Big Spring graduate has front row seat as fires rage in California By LYNDEL MOODY

Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO – A Big Spring native had a front seat view of the wildfires ripping through parts of California this week.

From her San Diego County Estates home snuggled by the mountains near the town of Romana, Jo Anna Patterson Darwin, a 1961 Big Spring High School graduate, her husband, Jim, and her father Richard "Pat" Patterson, had a close view of the wildfires - a little too close. Darwin said she noticed a small fire on the mountain Saturday evening before she and her husband headed to dinner with friends. "I thought, 'I sure hope they get that put out because it so dry here." she said. "During the course of the dinner several of us mentioned the little fire on the mountain. We got home about 9 p.m. and it had covered up the mountain. The fire was really moving." By Sunday the fire had totally surrounded the

Chase through Howard County leaves Robert Lee man dead

By THOMAS JENKINS

Staff Writer A high speed pursuit through several West Texas counties turned deadly Wednesday afternoon, claiming the life of a 45-year-old Robert Lee man.

According to Texas Department of Public Safety reports Lax Kent Cole was killed instantly when a Ford Taurus driven by 19year-old Heidi Jean Haussecker .plowed through the sheet metal shop where the Robert Lee native worked.

"According to reports, it all began when the suspect stole a van in Midland," said DPS Communications Officer Leon Choate, explaining the bizarre chain of events. "From there she traveled to Big Spring where she got rid of the van and stole another vehicle. From that point she traveled to San Angelo.

"While in San Angelo, she was involved in wreck with another vehicle that was driven by an elderly woman. We're not sure if she pulled the elderly woman from her car or not, but the woman sustained injuries in the altercation, after which Haussecker allegedly stole the car she hit."

Choate said the San Angelo Police Department notified DPS of the incident moments after it happened, after which a description of Haussecker and the car were broadcast to law enforcement officers in the area.

'Trooper Tod Reed observed the suspect shortly after it was broadcast," Choate explained. "He began pursuing the vehicle and was joined by police and sheriff's deputies from all over the area. They pursued her to Robert Lee, where they attempt-former Big Spring resi-dent's California home. Darwin said heavy smoke filled the neighborhood through much of Sunday and Monday.

During part of the time, residents had to wear masks before going outside, she said. Bags were packed, but firefighters were not giving the word to evacuate the area.

Darwin later learned the three roads leading out of the community were on fire.

"I've never been through an experience like this," she said. "Even earthquakes aren't like this.

By Wednesday, Darwin said things were getting Michael Downes, Big Spring Independent School District superintendent; Bill Kingston, Coahoma Independent School District superintendent; and Tommy Gibson, Big Spring Junior High School assistant principal.

Businessmen Bill Dodson, owner of Paradigm Physical Michael Therapy; Niklash, owner of A&M Composites; Kent Sharp, Moore Development of Big Spring executive director; and Dennis Edmunds, StarTek Big Spring site manager, are also in the contest.

Rounding out the contestants are Tim Knox of KBST, Sid Saunders of Scenic Mountain Medical Center, Steve Wright of the Big Spring VA Medical Center and Steve Sturtz, Glasscock County Extension Agent.

"My bags are still packed," Darwin said in a Thursday afternoon phone call. "I have things stacked up against the door to the garage just in case."

According to Darwin, the heat of the fire may have melted the buried fiber optic lines for telephone and cable. Residents are having to use cell phones for communication.

"Right now everybody's trying to get back to normal," she said.

"I want to thank all our friends, several from Big Spring, who have called telling us they are praying for us," said an emotional Darwin. "We appreciate that so much. It means a lot. It really does mean something to know people far away care about us

'It just depends on what the judges like," Rhodes continued. "We're a West Texas band and we're going to put some sound out there and have a lot of drums. Some judges don't like that loud sound that maybe the average football fan loves. You have to make a decision during a state year to play things that may bore your crowds but please the judges."

Rhodes, who has taken bands to state competition many times, said he tries to find a medium.

"I try to go halfway and play pieces the fan can recognize," he said. "You play more for your fans than you do for the judges.

er. Let me explain. When I was young, it was our intent to dress up in the scariest possible of costumes for Halloween. Dracula, Frankenstein, Blackbeard or the Devil Himself were common choices.

Witches, goblins and ghosts were good. Moms worked hard MCCLELLAN sewing costumes.

Stores didn't sell Halloween costumes, or if they did, our family couldn't afford them. Mummy costumes were easy. A old sheet made a quick ghost. A little lipstick or red paint (lead-based, no doubt) worked for blood. Masks, make-up, mustaches and wigs were about the only accessories you could purchase. Oh, and the plastic combination nose-and-glasses.

As we set out on our door-to-door wanderings, the only pleading from our parents were "Don't eat too much candy" and "I hear Mrs. Bell is making caramel popcorn balls again this year. Be sure and go by her house."

In short, our Halloweens were spooky, and a bit crazy, but it was all in good fun.

A lot has changed since then. One Halloween in 1974, some psycho put cyanide in his son's candy and nothing has ever been the same again. Today, it's not safe for parents to let their children go door-to-door in neighborhoods they aren't familiar with. People don't son. And, of course, there's been a movement for a while now to "deevil" Halloween - remold it into something kind and gentle, void of pirates and ghosts. Today, Halloween has largely been replaced by fall festivals, which, thankfully, provide a good and hopefully safe place for children. It's not Halloween, of course, but it's fun. Even the word Halloween is frowned upon by some, who in their unrealistic sense of well-being, want to save everyone and everything from, well... everyone and everything. God bless 'em.

Anyway, none of this has a point, except to say that when you become 50, you realize that all things do change over time, even holidays. And while Halloween is still celebrated by a few little witches and warlocks out there, I figure that in a decade or two it will be one of those things that you "cannot do anymore." And now, I've finally gotten to the point of all of this. I have a list of things you "cannot do anymore." It's nostalgic, if nothing else.

Things you "cannot do anymore"

— Leave your shotgun in the gunrack of your unlocked pickup in the school parking lot.

- Get three plays for a quarter. - Walk downtown to buy firecrackers, then set 'em off during the walk back home. Hopefully. you bought some extra punks.

– Buy anything with a penny. Can you even buy anything for a nickel anymore?

Carry a knife in your pocket.

- Ride a passenger train from Big Spring to Midland, or just about anywhere else in West Texas.

- Spin on the stools at the local drug store while waiting on a nickel ice cream cone. Two scoops for a dime!

- Buy glue to put the model together that someone gave you on your 10th birthday. Forget buying spray paint either.

- Get into a fight with another kid from school without someone calling the police.

- Adjust the airflow into your all-metal vehicle by opening and closing triangular window vents. - Buy new 8-tracks, 78s, 33s or

45s. - Play Pong.

- Go to a movie theater and expect to see a double feature; stay all day, if you want to, without paying another dime.

 Go to the store to get a tube for your television set.

- Buy a Super Ball.
- Listen in on a party line.
- Legally drive a car without
- having insurance.

Reach in your pocket or purse and pull out a wheat penny, buffalo nickel or a liberty dime. And finally...

 Have an accident. Nowadays, everything is someone else's fault.

Here's wishing you a happy Halloween. May the spooks be with you.

Still waiting on the the specifics or sheer journalistic tenacity and guts, it is hard to beat Garry Trudeau, the creator of Doonesbury. I remember during Ronald Reagan's presidency, when even mild criticism of Reagan was guaranteed to bring in a deluge of angry letters and phone calls, Trudeau would whack Reagan in strip after strip. You might violently disagree with what Trudeau says and draws, but you can't accuse him of cutting and running. This week, Trudeau took on one of the most popular people in California, Gov.-elect Arnold Schwarzenegger, whose smashing victory a few weeks ago silenced almost all criticism of him.

In one Doonesbury strip, Trudeau raises an issue that Schwarzenegger wants to go away: allegations that he molested women.

During the campaign,

Schwarzenegger was accused by 15 women of groping them or otherwise touching them sexually against their will.

The Los Angeles Times printed their accusations in chilling detail, and a number of the alleged victims allowed their names to be used.

At first, Schwarzenegger did not deny the stories. He gave a speech and said, "Where there's smoke there's fire," and apologized to anybody he might have "offended.'

Schwarzenegger's own internal poll numbers dipped, and on Oct. 5, two days before the election. Schwarzenegger gave an interview to NBC's Tom Brokaw in an attempt to douse the flames. The entire interview is fascinating — Schwarzenegger repeatedly portrays himself as the victim – but here are a few key passages:

SCHWARZENEGGER: Well, first of all, a lot of it is made-up stories. I have never grabbed anyone and pulled up their shirt and grabbed their breasts and stuff like that. This is not me. So there's a lot of this stuff going on and a lot of stories.

BROKAW: So you deny all those stories about grabbing?

SCHWARZENEGGER: No, not all. But I'm just saying this is not

- this is not me .. BROKAW: Gov. (Gray) Davis is saying today that you have an obligation to answer specifically the charges that have been made against you by 15 women now. You either have to call those women and their families liars, or give specific responses to the charges that they have made. Are you prepared to do that?

SCHWARZENEGGER: Gov. Davis owes the people of California an apology for what he has done to this state. He owes them an explanation. He should talk to the people of California because what he has done to this state is terrible.

BROKAW: But you're not going to be any more specific about these charges, in terms of your denials?

SCHWARZENEGGER: As soon as the campaign is over, I will -Ican get into all of those kind of specifics and find out what is really going on, but right now I'm just really occupied with the campaign.

Got that? Schwarzenegger promised to address the specifics of the charges against him "as soon as the campaign is over."

Well, two days after the campaign was over, a reporter asked him when he was going to address the charges.

"Old news," Schwarzenegger said and walked away.

On the last day of the recall campaign, the Democratic attorney general of California, Bill Lockyer, said that even though the statute of limitations had run out on bringing criminal charges against Schwarzenegger for his behavior, "Arnold should volunteer" for an "investigation to clear up these charges.'

"There's too many of them, they're disturbing, the volume is disturbing," Lockyer said.

But that was before Schwarzenegger won. After he won, Lockyer announced that he had voted for Schwarzenegger and, as to the allegations of groping and other improper touching, "I'm convinced Arnold didn't really understand that he was caught up in frat-boy behavior."

Which does not exactly make Lockyer a profile in courage. But that is what happens when somebody wins big. A lot of critics figure that the people have spoken, so why keep digging dirt?

Trudeau has an explanation on his website for why he isn't letting go: "This isn't about Clinton-style promiscuity or mutual consent workouts. This is about hateful, hurtful, criminal behavior -30years of harassment and battery. If Arnold has changed, it happened yesterday. (It's a) legitimate subject."

The Schwarzenegger campaign has its own explanation for why Schwarzenegger has not fulfilled his promise to Brokaw and the public to provide details. His press secretary said Schwarzenegger is fulfilling his pledge by having his staff "search for eyewitnesses to the incidents."

And O.J. is still looking for the true killer of his wife.

The Bible tells us that God's ways are not our ways, and his thoughts are not our thoughts. There are times when our circumstances may look hopeless and our prospects dim, but the good news is that god doesn't see the way we see.

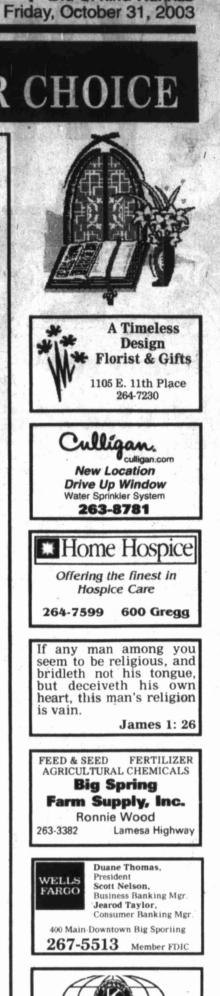

God sees the big picture - and he is constantly at work in our lives, bringing his vision into focus.

Join us as we receive practical help for coping with difficult circumstances, using God's word as the foundation for our lives.

On the flip side however, I hear a lot of fearful talk about our economy, some negative talk about our opportunities and we still have needy people within our area. Some might feel like it's a time to re-evaluate and pull back; to be more conservative in generosity. I would like to propose a different approach.

There is not space in this column to go into the theological details and prove to everyone that what I am about to say is true and maybe everyone already knows it, but God is waiting on us as a community to take the next step. God waits for our acknowledgment and our focus to turn to Him. He knows that if we don't recognize Him in blessings, that many people will assume that it was just a happy circumstance and not know the God that created the universe and loved them enough to give His very best. Many in our community are already doing this, but I think there is a great need to step up our efforts.

If you will remember a few years back we had a pray for rain rally that received national attention. Ten days after our community confessed God as our true source it began to rain. We have not faced such a severe shortage since.

The Bible tells us to "give and it shall be given to you", but Jesus also said in the Sermon on the Mount, "Ask and it will be given to you; Seek and you will find; Knock and the door will be opened to you. For everyone who asks receives; he who seeks, finds; and to him who knocks, the door will be opened." (Matthew 7:7-

It is time as a community to ask, seek and knock. Not to trust in the fact that we are really good people, but to trust God who created the entire together with the love of Christ. It is time to P.U.S.H. Big Spring.

I have talked to several pastors and many long time community members who feel there is a divine destiny on our community to be not only a exceptional small city, but a region-shaping, world changing community of faith. That takes prosperity of a kind we have not see lately, but I think God wants to give it to us. Our job is to

P.U.S.H. 'Pray Until Something Happens' for Big Spring. What should we pray? 1. For God to reward the giving of Big Spring and Howard County with new prosperity and an expanding economy.

2. For the people of Howard County to recognize God as the source of all good things and the repairer of the bad.

3. The churches of Howard County begin to experience abundance in universe and who holds it order to fulfill their mis- faith in our community, sion to provide for others in body, mind and spirit.

4. That we all learn to appreciate and speak well of one another, so that God can bless us according to His word in Psalm 133. As a diverse people of

NEWS BRIEFS Franks honored

MIDLAND (AP) - The four-star general who led military action in Iraq and Afghanistan has returned to his West Texas hometown to receive an award from the Boy Scouts of America. Retired Army Gen. Tommy Franks received the 2003 Distinguished Citizen award on Thursday from the Boy Scouts' Buffalo Trail Council.

Franks, a Life Scout with Boy Scout Troop 158 in Greenwood, spoke extensively about his scouting experiences.

"I believe we (Boy Scouts) still talk about trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent," Franks said, referring to the Boy Scout Law. "And if not, I believe we ought to."

Franks said some of his darkest days, and the nation's saddest days, came from not following the scout motto of "be prepared," The Midland Reporter-Telegram reported in Friday's editions.

Texas Gov. Rick Perry, an Eagle scout and former assistant scout master, joined Franks in Midland for the award presentation. The governor spoke highly of the scouting volunteers in attendance, then singled out the children in tan uniforms.

"That's why I'm here. General, you're second," Perry quipped. "The first reason I'm here is for those boys and girls who Jerry Doporto's gamewinning touchdown pass which came on the Steers' first play in the third overtime period, took everyone by surprise ... even Shockley.

"I was lined up in the slot and supposed to run a fade route," he said. "I kind of thought they would have me picked up, but they bit on our other receiver's curl. I was surprised they didn't come at me more.'

While the Estacado secondary may not have been watching Shockley, Doporto was. After taking the snap from center Kaniel Miramontes, he dropped back into the pocket and lofted a pass into the end zone for Shockley.

"I knew no one was going to beat me to the said Shockley. ball," "They (Estacado) may not have the best secondary we've played, but they have the most athletic. I think everyone of those guvs have 40-inch verticals. It didn't matter, See STEERS, Page 2B

Bowl to Arizona.

After two challenged calls went against his team in a victory over Denver last Sunday. Billick had seen enough. "I quit. I give up.

Billick said. "I've tried to be an advocate for instant replay. I've tried to do the company line. I've said the right things.

"League, I'm sorry. Dump it.

Tagliabue said Billick's comments were a "direct and severe violation of our rules about criticizing officiating publicly."

"I think what Brian Billick said about replay was intolerable, unacceptable, uncalled for and he should be fined." Tagliabue said, adding he didn't know if that would happen.

Earlier Thursday, Arizona beat out Tampa and Washington, D.C. for the 2008 Super Bowl.

Tampa and Washington rolled out some big names to make their pitches. Retired Gen. Tommy Franks was in Tampa's corner and D.C. went to bat with former Sen. Fred Thompson.

But Arizona, with a stadium shaped like a barrel cactus and featuring a retractable roof and a grass playing surface that can be rolled up, won out. The new facility, a public-private partnership in suburban Glendale, is under construction and scheduled for completion in 2006.

though. Jerry threw a perfect pass."

Shockley's reception highlighted a major gut check for the Steers. The team rallied from a deficit in the first overtime to stage its first two-game win streak of the season.

Estacado, now 0-9 and 0-4, threatened to pull off yet another playoff-killing win early in the first overtime.

Lubbock running back Albert Reynolds staked the Matadors to a 21-14 lead on the first play in overtime. He took a pitch from Estacado backup huarterback Toddrick Scott and raced 25 yards for a touchdown.

Big Spring's efforts to move into a tie didn't get up facing a fourth-and-24 off to a good start. After back-to-back runs of 3 and 1 yards by Ornales-Doporto, the Matadors batted away a third down passing attempt and forced the Steers into a Fourth-and-6 situation from the Mat 21. Cobb breathed new life into the Big Spring march from there. He hauled in an 11-yard pass from Doporto on the ensuing play to give Big Spring a First down at the Estacado 10.

who won this for us," he added.

The BSHS defense, despite getting burned by several long runs, also helped. Phillips, Quentin Vanderbilt and Partee each came up with key plays in the second half to keep the Matadors from scoring. Estacado, which rolled up more than 300 yards of total offense, threatened to gain the upper hand midway through the third quarter when Reynolds broke free on a 50-yard run to the BSHS 20.

Two penalties and a sack by Vanderbilt-quickly took care of the threat, however. Estacado starting quarterback Melvin Irving capped the Mats' initial scoring drive by pushing his way into the end zone from four yards out.

Big Spring battled back to knot the score at 7-7 late in the first when Zack Chesworth highlighted a 7-play, 67-yard march with a 22-yard jaunt through the middle of the EHS defense.

Following the penalty, Doporto hooked up with Wesley Smith on a 21yard pass play to the Matador 1.

Irving, who completed 3of-5 passing attempts and rushed for 25 yards and two TDs, was forced to leave the game on the final play of the half. He broke his left arm while scrambling for an extra yard at midfield.

Big Spring will close out its regular season next Friday when it plays host to the Andrews Mustangs. The game will be held at 7:30 p.m. at Memorial

Three plays later. Ornales-Doporto pushed his way into the end zone from the two to tie the contest.

The Steers' threatened to take the lead in the second OT, driving to the Matador 23 before sending Cobb on to attempt a 40-yard field goal. Cobb's attempt sailed wide left. Estacado had the opportunity to sneak out the win minutes later. The :Matadors managed to drive to the BSHS 9 on their ensuing series ebefore stalling. Alex Portee's attempt to boot a game-winning 26-yard field goal failed — sending the contest into a third OT.

The Big Spring defense all but took the Mats out of the game from there. Jeremy Cerda and Erin Partee combined to push Estacado back 12 yards on the first two plays of the third overtime frame. Then, following a short run by Scott, Cobb intercepted a desperation pass in the end zone.

Shockley and Doporto turned out the lights from there.

"That was an incredible game," said Shockley. 'When you start looking for people to credit, you have to hand it to the line. They fought through four quarters and then three

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: I suspect that my 16-year-old daughter, "Kelly," is contemplating becoming sexually active. I brought up the subject last year, but at that time, she told me she intended to wait until she was married or at least in college. I asked her to please let me know if she changed her mind, so I could take her to the doctor for an exam, birth control and safe sex options.

Over the summer, I was tossing out the trash from Kelly's bedroom and found an insert from a package of birth control pills. I did some snooping and discovered the pills in her dresser drawer. She evidently got them from an agency here in town.

My husband says I should ask Kelly about the pills. I'm not sure that's the best way to handle it. Kelly doesn't have a steady boyfriend right now, so she probably isn't having sex. However, she did visit her old boyfriend over the summer, and I'm not sure if anything happened or not.

I've decided to make an appointment with her doctor and give him a "heads up" about the situation. Is that the best way, or is my husband right? — Practical Mom Dear Mom: Both approaches can work. The doctor's appointment is a good idea, since he has her medical history and she may be more willing to discuss her sexual activity with him. However, you also should speak to Kelly about what you found in the trash. While we hope you don't make a habit of snooping through Kelly's things, your discovery provides an opening to bring up the subject and talk to Kelly about your concerns. Having sex is about more than birth control pills. Kelly needs to know she can count on you for guidance, as well. Dear Annie: I read the letter from "Video Gamer's Girlfriend," who said her boyfriend played play video games, but he supports my hobbies, so I don't worry about his. Peace of mind is worth. more than his undivided attention. - Video Game. Wife and Loving It in Norfolk, Va.

Dear Norfolk: Most readers agreed with you that video games, while obsessive, are fairly harmless and most guys outgrow them. Here's more:

From Connecticut: Your advice to "Video Gamer's Girlfriend" was dangerous. This guy clearly has an addictive personality. He uses obsessive distractions to avoid facing his anxieties: they are a form of medication. If he gives up video games, he is likely to go on to something worse. How can this boyfriend be a "wonderful companion" when he shuts her out while he plays video games?

East Coast: Our 15-yearold son was addicted to video games. We finally pulled the plug, and his behavior improved greatly. Since then, we have permitted him to play one hour every other day. Moderation is the key.

Modesto, Calif.: My husband does not drag greasy car parts into the house, nor does he vanish every Saturday morning to play golf. The amount of money he spends on games is minuscule compared to some men's toys. Things could be worse.

West Coast: My husband is addicted to video games, too. I went to the store and bought a few two-player games that looked interesting. It's a great hobby to relieve stress, and we have a blast playing together. He doesn't feel as if I have taken anything away from him, and we don't argue nearly as much. © 2003 CREATORS SYNDICATE, INC.
