CLEAN UP

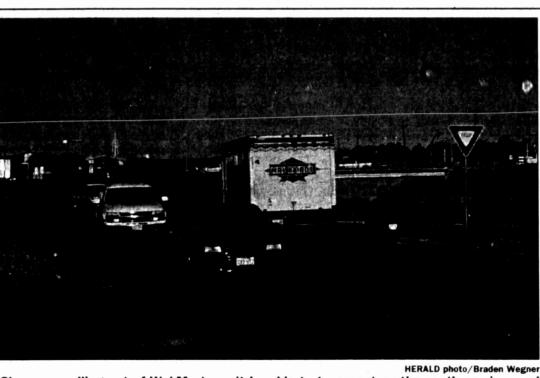

In combination with Mayor Russ McEwen's Clean and Green Campaign, the city is initiating a large-item pick up.

The program will be established according to council districts in conjunction with the Wilderness Camp cleanup program. It will begin Thursday in District 1 represented by Councilmember Stephanie Horton, and will be scheduled in the other districts in the coming months.

If you live in District 1, please place all non-hazardous items on the curb, in the city right-ofway, by 7 a.m. on Thursday. In doing this, do not put items on top of or close to water meters, gas meters or telephone poles.

When Denise Coates and her husband, Dale, decided to organize a benefit golf tournament to help offset medical costs for the Marvin Wynn family, she set a goal of raising $20,000. Some might have thought that to be way too lofty an aspiration. Instead, it seems the Coates knew their neighbors well.

In fact, with money still arriving this morning, the tournament has already raised $22,537 and Coates says she has no real way of knowing just what the final total will be.

"The people of this community are just so wonderful," she said after seeing 192 golfers take part in Saturday's tournament at the Comanche Trail Golf Course.

"We had 48 teams come out and play and even had one foursome that had entered to play and couldn't, but still sent in their $200 in entry fees," she added. "And several of the winning teams wouldn't take their prizes, donating them back so we could give more to the Wynns.

In that same December week, Marvin, who had gone in for a routine screening, was diagnosed with prostate cancer.

Marvin underwent surgery in late May and is slowly recovering, and Matthew is undergoing experimental stem cell treatment at M.D. Anderson Hospital in Houston.

The Wynns, both teachers for the Big Spring Independent School District, have been financially burdened from Matthew's first battle with cancer.

To make matters worse, the family's insurance will not pay for Matthew's experimental treatment, which will cost an estimated $130,000.

gaggle of teenagers gather at the Howard County Courthouse. They aren't there to wreak havoc, run amok or vandalize property - that's already been done.

Instead, they've come to face the consequences of their actions and be judged by their peers. "To me the whole Teen Court process is both community service and more beneficial to the kids coming back for jury duty night after night," said local attorney Charles Myers of the Mouton, Mouton and Myers law firm in Big Spring. "I see the kids mature in the jury questioning process.

"I see they are thinking more about the consequences," he added. "The questions they ask (from the defendant) elicit information about the consequences of the fight, the traffic accident, the curfew violation of whatever. They get better asking questions that mean something.

Curfew violations can land youths in Teen Court

By LYNDEL MOODY

Staff Writer If youths under the age of 17 are caught out past the city's curfew hours, they may be faced with appearing in Teen Court. Although a number of youth do break the ordinance, Big Spring Police Department Patrol Lt. Robert Fitzgibbons said it is not a major problem in the city.

For those that do, police will take the following action: "They are cited for curfew violation and a parent or legal guardian is called to pick them up at the scene or we escort them home," Fitzgibbons said.

Established curfew hours are from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. of the following day, Sunday through Thursday, and 12:01 a.m. until 6 a.m.

Saturday and Sunday. According to the city ordinance, minors commit an offense if they remain in any public place or on the premises of any establishment within the city during curfew hours.

A parent or guardian can also be cited if his or her child is caught violating the curfew if the parent or guardian knowingly permits or by insignificant control allows the minor to remain in any public place or on the premises of any establishment.

Business owners, operators or employees who allow minors to remain on the establishment's premise during the established curfew hours, unless promptly notifying police, can also be cited.

minor breaking curfew, the minor may have a defense if he or she is:

· Accompanied by a parent or guardian.

• On an errand at the direction of the minor's parent or guardian. The minor cannot detour or stop while on the errand.

• In a motor vehicle involved in interstate travel

· Engaged in an employment activity or going or returning home from a job. The minor cannot detour or stop while traveling to or from work.

· Involved in an emergency.

· On the sidewalk abutting the minor's residence or abutting the next door neighbor's residence as long as the neighbor did not complain to the police department about the minor's presence.

· Attending an official school, religious or other recreational activity supervised by adults and sponsored by the city, civic organization or another similar entity that takes responsibility; or if the minor is going or returning home from the activity. Minors cannot detour or stop while traveling to or from the activity.

· Exercising first amend ment rights protected by the United States Constitution such as the free exercise of religion, freedom of speech and the right of assembly.

· Married, have been married or had disabilities of minority removed in accordance with Chapter 31 of the Texas Family Code.

A person who violates a provision of the ordinance can face a fine of as much as $500 if convicted. Youths do have the option of appearing in Teen Court and have the citation erased from their record and the fine waived.

Because drilling for the bridge — or turnaround is also necessary for supports in the middle of the structure, workers will be diverting traffic along FM 700 on to the service roads later in the week. But that detour will be temporary.

"Probably about Wednesday, the rig will be on FM 700 and we will have traffic blocked off," said Edwards. "We'll just move everyone off on the service roads for a short distance and then back on again. Hopefully that will only take one day; that's what we're counting on right now.'

Construction of the turnaround will begin soon, Edwards said. Meanwhile, work continues on the north service road, where the old off ramp is being moved back some 600 to 700 feet.

OUR VIEWS Burn, but remember: use caution lthough Howard County Judge Ben Lockhart lifted a month-old burn ban last week, there's no question that all of us still need to be vigilant when any sort of outdoor fire is involved.

The ban, which went into effect June 10, prohibited outdoor burning and aerial fireworks with sticks or fins.

In lifting the ban following almost two inches of rainfall, Lockhart said officials wanted to let everyone do their burning before it gets dry again.

However, the judge noted that the ban could be reinstituted, and it's a pretty fair bet it will be.

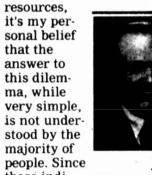

The important thing to remember, however, is the need to use caution.

While Howard County has received 1.9 inches of rain this month, our year-to-date total is just 7.28 inches — well behind the 9.55 inches that would have normally fallen by this time.

With vegetation beginning to green up and use recent rains to put on a growth spurt, it means the threat of wildfires will increase in coming days. Officials are urging those who need to do some burning not to put it off. But Big Spring residents need to remember that trash burning is prohibited inside the city limits, as are several other types of outdoor fires.

How's your self-image doing today?

ave you ever wondered why some people have a negative, pessimistic attitude about most things while others are generally positive and up-beat? Based on many years of work in the field of human stand it, they don't know how to go about changing a negative attitude to a positive attitude, and in the process, living a happier, more productive and successful life. The reason one person is positive and up-beat while another is negative and pessimistic, is because our overall attitude and our outlook on life is a reflection of our self-image. In other words, what's "taking place" on the inside shows up on the outside. Because this discovery was made in the past 50 years, many people did not learn about it in school or later in life, as they moved out into the world.

Almost by chance, a plastic surgeon, Dr. Maxwell Maltz, discovered the concept of self-image and later wrote about it in his book, titled Psychocybernetics, which has sold in excess of 15 million copies. As Dr. Maltz worked with his patients to change their physical appearances with the aid of plastic surgery, he began to notice a definite, marked change in their attitude and their willingness to tackle jobs and assume risks that would have been considered impossible before.

Further research revealed that an outward physical change was also accompanied by an inner emotional change. Thus the conclusion was reached: the selfimage is the mental picture we hold of ourselves and this mental picture relates to both the "outer" and "inner" person and it literally controls our lives. In fact the discovery of the self-image has been called the most important psychological discovery of the twentieth century. When an individual holds a positive picture of himself, he performs better than when he holds a negative picture. In a very-real sense, a ëwinnerí feeds on his or her success.

The real meat of the coconut can be found in this statement: The human nervous system cannot distinguish between actual true life experiences from those imagined in vivid detail in the mind. In other words, we must see ourselves as successful and begin to act this way before it will ever come to pass. There is however, a real pitfall that we must take steps to avoid. In recent years many schools have developed courses to help students develop a healthy self-image. While the intent is great, many times the methods have been found wanting. It takes more than telling a student or any human being that he or she is a good person with real value because a healthy self-image is not based merely on words but on solid achievement. Our subconscious mind can tell the difference between praise and performance. To say it another way, nothing truly worthwhile is ever easy.

Since our rewards in life are determined by the quality and quantity of service we provide to others, it's important to understand that our value to society is determined by what we make of ourselves. We can change our life for the better by changing our selfimage, which is simply the way we see ourselves, both physically and emotionally, that is to say, from both the outside and the inside. It also becomes easier to help other people when we understand the reasons behind their negative attitudes. It is a wonderful thing to help a person change his or her selfimage and begin to see the winner God created them to be. In reality, the more we help others, the more we help ourselves.

YOUR VIEWS

TO THE EDITOR: I am writing in response to the recent school board meeting. I think it is very clear that four school board members need to sit up and get their priorities in order. The decision not to let Mrs. Rocha be the principal at Moss Elementary was the biggest mistake these four men could have made.

Mrs. Rocha is very qualified for that job. She has so many qualifications and so much experience under her belt that should have allowed her to get the position at Moss.

Personally, I think fear was one reason she did not get the job she so rightly deserved. Some of the real reasons she was denied this job were: She is a female; she is of a minority race; and certain people are afraid of change.

Mrs. Rocha could have made an impact at Moss Elementary. It is just too bad that Mr. Dawson, Mr. Furgueron, Mr. Sharp and Mr. Partee could not put aside their egos and prejudices, and focus on what is best for the children. Isn't this what it is all about? The children? I can't imagine how

Mrs. Rocha must have felt when she was indirectly welcomed to Moss Elementary, only to find out moments later that she was denied the job because of a "control issue."

The "control issue" should have never been the response to this decision. The word control does not even belong in a board members' dictionary. The words "gender" and "ethnicity" should have been the true response as to why their decision was made.

It is just a shame that these four men took their anger and prejudices out on an innocent woman. A very qualified woman who was trying to move up in her career that was knocked down by four "school yard bullies."

All we can do now is wish Mrs. Rocha luck and wish her the best in Weimar, where she will be appreciated for the highly qualified, motivating, Hispanic woman that she is.

Bush shouldn't lecture on corporate ethics ell, President Bush made his big speech on corporate reform Tuesday, and the stock market went down by 178 points.

IVINS Much as one would system.

like to see

many corporate executives doing time alongside hard-working stick-up artists, that leaves the systemic problems in place. Among the leading structural factors causing the cascading scandals are conflict of interest on the part of auditors who also get paid by their clients as consultants, conflict of interest on the part of stock analysts and their investment-banker bosses, abuse of stock options encouraged by not having to count their cost against earnings, and lack of oversight on accountants and insider loans - of the very kindBush himself got at Harken. Bush addressed none of it.

Stiffer penalties for what is already illegal are not helpful when the problem is what is legal. Bush's effort to treat this as though it were simply a law 'n' order problem is not going to be effective. Even the law 'n' order proposals are pretty pathetic. Bush wants the Securities and Exchange Commission to be able to punish corporate leaders 'by banning them from ever serving as officers or directors of a public compa ny." So if you rip-off your shareholders, destroy your workers' pensions and bail out just before the crash, taking your golden parachute with you — we'll never let you do it again! That and 20 lashes with a wet noodle, and now we're talking deterrence. The idea of setting up financial crimes SWAT teams would have more appeal if it wasn't effectively saying, "Don't worry about a thing – we're putting John Ashcroft in charge." Great, there won't be an uncovered breast to be found anywhere in corporate America. (Just because I can't resist it, the obvious line about Ashcroft's 13-month investigation that netted 12 hookers in New Orleans is. "How'd he miss the other 10.000?")

Increasing the SEC's budget by $100 million sounds like a nice round number, but even the toothless House Republican bill includes almost three times that size — $296 million. Given that the beleaguered agency is understaffed. under-financed, outgunned and outmanned, we could consider spending more than the price of one of our bad helicopters on it.

SEC personnel notoriously make less than those at other government agencies. On top that, they've got Harvey Pitt for a chairman. Pitt is the man who came in promising to make the SEC "a kinder and gentler place for accountants." Although Bush said "selfregulation is not enough," he did not address the need to create a strong oversight board to audit the auditors.

The rest of Bush's speech was a stern sermon on corporate ethics. Considering the source, it does raise the always-timely question. "Is God punishing us?" How much cognitive dissonance can one people put up with? If Bush wants to lecture us on physical fitness, that's fine, but please, not corporate ethics. At least Bill Clinton never preached to us about chastity

I'm sure we could all use some moral rearmament, but in case you hadn't noticed, we have no shortage of public scolds in this country. The old Ethics Czar Bill Bennett has been at it for years, not to mention television preachers, radio psychologists, Newt Gingrich, curbstone Freuds, backwoods Jeremiahs, Judge Bork, newspaper ethicists, etiquette consultants and the late Ann Landers. The country does not need another preacher: We need someone who can run the country. And that means someone bright enough to notice systemic problems in the financial markets.

Since the president proposes nothing to fix the problems — the speech was basically a cheap sop to our schadenfreude - we canlook for the situation to continue to get worse. We are already seeing a major pullout from U.S. markets by foreign investors

You may not recall this because the media were totally preoccupied with Monica Lewinsky at the time, but a few years ago about one third of the world's financial markets collapsed. A few citizens who were paying attention managed some thoughtful analysis of the problems, including the critical role of capital flight by foreign investors. The United States got itself quite an obnoxious reputation at the time for giving condescending and unsound advice, most of it via the World Bank, to the afflicted countries. Time to dig out those old lectures we used to read to others and study them carefully for their errors. It's our turn in the tank.

Houston among finalists for 2012

HOUSTON (AP) Houston is among the four best cities in the world to host the 2012 Olympic Games, the chairman of the U.S. Olympic Committee's site selection team said Saturday.

Unfortunately for Texas' largest city, he quickly added that the other three happen to be its immediate competitors, San Francisco, Washington and New York.

"Any one of them is qualified to host these Games," team chairman Charles Moore said at a news conference wrapping up the team's whirlwind two-day visit.

The USOC will narrow its list to two in September and select the U.S. city on Nov. The International Olympic Committee will name the 2012 host city in 2005

Moore, who said he doesn't discuss a candidate's negatives and tries not to compare cities, accidentally broke the latter rule when asked to evaluate Houston's venue plan, which includes three covered stadiums and two NBA-caliber arenas.

"The sports infrastructure stacks up very well against the other bid cities," said Moore, who quickly stopped himself to rephrase his answer that Houston's site plan was "beyond our expectations." Moore lavished praise on Reliant Park, which includes the Astrodome, a new convention center and the soon-to-be-completed Reliant Stadium, calling it "mind-boggling." The news

It wasn't Wimbledon, but Derek Dehoyas and Matt Barron didn't mind in the least. In fact, the taste was just as sweet to them.

Dehoyas, a Big Spring standout, and Barron, an Odessa resident, combined to nail down the men's doubles title at the 2002 Black and Gold Tennis Tournament Saturday night at the Figure 7 Tennis Complex. The two rolled to a straight set win over Rotan's Colter Williams and Cory Huggins.

Claiming the doubles title was anything but easy for Dehoyas and Barron. Williams, the defending Class A state champion, and Huggins pushed the twosome to the brink in the first game of the match.

Dehoyas and Barron fought off several break point assaults and emerged from the initial game with a slim 7-6 win.

The road did get a bit easier in the final game. Dehoyas and Barron easily dispatched Williams and Huggins in the final frame, winning 6-2.

Snyder's Adam Phillips and Curt Rodgers claimed the third-place honors in the men's division by pounding out a 6-1, 6-1 win over a Forsan squad in the consolation matchup.

Cade Park and Hooper formed Forsan's squad.

Lacy Eggleston and Erin Posev came within a whisper of taking the 14-16 girls' division honors. The duo finished second in the final team standings to Midland's Angela Zemoski and Tracy Hughes.

Zemoski and Hughes battled back from an early deficit to win, 4-6, 7-6.

Coahoma's Callie Paige, who staged a strong effort in singles action a day earlier, joined teammate Rodney Paige in the consolation finals in Mixed Doubles play. The two helped create an all-Howard County matchup in the semis by squaring off against Forsan's Ben Breyman and Erin Posey.

Snyder's Stephanie Wilson and Ted Phillips, the Snyder High School tennis coach, starred in Mixed doubles action.

Afton Sutter and Lisa Beccoe finished atop the 18 and Under Division during round-robin double play. The two narrowly escaped a threat from a twosome anchored by Big Spring's Mindy Partee.

Odessa's Lee Rivera and Sean Black won the 14-16 Division round-robin format. They held off a strong challenge from Midland's Taylor Thrash and his teammate.

conference was, not coincidentally, held in a penthouse meeting room whose windows framed the stadiums on the horizon.

Moore also praised the compactness of venue locations, which he said somewhat counteracts Houston's lack of mass transit relative to the other three cities.

Houston officials, believing the quality, financing and 88-percent completeness of planned venues are advantages, concentrated on the city's diversity and cultural offerings. When the team was here last year whittling the initial list of eight, Houston 2012 was told to show more in the culture department, which Olympic International Committee members will scrutinize.

'We're impressed with the cultural diversity of Houston," said Moore, whose team already has been to New York and Washington and is headed to San Francisco.

Probably, if you aren't checking the Public Notices columns of this newspaper regularly.

Public Notices are required by state law to protect your rights and to help you function more effectively as a citizen. Access to information about what government agencies are doing is what makes the American the most powerful citizen in the world.

The Public Notices give you access to information you need...about plans for major land use changes...about where roads will go...whose land will be condemned...how your tax dollars will be spent...about court actions that could be important to you, or just plain interesting.

Whether you know them as Public Notices or as "the legals", it pays you to check the Public Notice columns in this newspaper each issue. What you don't know might cost you!

Son's masturbation not considered harmful thing is to tell him you love him no matter what.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been friends with "Sally" for over 30 years. The problem is, for the past three years, Sally has been seeing a married man. I do not approve of this relationship, and she knows it

This married boyfriend has told so many lies, it's hard to keep them straight. I cannot believe Sally is so stupid that she buys his line of garbage. He tells her he needs to stay married for the sake of his son (who is 19 years old). He says he is in debt and must pay it off before he can divorce. He insists he no longer lives with his wife, yet his car is always parked in front of her home. He has few friends because his wife "won't allow him to have any." How can anyone believe such nonsense?

I have lost all respect for Sally and cannot stand to be in the same room with this man. She is ruining our friendship, and I am worried that she will alienate everyone who cares about her. How can I get her to break it off? -Friend in Florida

Dear Florida: You can do nothing about Sally's affair. Unless she is willing to see this man for the louse he is, she will not give him up. However, you are under no obligation to socialize with him. If you wish to see Sally, do so when her paramour is not around. One of these days, the relationship will end, and Sally will need her friends. Please be there for her.
