Boiles to take over as Moss Lake caretaker

By ROGER CLINE

Staff Writer

Moss Creek Lake has a new caretaker.

At their meeting Tuesday evening, Big Spring city council members voted unanimously to approve Rick Boiles for the position.

Boiles, currently Big Spring's superintendent of the distribution and collection department, said he's confident his new duties won't interfere with his current job.

"Very confident, because like I say, I have my family, my brother-in-law and my son, and the city's getting three to four people working with no additional salary cost," he said. "Like I said last night, my job here is primary and this is what I take care of first, and then I'm a phone call away from those folks, my family, if they need me, if they have a question, I can take care of it."

Boiles said he sees the Moss Creek job as an opportunity for him to provide a service for the city. The contract calls for Boiles to have free use of a three-bedroom house at the lake, with utilities and insurance, provided by the city. It provides no extra salary for the position.

"I've seen the things that (the lake) has had going on in the past, and I'm a full-blown city guy," he said. "I like to make sure that the city's getting the best for its money. I felt like this would be a unique opportunity for me and my family to be out there, and that's why we did the contract the way we did so that the city would bear no extra burden other than budgeting for maintenance. I felt like it would be a good deal both ways."

Councilman Oscar Garcia raised concerns that, while Boiles may be an experienced manager, his family members aren't, and will be operating the lake on their own during Boiles' 8-to-5 work day.

"That's just all about training," Boiles said. "We have folks come in all the time that go to work for us that have never done this type of work before and we train them. That's all this is about, training."

Boiles said he would like to see concerts held at the lake to help increase attendance.

"I want to try set up some concerts, local bands, out there playing and stuff like that," he said. "Of course that will be after deliberation with the city, to know what we need to do to make sure the city's happy and what they expect of us when we do something like that."

Although Boiles' contract allows him to operate a concession stand at the lake and keep the proceeds, he said he probably won't do that until he gets his feet wet.

"Right at first I probably won't until I get in and look at all the requirements that will be placed on me," he said. "If I did it would be a limited type of concession stand, some types of tackle, snacks, candy bars, sandwich cold cuts, that type of thing. I won't be preparing

City council deadlocks at 3-3 on providing sewer service to portion of Seminole Road

By ROGER CLINE

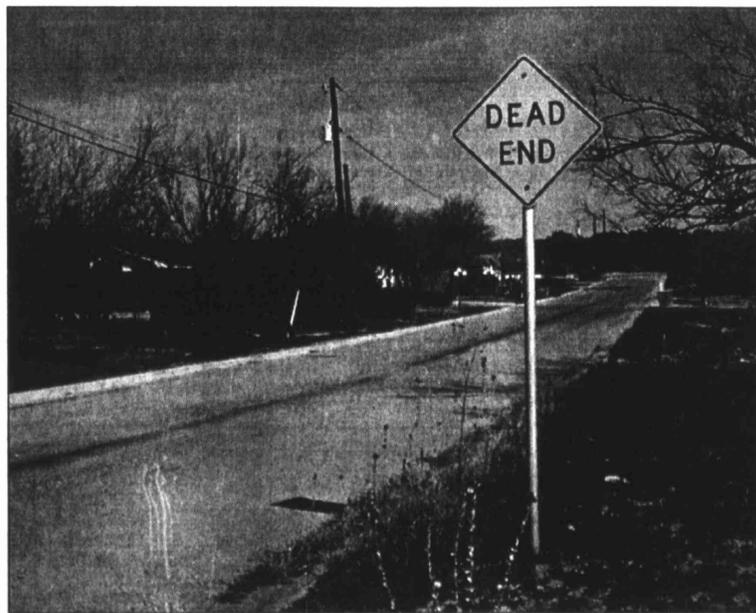

Staff Writer

A 3-3 vote at the Big Spring City Council meeting Tuesday night means residents in the 2500 block of Seminole Road aren't getting sewer service — at least not yet.

Council members Stephanie Horton, Oscar Garcia and Chuck Cawthon voted in favor of providing sewer service, at an estimated cost of more than $60,000, to the area, while Mayor Russ McEwen and council members Tommy Tune and JoAnn Smoot voted against the measure. Councilman Greg Biddison was absent.

McEwen said his intention was not to deny sewer service to the Seminole residents, but to revisit the issue during the council's annual budget deliberations this summer.

"I voted the way I did because we were looking at a $70,000 expenditure in the middle of the budget year that was unbudgeted," he said. "This has been a situation that has been there on Seminole for a number of years — actually, a number of decades — and my feeling very strongly is that this is something that needs

Oscar Garcia said he feels the city has a moral obligation to provide sewer services to its residents.

Last chance to get VITA's help with taxes

HERALD Staff Report

People seeking help on their 2001 tax return have just one more chance to receive free assistance with the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance.

Monday is the last day that VITA volunteers will be at the Senior Citizen's Center, 1901 Simler Drive in the Industrial Park, to help those needing assistance in filling out their 2001 tax return. The service will be available from 9 a.m. to noon.

Volunteers trained by the Internal Revenue Service can assist individuals in a number of areas, including if a person qualifies for certain credits and deductions. The service is open to all residents filing wages and interest.

To prepare the tax return forms, the volunteers will need all W-2s and other documents showing wages earned in 2001, 1099 interest forms and the 2000 Tax Return.

Each person will be seen on the order of his or her arrival.

Monday, April 15 is the deadline to file the 2001 tax return with the Internal Revenue Service.

Mayor Russ McEwen expressed confidence in Boiles ability to handle the added responsibility.

"We've got someone that we've got great confidence in, that's done a great job in one area, and he's saying 'I can do this also,' and I have no problem with that," the mayor said. "I am totally confident that if it ever interferes with his other city job, they will immediately terminate the (Moss Creek) situation, because Rick is invaluable in the position he's in right now. vice, and that is why I had asked that the people who are out there help with that cost."

Garcia said the city has worked with residents in the past to provide services with the residents picking up a portion of the tab.

"We've done the same thing with other services in other parts of the city," he said. "Where citizens living in the area where services are being installed or provided help with providing some of the cost. Like we've done in the past, we've contracted with people when we double seal-coated the street and the citizens pay half of the cost, maybe divided among 20 residents."

The city attorney Jean Shotts said the city can't just assess the cost of the sewer line to the Seminole residents, because the city is taking the position that adding the line won't significantly increase the property values of the land owned by the residents. Shotts said to 90 percent of the projected increase in property value.

Biddison wouldn't comment this morning about how he would have voted on the issue.

"Probably not, since I wasn't there," he said. "I would have to have heard all that was said."

Biddison said he missed the meeting to be with his son in the hospital.

Wednesday is last day to sign up for first do-not-call list

AUSTIN (AP) — Texans who don't want to be annoyed by telemarketers have to sign up by Wednesday for a "do-not-call" list that blocks companies from calling customers at home.

More than 50,000 people have rushed to add their names to the list over the past five days, bringing the total to 320,000 since Jan. 1, said Public Utility Commission spokesman Terry Hadley.

"We were told, based on other states' experiences, to expect a large response like this," Hadley said. "We're not telling people they need to sign up. We're just saying that this service is now available — if you're interested, you need to sign up."

Wednesday's deadline is for customers attempting to get on the first list.

TEXAS LOTTERY

PICK 3: 5,1,2
CASH 5: 1,5,9,21,23

Subsequent lists will be updated every three months.

Telemarketers are required to purchase the PUC list and update their records within the first 60 days of the state publication.

Companies that do not follow the law are subject to penalties of up to $1,000 per violation.

Charities, non-profit groups and debt collectors are excluded from the law, which lawmakers approved last year.

Companies with prior business relationships with customers also may continue to call. Plus, telemarketers who hold state licenses, such as insurance agents, real estate agents and stockbrokers, can call. But they must complete transactions with face-to-face meetings.

Residents pay $2.25 to be placed on the list for three years.

People can sign up by calling 1-866-896-6225 or online at http://www.texasnocall.com. Customers also can sign up by printing a form from the no-call Web site and mailing a check or money order to: Texas No Call, P.O. Box 313, E. Walpole, MA. 02032.

A fiery, head-on crash in Wisconsin leaves five dead, 20 injured

IXONIA, Wis. (AP) — A senior citizens' trip to the Milwaukee botanical gardens turned into a fiery tragedy when their chartered bus slammed headfirst into a delivery van, killing five people and injuring 20.

The impact shattered the bus windows and its bucket seats were tossed around. Two of the 15 elderly passengers were thrown from the bus and landed on the roadway.

The blue-and-white bus carrying 22 people crashed into a ditch 30 feet from the collision, killing Myrtle Neis, 82, Ruth Breitzmann, 84, and the bus driver, Carol A. Benisch, 61.

"You could see people collapsed," said Mike Leslie, 21, who witnessed the accident on state Highway 16, 30 miles west of Milwaukee. "People on top of each other. The bus driver was trapped. ... People were trapped on the floor and they couldn't get out."

A 91-year-old woman died of her injuries at Froedtert Memorial Lutheran Hospital early Wednesday, said John Riegert, a hospital spokesman. The woman's name was not immediately released.

The van burst into flames, killing the driver, Michael S. McNally, 35, of Mukwonago. Ixonia Fire Chief Bruce Degner said cleaning solutions in the van fueled the blaze.

Twenty people were taken to area hospitals with injuries. Four elderly women and one man remained in critical condition late Tuesday, hospital officials said.

Degner said some of the passengers were only semi-conscious and most had serious injuries. "They were just sitting there wondering what happened," he said.

The bus, from the Marquardt Village retirement home in Watertown, was traveling to Milwaukee with four staff members and a volunteer, said Kyran Clark, the home's executive director.

"This is absolutely unheard of in our town," said Sophie Traeger, 77, who lives in Watertown. "When you have a hole this big, you're going to know it and it's going to be hard to get over."

Leslie was driving behind the van when it turned left onto Highway 16. He was about to follow when he saw flames — no van, just "fire and black smoke."

"And then through the flames came the bus and the bus slammed into the ditch," he said. "I couldn't believe it. It was just so fast."

The retirement village's chaplain was counseling residents at Zinzendorf Hall, an assisted-living center with 48 residents where the passengers on the bus had been residing.

Neis lived briefly with her son in the Fort Worth, Texas, suburb of River Oaks in 2000, but missed the Watertown area and opted to return there, said her son, John Neis, of Fort Worth.

"She was an Alzheimer's patient. She loved the place where she was living. She was always happy. She always talked about how she enjoyed the meals there and how they were so nice to her. They were going to a botanical gardens, and she was excited and looking forward to that," Neis said.

Companies with long histories targeted in lawsuit seeking reparations for slavery

NEW YORK (AP) — A woman whose ancestors were slaves sued three companies for allegedly profiting from slavery for nearly two centuries — a long-simmering concept that could pick up steam if more blacks are allowed to join the lawsuits.

Plaintiffs' lawyers said the lawsuits were the first to seek slavery reparations from private companies. They were filed against the Aetna insurance company, the FleetBoston financial services group and railroad giant CSX on behalf of the 35 million American descendants of African slaves.

At a news conference announcing the lawsuits Tuesday, Deadria Farmer-Paellmann said she spent five years researching the topic after writing on her law school application that her dream was to build the case that would win slavery reparations.

She said she became interested in the quest as she listened to her grandparents, including descriptions of her great-great-grandmother's escape from a rice plantation on the eve of the Civil War, when she stole a boat and ran away, surviving two weeks in swamps. Farmer-Paellmann graduated from law school in 2000.

"My grandfather always talked about the 40 acres and a mule we were promised and never given," said Farmer-Paellmann, who was the only plaintiff identified in the lawsuits.

The three suits, which seek unspecified damages, claimed that as many as 1,000 unidentified corporations may have benefited from slavery between 1619 and 1865. The lawsuits seek class-action status and could be expanded to include more companies.

Lawyer Ed Fagan said a series of Holocaust lawsuits he helped settle for $8 billion had blazed the legal trail for the slavery action by setting a precedent in making banks and insurance companies pay damage to victims.

Any damages won from the lawsuit would be put into a fund to improve health, education and housing opportunities for blacks, said attorney Roger Wareham, one of a group of lawyers who prepared the lawsuits.

"This is not about individuals receiving checks in their mailbox," Wareham said.

The lawsuits say slavery is a wound that fails to heal, condemning blacks in America to more poverty, unemployment, poor education and clashes with the justice system than other Americans.

"They lag behind whites according to every social yardstick: literacy, life expectancy, income and education," the lawsuits say. "They are more likely to be murdered and less likely to have a father at home."

In a statement, Aetna said: "We do not believe a court would permit a lawsuit over events which — however regrettable — occurred hundreds of years ago. These issues in no way reflect Aetna today."

CSX said the lawsuits had no merit and should be dismissed.

"Slavery was a tragic chapter in our nation's history," the company said in a statement. "It is a history shared by every American, and its impacts cannot be attributed to any single company or industry."

Fleet spokesman James Mahoney said the company had not seen the lawsuits and had no comment.

CSX said it was named as a defendant because slave labor was used to construct portions of some U.S. rail lines "under the political and legal system in place more than a century before CSX was formed in 1980."

It's a girl, times four: Identical quadruplets' birth 1-in-11 million

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A mother gave birth to four identical quadruplet girls, a phenomenon that only happens in every 1-in-11 million births overall.

What is also unusual is that Ornsee Khamsa and Verek Muy conceived the children without the aid of fertility drugs, an extremely unusual situation in cases of multiple births, doctors said.

Born Monday at Sutter Memorial Hospital after only about 30 weeks gestation, the largest baby weighs 2 pounds, 8 ounces. The smallest is 2 pounds, 5 ounces. Khamsa, 22, and Muy, 20, named the newborns Preana, Audreana, Natalie and Melody.

The couple, who live with relatives in West Sacramento, also have a 4-year-old son named Raymond. They said they plan to marry soon.

Specialists monitored the girls for the first 48 hours for signs of trouble, including respiratory distress and other complications common in premature infants. Doctors said they expect the four babies to be fine.

About 500 sets of quadruplets are born each year in the United States, according to the National Center for Health Statistics.

But an identical set has only happened a handful of times in recent history, according to Jennifer Cassidy, who maintains a Web site devoted to multiple births.

Socialite sues brother in father's murder

DALLAS (AP) — Chuck Mayhew, scion of a wealthy industrialist, admits to a history of mental illness and alcohol dependency. He concedes that he has shot dogs and cattle for fun. He doesn't even deny repeatedly threatening to kill his father.

But the Longview man insists he did not shoot Charles Mayhew in the head while he slept in his Sunnyvale bed.

"I've never, never laid a hand on my father," Mayhew said in a deposition earlier this year.

Mayhew's sister, Amanda Mayhew Dealey, believes otherwise. Although the Dallas County Sheriff's Department has never accumulated enough evidence to seek an indictment, Dealey is suing Chuck Mayhew in Dallas civil court in the wrongful death of her 81-year-old father.

The 51-year-old Austin socialite says she will prove Chuck Mayhew had both opportunity and motive in the March 1, 1998, slaying. She seeks at least $5 million from her 49-year-old brother.

Because her suit is a civil matter, the jury will not be asked to find guilt, a term used in criminal prosecutions. Dealey's lawyers must prove to the jury only that it is more likely than not that Mayhew killed his father. If the jury agrees, it may levy damages but not prison time.

Opening statements in the civil trial are expected to begin Wednesday.

The lawsuit is unusual because it is reaching a courtroom before criminal charges have been filed. Typically, as in the O.J. Simpson case, such civil trials follow completion of a criminal proceeding.

However, a former senior minister of Dallas' First United Methodist Church was held financially liable in 1988 for injuries to his wife and assessed damages of about $18 million. Four years later, Walker Railey was found innocent in a criminal trial of choking his wife to a near-comatose state.

Mayhew's lawyers call the case against their client circumstantial, at best. Mayhew, meanwhile, has countersued, accusing his sister of defamation.

"Chuck and his father had a volatile relationship," said defense attorney Bill Hommel. "They argued a lot. But there was nobody closer to his father."

"It is a big leap to presume he would have taken the life of the one person in the world he was closest to," Dealey's lawyers say they will play audiotapes of the son, a world-class sports shooter, threatening to kill his father, along with a videotaped deposition of the defendant acknowledging numerous threats.

"When Chuck's father denied him what he wanted, Chuck would threaten to kill him," the lawsuit alleges.

Dealey was formerly married to Joe Dealey Jr., who is the son of the late former Dallas Morning News president and publisher Joe M. Dealey Sr. She is also an investor and civic activist in Austin.

Dealey's attorney, Steve Sumner, said his client is not seeking financial gain.

OUR VIEWS

We're proud to be honoring our ag producers

If you want to understand the impact agriculture has on Howard County and the surrounding area, walk into any retail business in Big Spring and ask. They'll tell you that agricultural producers are vital to their business. That's because the hundreds of farmers and their families who reside in the Crossroads area are exactly like the rest of us — they buy their groceries and clothes here; their gasoline, diesel, chemicals, seed, tires and implements here; send their children to school here, worship here; and pay taxes here.

In short, while oil and gas have been a major shot in the arm for our area, industries come and go. The agriculture industry has long been the mainstay.

That's why, each year, we take time out to honor those men and women who make their living off the land.

We hope you will join us and the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce in honoring our agricultural producers Thursday at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. The annual Ag Producers in which, agri-businesses show off their wares — will be held from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. Admission is free.

The highlight of the day is the 11:45 a.m. luncheon. This year's guest speaker will be U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm. He'll have some interesting things to say about the Farm Bill and other agriculture-related topics. Two awards will be presented — the agriculture producer and the agribusiness of the year.

Tickets for the luncheon are free to those in the agriculture field. Others may attend the luncheon by purchasing a ticket at the chamber for $8. If you want to attend the event but don't care to eat, you are welcome to do so at no charge.

Join us then on Thursday as we take time out to honor those who till the soil. The products they raise represent the clothes on our backs and the food on our tables.

YOUR VIEWS

TO THE EDITOR:
The Howard County Humane Society sends its sincere appreciation and thank you to all of those who helped make our auction such a spectacular success. We especially appreciate all of the good work the Herald and KBST did in getting the word out.

Hundreds of people came out and joined us for a great evening. Again, without the assistance of the media, this fund-raiser would not have been nearly as successful.

We look forward to working with you throughout the year on other exciting events.

JOHN REINSCHELD
PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

TO THE EDITOR:
We would like to take this opportunity to thank Mayor Russ McEwen and city council members for all the great improvements and upgrades they have implemented at the Roy Anderson Complex.

Public Works Director
Todd Darden, Park's

Supervisor Jessie Baker, and their crews, the fire department and the Wilderness Camp inmates have done an excellent job refurbishing the fields and making many needed improvements. We now have fields we can be proud of.

We have already been approached to host the District 3 All-Star Tournament, which includes teams from as far away as El Paso. The youth of Big Spring will benefit from these improvements in many ways and, in turn, the city of Big Spring will benefit.

We think the $25 per player user fee is money well spent to assure the continued maintenance of the complex, but we do operate on a limited budget and since we do not have a fund-raiser, we are going to have to add this fee to sign-up costs. We hope everybody see this in the same way and gives it a chance.

She's been Tonto long enough to know it

There is a void in the well-oiled American pillory for feminists, and I'm sure glad Tipper Gore didn't rush to fill it.

She seems far too sweet for daily doses of Rush Limbaugh venom, or editorial cartoons that have a field day embellishing physical flaws. Maybe Tipper's a not-ready-for-prime-time player.

She might have been First Lady, but is not. She might have run for the U.S. Senate in Tennessee, but won't. Somehow, I'm not surprised about the latter. After watching up close and personal as First Target Hillary got accused of everything from Machiavellianism to murder, Tennessee's Tipper might have figured out it's best to soldier on as an in-check activist, not a full-fledged one.

Helpmates have more fun. I met Tipper in April 1986, in Savannah, Tenn. She was crusading against explicit lyrics in rock music.

While I thought then — and wrote — that she was treading on a slippery censorship slope, I had to admire her forthrightness, stamina, intelligence and independence. She certainly wasn't doing Al any favors with a national audience and big-time Hollywood contributors.

There's been a lot of troubled water under the bridge since then. A new dirty word has been added to the American lexicon; one Tipper didn't include in her slide show that night. The dirty word is "feminist."

Nobody much wants to admit to being one. Not even many of today's working women, who certainly would holler loudest if the rights they enjoy disappeared. Rights that exist ONLY because of early feminist fighters. Silly little things like equal pay for equal work.

I imagine Hillary's pariah status has intimidated a lot of liberal women who might otherwise run for public office. You'd certainly have to think twice: Do I want to be the object of constant scorn and scrutiny, judged by everything from my thighs to professional ties? Am I strong enough to withstand hurricane-force windbags? Is public service really worth public humiliation?

These days, it takes a village to raise a child — and a village idiot to want to run for office.

It's true for men and conservative women, as well. But especially if you're a strong, thinking woman married to another politician.

I don't know Tipper Gore's reasons for not running. They might well have more to do with Al's future plans than anything else. And some would say she doesn't exactly qualify as a fighting feminist in the league with a Hillary or an Eleanor.

But I bet her moderate nature wouldn't stop the usual suspects from shooting with both barrels. In many narrow minds, the wife of a politician simply is not supposed to become a politician herself — unless hubby dies and a warm body is needed to hold a seat until a man can be found.

I caught an online poll inspired by Women's History Month. It gave voters choices in different categories. Women they most admired. Women who had influenced them the most. Women they would like to take to lunch. The usual kind of survey.

The good news was, Oprah beat out Marilyn Monroe as a role model, a reassuring sign unless most online voters simply don't remember who Marilyn was. At least more of us had rather be like a media mogul/actress than a sex symbol.

Hillary languished far down the list, ever the example of what happens when a woman gets too big for her britches. She might dine in the Senate dining hall now, but most still wouldn't take her to lunch.

Deep down I'm sincerely glad Tipper is sparing herself. For one thing, Tennessee — after how it treated Al in the presidential race — doesn't deserve a Gore to represent it.

And I suspect Tipper, the mental-health advocate, knows she'll have better mental health herself if she steers clear of painting a bull's-eye on her chest. Politics is crazy-making.

All's fair — and down-and-dirty — in American politics, and Tipper's been Tonto long enough to know it.

Ahh, the winds of springtime

March is the windy month in Texas. Somebody told me the other day, "It'd be all right if the wind didn't pick up that gritty dust." But then it wouldn't be Texas, would it?

The Texas winds are tame to those of New England. When my wife and I visited Mount Washington in New Hampshire years ago, we nearly froze in the snow, even though we were at the base of the mountain.

In his book A Walk in the Woods, Bill Bryson relates a weather story. On April 12, 1934, Salvatore Pagliuca, a meteorologist at the summit weather observatory on Mount Washington had an experience no one else has had before or since. Mount Washington gets a little gusty, to put it mildly. And this was a particularly breezy day. During the previous 24 hours, the wind speed had not fallen below 107 miles an hour and often gusted much higher. When it came time for Pagliuca to take the afternoon readings, the wind was so strong that he tied a rope around his waist and had two colleagues take hold of the other end. The men had difficulty getting the weather station door open and needed all their strength to keep Pagliuca from becoming a kind of human kite. How he managed to reach his weather instruments and take readings is not known, nor are his words when he finally tumbled back in. A few come to mind, like "Geeeeeeee Whiz!"

What is certain is that Salvatore had just experienced a surface speed of 231 miles an hour. Nothing approaching that velocity has ever been recorded elsewhere.

In The Worst Weather On Earth, A History of the Mt. Washington Observatory, William Putnam writes, "There may be worse weather, from time to time, at some forbidding place on earth, but it has yet to be reliably recorded."

Among the Mount Washington weather station's many other records are: most weather instruments destroyed, most wind in 24r hours and lowest windchill (a combination of 100 mph winds and a temperature of -47 degrees, a severity unmatched even in Antarctica).

Mount Washington receives 246 inches of snow a year. In 1969, eight feet of snow fell on the summit in three days. On average, the wind blows at hurricane force (more than 75 miles an hour) two out of three days during the winter and 40 percent of days overall. Because of the length and bitterness of its winters, the average mean temperature at the summit is 27 degrees. The summer average is 52 degrees, a good 25 degrees lower than at its base. It is a brutal mountain and yet people go up there, or at least try to, even in winter. One hundred and twenty-two people have lost their lives on Washington, the second most murderous mountain in North America. Only Mount Denali in Alaska has claimed more.

Washington is the highest peak north of the Smokies and east of the Rockies at 6,288 feet. It is the most popular summit in the White Mountains.

Somehow those March winds we experience in Texas don't seem so bad now.

Waste Management founder denies allegations in SEC lawsuit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The founder and former head of Waste Management Inc. denies government allegations that he and five former top executives of the giant trash hauler misled stockholders for years — or that the company's auditor, embattled Arthur Andersen LLP, inaccurately reported on the company's finances.

A half-dozen former executives of Waste Management, including Dean L. Buntrock, were accused Tuesday of inflating earnings by $1.7 billion as part of an accounting fraud scheme designed to enrich them and dupe shareholders.

In a civil lawsuit, the Securities and Exchange Commission said Andersen, which is embroiled in a document-shredding controversy with Enron Corp., helped perpetrate the Waste Management scheme, identifying 32 "must-do" steps to cover it up.

SEC officials alleged the executives engaged in "massive earnings management fraud" from 1992 to 1997 that ultimately cost shareholders more than $6 billion. In a statement, Buntrock denied the allegations.

"I firmly believe that, while under my watch, all of Waste Management's financials were fairly reported and in compliance with (generally accepted accounting principles)," he said.

"I was never told otherwise, either by our internal accountants or our outside auditors," he commented.

In a lawsuit filed last month, he said the SEC is not entitled to sue him because the allegations are based on an analysis by two former consultants to Waste Management who are now the SEC's chief accountant and its chief accountant in the enforcement division.

In Tuesday's civil complaint filed in U.S. District Court in Chicago, the SEC said Buntrock and five other former top officers hid millions in expenses and assigned arbitrary salvage values to assets that previously had no value.

They also did not write off the costs of unsuccessful or abandoned landfill projects, the complaint said.

According to the SEC, officials received performance-based bonuses and valuable stock options based on inflated earnings, with several cashing in their stocks before unfavorable earnings reports lowered share prices.

In one instance, the SEC said, Buntrock even got a tax benefit by donating inflated company stock to his college alma mater to fund a building in his name.

The SEC said the scheme unraveled in late 1997, after a new CEO ordered a review of the company's accounting practices. In 1998, Waste Management restated its 1992-1997 earnings by $1.7 billion, the largest restatement in corporate history, the SEC said.

The news sent Waste Management's stock value tumbling by more than one-third. Shareholders lost over $6 billion in the market value of their shares, the SEC said.

Company officials noted Tuesday that the alleged fraud took place before 1998, when Waste Management was acquired by a Houston company.

"We have cooperated fully with the SEC in the investigation and do not believe that the SEC will seek any action against New Waste Management in connection with the events detailed in the complaint," said A. Maurice Myers, the company's chairman, president and CEO.

Condit subpoenaed to testify regarding Levy disappearance

WASHINGTON (AP) — California Rep. Gary Condit has been subpoenaed to testify early next month by a grand jury investigating the disappearance of Chandra Levy, a source told The Associated Press.

A Superior Court grand jury in Washington has been examining allegations that Condit and aides tried to prevent witnesses from cooperating with the Levy investigation.

The Washington Post reported the subpoena Tuesday, citing law enforcement sources. Last fall, the congressman disclosed that the grand jury had subpoenaed documents relating to the Levy case.

Condit, D-Calif., has denied any involvement in Levy's disappearance. He and his aides also have denied attempting to silence anyone.

Levy, 24, of Modesto, Calif., disappeared without a trace in Washington nearly 11 months ago, shortly after she finished an internship at the U.S. Bureau of Prisons. Condit, 53 and married, reportedly told police that he and Levy were having an affair.

Police have no idea what happened to Levy, despite an extensive investigation that included scores of officers and recruits combing local parks and abandoned buildings. "There is no light at the end of the tunnel," Terrance Gainer, the deputy police chief, said.

Channing Phillips, a spokesman for the U.S. Attorney's office in Washington, would not confirm or deny the issuance of the subpoena. The investigation, he said, "is ongoing and active."

Condit aides in Washington and Modesto, Calif., referred calls to Mark Geragos, Condit's Los Angeles-based attorney.

Federal law enforcement officials have said they were examining whether Condit and his aides may have obstructed the search for Levy by asking other women who alleged they had affairs with the congressman not to cooperate with police.

Dealt setbacks, administration shifts focus to truce talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration shifted its attention to U.S.-supervised truce talks between Israel and the Palestinians as its hopes dwindled for Arab endorsement of a Saudi peace proposal.

"The most important thing going on in the region is that Gen. Zinni continues to be engaged directly in the work of ending the violence," State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said Tuesday.

Anthony Zinni, the retired Marine general and Bush's envoy to the Middle East, continued talks with Israeli and Palestinian officials to end 18 months of violence and start the two sides toward peacemaking. Some progress was reported.

In the meantime, U.S. diplomacy was dealt a series of setbacks.

Despite a plea by President Bush, Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon said "conditions are not ripe" to permit Yasser Arafat to attend an Arab summit meeting in Lebanon.

Sharon insisted the Palestinian leader call a cease-fire first. Additionally, he said, Arafat could not go unless the American administration backed any Israeli decision to bar Arafat from returning if violence occurred during the Palestinian's absence.

A few hours later, Arafat announced his decision not to go to Beirut.

The U.S. hope had been that Arab leaders, with Arafat present, would approve a peace overture by Crown Prince Abdullah of Saudi Arabia.

After the setbacks, White House spokesman Ari Fleischer avoided criticism of Sharon or Arafat. He said Bush "continues to believe that it's better if the Beirut summit focuses on peace and not attendance."

Arafat's absence would not foreclose the leaders taking that step anyway. Preliminary soundings from Beirut, however, indicated scant interest in offering peace to Israel.

Hassan Abdel Rahman, the ranking Palestinian official in the United States, said Sharon's terms were "humiliating and extortionate, and no Palestinian will acquiesce in those conditions, which are illegal and immoral."

Abdel Rahman, interviewed by The Associated Press, also criticized the Bush administration. "There is a sense of disappointment with the United States. There is a feeling they did not try hard" to persuade Sharon, Abdel Rahman said.

Presented Sharon's conditions, the White House concentrated on urging Arab leaders to back the Saudi peace offer, with or without the Palestinian leader on hand.

Described as a vision by both Saudi Arabia and the Bush administration, Crown Prince Abdullah's proposal would have Arab countries recognize Israel. In return, Israel would relinquish all land the Arabs lost in the 1967 Six-Day War, accept a Palestinian state with its capital in Jerusalem and consider letting hundreds of thousands of Palestinian refugees settle in Israel.

Four accused of duping would-be citizens, faking naturalization ceremonies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Four people were charged with taking money from immigrants seeking to become U.S. citizens and then staging bogus naturalization ceremonies complete with fake judges.

A yearlong investigation dubbed "Operation Charade" led to the arrests Tuesday of Elzbieta Malgorzata Bugajska, 50; John Patrick Bradley, 56; Yolanda Miel Lubiano, 62; and Lorena Velasquez Garcia, 39, a 15-year employee of the Social Security Administration.

Most of the victims were Koreans and Filipinos who were promised that their immigration applications would receive fast-track processing.

The scam included giving victims a quiz on American history and politics and leading them in the Pledge of Allegiance during staged ceremonies, Assistant U.S. Attorney Andrew Cowan said. Some of those who were duped paid as much as $25,000, authorities said.

Immigration and Naturalization Service investigators said victims told them of a swearing-in ceremony at Lubiano's home in October 2000. At the ceremony, Bradley wore a judge's robe and conferred "citizenship" on 14 people, authorities said.

Authorities also accused Bugajska of selling immigrants genuine Social Security cards, allegedly obtained from Garcia, for $750.

Spiritual help available at the library just in time for Easter

We have come to the end of the Lenten season. The Library has received many new books on spirituality and religion and they are available for checkout. The Library will be closed Friday and Saturday for the Easter holiday.

In "The Hidden Gospel: Decoding the Spiritual Message of the Aramaic Jesus", Dr. Neil Douglas-Klotz's presents what he considers to be the overlooked aspect of the Gospels, namely the Aramaic writings of the early Church.

Aramaic was the spoken language of Jesus' day.

In presenting his translations of these Early Church writings, the author discusses a mystical aspect of the Gospels that harkens back to the Gnostic controversy.

Are you struggling with a lack of faith? "Why Can't I Believe" is a series of conversations between Baker and several people who are struggling with their faith. Through these conversations, Gaylord Noyce offers insights into some of these struggles and discusses ways in which seekers can come to faith.

The birth and crucifixion of Christ is told through the eyes of those who were there.

Nathan the Shepherd recalls the night that a great light led them to a stable in Bethlehem while Ahkmet the Innkeeper shares his shame that such a special baby was born in a humble manger.

Barabbas the Zealot agonizes over the man who took his place on cross and Judas the Betrayer explains, "he was only trying to help".

In these and six other

imaginative portraits we add a new dimension to our experience and understanding of the life of Chris.

"If Only I Had Known" authored by David P. Polk, minister, author and educator for Chalice Press.

William A. Beardslee has written "First Corinthians: A Commentary for Today".

In 1 Corinthians, Paul speaks to the members of an ancient church.

But what does that letter from long ago say to Christians today?

In this commentary, Beardslee opens up this important scripture in the context of its own time and in relation to ours.

Scholars, preachers, and laypeople alike will find new and valuable insights in this work.

Would you like to study the Old Testament?

"Beginning Old Testament Study" by John Rogerson and David J. A. Clines will introduce beginners to biblical scholarship in a clear and readable style.

The focus in on key issues in the Old Testament; raising questions that students' inevitably encounter as they move forward in their studies.

"Now What's a Christian to Do?" by David P. Polk is designed to stir serious thought and lively discussion on tough, contemporary issues.

Each unit in the book addresses a topic, presents background information and perspectives from a process theology point of view, then lets the readers work through their own solutions.

Amid the challenges of contemporary life, people are looking for a spirituality that works in today's world.

Bruce G. Epperly has written "The Power of Affirmative Faith".

In it he invites seekers to experience creative transformation through a dynamic, contemporary spiritual discipline that combines the traditional and the new, scripture and spirituality, body and spirit, individuality and relationship.

When asked to offer a prayer in a non-church setting, do you refuse because you do not know what to say?

In Gail E. Bowman's "Praying the Sacred in Secular Setting" gives detailed guidelines for how to begin, end and construct a body of prayers and offers a selection of prayers that can be used or adapted for any number of occasions.

Additional books the Library has received: "He Chose the Nails: What God Did to Win Your Heart" by Max Lucado; "Stewards Shaped by Grace" by Rhodes Thompson; authored by R. Scott Colglazier; "Touchstones: Spiritual Awakenings in Everyday Life" and "Finding a Faith That Makes Sense"; "Spirit Journey: A Walk Through Matthew" by Will S. Keim; "Jesus' Twenty Megatruths" by Herb Miller; "Building a Relationship with God: Soul Time" by Peter Atkins and "Living Traditions of the Bible" edited by James E. Bowley.

Howard County Library is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday to Friday, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays.

Story-time is Wednesday at 10 a.m. in the Children's Area.

Hollis McCright writes a regular column on what's new at the library.

Will the real Easter Bunny please stand up?

SOUTH PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — The Easter Bunny is making tracks on Santa Claus' turf, using one of the biggest Christian holidays as an opportunity to lure little tykes and their parents to the mall.

A majority of malls that hire a Santa for December are now hiring a bunny for at least two weeks before Easter, and there's a growing expectation among children who visit the bunny that he'll leave a toy along with candy in their Easter basket.

"We are seeing a lot of pressure through marketing to begin to expect a level of present-giving that (kids) get at Christmas," said Chris Byrne, a New York toy consultant and editor of The Toy Report.

Some see it as the crass commercialization of a day set aside to celebrate the resurrection of Jesus Christ. But for many parents, it's just springtime fun for their children.

Amber Carr's 4-year-old daughter Anastasia even wrote a letter to the Easter Bunny asking for gifts and treats.

On Easter Sunday, she will get a basket and a present, but she won't be going to church.

"It's too complicated," said Carr, of Randolph. She and her husband were raised with different religious backgrounds and decided not to participate in either as adults, she said.

Dr. Daniel Akin, dean of theology at the Southern Baptist Seminary in Louisville, Ky., sees the arrival of the mall bunny as just one more example of the commercial exploitation of Christianity.

"When Easter is reduced to nothing more than a bunny, Easter eggs and chocolate, we have reached a tragic day, because that is not what Easter was about to begin with and it's not what it should be about today," he said.

But the Rev. Eric Shafer, director of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, says the Easter Bunny is a golden opportunity to spread the Christian word, like a good ad campaign.

"Many churches have Easter egg hunts," he said. "The real question is, do you complain what secular society has done with religious symbols or do you use it as an opportunity. I say the latter."

According to retailers, Easter has become the second-biggest toy-giving holiday after Christmas.

The big bunny is a way for malls to lure customers, said Bonnie Fluck, spokeswoman for Cherry Hill Photo Enterprises in New Jersey, which provides Santas and bunnies for more than 230 malls across the country.

"It's not really the same draw as Santa," she admits.

Nonetheless, more parents seem to be making special trips to shopping centers to line up with their toddlers hoping for a photo with the white-tailed, pink-eared bunny.

Peggy MacLeod of Newfield repeatedly pushed her 2-year-old daughter, Casey Monahan, toward the bunny at the Maine Mall, hoping to get a photo — typically ranging from $9 to $35. But little Casey, like many other toddlers, protested.

"Noooooo! I don't like the bunny," she cried.

"I'm more excited to have a picture with the bunny than she is," MacLeod admitted, leaving empty-handed.

The Easter Bunny waves and sits in a festive spring village, but there's no cheery "Easter music" or bustling shoppers. And the bunny is quiet compared to Santa's "Ho ho ho!"

"Typically, the Easter Bunny really can't talk. Have you ever seen a talking bunny?" said Rick Eggsecker from St. Louis-based SantaPlus, the other big company that provides Santas and bunnies to malls across the country.

Overcommitted suburb squeezes in one collective night off to make time for family

RIDGEWOOD, N.J. (AP) — They act like kids, lugging L.L. Bean backpacks to their car pool while debating the best colors for orthodontic retainers and whether to peek at their report cards.

But the third-graders in the backseat of Rosemary Chersi's sport utility vehicle balance almost adult schedules, each day a clockwork of school, sports practices and private lessons.

When this commuter village 20 miles from New York decided those jam-packed schedules left no time for families, the calendars came out. It took seven months of planning, but on Tuesday, the upscale community of stately homes and gilt-lettered shops will take a collective night off.

"It's a sin that you actually have to plan a day with no activities," said Chersi, who has three sons. "But in this day and age, it's nice they're trying to do something about it."

The idea of Ridgewood Family

Night started with a frustrated mother of three.

As Marcia Marra helped other families through her work with the nonprofit Family Counseling Service, she realized her own family was spending less time together.

Last year, she and other residents began looking for answers. They considered community-education programs and book discussion groups about overcommitted families.

Then it came to them: They would plan a night with no sporting events, no homework and nowhere anyone had to be.

"We get a lot of kidding — 'Oh, that's so Ridgewood to plan a night to do nothing,'" said the Rev. Douglas Frumm of the Community Church At Upper Ridgewood who helped organize the night.

It took an 18-member committee, a half-dozen meetings, a publicity campaign donated by a local marketing firm and appointments with school, athletics and spiritual leaders.

Then the committee had to pick a date that didn't conflict with sports seasons, religious holidays or exam schedules.

While the irony of "Ridgewood Family Night — Ready, Set, Relax" has escaped no one, support has been widespread.

"It's a little oxymoronic, but I think it's terrific. I wish other communities would do it," said Dr. Alvin Rosenfeld, a child psychologist and co-author of "The Over-Scheduled Child."

Rosenfeld says kids' free time has been "professionalized" — and carefully scheduled, adult-supervised activities prevent them from developing their imaginations.

Even for children who thrive on structure and competition, there's a cost, Marra said — perhaps fewer family dinners and vacations.

"When you think about your own childhood, those are the times you made the best memories with your family," Marra said.

Ridgewood is not alone in its stand against overscheduling. Neighboring Bergenfield will join in family night.

Three years ago, the Minneapolis suburbs of Plymouth and Wayzata formed an organization called Family Life 1st, urging parents to think carefully before signing children up for new activities.

The scheduling crunch affects many of Ridgewood's nearly 30,000 residents, more than 6,300 of whom are 14 and younger.

Chersi's day begins with dropping off 8-year-old Christopher at elementary school.

If the weather is bad, she also drives Bobby, 12, to junior high. Then it's back home to supervise 4-year-old T.J.'s play dates or accompany him to a once-a-week swim lesson or gym class.

About noon, she delivers him to preschool.

In a couple of hours, she picks up her sons, and sometimes their friends.

The rest of the day is for sports practices, homework and an occasional religious-education class.

The family eats dinner together twice a week, spends time together in the evenings, at sporting events and of course, in the car. But Chersi was looking forward to an entire evening to relax.

So was Bobby.

"It's a good way to get no homework," the sixth-grader said.

School Superintendent Frederick Stokley directed teachers not to assign homework to the village's 5,300 public school students.

And the Ridgewood Sports Council canceled practices.

"I think we can send a message to parents that there's more to the educational experience — and more to their own family experience — than trying to sign their kids up for every new activity that comes down the road," council president Frank Giordano said.

From miser to philanthropist: Postal worker's fortune will help the blind HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — C.J. Teubert never made more than $6,000 a year during his career as a postal worker, and used to go around in secondhand clothes.

He scribbled his "last will, etc." on the back of an old business letter without wasting a single word, much less paper.

When he died at 91 in 1979, Teubert left an estate worth more than $3 million, most of which he dedicated to helping the blind.

More than 23 years after the death of the miser-turned-philanthropist, Huntington is starting to see the results of Teubert's vision.

With a $1 million grant from the Teubert trust and additional money from other charities, the American Foundation for the Blind, headquartered in New York, has chosen this depressed former steel town as the site of a new laboratory that will test devices designed to make it easier for the blind to make their way into the work force.

Last month, the foundation opened an interim laboratory with about a half-dozen employees in what used to be a department store.

The foundation plans to build a new lab in an industrial park just outside of Huntington.

It is expected to be at least two years before it opens.

The center will become a "Consumer Reports-type laboratory for the blind," foundation spokesman Michael Sylvie said.

He said his organization hopes to ease the 70 percent unemployment rate among the nation's blind with the testing of such things as speech synthesizers for computers.

The laboratory is still being designed and the foundation is unable to say how many people it will ultimately employ.

Teubert's bequest left the city with two mysteries, one of them more easily answered than the other:

How did the civil servant amass such a fortune? And why did he leave it to the blind?

"Mr.

Teubert dearly loved to read, and he told one or two of his friends that he couldn't imagine anything worse than losing his eyesight," said Jimelle Bowen, the trust's executive director. "He said, 'I feel sorry for the blind. They can't read and they can't see anything in this world.'"

No one is entirely sure

"Mr. Teubert dearly loved to read, and he told one or two of his friends that he couldn't imagine anything worse than losing his eyesight," said Jimelle Bowen, the trust's executive director.

how he accumulated his wealth.

Teubert never married, had no close relatives, and often wandered the streets of Huntington in cast-off clothes and tennis shoes he scrounged from the Marshall College athletic department.

"I think he could qualify as a 20th century Ebenezer Scrooge," said retired Huntington postmaster Roy Hatton in an interview several years before his death last year. "I never knew him to have a car. He walked practically everywhere he went, and with his clothing, you'd think he was a homeless person rather than what he was." Bowen said Teubert was a canny investor who was fascinated with stocks.

"He would walk into the post office and grab a Wall Street Journal out of the trash can," Bowen said.

"At lunchtime he would go to the Coal Exchange Building and hang out where they were posting stock-market reports."

While Teubert's life story suggests that he was a lowly civil servant who invested his way to wealth, there are hints he may have begun with a family inheritance.

Teubert's parents separated while Teubert was young.

In a letter written before her death in 1937, and found in one of her son's scrapbooks, Teubert's mother said she did not want to be buried next to her estranged husband, and she warned that if any of her children disregarded her wishes, they were to be cut off from their inheritance.

Teubert's own will listed several modest bequests.

To two distant cousins, he left $500 plus $20 a month for life, with smaller amounts to six other individuals.

Other bequests included $1,000 gifts — paid out over 10 years — to several Huntington churches and other charities.

"Residue to aid the blind only," Teubert concluded.

The stingy wording raised more questions than it answered and became the subject of a court fight among several institutions and charitable organizations that lasted more than eight years.

Before the wrangling was over in 1987, the estate had grown to $9 million.

Today, the James H. and Alice Teubert Charitable Trust, which honors his parents, has about $22 million in assets.

USA Today poll ranks Dallas Lincoln best team in nation

DALLAS (AP) — Reigning Class 4A champion Dallas Lincoln on Tuesday became the first school in Texas to claim a mythical national title — two of them, in fact.

The Tigers (40-0) finished the season as the best team in the country in the final USA Today ranking and in the National Prep Basketball Poll, both released Tuesday. Lincoln started its season unranked by USA Today.

"Some of that is being in the right place at the right time," Lincoln coach Leonard Bishop said Tuesday as he fiddled with his state championship medal. "We had the expectation and the opportunity to win."

The newly minted national champions were honored Tuesday with a special ceremony in front of their South Dallas school.

With gold medals dangling around their necks, the Tigers basked as city and state politicians, community activists, alumni and about 1,500 students lauded the team's special season.

"I didn't think it was going to blow up this big," said senior point guard Bryan Hopkins, who was surrounded by students and other well-wishers following the festivities. "It feels better than we thought it would. It's a great feeling to know that so many people are proud of us."

Lincoln swatted away every obstacle in its path with a big man in McDonald's All-American Chris Bosh, a floor leader in Hopkins, a shooter in Kevis Shipman and talented players all over the roster.

Bishop took advantage of his depth, employing a full-court pressure defense that created havoc for opposing guards. Bosh has signed with Georgia Tech and Hopkins will attend Southern Methodist in the fall.

Mike Kunstadt, publisher of Texas Hoops magazine, said Lincoln ranks among the best high school basketball teams he's seen in the past 20 years.

"They have just totally dominated the competition," Kunstadt said. "I have no hesitation putting them up there against some of the best ever."

The Tigers have beaten nationally ranked Midwest City of Oklahoma at the KMOX Classic in St. Louis and won the American Press tournament in Louisiana by defeating St. Martinsville of Louisiana, the top-ranked program in that state.

They've also trounced several tough local foes, including Cedar Hill, which was then ranked among the nation's top 10 teams. The Tigers won that game before more than 17,000 fans at Reunion Arena in a tuneup before the playoffs.

Lincoln went on to defeat its six playoff opponents by an average of 26 points, culminating with a 20-point romp over defending champ Beaumont Ozen in the finals.

"They are a very dominant, well-coached team," said Christopher Lawlor, who scouts and ranks the high school teams for USA Today. "Everything clicked for them this year. They are certainly a legit No. 1 team."

And, Lawlor added, Lincoln's surprising run to the national crown — referred to as mythical because there are no national playoffs — could steer more national attention and college basketball recruiters to the Lone Star State.

Steers, Lady Steers win

HERALD Staff Reports

It was a good day for Big Spring... period.

Big Spring's Steers got back on the right track Tuesday afternoon with a 7-3 win over San Angelo Lake View's Chiefs in District 4-4A baseball action at Steer Park, while just down Eighth Street at the Big Spring ISD Softball Complex, the Lady Steers made short work of Plainview, run ruling the Lady Bulldogs, 12-1.

Three straight losses following their district-opening win over Lubbock Estacado seemingly had the Steers well out of the 4-4A baseball chase, but Tuesday's victory put Big Spring in the middle of the district standings with a 2-3 record. The win improved their overall record to 5-12.

While well off the pace set by league-leading Snyder and Andrews, both 5-0 in district play, and the 4-1 mark owned by Frenship's Tigers, the Steers are currently in fourth place — one game ahead of Plainview, Lake View, Estacado and Levelland.

The Steers jumped on the Chiefs early, scoring two runs in each of the first two innings and chasing Lake View starter Zach Newell.

Big Spring added another run in the fourth inning and two more in the fifth, to provide the run support Andrew Vizcaino needed to chalk up the win.

Vizcaino helped himself out offensively, as both he and shortstop Jon McKinnon provided key doubles.

Dustyn Beauchamp pitched the seventh inning to record the save.

"That's probably the best game we've played offensively and defensively this season," Steers head coach Greg Winder. "Andrew did a good job of pitching. It makes a difference when you step up on the mound and throw strikes."

The Steers now travel to Levelland for a 4:30 p.m. Friday game that had originally been scheduled for Big Spring first baseman Laura Olague leaps in an effort to catch a high throw, as pitcher Alex Watkins looks on during the Lady Steers' win over San Angelo Lake View last week. The Lady Steers took a 12-1 win over Plainview's Lady Bulldogs on Tuesday, remaining tied atop the District 4-4A standings with Andrews' Lady Mustangs.

Saturday. For the Lady Steers, Tuesday's victory was actually a come-from-behind win, because Plainview managed to take a 1-0 lead in the top of the first inning.

The lone Lady Bulldogs run came when Big Spring freshman pitcher Alex Watkins hit a batter with a pitch. A stolen base and an impressive RBI single by Plainview star Alicia Robertson put the Lady Steers behind.

Not for long. The Lady Steers responded with three runs in the bottom of the first inning on singles by Leina Braxton and Watkins, a Plainview error and a double by Bridgett Cain.

They added another when Braxton hit a one-out double and scored on an Erica Stewart Single.

Four more runs came in the third, the biggest blow coming off the bat of Whitney Hufford, who singled home a pair of runs.

The Lady Steers added two more runs in the fourth inning to take a 10-1 lead into the fifth inning.

And they didn't waste any time in bringing the game to an early end. Stewart led off the Big Spring fifth with a bunt single. Hufford then reached base on an error that put runners at second and third. Laura Olague ended it with a single to left center.

Now 12-8 on the season, the Lady Steers improved to 6-1 in District 4-4A and are tied atop the league standings with Andrews' Lady Mustangs.

The Lady Steers will travel to Wolforth on Thursday for a 4 p.m. game against Frenship's Lady Tigers. JV squads will play at 5:30.

Memphis, S. Carolina in NIT final

NEW YORK (AP) — Dajuan Wagner played like a pro.

He looked right at home at Madison Square Garden, tying a career high with 32 points, including a late 3-pointer from behind the NBA arc.

His best play, though, was the one that won it. He drove to the basket and passed to Kelly Wise, who dunked with 18.6 seconds left, giving Memphis a 78-77 victory over Temple on Tuesday night.

"I just attacked the defense, and everybody collapsed on me," Wagner said. "I saw Kelly down there by himself."

The Tigers (26-9) will play South Carolina, a 66-59 semifinal winner over Syracuse, in Thursday's title game.

Wagner, 19, has not announced whether he'll return for his sophomore season. Memphis coach John Calipari thinks Wagner would be taken in the NBA draft's first 13 picks if he left.

"He has made my life a joy for the past six months," Calipari said. "He's our most unselfish player."

The Owls (18-15) were without injured top scorer Lynn Greer, who averaged 23.2 points. They beat crosstown rival Villanova in the quarterfinals without him, but the Owls missed the open space his long-distance shooting usually gave them.

Without Greer, who has an ankle injury, Owls coach John Chaney wanted his shooters — David Hawkins and Brian Polk — to take more shots.

"I got (angry) at Polk," Chaney said. "Once you get in the paint, they have a license to shoot."

"Sometimes I don't think he knows what he does. He doesn't take open shots when he gets them. He decides to drive when he's open."

Mavericks finally manage to win one in Milwaukee

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Dallas Mavericks tried just about everything else in Milwaukee without winning, so why not play a zone?

The strategy worked against the undermanned Bucks as Dallas broke a 14-year drought in Milwaukee with a 112-106 overtime victory Tuesday night.

Dallas coach Don Nelson's decision to go with the zone was easy after Bucks guard Michael Redd injured his left knee with Milwaukee ahead by 13 points in the fourth quarter. The Bucks already were without Sam Cassell (toe) and Ray Allen (knee), and with their best shooters out and Glenn Robinson mired in a 7-for-22 night, the Bucks had nothing to counter Nick Van Exel and Michael Finley.

"I think it was just the team that had the most shooters on the court at the end — that was us," Nelson said. "I think when Redd went out, it really hurt their chances. We couldn't guard him. He's a really good player."

Redd was on his way for a breakaway layup off a steal when Raef LaFrentz fouled him hard and toppled over him with 11 minutes left in regulation.

Redd limped to the foul line and sank two shots for an 81-68 lead. But he couldn't take the pain and left the game two minutes later.

"When Michael Redd went out, there wasn't a lot of offense," Bucks coach George Karl said. They got the zone in there and we were playing with two non-shooters on the court."

Van Exel scored 13 points in the fourth quarter, including a 3-pointer with 1:27 left that tied it at 95. His finger-roll gave the Mavericks their first lead at 99-98 with 3:20 left in overtime. They didn't trail again.

Finley scored 21 of his 36 points in the first half for the Mavs.

The Mavericks hadn't won in Milwaukee since 1987 at the old Milwaukee Arena.

Elsewhere, Utah beat Houston 109-105 on John Stockton's 40th birthday; and it was Sacramento 107, the Los Angeles Clippers 90; Orlando 96, Chicago 82; Atlanta 103, New Jersey 77; Washington 103, Denver 87; Detroit 96, Indiana 77; Golden State 115, Minnesota 106; and the Los Angeles Lakers 121, Cleveland 116.

Jazz 109,

Rockets 105

Stockton had 20 points and became the 10th NBA player to play at age 40. Karl Malone scored 23 and Greg Ostertag added 10 of his 12 points in the fourth quarter as the Jazz officially knocked Houston from the playoff race.

"I don't pay a lot of attention to the hype," he said. "I didn't want to play poorly, but that's really like any night."

The Jazz won their 11th straight at home over the Rockets despite 32 points by Steve Francis, who was held to two in the fourth quarter. Cuttino Mobley added 28 points.

Kings 107, Clippers 90

Chris Webber dominated his matchup with Elton Brand, and rookie Gerald Wallace scored 14 points in his first career start.

Webber made 11 of 12 shots during one stretch and finished with 35 points and 13 rebounds as Sacramento reached 50 victories. The Kings maintained a half-game lead over the Lakers for the NBA's best record.

Brand was held to just three points and four rebounds by Webber.

Michael Olowokandi scored 23 to lead the Clippers, who lost their third straight as Sacramento improved the NBA's best home record to 33-4.

Magic 96, Bulls 82

Tracy McGrady had 20 points, 11 rebounds and seven assists in his first game back after suffering back spasms last Friday. McGrady hadn't played since after being wheeled off the court on a stretcher.

Monty Williams had 18 points and a season-high 11 rebounds for Orlando.

Jalen Rose scored 20

Rocker struggles as Rangers suffer 11-8 exhibition loss to Red Sox

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

John Rocker might not be up to replacing the injured Jeff Zimmerman as Texas' closer.

Rocker allowed four runs in one inning during an 11-8 loss to the Boston Red Sox on Tuesday after Zimmerman was placed on the 15-day disabled list with tendinitis in his right elbow.

"I need to make a few more quality pitches. I did some good things, and I'm trying to focus on them," Rocker said.

Zimmerman, who hasn't pitched since March 6, is expected to miss at least one month. The news was better on Rangers starter Ismael Valdes, who returned to Florida on Tuesday night after tests showed no ligament damage in his right elbow.

Elsewhere, Moises Alou played for the first time in more than a week, going 2-for-3 with an RBI in the Chicago Cubs' 13-11 loss to Oakland in Mesa, Ariz. Alou had been sidelined for much of the spring with a strained muscle on his left side.

"I'm feeling OK," he said. "I think I'm going to be all right. Just get in these final three or four games, and tune up for the opening of the season."

Miguel Tejada's two-run homer capped a seven-run Oakland rally in the eighth inning. Sammy Sosa, Chris Stynes and Joe Girardi homered for the Cubs.

Marlins catcher Charles Johnson returned to limited action, catching and hitting for the first time in three weeks. But the two-time All-Star likely won't be ready for the season opener.

Johnson sprained his left thumb March 5 when he ran into Montreal first baseman Joe Vitiello. He wore a cast for two weeks, allowing swelling and soreness to subside, then regained strength and flexibility during the past week.

Johnson eased back into baseball activities Tuesday, catching soft toss and hitting off a tee.

"It's an injury that I have to be concerned about," Johnson said. "I can't rush it because it's my thumb. With me being a catcher, I'm dealing with this thumb every pitch, every time a guy throws a baseball and every time I swing a bat. I have to be very careful."

In other games:

Yankees 11, Pirates 5

At Tampa, Fla., Todd Greene homered twice and drove in six runs before getting released by New York. Greene, who also made three errors, lost the reserve spot he held last season to Alberto Castillo.

Dodgers 7, Mets 1

At Port St. Lucie, Fla., Omar Daal pitched like a starter one day after being sent to the bullpen, allowing one hit in six scoreless innings for Los Angeles.

Braves 5, Royals 1

At Kissimmee, Fla., Andrew Jones and Mark DeRosa homered and Albie Lopez allowed one run in six innings for Atlanta.

Astros 5, Indians 4

At Kissimmee, Fla., Dave Milicki looked sharp for 5 2-3 innings and Lance Berkman hit a grand slam off Bartolo Colon for Houston.

Devil Rays 3, Blue Jays 3

At Dunedin, Fla., Chris

Carpenter allowed three runs in 6 2-3 innings in his final tuneup for opening day as Toronto tied Tampa Bay.

Marlins 12, Cardinals 4

At Jupiter, Fla., Kevin Millar went 4-for-5 with a grand slam off Bud Smith to lead Florida.

Orioles 10, Expos 5

At Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Marty Cordova hit a grand slam and David Segui had two hits in his return to the Baltimore lineup. Melvin Mora hit his fifth homer in six games and Tony Batista had three hits for the Orioles, who have won 16 of 18.

Twins 12, Reds 9

At Sarasota, Fla., Ken Griffey Jr. hit his first spring homer, but Minnesota beat Cincinnati behind Dustan Mohr's grand slam and two homers by Michael Cuddyer.

Phillies 11, Tigers 3

At Lakeland, Fla., Todd Pratt had two doubles and three RBIs and Mike Lieberthal homered and drove in two runs for Philadelphia.

Mariners 10, Angels 6

At Tempe, Ariz., Charles Gipson, Carlos Guillen and Bret Boone each homered off Lou Pote in the sixth inning to lead Seattle.

Diamondbacks 6, Brewers 2

At Tucson, Ariz., Rick Helling allowed two runs and seven hits in seven innings and Chris Donnels hit a three-run double for Arizona.

points for the visiting Bulls, losers of 13 of 15.

Hawks 103, Nets 77

At Atlanta, Shareef Abdur-Rahim and Jacque Vaughn each scored 18 points as the Hawks blew out the No. 1 team in the East — the worst loss of the season for the Nets.

The Hawks, winning for the seventh time in nine games, took control with a 36-point second quarter.

Rookie Richard Jefferson paced New Jersey with 21 points. Power forward Kenyon Martin was suspended for the game.

Wizards 103, Nuggets 87

Chris Whitney and Richard Hamilton scored 22 points apiece as Washington routed Denver with minimal help from Michael Jordan. Still recovering from knee surgery, Jordan played 20 minutes as a reserve, scoring nine points with six assists.

Etan Thomas had a career-high 13 for the Wizards, playing their first home game in two weeks.

Former Wizards forward Juwan Howard, booed every time he touched the ball, scored 17 for Denver.

Pistons 96, Pacers 77

A confrontation between Corliss Williamson and Jermaine O'Neal marred the game at Indianapolis. Williamson scored 23 points for Detroit before he was ejected near the end.

Williamson and O'Neal were thrown out after they collided under the Pistons' basket with 1:16 to play.

Williamson, driving the baseline, was fouled hard by O'Neal and bounced the ball off O'Neal's back. The two stood on the baseline jawing before O'Neal advanced on Williamson. O'Neal threw at least one punch and one elbow before he was wrapped up by Pacers assistant coach Tree Rollins.

Warriors 115, Timberwolves 106

Antawn Jamison scored 25 points to help the Warriors end a 10-game losing streak.

Reserve Chris Mills added 18 points for the Warriors, who won for just the third time in their last 29 road games.

Kevin Garnett scored 31 points and Wally Szczerbiak had 24 of his 28 in the first half for Minnesota.

Lakers 121, Cavaliers 116

Shaquille O'Neal had 19 points despite sitting out the last 16 minutes, and Rick Fox equaled a season-high with 18 points as Los Angeles won for the 15th time in 19 games.

Ricky Davis scored a career-high 35 points, and Andre Miller had 21 points and nine assists for the Cavaliers.

The Cavaliers had only eight players in uniform. Starters Lamond Murray, Wesley Person and Zydrunas Ilgauskas all sat out the game.

(23-12) Thursday night for third place before the title game. The Orangemen missed a chance to become the first team to win the preseason and postseason NITs in the same year.

South Carolina (22-14) was led by Aaron Lucas, who had a season-high 20 points, and Jamel Bradley, who scored 12 of his 13 points on 3s. Tony Kitchings also had 13 for the Gamecocks.

With a little more than a minute to play, Syracuse trailed 63-59. DeShaun Williams forced a pass into the lane for Kueth Duany, but it was picked off by Rolando Howell with 1:09 left. Lucas made only three of seven free throws down the stretch, but it was enough to hold off the Orangemen, who didn't score in the game's final 2:09.

Conspicuously absent from the game's closing minutes was Syracuse's Preston Shumpert. The senior, who scored 11 first-half points on 3-for-10 shooting, took over in the second half, but didn't score in the final 4:41.

"I guess we were trying to get some (ball) movement," Shumpert said.

Shumpert, who finished with 28 points, outscored his teammates at one point, 28-27.

"He played great," Syracuse coach Jim Boeheim said. "There's only so many times you can give him the ball."

Duany was the only other Syracuse player in double figures, finishing with 15 points. No other Syracuse player had more than Williams' five points.

Both teams brought their home white uniforms, and it wasn't discovered until the teams took the floor for pregame warmups.

Syracuse was supposed to be wearing its road orange, and a student manager was dispatched — with police escort — to get them. Syracuse switched to road jerseys at the first media timeout and came out for the second half wearing its full road uniforms.

You say you didn't notice until it was too late to do anything about it?

Probably, if you aren't checking the Public Notices columns of this newspaper regularly. Public Notices are required by state law to protect your rights and to help you function more effectively as a citizen. Access to information about what government agencies are doing is what makes the American the most powerful citizen in the world. The Public Notices give you access to information you need...about plans for major land use changes...about where roads will go...whose land will be condemned...how your tax dollars will be spent...about court actions that could be important to you, or just plain interesting. Whether you know them as Public Notices or as "the legals", it pays you to check the Public Notice columns in this newspaper each issue. What you don't know might cost you!
