'Survivor' debuts Friday

Big Spring High School theater department presents its last play of the year, "Survivor, Every Vote Counts," by Kelly Meadows, Friday through Sunday.

The play is a parody on the hit reality television series of the same name and involves a cast of 20 delivering all the emotional drama and backstabbing schemes that made the show famous.

Performances will be held at 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. on Sunday at the high school auditorium, 707 11th Place.

Admission is $5 for adults, $3 for students and $2 for children 12 years of age and younger.

COMING SUNDAY

Pinedale, Wyo., is a town that celebrates its beginnings as a fur-trading community. Seven of the mountain man rendezvous on the Green River took place near Pinedale.

Sheriff's Deputy O'Brien Blakeney, right, carries the Special Olympics torch from the Howard County Courthouse Wednesday afternoon. The torch, carried by law enforcement officers across West Texas on a roundabout journey from Fort Stockton to San Marcos, was carried on its way through Big Spring by Police Officer Matt Coates, Sheriff's Office Sgt. Cliff McCartney and Blakeney, as well as by Police Officer Scott Knight, not shown. The Special Olympics allows handicapped children and adults to compete in athletic events.

Officers keep flame burning for Texas Special Olympics

The flame of sportsmanship swept through Big Spring Wednesday.

A cadre of law enforcement officers from throughout West Texas carried the Special Olympics torch into town to the steps of the Howard County Courthouse, where four local officers, two from Best sex ever?

Then abstain until marriage, group tells Big Spring teens

By LYNDEL MOODY Staff Writer

For the past three weeks, a Midland group has been teaching Big Spring High teens how to have the best sex ever and now parents are encouraged to get involved.

"Our goal is to start out saying we want you to have the best sex ever and we know through studies it's through healthy, committed marriages," said Judy Rouse, Permian Basin Women's Resource Center executive director. "Our boundaries for that is abstinence."

Sponsored by the Permian Basin Women's Resource Center, the three-day, abstinence-based program, Teens are Saying kNOw, will wrap up Friday with a 10:20 a.m. school assembly that's open to the public.

A group of peers from 17 to 20 years old will perform skits aimed at enforcing the abstinence message the group tries to relay in its three-day sessions.

"The first day we talk about the media," Rouse said. "What's influencing us? Is sex a need or a desire? We examine that by all these influences and define what are we really talking about when we talk about sex."

Then the session focuses on the consequences of

"Are we saying sex is bad? No. It's awesome. It's wonderful but there is a place to store it and there is a place to wait on it."

engaging in sexual activity.

"We go through statistics the first day, the first day and half on STD's (sexually transmitted disease)," she said. "One out of 14 has a STD, one out of five has an incurable STD. There are 30 common STD's today; there were only two 30 years ago. Multiple sex partners is the reasons. We look at the five incurable diseases in depth."

After discussing statistics, the group discusses the topic: How safe is safe sex?

"We examine condoms from a factual study — their percentage rate and their failure rate," Rouse said. "We look at what doctors say" white and blue.

This year's Pops in the Park concert and fireworks display is shaping up as perhaps the best yet, according to organizers who met Wednesday to work out extra details.

"It is the biggest single-day event that we have each year in Big Spring," said Tim Blackshear, Pops in the Park chairman. "We believe we are going to have a very Pops in the Park, held each July 3 in the Comanche Trail Park amphitheater, is just five years old, but already draws crowds in excess of 10,000. Organizers spend many months making plans for the show, which requires more than $20,000 to put on.

This year, "Pops" will feature some additions, including a 45-piece U.S. Air Force band which will perform before the Big Spring Symphony and Chorus. The famous group will perform all types of music.

How do your customers see your business?

That depends on your employees' customer service skills, an important facet of any business, big or small.

In June, the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Business Development Committee and the Howard College Continuing Education Department will present a Customer Service Seminar for employers and employees.

Allan Johnson, vice president for business development, announced the event at the chamber board meeting Wednesday at the Dora Roberts Community Center.

The four-part seminar is Trustees for the Big Spring Independent School District will discuss and possible take action on an ongoing discrimination charge against the district Friday.

Discussion of the charge filed by Osbelia Rocha, former Big Spring High School assistant principal, with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission is the only item listed on the BSISD agenda.

Trustees will open the meeting at 4 p.m. Friday in Big Spring High School board room, 707 11th Place, and then convene into closed session to consult with the district attorney on the matter.

Rocha contends discrimination as the reason for the board's failure to approve her as principal of Moss Elementary during the June 20 meeting. The controversial decision fell in a 3-4 split.

In March, trustees met with Rocha in a failed mediation hearing to resolve the matter.

petitors. "They go to San Angelo this evening to head on to San Marcos." During the brief torch-passing ceremony at the courthouse, area law enforcement agencies presented a check for $3,000 to the Special Olympics.

Big Spring Police Chief Lonnie Smith said Special Olympics and law enforcement have a great partnership through the Torch Run, which not only builds excitement for the athletic event but also serves as a fund raiser.

"Special Olympics has been around for several years to give our special athletes the chance to compete and be recognized for all the hard work they do," Smith said. "The volunteers who work as their coaches get the gratification of seeing the results of the work that they do and the heart that the Special Olympians have. It's heartwarming to see the effort that they put forth."

The special athletes are great role models for us all, he added.

"When we talk about the problems that we have in our daily life, then we see these Special Olympians and what they just accept as their daily lives and it doesn't faze them," he said. "Their enthusiasm, it's still there. It's so positive and we all can learn from that."

The Texas Special Olympics Law Enforcement Torch Run has been going on since 1989 said Richard Candelaria, interim state director of the run and director for the West Texas region.

As local officials look on, Howard County and Big Spring law enforcement officers accept the Special Olympics torch at the Howard County Courthouse Wednesday in preparation of carrying it through town on its way to the Texas Summer Games in San Marcos. Shown, from left, are Sheriff Dale Walker, Police Chief Lonnie Smith, City Manager Gary Fuqua, Sheriff's Sgt. Cliff McCartney, Deputy O'Brien Blakeney, Police Officer Scott Knight, Police Det. Lupe Liedecke and Police Officer Matt Coates.

"There were some officers in Houston that brought the torch from Houston to Dallas on mounted patrol," Candelaria said. "They wanted to get an organization to raise money for and they chose the Special Olympics for mentally challenged children and adults."

Big Spring Police Det. Lupe Liedecke organized the event locally, but was unable to participate in the torch run itself because she had to attend court Wednesday.

"This is the first year that I will not go all the way with the run," she said. "I really regret it. This is really a great organization. Working with the athletes is so special to me. I got involved with the Torch Run back in 1997, and ever since then it's just touched me. I feel like I have to be a part of it. This is the first year I haven't gone all the way to the summer games and I'm really going to miss it."

Sheriff Dale Walker said this is the first year the sheriff's office has participated in the run.

"We're glad to do it," he said. "This is a great program. The money that is raised locally goes to the Special Olympics of Texas and is also being used by the local Special Olympics. It's a very good event. It's for a very good cause."

Local law enforcement officers participating in the run include Big Spring Police Officers Matt Coates and Scott Knight, and Howard County Sheriff's Sgt. Cliff McCartney and Deputy O'Brien Blakeney.

Doctors who practice at the Malone Hogan Clinic believe that physicians are the life blood of the medical community and they are staying!

However, there is a perception in the community that since Covenant Health System is leaving Big Spring, the doctors will be leaving too! That's not true! The doctors are still seeing patients in their offices. They are still very much a part of the Big Spring Community...their families have lived here for many years...their children attend local schools.

The best thing the community can do is to continue to see your doctor in Big Spring for your health care needs so that they can maintain their practices in Big Spring and offer you high quality health care right here, right now!

GOP ready to push $350 billion in tax cuts, new spending through Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans are ready to push a $350 billion package of tax cuts and spending through Congress after abandoning President Bush's plan to eliminate taxes on corporate dividends and after shrinking the measure to satisfy moderate lawmakers.

The tax-cutting plan is a major priority for Bush and the GOP, who say it will help spark an economy that has spent more than two years in the doldrums. The president planned a trip to the Capitol on Thursday to claim victory, shortly before legislators were to begin debating the bill.

"This package will help ease economic anxiety," Senate Finance Committee Chairman Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, said in a written statement. "It'll pump up our consumer-driven economy. It'll put more money in individuals' and families' pockets."

The bill contained many of the elements of Bush's original plan, which called for $726 billion in tax reductions through 2013. But the scaled-back congressional version would cut taxes by $330 billion for stockholders, individual taxpayers, couples and businesses, while including $20 billion for financially strapped states, a provision Bush did not seek.

To squeeze the tax reductions into the $330 billion package, Republicans relied on budget gimmickry.

Many of the cuts are scheduled to expire after a few years, despite the overwhelming likelihood that lawmakers never would let that occur and be accused of raising taxes. A reduction in the taxes people pay on corporate dividends and capital gains would end in 2009; other cuts in individuals' income taxes would last only through 2004.

As they have all year, Democrats criticized the plan as a giveaway to the well-off. They have offered alternative plans roughly one-third the size of the final GOP bill.

"This bill misses a real opportunity to get the economy back on track and help Americans who are struggling," Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., said in a statement.

"Instead, it gives away billions to those who need it least and does very little for those who need it most."

The measure reached its final shape after moderate Sen. George Voinovich, R-Ohio, a pivotal vote in the closely divided Senate, met Wednesday with Vice President Dick Cheney and House Ways and Means Chairman Bill Thomas, R-Calif. Support from Voinovich and several other moderates of both parties hinged, in part, on keeping the bill's price tag at no more than $350 billion.

Job cuts planned at Fort Sam Houston

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Elimination of 225 jobs by the U.S. Army garrison that provides support services at Fort Sam Houston are criticized as part of a nationwide plan to privatize the Department of Defense and attack the Army's post's unionized civil service staff.

Jim Hewitt, president of Laborer's International Union of North America Local 28, said the job cuts will stack the deck in favor of contractors so that the proposal proposed by Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld, now pending in Congress, can be used to give the work to the private sector after a planned audit.

State bill would ban human trafficking

AUSTIN (AP) — Human traffickers caught smuggling people through Texas could face up to life in prison under a bill approved Wednesday in the Senate.

The action comes a week after 19 illegal immigrants died after being left in an abandoned trailer outside of Victoria in South Texas. Six people are in custody and others are being sought on federal charges.

While federal law prohibits human trafficking and smuggling, Texas does not have a similar ban in state law.

Duncan says he was only a facilitator

DUNCAN

AUSTIN (AP) — State Sen. Robert Duncan testified Wednesday that he acted only as a facilitator and never was involved in negotiating the state's $117.5 million settlement with Farmers Insurance Group.

At a hearing before state District Judge Scott Jenkins, who will decide whether to give preliminary approval to the settlement reached in November, Duncan said he pushed for the two sides to meet because he wanted to avoid a "catastrophe."

Last fall, the company said it would stop renewing homeowners policies for its 700,000 customers in Texas after the state accused Farmers of unfair pricing practices and proposed seeking $25,000 per person harmed and $150 million in restitution.

"The first thing I did was try to get the parties to the table, which was no small feat," said Duncan, R-Lubbock, an attorney. "... There was a lot of posturing going on. Everyone was trying to take shots at each other."

But attorneys representing a handful of consumers who oppose the settlement said Duncan was not neutral. Houston attorney David Burrow pointed to court documents showing that Duncan's Lubbock law firm represented Farmers or its entities at least 20 times in the past few years.

$145 billion tobacco verdict dismissed

MIAMI (AP) — The dismissal of a $145 billion verdict won by thousands of Florida smokers against the tobacco industry opens the door to thousands of separate lawsuits, although lawyers on both sides said it's unlikely the courts will be flooded with them.

A three-judge panel of the 3rd District Court of Appeals on Wednesday threw out the record-shattering punitive damage against the nation's five biggest cigarette makers, and ruled the class-action lawsuit that produced it was dead.

Alan Jackson wins country album award

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Alan Jackson won album of the year for "Drive" as well as a video honor, and Brooks & Dunn were the top vocal duo, at the Academy of Country Music Awards.

Toby Keith led this year's nominations with eight and avoided a second shutout by being named entertainer of the year.

Kenny Chesney picked up two major awards — male vocalist of the year and record of the year for "The Good Stuff."

Martina McBride was named female vocalist for the second straight year.

'Railroad Killer' sentence upheld

HOUSTON (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday put confessed rail-riding serial killer Angel Maturino Resendiz one step closer to getting his wish that he be executed as soon as possible.

The state's highest criminal court, in a 7-2 decision, affirmed the Mexican drifter's May 2000 conviction and death sentence for the Dec. 17, 1998, rape-slaying of Dr. Claudia Benton.

Lumpectomy to small breast tumors, an important option for women, allowing them to survive cancer at their breasts. Lumpectomy is a drawback to lumpectomy — of which many are unaware — one-fourth to one-third of patients have to return for a second surgery to remove more tissue.

Researchers say lumpectomy is a fast development that could reduce need for surgery, called mastectomy.

Moreover, the procedure could lead to new treatments for even larger tumors, which require mastectomy.

Using microwave technology developed by the Defense Science and Engineering Research Agency at the Research Laboratory for Education and Training at Harbor-UCLA Center are small tumors before surgery. Such shrinkage could eliminate stray cells and minimize the need for a breast lumpectomy.

"We're trying to use cancer cells with a minimally invasive technique," Dr. Hernan Vargas, director of the Breast Cancer Program at Harbor-UCLA Center. "The idea is to target the bad cells and not damage the good ones."

Microwaves aim to shrink breast tumors

By SHARI ROAN

The Los Angeles Times

Lumpectomy to remove small breast tumors is an important option for women, allowing many to survive cancer and keep their breasts. But one drawback to lumpectomy — of which many women are unaware — is that one-fourth to one-half of patients have to return for a second surgery to remove more tissue.

Researchers say they are fast developing tools that could dramatically reduce need for a second surgery, called "re-excision."

Moreover, their work could lead to new treatments for even larger tumors, which often require mastectomies.

Using microwave technology developed for a space-based missile defense system, doctors at the Research and Education Institute at Harbor-UCLA Medical Center are shrinking tumors before surgery. Such shrinkage helps eliminate stray cancer cells and minimizes damage to the breast during lumpectomy.

"We're trying to kill the cancer cells with a less invasive technique," says Dr. Hernan Vargas, director of the Breast Clinic at Harbor-UCLA Medical Center. "The ideal treatment for cancer is to kill the bad cells without damaging the normal cells."

Dr. Hernan Vargas of Harbor-University of California at Los Angeles Medical Center says researchers hope someday "to treat cancer without surgery at all."

In lumpectomy, doctors make a small opening in the breast and remove the tumor along with a 1- to 2-centimeter margin of healthy tissue. That healthy tissue is later examined under a microscope for evidence of cancer. If cancer cells are present, more tissue is removed.

"The question for the surgeon is how much tissue to take out," Vargas says. "You want to leave enough so the woman has a breast with a normal shape and look. But we don't want the cancer to come back."

Even when the margins are "clean," breast cancer recurs in some women, he says.

The technique Vargas and others are testing, called Adaptive Phased Array microwave technology, could dramatically reduce re-excision rates and lessen the chances of cancer recurrence. It works by targeting breast tissue with high water content (the cancer cells) while sparing tissue with low-water content (healthy cells).

The treatment, which is performed a few weeks before the lumpectomy, is fairly quick and low-risk. A small needle with a thermometer is inserted through the skin into the tumor. More thermometers are placed on the surface of the breast. A cooling system protects the skin while the microwave device heats the tumor. The procedure takes about 20 minutes and requires local anesthesia.

In a recent study, no cancer cells were found outside the lump in 24 of 25 women. The therapy also shrank the tumors in many women, Vargas says.

In 80 percent of the cases, tumor cells were damaged by the therapy, and some patients who had higher doses of microwave therapy had much of the cancer destroyed before surgery. Two patients suffered mild burns.

Researchers at Harbor-UCLA and several other sites are conducting a similar study of 500 patients. A separate study of several hundred women with more advanced breast cancers, which typically require mastectomy, also is under way. They will undergo chemotherapy and microwave therapy before surgery to see if tumors can be shrunk enough to permit lumpectomy instead of mastectomy. Both trials are being conducted by Celsion Corp. of Columbia, Md., which makes the device.

The long-term goal of the research, says Vargas, is to destroy tumors before surgery.

Scientists also are testing radio frequency waves and cryotherapy to shrink tumors and are combining these heating and freezing therapies with chemotherapy and new cancer drugs.

"We see these minimally invasive treatments as part of the evolution of treating breast cancer," he says. "The goal for the future is that we'll be able to treat cancer without surgery at all."

What you need to know about colorectal cancer

You need to know that colorectal cancer (cancer of the lower digestive system) is the second-leading cause of cancer related deaths in the U.S. This disease affects men and women equally, with about 135,000 new cases every year. You also need to know that some simple changes can cut your risk dramatically.

KATIE WALKER

First, check with your doctor. Regular screening tests should be performed for everyone at least by age 50. Some individuals (those with a family history of colorectal cancer or polyps, or a personal history of inflammatory bowel disease or other cancer) might need to get a test at an earlier age.

You know diet and exercise will make you look better on the outside. But did you know they can make you look better on the inside, too? A low-fat diet with lots of fruits, vegetables, whole grains, and beans has been shown to lower risk of this disease. Also, a daily multivitamin with 0.4 mg folic acid may also be helpful. And moderate exercise for at least 20 minutes three to four times a week is associated with lower rates of colorectal cancer.

The Cancer Research Foundation of America has lots more information at its Web site: www.preventcancer.org/colorectal

Now you know: When colorectal cancer is caught early, it is highly preventable, treatable and even curable. Remember, Texas Cooperative Extension and the Texas Cancer Council encourage you to learn more about cancer. Taking charge of your own health makes good sense!

Treating chronic pain is very important

By SUSAN COBURN
Stamford Advocate

As many as 86 million Americans live with some form of pain that continues a month or more beyond the usual recovery period for an illness or injury. In worst cases, pain can last well beyond that time and eventually become a chronic condition.

Pain management can be a source of frustration for patients as well as the health care professionals who are treating them. A patient's quality of life can be severely affected, not to mention economic security if it becomes difficult to work. For health care professionals, it is often hard to find the treatment to alleviate a patient's pain.

The American Chronic Pain Association, founded in 1980, has more than 400 international chapters that serve as a support system for people in chronic pain. The group offers educational information about pain management as well as a myriad of other vital resources for patients. The ACPA also strives to raise awareness among the health care community, policy makers and the general public about the issues of living with chronic pain.

Look and feel: The ACPA site — www.theacpa.org — is streamlined. Just the essential links are on the home page, and each leads directly to the respective content within the site. While a search function is unavailable, the content is so well-organized that most visitors will find little need for help searching for what they need. A toll-free number for reaching a representative from the California-based organization is provided, as is an e-mail address and snail mail address.

A quick tour: The content offers several sections that address general information about chronic pain, and visitors will be well-served to view any of these sections as one of their first stops. There is a section that provides a definition of chronic pain as well as a complementary section that outlines the various pain management regimens that are currently available to help patients and their families lessen the sense of suffering.

Another key section delineates the most frequently asked questions about pain management. Answers and guidance are offered to questions such as how to find a physician who specializes in pain management and tips for how to help your family understand the extent of your chronic pain.

Community boards help patients in chronic pain communicate with others with similar problems.

Browse the online board for messages and topic areas of interest to you, or post your own question.

Links: The ACPA site serves up links to numerous other chronic pain-related destinations on the Web.

Funding: The ACPA site is financed by personal donations and corporate sponsorships. A list is provided on the Web site.

From the ground up

Young children help design a playground

By FERN SHEN

The Washington Post

When it came time to design a playground for the new Boys and Girls Club in Germantown, Md., the adults had a brilliant idea: Talk to the kids who will play on it.

"They asked us, 'What would you like in your dream playground?'" recalled Ashley, 11, who goes to the club regularly after school.

The nonprofit group KaBOOM! had offered to help the club get a new playground last fall. They not only found someone to pay for it (Computer Associates International Inc., of New York), but also helped the kids get involved in the design.

Volunteers, including people from the neighborhood and from local companies, were lined up to do the construction work. The playground was built earlier this month.

The kids said the design process was fun — and effective.

"It's great. We asked for a swirly slide, we got a swirly slide. We asked for monkey bars in a kind of dome shape and we got that," said Derrick, 10, who took time out to comment on the playground after climbing all over it, as part of an obstacle course game.

The designing began with a visit by experts from KaBOOM!, a group that helps find kids safe, fun places to play. Kids were asked what features they like in a playground.

"A lot of kids said a slide would be best, especially the little kids. The older kids wanted climbing walls," said Ashley. "I liked the climbing wall idea. I've gone to fairs and parks where they have them."

Turns out, the finished playground has something close: The Rocky Ridge Climber is a slanted, bumpy, four-foot wall with a dangling chain that you use to pull yourself up.

Damien, 8, had a lot of opinions about playgrounds, including what material should be used on the ground. "It shouldn't be wood chips, because, most likely, kids would pick them up and throw them at kids," he said. "They should have, not cement on the ground, but something that's soft and springy."

They came up with a 12-inch-deep layer of "engineered wood fiber" that is intended to be soft and less splintery than wood chips.

As for swing sets, Damien favored both types — regular and tire. He was hoping for a sliding pole and one of those slides that curl into a spiral.

They got the pole and the slide, but not the swings. "The space was too small for swings — it's 50 feet by 50," said Mark Lindquist of KaBOOM! "Swings would have taken up half the space." Other favorite features did not appear in the finished playground, including the horses on springs that one girl described as must-haves "for the little kids."

But the designers did include monkey bars, and a jungle gym, called the Turbo Tower, a jiggly bridge and a "mono-rail," a bar that you grab as it slides you along a track.

Tripti, 7, says she doesn't care if the playground lacks some of the things on kids' wish lists. She's just glad somebody asked her opinion:

"I told about half of my neighborhood that I helped design the playground."

For anybody who doesn't believe her, there's proof.

"We got to put our names on there, with markers, right on the wood," said Anthony, 9. "Anyone who helped make the playground."

SIGNING DAY

Brent Huff of Forsan High School, along with Head Basketball Coach Terry McDonald and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Huff, signs a letter of intent to play basketball at Southern Nazarene University in Oklahoma. Brent will play in the Texas High School Coaches Association All-Star game held in Ft. Worth in July.

Huff inks deal with So. Nazarene

By TOMMY WELLS
Sports Editor

It's official, Forsan High School standout Brent Huff is going to try and teach Oklahoma a little something about basketball — West Texas style.

Huff, who helped guide Forsan to a its first outright district championship in three decades this past February officially signed a letter of intent earlier this week to play collegiately next fall at Southern Nazarene University, a Division I NAIA program in Bethany, Okla. By signing, the Forsan guard/forward became the first local basketball star to sign.

"I think it's great," said Rev. Roger Huff, his father and the pastor of Community of Hope First Church of the Nazarene.

"To have one of our kids from a 2A school sign with a Division I NAIA school is a pretty good deal. I think it shows what kind of talent we have here. I think the whole community should be proud of that."

Huff, who averaged just under 20 points a game this past season, will be joining a Crimson Storm squad that will be rebuilding under new head Michael Broughton. A former NAIA national power, Southern Nazarene posted a 14-17 record in 2002-2003 and finished in the lower half of the Sooner Athletic Conference standings. Five years ago, the Storm finished as the NAIA national runner-up in men's basketball.

Broughton, who replaces former coach Bobby Martin, was an assistant at the University of Nebraska before accepting the Southern Nazarene post.

"They're a decent program right now," said Huff. "They're kind of rebuilding but it's a place where Brent can do well."

The choice of attending a Southern Nazarene was a no-brainer for Huff, who spent his entire four-year prep career at Forsan. He never visited any other campus or considered other options. In fact, he knew as a freshman where he was headed for college.

"It's our church regional school," said his mother, Kris. "We've always felt a Christian education was the most important thing. It's a great school where he can get a quality education."

"Getting to play college basketball is an added benefit for him. It's important in that it helps make him a well-rounded person," she said.

Huff won't be alone on the Southern Nazarene campus, either. His older sister, Jennifer, is a junior at the school, majoring in early childhood education.

Waiting ends for Sorenstam, Colonial crowds

FORT WORTH (AP) — No more mulligans. No more practice. No more waiting for Annika Sorenstam.

After years of dreaming and three months of hype, Sorenstam finally tees off Thursday in the Colonial, the first woman in 58 years to play in a PGA Tour event.

"I can't prepare any more," said Sorenstam, given a 500-1 chance to win by Las Vegas odds-makers. "I've been waiting for this day for a long time. I've been practicing a lot the last few months and I want the day to come. It's here. So what ever happens, happens." Like everybody else, Sorenstam is ready to find out how she scores and how she copes with all the attention of being the first woman since Babe Zaharias in 1945 to play on the tour.

Sorenstam, the No. 1 female player in the world, starts at the 10th tee today with PGA Tour rookies Dean Wilson and Aaron Barber. They will be the most-watched group at tradition-rich Colonial.

Her final practice round on the par-70 course ended on the 11th fairway Wednesday when the pro-am was called because of steady rain. She was at least 1-over par, having picked up her ball on a couple of holes.

"I worked a little on my swing and I was more calm," she said. "I hit some good shots. I love the golf course."

The 7,080-yard layout is a longer, tougher course than any she has played in competition. But two days of rain might have provided a break, making the normally crusty and firm greens more forgiving, allowing her to aim at the flag with long irons and her 7-wood.

"The course is obviously playing much longer, so the only good news is the greens are softer so I can fire more at the flag," she said. "I'm going to hit a few longer clubs than I expected. But luckily, I've got them in my bag, so we'll see what happens."

Sorenstam will be under more scrutiny than any player since Tiger Woods made his pro debut in the 1996 Greater Milwaukee Open.

And for the first time in years, Sorenstam is playing in a tournament she is not expecting to win. The 32-year-old Swede said she would be "so pleased" to shoot par.

Sorenstam isn't trying to prove she can beat the boys. She isn't suggesting that the LPGA Tour, where she has won 43 times and four majors, is no longer a challenge.

What a sponsor's exemption in the Bank of America Colonial is allowing her to do is find out how her game stacks up against the best in the world. She said a week on the PGA Tour will satisfy her curiosity.

"I'm sure she's feeling a lot of pressure, but she's putting it on herself wanting to perform well," said David Toms, who tied for See COLONIAL, Page 9

Coahoma set to face WF Rider

The Coahoma Bulldogettes will try and earn their way into the Class 2A state tournament tomorrow evening when they square off against the Eula Lady Pirates in Snyder.

The Bulldogettes, 18-12-3, are scheduled to begin their Region I finals bout against Eula, 19-9, at 7:30 p.m. at the Snyder High School softball complex. Coahoma has faced Eula in the regional finals five times in the past 10 years.

The winner of the contest will advance to the state tournament.

BSUGSA action returns to the forefront of the local sports scene this evening at Roberts Field. The Big Spring Reds are slated to play at 7:30 p.m.

Hambrick hopes to drop weight, secure RB job

IRVING (AP) — When the Dallas Cowboys' season ended, running back Troy Hambrick headed home to Florida to rest, relax and load up on his mom's cooking.

"Collard greens, rice, ham hocks — you name it, she's making it," he said, smiling.

Hambrick returned to Dallas weighing 260 pounds. He wasn't concerned, though, because that's what he weighed after going home last year and by mid-May he'd gotten down to 235.

This year, the pounds haven't come off as easily. He's been stuck at 250 for so long he's starting to think the team's scales are broken.

His timing couldn't be any worse. Three days into his first minicamp under new coach Bill Parcells, Hambrick is not exactly making the best impression in his bid to replace Emmitt Smith as the team's featured back.

"I feel like a fat boy," he said Wednesday. "I can't seem to come out of my break quick enough."

Parcells is a stickler for fitness and conditioning. He's made it clear that Hambrick better be under 240 pounds by the time he weighs in at training camp in July.

"Troy will not be able to play running back for the Dallas Cowboys at 250 pounds," Parcells said.

Parcells is known for sending such messages with blunt statements. Hambrick experienced it when the coach walked up near him and loudly asked strength and conditioning coach Joe Juraszek, "Why are all my freaking tailbacks fat?"

"I knew he was talking to me because my stomach was hanging over then," Hambrick said.

Parcells said he's repeatedly told Hambrick to avoid weight-loss tricks such as using diuretics. Tapping his own belly, Parcells said people like Hambrick and himself "basically have to stop eating."

"He said to me today, 'I'm only eating twice a day,'" Parcells said. "So I said, 'Eat once.'"

With his weight under control, the 6-foot-1 Hambrick could be the human wrecking ball Parcells likes in the backfield, the kind who can pound away for three quarters then break off a long run in the fourth against a worn-out defense.

In 2001, he ran for 579 yards and was third in the NFL with an average of 5.1 yards per carry.

second last year. "She's won big tournaments, won a lot of tournaments, and she obviously handles the pressure very well. It will be interesting to see what happens."

Jay Haas said Sorenstam's debut "might be bigger" than Woods' first pro event.

"Was Tiger's debut spread across the front page of the newspaper?" Haas said. "But it's certainly different. Everyone was talking about Tiger dominating the tour, and they don't think Annika is going to come out here and do that."

While Sorenstam is making history, Nick Price will try to defend his only PGA Tour win since 1998.

Price, 46, knows Colonial is one of only a handful of courses where he knows she still has a realistic chance of winning. Plus, he is coming off consecutive top-five finishes and was recently elected to the World Golf Hall of Fame.

Still, that's not what people have found interesting about Price, who has three majors among his 18 PGA Tour wins.

"I think I've answered enough questions about Annika the last three months," Price said. "Every one knows what my feelings are on that."

Price, one of the more gracious players in the game, has said Sorenstam's appearance "reeks of publicity." And he said five-time Colonial champion Ben Hogan would roll in his grave if he knew what was happening.

This week, Price is trying to focus on playing.

"The last three or four months have been very uncomfortable," he said. "But now we are here, and I'm ready to play and excited about it."

SPURS

coach his team, and he said 'No, I'm not going to. So I hit him with one,' Crawford told a pool reporter. "I said 'Go coach your team.' He said 'I'm staying right here.' So, bang, I threw him."

Assistant coach Del Harris was tossed moments later.

"Del Harris was different," Crawford said. "Del Harris came to my partner (Ted Bernhardt) at a timeout and said that he was going to get ejected, and to eject him on one (technical) which isn't unusual. This has happened in the history of the NBA where a coach has walked up to a referee and said 'eject me. So we eject him.'"

The Spurs went to the line 28 times in the first half, making their first 24.

The score was 69-44 at halftime, and the second half consisted of little more than waiting to see if any more individual technical fouls would be called — none were — and whether the Mavericks could make a comeback with assistant coach Donnie Nelson at the helm.

They couldn't. Game 3 is Friday night at Dallas.

"We definitely lost our composure, but we knew coming in how it would be," Mavericks guard

Nick Van Exel said. "Our focus was to keep fighting though it as best we could, but tonight it just got the best of us."

Duncan had 32 points and 15 rebounds, Rose scored 25. Tony Parker had 19 and Stephen Jackson 17. San Antonio made 37 of 45 free throws.

"It is tough being in a situation where you're up so much and are trying to play the clock out, basically," Duncan said. "We talked about trying to win the game instead of sustaining the lead."

Williams continues to leads Cards by Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Albert Pujols hit a three-run homer and drove in four runs, and Cal Eldred picked up his fourth save by getting Jeff Bagwell to ground into a game-ending double play with the bases loaded and led the St. Louis Cardinals past the Astros 7-4 Wednesday. Woody Williams (6-0) hasn't lost a decision since Aug. 29 at Cincinnati and he's built an enviable record at Minute Maid, increasing his record at the hitter-friendly stadium to 6-1.

Williams left after giving Morgan Ensberg's leadoff home run in the eighth. Williams allowed two earned runs and Michael Finley led the Mavericks with 29 points and Nowitzki had 23.

A layup by Duncan with 1:31 left in the first completed a 17-2 run and gave the Spurs a 33-16 lead, and Jackson had a fast-break layup with 6:53 left in the second quarter to complete an 18-3 run that gave the Spurs a 55-29 edge.

Dallas got within 17 in the third before Nowitzki picked up his fourth and fifth fouls. The fouls led to a 87-67 lead by the Spurs.

The Cardinals improved to 26-11 in games Williams has started since coming to St. Louis in 2001.

Pete Munro (3-3) made his first start as a replacement for Roy Oswalt, on the 15-day disabled list because of a right groin strain.

BY JOYCE JILLSON

The Aquarius moon and Gemini sun make this a truly inspiring day. More things seem possible, so variety naturally becomes part of life.

Joyce Jillson

Aquarius lunar energy buzzes through our minds, waking up dreams about the future. A friendly sharing of information is made easier, too, now that Mercury is direct.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Stay calm, cool and collected. Change your temper using a trick: Acknowledge just the facts, include your emotions on the matter (rather than denying them), and find the good in the situation.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Find a way to highlight the unique element of your contribution. A bad way to get through the morning's events is to set up a comparison that makes you feel weak. Your worth has nothing to do with the worth of others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Learn where the money comes from, and you'll have a different point of view about the job you are doing. This could help you cut some of the "fat" from your schedule, meaning activities that don't go right to the bottom line.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). It's safe to assume that no one else is going to care about your business as much as you — and that includes someone you've hired to make sure the job is done correctly. Take an ounce of prevention.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). While some find it appropriate to meet their deadlines, you'd rather impress by being early. That's why you'll be chosen to do a job others wish they could have. Comfort is what you want from domestic life tonight — loved ones oblige.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (May 22). Start this lucky year by pursuing some promising new ideas. You get a major undertaking off the ground in July after a few minor setbacks this month and next. Bosses approve of your efforts, offering you tantalizing incentives in September and December. Romance is more than sweet around the holidays and likely involves a Pisces or a Leo. Your lucky numbers are: 3, 9, 20, 53 and 16.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). What's required of you today is specific and perhaps even a little restricting. If you can find freedom within the rules, you'll be the star. If you don't know the guidelines, then ask. Guessing could have disastrous results.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Your ability to give and execute direction will be praised. Build on this. Present your qualifications in a confident manner. Self-deprecation is out of place. A star sighting could be part of the evening's excitement.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Your renegade spirit is nothing but sexy. Expect followers. Remember, it's more impressive to listen to others, really take in what they say and make them feel important than it is to talk about yourself and your experiences.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Do research, and take other steps to make your next presentation a winner. Tonight's dates go down with a delicious element of conflict, along the lines of an old Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn film.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). The more energy you put out, the more you have. Financial problems can be avoided if you are willing to be fearless, deliberate and determined. That means calling up Mr. Bill Collector instead of avoiding his call.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Adapting to the new way things are done is the theme, and it comes up in both your personal and your professional life. You'll probably need training in order to execute the tasks of the day.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Timing is crucial in pitching your ideas successfully. You may have the quintessential plan, but if your colleagues aren't ready for a change or don't see the necessity, you'll be preaching in vain.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: "When a friend did my chart recently, I found out that I have my moon in Pisces. She said that was probably why I'm having a lot of emotional problems connecting with my boyfriend, who is a Gemini. Do you think that my moon could have something to do with it?"

The moon represents your emotional life and secret aspirations, and the danger of having your moon in Pisces is that you often have really deep feelings that you keep very hidden (especially when they're of a romantic nature). To top it all off, you often take away impressions of events that are not actually accurate, and the void you feel between the two of you is not really there. You and your Gemini man are having problems because he doesn't know that you truly desire to be with him exclusively. His moon in Capricorn makes him emotionally complex and not just a little afraid of being left. Once he feels comfortable and committed in the relationship, he will prove to be endlessly loyal and loving. Shout it from the rooftops! Make a banner! Tell him you love him in any way you can! Once you do, I promise that yours will be a very happy union.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Steve Nicks teamed up again earlier this year with Fleetwood Mac to produce the new hit "Peacemaker." Nicks, however, will be anything but peaceful in her personal life this summer when Mars activates Gemini women to make an important stand. Nicks could use her charm to become a family diplomat negotiating the wills of strong personalities. Ever the survivor, Nicks rises to the top.

One call to our classifieds department can put you in touch with readers from all over the area who are looking to buy your unwanted items.

I wanted to let you know how effective the classified ad I recently placed in the Big Spring Herald proved to be. The ad to sell my 1990 Ford Aerostar Van first appeared on Tuesday afternoon. That same evening, I received a call from an interested lady. She came over the next day, Wednesday, test drove the car, then purchased it at my asking price. It was that simple.

Annies Mailbox: Advice for those in need
Dear Annie: I am a 39-year-old professional woman, independent and attractive. I've been married for nine years to a man whom I respect. "Paul" is educated, good-looking, kind, has strong values, loves me very much, and he and my family adore each other. We have no children. The problem? Our relationship is purely platonic. We do not socialize together or take vacations together, and sex is not only an activity we avoid, the thought of being intimate with him repulses me. Sex with Paul is just plain icky. To fill that void in my life, I have been in a sexual and romantic relationship with another man for three years. He is married and has two adult children. We both understand our limited relationship for what it is and don't expect more. I am dissatisfied with the lack of intimacy in my marriage, dissatisfied with the limited nature of my affair, and I hate deceiving my spouse. However, Paul is a wonderful friend, and our marriage apparently satisfies him, and it makes my family happy. Paul and I have discussed the lack of sex, but he doesn't care whether we are intimate or not. He simply doesn't want to be old and alone. Is it better to stay in a marriage that satisfies everyone else and find intimacy where I can? Or, should we each find someone with whom we can be both intimate and happy? Is sex all that important to a marriage, or is it really about mutual support, friendship and family?

Annie's Mailbox

Please help. — No Cinderella Living Here
Dear Cinderella: The best marriages combine all of those factors. For most couples, sex is an integral part of marriage. Only you, however, can decide where it ranks on your list of priorities. Sex notwithstanding, you seem miserable. It is difficult and unpleasant to stay in a marriage simply because it makes other people happy. Ask Paul to go with you for marriage counseling so you can determine what's best for your future. MOSCOW - Police barred the Russian girl pop duo t.a.t.u. from filming their new video Thursday in Red Square, where several hundred fans showed up to act as extras.

Many dressed in the schoolgirl uniforms favored by their heroes to appear in the band's video for the Eurovision song contest.

"It looks like Russia does not care for t.a.t.u. representing its country," said Ivan Shapovalov, the duo's producer, after failing to persuade police to let the filming go ahead.

t.a.t.u., whose sexy outfits and flirtation with lesbianism made headlines around the world, had an international hit with "All the Things She Said." They became the first Russian band to break through the tough British singles chart. Shapovalov created t.a.t.u. in 1999 to be deliberately provocative and to fill what he saw as a gap in the teenage band market.

Russia chose the duo to represent the country at the Eurovision Song Contest later this month in Riga, Latvia.

try to stop the series starring Indian film actress Karishma Kapoor from airing.

The Supreme Court in New Delhi on Monday suspended for two days an earlier Calcutta High Court order that allowed the series to be shown, the agency said.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - India's Supreme Court has ordered a television network to stop showing a new series that a U.S. author claims plagiarizes her novel, a news report said.

Barbara Taylor Bradford says the Indian-made series, "Karishma: A Miracle of Destiny," is based on her book "A Woman of Substance," the United News of India news agency said this week.

The novel deals with a woman's struggle to establish herself in the world.

Sahara Media Entertainment company, a subsidiary of one of India's largest businesses, Sahara India, went ahead with the broadcast of the first episode Monday evening because the Supreme Court order came late in the day.
