Council approves tax rate, increase in water rates

By THOMAS JENKINS

Staff Writer

The Big Spring City Council passed final reading of its tax rate Tuesday evening, in addition to putting its final stamp of approval on rate increases for municipal water customers

The council passed final reading of the tax rate, which is set at 71.63 cents per $100 valuation, the same rate adopted in 2004. The vote, which was of public hearings on the tax McEwen. "But if you have the rate which drew no comment from area taxpayers.

A static tax rate should mean no increases to area taxpayers that didn't see an increase in the value of their property this year, according to Mayor Russ McEwen.

"There are going to be some people that have appraised values that are higher than they unanimous, comes after a pair pay somewhat more," said city by an amount slightly same appraised value, you're going to pay exactly the same amount."

The council also gave final approval of increases in residential and commercial water rates, passing on a 9 percent increase in the city's cost from the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

CRMWD is expected to more than $200,000 for the next fiscal year.

According to City Finance Director Peggy Walker, all city customers will incur a 12-cent increase in the consumption rate, increasing from $2.25 to $2.47 per 1,000 gallons of water.

The average city water customer uses approximately 8,000 gallons per month, according to city officials, and will loosely were last year and will have to increase the cost of water to the translate into a 96-cent increase See COUNCIL, Page 3A in their monthly bill.

The council also approved final reading of a $5 increase in commercial customers' base rate, plus an additional 50-cent hike on consumption rates. That brings the base rate for commercial customers to $16.75 and the consumption rate to $1.70. Together, the fees for 770 commercial accounts would bring in an additional $233,700.

Coahoma's group focus on unsightly properties

COAHOMA Residents here have decided it is more than high time to do something about unsightly properties.

Members of the Rural Community College Initiative Program here identified trashy and dilapidated lots as one of this community's major problems and began taking steps to address the problem during their meeting Tuesday night at the community center.

Dealing with unsightly or substandard lots has been a constant headache for Coahoma residents in the past due to of the absence of zoning standards and the lack of any effective cleanup action.

"If I lived next to some of the places around here, I'd move," said Warren Wallace. "There are some places here that are nice, there's other places that just make me sick.

But Coahoma Mayor Bill Read and Howard County Justice of the Peace Quail Dobbs promised to begin bringing governmental pressure to bear on the owners of the lots in question.

On top of that, private cleanup efforts will begin

About 200 expected for Webb reunion

By STEVE REAGAN

Staff Writer

Close to 200 people are expected to attend the second Webb Air Force Base Reunion, which will be held Friday though Sunday in Big Spring.

"We should have about 175 people. I think that's probably going to be a good number," said event organizer Jan Foresyth. "We've been getting a lot of phone calls from people changing their minds and deciding to come after all."

A few last-minute changes have been made, Foresyth said.

A Friday evening dinner, originally scheduled for Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, has been moved to the Dora Roberts Community Center at Comanche Trail Park.

Also, the Saturday evening dinner, scheduled for the coliseum, will be held at the Big Spring Senior Citizens Center, formerly the Webb AFB Officer's Club.

"We decided to move the Saturday dinner to the old officer's club, because so many people have fond memories of that place," Foresyth said.

The reunion kicks off Friday with registration and a community luncheon at the Hangar 25 Air Museum. The luncheon, which is free to the public, will feature an aerobatic display by Jan Colmer, who will perform later in the week at the Commemorative Air Force Airsho in Midland.

Reunion attendees will spend Saturday at the Midland air show, then return to Big Spring Saturday evening for the dinner at the former "O-Club."

The last scheduled reunion event will be a send-off breakfast at Hangar 25 at 8:30 a.m. Sunday, Foresyth said.

Commissioners fill unexpired Prec. 1 constable's term appointing Holden

By STEVE REAGAN

Staff Writer

Howard County commissioners appointed a 20-year veteran of law enforcement to one of the county's constable positions during their regular meeting Monday morning. Bill Holden, who served as police chief in Cottonwood and with other police departments across Texas during his career, will fill the unexpired term of Pct. 1 Constable Boyce Hale, ou know you have a hit when people want more right away. That was obviously the case for the Webb Air Force Base Reunion and that's why the second reunion is scheduled this weekend.

OUR VIEWS

Webb Reunion promises to be another success

The first Webb Reunion was held in 2002, and organizers said at the time they would plan reunions every five years in the future. But that was before they began getting calls from those who attended and say they can't wait for another chance to get together, as well as from those who missed out on the opportunity but don't plan on doing so in the future.

The keynote speaker for the reunion will be retired Air Force Maj. Gen. David Pederson, who was a graduate of the Webb flight training program, who flew numerous types of aircraft during his active career. He retired from the Air Force in 1992.

Perhaps one of the big draws for the reunion will be the arrival of an AT-11, the plane that trainees used at the base when it was the Army Air Corps' Bombardier School during World War II.

Everyone that was employed, stationed or had anything to do with Webb Air Force Base is invited to the reunion and registration begins Friday morning at the Hangar 25 Air Museum.

At noon an aerobatics display is scheduled featuring Jan Colmer, who will be among the featured performers during the Confederate Air Force Airsho in Midland. Following lunch, attendees will have lunch and the rest of the afternoon will be a casual time of getting acquainted with old friends.

Friday evening's activities are scheduled at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum where dinner will be catered by La Posada, followed by casino games that were a hit with the crowd during the first reunion.

On Saturday the group will attend the CAF Airsho in Midland, spending the entire day there.

And on Sunday, attendees will wrap things up with a somewhat informal day of spending time with old and new friends.

For more information on the reunion, contact Co. Jim Little at 264-2362.

We here at the Herald look forward to the reunion and laud the volunteers headed by Little and Jan Forsythe who have put together what will clearly be another big success.

And like the rest of our community, we want to welcome attendees home and hope they have a wonderful time back here in Big Spring.

A SMALL PRAYER

by K. Rae Anderson

Amen

When we are confused by circumstances, Lord, may we go to You in prayer.

Brown Ranch has hummingbirds

he Hummer House is on Dan Brown's ranch at Christoval. It's been in his family since 1927. Hummingbirds have been fed there for 44 years, resulting in the largest concentration of humming-binds in the state. Dan is considered an expert on hummingbirds and gives lectures on their migrating and nesting habits.

From April until August, Dan feeds the hummers four gallons of sugar water a day with a mixture of one cup of sugar to three cups of water (that nearly resembles the ing the birds. He feeds other types of birds, too. When we were there we saw several painted buntings, a striking creature with bright green, yellow and pink feathers. Dan puts about 10 pounds of white millet a day for the buntings and cardi-sugar content in nectar). Last year

he used 825 pounds of sugar feed-

He has an observation room with a wall of windows for viewing the hummingbirds. Large feeders spaced six feet apart are just outside the windows. His ranch is open to the public and has some guest rooms for overnight visitors. The observation room and cottages are in a pecan and oak thicket, which is home to turkey and deer. Dan keeps them coming around by feeding them 45 tons of corn a year.

"It's a work of love and enjoyment and it's never ending," says Dan. "This all got started 44 years ago with one hummingbird feeder. That year ended with six feeders and it's grown every year since then."

He says the number of birds has increased every year except one when a hailstorm destroyed about 50 percent of the population in 10 minutes.

He built his first cottage in 1995. then built the observation room. He's in the process of building two more guest rooms - one for families and one for anniversaries or honeymoons. Reservations are recommended. Call 325 255-2254. Adults pay $5 to get in the observation room. Children are admitted free of charge.

"I'm nearly booked solid all summer and nearly so in the wintertime," he said. "A lot of people want to see the deer and the turkey apart from the hummingbirds but we'll have a lot of other birds coming in that stay here all winter."

Dan works with the parks and wildlife department on a birdbanding program. "We've banded more than 21,000 birds here in the last 10 years representing 123 species. We have banded more than 2,000 painted buntings at this location.'

He has banded six species of hummingbirds. "The Ruby Throats come in the spring, but they don't stay long," he noted. "This is the largest feeding and nesting site of Black Chins in Texas. We do have Calliope and Rufus, which stay with me all winter."

Dan says most people think hummingbirds leave in the fall, but that's not so.

"Keep a feeder up and keep it fresh and you'll have some birds in the wintertime," he says.

New poster boy for immigrant bashers hen I first saw U.S. Rep. Tom Tancredo throwing a xenophobic tantrum on television, I thought maybe President Bush had finally come to his sens-

Tancredo, R-Colo., who is anxious to lead the immigrantbashing movement, was predicting that Bush was about to introduce immigration reform that he found unaccertable. From Tanciedo's warped perspective, the White House is working a new plan that is even more liberal than the one the president originally proposed in January of 2004.

He said it resembles the McCain-Kennedy bill. And since that measure creates a path for illegal immigrants to pay a fine and eventually become legal permanent residents, I thought the president was finally heeding the advice of those who told him that without creating that path to legal ization, his initial plan would fail.

But no such luck. Tancredo was just blowing hot hair.

Now that the White House is finally revealing some details of Bush's plan in meetings with some lawmakers, it is becoming evident that the president is insisting on allowing guest workers to remain here only on a temporary basis, for up to six years.

While that may be fine for immigrants who are still abroad, it offers little incentive for the 11 million already living here illegally. If they have already planted roots here — if they are raising U.S.-born children and settled in jobs and homes here — why should they sign up for a program that only guarantees that they will have to leave?

Who wants to go on six-year ride, knowing that they will only find a dead end?

From the perspective of immigrant advocates, this is what makes the president's plan unacceptable. They say that few illegal immigrants would sign up for such a program, and the immigration problem would remain unresolved.

But from Tancredo's viewpoint, the president is giving away the homeland. Bush's proposal would also include more security at the borders and more sanctions against employers who hire illegal immigrants, but that's not enough for Tancredo. He is the chairman of the 90-member House Immigration Reform Caucus and he is opposed to any guest worker program, even when they offer no path to legalization.

He is also the leading candidate to undermine the Bush Administration's efforts to reach out to Latino voters. In fact, Tancredo is threatening to run for president in 2008 just to give a voice to anti-immigrant forces.

Of course Democrats will welcome Tancredo's candidacy just like they did Pat Buchanan's in the past — because it will enable them to win the Latino vote as they usually do — not by doing anything for Latinos, but simply by default.

Yet Tancredo and others like him are getting to the president. I guess they figure that if they keep calling the president's plan amnesty, despite intentions to fine illegal immigrants who come forward; if they keep saying any form of legalization, even temporary, is "rewarding lawbreakers;" if they keep pushing to the extreme right, the president won't dare reach to the middle.

And it's working. By shouting against any guest worker program, they are keeping the White House from moderating its stance to provide a path to legalization.

From what is leaking out of the White House meetings, there is very little evidence that the presidifferent than his original. His guest worker program still has a dead end, and thus it is still likely to be a flop. There is even a more draconian proposal in Congress, one that would allow illegal immigrants to join the dead-end guest workers program, but only if they go back to their homelands to apply from there.

And yes, of course, Tancredo has said he would not even agree to that until the borders are completely secure - which is like saying never

He charges that the impending Capitol Hill debate over immigration will be iterribly divisive for the Republican Party, and yet he is the one who is leading the dividers.

If the more moderate wing of the Republican Party doesn't find an antidote for Tancredo's chronic xenophobia; if they let him become the poster boy for immigrant bashers; if they don't muzzle his mean-spited mouth, the Democrats won't even have to campaign among Latinos.

In fact, Tancredo could become another Pete Wilson, the former California Republican governor who was voted out of office as payback for an immigrant-bashing campaign.

Unfortunately, Latinos don't act, they react. Unless some politician really rattles their lives, they are apathetic about participating in the electoral process. But when someone like Wilson or Tancredo comes along, look out!

Perhaps that's what we need, an arrogant bigot like Tancredo motivating the Latino masses to empower themselves and to boot GOP bashers out of office.

Port Arthur suffers under slow arrival of aid

By ABE LEVY

Associated Press Writer

PORT ARTHUR — With promises of state and federal relief unanswered four days after Hurricane Rita, residents of this hard-hit Gulf Coast community blame bureaucracy as they cope without power, fuel, water or sew-

Requests for paperwork greet pleas for state and federal relief, said John Owens, the city's emergency management coordinator and deputy police chief. "How the hell can we get paperwork to you when we don't have electricity?" he Tuesday.

Food, gas and generator donations from private industries, not the government, allowed the city to sustain itself, Owens said. Two tanks of diesel fuel and gas for emergency vehicles represent the only federal provisions, supplies that lasted six hours, he said.

"We have been living like cavemen, sleeping in cars, doing bodily functions outside," he said. "And meanwhile we're the victims, and we have families here."

Mayor Oscar Ortiz, his

asked home destroyed by fire after the hurricane, said "we've had 101 promises" for aid, "but it's all bureaucracy.'

> Ortiz and other officials in this oil-reliant town of 57,000 — located about 10 miles northwest of where Rita came ashore early Saturday — gathered at a Holiday Inn that was converted to a command center. A dirty, torn U.S. flag found amid the hurricane debris was tacked to the wall.

The White House on Tuesday said President Bush extended complete federal funding for debris removal, emergency protective measures and direct federal assistance through Oct. 27.

Nederland City Manager Andre Wimer said "it's been a terribly frustrating four days' because of problems city officials have had getting help from FEMA.

"I can appreciate the difficulty in responding to a disaster that was this widespread but at the same time we certainly feel we've not received a level of service that was satisfactory," he said.

Brown blames 'dysfunctional Louisiana' for Katrina response

By LARA JAKES JORDAN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON combative Michael Brown blamed the Louisiana governor, the New Orleans mayor and even the Bush White House that appointed him for the dismal response to Hurricane Katrina in a fiery appearance Tuesday before Congress. In lawmakers response, alternately lambasted and mocked the former FEMA director.

House members' scorching treatment of Brown, in a hearing stretching nearly 6 1/2 hours, underscored how he has become an emblem of the deaths, lingering floods and stranded survivors after the Aug. 29 storm. Brown resigned Sept. 12 after being relieved of his onsite command of the Emergency Federal Management Agency's response effort three days earlier.

"I'm happy you left," said Rep. Christopher Shays, R-Conn. "Because that kind of, you know, look in the lights like a deer tells me that you weren't capable to do the job."

"You get an F-minus in my book," said Rep. Gene Taylor, D-Miss.

At several points, Brown turned red in the face and slapped the table in front of him.

"So I guess you want me to be the superhero, to step in there and take everyone out of New Orleans," Brown said.

"What I wanted you to do is do your job and coordinate," Shays retort-

Well aware of President Bush's sunken poll ratings, legislators of both parties tried to distance themselves from the federal preparations for Katrina and the storm's aftermath that together claimed the lives of more than 1,000 people in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

Brown acknowledged making mistakes during the storm and subsequent flooding that devastated the Gulf Coast. But he accused New Orleans Mayor Ray Nagin and Louisiana Gov. Kathleen Blanco, both Democrats, of fostering chaos and failing to order a mandatory evacuation more than a day before Katrina

"My biggest mistake was not recognizing by Saturday that Louisiana dysfunctional." Brown told a special panel set up by House Republican leaders to investigate the catastrophe. Most Democrats. seeking an independent investigation, staved away to protest what they called an unfair probe of the Republican administration by GOP lawmak-

"I very strongly personally regret that I was unable to persuade Governor Blanco and Mayor Nagin to sit down, get over their differences and work together," Brown said. "I just couldn't pull that off."

Brown also said he warned Bush, White House chief of staff Andrew Card and deputy chief of staff Joe Hagin that "this is going to be a bad one" in e-mails and phone conversations leading up to the storm. Under pointed questioning, he said some needs outlined to the White House, Pentagon and Homeland Security Department were not answered in "the timeline that we requested."

Blanco vehemently denied that she waited until the eve of the storm to order an evacuation of New Orleans. She said her order came on the morning of Aug. 27 — two days before the storm resulting in 1.3 million people evacuating the

"Such falsehoods and misleading statements, made under oath before Congress, are shocking," Blanco said in a statement.

In New Orleans, Nagin said that "it's too early to get into name-blame and all that stuff" but that "a FEMA director in Washington trying to deflect attention is unbelievable to me."

White House spokesman Scott McClellan urged Congress to undertake "a thorough investigation of what went wrong and what went right and look at lessons learned."

Brown, who remains on FEMA's payroll for two more weeks before he leaves his annual $148,000 he's entitled to his point post, rejected accusations of view, and I don't have that he was inexperienced anything to add." for the job he held for more than two years during which he oversaw 150 presidentially declared disasters. Before joining FEMA in 2001, he was an attorney, held local government posts and headed the International Arabian Horse Association.

"I know what I'm doing, and I think I do a pretty darn good job of it," he

He said FEMA coordinates and manages disaster relief, but the emergency first response is the job of state and local authorities. Brown also said the agency was stretched too thin to respond to a catastrophe of Katrina's size. "We were prepared but overwhelmed is the best way I can put it," he said.

Brown described FEMA as a politically powerless of Homeland Security, which he said had siphoned more than $77 million from his agency over the past three years. Additionally, he said Homeland Security FEMAbudget requests — including one for hurricane preparedness — before they were presented to Congress.

Former Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) director Michael Brown testifies before a special congressional panel investigating the agency's response to Hurricane Katrina, on Capitol Hill Tuesday.

Rep. Harold Rogers, R-Ky., who oversees House spending on homeland security operations, said Congress has approved spending levels for FEMA and other preparedness programs far above requests.

In Miami, Homeland Security Secretary Michael Chertoff told reporters that Brown "speaks for himself and demeanor mirrored his comments after being dismissed from overseeing the Katrina response. when he accused the media of making him a scapegoat and blamed local officials for the uncoordinated response.

He had been "just tired and misspoke" when a television interviewer appeared to be the first to tell him that there were desperate residents at the New Orleans Convention Center, and testified he had already learned the day before that people were flocking there.

No longer needing to maintain a cordial relationship with Congress, Brown didn't hesitate to punch back at lawmakers who questioned whether the government would learn from mistakes before the next disaster strikes.

"I know what death and destruction is and I know how much people suffer," Brown told Taylor. "And it breaks my heart. I pray for these people every night. So don't lecture me about knowing what disaster is like."

Yet Brown struck a conciliatory tone with Rep. Kay Granger, R-Texas, who chastised him for not seeking fiscal or oversight help from Congress before the storm.

"I don't know how you can sleep at night," Granger said. "You lost the battle."

Challenges do not simply involve a person expressing a view; rather it is an attempt to remove materials from the curriculum or library, thereby restricting the access of others.

The positive message of Banned Book Week, People Read "Free Freely," is that due to the commitment of librarians, teachers, parents, students and other concerned citizens, most challenges are unsuccessful and most materials are retained either in the library or school library.

Female suicide bomber kills six at Iraqi army recruitment center

By THOMAS WAGNER

Associated Press Writer

BAGHDAD, Iraq — A woman strapped with explosives blew herself up outside an Iraqi army recruiting center in a northern town Wednesday, killing at least six people and wounding 30 in the first known attack by a female suicide bomber in the gency. The attack in Tal Afar, where U.S. and Iraqi forces routed militants in a major offensive two weeks ago, demonstrated the difficulty of maintaining security in the towns in the large northwestern region stretching to the Syrian border, where insurgents are most active.

as a man in traditional point near the city of robes, was standing in line with applicants to join the Iraqi army at the first of three checkpoints outside the center when she detonated explosives hidden under her clothes and packed with metal balls, said Maj. Jamil Mohammed Sadr in Tal Afar.

It was the first known instance that a woman has carried out a suicide bombing in Iraq. In October 2003, a female bomber was caught trying to enter a government building in Baghdad before she could detonate her explosives.

The woman, disguised blew up a car at a check-Haditha, killing three American soldiers days before the April 2003 fall of Baghdad.

Sadr said all the dead wounded in Wednesday's attack were army recruits.

The blast occurred in Tal Afar, 95 miles east of the Syrian border, and it highlighted the difficulty of maintaining security in the large northwestern region stretching to the border, where insurgents are most active.

Most of the forces that participated in the offensive have withdrawn, although U.S. troops maintain a base and outposts in Tal Afar, 260 northwest of miles Baghdad.

"Due to the security vacuum after the withdrawal of (Iraqi) police commandos from Tal Afar, the terrorists came back again," said Abbas al-Bayati, a parliament member and an ethnic Turkman.

The blast was similar to an attack a day earlier in Bagouba, 35 miles northeast of Baghdad, where a man strapped with explosives blew himself up in a killing nine.

A U.S. soldier was killed Zargawi's

The deaths brought to 1,920 the number of U.S. troops who have died since the Iraq war began in 2003, according to an Associated Press count.

Soon after the Tal Afar offensive, Abu Musab al-Zarqawi, the Jordanianborn, Sunni Arab leader of the al-Qaida in Iraq insurgent group, declared all-out war on Irag's majority Shiites.

The coalition called Abu Azzam the mastermind of an escalation in suicide bombings that have killed nearly 700 people in Baghdad since April and said he was the financial controller for foreign fighters who entered Iraq to join the insurgency.

Al-Qaida in Iraq issued an Internet statement denying Abu Azzam was its deputy leader, calling him "one of al-Qaida's many soldiers" and "the leader of one its battalions operating Baghdad."

still win the title." The first two games were much different than the final two for Big Spring. They built strong leads in the first two games and then were just dominated from the start in the last two.

The first game was tied at 4-4 when Big Spring took over. Five straight points put the Lady Steers up 9-4 and then they pushed the lead to 10-5 on a kill from senior Raegan Ritchey. Big Spring maintained its five-point advantage midway through the game as junior setter Mallory Dunn delivered an ace. Then a Ritchey kill put the Lady Steers up six before a kill from senior Carmen Lewis and an ace from Ritchey pushed the advantage to seven.

Frenship fought until the end though, cutting its deficit to one at 19-18, 21-20 and 22-21 and then also trailed by just two on four other occasions before Big Spring closed the deal.

The two teams played even early on in the second game. The game was tied at 7-7 at one point, but then five straight points were won by Big Spring and they took a 12-7 lead off nice serving from senior Brenn Swinney, who served six straight points. The five straight points included two Swinney aces, a kill and a block from senior Krista Chesworth and a kill from freshman Shelbi Stewart.

Big Spring then grabbed onto a 21-17 lead following a Ritchey kill, but Frenship still wasn't out of it. In fact, the Lady Tigers scored the final eight points and won Game 3 25-21. Of the eight points scored by Frenship, two were scored off aces and six were scored off Big Spring errors.

'We have to stop thinking we have a match won and continue to fight," said McAden. "We could never get it back after losing Game 3."

Frenship's momentum at the end of Game 3 was carried into Game 4 as Big Spring was never in it. The Lady Steers scored the first point of the game off a Lewis kill and then were outscored 17-4 and quickly trailed 17-5. Three of Big Spring's (11-15) five points were scored on Frenship errors. The Lady Steers would go on to lose the game 25-10.

"We beat ourselves in Game 3, but they kicked us in the final two games," said McAden. "But, in my opinion there shouldn't even have been a Game 4 or 5."

The start of Game 5 wasn't much better for the home team as Big Spring trailed 5-0 early on. They couldn't recover after that despite a better effort. The

#4718 September 28 & October 5,

see the thing more vividly. As it stands now, your goal is hazy.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). If extremely simple organisms can develop into complex creatures, it may be possible that your team at work can tackle the impressively involved project at hand — with the right leadership, of course. That's where you come in.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Your are exposed to different schools of thought, but when it comes right down to it, the decision is yours and yours alone to make. A Pisces or a Cancer tries to drag you back to the past. But you've moved on, never to return.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). When you become overwhelmed, remember that the age of the universe is measured in billions, not thousands, of years. Sometimes it's best to calm down and wait it out. You have more time than you realize.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Enough with the shillyshallying. A decision must be made about your finances. If you don't have a relationship with a bank or other kind of lender, this is a fine time to start one. It takes money to make money.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). People who affect your work are being unreasonable, fanciful and not accountable to what's real. But try not to take it so literally. Some of the most effective theories are the ones that can't be supported by empirical evidence.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Most of the morning is spent cleaning up and putting the pieces of your life in order. This afternoon, you'll notice how more is that you start to even the smallest amount of power can go to someone's head. The only cool thing to do is laugh it off.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). The upside is that you're popular. The downside is that you have too many social obligations. When there's no one to save you (and actually no one else can really save you), you have to save yourself. It's not mean to say no.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Anything you do by yourself saves time. There's no one to argue with. But it's just no as fun. Team up, and expect things to go slow and be all the more delightful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). The riddles of everyday life intrigue you. You may never know the answers. but you're a more interesting person for having asked the question. Tonight, get out with your posse.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). It feels like you only get one chance to prove yourself, but it's not true. Life is just not cruel like that. There is an unlimited number of chances to get things right.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Some kind of performance is featured. You'd do well to treat the situation as you would a sport. Stretch first, and don't make the classic mistake of eating a heavy meal before "the game."

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: "I am looking for a new job again. Every other year, I'm looking for a new job. I can't seem to find one that makes me happy enough and pays enough to support myself. I've been very successful in the creative end of advertising for 18 years but just don't have luck with decent and fair employment. I'd like to become self-employed and create art for the home (off the computer or with my hands) but can't just quit working to do that. I'd be on the streets. Any advice? I was born July 10. 1959 at 12:51 p.m. in New Richmond, Wis."

With Jupiter in your second house (money) and the sun in your 10th house (career), you absolutely should work for yourself! You will be extremely successful and wonder why you didn't do this years ago. But I caution you to do some personal "clearing" work in your belief structure first. All this fear about being out on the streets is powerful enough to close you off to any potential success the stars have in store for you. Believe that you have something valuable to offer and deserve to be paid very well for it. What you have is not a lack of good work but a lack of faith — and that can be remedied! CELEBRITY FILES: Gwyneth Paltrow smartly took time off recently to focus on personal growth and her newly expanded family. Bucking the nanny trend, she did what many Libran mothers do savor the sweet "baby" moments that everyone says pass so quickly. This year, Paltrow will tiptoe back into acting with more challenging film roles. Instead of hiring an on-set nanny, baby Apple will likely be cared for by family. If you would like to write to Holiday Mathis, please go to www.creators.com and click on "Write the Author" on the Holiday Mathis page, or you may send her a postcard in the mail. Annie's Mailbox •

Dear Annie: I would like to respond to "Open to Suggestions in California." I am a teacher who also has experienced the "pee" problem and the domino effect.

I now allow my students to go to the restroom as soon as they enter my class. With the exception of special circumstances (I have a diabetic student), I do not allow students out of class once the lesson has begun.

Our students have only three minutes between classes, and I realize this is not enough time to hit the lockers as well as the restrooms. I would much rather spend a couple of extra minutes in the hall monitoring my students than be constantly interrupted in the classroom. I use the time to take the roll, sign excuses and other beginning-of-class business. I also allow the students who ride the bus home to go to the restroom the last five minutes of our last class. Everything flows much better now. — Theresa in Louisiana

Dear Theresa: Bless all the teachers who wrote with suggestions. Here's a small sampling:

From Modesto, Calif.: As a junior high teacher of 20 years, I inform students that they can have two potty passes per quarter. The time out of class is limited to two minutes. If they go over the allotted time, they will owe me the time after school.

New Mexico: The best thing our school has done is unlock the restrooms only during the three minutes between classes. This forces students to think about what is most important during that time and plan ahead. If a student is doing "the dance" in class, of course I let him go, but they know I'm going to lecture them on planning better use of their time between classes. You'd be amazed how well this works.

Shaker Heights, Ohio: In addition to a recess and lunch break, we had an emergency sign-up sheet that children could use twice a week — no questions asked.

Texas: I would allow one child at a time to leave the room IF he or she would agree to come in after school and make up the missed time. More times than not, the student would decide not to leave my class rather than have to give up free time.

East Coast: Each time a child uses the bathroom during class time, they must put their name on DICATE, INC.

KATHY MITCHELL MARCY SUGAR

five minutes of the next scheduled recess. If a child "forgets," the time doubles for the next recess.

the board and make up

Riverside, Calif.: I teach second grade. I walk the students to the restroom and drinking fountains at the beginning of their break. If there is time left, they may play on the playground. For the rest of the year, they are reminded to use the restroom before playing. At the end of each day, students who have been responsible are rewarded with a plastic nickel, which they can spend at a "store" once a trimester.

California: I'm a fifthgrade teacher. I give the students five laminated tickets. If they have to leave the classroom, they hand over one ticket. If they have to leave the room within 30 minutes after recess, they must put two tickets in the bucket. At the end of the week, students get back Lucky Bucks for each ticket they did not use. Needless to say, most students never use all their tickets.

Midwest: I teach fifth grade. If students use the bathroom during class time, they will need to pick up garbage from the school grounds after school.

Florida: I have a spiral notebook with a pencil and a clock beside it. Students are allowed to go once in the morning and once in the afternoon. Emergencies are dealt with on an individual basis. The best part of this procedure is that students do not raise their hands to ask to use the restroom. They sign out, and there is no disruption of class.

You say you didn't notice until it was too late to do anything about it?

Probably, if you aren't checking the Public Notices columns of this newspaper regularly.

Public Notices are required by state law to protect your rights and to help you function more effectively as a citizen. Access to information about what government agencies are doing is what makes the American the most powerful citizen in the world

The Public Notices give you access to information you need...about plans for major land use changes...about where roads will go...whose land will be condemned...how your tax dollars will be spent...about court actions that could be important to you, or just plain interesting.

Whether you know them as Public Notices or as "the legals", it pays you to check the Public Notice columns in this newspaper each issue. What you don't know might cost you!

Who we help:

We provide nursing solutions for individuals who, because of an illness, accident, or chronic condition need support and aftercare in their own home.

ADVANTAGE helps people with:

- Medication Monitoring
- ts IV's
- Wound Care
- Special Procedures
- FF COPD
- Diabetes
- Arthritis
- Heart Disease
- Alzheimer's Disease
- Psychiatric Disorders
- Recent Hospital Stays
- Physical Therapy
- Occupational Therapy
- Speech Therapy
- Skilled Nursing

Many of these problems make the everyday activities of life difficult without some level of support and care. Simple activities that you and I take for granted can be exhausting for someone with chronic illness.

There "IS" an Advantage

The next generation of utility trailer tailgate lift assists.

- Helps reduce the risk of devastating back injury to you and others.
- Takes 100% of the weight off most trailer tailgates.
- A two-sided tailgate assist; it attaches to both side rails. This prevents very heavy tailgates from warping or the hinges from deteriorating prematurely from uneven stresses.
- · Attaches to your trailer quickly and easily.
- · One-year Limited Warranty.
