Heart Walk volunteers seeking both funds and fun

By ROGER CLINE

Staff Writer

Although the fund-raising to be done Saturday during the American Heart Association's annual Heart Walk is serious business, that's no reason it can't be fun, too.

"We'd like everybody to come," said

Heart Walk chairperson Carmen Brooks. "It's going to be helpful not just to the Heart Association, but to everybody and it's going to be real fun."

Registration for the walk begins at 9 a.m. and the walkers leave the starting line at 9:30. Those participating have their choice of two courses, one three miles long and one 1.2 miles long.

"I think it will be over about noon," Brooks said.

INFORMATION

What: American Heart Association Heart Walk.

Where: Comanche Trail Park Amphitheater.

When: 9 a.m. Saturday.

Entertainment for the younger set will include Dimples the Clown and an inflated jumping castle, while the Howard College cheerleaders will be on hand to cheer

everybody on, Brooks said. Local Key Club members will hand out water along the routes and Big Spring EMS will be providing medical service. Local nurses will provide free blood pressure checks and the Howard County Sheriff's Posse will patrol the routes on horseback to provide assistance for anyone who needs it.

This year's Heart Walk is dedicated to Big Spring

Herald publisher Ken Dulaney who died of a sudden heart attack in June. Dulaney's wife Vera and daughter Kendra plan to take part in the event.

Brooks said the local AHA board also plans to walk in support of heart disease sufferer Sydney Clark, a longtime board member.

"He's been real, real ill because of his heart,"

DiscOver tourney brings sport's best to Big Spring

The Big Spring Country Club. The Comanche Trail Golf Course. Park and Putt Family Fun Center.

Nope, that's not all. There's one more golf course in Big Spring, and on Sunday, drivers and putters will be soaring through the air above it.

The course in question is the Birdwell Park Disc Golf Course and the event is the 10th Ever DiscOver Big Spring Disc Golf Tournament. "Drivers" and "putters" are flying discs with different aerodynamic characteristics for different situations in the game.

"Basically there's three different types of discs. You have your drivers, your mid-range discs or 'approach' discs, you can call them either one. Then you have your putters," said event coordinator Greg Brooks.

Golf discs are not your typical picnic Frisbees. "You'd probably call them more aerodynamic. More of a high-tech disc," he said. "They come to a sharper edge. Don't play catch with them, they'll take your fingers off. If you ever get hit by one, boy, you know it. They cut through the air a lot better. I can throw

"If they don't want to come play because they haven't played much before and don't want to be embarrassed or whatever, they can sure come out and watch,"

Ladies start your needles.

After four years of hard work and dedication, the efforts of 25 parishioners and volunteers have come to fruition. St. Mary's Episcopal Church installed 25 alter rail kneelers and four acolyte kneelers in its sanctuary.

In the fall of 1998, a committee was formed to pursue the idea of needlepoint cushions in the church. This committee included Linda Hill, Jean Money and Barbara Anderson.

The volunteers included former parishioners who had moved since the project began, but still felt a bond with the church and wanted to help, according to the Rev. James Liggett, the church's rector.

"There were bonds of affection I guess you'd say," he reflected. "They had real fond memories of the church and wanted to be a part of the project."

Stitchers included women who now live in San Antonio, Lubbock and even New Mexico.

Once the funding was in place, a decision was made to find a designer.

"I knew Vici Fallen through a (needlepoint) seminar," said Anderson, one of the stitchers and a member of the church. "She was a new designer at Blair House in Washington, D.C., and

57 years late, veteran receives medal for serving his country

Fifty-seven years ago, a teen-age Thomas Ament served in the engine room of a U.S. Coast Guard tanker vessel, refueling Navy ships even in the mist of battle.

It was just last month the U.S. Department of Navy awarded the 75-year-old local resident with the Combat Action Ribbon for his service during the United States Pacific Theater campaign of World War II.

"Lots of people don't know they are eligible for more medals," said Ament, who found out he qualified after reading an article in the December 2001 issue of VFW.

The article stated that in 1999, the Department of Navy opened up eligibility for the CAR to World War II and Korean War veterans when the department changed the retroactive date from March 1, 1961, to Dec. 7, 1941.

During the years of 1943 to 1946, Ament served in U.S. Coast Guard, then under the authority of the U.S. Navy.

"During battle we would refuel ships," Ament said.

"They (ships) would pull up beside us and refuel but they didn't like being around us. Ships didn't like to come around us long because it was so dangerous."

Ament worked in the engine room in 125- to 130-degree heat for four hours a shift.

The young Tennessee native was just 16 when he ran across a Coast Guard office and decided to join.

"I got my mother's friend to sign my papers," Ament said. "I didn't ask her because I knew she wouldn't."

Following his discharge from the Coast Guard, Ament spent 20 years serving in the U.S. Air Force as an aircraft specialist and eventually taught for a time at Big Spring High School.

The ribbon will join Ament's collection of 11 medals and 18 ribbons awarded for his service for his country. To apply for the Combat Action Ribbon, each request must contain:

- a copy of the applicant's DD-2214/discharge documents.
- the applicant's full name and Social Security number.

Supporting documents that may be helpful but are not required are a standard form 180-request pertaining to military record, annotations from service records of engagements or lists of awards from the National Personnel Record Center in Saint Louis, Mo.

one about 450 feet on a good throw."

Otherwise, disc golf is very similar to regular, or "ball" golf.

"We have tee boxes, just like in ball golf, and you throw your first throw from the tee box," he said. "Wherever it lands, that's your lie, and that's where you play from. We have catching devices called 'pole hole baskets.' The object is to land in the baskets. There are sort of chains hanging down into the baskets, and those are like your backboard. The disc hits the chains and hopefully falls right down into the basket. That's how you hole out."

As in ball golf, a player's score is determined by the number of attempts it takes to hole out.

"At Birdwell Park, all of our holes out there are par threes," Brooks said. "They range in length from about 190 feet to about 420 feet."

The DiscOver tournament is open to the public, he said.

"We do have different divisions for everybody's talent level," he said.

Entry fees are $10 for novice and junior players, $20 for amateur and advanced players and $30 for pro players. Registration is from 10 to 11 a.m. Sunday.

"If they don't want to come play because they haven't played much before and don't want to be embarrassed or whatever, they can sure come out and watch," Brooks said. "We start the tournaments and blow the horn and whatever and there's a lot of multicolored bright discs in the air."

DiscOver, a regional tournament, is the oldest disc golf tournament in West Texas, Brooks said.

Husband's first priority should be his wife, not friends

Dear Annie: For the past six months, my husband and his best friend, "Corey," have been spending an unusual amount of time together. They see each other at least four times a week to play pool or golf, and call each other every day and talk for an hour at a time. My husband makes plans with Corey before talking to me, and we often wind up taking Corey to dinner or the movies with us.

My husband insists that his relationship with Corey is normal, that Corey simply needs someone to talk to. That's fine, but any time I want to talk to my husband, he says he doesn't have time to listen.

I am tired of spending my evenings alone. I am not interested in including Corey more than we already do because I'm not that fond of him. Any ideas? — Ignored in Lansing, Mich.

Dear Lansing: Your husband's closeness to Corey is NOT normal. He is married, and his first priority should be to you. He is spending an inordinate amount of time with this man and making him a third wheel in your relationship, even though he knows how much it bothers you. Either something else is going on between your husband and Corey, or he is using Corey to avoid his marriage. Whichever one it is, you've got a problem. Toots. Marriage counseling might help. ANNIE'S MAILBOX

I have been friends with "Karen" since high school. We attended a concert a while back and ran into several of her friends, including "Mike." Mike flirted with me all evening, and we ended up kissing. During a bathroom break, I told Karen I was interested in Mike. She admitted she'd had a fling with him a year ago, but it was over and done. She said it was perfectly OK with her if I started seeing him.

Mike and I spent the rest of the concert together, talking and kissing. The next day, Mike called and asked me out. I mentioned it to Karen, and she said my behavior at the concert really bothered her and she would be mad at me if I dated Mike. I said, "Fine. You are my friend. I won't hang out with him."

Karen hasn't spoken to me since, and it's been two weeks. Mike is still calling, and I'd like to see him, but Karen's friendship is more important. How can I clear this up? — Queens, N.Y.

Dear Queens: Call Karen, and find out what the problem is. It seems unfair that she doesn't want Mike but won't let you have him, either. Since you have made the choice to sacrifice a budding romance for a long-term friendship, it makes no sense that she has cut you off. Ask her for an explanation.

Dear Annie: I agree with your reply to "Living Rent-Free in Milwaukee." The 26-year-old man who still lived at home with Mom and Dad, and couldn't seem to find a girlfriend. I am a 32-year-old man who has been splitting rent with my mother for six years. (She needed a roommate to help with the finances.)

I know Mom is a good part of the reason I cannot find a steady girlfriend. I will be moving into my own apartment in a couple of weeks, and I can't wait. I love my mother very much, but I need to be on my own. — Paying Rent in Wisconsin

Dear Wisconsin: A lot of readers thought it was perfectly fine to live with the folks in order to save money. That may be financially sound, but it is socially risky. Past a certain age, living with Mom and Dad makes you appear immature (unless they need a caretaker). In your case, you were helping Mom with her rent, which is noble, but you are wise to recognize the hazards. Good luck to you.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, Oct. 4, 2002:

Stay even this year, which might sometimes look like playing the recluse or hermit. Understand that at times others come off a bit hard; you might also come off a bit harder as a result. Learn to think and choose your words carefully before discussing difficult issues. Acknowledge your desires and wishes first to yourself. You will be unusually lucky and resourceful through August 2003. If you are single, check out each person that interests you. You are likely to meet someone who might be emotionally unavailable. The good news is an excellent relationship will enter your life. If you are attached, you will find that your life takes an exciting twist or two together. Value your special time together. VIRGO reads you cold.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) * You might be more playful and happier than many. Enjoy what is going on within a key relationship. This person might be a bit sour. Don't allow this situation to get carried away or become a problem. Give an individual space. Tonight: Play the weekend in.

Somehow, others sense your energy and back off. You might need or want more space right now. Pressure builds to a new peak. Know when to make your load lighter and when to disengage, if possible. Extend yourself to a family member. Tonight: Play it low-key.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) * Speak your mind, but don't be surprised if you get a negative reaction or two. Others' moods might signal that the weekend cannot happen quickly enough. If you can, leave work early. Don't take on someone else's mood. Stay clear of trouble. Tonight: Join your pals.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)  Use care with a child or loved one, or when taking a risk. What you might feel to be an excellent risk could backfire. Play it conservatively; don't stick your neck out. Deal with work and try to clear out as much as you can. Stop pushing yourself so hard. Tonight: Browse through a favorite bookstore.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)  Though you might be happy as pie, others could be difficult, especially someone close to home or perhaps a family member. You cannot change this person's mood, but you can make plans that suit you. Don't push others right now. Tonight: Whirl on out the door.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)  Step back. You might need some downtime, especially if you notice that you're unusually snappy or difficult. You also discover that others might be disagreeable. Close your door and focus on getting the job done. Tonight: Play ostrich.

done. Tonight: Play ostrich.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) * Friends and associates have many great ideas, though you might find them unusually expensive or emotionally demanding. You know how to say "no" in a politically correct way. Take care of yourself under any circumstance. Tonight: Bring friends together.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)  Your mood impacts more than just you. Others back away rather than hitting a conflict. Detach and handle yourself more evenly, especially with those who surround your day-to-day life. Your attitude will be appreciated. Tonight: A must appearance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) * Read between the lines when dealing with a difficult person on the phone or over the Internet. Learn the art of detachment, especially if you're uncomfortable with your reactions. Realize that you might need a break. Tonight: Thank goodness it's Friday!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) * Your playful style helps a partner, associate or loved one. You might need to mix a get-together with friends or a key gathering in order to meet an even more important priority. Share more of what you believe to be key. Tonight: With that special someone.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)  Reach out to others. Understand more of what might be going on with them. If a boss comes down hard on you, listen and try to ameliorate the situation. Recognize that you're one person and you can only do so much. Tonight: Go along with the gang.

had designed the chairs that are in the board room at the Lady Bird Wildflower Center in Austin.

Once Fallen agreed to oversee the project an idea was needed on what the cushions should look like.

"Vici came to Big Spring to look at the church and was immediately impressed with the unique wood and enamel cross and candlesticks at the altar," Anderson said.

The Christian symbols used on these pieces are traditional ones associated with the Virgin Mary.

In late spring of 1999, Vici came back to St. Mary's with her designs and work on the cushions began.

The symbols used on the cushions appear on the candlesticks and cross that adorn the vestry. They include the olive branch, a symbol of a token of peace; the white rose sans thorns, symbolizing Mary's exemption from the consequences of original sin; and the sun as a symbol of both Christ and Mary.

The dove, a symbol of peace and purity, appears in a pair as a symbol of the purification at the temple. The lily also adorns the cushions and is the "Flower of the Virgin," and the laurel, a symbol of triumph, eternity and chastity, is stitched on one of the cushions as well.

Other cushions are decorated with the flame, a symbol of religious fervor; the orange, a symbol of purity, chastity and generosity; the strawberry, a symbol of perfect righteousness when it appears in flower; the moon, when under Mary's feet symbolizes her glory; and water as a symbol of cleansing and purifying.

Those who participated in the needlepoint project were: Anderson, Hill, Money, Mary Caton, Ann Gill, Tootsie Grantham, Ellen Inman, Billy McLaughlin, Rosemary Rose, Katharine Sutton, Joyce Weaver, Pam Wilson Gas, Michelle Werner, Kay Burns, Mary Deats, Myrl Good, Inga McElrath, Cindy Marshall, Sheila Ohl, Jean Rodgers, Judy Talbot, Alice Webb, Linda White and Kathy Bryant.

In July, the 29 kneelers were sent to the Finishing Touch in Shreveport, La., to be completed. They were returned to St. Mary's in mid-September.

"A project of this magnitude requires a tremendous amount of talent, dedication, persistence and plain hard work," said Liggett. "I am very proud of the women who gave so much to this wonderful gift to our parish, and I am deeply impressed by the beauty of their work."

The Rev. Wallis Ohl, Bishop of Northwest Texas, will dedicate and bless the new kneelers during his annual visit to the church at 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

- SHELLY GOMEZ, Moss Elementary fourth grade instructor named Teacher of the Week.
- DEE OWENS, Marcy Elementary School principal, named Principal of the Week.
- CHIS WIGINGTON of Big Spring High School and AUSTIN BARTON of Coahoma High School, on being selected semi-finalists in the National Merit Scholarship program.

YOUR VIEWS

TO THE EDITOR:
I am a parent of both a fourth grader and a first grader who currently are involved in football here in Big Spring. I am shocked at the behavior of some of the coaches involved. At the last game my son played in, I overheard a coach telling his players to hit the opposing team in the back, in the knees and in the stomach and not to stop until the whistle was blown. Later in the game the coach was shouting at his players to grab the kids in the face mask and shove it up their butts. I feel this is not teaching our children sportsmanship and should not be allowed at the game. I was not the only parent who overheard this, many of us did. Our children should not be taught by someone so ignorant, that feels it's OK to actually go out to hurt another child or win a game by any means possible. Is this football program designed to teach children football or is it designed to only win by any means possible? Is this game for the children or the adults?

A SMALL PRAYER

By K. Rae Anderson

Dear Lord, may every small act of kindness create a wonderfully large blessing. Amen

Perils of capitalism at our doorstep

I realize it's early days for this sort of thing, but I already have a nomination for dumbest sentence of the decade. You have a mere eight years to top this one, so you'd better get cracking.

MOLLY IVINS

I found it in the midst of nasty little ad hominem attack on Bill Moyers in The Weekly Standard. The writer, Stephen F. Hayes, is laboring under the delusion that Moyers is "dedicated to promoting the views of most extreme elements of the far left in America." One can only conclude that Hayes has never met anyone on the far left: Billy Don Moyers from Marshall, Texas, is actually a Baptist, albeit of the Jimmy Carter school.

Hayes worked himself up into a fine lather of indignation because "Moyers spends much of his time pointing out the conflicts-of-interest of those in government and corporate America." Some would call that journalism, but it was not the inanity of the attack on Moyers that stopped me. It was this sentence, which Hayes stuck in to show how far-left he thinks Moyers is: "Moyers used water rights in Bolivia as an illustration of the perils of capitalism."

Gasp! Gosh, how awful! I happened to see that piece, and indeed it was pretty much about the perils of capitalism in relation to the distribution of water. The perils are here, now, and affect every human being on the planet. The situation in Cochabamba, Bolivia, where the American firm Bechtel bought the public water utility and then doubled prices, led to a general strike and transportation stoppage, mass arrests, violence and several deaths. You don't have to assume that a corporation like Enron might get into the water business: Enron was in the water business.

In the United States, foreign corporations, mostly French, are grabbing up water rights as fast as they can. The major U.S. players include Bechtel, T. Boone Pickens of Texas and Monsanto. All or part of the water delivery systems in Atlanta, Chattanooga, Houston, Jacksonville, Jersey City, Lexington, Peoria and San Francisco have already been privatized. The International Monetary Fund and the World Bank are both actively promoting privatization.

The reason Cochabamba got into trouble in the first place was because the World Bank refused to guarantee a $25 million loan to refinance the water system unless the local government sold its public water utility to the private sector.

The situation is deadly serious, and serious journalists have been paying attention to it for years. Anyone who has ever covered the American West knows about the tangle of water claims and water rights that becomes worse every year, as the scarcity of water increases.

For a good overview of the situation, Maude Barlow and Tony Clarke have an excellent report in the Sept. 2 issue of The Nation. The Texas Observer has a detailed report in the Sept. 13 issue on what has happened to Jasper's water supply. The Earth's fresh water is finite, less than 0.5 percent of the total water on the planet, according to Blair and Clarke. Water reserves are disappearing in the Middle East, Northern China, Mexico, California and much of Africa.

Desalinization is expensive and extremely energy intensive. Were we to become dependent upon it, global warming would be greatly aggravated. The French companies — Vivendi, Perrier and Suez — are pulling water grabs around the United States right now. Those of us who live in arid areas and have been through droughts already know how grave and concrete the consequences of running short of water are. The West is about to suck the great Ogallala Aquifer dry. Barlow and Clarke report, "A legacy of factory farming, flood irrigation, the construction of massive dams, toxic dumping, wetlands and forest destruction, and urban and industrial pollution has damaged the Earth's surface water so badly that we are now mining the underground water reserves far faster than nature can replace them."

There are solutions — including drip rather than flood irrigation — but what is needed is swift international action. Only 5 percent of the water supply is now in corporate hands, but this administration, along with the IMF and World Bank, is pushing for privatization. The House version of a bill currently moving through Congress, the Water Investment Act to provide funds for cities to upgrade or expand their water systems, also has a nasty little provision that would provide public subsidies to private water companies.

Perils of capitalism? Try telling Californians that corporations don't rig prices. Try telling Enron's shareholders and employees there are no perils of capitalism. Not to mention Tyco, WorldCom, Arthur Andersen, Adelphia, Dynegy, El Paso, Global Crossing, Halliburton, Reliant Energy, Qwest, Xerox, AOL-Time Warner, Bristol Myers Squibb, CMS Energy, Duke energy, et al.

The perils of capitalism are staring us in the face. I'd just as soon not have the water supply subject to them, thank you. Congratulations to Moyers on a fine piece of journalism on a staggeringly important and timely topic.

Don't worry about them, see the movie

By RICH LOWRY
Guest Columnist
Since when would a sympathetic portrayal of black entrepreneurship, of the aspirations of young black males and of the honor and decency of so many people in the inner city be denounced by civil-rights leaders?

Since the phrase "civil-rights leaders" came to be nearly synonymous with Jesse Jackson and Al Sharpton — those twin reverends of self-important bombast who disgrace the memory of a great American movement with their own triviality and egomaniacal obsessions. The two reverends have been denouncing the movie "Barbershop" on the grounds that one of its characters makes disparaging remarks about Rosa Parks, Martin Luther King Jr., and — have these people no decency? — Jesse Jackson.

"I could dismiss the comments about me," Jackson magnanimously offers, "but Dr. King is dead and Ms. Parks is an invalid." The reverend accuses the film — written, directed and produced by black people — of "trying to turn tragedy into comedy."

Sharpton has talked of a boycott (despite the fact that the movie has been the most popular in America in recent weeks), while Jackson wants the offending scenes to be left on the cutting-room floor of the DVD and video versions.

The sweet-tempered comedy portrays a day-in-the-life of a struggling southside Chicago barbershop as its owner realizes that the shop's importance to the neighborhood should trump any greater moneymaking opportunities he might find elsewhere.

The shop is a microcosm of the neighborhood — among those working there are a college boy, a recent West African immigrant, a gangbanger struggling to go straight and Eddie, a long-time fixture who alternates clownish wit with grandfatherly wisdom.

Eddie, played by the comedian Cedric the Entertainer, is a marvelous character, buffoonish with his old-style salt-and-pepper Afro and mispronounced words, yet dignified and grand as well. He also happens to be the focus of Jackson/Sharpton's wrath.

Eddie has the deepest faith in the shop, in the way it fosters discipline in those who work there, in the anchor it offers the crime-ridden neighborhood and in its free-wheeling intellectual exchange, which features acid-tongued arguments about everything from women's backsides to reparations.

Jackson/Sharpton would, no doubt, rankle over Eddie's take on the latter: "We've got affirmative action and welfare, isn't that respirations (sic) enough?"

One of the controversial scenes has Eddie arguing that Rosa Parks is overrated, on the theory that she sat down and didn't get up that day on the bus only because she was "tired." This is met with hoots of derision by everyone in the shop and a warning that Jesse Jackson wouldn't like it.

The ability to say just such outrageous things is integral to the shop's function as an island of male companionship, where guys feel free to be raunchy, frank and even vulnerable together, as they grapple with how to become — and live up to their obligations as — men.

Maybe it's been so long since Jackson/Sharpton worked for a living that they are immune to the charms of a movie celebrating the dignity of daily drudgery, which must seem banal compared with appearing on cable TV and shaking down corporations.

Indeed, the movie's message of self-help and personal responsibility is an implicit rebuke to Jackson/Sharpton's relentless victim-mongering, a used-up parody of what once was the civil-rights movement. Witness the "leadership's" steady downward slide from King to Jackson to Sharpton, who is running for president on a platform of his own — considerable — notoriety.

What once was a noble battle against racism has now become a giggling hunt for insensitivity that boils down to the imperious attitude, "If we don't like it, you can't say it."

Not only is this attitude often built on false charges of racism, not only is it hostile to free speech, it is earnest and humorless in the most unattractive way.

So, join the tens of thousands who have already sent a message to Jackson/Sharpton. Go see "Barbershop" — and laugh.

KEN

The multi-week debate touched off by the recent production of "Heaven's Gates and Hell's Flames" at First Baptist Church, helps to demonstrate the diversity that exists among those who "profess" to put their lives under the teachings of Jesus Christ. (By the way, Thank You, First Baptist!

The reports I received were wonderful. Many lives were touched; and reality, as represented in Scripture, gained a new foot hold in Big Spring.)

With such diversity among Pastors, there is no telling what we might hear if the whole community had this opportunity to express themselves through this medium. Let's not!

As one among many area pastors, recent writings brought my attention to a much deeper issue, "by what authority do I become convinced that I am right, and others, wrong?" In a secular society bent on relativism, can I find "absolute" answers?

In "the land of 1000 opinions," who has the final say? and Why? Over this critical issue Christian Denominations, Pastors, and individual believers will stand, or fall.

If Truth is relative, and thus subject to my personal opinion, the very foundations of our Faith in Jesus Christ are shaken.

Those foundations are not shaken, however! By its own authority, the scriptures say, "Heaven and Earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away."

If, as I believe, truth is not relative, there has to be a "rule" or standard by which we evaluate truth. Let's examine a few modern philosophies concerning truth. Will any stand up over time?

First: Truth by consensus! Truth is what the majority wants it to be or: Truth by intellect! Let the smartest among us determine what is true for the rest of us.

Possibly: Truth by wealth! Let the wealthiest among us determine "real" truth.

Maybe: Truth by Denominationalism! Let the Baptists define "truth" for everyone.

Perhaps: Truth by experience! It's true, because "I feel" it is true. Finally: Truth by force! Believe the truth as I interpret it, or die.

Each of these philosophies have had their day in history! Each is still working to bring it's self to their ultimate demise. To establish absolute "Truth" we must have an unchanging standard.

My opinions and experiences must be subject to that standard. My denomination, democratic processes, wealth, and power must be subject to that standard. The standard must be unamendable and not subject to the trends and fancies of each passing generation.

It must be valid in all civilizations of the world. Truth is truth. It is not intimidated by lies and half-truths. It isn't persuaded by faulty logic or assertive personalities.

It never has to apologize when unpopular, or be embarrassed when rejected.

Jesus Christ said clearly, "I am the truth!" Through Christ, God revealed Himself to mankind.

The record of that Revelation has proven to be an unchanging standard over the last 2000 years and within every culture on Earth.

God's Word, the Holy Bible, claims within it's own writings to be "God breathed" to mankind. Far more than a human document of historical facts, the Bible is totally true and trustworthy. It stands alone as God's ultimate standard for Truth! Believe it, or Not!

In Matthew's Gospel, Jesus tells the story of two builders who build their lives on two different foundations.

The first builder built his life on an unchanging rock. The storms of life came, but the house was able to withstand the turmoil. The second, built on an ever shifting foundation of sand.

As soon as the storms of life arose, that house fell. Jesus said, "Those who hear my words, and do them, will be like the one who built on the Rock." What is your measure of truth?

Steer defense has to 'help itself' get rest

By TOMMY WELLS

Sports Editor
ACKERLY — Big Spring head coach Dwight Butler knows his defense's pain. Like a physician, he knows they've been on the field too long and too often. His cure is a simple one. "I've told them they need to help themselves get a break. Go out there and make some plays and then get over here on the sideline and get some rest. We can't keep getting teams in 3rd-and-long and then give up a big play." "We know they're tired, but they've got to help themselves by making the plays," he added. Big Spring will get its chance to work on its third down woes and shake off the rust of its open week tonight when they invade San Angelo Stadium to face the San Angelo Central Bobcats. The two teams are scheduled to kickoff the action at 7:30 p.m. For the revamped Steer defense, the team's final non-district game will give them another chance to test themselves against a Class 5A opponent — and another former district rival. Big Spring, which has already faced Odessa High and Odessa Permian, and San Angelo were part of the "Little Southwest Conference" until 1985 when the Steers were moved by the University Interscholastic League

Butler said fans will notice a few changes tonight when the Big Spring defense takes to the field, including the move of Gary Austin back to his defensive tackle position. Jeremy Cerda, who was promoted from the junior varsity roster, and Jonathan Flores will also be more involved. You can rule out tradition as a motivating factor for the Steers and Bobcats, despite the fact the two teams have played more than 60 times.

The Big Spring defense will need to create some of its own breaks against San Angelo Central.

The Big Spring Junior Varsity defense held San Angelo Central in check throughout much of the game Thursday. The Bobcats scored twice in the final 10 minutes to escape Memorial Stadium with a 13-0 win.

Central rushes past JV in fourth quarter

By TOMMY WELLS

Sports Editor
Big Spring freshman quarterback Andy Laseter accidentally took a wrong turn and found the right way Thursday in San Angelo. Laseter, with time running off the clock, took the snap from center on a fourth-and-goal play and did the unexpected. He turned the wrong direction on a simple hand-off and found himself facing an empty-backfield with a horde of San Angelo defenders storming in. He recovered in time and scampered into the end zone at the final buzzer to lift the Steers to a nail-biting 18-13 win over the Central Bobcats.

"It was exciting," said freshman coach Dan Arista. "We had four downs to get it in, and we used all of them. It was great team victory for us."

With the win, the Steers closed out the non-district portion of their schedule with a 3-2 mark. They opened District 4-4A play next Thursday against the Lake View Chiefs in San Angelo.

The Steers' first trip to the Concho City began on a high note.

After a stellar effort by Kyle Piercefield, Dexter Straughter and the Steer defense had held San Angelo scoreless in the first quarter, Big Spring took the upper hand. The Steer defense dealt the Bobcats a little misery on their first possession of the second period when Matt Hilario stepped in front of a Central pass and raced 50 yards for a touchdown.

Hilario's touchdown gave Big Spring a 6-0 lead.

San Angelo managed to rally back. The Bobcats scored a touchdown late in the period and stumbled into the half with a 7-6 lead.

Central stretched its lead to 13-6 in the third with another short touchdown romp.

That turned out to be the Bobcats' final gasp. The Steer defense, which also picked up solid efforts from Randy Ybarra, Grayson Wagner, Johnny Williams and Zack Chesworth, disrupted the CHS offense from that point.

Big Spring managed to pull to within one, at 13-12, on its first drive of the first quarter. A 40-yard pass play from Laseter to Alex Castillo took the Steers to the Central 2. One play later, Laseter pushed his way into the end zone for a touchdown.

Chance Cain gave the Steers hope with just over 3 minutes to play when he scooped up a Bobcat fumble.

Castillo came up big for the Steers from there. He hauled in another long pass from Laseter to set the Steers up with a first-and-goal.

After two unsuccessful attempts to punch the ball into the end zone, Big Spring attempted a hand-off to running back LarCanley Cross, who was hit at the two and brought down with just 12 seconds remaining.

The Steers hustled to the line in an effort to run the same play before time expired. Laseter managed to

Rangers release troubled reliever

ARLINGTON (AP) — For the third time in 16 months, relief pitcher John Rucker has been sent packing.

The Texas Rangers placed the one-time star closer of the Atlanta Braves on irrevocable waivers Thursday for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

Rucker is 13-22 with 88 saves in 278 major league appearances with Atlanta, Cleveland and Texas.

The club also announced that it will not exercise its 2003 contract option on catcher Bill Haselman.

In Rucker's first full major league season, he had 38 saves in 1999, when Atlanta went to the World Series. The Braves went to the playoffs again in 2000, when Rucker had 24 saves.

But Rucker hasn't been the same dominating pitcher since a Sports Illustrated article before the 2000 season in which he made disparaging remarks about gays, minorities and others.

The Braves traded Rucker in the 2001 season to Cleveland, where John Hart was then the general manager. Rucker was 3-7 with four saves and a 5.45 ERA in 38 games for Cleveland, but Hart traded for the hard-throwing lefty Dec. 18 after becoming GM in Texas.

Rucker was 2-3 with a 6.66 earned-run average and one save in 30 appearances with the Rangers this season. He also was 1-0 with 8.2 scoreless innings in six appearances at the club's Triple A Oklahoma franchise from May 21-June 9 and 0-1 with a 13.50 ERA in three rehab outings with Double A Tulsa from Aug. 8-12.

Rucker was placed on the 15-day disabled list on July 11, retroactive to July 4, with left shoulder and neck pain. He reported recurring pain following his rehab assignment at Tulsa and did not pitch again.

Lady Steers will host Estacado this Saturday

By TOMMY WELLS

Sports Editor

The Big Spring Lady Steers will try and keep their District 4-4A record perfect Saturday afternoon when they return to the floor for a bout with Lubbock Estacado.

The two teams are set to begin at 2 p.m. in the Steer Gymnasium. The varsity squads will play immediately after the JV game.

Big Spring, which enters the game tied with Andrews for the top spot in the loop race, has won its three previous district outings. A win over Estacado would make Tuesday's game in Andrews a battle for the 4-4A lead.

between the two," said Butler. "These young men have never really played any of them. We played them a little during the summer in the passing league, but we really haven't played them since 1985."

The biggest factor for the Steers will be getting the chance to make any final adjustments prior to the start of the District 4-4A race next week.

"We need it (this game) physically," said Butler, noting the open week came at a perfect time for the Steers. "We had a lot of kids playing a bit nicked up and hurt so the open week really help us. We've been through about eight weeks of pretty tough play. We had two weeks of two-a-days and then cranked it up against Midland Lee, so I think we really need a break."

Npw, according to the Steers' all-time winningest coach, Big Spring needs to shake off any rust that may have appeared.

"This is the way we wanted the schedule," he said. "We wanted to have a game right before the start of district that we could shake some of the rust off and get back into sync."

The Steers, who have reeled off back-to-back wins over Hereford and Plainview, take one of West Texas' top offensive units into the bout with Central. Big Spring, after recovering from a shaky start in their season-opener, has averaged more than 330 yards and 23 points a night.

Senior quarterback Tye Butler and his receiving corps key the Steer arsenal. Butler, operating behind an offensive line that has solidified well over the past three weeks, has thrown for more than 700 yards and six touchdowns in his last three outings. For the year, the Big Spring signal-caller has completed 54 of 93 attempts for 852 yards.

Brandon Mendoza and Curtis Woodruff led the receivers. Mendoza has 20 receptions for 286 yards. Woodruff has caught 14 passes for 282 and five touchdowns.

That isn't good news for a Central team that has started the year at 1-3 and given up more than 330 yards a game.

The Big Spring defense will be keyed by Jarod Boyd, Jared Phillips and linebacker Dustyn Beauchamp.

The key for both the Big Spring offense and defense will be a quick start, said Butler.

"This is still a 5A team," he said. "They've been snake-bitten a little, but they have some talented young men. We need to come out and put some doubt into the heads. If we can do that I think we can do okay."

"This is a pride thing for them (Central)," Butler added. "They certainly don't want some little 4A team coming in there and beating them."

Offensively, San Angelo is led by senior quarterback Ryan Gandy, who is the son of head coach Kyle Gandy.

Pistons trade Menk to Spurs

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) — The Pistons have traded Chinese center Menk Bateer for a 2003 second round draft choice from the San Antonio Spurs, Detroit said in a written statement.

The Denver Nuggets sent Bateer, along with forward Don Reid and a first round draft pick, to the Pistons on Tuesday.

A native of Inner Mongolia, Bateer became the second Chinese player in the NBA in February, joining Wang Zhizhi of the Dallas Mavericks.

He averaged 5.1 points and 3.6 rebounds in 27 games with Denver after fulfilling commitments with the Chinese national team and the Beijing Ducks.
