Seven lined up so far to vie for Combest's seat

By ROGER CLINE

Six months before Rep. Larry Combest (R-Lubbock) has announced he will resign, seven people from Lubbock, Midland and Odessa have said they plan to run to replace him.

Howard County's representative due to a redistricting shuffle that placed the area in his 19th Congressional District — announced his upcoming resignation a week ago.

Since then, five people from Lubbock and one each from Midland and Odessa have said they will seek the seat in a special election next year.

"As far as we know, we (in Howard County) do not have anyone who has come forward and said they would like to run," said County Democratic Committee Chairman W.A. "Woody" Jumper. "If they did, we'd sure be trying to support them as much as we could, if they were appropriate, of course. I would welcome anyone to come and discuss it with me and the committee."

Jumper said the county isn't short on potential.

Armstrong puts Joy in teaching and learning

By LYNDEL MOODY
Staff Writer

Using hands-on learning to bolster classroom curriculum, Marcy Elementary fourth grade teacher Joy Armstrong is always searching for creative ideas to make learning fun.

"By the time school is out for the day, I really feel as if I learned a lot," fourth-grade student Amber Gonzales wrote in her nomination letter. "I love going home and telling my mom and dad about science, social studies or even sometimes math. Mrs. Armstrong really makes learning a lot of fun. I love going to school everyday to see what exciting thing she is going to teach me today."

And if the lesson is not reaching the children, Armstrong will stop and try other means.

"I can be spontaneous sometimes," she said. "If something is not working, sometimes something pops in my head. I was teaching a lesson on polarization and energy and it was not working then I thought about the monkey bars. The kids get the swinging."

Adopted at an early age from Germany, Armstrong dealt with a little bit of a language barrier during her early educational years in West

They fly through the air with the greatest of ease and they're coming back to Big Spring.

For a week this past August hang glider pilots of the United States Hang Gliding Association made themselves at home at — and above — the McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark for their U.S. Open competition.

Those daring young men and women enjoyed the area's unusual air currents and friendly people so much that they have announced they're bringing the U.S. National Hang Gliding Championship to Big Spring in 2003.

"With us having this much lead time, we're going to be able to do a much better job of promoting it and having people come out."

For several years, Armstrong stayed away from the field while raising her two children, son Whit and daughter Holly.

Thirteen years ago, the teaching bug pulled her into the field. She wanted to be a part of the solution.

"I want to teach my students like I want my own kids to be taught," she said. "I could get a job with a lot more money but I love my job. I enjoy teaching and I love working with the kids."

so it's going to be the first time ever that all four classes are up together in one spot determining the four national champions."

The competition will hit Big Spring the last week of July 2003 and last through the beginning of August, he said.

Big Spring Mayor Russ McEwen said he's excited about the event.

"We're just real excited," he said. "Everyone from the community who went out and observed and interacted with the competitors just came away saying, 'This is just a really neat situation.' With us having this much lead time, we're going to be able to do a much better job of promoting it and having people come out."

McEwen said plans are in the works to make the event even bigger and better.

"From the people I've talked to so far, we're going to try to do something downtown and around town," he said. "In other words, make this a really neat week for not just the hang gliders, but for the people of our community and publicize it throughout West Texas."

OUR VIEWS

Yes, United Way touches your life as well as others

One more week. Actually, less. Officials with the United Way of Big Spring and Howard County have decided to extend their fund-raising drive through Friday. As of Monday morning, the campaign was $92,000 short of its goal of $250,000.

That's not as discouraging as it sounds. As Campaign Chairman Rory Worthan pointed out, there are some major businesses that haven't turned in their totals as yet. But how about you? Have you reached into your pocket to help United Way? Maybe you have an excuse.

The usual reason people don't give, is "United Way doesn't do anything for me."

Yes it does.

No matter who you are, what your lifestyle is, what your job — United Way touches you.

True, you might not have children who participate in Girl Scouts or Boy Scouts or the Big Spring Boys Club. Maybe your family doesn't swim at the YMCA or take advantage of its many, many other activities. Your child or grandchild might not need Westside Day Care while you are working or Westside Community Center after school. Stay healthy and accident free and you won't need the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center. Hopefully, you'll never be a victim of rape or family violence and need counseling from Victims Services.

You may have strong, local family support and never need the Council on Aging to bring you a hot meal or depend on the loyalty and devotion of a pet from the Humane Society's Pet Therapy Department. It's just as likely too, that your children won't ever need school supplies from the Salvation Army, clean clothes from Isaiah 58 or rent assistance from Northside Community Center.

And good luck and the good Lord willing, you'll not have a need for Red Cross.

But even if you never have a need for any of those 14 agencies, you still benefit from United Way.

That's because each year, thousands of Howard County residents are helped by those agencies. Each year, the pet therapy program and Council Aging provide comfort and kindness to those who are aging or homebound. Each year, scouting organizations, the Boys Club and organizations like the YMCA and Westside Community Center offer safe activities for many youth who might otherwise be roaming the streets getting into trouble. In the process, they teach teamwork, good morals and build character.

Each year, the Salvation Army, Isaiah 58, the Red Cross, Northside Community Center, Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center and Victim Services provide shelter, clothing, meals, counseling and physical help to guide people through the rough times and give them an opportunity to succeed.

All of those efforts keep our taxes lower, our streets safer and make our community a better place to live.

If you cannot afford to give even a dollar to United Way, then don't feel badly. Not everyone can. But if you've just been using that same old excuse every year, "United Way doesn't do anything for me," then it's time to wake up. The few dollars you donate to United Way are repaid time and time again.

So if you haven't given and you are able to do so, do it now. Contact a United Way representative at 267-5201. You'll be doing yourself a big favor.

A SMALL PRAYER

Dear Lord, please influence our every move with your love and grace.

Looking at the origin of liberalism

What we call today "liberalism" was born in New England. In 1864, Orestes Brownson, a New Englander himself, wrote an essay contrasting Southern and Northern societies. His description of the New Englander describes exactly the modern liberal.

CHARLEY REESE

"The New Englander," Brownson wrote, "has excellent points, but is restless in body and mind, always scheming, always in motion, never satisfied with what he has, and always seeking to make all the world like himself, or as uneasy as himself."

This desire to make everyone like himself is a major characteristic of the modern liberal. This is what paradoxically leads him to be anti-democratic, for the desire to make others conform to his opinion causes him to cast dissidents into the outer darkness.

He is so self-righteous that he honestly believes that anyone with a different set of opinions must be either stupid or evil.

Brownson continues his description of the New Englander: "He is smart, seldom great; educated, but seldom learned; active in mind, but rarely a profound thinker; religious, but thoroughly materialistic: His worship is rendered in a temple founded on Mammon... he is philanthropic but makes his philanthropy his excuse for meddling with everybody's business as if it were his own, and under pretense of promoting religion and morality, he wars against every generous and natural instinct and aggravates the very evils he seeks to cure."

We can certainly agree with that. Five trillion dollars spent to eliminate poverty has, of course, not eliminated it, and if you look at the great liberal cities of the North, where every conceivable liberal social scheme has been enacted and funded, what do you find? Slums, crime, high taxes, less freedom. Alas, the liberal nirvana continues to elude its busy-body seekers.

Some old-time Southern preachers say the New Englander became a busy-body meddler after he lost his faith in God. No longer believing in a heaven after death, he was compelled to create a heaven on earth. As Brother Dave Gardner used to put it, a Northern Baptist says there ain't no hell, and a Southern Baptist says, "The hell there ain't!" I have read learned papers from high-toned academics making this same point, so if you want to investigate the proposition, the information is out there.

Liberalism, new or old, fails for the same reason that its logical conclusion, socialism, fails. It flies in the face of human nature, and human nature can't be changed. Some years ago, on a visit to a kibbutz in Israel, Yitzhak Rabin's sister told me that the kibbutz — theoretically a perfect communist society — hadn't changed anything. There were natural leaders and natural followers and a certain percentage of folks who were just parasites. A few people did most of the work. They were equal according to the rules, but in little else. And so it is in every society and country.

Even socialist countries develop a rich elite.

Coming from a conservative Southern family, there were three phrases I heard extremely often — phrases one almost never hears today in our liberal society. They were: "Mind your own business;" "It's none of your business;" and "Don't stick your nose in other people's business." The chief characteristic of the true conservative is a willingness to let other people be what they are, for good or ill, just as the chief characteristic of the modern liberal is the compulsion to make others conform to his ideas of what's good for them.

It should be obvious which of the two is the friend of liberty. We are enormously less free today than when I was a boy, and in every instance, the loss of freedom has been justified as "good for us." It's too bad more people aren't concerned about that loss of freedom.

They will find that security will prove to be illusory, but the loss of freedom will be quite real.

"...JUST WHAT I NEED...A LITTLE HAIR OF THE DOG THAT BIT ME..."

Pelosi can help give Dems some focus

Now that Democrats have balanced their new House leadership with a woman, a moderate and a Cuban-American, can they come up with issue positions that appeal to mainstream America?

JACK ANDERSON

The answer turns almost entirely on Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., the first woman ever to lead her party on Capitol Hill. Until the 2004 presidential candidates begin to emerge, she is the face of the party. A member of the Democrat's liberal wing, Pelosi voted against the resolution giving President Bush the power to wage war against Iraq, and she is a tireless advocate of liberal causes, from human rights in China to federal funding for needle-exchange programs to prevent the spread of AIDS. Republicans are ready to label her a "San Francisco liberal," and she wouldn't argue with the description.

Centrist Democrats in swing districts worry that having Pelosi in the top job sends the wrong signal, and that they could pay a price in the next election. Pelosi understands that if she moves her party too far left, she could revive the image that bedeviled Democrats for so many years, that they are weak on defense and too eager to spend money on programs that don't work.

Pelosi knows her strengths and weaknesses, and has moved quickly to shore up areas where she is vulnerable. To reassure her nervous colleagues and to stem possible defections to the GOP, Pelosi named South Carolina Rep. John Spratt assistant leader. Spratt is the ranking Democrat on the House Budget Committee, and a budget hawk who preaches fiscal responsibility. He is also an expert on military matters. In South Carolina, where a strong, pro-defense posture is essential, Spratt is second to no one.

Democrats are good at self-flagellation, and there are any number of explanations for what went wrong on Election Day to cost the party its majority in the Senate and to further plunge it into the wilderness in the House. One major missed opportunity was Democrats' failure to convey to the country with any clarity what they stand for as a party. In a poll conducted by the Democracy Corps, only 20 percent of voters said they had a clear idea of where Democrats stood; 45 percent of voters knew what the Republican Party was saying.

Democrats can't count on the GOP to overreach and shut down the government the way Republicans did when they first gained control of the House. If Democrats are to regain the majority, they will need bold ideas that capture the public's attention. Tax cuts are popular, and the GOP has branded itself as the party of tax cuts.

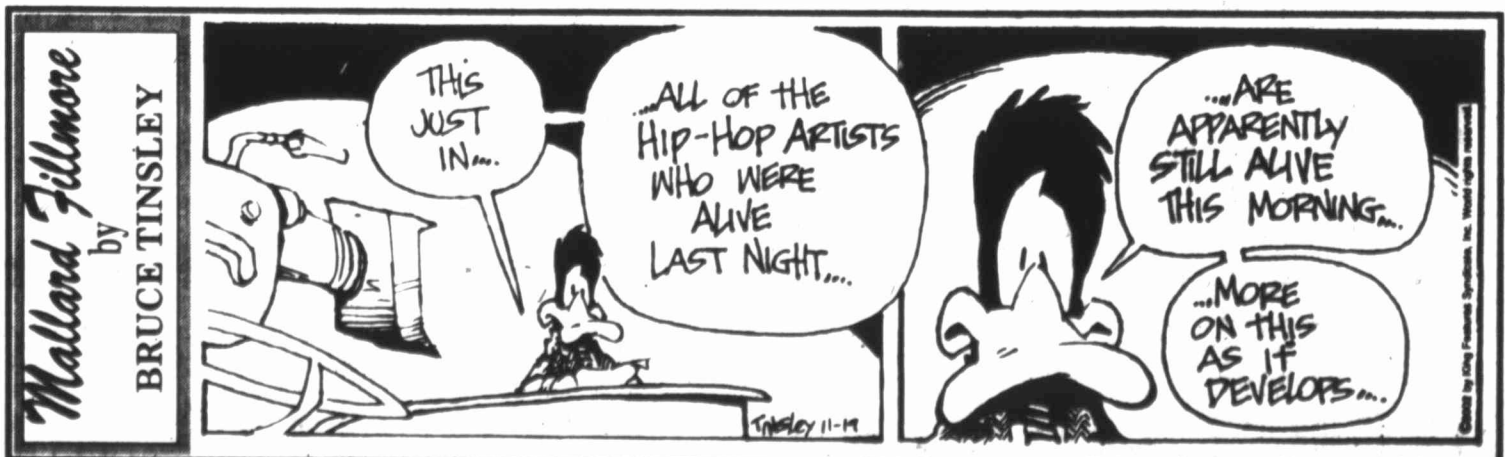

Democrats favor tax cuts, too, just not the same ones as Bush. Sen. Jon Corzine, D-N.J., who made millions on Wall Street, proposes a "payroll tax holiday" that would give the working poor and middle-class a much-needed break. Corzine will take over as head of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee in the next election cycle. If Democrats get behind his idea, or one like it, they could have a message that sticks with voters.

National security issues will dominate elections for the foreseeable future, and Democrats shouldn't be afraid to challenge Bush when they think he's wrong. The White House has dragged its feet in creating a blue-ribbon commission to look into the Sept. 11 attacks. The families who lost loved ones are furious at the delay.

Governors across the nation say the administration has not properly funded homeland defense. Which is more important? Paying for the country's security or ending the estate tax for billionaires? These are the choices that can define the Democrats in a way that makes political sense.

Prediction: Rep. Pelosi will surprise the nation with her political adroitness.

Husband arrested on assault charge

By ROGER CLINE
Staff Writer

A woman was injured and her husband was arrested on assault charges in the early hours of Saturday morning.

"This occurred about 12:45 a.m. on the 16th, which was Saturday," said Big Spring Police Sgt. Roger Sweatt. "Officers got a call to a residence in the 2400 block of Runnels, a domestic disturbance."

Upon arrival, officers found a woman bleeding from minor injuries to her face.

"The woman reported that she had been assaulted," Sweatt said. "She had a laceration around her left eye and her forehead that she was bleeding from. She refused medical treatment, though."

The woman said she and her husband, Joe Rodriguez, 30, had an argument and he struck her, Sweatt said.

"He was arrested and brought to the PD and booked," Sweatt said. "Bond was set at $2,000 by Municipal Judge (Tim) Green and he's bonded out."

Rodriguez was charged with class A assault, Sweatt said. No weapon was used in the assault, he added.

and cranberries. We're going to make colored peanuts, too. You take an unshelled peanut and wrap it in tinfoil so that it looks like Christmas lights," Raney said.

The children will make a string of lights for the Potton House tree and one to take home.

"We think it will be a lot of fun for the children," said Raney.

The Red Dress Tea is an activity that began a year ago. Women are invited to the Potton House on Dec. 14 for tea and dessert. Everyone participating wears a red dress.

"Everyone seemed to really enjoy it last year and we think this year it will be even better," said Raney.

Moms can send their children to the museum on Saturday and consider attending the tea in December.

"We're looking for children ages 5 through 12," said Raney. "Parents should call the museum to register their child for the ornament workshop."

Children must be supervised, so parents should plan on attending as well. The workshop is free and hot chocolate and cookies will be served.

Upcoming activities sponsored by the museum include a quilt show Dec. 6, parade watch on Dec. 7, gingerbread house workshop Dec. 8 and the Red Dress Tea at the Potton House on Dec. 14.

"THOSE CRAZY EPISCOPALIANS" are they living in the past?
Outwardly, Episcopalians are pretty steeped in tradition. But in their relations with the world about them, they're a "today" sort of bunch. They're usually among the first to address a compassionate ministry to "people problems" wherever those problems crop up. Take alcoholism. It's no accident that one of the founders of Alcoholics Anonymous was a sympathetic Episcopal minister, Sam Shoemaker...and some folks, today, make jokes about "Whiskeypalians." It's true that this denomination is a bit more tolerant than most. They nourish a strange belief in guidelines - not straight-jackets - for a Christian life. They're not interested in condemning... but in helping people. It isn't really a new idea. Just a timely one.

Kingsbury beginning to draw Heisman looks

LUBBOCK (AP) — When Kliff Kingsbury threw for six touchdowns against New Mexico, folks shrugged.

Doing it against Texas has put him back on the Heisman Trophy watch lists — and put Texas Tech in position to win the Big 12 South.

Kingsbury's performance in a 42-38 victory over the Longhorns has

Texas Tech one more upset away from winning the division for the first time.

They'll have to beat No. 4 Oklahoma on Saturday in Norman to do it, but if Kingsbury is the hero again, he could earn a trip to New York as one of the Heisman finalists.

Against Texas, Kingsbury threw for 473 yards against a Longhorns defense that had been second in the nation against the pass.

Kingsbury hit on 38 of 60 passes against UT without an interception. He also moved up to No. 4 on the NCAA Division I list of all-time passers with 11,867 yards.

After the game, Texas defensive coordinator Carl Reese was asked whether Kingsbury should be a legitimate contender for the Heisman.

"He would be mine," Reese said.

Tech began pushing for Kingsbury to win the award during the summer. The school created a Web site and distributed a CD-ROM to help the hype.

Critics of his big numbers have said he's a product of coach Mike Leach's pass-happy offense, which often relies on short passes instead of runs. Leach countered with long speeches about Kingsbury's merits.

His performance in a thrilling overtime victory over Texas A&M was the first big bounce in his candidacy. The Texas game was another great push.

Islas, BSJHS girls dump Snyder in OT

By TOMMY WELLS

Sports Editor

Cecili Islas and the Big Spring Junior High School Lady Steers eighth grade B team continued to turn heads Monday night.

Fresh off a third-place finish in the Big Spring B Tournament, Islas and the BSJHS girls dealt the Snyder Lady Tigers a tough 34-28 setback in overtime.

With the win, the Lady Steers improved to 2-3 on the year under the direction of coach Melissa Kinnear.

Big Spring, which also picked up solid performances from Leah Cobb and Meagan Smith, got its offense untracked quickly against Snyder, scoring four times from the field in the first 11 minutes to take a commanding 8-2 advantage.

Snyder rallied back a bit in the second, outscoring Big Spring by a slim 8-6 clip to pull to within 14-10 at the half.

Islas and Cobb, who combined for 13 steals in the game, helped Big Spring push its lead to 21-16 in the third by igniting a 7-6 spree.

Snyder forced the game into overtime by exploding in the final period. The Lady Steers outscored Big Spring by a 12-7 margin and knotted the score at 28-28.

The Lady Steers came alive in the overtime frame, outscoring Snyder by a 6-0 margin to seal the win.

Islas finished the game as the Lady Steers' top scorer, pushing in 12 points. Cobb and Smith finished with seven and six points, respectively.

The BSJHS eighth grade A team, despite 12 points from Jacquelyn Hopkins, didn't do as well. They dropped a 26-22 decision to Snyder.

Snyder put Big Spring in a hole they couldn't dig out of early. The Lady Tigers outscored the Lady Steers by a 16-9 clip — 8-0 in first period — in the first half and never looked back.

Hopkins finished the game with a team-high 12 points.

Mallory Dunn finished the team's second-leading scorer with five, Myeisha Shorts and Brinnan Pierce added two apiece.

With the loss, the BSJHS eighth grade A team fell to 1-1 for the year.

The Show-Me State

Missouri From A to Z

Missouri's beautiful wilderness combined with its urban areas such as St. Louis and Kansas City have made tourism a top industry.

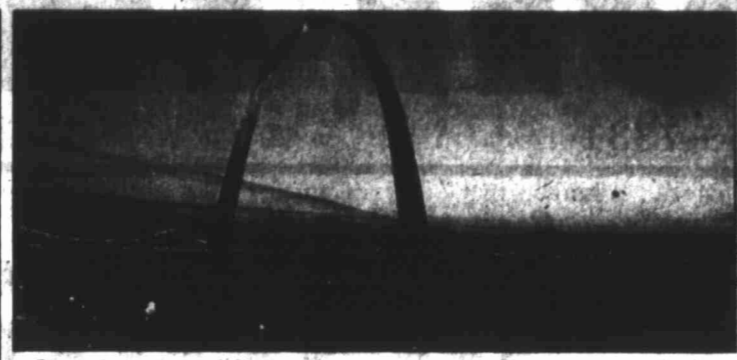

Top companies such as card maker Hallmark Inc., technology company Monsanto and Nestle Purina PetCare Co. are located there.

Native Americans lived in the area for thousands of years. French explorers Louis Joliet and Father Jacques Marquette were among the first Europeans to explore the area.

France and Spain both claimed it at times, until France sold it to the U.S. as part of the Louisiana Purchase in 1803.

It became a state in 1821, admitted as a slave state. But it stayed with the Union during the Civil War.

It is the 17th most populated state, with more than 5 1/2 million people.

Gateway Arch honors St. Louis as the Gateway to the West. Lewis and Clark started their journey of exploration from Missouri. The arch is the tallest human-made monument in the U.S., at 630 feet. St. Louis is the state's biggest metropolitan area, with more than 2 1/2 million people.

Agricultural products include sorghum, turkeys, potatoes, soybeans, rice, grapes, cattle, hogs, dairy, apples and watermelons. It is second in the country in the production of hay. Farms cover about half the state, and it has the second-highest number of farms in the U.S., at about 102,000.

The Bluebird is the state bird.

Bonne Terre Mine is the biggest freshwater-diver resort in the world. When the nearly 100-year-old lead mine was closed in 1961, groundwater filled up the caverns.

Scuba divers can see railroad tracks, carts, elevator shafts, tools and a steam locomotive under the water.

The Cathedral Basilica of St. Louis has the biggest collection of mosaic art in the world. The artworks are made of more than 41 million tiny pieces of glass, with more than 7,000 colors.

The Daniel Boone Home in Defiance is where this famous scout lived in his later years.

The flowering Dogwood is the state tree.

Three of the worst known Earthquakes to hit the U.S. were in the winter of 1811 and 1812 near New Madrid. New lakes were made, old lakes were filled in, islands were covered by water, whole areas sank into the ground, and five towns were swallowed up.

Go dot to dot and color the state bird of Missouri.

More About Missouri

The St. Louis World's Fair in 1904 was where ice cream cones, hot dogs, cotton candy and iced tea were introduced to the public.

Forests cover about one-third of the state.

Great music, the St. Louis blues, was born when New Orleans blues musicians met musicians playing a lively St. Louis music called ragtime. Kansas City has long been a center for jazz and is the site of the American Jazz Museum.

The Hawthorn is the state flower.

Indian peoples who lived in Missouri before the Europeans came included the Missouri, Osage, Sac, Fox, Iowa, Oto, Miami, Kickapoo, Delaware, Shawnee and Kansa tribes. Today there are no organized tribes left in the state.

Jefferson City is the capital, with about 35,000 people.

Outlaw Jesse James grew up in Kearney. He hid out in Meramec Caverns in Stanton.

Next week The Mini Page is about American artist George Catlin.

Kansas City is the largest city, with about 440,000 people. It is the second biggest metropolitan area, with about 1.75 million people.

Lake of the Ozarks is one of the biggest human-made lakes in the world, with about 1,150 miles of shoreline.

Its Nickname is the "Show-Me State." It probably started in 1899, when a congressman didn't believe an earlier speaker. He said, "I'm from Missouri; you have got to show me."

The Ozark Mountains in Missouri and Arkansas have about 10,000 springs. Big Spring is the biggest single spring in the world, spouting 277 million gallons of water every day.

"People with big canoes" is the meaning of the name "Missouri." It was what their enemies called the Missouri Indians.

The Queen City of the Trails is Independence, the official starting point for the Santa Fe, California and Oregon trails.

The two biggest Rivers in the U.S., the Mississippi and Missouri, have made the area an important transportation center. The Mississippi forms the eastern border. The Missouri flows through the state from west to east.

Musical Shows with famous country music stars attract millions of tourists to Branson.

The Truman Presidential Museum and Library and Harry S. Truman National Historic Site in Independence honor this president.

Underground wonders such as 6,000 surveyed caves cover the state. One, Fantastic Caverns in Springfield, is the only drive-through cave in North America.

The Veterans Memorial Museum in Branson honors those who served during the 20th century.

The Laura Ingalls Wilder Historic Home and Museum in Mansfield is where the author wrote her famous "Little House" books.

The Pony Express started in St. Joseph.

Mark Twain's Youth was spent in Hannibal, where he set many of his adventures.

The St. Louis Zoo features the exhibit, "River's Edge," that gives a close look at animals as they come to the water.

BY JACQUELINE BIGAR HAPPY BIRTHDAY

For Tuesday, Nov. 19, 2002:

You will change your mind this year about key issues. Your ability to remain constant yet growth-oriented in a relationship will be tested. What you think you want, once you achieve it, might not be "it." You flex and grow this year. Expect others to do the same. Though you might experience a growing pain or two, you'll find that you will ultimately gain. Some of you might question your chosen field of work. Others might reassess personal choices. Evaluate all you want, but postpone final decisions for a year. If you're single, you're likely to want to change that status. However, if possible, don't commit or head down the aisle until your next birthday. If you are attached, be as indulgent as you can with your partner. You could be doing far more changing than you're aware of. During September 2003, you enter an extremely positive period where your wish is another's command! TAURUS can be challenging.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) * Expenses get a bit heavy at the last minute. Now, who did this to whom? Assume greater responsibility for your portfolio. Better understand a friend who could be rather erratic at times. Think success. Tonight: Make long-term changes to your financial structure.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) * The Full Moon and lunar eclipse in your sign herald a period of change. You know what you want — don't hem and haw anymore. A boss could find you to be unpredictable or vice versa. Understand the push and pull of this situation. Tonight: Smile away.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) * Your smiling ways fall flat when dealing with an associate or someone else in your day-to-day life. Keep communication as open as possible while you seek out information. Information heads your way that could toss quite a boomerang into the here and now. Tonight: Worry less.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) * What you want will become a distinct possibility in the near future. Sometimes you put your long-term desires on the back burner when trying to deal with the present. STOP. You have one life to live. Start living it right now. Tonight: First decision: Who would you like to be with tonight?

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)  You feel pulled as if you are taffy in the making. You might be able to put a halt to this process by detaching and not running into your problems. Changes brew, but you might not be seeing them yet. Trust that everything will work out. Tonight: Get your work done.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) * Hold on to your hat, as you will hear strange information. You might wonder about your limits and what can happen here. Be open to the possibilities. You're in for a lot of excitement, and quite quickly at that. Tonight: Opt for an ultimately relaxing activity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)  Others might not view situations as you do. Listen well to feedback that surrounds an emotional situation. You finally might have done it and pushed someone too far away. Everyone has their limits. Honor them before you get into trouble. Tonight: Do what you need to do to make peace.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)  You know what you want. The real issue might be communicating just that.

Stay centered, keeping in mind what could be possible. Lighten up about a difficult family member. Right now, no matter what you do, you cannot make this person happy. Tonight: Go along for the ride.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)  Some of you might opt to dig into work or a new health or exercise program. Discover ways to work out stress, which might be quite high. Verbalize more of what you need. Though you might not have an immediate response, others hear you. Tonight: Get some extra zzz's.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) * If you find a personal relationship difficult, next month provides ways to move this tie in a new direction. If single, you could be delighted by what the next six months put on your platter. Surprises could happen even this week! Tonight: Accept a fun invitation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)  Though you might not see it, you could be the source of your own problem. Be honest with yourself about a personal matter. You might be unhappy about a domestic matter, but you are unwilling to back off your position. Tonight: Talk to a dear friend.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) * You might be one of the few who see clearly at this point. Your perspective about someone you value right now is renewed. Today's lunar eclipse could have some unexpected repercussions. Hold on to your hat, so to speak! Tonight: Swap news with a buddy.

Spanking may not be the best way to correct a child

Dear Annie: I read the column regarding the woman who became irate when her father-in-law spanked her child after the girl knocked over an ornament. I was disappointed in your answer.

Annie's Mailbox

Here is a likely scenario for what happened that day: The little girl runs all over Grandpa's house screaming and carrying on. Mom says in a bored voice, "If you don't stop, you'll have a timeout." She repeats that 100 times and never follows through. When the girl breaks something, Grandpa has had enough. He pops her on the bottom and sends her to another room.

and spanking is not going to cure it.

I say, good for him! Children need discipline. They need parents to give them limits. A toddler cannot be reasoned with. Children that age do not understand their actions have consequences. You have to teach them.

My daughter behaves in public because she knows if she doesn't, we will leave. If necessary, and it is rare, I will pop her on the behind. Believe me, she straightens up. My daughter does not fear me. She knows I am correcting her, and she knows I love her. That is parenting. — Concerned Parent

Dear Parent: It is important to teach children that actions have consequences and to follow through. Using spanking to achieve that, however, is where we part company. While a lot of people may agree with you, the truth is, most parents who resort to hitting their children do so out of frustration and anger. There are non-physical forms of discipline that are equally effective and less humiliating to the child. And, occasionally, spanking gets out of hand and becomes beating.

I do not want to make waves over the amount of time Elsa spends on the phone. I like her and want to remain friendly. This is really frustrating, and I hope you can help. — Accidentally Eavesdropping in Texas

Dear Parent: It's possible Elsa doesn't realize you can hear her so clearly, and she might appreciate being told. Take her aside, and let her know how audible her conversations are, and that you are sure she wouldn't want the entire office to repeat such personal information. Also, tell her the boss could find out she is spending too much time on personal calls. If that doesn't fix it, invest in better headphones.

Dear Eaves: It's possible Elsa doesn't realize you can hear her so clearly, and she might appreciate being told. Take her aside, and let her know how audible her conversations are, and that you are sure she wouldn't want the entire office to repeat such personal information. Also, tell her the boss could find out she is spending too much time on personal calls. If that doesn't fix it, invest in better headphones.

If a parent cannot control a child through reasoning, timeouts, withdrawal of privileges and the like, there is something wrong.
