CRAWFORD (AP) - The last time President Bush vacationed at his ranch, he wrestled with thorny issue embryonic stem cell research. He arrived at his Texas home Wednesday faced with decisions that make last summer seem like a simpler time.

Even before he landed in Texas, Bush was working the phone on Air Force One to confront a crisis. With economy skidding the collapse Argentina, Bush called the leaders of three Latin American countries Mexico, Chile and Uruguay to discuss the matter. Once on the ranch, he took a happy-holidays call from Russian President Vladimir Putin.

The president must consider the next target in the war on terrorism, the fate of American Taliban fighter John Walker Lindh and how to jump-start the econo-

He also must decide whether to circumvent the Democrat-controlled Senate and install polarizing nominees at the Labor and State departments. The Senate refused to vote on Otto Reich and Eugene Scalia before leaving for recess last week. So-called recess appointments by Bush would inflame tensions between the White House and the Senate.

The president plans to keep a low profile on the ranch for the remainder of the holidays, when many Americans are absorbed in family gatherings.

He will receive daily briefings by videoconference each day, but plans few public appearances outside of a trip to Austin, Texas, next week, adviser Hughes said. He is likely to make an out-of-state trip in early January.

Neglected area youth soon to have a court created just for them

By DEBBIE L. JENSEN

The abused and neglected children of the Crossroads area will soon have a court created specifically to serve their needs. After the first of the year, the Child Protection Court of the Permian Basin will begin hearing those cases from a 13-county area including Howard, Martin and Glasscock counties. District Judge Dean Rucker of Midland organized an effort to create the "cluster court" through the Texas Court Improvement Project.

The presiding judge, Sylvia A. Chavez of Midland, will hear all cases brought by the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services (TDPRS), traveling to each county as hearings are

"There is a growing number of abuse and neglect cases; that's the case statewide and certainly the case regionally," Rucker, who is the administrative judge for the Seventh Judicial Region of Texas. "This court's whole focus will be on these cases.

Rucker said attending to the needs of these cases and assuring all deadlines are met becomes difficult for judges, already strapped with criminal and civil mat-

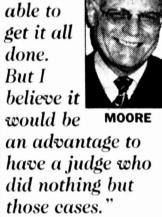

Chavez will be charged with seeing that the statemandated deadlines are met in each case, at the same time bringing a sense of consistency to the cases.

"The judge appointed to handle these cases becomes something of an expert,' Rucker said.

In addition, she will become familiar with the resources available in each county to serve families involved.

District Judge Robert Moore, who presides over the 118th Judicial District of Howard, Glasscock and Martin counties, said the court could help relieve a sometimes crowded docket.

"I've been able to get it all done," he said. "But I believe it would be an advantage to have a judge who did nothing but those cases.'

Along with TDPRS matters, Moore's court also handles civil cases such as divorces, general lawsuits and child custody hearings, along with criminal trials and arraignments. His courtroom has also been used regularly for child support hearings brought by the attorney general.

Cases brought by TDPRS through Child Protective Services require strict adherence to deadlines.

For example, the first hearing must be scheduled within 14 days of the children being removed from the home, and the final hearing can occur no more than one year after the date of the case's inception.

Rucker said most of the cases begin with the removal of the child from a home for suspected abuse or neglect.

That order would most likely continue to be handled by Moore, who would

Latest report says bin Laden may be in Pakistan

Twenty suspected al-Qaida fighters who fled the area of eastern Afghanistan where Osama bin Laden may have been hiding have been transferred to a U.S. Marine detention center, a Pentagon spokeswoman said Thursday.

Meantime, a spokesman for the Afghan Defense Ministry said bin Laden is believed to be in a border area of Pakistan with friends of a Pakistani religious party leader. A party spokesman said the report was baseless.

The new prisoners at the Marine base in Kandahar were captured in Pakistan, where dozens of al-Qaida members fled amid heavy fighting in Afghanistan's Peleliu in the Arabian Sea. Tora Bora region earlier this month. American officials say the prisoners could have useful information in the hunt for bin Laden and the rest of the anti-terrorism campaign, Pentagon spokeswoman Victoria Clarke

"We want to talk to them pretty thoroughly," Clarke said, adding that the interrogations would be performed by "a variety of U.S. officials, including military."

The new prisoners bring to 45 the number of detainees held by U.S. forces. Eight, including American Taliban fighter John Walker Lindh, are being held on the USS

The rest are at the Marine base at Kandahar's airport in a facility built to hold up to several hundred people.

The military is considering several sites to hold prisoners captured during the war in Afghanistan, Clarke said. She said the Defense Department has not decided whether to use the base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, to hold some of the prisoners. The Defense Department does not have a copy of a newly aired videotape of bin Laden, Clarke said. The tape does not offer any obvious clues to bin Laden's whereabouts — or even whether he is alive or dead.

Ministry spokesman, Mohammad Abeel, said bin Laden is believed to be in Pakistan with associates of Maulana Fazal-ur Rehman, leader of the Jamiat Ulemaé-Islam party. Abeel did not divulge the source of his information. The party, which is sympathetic to Afghanistan's deposed Taliban militia, is supported in parts of Pakistan's North West Frontier and Baluchistan provinces, both of which border Afghanistan.

Riaz Durrani, central information secretary for Jamiat Ulema-e-Islam, dismissed the report. "We support the Taliban, but never had any connection with The Afghan Defense Osama bin Laden," he said.

"Maulana Fazal-ur Rehman is under detention for the last three months. How can he or his party do this?"

U.S. intelligence hasn't reported picking up any credible signs of bin Laden's location in about two weeks. and his statements on the tape suggest it may have been made just before he disappeared.

In excerpts from the tape aired on the Arabic TV network al-Jazeera Wednesday, bin Laden said he was speaking three months after the Sept. 11 attacks and two months after the United States started striking Afghanistan, which was Oct. 7. He also mentioned a Nov. 16 U.S. airstrike in Khost, Afghanistan, as having occurred several days before.

Bin Laden hails the Sept. 11 hijackings as a "blessed attack against the international infidels."

White House spokesman Scott McClellan dismissed the tape. "This is nothing more than the same kind of terrorist propaganda we've heard before." He and Clarke said they did not know whether government analysts had determined when the tape was made.

The videotape surfaced amid increasing speculation about bin Laden's possible death. The terrorist leader appears gaunt, pale and uncomfortable on the tape and does not move his left Pakistan said today it wants to defuse the crisis and would pursue diplomatic efforts. Still, government spokesman Gen. Rashid Queresh! Pakistan still has "the capacity to react and retaliate in all conceivable ways" — though he said a nuclear confrontation was "unthinkable."

In Washington, Secretary of State Colin Powell called leaders on both sides Wednesday, urging them to tion and resolve their differences through dialogue.

China — a powerhouse neighboring both nation's also said Thursday that it was "deeply worried" by India-Pakistan tensions and called for "dialogue and consultations" to keep stability.

Fears have risen over the prospect of a new conflict between the two countries after India accused Pakistan of sponsoring a Dec. 13 gun attack on Parliament in New Delhi that killed 14 people. Islamabad denies the charge.

Singh said the ban on Pakistani overflights would take effect Tuesday while the cuts in embassy staffs would take place within two days. The remaining Pakistani embassy staff would be restricted to the capital, New Delhi, he said.

The Pakistani embassy, or High Commission, was "involved in espionage as well as direct dealings with terrorist organizations," Singh told reporters without giving any specifics. India had already withdrawn its ambassador Islamabad.

The overflight ban will likely cause new damage to order banning bus and train service.

The new measures were approves in a session of India's Cabinet Committee that considered political and economic sanctions aimed at pressuring Pakistan to shut down two Islamic militant groups that New Delhi blames for the Parliament attack. Singh said the new steps were necessary because India's concerns "have not been fully grasped in Pakistan." Islamabad has frozen the assets of one of the groups and arrested some of its members, but Singh dismissed those moves as insufficient.

India's defense minister said earlier that his country's troops would be fully deployed along the 1,110mile border with Pakistan by the weekend.

"In the next two to three days, the deployment process will be completed and the forces will be ready for any eventuality,' Defense Minister George Fernandes told Press Trust of India.

coming on top of India's launchers toward the border, the frontier was relatively calm Thursday, officials said.

A Pakistani military spokesman said there were no exchanges of fire, but that Pakistan had matched India's troop buildup. Witnesses in Karachi, Pakistan, said Thursday that anti-aircraft guns had been deployed at the port and other major installations.

There was no indication that either side had deployed nuclear weapons, which are believed to be stored unassembled.

"Pakistan has been exercising maximum restraint and utilizing diplomatic channels," said Aziz Ahmed Khan, a spokesman for Pakistan's Foreign Ministry. He said President Gen. Pervez Musharraf was willing to talk with India's prime minister, raising the possibility that the two might meet at a summit in Nepal next week.

Woman runs over husband, dies

LUBBOCK (AP) - A woman ran over her husband during an altercation Wednesday, then died when she lost control of her car and crashed into a tree in a rural area just east of Lubbock, police said.

Trina Richardson, 34, died at the crash site in her 1993 Cadillac DeVille, Lubbock Police Sgt. Greg Gregg said. "She went airborne after crossing a high intersection, then slid sideways before hitting a tree," Gregg said. Her husband, L.D. Richardson Jr., 39, was taken to Covenant Medical Center in Lubbock with a cut on his head, and a possible broken arm and broken leg, Gregg

The altercation apparently began while the two were driving in separate cars. L.D. Richardson got out of his car and began walking toward his wife's car at an intersection when she accelerated into him, Gregg said.

When an officer arrived, Trina Richardson took off, Gregg said. The officer chased her but only got within about a half-mile when she crashed, Gregg said.

Longtime newsman/anchor dies

DALLAS (AP) — Chip Moody, a television newsman and anchor whose career in Texas spanned 30 years, died Wednesday at Baylor University Medical Center in Dallas after a lengthy illness. He was 54.

Born in Oakland, Calif., Robert Phelps Moody II, a 1970 graduate of Baylor University, had worked at stations in Waco, El Paso, Houston and Dallas-Fort Worth. His last job was with WFAA-TV in the Dallas-Fort Worth market, where Moody had worked as an anchor since late 1987. Co-anchor Tracy Rowlett, who left WFAA in 1999 to join KTVT-TV, said his former colleague was "such a big "He had such charisma and it was just infectious.

There's just a void when you turn on the television set and he's not there," he told The Dallas Morning News. Moody battled a variety of health problems after being treated in 1986 for Hodgkin's disease.

"I guess I've been blessed with a pretty good fighterpilot mentality," Moody said in a December 1999 interview. "I do keep kind of bouncing back. I'm getting a little bit weary of it. But I can still laugh.

Enron downfall: State investment funds lost $62 million

Retirement funds for teachers and state employees lost nearly $60 million in stocks and bonds because the funds' managers continued to invest in crumbling Enron Corp.

The Teachers Retirement System and Employees Retirement System lost a combined $59.7 million. Smaller state investment funds lost another $3.3 mil-

The loss is not going to affect retirees, officials told Austin American-Statesman in Wednesday's editions.

The Teacher Retirement System bought $9 million worth of Enron stock just three weeks before Houstonbased energy giant filed bankruptcy on Dec. 2. When ERS bought the shares, prices ranged between $9 and $10.

After a loss of investor and industry confidence because of questionable financial practices, Enron crumbled and the company's stock, which once traded for $80 or more per share. tumbled to less than a dol-Shares sold Wednesday on the New York Stock Exchange for 67 cents.

A message left with TRS on Wednesday by The Associated Press was not immediately returned.

TRS fund managers would only answer questions from the American-Statesman with e-mails from their agency spokesman. In one email, managers said they anticipated Dynegy Inc.'s purchase of Enron would go through.

It didn't, and TRS lost $35.7 million. The Employee Retirement System largely avoided the late buying spree of stocks, but managers bought a $10 million bond for Osprey Trust, one of several partnerships at the center of Enron's downfall.

The purchase was made on the same day Enron's chief executive officer, Andrew Fastow, resigned under fire.

"We knew the other partnerships were in trouble," said Sheila Beckett, ERS executive director. "We didn't realize this one was."

The Permanent School Fund, which invests money for public schools, booked selling out months before the collapse. "You don't always hit them over the fence like that," said Paul Ballard. executive administrator of the Permanent School Fund. "I wished every bet worked out like Enron did."

"It turns out that not all that glitters is gold," he said. "That stock became so volatile in November, it became a lottery ticket."

Ballard said school fund mangers bought a $5 million Enron bond on Oct. 22, two days before ERS bought its Osprey bond.

"It looked inexpensive," Ballard said. "We thought it was a chance to buy on bad news. The bad news ended catastrophic. Occasionally, you make a mistake."

$105 million in profits by Boy who apparently fell into lake during hike was outspoken

SILSBEE (AP) — A 6-yearold boy whose body was recovered from a lake after he disappeared during a family hike was described as an outspoken and fearless kindergartner who enjoyed climbing trees and playing video games.

Family members had puzzled for days over Ira Clutter's disappearance because he wasn't one to run off, his father, Randy Clutter said.

'We just kept thinking we would find him," Clutter said. "Nobody thought he was in the water."

Clutter, who is legally blind, searched alongside those who came from across the state to help.

Divers recovered Ira's body Wednesday from the lake where family members least suspected he would be found.

"It appeared like he fell from a large rock. He was found in 24 feet of water near the bottom," said

Kristin Everett, a spokeswoman for the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife. "Investigators found a skid mark real close to where he was found. We believe he was exploring the shore line and he fell in."

Billie Kyles, principal at Robinson Elementary School in Silsbee, said Ira was an outspoken student who was eager to discuss his faith. A Jehovah's Witness, Ira often would sit in Kyle's office during holiday or birthday celebrations, which conflicted with his religious beliefs.

"To tell the truth, my heart is breaking," Kyles said. "I'm going to miss him.'

Clutter said the discovery of Ira's body brought closure to the family.

Howard County Awarded Federal Funds Through FEMA

Howard County has been awarded federal funds under the Emergency Food and Shelter National Board Program. Howard County has been chosen to receive $ 13,909 to supplement emergency food and shelter programs in the county.

A local Board, made up of the County, City, United Way and other local charitable organizations will determine how the funds awarded to Howard County are to be distributed among the emergency food and shelter programs run by local service organizations in the area. The local Board is responsible for recommending agencies to receive these funds and any additional funds under this phase of the program

Under the terms of the grant from the National Board, local organizations chosen to receive funds must: 1) be private voluntary nonprofits or units of government 2) have an accounting system, 3) practice nondiscrimination, 4) have demonstrated the capability to deliver emergency food and /or shelter programs and5) if they are a private voluntary organization, they must have a voluntary board. Qualifying organizations are urged to apply.

Public or private voluntary organizations interested in applying for Emergency Food and Shelter Program funds must contact United Way of Big Spring at (915) 267-5201 for an application. The deadline for the submission of applications is January 11, 2002

Farm bill was bad legislation

merican taxpayers received an early holiday present when Senate Democrats failed to push through a pork-laden $171 billion farm bill.

In the name of saving family farms, Senate Democrats, led by Majority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., and Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, attempted to push through a farm bill that would have wasted billions of dollars on huge farm corporations, encouraged overproduction, driven down grain and cotton prices and undercut foreign trade agreements.

President Bush and his Republican allies in Congress want a farm bill that weans wealthy corporate farmers from multibillion-dollar annual subsidies and redirects money to small farmers, food stamps and conservation.

While it sounds like a role reversal Republicans led the charge to pass the 1996 reedom to Farm Act that was designed to reduce farmers' dependency on escalating government subsidies by encouraging them to participate in the free market.

It was a good idea but powerful farm-state lobbies undermined the 1996 farm act when each year Congress voted billions of dollars of "emergency" aid back to farmers, thus promoting even greater reliance on government payments.

Emergency subsidies enacted since the 1996 farm act have increased spending 500 percent. Last year's farm subsidies reached $32 billion.

The farm subsidy program has changed little except in size since it was introduced as a temporary measure during the Great Depression.

The farm bill Senate Democrats couldn't pass before the holidays was three times the size of the 1996 bill. It also represented a 77 percent increase over the farm-subsidy level approved by Congress only last spring, despite record farm incomes.

It's easy to understand why Bush wants a different farm bill. Only 40 percent of American farmers get farm subsidies. Half of all federal farm subsidies go to the largest 8 percent of Midwest grain farmers, often represented by Fortune 500 corporations, receive the greatest portion of farm subsidies.

Bush and his GOP allies support less reliance on subsidies. They want to spread out farm assistance to help more farmers in more states and cut back on subsidies to wealthy commercial farm operations that don't need federal assistance.

The superior Republican farm plan not only spreads out federal accistance, it also would increase food stamp runds to $10 billion over 10 years, compared to $6 billion proposed by the Democrats.

The 1996 farm act expires next year. When Congress again takes up a new farm bill, more emphasis should be placed on giving more assistance to farmers who actually need the help.

What happened to the tightening noose?

fter weeks of hearing that the "noose is tightening," it seems (as of this writing) that Osama bin Laden decided to get out of Dodge while the getting was good. Three cliches in one sentence. Not bad, huh? If I work at it, I might become a TV journalist or a military analyst yet. I've never had a desire cheesy. I'm sure the Marine who lost his leg or the three Green Berets who were killed by an errant bomb are glad to know that it was after their injuries and deaths that "the really dangerous work" has now begun, according to the TV

And while I've never, to my knowledge, met a member of al-Qaeda, they must be quite remarkable creatures to shrink and multiply so often. Sometimes there are 3,000 of them, then a few hundred, then maybe 2,000, then a handful. About the only thing we know for sure is that none of the high-ranking al-Qaeda leaders we went to get have been got. Nor has Mullah Omar. As of this writing, I must add, since the situation is now officially described as "fluid."

Have you noticed, too, that all the caves we've seen so far look considerably rougher and more primitive than those fancy caves the TV people have been showing us? Naturally, it is a lot easier to draw a cave with a computer graphics program than it is to dig one out of the rocks, but I was looking forward to seeing those squared-off tunnels with tanks at the ends of them.

It is possible that a bomb obliterated Osama, High explosives can create MIAs simply by leaving no pieces large enough to identify. But I expect that the head villain left before the noose got too tight. He is, after all, a man who seems not to put too high a value on anyone's life but his own. "Fight to the death, boys, and if you survive, meet me in _____," he probably said in his farewell address.

The problem with this war, aside from the fact that the whole of Afghanistan is not worth one American leg, much less American lives, is that the press, through no fault its own, has been unable to cover it. The only Americans who will talk to press members are the briefers at the Pentagon. On the ground in Afghanistan, the American forces shoo them away, except for the token coverage allowed of the Marines. The Afghan warlords keep the media well away from the action (and atrocities/goof-ups), so that in the end, all they know and all we know is what they've been told by a "spokesman." To hear the warlords tell it, they've been engaged in "fierce fighting." The fierce fighting, however, seems to produce damned few casualties on either side.

Furthermore, I detect a disturb ng pattern. If we are going to spend $1 billion a month to bomb a country and then billions more to rebuild it, I'm sure we'll go broke before we work through the list of poor countries still left to be bullied and terrorized by the world's last remaining superpower.

In the meantime, President Bush and Attorney General John Ashcroft are becoming fanatically more secretive, as if the fact that a cabbie has been arrested for visa violations would destroy America's national security if we were told about it. Given the fact that the Soviet Union and later Russia had a high-ranking spy in the FBI for 15 years and one in the Navy for 17 years, I would say that the risk to national security is the government and not the American people and or the

There's a lot to be said for style

here's a lot to be said for style. Where would the country have been during the dreary days of World War II without Franklin Delano Roosevelt and his fantastic cape, jaunty chin and long cigarette holder? Add his rheterical style, distilled from suffering as well as exhilaration, and you're close to the secret of FDR's extraordinary power to lift the spirits and shore up the stamina of the nation. Style is not antithetical to substance. The one is an expression of the other. No one can mention style in America without turning to Jack and Jackie Kennedy. For him, it was based on wit; for her, on elegance. For both, words were central. Her letters relied on a love of language, his charm on a gift for phrases. Together, they electrified the world.

George and Laura Bush have brought to the White House a new Texas style creamy roses and books for her (her devotión to literature echoes that of Jackie Kennedy), and plain talk for him. Fareed Zakaria of Newsweek has called the president a "morally serious man." That description is true for both the Bushes. They have made simplicity the basis of their lives.

Rudy Giuliani, however, is suffused with a certainty of style. It's all summed up in that New York Police and Fire Dept. baseball cap. Strong, steadfast, tough, tender, sometimes startlingly poetic, he had the guts for command on Sept. 11th. Pity Michael Bloomberg having to follow a mayor so intrinsically, stylistically wedded to his city. In television journalism, the most distinctive style of all is that of CNN's Christiane Amanpour. She definitely has heeded the advice from 'Master Class," Terrence McNally's play about Maria Callas, to "get a look. Reporting from Islamabad in the fall in khaki shirts, collar upturned, and from wintry Kabul in a windbreaker with white or brown aviator silk scarves at the neck, she is the war correspondent we all would love to be. She is archetypal, born of Athena, who, as Jean Shinoda Bolen tells us, was the warrior goddess of wisdom, protector of her woman who wore armor. But Christiane Amanpour is not merely a look. Her real strength is in her heroes, the only Olympian

voice, extraordinary for its depth, resonance and dramatic impact. Her style would be lost without great events against which to hone her own gifts. Fortunately, great events have found her.

The most durable newspaper stylist is Molly Ivins of the Fort Worth Star Telegram. Though riotously funny, her finest piece has no humor at all. It is an account of going to the Vietnam Memorial in Washington to find the name of her truest love, a biologist, killed in that war after only a few weeks of duty there.

Unable to bear owning the experience herself, she wrote it in the third person with such control of emotion that no one who reads it can fail to feel the same devastation. Some may say that style is too bound up in things. But things connect us to life. In "'Night, Mother," Marsha Norman's prizewinning play, a young woman contemplating suicide pushes away her coffee mug and declares, "That means nothing to me." She is cutting her ties to the mug, to things and to the world.

Then there's Thomas Moore, the writer and therapist, who pointed out that shopping really is a search for images that reflect and satisfy our souls.

Bonds AP's Male Athlete of Year

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In a record-breaking season capped by major awards, one home run was especially significant to Barry

It was not his 500th career homer, or his 71st of the season, which broke Mark McGwire's record.

Instead, in a year that brought Bonds an unprecedented fourth MVP award and honors as The Associated Press Male Athlete of the Year, it was homer No. 68 that made Bonds cry.

That homer came on Sept. 28, as he mourned the death of friend and former bodyguard Franklin Bradley. Bonds wept on the bench after the homer.

"That was probably the most memorable day of my life," Bonds said.

It was a memorable year for baseball's new home run king. He started it 0-for-21 at the plate, but finished with .73 homers and a record .863 slugging percentage.

Besides smashing McGwire's 3-year-old record for homers, the San Francisco slugger broke a he's already preparing for pair of Babe Ruth's records the 2002 season and trying with 177 walks and the to figure out how he can gaudy slugging percentage. become an even better play-Bonds hit .328 with 137 er: RBIs while moving from 17th place to seventh on the career list with 567 homers.

Bonds edged three-time Tour de France winner Lance Armstrong to claim the AP award announced Wednesday. Tiger Woods, who won in 1999 and 2000, tied for third.

Bonds received 33 first-place votes and 136 points from sportswriters and broadcasters. Armstrong, who finished second in the voting for the second straight year, had 26 firstplace votes and 127 points.

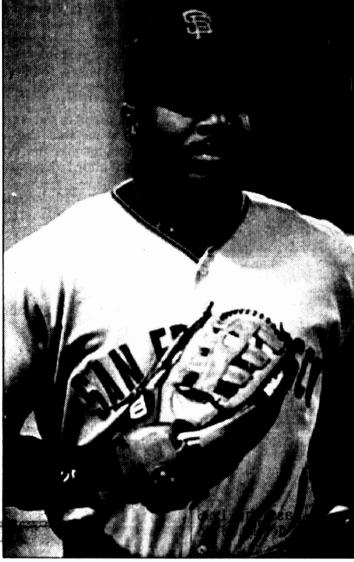

American League MVP Ichiro Suzuki and Woods tied for third with 43 points, though Suzuki had seven first-place votes and Woods, who also won the AP honor in 1997, had two. Randy Johnson was fifth and Allen Iverson sixth. Points were awarded on a 3-2-1 basis.

The 37-year-old Bonds is the 24th baseball player to win the AP award. Pepper Martin won the first award in 1931, and other baseball winners have included Bonds' godfather, Willie Mays, who won as a member of the New York Giants in 1954. McGwire won in 1998 when he hit his recordbreaking 70 homers. After briefly testing the free-agent market, Bonds accepted the Giants' offer of salary arbitration last week and will be back in San Francisco for at least one more season. Bonds said

"My grandfather told me, The day that dog doesn't learn a trick, it's the day that dog is dead," Bonds said. "If I get satisfied now, I might as well retire."

At first, this seemed unlikely to be a historic year for Bonds, who was hitless in his first 21 at-bats of the season.

San Francisco's Barry Bonds hit 73 homers and had a record .863 slugging percentage this year. He edged three-time Tour de France winner Lance Armstrong to earn The Associated Press' Male Athlete of the Year recogni-

Aggies, Horned Frogs renew rivalry

Former Southwest Conference rivals Texas A&M and TCU are putting the best face they can on the galleryfurniture.com Bowl. The Aggies (7-4) expected to contend for the Big 12 title before late losses soured their season. TCU (6-5) needed upsets in its final two games just to qualify for a bowl.

"We've had some great highs and we've had some very, very low points in our season," TCU coach Gary Patterson said. "I think it's the incredible part of our kids, the chemistry and the kind of makeup that they have, that they fought back because I think we matured and gave themselves a Kickoff is at 12:30 p.m. Friday.

The Horned Frogs were going nowhere with a 4-5 record when they upset Conference USA champion Louisville and followed that with a 14-12 victory over Southern Mississippi.

It was the conclusion of a 16-week season that started with a 21-7 loss to Nebraska on Aug. 25 in the Pigskin Classic and included six open dates.

"I think in the last four weeks of the season, the two weeks we had off for Louisville and Southern Miss really helped us and we started to grow,"

Patterson said.

The Aggies have a 55-29-7 advantage in the series, and they've won 23 in a row since the Horned Frogs' last victory in 1972. The Aggies were poised to be a major postseason player with a 7-1 record before they lost their last three games to Texas Tech, Oklahoma and Texas. Their offense has struggled most of the season under quarterback Mark Farris. The Aggies scored only 17 points in their final three games.

"I'm impressed with what coach Patterson has done with his team," A&M coach R.C. Slocum said. "He picked a better course than

I did, winning your last two games instead of losing your last three.'

The Aggies' Wrecking Crew defense overcame a slow start this season following a verbal challenge from Slocum. The Aggies rank No. 10 nationally in total defense, allowing 294 yards per game.

A&M's offense has been stalled by injuries to its running back and tight end corps.

Derek Farmer, Keith Oschlor Joseph and Flemming have shared running back duties. Former defensive lineman Thomas Carriger is starting at tight end and is backed up by walk-on Haven Massey.

Antawn Jamison scored 28 points and Danny Fortson had 15 points and 20 rebounds as Los Angeles struggled in Shaquille O'Neal's absence.

After Bryant hit consecutive 3-pointers to pull the visiting Lakers to 87-83 with 2:18 left, Jamison made back-to-back shots and hit two free throws to seal it.

Grizziles 107, Bulls 85 Pau Gasol shot 11-for-1 and scored 27 points and Jason Williams added 21 points and 14 assists as Memphis beat Chicago in Bill Berry's first game as coach of the Bulls.

Gasol also had rebounds, and four of Memphis' five starters finished in double figures as the Grizzlies sent the Bulls to their 15th consecutive road loss.

Applewhite 'gracious' for final start SAN DIEGO (AP) - If night. Applewhite the Holiday start Applewhite, a proven

Major Applewhite was bitter or angry or disillusioned about the way the Texas quarterback controversy played out the last two seasons, he never let on.

He kept his frustrations to himself, even when he felt he could have gone in and gotten the Longhorns rolling. Like, say, after Chris Simms threw four interceptions in a 14-3 loss to Oklahoma back in October.

The one thing he did do while watching his senior season tick away Saturday after Saturday was keep himself ready. That's why Applewhite, the leading passer in Longhorns' history, gets to start his final game for No. 9 Texas, in the Holiday Bowl against No. 21 Washington on Friday

"I'm just gracious that this opportunity has presented itself," Applewhite, ever the diplomat. "There's no bitterness. I don't have time for that now. I just want to go out and play football.

Applewhite, who holds 44 Texas records, had seen only mop-up duty this season. After throwing for a school-record 7,974 yards the previous three seasons, he threw for just 379 this year. But he was pretty sure his career wouldn't end with him holding a clipboard on the sideline.

After Texas blew a shot at the national championship game by losing 39-37 to Colorado in the Big 12 championship game Dec. 1, coach Mack Brown didn't a two-year debate among Bowl starter over Simms, a iunior.

Simms committed four turnovers that led to 26 olorado points and was replaced by Applewhite, who passed for 240 yards and a pair of touchdowns in a desperate rally that fell just short.

Applewhite was surprised and happy to be named the starter. "Surprised, because as a bowl game, you're thinking maybe they want to give Chris confidence going into spring and next season. At the same time, you're thinking. 'I did play well against Colorado,' so it's like I made a case for starting."

Applewhite's performance against Colorado rekindled

The Angel

One year right before Christmas I was to meet a real angel.

know she was an angel for angels are supposed to live in heaven and not in a run down apartment building where sadness seemed to be a part of each apartment's decor. But that's where I met the angel.

Living right next door to me. None of us that lived in our apartment complex had any money and Christmas was almost painful to some of us for we had no money to buy gifts for our families and

I told the angel how I wish I could give everyone a gift that lived in our apartment complex because Christmas is a time to share, but you can't share if you have

She smiled a sad smile and told me that she too was feeling sad that she couldn't afford to help oth-

She told me that she had a few pretty what nots that she was going to try to sell, but for some reason she decided not to sell

And on Christmas Eve I found out why she hadn't sold them.

Because she could of used the money to of bought things that she and her family needed. But she kept them for a reason.

And that cold dark Oh, at first I did not Christmas Eve I saw a person knock at the door of the apartment across from

As I watched, this person stopped at every apartment in our complex.

My apartment was the last apartment that this person stopped at and that's when I found out that this person was the angel who lived in the apartment next to me.

She had so little to call her own, she had took her basket of pretty what nots along with small bags of homemade popcorn balls and gave every person in our apartment complex a gift.

I told her I had nothing to give her in return and as I looked at her a joyful smile lit up her face as she told me that I had already gave her a gift — the gift of friendship — and at that moment she did look like a real angel.

It has been many years since I met the angel and I forgot Christmas that I met her for she truly was an angel.

Five of the affected parties were in New Jersey, according to First Night International, the Bostonbased group that helps coordinate the alcohol-free events.

"I think the drop-off is due to the economy," said First International President Zeren Earls. "Nine-11, I think, just made matters worse. Some of these will come back next year."

Red Bank canceled its affair after losing sponsorship money. Several donors believed it was more important to give their money to attacks-related charities, Mayor Ed McKenna said. Six residents died at the World Trade Center.

"We actually had one sponsor ask for money back," McKenna said. "We're not upset about it — we certainly understand where sponsors are coming from." Officials in other cities with canceled parties, including St. Louis, Santa Barbara, Calif., and Erie, Pa., cited a lack of volunteers and poor funding.

NEW YORK (AP) — A law suit filed against the city Wednesday demanded the return of an estimated 900 vehicles towed from the World Trade Center neighborhood in the days after the terrorist attacks.

The lawsuit in U.S. District Court seeks class action status on behalf of the vehicles' owners. It was brought by John Diaz, who said his 1993 Chevrolet Astro minivan was parked blocks from the trade cen-

He found it covered in soot. with minor damage Sept. 11 but said he was told he couldn't remove it. He later learned his minivan was moved to a landfill.

His lawyer, Robert Tolchin, said the city has said the minivan could not be returned because it and the other vehicles towed from around the trade center were too damaged.

"We understand the city had to clear the streets to bring in heavy equipment," Tolchin said. "But once it was cleared out of the area, the people are entitled to have their cars back."

Diaz has been told his vehicle will be crushed along with the others.

The city law office did not immediately return a telephone message seeking comment.

Important Events of the New Year

A Kid's 2002 Calendar

Keep this 2002 calendar and watch for coming special events. Celebrate the outdoors!

2002 will be a year celebrating the joys of being outside. The Winter Olympics will be held in the Salt Lake City, Utah, area from Feb. 8 to Feb. 24. The United Nations has declared 2002 as the International Year of Mountains. The U.N. hopes to help protect the environment around mountain regions.

The year 2002 is also the U.N.'s Year of Ecotourism. Ecotourism is a way for tourists to enjoy nature while protecting the environment and helping the local economy in poorer countries. Ecotourists might get to see many kinds of animals, such as tigers, sea turtles or butterflies.

Nov. 5 will also be a national election day. Many state legislators and city officials will be elected. All U.S. members of the House of Representatives and one-third of U.S. senators are up for re-election.

this year. Others could be lives that you frequently feel as if you're not heard. You might need to learn the balance between swallowing your anger and throwing tantrums. Actually, if you learn the art of expressing difficult feelings, you will allow many to develop a closeness to you. Work commands a great deal of attention and focus. Hard work will literally "pay off," but you might need to Lost in Silver Hills, a wait for a year or so for it to really happen. If you are single, you will meet many people. Dating also tests your people skills, though you are likely to meet someone very important. If attached, work on your interpersonal skills by sign-

Landers: You have printed a few letters recently about divorced fathers who don't pay child support and miss out on their children's lives. I have a few ∞ words for divorced mothers who have custody: When you decide to divorce and your ex-husband still wants to be a significant part of his child's life, he should not have to worry that you will move out of the state so he cannot visit, or that you will make up excuses for why the child cannot talk to him on the phone, or that you will dislike the new stepmother so intensely that you refuse to be in the same room with her. When you behave that way, you make life difficult for your child.

Please write the father's name on all emergency forms at school, and make certain the teacher communicates with the father on a regular basis. Keep your exhusband informed of all events in the child's life so he can attend soccer games and parent-teacher conferences. And send him all the notices from the school as well — the dates of the bake sales and book fairs — so he can participate.

Face the facts, ladies. There are no loopholes in motherhood. The majority of fathers do care about though, legally, he is not their children and will appreciate the opportunity to be part of their lives. Do this for your children. They will be grateful to you, and you'll feel good about yourself. - Stepmother in California sake of the children. Do not bad-mouth the ex-spouse. Do not withhold child support. Do not deny visitation. Be civil to one another, and you will teach your children what real class is. Too often, when parents behave vindictively, it is the child who suffers.

Dear Ann Landers: My stepdaughter said she was married in August, but neither I nor her mother was present. Also, she never obtained a marriage license from the state. Her fiance's father, who claims to be a preacher, performed the ceremony, although I have no idea what church he is affiliated with. When I told her she needed a state license, she said they were "married in the eves of God.

The groom's family thinks this is just fine and dandy, but our family is hurt and bewildered. They are currently living near his family and seem happy. Should I accept them as a married couple, even though I suspect that is not the case? Do I welcome him as my new son-in-law, even If ever there were a time when you should MYOB, this is it.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a middle-aged man who has been happily married and faithful for 25 years. Now, for the first time in my life. I find myself strongly attracted to a beautiful, intelligent young woman in my office. She is 20 years younger than I am, but has given me reason to believe that she is interested in an intimate relationship.

I am ashamed that I am even considering responding to her advances. I have had many such opportunities in the past and have never succumbed to temptation. Why now? Do you have any advice for me? – Dave in San Francisco

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, December 27th, the 361st day of 2001. There are four days left in the year. Highlight Today's History:

On December 27th, 1979, Soviet forces seized control of Afghanistan. President Hafizullah Amin (hah-FEE'zoo-lah ah-MEEN'), who was overthrown and executed, was replaced by Babrak Karmal (bah-BRAHK' kahrmahl).

On this date:

In 1831, naturalist Charles Darwin set out on a voyage to the Pacific aboard the H-M-S Beagle. (Darwin's discoveries during the trip helped to form the basis of his theories on evolution.) In 1900, militant prohibitionist Carry A. Nation carried out her first public smashing of a bar, at the Carey Hotel in Wichita, Kansas.

In 1927, the musical play 'Show Boat," with music by Jerome Kern and libretto by Oscar Hammerstein the Second, opened at the Ziegfeld Theater in New York.

In 1932, Radio City Music Hall opened in New York. In 1945, 28 nations signed an agreement creating the World Bank. In 1947, the children's television program "Howdy Doody" made its debut on N-B-C. In 1968, Apollo Eight and its three astronauts made a safe, nighttime splashdown in the Pacific. In 1970, "Hello, Dolly!" closed on Broadway after a run of two-thousand-844 performances. In 1985, Palestinian guerrillas opened fire inside the Rome and Vienna airports; a total of 20 people were killed, including five of the attackers, who were slain by police and security per-

In 1985, American naturalist Dian Fossey, who had studied gorillas in the wild, was found hacked to death at a research station in Rwanda.
