"Reflecting a Proud Community"

Relay celebrates another successful fund-raiser tonight By DEBBIE L. JENSEN

for a wrap-up party. "This is just a celebra-on," explained Diane tion,"

Wood, chair of the event. "It's a time for us to get together again, pass out certificates, awards and team pictures."

More than 100 people have been invited to the event, which begins at 6 p.m. in Garrett Hall at First United Methodist Church. Refreshments will be served.

Relay for Life, a community campout at Blankenship

Field, brought in $174,008 before expenses. It was the highest total ever for the Howard-Glasscock Unit of ACS and more than $30,000 above the planning committee's goal of $130,000.

"No one can explain it," Wood said of the event's phenomenal success. "All we can do is celebrate it. It's something for our whole community to be proud of." Last year's local Relay ranked first in the state per capita for fund-raising, and 10th in the nation. It's still too soon to tell, but observers expect a high ranking this year as well.

One thing that won't happen today is the announcement of a final total of money raised by the event, Wood said.

"I'll give it as close as I can, but money is still coming in," she said, "and some of the bills have not come in yet." She said the final number might not be out until July.

Team captains, who helped guide 82 teams through fund-raisers, walk ing schedules, event policies and rules, will be honored tonight. Representatives of local companies, groups and donors whose gifts built a foundation of support will be recognized, as will committee members, who met regularly for months to plan all aspects of the event.

The fledgling Funtastic Fourth Festival will come before the Big Spring City Council tonight.

The council will hear a request by the newlyformed Downtown Revitalization Association to close streets and provide other assistance for the event, scheduled for July 4.

The downtown merchant's group asked the council by letter to close several streets from the evening of July 3 through the event. Streets included in the request are Main Street and Scurry Street between First and Third Streets; Second Street between Scurry and Runnels Streets; and the north lane of Third Street from Gregg Street to Three months into his tour of duty in the Army in Vietnam, Hernandez was killed.

"This should be a day to remember all veterans who gave the ultimate sacrifice in all wars," Marquez said. "Because of their sacrifice, we enjoy the freedoms we have all through these years.

"We need to remember those soldiers – mothers. fathers, friends who were killed in action," he continued. "They were the real heroes of the war."

As retired Air Force Col. Jim Little began his speech, the sky that had threatened to rain on the event made

Advertising firm hands out panhandling signs to plug company

DENVER (AP) - An advertising firm is handing out signs to panhandlers with a plug for the company - a stunt homeless advocates say trivializes the plight of those on the streets.

Laminated signs with snappy messages such as, Least I'm Not "At Spamming Your E-Mail,' and "Hell, It Beats a Cubicle," have begun replacing cardboard placards normally waved by panhandlers at motorists. Dennis Wakabayachi, CEO of Sumaato Advertising, handed out the Tuesday signs on Panhandlers are not paid to hold the signs.

"Kind of synergistic, if you think about it," he said. "We're an ad agency, and in this tough market we have to do something toget attention.

Homeless advocates said the signs focus attention in the wrong direction.

Two Texas rodeo women believe killed in Oklahoma bridge collapse

SAN ANTONIO (AP) -Two women returning to reported. South Texas from a fair in Arkansas are believed among the people killed in a bridge collapse in Oklahoma.

Gail Shanahan, a 49-yearold horse trainer, was hauling her prize-winning horses home on Sunday morning when a barge hit two support beams of a bridge along Interstate 40 at Webbers Falls, toppling a 500-foot section into the Arkansas River.

Maggie Green of San Antonio was riding with Shanahan, who lived in nearby Stockdale, the San Antonio Express-News reported in today's editions.

Shanahan and Green were returning from Fort Smith, Ark., where Shanahan's horses had won $7,000 in prize money at the Old Fort

Derby, the Express-News

Shanahan flew to Arkansas on Saturday to watch her horses compete in barrel-racing events, and was accompanying Green, a friend and fellow horse handler, on the long drive back to Stockdale, 35 miles southeast of San Antonio.

News of the women's deaths spread quickly through the tight-knit network of barrel racers and horse lovers here. On Monday, friends and neighbors sat solemnly together in Shanahan's home while her fiance flew to Arkansas to identify her body.

"It's been hard to accept," said Arline Blandford, 74, whose daughter-in-law, Kay Blandford, rode Shanahan's horses in the competition. "Gail's been riding horses since she was knee high to a Days Futurity and Super duck. Horses were her life."

Shanahan and Green were traveling in a trailer emblazoned with the name of Kay Blandford. The Tulsa World reported the vehicle had been recovered along with the bodies of three horses.

David Van Loh, a 66-yearold neighbor of Shanahan's, said rain and blistering heat couldn't keep her from long hours with the horses she trained on her property.

"You'd see her out there from daylight to sunset," he said.

Shanahan was considered one of the better riders on the circuit. A Texas Youth Rodeo champion, she earned regional and national championship trophies in the sport. One of her horses won Novice Horse of the Year for the Bluebonnet Barrel Racing Association in 1996 and 1997, and was Open Champion in 1998.

One killed in Panhandle train collision

CLARENDON (AP) - One person was killed and several others were injured when two Burlington Northern Santa Fe freight trains collided head-on this morning, authorities said.

The number and severity of the injuries was not immediately known, Department of Public Safety spokeswoman Tela Mange said.

It was not known what the trains were carrying when they crashed at 9 a.m. about three miles west of Clarendon.

Officials with Fort Worthbased BNSF were en route to the scene. The track is a main rail link between Fort Worth, Amarillo and Denver.

A large fireball erupted after the collision, sending southeast of Amarillo.

columns of thick smoke into the air, witnesses told Amarillo television station KAMR.

"We can see the smoke from here," Kathy Taylor, assistant manager at a Dairy Queen about three miles from the crash, said.

Bulldogettes making all of us proud

he ritual continues. After having taken on all comers from West Texas in claiming another Region I, Class 2A championship, Coahoma's Bulldogettes are again headed to Austin for the University Interscholastic League (UIL) state softball championships.

The Coahoma softball program has enjoyed nothing short of phenomenal success.

For a fifth time, the Bulldogettes are headed to Austin, their sights set clearly on returning to the throne they claimed in 1998.

The Bulldogettes will board a bus and head for Austin at 9:15 a.m. Wednesday.

Coahoma ISD officials are still trying to figure out how the players can get final exams, which are scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday, taken.

What is certain, however, is that at 2 p.m. Thursday, the Bulldogettes will play a state semifinal game against Alto.

Not surprisingly, the Bulldogettes' sights are clearly focused on reaching Saturday morning's Class 2A championship game at McCombs Field on the University of Texas at Austin campus.

Warnings weren't warnings at he flap in Washington about what did the president know and when did he know it in regard to alleged warnings

CHARLEY despair of any intelli-REESE gent discussion of a public, issue.

There were no warnings. Some Republican watercarriers in the media have tried to blame Bill Clinton. He, too, is innocent of the charge of ignoring any hard evidence of an impending attack. As much as I despise Clinton, he would not have jeopardized American lives any more than George Bush would have. I repeat, there were no warnings

People seem to have forgotten the famous Osama bin Laden tape. Let me paraphrase what he said. He said we recruited some young men for a suicide mission, but we didn't tell them what the mission would be until just before they boarded the aircraft. Well, if 18 of the 19 hijackers didn't know they were going to attack the World Trade Center and the Pentagon, then the president darn well didn't know it either. Nor did the FBI, the CIA, the Defense Intelligence Agency or the National Security Agency.

Probably no more than four or five people on the globe knew the target. Bin Laden is no fool. He, perhaps one or two of his top lieutenants and, at some point, Mohamed Atta knew. Everybody else was probably excluded. Even the guy in Europe who sent the money. You can be ordered to send money to somebody without knowing what he or she intends to use it for. Success depended on secrecy, and the only way to keep a secret is to severely limit the number of people who know what it is. Many people don't understand the intelligence

Perhaps they've seen too many movies that make it seem that the NSA or the CIA can track anybody anywhere, 24 hours a day.

That is not so. Ironically, all you have to do to frustrate electronic-signals intelligence is just simply revert to methods of the pre-electronic age. One man's mouth to another man's ear; one man's hand to another man's hand. A Soviet exile told me that 20 years ago. Any time the Soviets had something really secret, they simply used verbal instructions and couriers, avoiding altogether telephones and computers. You can't pick up a signal that doesn't exist. And cameras, no matter how fine their resolution, still cannot see through hard cover.

People have been yapping about a psychological profile in which the author speculated that a terrorist might fly an explosiveladen plane into a building. Well, that's speculation, which is a product of the imagination. Well before that report, Tom Clancy had written a novel in which a Japanese terrorist flies a fully fueled 747 into the Capitol. That, too, is imagination, not information.

The conversation between two terrorists picked up by authorities in the Philippines back in the 1990s was also just that conversation. I would imagine that every time-two terrorists get together, they talk about what they would like to do, but again, that is not hard evidence of any plan actually being implemented. We can all sit around and speculate and talk about what we'd like to do some day.

As for the so-called warning that appeared in an Arabic newspaper in London, that, too, was nonspecific. You can warn that a terrorist act is coming any day of any year, but if you don't know the specific target, there's nothing you can do about it.

What Americans must do is learn to live with insecurity, the same as our forefathers. Look at Israel. There is nothing it won't do to prevent terrorism --- international law, human rights or world opinion be damned. But is Israel 100 percent successful? Of course not. The terrorist has one advantage that can't be overcome: He gets to choose the time and the place. Better learn to live with that.

Can the media help prevent an attack?

an Rather has never been shy about standing up to presidents. He made his name challenging Richard Nixon at the height of Watergate, and

Rather con-

JACK his role in the Iran-ANDERSON Contra scandal. Yet

fessed in an extraordinary interview with a British television station that he has been guilty of self-censorship since Sept. 11. He explained that love of country can "sometimes prevent American journalists from asking tough questions about the war on terror." More than love of country muzzled the media after Sept. 11. Questioning an administration while the country is at war risks condemnation for being unpatriotic. Rather likened it to being "necklaced," a particularly gruesome form of punishment used for a time in South Africa where a flaming tire was placed around the necks of political dissidents. The irony is that if the media had questioned the administration more carefully in the weeks and months after Sept. 11, President Bush would not now be fending off accusations that he had overlooked clues that might have uncovered the developing terrorist plot

When media inquiries are curbed, the public pays the price. History reveals the lesson time and again. The Alien and Sedition Acts, signed by President John Adams in 1798, sent a score of newspaper editors to jail under the guise of national security in what was really an attempt to blunt political opposition. The result was the decline of Adams' Federalist Party and the election of Thomas Jefferson, a Democratic-Republican. The McCarthy era, a century-and-a-half later, had the press paralyzed over "the Red menace" within its own ranks and unable to properly investigate rampant charges of Communism in American institutions, from the political class to Hollywood.

This in no way equates the post-Sept. 11 reluctance to speak out with either historical episode except to say that whether through intimidation or self-suppression, the country suffers when the media is not vigilant.

Instead of playing their customary role of critic and skeptic, reporters after Sept. 11 behaved more like cheerleaders, relaying the administration's progress reports on the war while applying little independent judgment. Yet the country remains vulnerable to another attack, perhaps more devastating than the first. The administration publicizes the threats on an almost daily basis and warns critics that dwelling on past mistakes distracts from its ability to ward off future attacks.

Learning what led to this country's biggest intelligence failure could help avoid a potentially more devastating assault. The answers that have been emerging however grudgingly from the administration and the intelligence community are not comforting. None of the problems identified by the media have been fixed. The CIA and the FBI are still not communicating; there have been few arrests in connection with the Sept. 11 plot; Osama bin Laden is presumed at large; and top al Queda operatives have regrouped and are preparing to strike again.

Bush's post Sept. 11 honeymoon is over. While nobody believes he had spe cific advance knowledge of last year's attacks, there is also a growing realization that his administration did not pay sufficient attention to the looming threat posed by the al Queda terrorist network.

More critical reporting will emerge as the press sheds its reluctance to do its job.

With elections in the fall that could consolidate Bush's power, the voting public has a right to know what goes on behind the scenes.

Patriotism shouldn't be about donning a flag pin, but asking the tough questions, and taking the criticism that comes with pointing out that not everything is going according to the White House script.

BOSTON (AP) - Players applauded behind the closed door of the New Jersey locker room, where 48 hours earlier they hung their heads after their historic collapse.

On Monday night, the anguish was in the other room as the Boston Celtics contemplated how to recover from Paul Pierce's failure to snatch another win away from the Nets. "That won't bother him one bit,"

Antoine Walker said. Pierce missed a free throw with 1.1 seconds left, deliberately missed the second, and New Jersey held on for a 94-92 victory Monday night that evened the best-of-seven Eastern Conference finals at 2-2.

Game 5 is Wednesday night in New Jersey.

Now it's the Celtics' turn for a comeback in a series filled with them.

There was Boston's rally from a 21-point deficit entering the fourth quarter, when Pierce scored 19 points, to win Game 3 Saturday 94-90. No team had won a playoff game after trailing by more after three quarters.

There was Monday's comeback from that embarrassment – the Nets led 19-8 by hitting five 3-pointers and never trailed — to regain home-court advantage. Kerry Kittles, who led New Jersey with 22 points, had missed 17 straight 3pointers before going 4-for-7.

And there was Boston's surge from six points down with 3 1/2 minutes left that had raucous fans in the FleetCenter articipating another comeback win.

But Jason Kidd and his teammates didn't let it happen.

"We were the same guys that we were in Game 3," he said. "It was just a matter of us knocking down shots, us being aggressive instead of being passive."

So after the Celtics missed their shot at overtime when Pierce misfired and Tony Battie clanged the putback off the rim, Kidd showed by a simple gesture what the Nets had accomplished. He ran toward fans sitting across from his team's bench and held up two fingers on each hand

The series, he told them, was tied  $2 \cdot 2$ .

Nets coach Byron Scott was confident his players would recover from what could have been a demoralizing loss. Before Monday's game, he stood outside his young team's locker room and discussed its chances.

"If you have a veteran team, it's a little bit easier to bounce back," he said. "But we've got a veteran leader, which I really think is going to help us."

Hunter homer powers Twins past Rangers

ARLINGTON (AP) Torii Hunter lives in North (4-3) allowed one run and Texas in the offseason, so it's no wonder he felt right at home at The Ballpark in Arlington.

Hunter hit his 14th home run to tie for the AL lead and drove in three runs Monday night to lead the Minnesota Twins to a 5-2 victory over the Texas Rangers.

"This is home," said Hunter, playing in front of 60 relatives from Arkansas and friends from The Colony, about 45 minutes from the Rangers' home park. "I love Texas but I play for Minnesota. Mom will be cooking for me and I'll get to sleep in my own bed. It's always good to play at home.

Hunter's two-run homer in the fifth inning off Kenny Rogers (5-3) gave the Twins a 40 lead and tied Texas' Alex Rodriguez and Alfonso Soriano of the New York Yankees for the league lead in homers. Hunter was surprised to Twins starter Kyle Lohse seven hits in 5 1-3 innings, striking out six. Eddie Guardado pitched the ninth for his 16th save.

"He got us into the sixth and had a very nice performance. Lohse was very competitive against a very good lineup," Twins manager Ron Gardenhire said.

Rogers gave up five runs, seven hits and four walks in seven innings.

Carl Everett went 3-for-4 and Rafael Palmeiro homered for the Rangers, who lost their fourth straight.

Palmeiro hit his 11th homer leading off the sixth, giving him 1,500 career RBIs. He became the 39th player in major league history to reach the milestone.

The Twins took a 2-0 lead in the third without hitting a ball out of the infield.

No. 9 batter Jay Canizaro drew a leadoff walk, and first baseman Mike Lamb

DALLAS (AP) – Texas and Rice were granted home-site regionals for the NCAA tournament Monday. Baylor, Houston, Lamar and Texas Tech also made the 64-team field.

Rice (41-18), which finished the WAC with a 28-2 record after a three-game sweep at Louisiana Tech, is making its eighth straight NCAA appearance. The Owls are the No. 4 national seed.

The Longhorns (48-14), the Big 12 regular season and tournament champions, are the No. 5 national seed. This is their fourth straight NCAA appearance, and 44th overall.

"We got a trophy, now two of them," Texas coach Augie Garrido said after Texas wrapped up the Big 12 tournament with a 9-6, 10inning win over Nebraska on Sunday. "The regional site is the top reward, and a top-eight national seed.

Texas and Nebraska (42-18), also a host team this week, were among five Big 12 teams getting in the NCAA tournament. The others were Baylor, Texas Tech and Oklahoma.

The four-team, doubleelimination regionals begin Friday. The winners of those 16 regionals advance to the best-of-three super regionals the following weekend to determine the eight teams that will play in the College World Series.

The Longhorns play Central Connecticut State (34-21), the automatic qualifier from the Northeast Conference making its first NCAA appearance, in the opening round Friday.

There is an all-Texas matchup in the other Friday game in Austin, with Baylor (34-24) playing Southland Conference champ Lamar (35-22).

Baylor, despite seven straight losses, got its fifth straight NCAA tournament berth and was the only Big 12 team without a winning record in conference play to make it. Lamar is in its 10th tournament overall, but first since 1995. "It's encouraging that the committee really did take our entire season into account, and not just the last two weeks," said Baylor coach Steve Smith.

At Rice, the Owls play Ivy League champion Harvard (20-24). Texas Tech (41-18) plays Washington (30-25-1) in the other Friday game at Houston Houston (44-15), which had its most wins since 1990, is the top seed in its regional, but has to go to Mesa, Ariz., to play new Mexico State (37-23). The other teams in that bracket are San Diego and Arizona State.

see a fastball from Rogers over the middle of the plate. "I couldn't believe it," Hunter said. "He rarely makes a mistake. I looked for something to hit and just reacted to it. It feels good to be tied with A-Rod for the home run lead.

Rogers knew he made a bad pitch. "I did groove it," he said.

"I was trying to make a twoseamer on the inside, but it went over the middle. The catchers don't get those very often. Mistakes get hit.

Hunter's run-scoring triple in the seventh stretched Minnesota's lead to 5-1. The Rangers have lost 10 of 12 to fall nine games under .500 (20-29) for the first time since April 23 (5-14) threw wildly to second on Dustan Mohr's grounder, allowing Canizaro to move to third. Cristian Guzman's infield single scored Corey Canizaro, and Koskie's groundout made it 2-0.

Herbert Perry's RBI double in the eighth pulled the Rangers to 5-2.

Notes: Texas was returning from a 2-9 road trip. Rangers OF-INF Frank Catalanotto has been cleared to begin extended spring training Wednesday. Catalanotto has been on the 15-day disabled list since May 11 with a strained right groin and muscle spasms in his back. ... Pregame rain prevented the teams from taking batting practice. ... ## Yankees' big bats back Thurman in 10-6 victory

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

The New York Yankees' big bats made fill-in starter Mike Thurman's job easy

Bernie Williams homered, doubled and drove in four runs, and the Yankees used a six-run first inning to beat the Chicago White Sox 10-6 Monday night.

Thurman (1-0), pitching in place of injured Orlando Hernandez, took the mound with a 6-0 lead in his first appearance as a Yankee and held the White Sox to two runs in seven innings.

"It's all the big leagues," said Thurman, who went 9-11 with a 5.33 ERA for the Expos last season. "I just had to stay focused like it was a scoreless game."

Nick Johnson hit a three-run homer, and Rondell White had three hits and two RBIs as New York scored in double digits for the second straight game.

The Yankees, who lead the majors in runs scored and homers, hit six home runs in a 14-5 victory at Boston on Sunday night.

"We're not trying to hit homers," Williams said. "In my mind, we're still trying to win with pitching and defense. The home runs are just a bonus."

In other American League games, it was: Detroit 4, Cleveland 1; Boston 8, Toronto 6; and Minnesota 5, Texas 2.

In National League games, it was: Los Angeles 5, Milwaukee 3; San Francisco 7, Arizona 3; Atlanta 5, Montreal 1: St. Louis 4, Houston 3; Florida 5, New York 3; Pittsburgh 3, Chicago 2 in 10 innings; and San Diego 8, Colorado 5.

The crowd of 43,781 was the biggest of the season at Comiskey Park, and many of the fans rooted for the Bronx Bombers.

"It's still very exciting to play in front of large crowds. Our motivation still goes up," Williams said.

New York manager Joe Torre, whose club has won 16 of 20, said there are Yankees fans everywhere.

"We draw a crowd wherever we go. We have guys, like (Derek) Jeter and (Jason) Giambi, who people want to see," Torre said.

Frank Thomas hit a two-run homer for Chicago, but Dan Wright (5-5) could not follow up on two good starts and gave up six runs in the first.

"It was a long inning," Wright said. "It was just a matter of making bad pitches. You can't make those mistakes in the big leagues."

Tigers 4, Indians 1

Mark Redman pitched a careerbest four-hitter and beat Cleveland for the second time in a week.

breaking pitches in with his fastball and improved to 4-1 with a 2.27 ERA in five career starts against the Indians.

Damian Jackson hit a two-run homer off Danys Baez (4-4) as the visiting Tigers snapped Cleveland's three-game winning streak and won their fourth straight over the Indians.

Red Sox 8, Blue Jays 6

Nomar Garciaparra homered and drove in three runs, and Jason Varitek also had three RBIs as Boston sent host Toronto to its fourth straight loss.

Raul Mondesi drove in a seasonhigh four runs for the Blue Jays, including a two-run homer in the ninth off Rich Garces that cut it to 8-6. Ugueth Urbina came on for his 16th save in 17 chances.

Frank Castillo (3-5) finally got some offensive support after the Red Sox scored a total of four runs in his previous four starts. Roy Halladay (5-2) took the loss.

Dodgers 5, Brewers 3

Shawn Green saved at least one home run for the home crowd. Back at Dodger Stadium after a record-setting road trip, Green hit

Redman (2-5) mixed a few slow his 10th homer in seven games to lead Los Angeles to a 5-3 win over Milwaukee.

> He went 16-for-27 with nine homers, including a record-tying four in one game against the Brewers, and 17 RBIs on a six-game swing through Milwaukee and Arizona. He broke the NL mark with nine homers in a calendar week Brewers starter Ben Sheets (3-5) held Green hitless in three at-bats.

The Dodgers needed a long outing from Hideo Nomo to rest an overworked bullpen.

Nomo (5-5) came through, allowing two runs, seven hits and seven walks in seven innings. He struck out eight and won his third straight decision. Eric Gagne got three outs for his 17th save in 18 chances.

Glants 7, Diamondbacks 3

Barry Bonds hit his 585th career home run, Reggie Sanders had a goahead, two-run shot and Benito Santiago doubled three times at Pacific Bell Park.

The Giants, swept in Colorado over the weekend, closed within 1 1/2 games of the defending World Series champion Diamondbacks in the NL West.

Bonds, who set the single-season record last year with 73 homers, went deep off Brian Anderson.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Wednesday, May 29:

Stay centered when dealing with those in your life. Often, so much happens so quickly that you feel unstable or unsure. You will need to tightly organize yourself. Then you will feel as if everything is right. Carefully consider options involving your funds and moneymaking ability. Another might offer to 'teach" you or help you learn more in your chosen field or about investments. Accept his or her push. If single, your social life will perk up in August and won't slow down for a while. You could meet someone very special during this period.
