Avery to be key speaker at volunteer awards luncheon

By VALERIE AVERY
Special to the Herald

Longtime volunteer and noted civic speaker Johnnie Lou Avery will be the keynote speaker Wednesday at the Big Spring State Hospital Volunteer

AVERY

Services Council Awards Luncheon.

The luncheon will begin at noon in the Allred Building auditorium for all state hospital volunteers.

More than 150 people are expected to attend the luncheon, which is being held in conjunction with National Volunteer Week.

Approximately 224 volunteers worked nearly 11,040 hours last year to benefit the patients at Big Spring State Hospital. Volunteer activities undertaken range from organizing birthday parties, baking cookies and cakes, purchasing and wrapping hundreds of Christmas presents, collecting items for patients, and working on fund-raisers, such as "Denim and Diamonds."

Volunteers have raised or donated hours equaling more than $102,469, which directly benefits patients.

The Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation provides funding for patients' basic needs, but volunteers provide the extras that make their hospitalization more pleasant, said Billie Russworm, director of community relations.

"Our volunteers put in so many hours and never ask for anything in return," Russworm said. "This luncheon is our way of saying 'thank you.'"

All volunteers will be presented with a gift from the community relations office.

Big Spring State Hospital CEO Ed Moughon will present pins to 33 volunteers who have volunteered for a certain number of hours in their lifetime. Hours worked range from 100 to more than 20,181.

"Our volunteers and the work that they do is so important to the lifeblood of this hospital," Moughon said. "They mean so much to me and our patients. I don't think I could ever thank them enough for all the hours they put into our hospital."

Firefighter earns prestigious honor

Shelhamer recipient of Distinguished Member Award

By ROGER CLINE
Staff Writer

In times of crisis, Big Spring firefighter Dusty Shelhamer goes into action, jetting to far-flung reaches of the United States to lend a hand to those battered by disaster.

And now Shelhamer has been chosen from more than 4,000 disaster team members nationwide as the one to receive the National Disaster Medical System's Distinguished Member Award.

"The Disaster Medical Team that I'm on, they pick a distinguished member every year," he said. "Basically it's like the employee of the year of the rescue side of the organization, and I got picked."

Shelhamer received the award at the group's national awards ceremony April 14 in Atlanta, he said. After the ceremony, seminars and training exercises continued until the 24th, he said.

With his usual modesty, Shelhamer shared the credit for his award with his fellow team members.

"You sit and you question what you did different from anybody else," he said. "I don't think I did anything that everybody else didn't do. You kind of wonder why they pick you when there are so many other people out there that did so much."

The reason the team is so effective is that the members work well together, Shelhamer said.

"Most everybody's the same, really," he said.

"They're firefighters and paramedics from across the nation that come together to be on these teams and we all work together. I think one of the reasons that we do work so well together is because of the 'firefighter-police officer-medical mentality.' We all do the same

Powell praises Israel withdrawal, but cautions that crisis isn't over

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Colin Powell is praising Israel for sticking to its schedule for withdrawing from the West Bank, but says the Middle East crisis won't end until soldiers are back in their garrisons and normal life resumes in Palestinian cities.

"I'm not completely satisfied. I would like to see the withdrawal continue until there is no question about it," Powell said Sunday on CBS' "Face the Nation."

He also urged Israel to ease its confinement of Yasser Arafat so the Palestinian leader can do more to stop violence.

Powell made a round of appearances on television talk shows three days after returning from a Middle East peace trip that failed to secure the cease-fire sought by President Bush. He said he expects to return to the Middle East in the "not-too-

Work of love, memories stitched to benefit local '02 Old Settler's Reunion

By LYNDEL MOODY
Staff Writer

With gentle hands stitching memories together, 70-year-old Katie Cathey, a native of Big Spring, has put together a pictorial history of local landmarks.

"I came up with the idea because people are always talking about things that use to be here but are gone," Cathey said.

The daughter of D.A. Jones, a settler to the area, Cathey decided to make a quilt as a fund-raiser for the annual Howard-Glasscock Old Settler's Reunion.

The annual reunion brings together the community as well as descendants to celebrate the area's heritage.

The 8x10-1/2-foot piece is on display at the Heritage Museum, 510 Scurry, and will be given away at this year's reunion, set for Aug. 3.

Cathey borrowed pictures from the museum and area residents and businesses, including Jess Slaughter, Jr., Quail Dobbs, Wacey Cathey, D.D. Constructions and Jake Glickman to help create the quilt.

Using modern technology to help with the centuries-old craft, Cathey scanned in the borrowed photos and printed the images out on material used for the quilt.

Each block contains a picture and a caption or story such as the Coahoma school house built in 1910. That square also continues the story of how four Coahoma high school students managed to sneak a cow up to

Town hall meetings to resume on June 18

By ROGER CLINE
Staff Reporter

Town Meetings will soon be a reality once more in Big Spring.

A group of about 20 local city, county, school district, college and Moore Development for Big Spring board leaders held an organizational meeting last week and decided that the public discussions of Big Spring's Master Plan will resume June 18.

"What we're going to be doing at that point in time is updating the public on the Master Plan and what has been implemented," said Mayor Russ McEwen. "We felt it was a timely basis to get back to the citizens of Big Spring and say, 'This is what the Master Plan said in 1995,' but more importantly what portion of the Master Plan has been implemented, what is being implemented and what is not implementable."

The meeting, scheduled for 6 p.m. at the Dora job for the same reasons." In 2001, Shelhamer helped out with the severe Houston floods caused by Tropical Storm Allison and in the aftermath of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks in New York.

BIG SPRING AROUND THE TOWN

His team was also "pre-deployed" to other events including the State of the Union Address in Washington, D.C., and the Salt Lake City Winter Olympics.

"We prepare for mass-casualty incidents," he said. "Any time there's a chance of a mass-casualty incident, we pre-deploy. For the State of the Union Address, our bio-terrorism strike teams were there. If there had been a major incident, we'd have already had personnel on-scene. The Olympics was the same thing. It was just a standby mission."

Shelhamer said he enjoys the opportunities to volunteer.

"I love it, I really do," he said. "It's a way to continue firefighting. It's on-the-job training that you just can't get just in Big Spring. There's a lot of things you do here in Big Spring and you never know what to expect, but when you open those horizons up to the nation, there's really a lot of things that you get the opportunity to do and learn by going and seeing it hands on."

Sometimes the pain and suffering he sees working at disaster scenes is incredible, Shelhamer said.

"In this line of work, I guess it's the way you trained or the way it's built into you," he said. "You learn to look over the top of that to get the job done, and then after the job's you can go back and think about it."

Roberts Community Center, will be open to the public and input and discussion will be encouraged.

Planning committee chairperson Dr. Cheryl Sparks, president of Howard College, said committee members will be hard at work during the two months between now and June 18.

"The various entities will be making sure that they've crossed the T's and dotted the I's on the various aspects of the plan that we're responsible for," she said. "We'll be reporting to our individual boards and getting input from our boards as far as the direction they would like to see our particular entities go in the future. We also will find ourselves spending time with each other because many of the points in the plan require coordination between the different entities."

McEwen said the first meeting is mainly planned as an update on the progress that has already been made on the Master Plan, while future meetings will address what changes need to be made to the plan.

"What we're going to try to do over the next month and a half is have all the entities go to their boards and inform them of what has happened with the Master Plan," he said. "Therefore we'll have the groundwork laid and at the Town Meeting what we'll have is an overview, a synopsis of where we are on the Master Plan."

The city's situation has changed since 1995, and the Master Plan needs to be modernized to reflect that change, McEwen said.

"You've got a fluid document in that you say, 'In 1995, these are what our priorities were,' and then you take it seven years forward, and some of those things that were very important then are not as important right now," he said. "To give you an example, at that point in time unemployment was much higher than it is right now. Therefore our shift may be away from attracting industry but rather attracting employees to our community. What we saw last year at our Town Hall Meetings was that a lot of people were interested in our quality of life, making our quality of life better."

Other blocks include a confiscated whisky still, two men on horse back observing Webb Air Force Base bomber crews practicing dropping sand bombs and the Birdwell House, the place Cathey first learned to dance.

"I grew up with all of this and I have fond memories of these places," she said.

Framing the blocks are printed material of Texas wildflowers.

"The quilt is called Memories Blooming in a Field of Texas Wildflowers," she said.

The project took Cathey about three months to finish.

"It brought back lots of memories," Cathey said. "When I got through making the quilt a man offered to purchase it but I told him no because the quilt was to be used to raise funds for the Settler's Reunion."

This year's reunion will be held at the Dora Roberts Community Center and begin with a donut and coffee breakfast at 9 a.m. The event runs until dark.

Wooden horse races, a lunch, dessert auction and readings from three cowboy poets are some of the activities on the schedule. The pioneer family of the year from Howard County and the pioneer family of the year from Glasscock County will be announced.

"We are celebrating the accomplishments of the old settlers," said Tammy Schreengost of the Heritage Museum. "This event is for everyone and we invite the public to come."

President marks Earth Day with clean-air message in N.Y.

WASHINGTON (AP) — In their sharpest clash since the 2000 campaign, President Bush and Al Gore are giving dueling Earth Day speeches — Bush touting his plan to combat air pollution and his former rival contending the White House is sabotaging environmental protections.

Bush was spotlighting a market-based proposal he has promised will deliver "dramatic progress" in air quality. He was making his pitch today at Lake Everest, in New York state's acid rain-plagued Adirondack Mountains.

The president has asked Congress to approve mandatory limits on total industry output of three kinds of pollutants, and to let companies work out how to achieve them through a system of earning and trading credits. The pollutants are acid rain-causing sulfur dioxide, smog-causing nitrogen oxide and mercury, a toxic chemical that contaminates waterways and goes up the food chain through fish to people.

Under his "Clear Skies" plan, Bush maintains, each pollutant would be reduced by about 70 percent by 2018. Congress has yet to vote on his proposal.

Gore contends the plan would ultimately allow more emissions of each than under current law.

"Put simply, on the environment, this administration has consistently sold out America's future in return for short-term political gains," the 2000 Democratic presidential nominee said in a New York Times guest column Sunday. Aides said his speech at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn. — scheduled to begin 25 minutes after Bush's — would echo the article.

The Adirondack Council and some other environmental groups in upstate New York have embraced Bush's plan, which was modeled after the Environmental Protection Agency's program for reducing acid rain.

"It is based on a highly successful program and we're just expanding that to three of the top pollutants," EPA spokesman Joe Martyak said. "Clear Skies is the best solution right now to dealing with some of our biggest pollution and related public health issues."

But other environmental groups warn that the plan would be a step backward from goals set by Clean Air Act regulations already on the books.

Some critics say it would reduce scrutiny of power plant emissions and roll back Clinton administration enforcement programs.

Acid rain is caused when pollutants are carried east on winds from Midwest smokestacks and mix with water vapor in clouds over the Adirondacks.

The Adirondack Council estimates that 500 to 700 of the wilderness area's 2,800 lakes are already too acidic to support native fish and plants. In addition, much of the high-elevation spruce has been damaged and some unique strains of trout have disappeared.

Five die in head-on collision in Texas

CENTERVILLE (AP) — A fiery head-on collision has killed five people in Leon County, the Texas Department of Public Safety says.

State troopers said Eric William Berry of La Porte failed to negotiate a curve and skidded sideways, leaving the westbound lane of Texas 7. When his 1996 Mitsubishi swerved back onto the highway, it colli-ed with an oncoming Saturn driven by Pamela Ann Meadows about 8:30 p.m. Saturday in the Redlands community, about two miles west of Centerville.

Both vehicles were engulfed in flames.

"It was a mess," John Adams, assistant chief of the Centerville Fire Department, told the Bryan-College Station Eagle in Monday's editions.

Among the victims were Berry, 30, and a passenger, Robert Lee Hall Jr., 22, of Deer Park.

Tela Mange, a DPE spokeswoman, identified the victims as the second driver, Meadows, 45; and her passengers Lacey Ann Ammerman, 19, and Brady Ammerman, 14, all of Leander.

All five were killed instantly, the DPS said.

Catholic cardinals heading to Rome

BOSTON (AP) — Cardinal Bernard Law flew to Rome for meetings on the sex abuse crisis in the Roman Catholic Church after telling parishioners that "immediate and decisive changes" were required to address the problem.

Law was one of several cardinals to deliver messages to parishioners on Sunday in advance of their unprecedented meeting with Pope John Paul II to discuss a scandal that has shaken American trust in the church.

Law, who has been at the center of much of the growing criticism over the church's handling of abusive priests, appeared in public Sunday for the first time since Easter.

In a "special message" to the 600 worshippers at the Cathedral of Holy Cross, Law said that he would convey to the pope the gravity of the problem and the need for increased protection of children, services for victims and support for active priests.

"Some have likened the situation ... to last year's Sept. 11 tragedy, a crisis which shocks the heart and soul and which must spark immediate and decisive changes in order to prevent possible recurrence in the future," Law said.

The cardinals of New York, Philadelphia, Miami, Detroit and Baltimore also had messages of encouragement for their congregations Sunday as they prepared to leave for Rome.

Twelve of the 13 American cardinals are expected to attend the meeting.

"Despite the anger and broken trust that many feel toward me, and despite perceptions that (the meeting) is simply a gathering of aged conservative cardinals and Vatican officials, please know that as long as I am in position to do so, I will work tirelessly to address this crisis and to underscore its severity," Law said.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY Tuesday, April 23:
Your creativity frequently comes to the rescue. You're able to verbalize what few can. You work best individually, but you could encounter problems when dealing with others financially. Read all fine print and, if you can, refuse to accumulate any more debt. In fact, you might want to minimize your expenses. Responsibilities surround your funds and handling of your assets. Count on your ability to communicate. If you are single, meeting people will come easily. You could form a very important relationship this year. Romance flourishes in general. If you're attached, avoid fighting over money; rather, develop a long-term security plan. VIRGO might have a crush on you!

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19) * Pressure builds because of another at a distance or because others think you want something key from them. Communication will open up if you start talking. You might not be comfortable revealing so much. Consider your options. Tonight: Work out tension through a favorite sport.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) * You could feel let down by another and his or her perspective. How this person feels about a situation could change substantially. You know how to make up this loss through your creativity and fast thinking. Consider your options. Tonight: Be more playful.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)  Stay centered despite another's onslaught. Others might be out of synch with you. You won't be able to force someone into a good mood. Using your instincts with a personal matter encourages you to talk. Start a dialogue while you can. Tonight: Play it cool.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) * Speak your mind, but realize that an associate just might not want to hear you. If possible, reorganize a project, as you might not be able to communicate what you feel is necessary. Make plans later to get together with another who understands you. Tonight: At a favorite spot.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) * A child or loved one throws a tantrum. You might discover that you're best off handling your finances on your own. You could find everyone counting on your financial contribution. Say "no." A friend needs to learn your limits. Tonight: Treat yourself!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) * Emphasize what is good in a situation rather than what is a problem. You can remain confident that someone doesn't see eye to eye with you. Do your thing right now. Brainstorm with others. Seek out experts, but detach from a domestic matter. Tonight: It's your decision.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)  Realize that you might not be comfortable with what you are hearing. Rather than reacting or starting a mini-battle, distance yourself. Deal with a close, trustworthy associate on a one-on-one level. Understanding comes through this talk. Tonight: Get a good night's sleep.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) * How you view a change could be dramatically different from those around you. Eye the common good and go out of your way for another. Understanding could be enhanced through a conversation. Reorganize your budget. Tonight: Where the crowds are.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)  You could be the center of your problems, not others. Take a hard look in the mirror. Listen to what a parent or respected associate says. Re-evaluate. Promote better understanding through speaking about barriers. Assume responsibility. Tonight: In the limelight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)  The less you assume, the better your communication will be. You can't always have things as you would like. Steer clear of problems involving a risk or someone's anger. Either way, you could find yourself knee-deep in alligators. Tonight: Rent a movie on the way home.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) * Deal with another on a one-on-one level if you want success. Your family or a personal matter involving a domestic issue could still be a hot potato to handle. Let this situation simmer down while you put your energy into more constructive ventures. Tonight: Follow another's lead.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)  You might shrug at another's issues, but you cannot get around it either. A boss could be touchy, and you might let him or her know that you have had enough. How wise is this? Think in terms of the long term, and you could change your mind. Tonight: Follow the action.

OUR VIEWS

Let's support region-bound area athletes

This will be a busy and truly important week for a great many Crossroads area high school athletes, as regional tournaments and meets are staged in Abilene, San Angelo and Levelland.

Region I, Class 4A action got under way this morning in San Angelo for Big Spring's tennis team and golfer Jerrod Simmons.

The schedule will get even busier this weekend with the Region I, Class 4A track meet in San Angelo and Big Spring's Lady Steers opening play in the Class 4A softball playoffs.

Big Spring's regional qualifiers are by no means alone, as every school in the Crossroads area — Coahoma, Forsan, Stanton, Garden City, Sands and Grady — have teams or individuals advancing to compete in golf, tennis or track at the regional level.

In addition, Coahoma has continued its tradition of winning district championships in both baseball and softball, and will soon begin playoff games.

We here at the Herald congratulate all of our area's athletes on their accomplishments thus far, and wish them the best of luck this week as they attempt to earn spots at their respective UIL state meets and tournaments.

Taking things one goal at a time

As it relates to personal success, have you ever heard or read this statement before: "The person without a goal is like a ship without a rudder." If you will stop and think about this statement, I believe you will realize that it's true. More importantly, however, in terms how it may benefit you, if you are not already a person who sets goals this simple idea could make a real difference in your future.

To enable you to gain greater insights into what I'm saying, please consider this:

If we simply untie a ship, give it no crew, no compass or destination, but just let it drift, if it gets out of the harbor at all it will likely sink or wind up on some deserted beach. On the other hand, contrast this with a ship that has a crew, a compass and a definite port in mind. The odds are over ninety-nine percent that it will safely reach its destination. Another important consideration is that a ship can only reach one port at a time, which is really the essence of what I'm saying here.

But, to back up a moment and place things in perspective, the main reason we see so much confusion in people's lives is that they have not been taught how to set goals and as a result they have no real purpose or direction for their lives. Sure, a lot of people have dreams, hopes and wishes, but they don't have specific, written goals. As a result they spend a lot of unproductive time going from one thing to another, being tossed "to and fro," like that ship I mentioned earlier.

For a goal to be valid or worthy, it should be specific and not general; it should be realistic with a definite time limit; and, it should be written down on paper. While working with thousands of people over the past 30 years, I've found that fully 95 percent of all people do not have their goals written down on paper. There are many reasons why this is important, the first being that it's a commitment — at least you have committed it to writing. This written form will allow you to review your goal often and with each repetition, drive it deeper and deeper into your subconscious mind. This is the reason, for the most part, that goal setters are positive people. You can't be a winner in athletics or in life without a goal.

If you are a beginner in the business of goal setting, I want to make a very important suggestion. Beginners should set only one major or large goal at a time. After the process becomes second nature and you have achieved enough success and the resources to diversify, more than one worthy goal is something many people can handle, but not in the very beginning. Most of the confusion in people's lives comes from trying to accomplish too many things at the same time.

After setting one worthy goal that is important to you, blaze it in your memory, burn it into your mind. When you first wake up, think of that one goal. When you sit down to rest for a few minutes, think about that one goal. As you think about it and visualize it, the goal will become crystallized and your focus, like a beautiful photograph, will be sharp and clear.

Since we become what we think about, soon you will reach that goal. At this point, set another goal and set out again. You will find this simple process of setting only one goal at a time will take most of the confusion out of your life and will bring order and self-discipline. As a result, your self-image and your attitude will definitely change for the better, and don't you agree, this is what success is all about.

JIM DAVIDSON

Are we all at least morally clear now?

When in the course of the usual reasoned, civil debate on public affairs — conducted always with courtesy and good cheer — one finds one's self snarling, "Oh, shut up!" one has, I fear, been reading too much George Will.

MOLLY IVINS

Being instructed what to think by the peerlessly pompous Mr. Will, perched upon his superiority and apparently in a permanent state of dudgeon over everybody else's stupidity, is reminiscent of being bullied by a snotty teacher. One is tempted to respond with the classic, frozen-faced Texas inquiry, "No bull?"

Will is often worth reading if only so you can figure out why you disagree with him. Lately, he has been leading an entire phalanx of right-wing commentators in full cry over President Bush's loss of "moral clarity" in the Middle East. The sheer implausibility of finding moral clarity in the Middle East does not deter them. Better minds than Bush's are defeated by that challenge, but the moral-certainty crowd admits no shades of gray.

Since Bush himself is fond of moral certainty — it's good-doers versus evil-doers in BushWorld — he must be uncomfortable with what Will magisterially dismisses in a recent Newsweek essay as the "intellectual confusion and moral miasma ... that now permeate U.S. policy and media coverage concerning the Israeli-Palestinian conflict."

Personally, I think Ariel Sharon is a continuing, shattering disaster for Israel. If it is not clear to all by now that his policies — leaving aside their morality — don't work worth a damn, how much more evidence is needed?

Ah, but the Middle East is so notoriously slippery — except to those with the moral clarity of Will — so let's leave it and skip to a place where everything is crystal clear. Latin America ... a simple place.

Regarding the 18-hour coup that took place last weekend in Venezuela. The elected president, Hugo Chavez, was overthrown by a military coup, and a new president representing the plutocrats of the nation promptly issued a decree ordering the closure of the country's Congress, the suspension of its Supreme Court and the dismissal of all locally elected government officials.

Bad nooz: Every other country in the hemisphere, as per our treaties, promptly denounced the undemocratic takeover. But the United States kind of lost its grip on moral clarity on account of we don't like Chavez, who likes Fidel Castro and Saddam Hussein, for pity's sake. And who is he to like people we don't like? The elected president of an independent country or something? And besides, he was about to mess with the national oil company, which happens to be our biggest foreign supplier.

Since the coup failed, the Bushies have been disowning it as fast as they can, even though "senior members of the Bush administration met several times in recent months with leaders of the coalition that ousted Chavez, and agreed with them that he should be removed from office," according to The New York Times. And it turns out that our own assistant secretary of state for western hemisphere affairs, Otto Reich, was on the phone with the head plutocrat during the coup, giving him advice.

Reich is an interesting study in moral clarity himself. He was a recess appointee by President Bush for the simple reason that he could not get confirmed by the Senate. Reich, a former U.S. ambassador to Venezuela, is an anti-Castro zealot. While heading a State Department office in the 1980s, Reich ran covert propaganda effort against the Sandinistas. Before his latest government appointment, Reich was a lobbyist and right-wing television commentator.

He is also believed to have helped get Orlando Bosch, a known terrorist, asylum in the United States. Bosch, himself a study in moral clarity, now resides peacefully in Miami after being convicted of terrorism in both the United States and Venezuela. Among his other acts was blowing up a civilian Cuban airliner with 73 people on it. Bosch was pardoned by Big George Bush — I suppose indicating some lack of moral clarity there, too.

Columnist Paul Krugman found irony in Condoleezza Rice's post-coup advice to the restored President Chavez to "respect constitutional processes." That would be the same constitution Chavez's opponents had tried to throw out, of course. But my favorite quote of the Venezuelan coup is in this passage from The New York Times: "Asked whether the administration now recognizes Mr. Chavez as Venezuela's legitimate president, one administration official replied, 'He was democratically elected,' then added, 'Legitimacy is something that is conferred not just by a majority of the voters, however.'"

How true. Sometimes a majority of the voters lose out to a five-to-four vote on the Supreme Court.

Are we all morally clear now?

Mavericks open playoffs with win over Timberwolves

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks didn't rebound very well, and their fast break never got going. Their inside game was a non-factor and they missed many of the shots they normally make.

That's why the Minnesota Timberwolves are so frustrated about losing to the Mavericks 101-94 on Sunday in Game 1 of their best-of-five, first-round series.

"We need to take better advantage of our opportunities," said Minnesota coach Flip Saunders, whose team is trailing 0-1 for the sixth straight postseason and has yet to climb out of it to win a series.

The Timberwolves led by 11 early and were up by three when Steve Nash grabbed a long rebound, dribbled past halfcourt and swished a 3-pointer from 40 feet as the third quarter ended.

Then Raef LaFrentz opened the fourth quarter by banking in a 3-pointer from the top of the key and Dallas was off on a 12-0 run that broke things open for good.

"It was a huge momentum swing," said Minnesota's Kevin Garnett, who had 19 points, 21 rebounds and six assists.

The Mavericks won despite getting outrebounded 58-39. The Timberwolves grabbed 20 boards on offense, leading to a 26-2 edge in second-chance points. They also outscored Dallas 24-6 in fast-break points.

"When you outrebound a team by 19, you expect to win, but Dallas plays loose and does their thing," Timberwolves guard Wally Szczerbiak said. "They made some great shots. If they continue to do that, you shake their hands and tell them, 'Good luck.'"

Garnett let his teammates get in the flow before he started looking for his shots. He didn't have a basket until 2:55 of the first quarter, then scored six in a hurry.

He only had two points, both on free throws, in the second quarter and his only field goal of the third quarter came in the opening minute. He scored seven more in the fourth quarter, but it was too little, too late. He made only 6-of-18 shots.

"I thought KG had some point-blank looks, but he's got to knock them down," said Szczerbiak, who had 15 points and eight rebounds. "Myself and Kevin have got to pull our weight."

Dirk Nowitzki led Dallas with 30 points and 15 rebounds. Nash had 21 points and six assists.

Michael Finley, who was 1-for-17 in the playoff finale last season, shot 7-of-14 for 16 points with six assists and five rebounds. He had two of the jumpers that followed the 3-pointers by Nash and LaFrentz.

The other was by Nick Van Exel, who scored 18 and had seven assists. LaFrentz had 10 points, five blocks and a nasty gash on the right side of his neck to go along with stitches above his right eye sustained earlier in the week.

"We were able to win an ugly ballgame," Finley said.

"We missed some shots we ordinarily make, but Minnesota picked it up on defense. We're fortunate to get a win."

Cowboys trading, but getting credit for a solid draft

IRVING (AP) — Jerry Jones was still making draft-day trades, but the Dallas Cowboys owner also seemed to stick to his board when it came time to make picks.

By the time the draft weekend was over, Jones had made three trades. That's 32 for Jones in 14 drafts since buying the Cowboys.

But the Cowboys still got the player they really wanted, All-American safety Roy Williams from Oklahoma, and filled several other needs with their nine picks.

"We've done as much to help our team in this draft as anytime since I've been a part of the draft process," Jones said.

The end result for Jones was probably the best draft without Jimmy Johnson at his side. It was Johnson, the Cowboys' coach from 1989-93, who often got credit for the early drafts in the Jones era.

Even in the awkward moment when the Cowboys appeared to run out of time to make their highest draft pick in 11 years, Jones was finalizing a trade with Kansas City. That allowed Dallas to move down two spots, to No. 8, get an extra pick and still get Williams.

Andre Gurode, a 6-foot-4, 316-pound guard from Colorado that many had considered a first-rounder, was still available when the Cowboys picked 37th overall in the second round.

Jones then made another deal, giving Chicago the extra pick he got from Kansas City for the 63rd pick in the second round. That allowed him to move up to get receiver Antonio Bryant, Pittsburgh's first All-American in 15 years, and another potential first-rounder that had dropped.

"The biggest thing to me is that in our first five picks we got three players who were first-round picks in our opinion," coach Dave Campo said. "And we got our third cornerback on the board and the best blocking fullback in the draft."

The Cowboys took Ohio State cornerback Derek Ross in the third round.

Even though they were unable to trade up early Sunday, the player they wanted — Ohio State fullback Jamar Martin (5-11, 245 pounds) — was still available when they picked 129th in the fourth round.

"Jamar Martin is the best blocking fullback in the draft," Jones said. "We all got up trying to figure out how we were going to get in position to draft him and we couldn't do it and yet there he fell to us."

The Cowboys were without a true fullback when Robert Thomas was injured. Martin helps fill that gap, and could challenge Thomas for the job.

Williams is expected to start alongside five-time Pro Bowl safety Darren Woodson, and Jones sees Gurode and Ross as possible starters. Bryant could be a nice complement as a No. 3

DALLAS' DRAFT

A look at what the Dallas Cowboys did in the NFL draft:

WHERE THEY BEGAN
6 (first round); 37 (second round); 72 (third round); 104 (fourth round); 140 (fifth round); 179, 208, 211 (sixth round) and 217 (seventh round)

WHERE THEY WENT
Traded 6 to Kansas City for 8 (first round), 75 (third round) and a sixth-round pick in 2003
Got 63 (second round) and 129 (fourth round) from Chicago for 72 (third round), 104 (fourth round) and 140 (fifth round)

Traded 217 (seventh round) and fifth-round pick in 2003 to New England for 168 (fifth round)

WHO THEY GOT
8 — Roy Williams, s, Oklahoma, 6-1, 221

37 — Andre Gurode, g, Colorado, 6-4, 316

63 — Antonio Bryant, wr, Pittsburgh, 6-1, 188

75 — Derek Ross, cb, Ohio State, 5-10, 197

129 — Jamar Martin, fb, Ohio State, 5-11, 245

168 — Ralph Hunter, cb, Virginia Union, 6-2, 193

179 — Tyson Walter, ot, Ohio State, 6-5, 303

208 — Deveren Johnson, wr, Sacred Heart, 6-6, 223

211 — Bob Slowikowski, te, Virginia Tech, 6-5, 255

WHO THE PICKS ARE
Williams — Big-play safety expected to start immediately alongside four-time Pro Bowler Darren Woodson.

Gurode — Premiere blocker that also played center in college and could be the replacement for Mark Stepnoski, the five-time Pro Bowl center and 13-year veteran the Cowboys cut last month.

Bryant — Deep threat with limber legs and long arms. If he stays out of trouble, good complement to Joey Galloway and Raghib Ismail.

Ross — A coverage back and physical defender at a position the Cowboys considered an area of need.

Martin — Strong lead blocker with the ability to get out front and cut down linebackers. A true fullback, which the Cowboys lacked last year with Robert Thomas injured.

Hunter — Offers big size and speed in secondary. May be tried at cornerback and safety.

Walter — Showed a tendency to out-muscle defenders on running plays but lacked assertiveness with physical pass rushers. Should have time to learn and won't be expected to be first-year contributor.

Johnson — Big receiver from I-AA school who will have a lot of tough competition for playing time with the Cowboys.

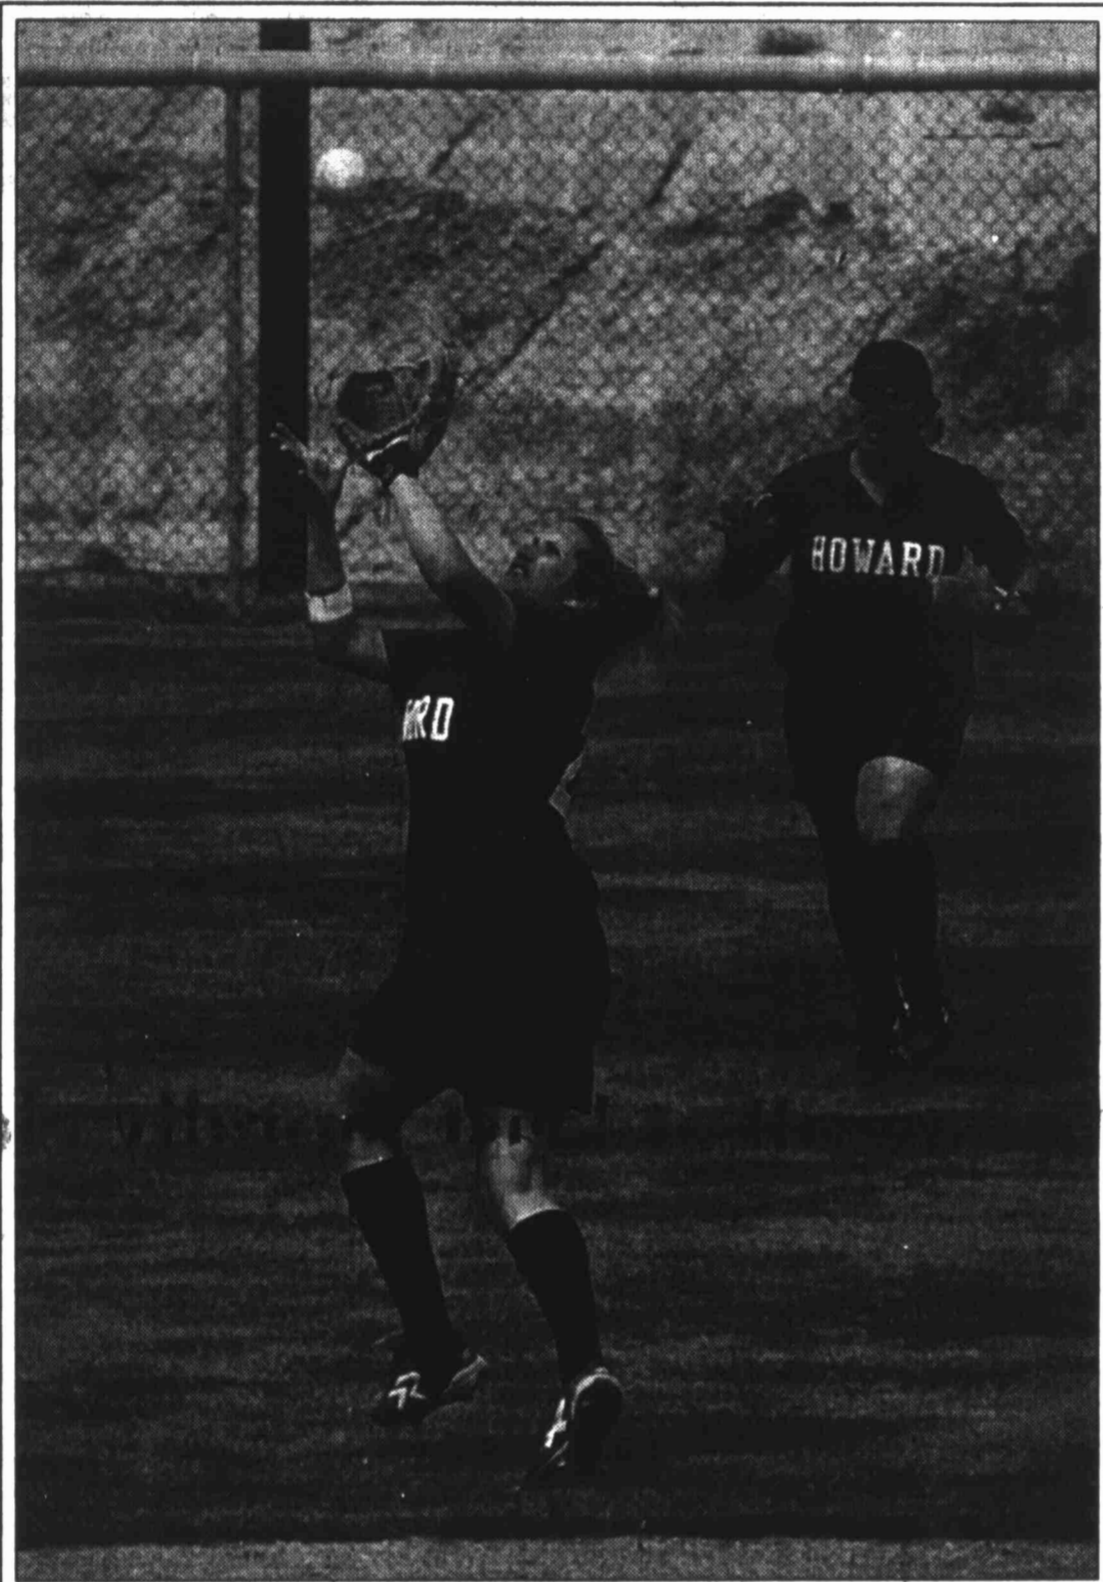

Slowikowski — A pass-catching tight end had been considered a high priority going into the draft. Scouting report says he has solid hands, but he caught just 12 balls in 43 college games.

receiver behind Joey Galloway and Raghib Ismail.

"This year, more than any other year, we were able to draft the best player available on the board," Campo said. "And we felt comfortable in doing that."

Dallas had three sixth-round picks, two of them compensatory picks, and selected three more offensive players: Ohio State tackle Tyson Walter (6-5, 303), Sacred Heart receiver Deveren Johnson (6-6, 223) and Virginia Tech tight end Bob Slowikowski (6-5, 255).

The only defender they got Sunday was cornerback Ralph Hunter (6-2, 193) from Virginia Union, a fifth-round pick the Cowboys got in a trade with New England. Dallas gave up its seventh-round pick and next year's fifth-round pick to move up to get Hunter.

Howard College's Rose Tirre makes an impressive running catch in short left field during the Lady Hawks' doubleheader sweep of Odessa College's Lady Wranglers last week. The Lady Hawks swept El Paso Community College's Tejanas in a four-game series over the weekend, and that — coupled by a Midland College loss to Odessa in one game of their four-game series — allowed Howard to claim a share of the Western Junior College Athletic Conference softball championship. The Lady Hawks will host UT-Perman's Lady Falcons in a 1 p.m. doubleheader on Friday, the final warm-up prior to the start of NJCAA Region V Tournament play set for May 2-4 in Abilene.

A-Rod goes deep two times, but Rangers fall to Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — Jeff Cirillo considers his spot behind Ichiro Suzuki in the Seattle Mariners' lineup a prime position.

Cirillo drove in Suzuki twice after the star leadoff hitter tripled, and the Mariners overcame two home runs by Alex Rodriguez to defeat the Texas Rangers 5-3 Sunday.

Cirillo singled after Suzuki's first-inning triple, then grounded out to bring Suzuki home in the third.

"He's definitely an ignitor," Cirillo said. "That's nice. You've just got to basically put the ball on the ground in the middle of the field and you pick up an easy RBI."

Suzuki showed why the Rangers were afraid to pitch to him the night before.

On Saturday, Texas manager Jerry Narron went with an unconventional strategy to make sure Suzuki wouldn't beat him. The Rangers intentionally walked him with two outs and runners on first and second in the 11th inning.

Texas still lost when Dan Miceli walked Cirillo with the bases loaded.

On Sunday, Suzuki did them in.

"To beat these guys, you have to keep him off base," Narron said. "He just creates so much for their entire ballclub."

Rodriguez homered twice in a game for the second time this season against Seattle. It was his 22nd career multihomer game.

But Rodriguez's offense wasn't enough in his former ballpark, as the Rangers dropped to 5-13 for the team's worst start. They go outside the AL West to play Toronto starting Tuesday.

"We could easily have won 10 or 11 without clicking as a team," Texas' Rafael Palmeiro said. "There is no excuse for us being 5-13."

Texas has lost 42 of its last 14 against Seattle, and is 6-21 since Rodriguez left the Mariners after the 2000 season to sign a $252 million, 10-year contract.

Rodriguez has hit five of his eight homers this year against his former team. Mariners fans booed him and tossed paper money in all three games of the series, his first in Seattle this season.

He also added a double in the eighth off Joel Pineiro. Palmeiro had a sacrifice fly in the inning, dropped by left fielder Mark McLemore for an error, as Pineiro allowed his first run of the season.

Kazuhiro Sasaki worked the ninth for his fifth save in six chances.

Suzuki's triples were nearly identical, both line drives to right-center field.

Dan Wilson hit his first homer in the second, a solo shot to left from lefty Doug Davis (2-1) to put Seattle up 2-1.

It was the first homer surrendered by Davis in four starts and the first given up by a Texas pitcher in five games.

Rodriguez hit a solo homer in the first into the upper deck in left field as the Rangers tagged Seattle starter Freddy Garcia for three straight hits with two outs. Rodriguez also homered in the sixth.

Garcia (2-2) gave up two runs on seven hits in six-plus innings. He struck out three and walked none, settling down after the first.

Caution is key when involved with prison pen-pal

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 26-year-old divorced woman with two children. I have been corresponding through a pen-pal program with several inmates at a nearby penitentiary. Most of my letters are strictly for the purpose of friendship, but there is one man I have fallen in love with.

I have visited the prison several times to speak with "Steve." My children have met him, and they adore him. We speak on the phone every week, and I have met his family. They are warm and loving people. I think Steve is a great guy who was in the wrong place at the wrong time. He admits his guilt and wants to make a better life for himself. He wants to marry me when he is released next year.

My family will hit the roof when they find out about Steve's prison record. My mother might even go so far as to try to have my children taken away. I'm sure my parents would love Steve if they got to know him, but I doubt they will let him in the door.

I trust Steve completely and believe he is a good person. Am I fooling myself, Ann? Should I tell my parents about his background now or wait until they have a chance to get to know him? - Pen Pal in Baton Rouge, La.

Dear Pen Pal: I urge you to be cautious about Steve.

He may be everything you say he is, but you won't know for certain until you spend some time with him outside of prison. Make sure he can find a job before you make any kind of commitment. Do not let him move in with you. For your safety and his own sense of self-worth, he needs to be able to support himself.

Meanwhile, you do not have to tell your parents about Steve's background right away. Allow them to meet him under neutral circumstances. You can fill them in on the details once you decide how the relationship will proceed.

Dear Ann Landers: I read the letter from "San Diego Mother," who thought her children should be allowed to crawl all over their aunt and uncle. There may be another reason why her brother-in-law and his wife ignore the children.

My husband and I have three kids, but it took almost five years to start our family as I endured fertility tests, operations, drugs and a miscarriage. During that time, I could not bear to be around my young nieces and nephews. I hope "San Diego Mother" will show a little compassion toward her relatives. They may be having problems she knows nothing about. - Been There in New York State

Dear New York: Thank you for pointing out an additional reason why people may be uncomfortable around small children. I hope all parents will pay attention.
