don't know the intentions of the person on the tower."
During the planning session, the man threw down his driver's license, and the rescue workers on the ground were able to identify him as Jeffrey Scott Cox, 20, of Coahoma.

Firefighter Zack Johnson, part of the Rapid Intervention Team, went up the tower to make contact with Cox.

"The tower actually has a cable with an ascender on it to go up, and he took two other safety ropes with him," Sullivan said. "As he started going up the male on the top asked what we were doing and stuff. Our initial move was to get up there and make communications with him. As Zack was going up, the male would come down the tower a little

Johnson eventually established communications with Cox. but still had to talk him down.

"At one point the male got into a bind," Sullivan said. "He had his feet on the tower and put his hands out on the guy wire like he was going to slide down."

Sullivan said Cox overreached and put himself in a precarious position.

"He was hanging out with his hands and his feet were still touching the tower, almost horizontal," Sullivan said. "At that point it gets real dangerous. If he slips or something, he's coming down. At that point he was probably 100 to 120 feet in the air.'

Afraid that the man would jump if he approached him, Johnson helped Cox stay calm and instructed him on how to get back onto the Johnson was taken into custody and transported to Scenic Mountain Medical Center for medical and psychological evaluation. He was later taken to Big Spring State Hospital.

"One thing I want to emphasize is the training of the firefighters." Sullivan said. "We train for this all the time and this is the first time we've actually gotten to use it, but the outcome was good and the training was worth every bit of it. We went home happy.

"All of our homes that we remodel are going to have new electricity, new plumbing and new HVAC." he said. "New hot water heater, anything that we think might become an expense to the home owner during the first five years, we're upgrading it or replacing

Pryor hopes that after the first year, the program won't need further grant assistance. "We're hoping that we can finance enough of them through normal lending institutions that we'll have a constant cash flow," he said. "Hopefully after the first year the program will pay for itself and sustain itself.' Work on the first house is already well under way, Pryor said.

"It's going good," he said. "It's like any remodeling project. You have your sudden things that you discover that you didn't know were there. But it's going real well. The young people are having a good time, they're learning, they're doing good on their GED. Some of them are about ready to graduate there. All in all, I would say the first house with all the bumps and lumps of the first house and the first program, it's going well.' Pryor said the first house is about 75 percent complete. The plan is to finish it and evaluate the problems and successes involved with it before proceeding with work on more houses.

Husband of slain nurse is suspect

CELINA (AP) — Family members and friends tormented by the apparent randomness and cruelty of Amy Wingfield's death were stunned anew as police arrested her husband, Raymond, on a murder charge.

"Everyone of course is shocked and saddened by these tragic events. Nobody expected the husband to be a suspect, especially not here," said Celina Police Chief Billy Wilson, who escorted relatives to and from the Wingfield house Thursday.

Raymond Horne, pastor of First Baptist Church in where Amy Celina, Wingfield's funeral was held Monday, said her relatives were anguished by the latest news.

"I was with them this morning when the police came and shared with them their discovery," he said.

"Basically, they were heartbroken, devastated and could not fathom it.

"In a way they were relieved, but without joy because they loved Raymond. Their biggest concern is for the children. both families, and that's the way it should be."

Police told them Raymond Wingfield had confessed to gunning down his wife of eight years in a hospital parking lot and was charged with her murder.

Wingfield, 30, of Celina gave a statement about his involvement in the shooting of the 31-year-old mother of two and the wounding of another nurse last week. He also led investigators to a remote area where the rifle, believed to have been used in the shootings, was recov-

"The motive at this time, we believe, was marital problems and financial problems," McKinney police Capt. Robert Dean said.

was arrested Wednesday after calling the Collin County Sheriff's Department to Cottage Hill Cemetery, where his wife was buried Monday.

He reported that someone he didn't know had shot at him and his pickup had two bullet holes in the windshield, McKinney police said.

Deputies determined that the incident was staged, possibly because Wingfield was to undergo a lie detector test Thursday.

"He was trying to deflect the focus from himself to some phantom shooter that didn't exist, and that was probably because of the polygraph," police Chief Doug Kowalski said.

N.J. teacher who had sexual relationship with 13-year-old student gets probation

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) - Declaring society doesn't need to be worried." no harm had been done, a judge spared a teacher who admitted having a sexual relationship with a 13-year-old student from

A state legislator, outraged by the decision, said the judge should be removed from the bench.

Pamela Diehl-Moore, 43, pleaded guilty to sexual assault in January. Prosecutors had expected her to be sentenced to three years in prison. "We are talking about a sexual assault of a little boy," prosecutor Martin Delaney said at Wednesday's sentencing. "We need to send a message to these people that this is unacceptable and you will pay with your liberty."

But Superior Court Judge Bruce Gaeta disagreed, saying people mature at different rates.

He gave Diehl-Moore five years proba-

"It's just something between two people that clicked beyond the teacher-student relationship," Gaeta said. "I really don't see the harm that was done and certainly Republican state Rep. Rose Heck called the sentence "shocking and unacceptable."

"Does that mean the he believes there should be no law against adults having sex with minors? If so, I would suggest it is time for this judge to be removed from the bench," Heck said Thursday.

The sexual relationship began in 1999 after the boy passed Diehl-Moore's seventh grade class.

Authorities said it lasted about six months.

According to state law, a 13-year-old cannot legally consent to sexual activity. Diehl-Moore, a divorcee with two daughters, was arrested last year and has since lost her teaching license.

She begged the judge not to separate her from her children.

"I would never hurt anybody," she said. "I will never do this again. It was a lapse in judgment."

Diehl-Moore was also ordered to continue intensive counseling for severe depression.

Most of the nearly 850,000 nonimmigrant foreigners who attend U.S. colleges and universities in a given year add greatly to the educational experience of American students. They also bolster international relations by returning to their homelands with a better understanding of how this nation works. Unfortunately, as Sept. 11 made clear, the system that oversees foreign students must give priority to contending with the handful who would take advantage of this nation's openness to attack it.

Congress has belatedly ordered the Immigration and Naturalization Service to develop an electronic system to keep track of foreign students.

The INS' Student and Exchange Visitor Information System would use a Web-based database that would link U.S. embassies and consulates abroad with every INS port of entry and the 70,000 schools and other institutions eligible to admit foreign students. Lawmakers need to keep establishment of that system on schedule, making sure it is up and running by the

I don't think it's just me. 'Republicans lead by Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas and the accounting industry's trade group are working to kill a Democratic measure that would impose new rules on auditors, companies and investment banks in the wake of Enron's collapse," reports The New Your Times. That would be the same Phil Gramm who got $101,350 in contributions from Enron and $927,055 from the financial industry while chairman of the banking committee. (By way of contrast, the late Henry B. Gonzalez of Texas, a populist, accepted no contributions from the financial industry while serving as chair of the House banking committee.) Gramm's wife served on the board of Enron, but a spokeswoman for Gramm announced the reform bill has nothing to do with Enron and is therefore not a conflict of interest. The entire purpose of the bill, by Paul Sarbanes of Maryland, is to prevent precisely the abuses that led to the collapse of Enron.

This cheerful effort to scuttle mild financial reforms comes amid regular updates on Enron's frauds and felonies - rigging the market during the California "energy crisis," playing games with Global Crossing to disguise loans and other financial facts, etc. Try these exercises in financial fakery:

 "Using prearranged but undisclosed plans, executives may sell stock without being accused of insider trading. Now regulators, worried about the use of fake plans, may force advance disclosure of them." (New York Times)

"House Republicans are blocking an effort by Democrats to force a vote on a measure that would prevent companies from avoiding income taxes by reincorporating in Bermuda and other offshore tax havens." (New York Times)

David Cay Johnson of the Times reports that despite corporate claims that moving to Bermuda is done to benefit shareholders, the biggest beneficiaries are often the chief executives on the companies.

And The Wall Street Journal, favorite reading of all good populists, is reporting abuses by the big currency traders, derivatives companies and the usual run of scoundrels and cheats.

Absolute power corrupts absolutely

There has been much twittering amongst liberals since David Brock's book, "Blinded by the Right: the Conscience of an Ex-Conservative" came out as to whether there actually is a vast right-wing conspiracy. As Izzy Stone noted years ago, they don't need a conspiracy - they do it all right out in the open. It's on the front pages. But the country seems to have lost its gag reflex. One is reminded of poor

Bob Dole in the '96 campaign, crying: "Where is the outrage? Where is the outrage?" I suppose a lot of it got used up as right-wing demagogues whipped dittoheads into a froth of fury over Whitewater, the longest-running non-scandal in history. What a tragic waste of perfectly good anger. Another source of rampant apathy (a coinage that reminds me of New York Assembly Speaker Stanley Steingut's immortal, "an avalanche of creeping paralysis") is the ubiquitous feeling that there's absolutely nothing we can do about any of these advanced financial shenani-

No point in getting outraged if there's nothing you can do.

And besides, it's all very complicated. Most of us couldn't explain how derivatives work to save our souls, or how currency trading works, or how Enron gouged California. But we do understand buying politicians.

The financial industry is so greed-driven it doesn't have the sense God gave a duck. It's always pushing for something ruinous to itself and everybody else, like savings and loan dereg ulation or doing away with Glass-Steagall, so now insurance companies, securities firms and banks can marry each other. Naturally, they'll be "too big to fail" when they go under, so the taxpayers will have to bail them out.

Paul Krugman, the economics writer, recently inquired plaintively, "Wouldn't it be nice, just once, to see the Bush administration oppose the interests of a privileged elite?" He was referring to the administration's footdragging on accounting reforms and Bush's own declaration that he sides with the CEOs on not treating their stock options as a business expense. That's one of those cute little tax advantages the rich buy for themselves with their campaign contributions. Don't forget that George W. Bush's biggest campaign donor was Ken Lay of Enron. Edwin Sherwood once wrote me the following about Wright Patman, a great populist: "Power tends to corrupt, and absolute power corrupts absolutely. Instead of applying this rule to distant dictators, Patman applied it to wealthy and powerful Americans. ... Wealth too often opposes the public good in principle and prac-

Prescription drug benefit by bifurcation quotas to a nuclear reduce argument over a Medicare-funded prescription drug benefit is turning into an "Alice in Wonderland' realm of unlikely bedfellows.

Democrats, who have long sought such a benefit to pay for most of the prescription drugs used by the elderly, have been heavily

JACK ANDERSON

Republicans, who opposed Medicare in 1965 and over the years opposed its expansion, would normally be opposed to the prescription drug benefit. Instead, many of them side with President George Bush who made such a benefit a campaign promise.

This brings us to the elderly who would be the recipients of the benefit. For years, AARP - the primary lobbying group for the elderly — has advocated a prescription drug benefit. But it has also lobbied for increased Medicare funding. Here's the rub. The Bush administration says they can have prescription drugs, but not only will there be no Medicare increase to cover it, there will be a decrease. Medicare payments to doctors and hospitals have already been reduced, and a prescription drug benefit would reduce them more. Because this is so seemingly illogical, it is possible to conclude that politics are trumping compassion here. The president's primary political advisor, Karl Rove, is reported to have such an influence on his boss's positions - from Medicare to steel import tion treaty — that Secretary of State Colin Powell is openly complaining. Rove thinks exclusively in political terms, and "Will it play in Peoria," has always been the catch phrase for political consultants. That and more are at play with Medicare.

By advocating a prescription drug benefit, Bush is able to court the elderly. By refusing to properly fund Medicare, he is able to drive a wedge between the Democrats and that same elderly constituency, which does not donate as much to political campaigns as the doctors, nurses and health organizations.

The result is a Rove-created reversal that now pits the Democrats against a prescription drug benefit and therefore pits them against the elderly, while the Republicans bask in the glow of a compassionate proposal. It even has the added benefit of painting the Democrats as tax-andspenders who are lament ing last year's tax cut.

That tax cut, some Democrats are proclaiming. is the reason for Medicare cutbacks and the reason why they are faced with a Solomonic choice between drugs and doctors. They cannot win. The elderly cannot win. But it is brilliant politics.

The solution is for the Democrats to bifurcate the issue by voting for the prescription drug benefit and worrying about funding it later. Once passed, prescription drugs will become a permanent part of Medicare and a permanent part of what eventually must become national healthcare coverage for all citizens. They should not fall into Rove's trap and allow the issue of funding to snag them, because funding is a subject that comes before Congress every year. Like Medicare itself, a prescription drug benefit is not likely to be revisited once passed.

We enjoyed going up to the timberline turn around on Mt. St. Helens and laying in the snow. even in the summer.

One year two college students were helping our small rural church with Vacation Bible School. Both boys were from the South and this was their first experience with a with a western Washington summer. It had been pretty typical weather for June with rain only four or five days each week.

Since their two week stint with us included the July 4 holiday we decided to take them innertube sledding on Mt. St. Helens. We thought that this would be great fun and a completely different experience for the guys.

Just how strange this was for them became apparent when one student asked that we take pictures of him, and his friend since their friends in Arkansas and Louisiana would never believe that they had gone snow sledding on July 4.

Life often leads us through experiences where credibility is stretched to the limit. Whether we are the ones telling of the experience or the one listening, some stories are just difficult to believe because they match none of our previous experiences. Each of the gospel writers recorded an experience of this type when he spoke/wrote of the resurrection of Jesus.

They understood death, but the ability to live again just didn't match anything that they or their listeners/readers had expe-

The resurrection of Jesus and the events which surrounded it required careful telling if it was to be credible.

Even those who were present at the appearances of Jesus struggled with what they were experienc-

In his account of the resurrection, Matthew records a conversation between an angel and Mary Magdalene and some other women. "Then the angel spoke to the women, "Don't be afraid!" he said. "I know you are looking for Jesus, who was crucified. He isn't here! He has been raised from the dead, just as he said would happen. Come, see where his body was lying. And now, go quickly and tell his disciples he has been raised from the dead, Matthew also includes the women's response, "The women ran quickly from the tomb. They were very frightened, but also filled with great joy and they rushed to find the disciples to give them the angel's message." (28:5-7a, 8, New Living Translation). If we are to experience the life that Jesus offers we must have our own encounter with his resurrection. This means also, that we must deal with the credibility issue on a very personal level.

We either enjoy it as a nice warm story of encour agement or we embrace a life-changing experience. We each must choose.

Sam Snead, the sweetest swing in golf, dies at

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

No one won more than Sam Snead. Not many looked better doing it.

Despite his record 81 victories on the PGA Tour, seven major championships, 10 appearances in the Ryder Cup as a player or captain, and an ageless game that kept him competitive into his 60s, "Slammin' Sam" was known best for his swing.

It was simply the sweetest in golf. "It was a gift, something you can't teach," two-time U.S. Open champion Curtis Strange said. "His hands looked like they were born to have a golf club in them.'

Snead died Thursday at 89 after a series of strokes that began just after the Masters, although daugh-ter-in-law Anne Snead said he had been ill before that.

He died at his Hot Springs, Va., home, holding hands with his son Sam Jr. and his daughter-in-law.

"He didn't seem scared," Anne Snead said. "I think he was very much at peace."

Snead was raised during the Depression in the backwoods of western Virginia. He learned how to play in bare feet and with clubs made from tree limbs, and he was blessed with as much raw talent as anyone who played golf.

"He brought so much to the game with his great swing and the most fluid motion ever to grace a golf course," Jack Nicklaus said.

Snead, called him one of the greatest athletes ever. Snead was so limber he could kick the top of a door frame even when he was in his early 80s.

"He was a man who was very important to the popularity of the game," Palmer said. "I'm so sorry these things have to happen.'

Phil Mickelson spoke for anyone who ever saw Snead play: "I don't think there's ever been a golf swing as aesthetically pleasing as Sam Snead's."

The records it produced were staggering.

His first victory came in the 1936 West Virginia Closed Pro. His last See SNEAD, Page 2B

Snead was the oldest winner on the PGA Tour, capturing the 1965 Greater Greensboro Open at 52, and remained a threat well into his 60s. He tied for third in the 1974 PGA Championship at 62, finishing three strokes behind Lee Trevino.

Five years later, Snead became the youngest player to shoot his age - 67 - in the Quad Cities Open. If that wasn't enough, he shot a 66 two days later.

4-win start for BoSox

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pedro Martinez has matched the seven victories he had by the end of last May. Unlike last year, he's not likely to stop.

He's healthier now and nearly as dominant as in 1999 when he finished 23-4 with an AL-best 2.07 ERA. Just ask the New York Yankees, who lost to the Red Sox 3-1 Boston Thursday night.

"Every at-bat against Pedro you will get one pitch that you can do something with, but you only get that one pitch," John Vander

Wal said. Martinez (7-0) struck out 10 and allowed four hits and two walks in seven innings before Tim Wakefield and Ugueth Urbina, who got his 15th save, pitched an inning each. Ted Lilly (1-4) pitched well for the Yankees, but not well enough. That's because Martinez, winless last season after May, has recovered from shoulder problems that limited him to 18 starts.

"He is real close to being back to where we want him to be." Boston manager Grady Little said

In other American League games, Seattle beat Tampa Bay 7-3 and Baltimore routed Oakland 11-3. The game between Texas and Kansas City was rained out.

In National League games, it was: Los Angeles 16, Milwaukee 3; St. Louis 5, Houston 4; Florida 8, Cincinnati 4; Chicago 11, Pittsburgh 6; New York 1, Philadelphia and Colorado 16, San Diego 3. Boston leads New York in the AL East by two games and improved the best record in the majors to 31-13. New York is third at 31-17, trailing Seattle.

Martinez has been outstanding against top teams, beating Seattle in his last two starts before Thursday. In those three games, he allowed three earned runs, and 14 hits and struck out 31 in 23 innings. Each win ended a two-game Boston losing streak. "Those are things that are really important to me," Martinez said. "Getting a win against the Yankees is always emotional, but it's not any bigger than any other team.'

The Red Sox scored in the first on doubles by Johnny Nomar Damon and Garciaparra, and made it 3-0 in the fifth on Trot Nixon's sacrifice fly and Rickey Henderson's RBI sin-

The Yankees made it 3-1 in the sixth when Nick Johnson, who singled, scored on Bernie Williams fielder's choice groundout.

In the last three innings, Jason Giambi's double was the Yankees' only hit and they struck out six times. The Yankees lead the majors with 376 strikeouts.

Martinez leads the majors with the best record after struggling on opening day and feeling pain when he faced the Yankees in his third start.

"Whenever I have to reach back and get a good fastball, 95 or 96 (mph), if I have it in the kitchen, I'll bring it out," he said. Last year, "I wasn't feeling fine from the get-go. ... This year, so far, I feel fine.'

Mariners 7, Devil Rays 3

James Baldwin (4-4) settled down after a rocky first inning to shut down Tampa Bay and help host Seattle snap a four-game losing streak.

Ichiro Suzuki and Ruben Sierra had three hits apiece and John Olerud hit a threerun homer for the Mariners, who broke out of a slump with 11 hits. The Devil Rays had won a season-high four straight games. Tanyon Sturtze (0-5) took the loss.

Orioles 11, Athletics 3

Chris Singleton and Marty Cordova each homered and drove in three runs as visiting Baltimore beat up Mark Mulder and Oakland.

Singleton extended his season-high hitting streak to 12 games with a three-run homer in the second inning off Mulder (2-4), who has lost three straight since returning from the disabled list with a strain in his left forearm.

Ponson (3-3) Sidney allowed two runs in six innings.

Dodgers 16, Brewers 3

After eight seasons without a four-homer game, baseball has its second in three weeks thanks to Shawn Green

Green punctuated a record-setting day with a boom, hitting a 450-foot shot in the ninth inning to become the 14th player to homer four times in a game.

Amazingly, the Los Angeles Dodgers' slugger did it exactly three weeks after Mike Cameron's fourhomer game for Seattle against the White Sox.

He went 6-for-6 with six runs, seven RBIs and a major league record 19 total bases — one more than Joe Adcock had for the Milwaukee Braves on July 31, 1954.

After hitting an RBI double his first time up, Green hit a three-run homer off Glendon Rusch (3-4) in the second and solo shots off Brian Mallette in the fourth and fifth innings as the Dodgers took a 10-1 lead.

Cardinals 5. Astros 4

J.D. Drew broke an eighth-inning tie with an RBI single as St. Louis completed a three-game sweep of Houston.

The Cardinals have won five in a row and 12 of 14. They swept the Astros for the first time since Sept. 2-4, 1996, also at Busch Stadium. Houston has lost four straight after winning seven in a row.

Octavio Dotel (2-2) took the loss. Luther Hackman (1-2) got the win and Jason Isringhausen finished for his 12th save.

Nebraska, OU earn a day off at tournament

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nebraska and Oklahoma earned a day off at the Big 12 tournament.

As the two teams to make it through the first two days at The Ballpark in Arlington without a loss, the Cornhuskers (41-17) and Sooners (35-23) don't have to play Friday. Both wait until Saturday needing just one win to get to the championship game.

Two elimination games were on Friday's schedule. rematches from Wednesday, Kansas State plays Texas Tech and Texas plays Texas A&M. On Thursday, Oklahoma beat Texas A&M 9-1 and Nebraska ended Texas Tech's conference-record 16geme winning streak with a 128 win in the winners' bracket. In a pair of elimination games. Texas eliminated Oklahoma State 8-6 and Kansas State eliminated Baylor 6-2.

The loss for Baylor (34-24) was its seventh in a row the Bears' longest losing streak since 1994 — and they're in jeopardy of not being NCAA tournament field for the fifth straight year.

Oklahoma 9, Texas A&M 1

Charlie Frasier drove in four runs for the Sooners and Jason Fransz went 3for-4, including a 2-run homer, and scored three times

Mark Roberts (7-3) got the win, allowing five hits and one run in eight innings, whle striking out six and walking one.

The Aggies' only run came on a homer by Eric Reed on Roberts' first pitch of the game. Ryan Warpinski (2-5) was the loser, surrendering eight hits and four earned runs in 3.1 innings for the Aggies (35-23).

Frasier hit his 11th homer of the season, a two-out shot to left, to give the Sooners an early lead.

The Sooners added two runs in the third when Reggie Willits went from first to third on a single by Fransz and scored on an error. Chris Jakubasuskas added and RBI double in the inning.

Frasier had a 2-run double in the fourth and Fransz's 2run homer came in the sixth.

Nebraska 12, Texas Tech 8

Grose went 3-for-4 and drove in three runs to lead the Cornhuskers, who won their 10th straight Big 12 postseason game.

Grose's sacrifice fly in the second scored Jeff Blevins and gave Nebraska a 2-1 lead. Matt Hooper had an RBI triple in the third and Grose had a two-run double in the sixth that made it 9-1.

Texas Tech (41-17) got three runs in the seventh. including a two-run double by Gera Alvarez. The Red Raiders scored four times in the eighth, and had the goahead run at the plate with the bases loaded when Jake Brown flew out against reliever Jeff Blaesing to end the threat. Shane Komine (7-0) struck out seven batters in 6 2-3 innings, allowing three earned runs in his 16th straight win against conference opponents. Nathan Fouts (8-6) allowed seven earned runs over 4 2-

Texas 8,

3 innings.

Oklahoma St. 6

Michael Hollimon had a tiebreaking RBI single and Dustin Majewksi added a two-run double in a threerun eighth inning as topseeded Texas avoided elimination.

The Longhorns (44-14) had finished their openinground 8-4 loss to Texas A&M early Thursday morning, only about 12 hours before their second-round game began. Josh Fields had a solo homer, his third, for Oklahoma State (37-21) in the seventh that tied the game at 5-5. Hollimon's single against reliever Daniel Rew scored J.D. Reininger, who led off the eighth with a double off Mike Patitucci (0-2). Tim Moss followed with a single and Omar Quintanilla was intentionally walked before Majewki, who has six hits in two tournament games, hit his two-run double for an 8-5 lead.

Texas freshman Huston Street (3-1) was the winner, despite allowing Jake Bolling's 12th homer in the eighth that narrowed the Texas lead. Street allowed one run on two hits over 22-3 innings.

Majewski and Reininger both went 3-for-5. Reininger had an RBI single in the second and Majewski had a solo homer in the seventh.

Kansas St. 6,

Baylor 2

Brock Smith allowed two runs over 7 2-3 innings and Nick Sorensen drove in three runs for Kansas State (29-24), which is in its first Big 12 tournament. Smith (6-6) struck out seven and walked three. He scattered nine hits, and didn't allow a run until the seventh inning when Kansas State led 6-0. Sorensen, Osmar Castillo and Ty Soto had two hits each for the Wildcats, who have won six of their last seven games. Justin Taylor (8-2), Baylor's No. 1 starter, allowed six runs and 10 hits over 6 2-3 innings, with three strikeouts and one walk. Kyle Edens got the final seven outs, including five strikeouts.

Ryan Baldwin's secondinning sacrifice fly gave Kansas State a 1-0 lead. In the fourth, Baldwin's RBI single and Sorensen's tworun double extended the Wildcats' lead to 4-0. Sorensen added an RBI single in the sixth.
