No rave reviews for Medicare Drug Discount Card

Should improve when new program is enhanced in 2006

By THOMAS JENKINS

Staff Writer

As the new Medicare Drug Discount Card went into effect Tuesday, mixed feelings seem to be the best way to describe the way it's being viewed by local pharmacies and pharmacists.

The new program, which is the first step in a final, more thorough solution expected to be unveiled in 2006, is designed to provide area seniors who don't currently have prescription insurance with "some" help. However, according to local pharmacist Larry McLellan, it's still a far cry from addressing the growing needs of seniors on a tight budget.

"On average, the new Medicare prescription program is going to provide those who are eligible with about 10 percent in savings," said McLellan. "It's pretty complicated when you start trying to put a total savings to seniors across the board, but it's going to amount to the same as a lot of other discount prescription cards. Leonard's Pharmacy has been offering a 10 percent discount to seniors for many years now."

McLellan said he's concerned that a lot of

Color Your World...Read

Library's summer program is still accepting children

The Howard County Library began its summer reading program Tuesday, hoping to color every child's world with the power of reading.

"I'm thrilled about this year," said Children's Librarian Karen McIntyre.

In spirit of the theme Color Your World...Read, McIntyre plans to have a variety of guest speakers visit during the program to bring out the creative side of participants.

"We're going to have a number of art teachers come visit," she said. "We will also have (Dr.) Keith Graumann (Big Spring Symphony conductor and artistic director) come in and show us how music can color our world."

"Quail Dobbs will be back again and he is always so colorful," she Dobbs' friends include Miss Rodeo Texas Lacy Billingsley and Gail Woerner, author of "Fearless Funny Men, the History of the Rodeo Clown," who are expected to make an appearance at the library during rodeo week, June 14-19.

The five-week summer reading program is held in the mornings from 10 to 11, Monday through Thursday, in the children's room to promote reading. It is especially

From salesman to school board trustee to classroom teacher, Steve Osburn brings a variety of experience to his new position as principal at Elbow Elementary School.

"Elbow is a school that has been extremely, highly successful," said Osburn. "We want to build on that and try to improve if we can. One of the things that really appealed to me is the school's high standard of success."

Osburn is already familiar with Howard County.

He served as the Goliad Intermediate School assistant principal for the 2003-2004 academic year, his first experience with administrative duties.

"It's sad to leave Goliad," Osburn said. "Big Spring ISD had been very good to me and very supportive. The time I've been here in Big Spring is just invaluable."

But Osburn brings more than just 16 years of educational experience to the new job.

Auditions begin Sunday for local children's play

A dragon in the Little Red Ridding Hood story? Well, you haven't heard grandma's version yet.

On Sunday, area children are invited to take their turn at storytelling.

Auditions for the Howard College children's play "Grandma's Bedtime Story" will be held at 2:30 p.m. in the practical arts building.

"It's a simple play," said director Clay Grizzle. "The kids ask Grandma to tell them a story like when their mom and dad were little. She can't remember the story but tries to tell it and just messes up."

The auditions will be conducted in a relaxed atmosphere, Grizzle said, to cast around 20 actors, ages nine through 12, for the 40-minute play.

"They won't have to read anything, they need to be prepared to tell a story," Grizzle said.

Rehearsals will begin Wednesday, June 9, and continue from 9:30 a.m. to noon Monday through Thursday, concluding on Monday, June 28. Public performances will be held at 7 p.m. June 28-29 in the practical arts building.

"The rehearsals will have a 'camp' atmosphere with outdoor games, activities and set painting," he said. "The parts are not big but they are all about equal and it's a fun show."

Grizzle is accepting parent volunteers to help with the rehearsals and the play.

"They don't have to know anything about theater, they just can give a helping hand," Grizzle said.

Propane trucks stolen in San Antonio READ

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two propane-delivery trucks were stolen from a gas company over the long holiday weekend, raising fears of what could happen if terrorists got hold of the explosive fuel.

Police Chief Albert Ortiz said Tuesday that his department does not suspect that terrorism was behind the fuel thefts. But officials said that since Sept. 11, such a possibility cannot be ignored.

"Four years ago, we probably would not be too concerned about this, San Antonio FBI agent Patrick Patterson said Wednesday on NBC's "Today." "It would be a major theft and handled like any other criminal investigation. Because of the nature of the day, we are very, very concerned about the whereabouts of these two trucks,"

One of the tankers carried about 3,000 gallons of propane, while the other held 2,600 gallons, police said.

Both trucks were taken from a parking lot owned by Ferrell Gas.

"Al-Qaida does a couple of things well — they make car bombs and truck bombs," Patterson said. "And they have used tankers in the past to carry out their terrorist acts, and that's what we are concerned about."

An FBI spokesman, Rene Salinas, said the market for propane in Mexico is strong and that the thieves could have been filling an order, mirroring a similar theft about nine months ago. A nationwide alert has been posted and law enforcement officials in Mexico also have been contacted, he said. Both the tanks and the cabs carry a "Ferrellgas" logo.

"We don't want to alarm anyone," Salinas told the San Antonio Express-News in Wednesday's online edition, "but we do want people to be on the lookout."

Also under investigation is the weekend theft of 15 gas canisters from a secured area owned by Methodist Healthcare System.

for school-age children.

"It they are not reading during the summer, they start losing those skills," McIntyre said. "This is a fun way to reinforce reading."

Registration continues through Friday at the library, 500 S. Main. Children must be registered by their parents in order to participate in any of the activities or the closing party.

Activities on Monday are open to all ages and include games, speakers and crafts.

MARKS (Mighty Awesome Reading Kids), children in second grade and older, meet Tuesdays while STARS (Sit Together and Read), children going into the first grade and younger, meet Wednesdays.

Topsy-turvy Day is held Thursdays for a limited number of participants. Activities for this day are designed for small groups and parents must register their child by Tuesday of each week.

Other activities include a Guess the Wonders of the World Village and Colorful Chapeau (hat) Contest. The hats will be displayed at the library and patrons will vote on their favorite.

"The public has until Friday to come by the library to register," McIntyre advised. "I would recommend if the child doesn't have a library card to take time when you register and get one. This way, the child can check out some of the variety of books we have on the shelves."

sisters, the father of three daughters and the grandfather of three granddaughters, Osburn may be uniquely prepared to take over supervision of the mostly female staff at Elbow.

"From all my experience, I've come to a perfect understanding of women," Osburn said with a laugh. "That is, do not try to understand them. It's a waste of time."

Education is a calling, Osburn said, but one he didn't find until later in life.

After graduating from Hardin-Simmons University, Osburn headed to the oil field for a successful career as a chemical salesman.

He worked his way to regional manager and even found time to serve as a trustee on the Wellman Independent School District board for six years. His elected office eventually led him down the path of a new career.

"It was back in the day with H. Ross Perot's education committee," he recalled. "I was at a statewide school board meeting. The state was trying to figure out how to refinance education as it is now today. A guy leaned over to me and said 'I don't care how much money they throw at education, the difference is always going to be the teacher in the classroom."

"It was like a light went off and I knew what I needed to do," he said.

Taking a serious pay cut and with three daughters still in public school, Osburn headed back to college to earn his teaching certificate from Texas Tech University.

During this time, he landed his first job at Southland where he worked on an emergency certificate as a teacher and coach. He eventually earned his master's degree from Sul Ross State University.

His time in the classroom enlightened his view on education.

"I had a real sense of how awesome a responsibility teachers have," Osburn said. "They are entrusted with these children and actually every day see them more than their parents for about nine months out of the year."

"One of the first things I did after being a school board member was to make apologies to a few teachers I was overly critical of," he admitted. "You don't realize what a teacher does every day until you've actually done it."

But his time on the other side of the board room has brought an appreciation of the decisions and responsibilities faced by trustees.

"I know what it's like to be sitting around the table as a school board member trying to make major financial and policy decisions," he said.

After 16 years, Osburn doesn't have any regrets on his career switch.

"My regrets are certainly from the financial end," he said, "that my family had to suffer a little bit. But as for the rewards received, being a teacher, a coach and administrator, I have no regrets at all. I'm proud to be an educator."

seniors are going to be unhappy with the new plan. However, he said it's certainly worth looking into when you're watching every dime.

"I think when a lot of seniors see what sort of savings they will get through the plan, they're going to be disappointed," he said. "It's not set up on a co-pay system where the customer pays a flat fee and the program picks up the rest."

"The government is currently working on a new plan that is supposed to come out in 2006 that will have more benefits. I don't know how they plan to fund it or how it will work. In the end, I think the government may have to force the drug manufacturers to do something specifically for seniors or begin competing with the prices coming out of other countries."

Some common misconceptions about the card is where, and how you get one, and what they cost the consumer.

"We offer one through HEB," said HEB Pharmacy Manager Neal Roberts. "The place or company that issues really doesn't matter, however. You can use the card anywhere they are accepted, and you can only get one card. It would be redundant to have more than one since it's all part of the same Medicare program."

Roberts said although HEB doesn't charge a processing fee for its version of the card, some companies do.

"Most of the time the companies issuing the card don't actually handle the applications," he said. "A computer company will handle it, and sometimes there is a processing fee. That fee can't go any higher than $30. I've seen them around the $15 to $30 mark. A lot of people think they will cost $100 to $200, but the government limits what can be charged to $30."

The cards are entirely voluntary: No senior, including those who already have prescription drug coverage or those who choose to stick with traditional Medicare, will be required to participate in this new program.

Roberts said there's another part of the program that can benefit low-income families, and perhaps make a larger dent in the growing gap between income and medication costs.

"It's called the Transition Assistance Credit," he explained. "These are funds that are available each year the program is in use until the new program goes into effect in 2006 and people get real coverage. It's a $600 credit that will pay for the prescriptions minus a 5 to 10 percent co-pay. The amount will be pro-rated for people who didn't sign up prior to the June 1 start-up date."

While the new drug program may be a disappointment to some, McLellan said there are other options that represent an "untapped resource" for seniors on Medicare.

"Both Pfizer and Lilly (drug manufacturers) offer a manufacturer's plan," said McLellan. "They have co-pays between $12 and $15 and the drug company pays the remainder of the cost to the pharmacy. The eligibility is based on income, $18,000 for a single person or $34,000 for those that are married, and you can't be on disability. It truly is an untapped resource for our seniors."

In the end, however, McLellan said the best way to get information on the different plans available is to talk to your local pharmacist.

"Your pharmacists can explain the plans in depth and help you decide which one is best for you," he said. "Most pharmacists have information on the Medicare plan, as well as the other programs out there."

All three Leonard's locations, including Leonard's Pharmacy, Clinic Pharmacy and Professional Pharmacy are set up to accept the Medicare discount card. HEB Pharmacy, Wal-Mart Pharmacy and Medicine Shoppe Pharmacy also accept the program.

Eligible Medicare beneficiaries get to choose a prescription drug discount card from companies that have been approved to provide it by the federal government. Application forms and price and product range comparisons are available by calling 800-633-2273 or visiting www.medicare.gov online.

OUR VIEWS

Let's all help make this 'Pops' the best we can

It's basically got a month to finish its work, so the Big Spring Fourth of July Foundation is redoubling its efforts in planning for this year's Pops in the Park concert and fireworks display at Comanche Trail Park.

And as always, the planners are soliciting the community for its help.

The concert and fireworks show carries a price tag in the neighborhood of $30,000 — money that comes from donations and sponsorships provided by local businesses and individuals. And to date, only about a third of that amount has been raised.

Heading into its seventh year, Pops in the Park is a tradition — one the entire community looks forward to, as do those living in other communities.

That figures to be especially true this year, since Midland will not be holding its annual July 4 concert and fireworks show.

Foundation members are still in the process of contacting previous donors, as well as soliciting contributions from new sources, seeking donations that make it possible for the organizing committee to open the gates for all comers free of charge.

Presenters of the event this year will include the Big Spring Herald, Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, the city of Big Spring and KBST — each providing donations of $5,000 or more in funding or in-kind services.

For those unable to serve as "Presenters," the committee is also seeking support at different levels — "Patrons" that donate $3,000 or more; "Sponsors" donating $1,000 or more; and "Friends" that provide $100 or more.

There are many others who contribute in smaller amounts, however, and all are important.

We here at the Herald are proud to be a part of such a spectacular event and want to encourage others in the community to do the same. Help us make sure Big Spring can keep celebrating our nation's birthday in impressive fashion.

To make donations, contact the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce at 263-7641 or mail them to the chamber office at P.O. Box 1391, Big Spring 79721-1391. Remember, every dollar helps.

A SMALL PRAYER

by K. Rae Anderson

Dear Lord, may our hectic days become still and quiet as we praise and glorify you in our hearts and minds. Amen

Monterrey Days key to learning Spanish

Junior year. Baylor University. Spring quarter.

I am in my second year of French. My roommate, Dick Kendall, was taking Spanish. One day his Spanish teacher, Mrs. Creasey, told her class about summer school at Monterrey Tec in Monterrey, Mexico. We decided to go.

TUMBLEWEED SMITH

The first six weeks of summer I spent in a Spanish class at TCU in my hometown of Fort Worth. The French background helped me immensely in learning Spanish.

We traveled in my Studebaker Starlight coupe, arriving in Monterrey on a Sunday night. We checked into the Ancira hotel, just across from the Plaza Saragosa. We took part in the Sunday night ritual and joined young people on the plaza. Boys walked around the plaza in one direction, facing the girls who walked in the opposite direction.

I saw a familiar face. It was a girl in my Spanish class at TCU. She lived in Monterrey. We visited for awhile and then she invited us to her house to meet her family. We followed her there and the rest of the evening we spoke nothing but Spanish. By the time we got back to the hotel, we were exhausted but proud. We had a glorious night and had used our Spanish.

The next morning, we asked around and found out where students could rent a room with meals. Although there were groups of students from the same colleges or universities staying in dorms, we didn't want to be identified with a group. We wanted to stay off campus with a family and learn Spanish.

We found a room in a house at 514 Hidalgo Street, just a block away from La Purisima, a Catholic Church with modern architecture. When we went to the college to enroll, we gave the address on Hidalgo street as our home address and saved a hefty percent of the tuition.

The Rodriguez family had rented rooms to students for years. Along with Dick and me, there were other boarders: Carlos, Jesus and an ex-sailor named Bill. Also in the house were Bertha, Rosa, Alba Nellie and Cheli, daughters and nieces of the mamacita, whose husband had passed on.

We had a party every night on the patio. The first few nights were spent learning words. Carlos and Jesus would point to the wall, the floor, the ceiling, the light bulb, the fan, the bushes and tell us the names in Spanish.

We became conversational quickly. Living in a house with a family is the best way to learn a language and a culture. Although we traveled throughout Mexico every weekend, we learned the most about the country on the patio, sitting and talking. And dancing. Rosa taught ballet, but she loved Cha Cha Cha and the male students in the house were willing partners.

We hardly spoke English. Almost every utterance was in Spanish. If we wanted a shirt washed, we had to use Spanish. If we wanted something different for breakfast, our request had to be in Spanish.

When Dick and I arrived at Nuevo Laredo on the way back home, we went into a store and the guy behind the counter spoke to us in English. We exchanged looks of disappointment. Our summer of fun was over.

Just as long as you say you really care

It must be an election year. Ten years ago, when he wasn't running for president, Sen. John F. Kerry, D-Mass., mused about the value of raising the tax on gasoline by 50 cents a gallon (in 1994 dollars). Now, Kerry has hit the road to campaign for cheaper gas prices and to accuse President Bush of not lifting a finger to lower prices at the pump.

DEBRA SAUNDERS

The Sierra Club, which endorsed Kerry for president, is on board with the idea of cheaper gas prices, too. What gives? I asked Sierra Club spokesman Dan Becker (who drives a hybrid car): Don't you guys still lust after high-priced fuel?

I say this because the environmentalists have long advocated steep levies on gasoline to discourage driving. In 1998, energy officials in the Clinton administration figured that meeting the greenhouse-gas-reduction goals in their beloved Kyoto global warming treaty would require a 50 percent spike in gas prices.

As American Enterprise Institute fellow Steve Hayward put it, "If you hook an environmentalist to a lie detector, he'll tell you our gasoline is too cheap and that we ought to have European-style taxes. But whenever the marketplace raises the price, they scream bloody murder."

Judging by Becker's answer, however, it seems that those days are gone. Sure, Becker said, he would like to see higher gas taxes, but it will never happen. "We'd be happy to meet with all the other advocates for a higher gas tax in a phone booth somewhere," he said.

Besides, he added, "We've seen 50 percent increases in gas prices over the past few years with no improvement in mass-transit ridership, increased carpooling or a reduction in driving distances. I don't think there's price elasticity" in gasoline.

I've thought as much for years. People commute in cars not only because gasoline is still cheap — as The New York Times reported, in 1981, gasoline cost almost $3 per gallon in current dollars — but because cars generally are more convenient than mass transit. And time is money. It is a good day when enviros finally recognize that social engineering schemes to get people out of their cars won't work.

Becker argued: If you can't change people, you can change cars. He approves of Kerry's support for new rules that would require carmakers to boost sedan fuel efficiency to 36 miles per gallon by 2015. Today's mandate: 27.5 mpg.

I like the idea, too. It's incremental and would allow Detroit to reduce auto pollution as technologies improve. It doesn't try to force consumers to make choices they won't make. It will boost the price of cars, but it also will result in cleaner air.

Bush and the GOP should sign on, but they won't. They're not going to do anything to endanger the Big Three's bottom line.

But here's what I don't like about Kerry's cheap-gas joy ride:

Last week, The New York Times rightly editorialized against Democrats who were calling on Bush to dump the Strategic Petroleum Reserve as a gimmick to lower gas prices. Selling off the reserve wouldn't dent prices significantly, and it defeats the purpose of the reserve. The editorial noted that "some reservoir of shame" had kept Kerry off the dump-the-oil chorus. By this week, that reservoir was empty. Kerry took the low road, calling for the sale of the reserves, even when he must know it is the wrong thing to do.

Kerry also has pledged to budget

$10 billion over 10 years to help Detroit manufacture more fuel-efficient cars. Becker says he can accept such a plan, if a Kerry White House requires recipients to produce cars with better gas mileage.

But there's no need for Kerry's corporate welfare, just as there is no need for Bush to grease Detroit with funds for the fabled Freedom Car (as I wrote when the program was unveiled). President Clinton had a similar program, and what were the results? Honda and Toyota introduced breakthrough hybrid-electric cars — without U.S. taxpayer dollars.

Kerry said he cares about energy independence, but he opposes drilling the Arctic National Wildlife Reserve.

Worst of all: According to the Boston Herald, la famille Kerry owns eight cars (six of them SUVs), a motorcycle, two powerboats and a Gulfstream II jet. Kerry nonetheless told reporters last month that he doesn't own an SUV. ("The family has it; I don't have it.")

Kerry says he can sell himself better on energy issues to European leaders. But how can he preach conservation anywhere from the helm of such a fleet?

In a sense, Kerry's plan is the perfect California energy plan: It tells voters they can bash Bush for not doing enough to stop global warming and still drive their SUVs. Californians can demand cheap gas but oppose new oil drilling. Just as long as you say you really, really care about the environment.

Library news

From police humor to Dr. Phil to the Kennedys and the Green Mile

Library offers news books for every readers' interest

P.J. Tracey's second book "Live Bait" (M TR A P) is a concoction of police procedures that can be cherished for its dead-on cop humor and cop banter, as well as for the intricate plot.

HOLLIS MCCRIGHT

"Homicide is dead," laments a Minneapolis homicide detective. No bodies on the ground for months, only cold cases to keep the homicide guys busy. Then boom!

A boon for Minneapolis detectives Leo Magozzi and Gino Rolseth — two possible murders in one spring day.

Both of the deceased are in their 80s; both live near each other. The cases are satisfyingly tricky and interconnected in ways you don't expect.

If police procedure can be both disturbing and fun-filled, this is it.

Are you questioning your faith? Dr. Timothy Johnson, physician and journalist, has written an account of his journey of faith in "Finding God in the Questions" (230 JOH T). With a keen mind, he investigates the plausibility of God's existence and explores the significance of his son, Jesus.

In plain and simple language, Johnson explains what he believes and why. Johnson is the medical commentator for ABC-TV. It was during the Battle at San Jacinto that "Remember the Alamo" became a famous battle cry. Stephen L. Moore describes that momentous battle in "Eighteen Minutes: The Battle of San Jacinto and the Texas Independence Campaign" (976.403 MOO S). The book follows Sam Houston as he assumes command after the Alamo to lead them to victory at San Jacinto.

The battle and aftermath is covered in great detail, along with some controversial revelations that I was not aware of. This is a comprehensive view of how Texas independence was finally attained.

Dr. Phil's cook book is in: "The Ultimate Weight Solution Cookbook" (641.563 MCG P) reprises the "good" food you should eat and new ways to cook, although at first glance "Asian Tofu Stew" really does not sound very good.

How about a thriller to get you through these hot days? Listen to this — a mysterious coded manuscript, an Ivy League murder, and secrets dating from the Renaissance. These all collide in "The Rule of Four" (F CAL I) by Ian Caldwell and Dustin Thomason. I haven't read it, but it sounds kind of like "The DaVinci Code."

The library has also received the complete serial novel by Stephen King, "The Green Mile."

Look for it in the fiction section.

Not long ago, I watched Charlton Heston in the Michelangelo movie, "The Agony and the Ecstasy." If you remember, Pope Julius was always suspicious of the Florentines, those who lived in Florence. A new book has arrived that speaks of that city.

Alessandra Cecchi is only 15 when a painter from northern Europe arrives to paint frescoes in her father's chapel. Intoxicated by the young painter's expertise, Alexandra is caught between her parent's wishes and her heart.

"The Birth of Venus" by Sarah Dumant brings alive the history of Florence during the burgeoning of the Renaissance era. This is a good, historical novel for those of us who like them.

Ready to travel Texas? Check out the "Texas Parks and Campgrounds" (647.947 MIL G) by George Oxford Miller. This is just the ticket for all you campers, hikers, horseback riders, birders and just folks who like to commune with nature.

Features of each campground are described in detail and all in all, it is an excellent resource for the Texas camper.

What do Peggy Fleming, Brian Littrell, Mike Ditka, Kate Jackson, Tommy Lasorda and Victoria Gotti have in common? They suffer from the number one killer of adults, heart disease. "Taking on Heart Disease" (362.196 KIN L) by Larry King reveals how they triumphed over this disease and discloses how you can also beat the odds.

Offering hope and practical advice plus the latest advice from top cardiologists, this book gives specific tips on how to live with and/or prevent heart disease from killing you.

Another biography on John and Jackie Kennedy, "Grace and Power: The Private World of the Kennedy White House" (973.922 SMI S) by Sally Bedell Smith. This book has been mentioned on all the talk shows, newspapers, etc.

According to Booklist, it is another rehash of all that has gone before. But, if you are a Kennedy junkie, it is a very readable, entertaining and somewhat historical volume.

The Howard County Library is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday and is closed for the summer on Saturday. The internet/video room is closed from noon until 1 p.m. and closes one-half hour earlier than the library each day.

The library is located at 500 S. Main St. Our phone number is 264-2260. The Web site is www.howard-county.lib.tx.us; the catalog is on line; our email address is howard-countylibrary@hotmail.com.

Hollis McCright is the Howard County librarian.

Capriati takes out Serena, Venus falls to Myskina as well

By STEVEN WINE

AP Sports Writer

PARIS - By beating Serena Williams, Jennifer Capriati also conquered a few demons.

Capriati closed out a big match for a change Tuesday, advancing to the semifinals of the French Open and ousting longtime nemesis Williams 6-3, 2-6, 6-3.

As often happens in Grand Slam events, Capriati won the first set and went ahead in the third.

This time she hung onto the lead.

"I tried not to listen to those voices, you know, that sometimes come in my head — you know, the negative ones," she said.

Williams was joined on the sideline 28 minutes later by older sister Venus, who lost to Anastasia Myskina 6-3, 6-4. It was the first time the sisters lost in the same round of a tournament.

Capriati has three Grand Slam titles, including the 2001 French Open, but knows all about coming up short.

Six times in the past two years, she has been eliminated from a major event in three sets, often after leading.

And Capriati had lost seven consecutive times when Williams pushed her to three sets.

"I have to give myself credit for not, you know, just giving up," Capriati said. "You have to take it like a fighter."

With the Williams sisters eliminated, the seventh-seeded Capriati becomes the favorite in an upset-filled event.

The highest-seeded woman remaining is No. 6 Myskina, who advanced with steady play that lured Venus Williams into 43 unforced errors.

"We're going to pack our bags and leave," Venus said. "There's nothing left for us here anymore."

The back-to-back

defeats for the first family of women's tennis reinforced the notion that the sisters' best results might be in the past.

Venus and Serena combined to win eight of 11 Grand Slam titles through the Australian Open in 2003, but other players — including the champion to be crowned Saturday — will have won four of the past five major events.

"Now, of course, everybody believes at least that they can fight with them," Myskina said. But she cautioned that the sisters will be back.

"I mean, they were the best," she said. "They can be the best again. It's going to be little bit harder for them, because I think right now more players believe."

The lineup for Thursday is a mite hard to believe: Capriati vs. Myskina, and ninth-seeded Elena Dementieva against No. 14 Paola Suarez.

Myskina and Dementieva give Russia two women among the final four of a Grand Slam event for the first time since the Open era began in 1968.

Capriati said the Williams sisters were rusty following injury-related layoffs, which helped explain their absence from the semifinals.

The sisters weren't the only upset victims in the quarterfinals. Dementieva disappointed a partisan crowd by beating third-seeded Frenchwoman Amelie Mauresmo 6-4, 6-3.

There was one surprise on the men's side: No. 9 Tim Henman became the first Englishman in 41 years to reach the semifinals at Roland Garros by beating Juan Ignacio Chela 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

Henman's opponent Friday will be No. 3 Guillermo Coria.

Taurasi, Mercury push record to 3-1 after win over Swoopes, Comets

By MEL REISNER

AP Sports Writer

PHOENIX - Penny Taylor, Anna DeForge and reserve Shereka Wright scored 16 points apiece and the Phoenix Mercury set a franchise record with 11 3-pointers, beating the Houston Comets 73-63 Tuesday night.

The Mercury (3-1), who had the worst record in the WNBA last year and profited by drafting Diana Taurasi No. 1, moved into first in the Western Conference with their third straight win.

Taurasi had 13 points, six assists and five rebounds.

Tina Thompson had 19 points and Kedra Holland-Corn 15 for the Comets. But Sheryl Swoopes, averaging 15.8 points, didn't have a field goal until 13:51 remained and finished with six points.

Houston, 18-7 against the Mercury coming in, outrebounded Phoenix 28-23, but also committed 20 turnovers.

The Mercury made a WNBA season-high 11-of-20 3-pointers — topping the franchise record of 10 set at Orlando on June 21, 1999. They missed the last five after taking a 63-39 lead on Wright's 22-footer with 13:26 left to play.

The Mercury went up 64-39 when Houston coach Van Chancellor was called for a technical foul and DeForge connected 45 seconds later.

Phoenix had eight 3-pointers in the first half.

Taurasi made two in 42 seconds late in the half, and DeForge sank a 23-foot buzzer-beater to send the Mercury to a 40-31 lead.

The Mercury missed their first eight shots to start, but got back in it with a 14-4 run that featured 3-pointers by DeForge, Taurasi, Taylor and Wright. Wright's put Phoenix up 24-17 with 5:37 to go.

The Comets held one-point leads twice before Wright's second 3-point put Phoenix ahead, 31-29, with 1:47 to play.

Oral spelling bee competition starts strong

WASHINGTON (AP) - As the first speller on stage, Laura Brown had to take on "laloplegia," the word meaning paralysis of the muscles involved in speech.

She got it right in about 10 seconds. Then the 12-year-old from Birmingham, Ala., gave up center stage to Irene Park, 14, of Anchorage, Alaska, who was not derailed by her word either: "derailleur," a device for shifting gears on a bike.

The oral competition of the 77th Scripps National Spelling Bee got off to a fast start Wednesday as 16 of the first 20 children offered correct spellings.

A total of 265 spellers are competing for a grand-prize package of $17,000 in cash and other prizes, including $12,000 and an engraved cup from the bee itself.

No speller was immediately eliminated for missing a word on stage during the first oral round it.

BY JOYCE JILLSON
The full moon in Sagittarius is a time to search, reach and discover.

Joyce Jillson

You could find a world right outside your door you never would have known about had you not asked. One discipline informs another — gardening and raising children, for example. Venus and Pluto are in opposition, too, and relationships come with their share of power struggles.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Once you decide what you stand for, it can't help but emanate from you — you don't have to say a word, and the people around you will know what you're about. Of course, what you do say brings a more detailed understanding.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Making money has to do with not only whom you know but how you utilize those contacts. What good is a database of people if you're not communicating with them in some way on a regular basis? Consistency counts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). No goal can be reached without sacrifice. And would you really want it any other way? When it costs a lot, we value it more! For singles, dating issues come to the forefront. Social life improves when you feel better about yourself.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). What's wrong with being methodical about love? The alternative is to accept what happens passively. Why not get into the driver's seat in a relationship? Tonight, read up on how others have honed their romantic skills.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Issues of identity continue to plague you. Those who tell you to "be yourself" have no idea how diverse you are. Ask yourself what you'd be doing if you didn't care a lick about fitting in. The answer could be astonishing to you!

VRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Muscles only grow stronger when they are worked to fatigue, and the tiny fibers rip and scar, forming big, powerful new tissue that can be utilized to do fantastic tasks. Today's pitfalls are part of your glorious story.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Emotions are flowing, changing, pulling your heartstrings and pushing you to do more in the way of self-expression. There's a youthful energy at your disposal. Pisces and Virgo people are lucky for your love life.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You can love your job and still feel the need to stretch professionally. You'll find a way to do both. Don't be afraid to show your smarts. You are luckier when you don't care anymore about security.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). The goals you write down are likely to be met, especially personal postulates regarding love. This afternoon, get out there, and give your adoring fans what they have been waiting for.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Volatile emotions are to be expected. The most even tempered among you could experience ecstasy, jealousy, agony and bliss in the course of one day! Take the lesson; learn to be flexible.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). The excitement of attraction is in the air. For couples, it's a good time to renew love. This is when you should be building emotional bridges. Loved ones are willing to do anything for you if you ask nicely.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). There are more possibilities to make money outside of your current job. You're in awe of people in a certain profession — a clue you'd do well in that business. Overbearing family members have something valuable to contribute.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Brooke Shields has a 1-year-old baby, and her career has seen changes that reflect her new lifestyle as a mom. She's the voice of Miss Spider on the popular children's series "Miss Spider's Sunny Patch Kids." Gemini like Shields are happy just as long as they've got a million things to do. If you ask a Gemini to list his or her hobbies, you'd better have reams of paper on hand for him or her to fill.

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: I have been married to "Larry" for 14 years, and we have an 11-year-old son who requires a lot of patience and extra help with homework.

Larry does no cleaning, cooking, laundry or homework, doesn't take care of the bills, do our taxes, repair anything around the house or even take in the dry cleaning. He will vacuum once a week and take out the trash. Meanwhile, I buy all his clothes, shoes and undergarments, and take care of everything he won't.

I make more money than Larry and often work more hours, including nights and weekends. I am exhausted and falling apart from stress. Our sex life is nonexistent, because I resent him so badly I can't stand the thought of him touching me. I feel I have given so much all day that I just can't give any more. I am burned out. I want off the pedestal. I want someone to take care of ME.

I tried marriage counseling and had to drag Larry kicking and screaming. Although it helped for about a month, the same old Larry crept back in no time. I am now in counseling alone.

If Larry doesn't get the picture soon, I may have a nervous breakdown. He's becoming verbally abusive about my "attitude," and I'm not sure how much longer I can stay in this marriage. I can support myself financially, but I truly love my husband. How can I make Larry realize he is losing me? — Hurting in North Carolina

Dear N.C.: Can you afford to hire some extra housecleaning help? What about eating takeout once or twice a week? Since you both work outside the home, the entire burden of running the house should not fall on your shoulders. If Larry is unwilling to do his share, you ought to look for outside assistance. Also, your son is old enough to help with the cleaning and laundry, so insist on it.

Meanwhile, stop catering to Larry. Let him buy his own clothes and get them to the cleaners. Do as much as you are comfortable with, and let the rest go. If the house is a mess, too bad. If dinner consists of scrambled eggs, tough luck. If Larry doesn't like it, let him do the cooking and cleaning, or agree to go back to counseling.

Dear Annie: I have become addicted to casino gambling, and have accumulated $15,000 in credit-card debt. I have tried my best to stay away from the casinos, and have gone as long as three weeks, but then I get desperate to return. After my last big loss, I thought about suicide.

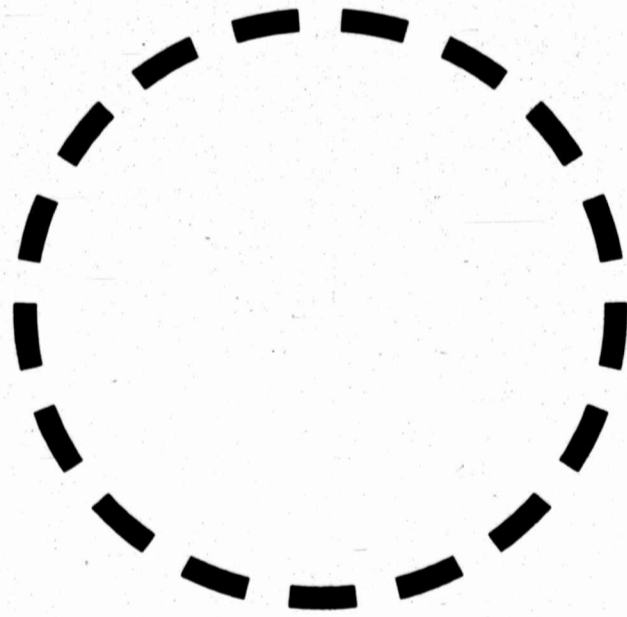

I think it would help if I had someone to talk to when I get the urge. If you know of any help in my area, please let me know. — Salina, Kan.

Dear Salina: Look in your phone book for Gamblers Anonymous, or contact their main office at Gamblers Anonymous, P.O. Box 17173, Los Angeles, CA 90017 (gamblersanonymous.org). When we checked, the Web site said there is a meeting in Salina on Thursday. Please go.

Dear Annie: I grew up with the understanding that it is illegal for commercials to be broadcast any louder than regular programming. Have I been wrongly informed all these years? It seems to me that the commercials are blasting my ears off. I would be interested in learning the truth. — Tired of Muting in South Dakota

Dear S.D.: The FCC does not regulate the volume for TV shows or commercials. Most programs use a range of sound, meaning romantic dialogue is soft and explosions are loud. Commercials often are broadcast at the louder end of that spectrum, in the hope that the viewer will wake up and pay attention. So, yes, they tend to seem more deafening than the programs. If you feel that specific commercials are overly loud, complain to your local station.

Don't you wish your advertising could stop consumers that effectively? Let's face it, most of the time it gets lost in the shuffle. It takes a certain ingenuity to stand out in a crowd. You've got to be provocative. Unpredictable. A little smarter than the next guy. And you've got to have a real feel for the medium you're working in. We put those talents to work for our advertisers everyday...and at no extra cost. It works for them. And, you'll have to admit, it just worked for you!
