked hard in the off-season and if we get over the hump early and stay healthy, we can be in the thick of things," said Steve Park, who returns to the Buffaloes helm after a two-year hiatus.

The Buffaloes have a strong group of returners and nearly half the team will boast varsity experience.

Forsan failed to notch a win a district game last season, ending at 0-5 in powerful District 2-2A, but some of the games could have gone either way, Park said.

"Coahoma beat us by four points and there were a lot of close games," Park said.

The Buffs found themselves in the strongest Class 2A districts.

The Buffs will travel to Coleman where they will play May High School in their first scrimmage at 6 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 18.

The Forsan squad will then go to Wink to play Fort Davis at 6 p.m. Friday, Aug. 24.

Forsan will open the regular season at 8 p.m. Friday, Aug. 31, in Grape Creek.

Colorado City won District 2-2A last year and Stanton, the 2-2A runner-up, reached the state semifinals. Park says he expects the district to be just as tough this time around.

Forsan has lots of experience up front with returning linemen like guards Donny Allen and Josh Bedwell, senior center Billy Kinsey and tackles Brad

The Forsan Buffaloes are getting ready for West Texas football wars. Nearly half the team brings varsity experience to the field and they have good speed. The Buffs' first scrimmage is 6 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 18, against May at Coleman. Their first regular season game will be at Grape Creek at 8 p.m. Friday, Aug. 31.

Gillihan and Billy Reid.

Most of the Buffs are expected to play on both sides of the ball.

Senior quarterback Matt Harrison and junior Robert Gomez will see action as defensive tackles to give some of the offensive linemen a breather.

"Cody Bryant looks good at linebacker and should give Kinsey and Gillihan a rest," Park said.

Forsan is in good shape in the kicking game as well. Park expects to use Matt Ellis for kickoffs, while Josh Helmstetter will be used for conversions and field goals.

Other returning veterans include senior end and defensive back Zach Johnson, tailbacks Wes Longorio and Cody Lefever, senior wide receiver Chance Wagoner and senior fullback Billy Acosta.

Johnson was a honorable mention all-district pick last year as a defensive back. "The boys have good chemistry and are close," Park said. "Gillihan was all-district last year as a tackle and our center, Kinsey, was an honorable mention pick. Allen was an all-district defensive back, but will be playing guard."

Bedwell will play both ways, working as a guard on offense and defensive end.

Forsan will make other changes to toughen up the team. Longorio was a linebacker last year, but will be moved to handle the mobile, free safety spot.

A hard-hitting Forsan duo, Kinsey and Gillihan, are switching from the defensive tackle spots they played last season to linebacker.

"They're good quality kids," Park said. "I'll probably run Acosta as a linebacker on defense."

Longorio was a dependable ground-gainer for the Buffaloes last season, and Johnson should provide strength at wide receiver, using his his 6-2 frame to good advantage.

Longorio rushed for 1,115 yards as a sophomore. The 195-pound tailback averaged 5.9 yards per carry.

The Buffaloes have a good thing going at quarterback with two solid athletes, senior Matt Reyna and Helmstetter, a sophomore, capable of spearheading the offense.

"Reyna has good 4.6-second speed and throws well while Helmstetter has a strong arm," Park said. "It always makes for better competition when someone else is pushing you. We'll have big tight end Matt Ellis back from last year's junior varsity team. He's got a lot of talent and good hands."

Junior David Lee could give defensive backs fits when he gets into patterns, since Park says he's "the quickest player we have in the first 20 yards."

Rangers improve, win 7-3

ARLINGTON (AP) — Rick Helling was just good enough to halt a couple of negative streaks by the Texas Rangers.

Helling allowed two runs in 6 2-3 innings as the Rangers beat the Detroit Tigers for the first time this season and halted a six-game losing streak with a 7-3 victory Thursday night.

"It was one of those nights where I just grinded through it," Helling said. "We got a couple of quick runs and I was able to make some pitches to get out of trouble."

Helling was in trouble in the seventh when the Tigers loaded the bases with two outs and the Rangers in front 6-1.

Helling walked Robert Fick to force in a run. Fick's bid for a grand slam earlier in the at-bat sailed foul by only a few feet.

"It didn't look like it was going to go fair," Tigers manager Phil Garner said. "It didn't look like it was going to happen."

Rangers manager Jerry Narron visited the mound before Fick's at-bat to see if Helling had anything left.

"He said he wasn't tired, so I kept him in," Narron said. "He competes as well as any pitcher in baseball. Whenever he pitches, he does a good job. Every time he goes out there, you feel like you have a very good chance to win."

Juan Moreno relieved after Fick's walk and struck out Bobby Higginson to end the inning.

Helling (9-9) kept the Rangers in check. Detroit had 21 hits and a 13-run ninth inning in tak-

Johnson gets third world title with 110 hurdles win

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Allen Johnson sent the hurdles flying and bulldozed his way to victory, just like old times.

Johnson returned to the top in the 110-meter hurdles with his third world championship Thursday night, defeating 2000 Olympic gold medalist Anier Garcia of Cuba.

The victory followed four years of struggle against injuries after Johnson won his second world championship in 1997 and the Olympic gold medal in 1996.

"The statement I made is that I decide when I'm finished," he said.

"Any time I'm on the track, any time I'm healthy, I'm the one to beat."

Johnson won in 13.04 seconds, the fastest time in the world this year. Garcia was second in 13.07.

Johnson broke out of the blocks ahead, but unlike the finals in Sydney, was able to hold off the powerful Cuban at the finish.

He called it the greatest victory of his career, better than his Olympic win or his world championships in 1995 and 1997.

"I've had so many disappointments the past couple of years I felt like I really, really had something to prove this time," he said.

Johnson knocked down seven hurdles, but could not have cared less. When he won in Atlanta, he knocked down all 10.

The victory earned the 30-year-old hurdler an automatic berth in the 2003 World Championships in Paris.

"I hope that can set me up, because Athens is the year after that," he said. "That's the main thing that I want to focus on now — getting back to the Olympics, and trying to be a gold medalist again."

Marion Jones showed plenty of power, too, with a victory in her semifinal heat of the women's 200 meters in 22.40 seconds.

Dethroned as world champion in the 100 on Monday, she will seek her first world 200 title Friday night. She pulled up with a lower back strain in the 200 semis at the 1999 worlds.

"One escaped me so far in these games," Jones said. "I'm going to do my darndest not to let this one slip through my fingers."

Bonds, Griffey keep mum on milestone home runs

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

How Barry Bonds and Ken Griffey Jr. felt about their milestone homers when the San Francisco Giants played the Cincinnati Reds is anyone's guess.

Griffey became the youngest player to hit 450 home runs, and Bonds topped that feat by becoming the fastest to reach 49 homers in a season, leading the Giants to a 6-4 victory over the Reds on Thursday night.

Neither player was interested in talking about their accomplishments.

Griffey's two-run homer in the first inning off Russ Ortiz (13-6) made him the youngest to reach 450. He was also the youngest to reach 350 and 400.

The 31-year-old shrugged off his place in baseball history.

"I don't think it's that big to everybody else," Griffey said. "I don't think about that. I think about what I have to do to help the ball club win, and the guys who came before me can't help me."

Bonds, who has hit seven homers in his last 12 games, matched his career high for homers set last season with his tiebreaking solo homer in the third inning off loser Scott Winchester (0-2).

Bonds' total of 49 in 115 games is five games fewer than Sammy Sosa needed to get there in 1999 and well ahead of Mark McGwire's pace during the 1998 season, when he hit a record 70 homers. McGwire had 46 after 115 games.

Bonds short-circuited inquiries about his homer binge.

"Go on to something else," Bonds said.

In other National League games, it was New York 4, Milwaukee 3; Florida 3, Arizona 1; San Diego 6, Philadelphia 2; Colorado 14, Chicago Cubs 5; St. Louis 9, Montreal 6; Pittsburgh 8, Los Angeles 5; and Houston 6, Atlanta 5.

In American League games, it was Minnesota 6, Cleveland 4; Kansas City 6, Baltimore 4; Texas 7, Detroit 3; Toronto 6, Seattle 5 and Anaheim 3, Chicago 2.

John Vander Wal, Edwards Guzman and Jeff Kent also hit solo shots for San Francisco, which moved into second place in the NL

West with their 12th win in 14 games.

"Usually, it's OK to give up a solo home run or two, but four is too many," said Winchester, who gave up nine hits in five innings.

For Cincinnati, Adam Dunn and Kelly Stinnett hit solo homers.

Rockies 14, Cubs 5

Sosa hit three home runs, and Mike Hampton tied the NL record for pitchers with his seventh homer as Colorado completed a three-game sweep of Chicago.

Sosa hit his 38th, 39th and 40th homers before he was replaced after homering in the seventh inning.

ing a 19-6 victory over the Rangers on Wednesday. Helling allowed eight hits while earning his fourth victory in his last five decisions.

The Rangers avoided their first-ever season series sweep by an American League opponent. Detroit won the first eight games between the teams heading into the last meeting of the season Thursday.

The Rangers have never gone winless for the season against an AL team in their 30-year history.

"There's no question in my mind that we are a better team than the Tigers, but for some reason they had our number this year," said Rangers DH Frank Catalanotto, who went 4-for-5 against his former team.

"We haven't showed it. It seems like there's one team every year that has your number." Ivan Rodriguez homered and doubled for the Rangers, who had matched their longest losing streak of the season. Randy Velarde went 3-for-5 for Texas.

Higginson's third-inning RBI single gave Detroit a 1-0 lead, but Texas tied it in the third on Alex Rodriguez's run-scoring infield single.

Rodriguez drove in his 100th run to set the club record for RBIs by a shortstop. The previous record of 99 was set by Kevin Elster in 1996.

Texas snapped a 1-1 tie with a three-run fourth on Mike Lamb's RBI double and Velarde's two-run single.

The Rangers knocked out Detroit starter Steve Sparks (8-7) in the fifth on Ivan Rodriguez's 22nd homer of the season and Gabe Kapler's sacrifice fly, stretching Texas' lead to 6-1.

Sparks allowed six runs and 11 hits in 4 2/3 innings. Rafael Palmiero's RBI single in the ninth made it 7-2.

Damion Easley's leadoff homer, his 10th, in the ninth off Jeff Zimmerman pulled Detroit to 7-3.

Notes: The temperature was 100 degrees when the game started. Alex Rodriguez has driven in 100 or more runs in four straight seasons. Ivan Rodriguez had his 100th career homer at The Ballpark in Arlington. Sparks has lost four of his last five starts. He has allowed 14 runs and 18 hits in his last nine innings.

semis. Debbie Ferguson of the Bahamas won her heat in 22.39.

Defending champion Inger Miller, plagued by injuries, failed to advance. Dmitry Markov, a former Russian now competing for Australia, won the pole vault at 19 feet, 10 inches. Only Sergei Bubka has gone higher.

"It was great," Markov said. "It was fun, because when you are over six meters (19-8), you can fly." A former Belarus vaulter, Aleksandr Averbukh, now competing for Israel, was second, and Olympic gold medalist Nick Hysong of the United States took the bronze. Both cleared 19-2, but Averbukh won the silver on fewer misses.

Olympic gold medalist Konstadinos Kederis of Greece bettered a depleted 200 field to win in 20.04.

Among the prominent sprinters absent was Maurice Greene, who strained a hamstring winning the 100 championship on Sunday.

At 34, Gail Devers began her bid for a sixth world championship — and her fourth in the 110-meter hurdles — with a victory in her heat in 12.72 seconds. Devers, who failed to finish the semifinals at the Sydney Olympics, has run only four races this year and won just one.

with Chicago trailing by nine runs on a humid, 92-degree day at Wrigley Field. He has 426 for his career, tying him with current Cubs first base coach Billy Williams for 30th in baseball history.

It was the third three-homer game of Sosa's career and his seventh multihomer game this season.

Hampton (12-8), who also had an RBI single, homered off Felix Heredia in the sixth. His seventh homer matched the NL mark for a pitcher shared by Don Drysdale (1958, 1965) and Don Newcombe (1955). The major league record is nine by Cleveland's Wes Ferrell in 1931.

Padres 6, Phillies 2 San Diego avoided a three-game sweep by winning at Philadelphia in a game where the on-field temperature reached 148.7 degrees.

Damian Jackson, who entered 1-for-23 lifetime against Phillies starter Omar Daal (10-4), finished with four hits. He scored three runs and drove in two as the Padres snapped a three-game losing streak.

The Phillies remained two games behind NL East-leading Atlanta.

Kevin Jarvis (9-9) surrendered a homer to Jimmy Rollins on his first pitch of the game. One out later, Scott Rolen hit his 12th homer.

Marlins 3, Diamondbacks 1 Jeff Abbott drove in the tiebreaking run with a bloop single with two outs in the eighth inning as Florida beat Arizona.

The Marlins, who took the series 2-1, have won eight of their past nine home series. The Diamondbacks lost for the ninth time in 13 games.

Pirates 5, Dodgers 5 Brian Giles homered and missed hitting for the cycle by a single as Pittsburgh ended a seven-game losing streak against division-leading Los Angeles.

Craig Wilson, making a second straight start, also hit a three-run homer as the Pirates ended the Dodgers' four-game overall winning streak.

The Pirates won the first game of the season series April 24 in Los Angeles, lost the next seven, then won the final game Thursday at PNC Park. Chan Ho Park (11-8) is the only Dodgers pitcher to lose to them this season.

Todd Ritchie (9-10) won his third straight, allowing 10 hits and five runs — four earned — in 5 1/3 innings.

Astros 6, Braves 5 Orlando Merced, filling in for the injured Moises Alou, had a run-saving catch in the sixth and hit an RBI single in the top of the ninth inning to lift Houston to victory at Atlanta.

The Astros scored the tying run in the eighth before third baseman Chipper Jones' throwing error led to an unearned run in the ninth against Kerry Ligtenberg (1-3).

The Astros moved within 1 1/2 games of the Chicago Cubs in the NL Central.

Mets 4, Brewers 3 Joe McEwing homered leading off the bottom of the seventh inning as New York beat Milwaukee, completing its second series sweep of the season.

McEwing, who also singled in a run, hit his sixth homer off Mike DeJean (3-2).

Al Leiter (7-9) worked 7 1/3 innings, allowing three runs on five hits. Rick White earned his second save in as many chances.

Cardinals 9, Expos 6 Matt Morris won on his 27th birthday, and Craig Paquette drove in three runs to lead St. Louis past host Montreal.

Kerry Robinson and Mike Mordecai each had a career-high four hits.

Cowboys expect they'll work a little harder in cooler California

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — As Dallas Cowboys tight end Jackie Harris walked off the field after another sweltering practice at Wichita Falls, he pondered a dilemma being created by an unusual mid-camp move.

After nearly three weeks at Midwestern State, where they endured nearly 100-degree temperatures almost daily, the Cowboys broke camp there Thursday. They move next week to Oxnard, Calif., where it will be about 30 degrees cooler.

"We're going to have to be creative on how you can break a good sweat out there," said Harris, the team's oldest player at 33. "The heat, I guess you kind of adjust after a while. It sounds crazy and maybe it's the heat talking, but I'll kind of miss it."

But the Cowboys appeared drained at the beginning of the last season after a full camp in Wichita Falls. They opened with a 41-14 loss at home to Philadelphia, and went on to a 5-11 record, their worst since the 1-15 mark in 1989.

There were really no plans to return to Wichita Falls for the fourth year in a row until a planned facility in the Rio Grande Valley failed to materialize. The Cowboys came back with a slight twist, instead of a full camp of five weeks or more, they stayed only three.

"The only concern I have is the continuity of training camp," coach Dave Campo said. "But I don't think it's a problem. It's an experiment and we're looking forward to seeing how it will go."

Campo said the heat of Wichita Falls builds a mental discipline in the team. He expects the move to a cooler climate will refresh players and lead to solid workouts.

"Sometimes you might get the feeling that training camp's over, but it's not over," Campo said. "In fact, the toughest work in my opinion is going to be in the next two weeks. There's a lot of football left to be accomplished. In those conditions, we should be crisper and we should be going into it fresher."

Before going to California, the Cowboys play their second preseason game Saturday at home against Denver. Dallas lost 21-14 at Oakland last weekend.

Defensive back George Teague, a part of all four Wichita Falls camps, believes the westward move will be a plus for the Cowboys.

"I think it's going to help us recover a little bit, and not get beat down by the sun and the heat," Teague said.

When the Cowboys gathered at the end of their final practice at Wichita Falls on Thursday morning, the several hundred fans in attendance began to applaud. They don't know if it was a final good-bye.

The situation was exactly the same for the Cowboys a year ago.

Like he was last year, Cowboys owner Jerry Jones is noncommittal about future camps. Jones said a decision won't be made until at least the middle of this season.

"We're not beyond this training camp. Midwestern has really been accommodating," Jones said. "We've had great experiences in Austin, so Austin is never out of our mind as far as a place in the future we might consider. As for next year, we've made no steps."

Allen, Elway head list of enshrinees for college football's Hall of Fame

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — If not for a few injuries at Southern Cal in 1978, Marcus Allen's only runs with the football might have come on interceptions and fumble recoveries.

The first college player to rush for more than 2,000 yards in a season wasn't recruited by the Trojans as a running back. Allen went to Southern Cal as a defensive back.

And he wasn't moved to offense because of his elusive running ability or his pass-catching ability. He was switched to fullback so he could block for Charles White.

"Who knows what would have happened if I'd have stayed a defensive back?" Allen said.

He's happy, though, with the way things turned out. He'll be enshrined into the College Football Hall of Fame on Saturday, along with former Stanford quarterback John Elway, Nebraska wingback Johnny Rodgers and 22 other players and coaches.

Among the coaches are Terry Donahue of UCLA and Forest Evashevski of Hamilton, Washington State and Iowa.

Most of the group already was officially inducted into the hall in December 2000 during a banquet in New York. Dick Duden, an end for Navy, and the late John Outland, a tackle at Kansas and Penn, were inducted earlier this year.

The news about being elected to the hall came as a surprise to Allen. It's not that he doesn't feel he's deserving. After all, he set 14 NCAA records and tied two others.

It's just that he assumed he already was in.

"College just seems so long ago," he said. "I've gotten so many awards and things that I just kind of forgot that I wasn't already in the college hall of fame."

Allen had an outstanding pro career with the Raiders and Chiefs. The Super Bowl MVP in 1984, he was the first NFL back to gain both 10,000 yards rushing and 5,000 yards receiving, retiring in 1997 with 12,243 yards on the ground.

He still remembers the college game fondly, though. "It was still a game then. When you turn pro, it all changes. It becomes a business," he said. "College football is business, too, but to the players it's still a game."

The game Allen best remembers is his final regular-season game against UCLA. Allen carried the ball 40 times for 219 yards, but fumbled three times before scoring the go-ahead touchdown. The Trojans won 21-20 when nose guard George Achica blocked a 46-yard field-goal attempt with 4 seconds left to knock the Bruins out of the Rose Bowl.

"I went from being the goat to being the hero just like that," Allen said. Others who will be enshrined Saturday are offensive tackle Dan Dierdorf (Michigan, 1968-70); center-linebacker Kurt Burris (Oklahoma, 1951-54); end Bob Dove (Notre Dame, 1940-42); defensive back Michael Haynes (Arizona State, 1972-75); defensive back Terry Hoage (Georgia, 1980-83); tackle Stan Jones (Maryland, 1951-53); halfback Johnny Musso (Alabama, 1969-71); line-backer-fullback Joe Schmidt (Pittsburgh, 1950-52); guard Harley Sewell (Texas, 1950-52); defensive end Billy Ray Smith (Arkansas, 1979-82); and tailback Ernie Talboom (Wyoming, 1948-50).

Players from smaller schools are quarterback Doug Williams (Grambling, 1974-77); defensive end Jim Haslett, who now coaches the New Orleans Saints (Indiana of Pennsylvania, 1975-78); defensive back-halfback Gordie Lockbaum (Holy Cross, 1984-87); quarterback-defensive back Bill Redell (Occidental, 1962-63); wide receiver Freddie Scott (Amherst, 1971-73); and coaches Joseph Fusco of Westminster College and Ace Mumford of Jarvis Christian College, Bishop College, Texas College and Southern University.

Vikings in Texas, trying to shift focus to football

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Chris Liwienski knows the spotlight is on him.

He's stepping into the offensive tackle spot that belonged to Corey Stringer before the big Minnesota Vikings lineman collapsed after a practice in Mankato, Minn. on July 31 and died on Aug. 1 of heatstroke.

Liwienski will be in the starting lineup Saturday night in the Alamodome when the Vikings play their first preseason game in the Alamodome against the New Orleans Saints, their first competition since losing their friend.

"It's some crazy circumstances that I'm playing right tackle," Liwienski said following Thursday's workout in the Alamodome.

"I did have the starting job at left guard before the tragedy with Big K (Stringer). There is definitely some big shoes to fill out there but I'm confident in my ability."

"We are going to be all right." The Vikings have been trying to get back to football business since the tragedy but it's been difficult to put aside their feelings for Stringer. They'll workout Friday before Saturday's game.

"I think the team has really pulled together," Liwienski said. "We are more unified now more than ever. We are going through this thing together. The adversity has brought us together. I don't think anybody is throwing in the season."

"Everyone wants to accomplish the same goals we set before. We are working our way towards that."

The Vikings will go into the game without the benefit of a scrimmage against live opposition.

"We're way behind," offensive coordinator Sherm Lewis said. "The thing we miss most, and I'm sure it'll show up Saturday, is that we've had no hitting. We're football players. The season's not going to be canceled. They understand that."

The Vikings will keep Stringer's locker open in Minnesota and the players planned to wear his No. 77 on their jerseys in Saturday's game. There has been no immediate decision how the team may additionally honor their fallen comrade.

"It's big to get back out there after what we've been through and to get some work done," quarterback Daunte Culpepper said. "It's just sad everything that's happened, but we've got to push through and we've got to be mature. That's what Corey would want us to do."

The Vikings don't expect to escape the Stringer tragedy just by leaving Minnesota.

"I think wherever we go right now there will be a big crowd based on what has happened over the last couple of weeks," wide receiver Cris Carter said.

We love it when people say nice things about us. Golf Digest recently listed Alabama's Robert Trent Jones Golf Trail among the top 50 golf destinations in the world!

And in its current Places to Play ratings, Golf Digest gave most of the Trail's 21 courses 4 stars—and some even got 4½. Not bad when you consider that 5 stars only go to those once-in-a-lifetime courses. And all of the Trail's courses got top honors for service.

Frequent Flyer Magazine listed us among its top 10 trips in the world and The New York Times called us "...some of the best public golf on earth."

Golf Magazine listed THE SENATOR course at our new Capitol Hill location among its top new courses in the country and THE LEGISLATOR course in the top 25 newcomers. And wait until you see THE JUDGE!

So, we hope you'll understand when, like all good golfers, we like to brag about our scores.
