GATESVILLE, TEXAS, FRIDAY, NOV. 3, 1933

NUMBER 46

HERE and THERE
By Joe Quinn

This is my lucky day, yours too, dear readers. We both get a rest and besides you get to read some real stuff by a good writer whose name I have promised to with hold, and here it is:

CUBA has temporarily passed from the front page of the daily tabloids. However, conditions are far from being settled in the revolution-ridden island. The Provisional government of Dr. Ramon Grau y San Martin should be recognized by the United States as an aid to order in the island republic. Cuba's government is entitled to recognition because it is able to maintain order and protect life, property and individual liberty.

PREMIER Mussolini of Italy, speaking on the eleventh anniversary of Fascism coming into power, urged 20,000 war veterans massed in the Piazza Venezia to make Italy the greatest nation on earth. We all agree that conditions are now decidedly changed from the Communist-infested bankrupt Italy of 1920. Thoughts of the glory and achievement of the Roman Empire, of which Italy was the nucleus, inspire Il Duce's followers to the magnificent task of obtaining supremacy on earth and "in the skies" for new-born Italia.

REAR Admiral Sinclair Gannon, U. S. Navy, speaking in a Navy Day address at the Dallas Chamber of Commerce-Lion's Club luncheon last week, stated that the American voice in international affairs had been seriously weakened by allowing the Navy to fall far below treaty strength. President Roosevelt has shown considerable foresight in authorizing the expenditure of $238,000,000 for new fighting ships. Due to the frenzy of war spirit now sweeping Japan and the failure of the Disarmament Conference, the American people will find that this sum has not been wasted in restoring the prestige of Uncle Sam abroad. General Smedley Butler says that the best way to prevent war is to be prepared and we heartily agree with the general.

THE PRESS announces that the Hon. Sterling P. Strong, Congressman-at-large and a native of Dallas, will oppose Hatton Summers for representative from the Dallas district. This is the first political news this writer has heard concerning the July Primary. Forecasting the results of the election nine months before the votes are counted is very very dangerous business, but I venture to say that Mr. Summers will be in the 1935 session of Congress. It is unofficially whispered that Joe Bailey, Jr., also a Congressman-at-large, may oppose Tom Connally for U. S. Senator. Tom has made some bad mistakes this year and the name of Joe Bailey is magic with many natives of good old Texas.

LINDBERGH'S entry into Paris last Friday must have been quite different from the one he made in 1927. This time he entered the city as a simple visitor and was only recognized by a few of the populace. He has been studying a trans-Atlantic air route which would cross Greenland for Pan-American Air Ways. While in France he will study French Aviation.

EX-SERVICE MEN TO MEET MONDAY AT 7:30
Business of important nature will be discussed at a meeting of ex-service men of Coryell county Monday evening in the County Court room.

This is a regular meeting of the Knox Curtis Post No. 42.

WILL PUBLISH A PAGE OF SCHOOL NEWS WEEKLY

Following a decision recently passed by the management of the News, this paper is making plans to develop a School News page to run regularly each week, and with the cooperation of the various schools of the county this page will be published to contain school news exclusively.

Many of the schools of Coryell county have already indicated their interest in such a feature, some news having come to our office for the past few weeks.

We want just as many schools as might be interested to take advantage of this means of publishing news, and it will be the policy of this newspaper to treat all correspondents with the same just consideration, with no partiality to any school.

Wednesday Deadline
We must have it definitely understood that all news stories must be in the hands of our printers not later than noon Wednesday for publication in the paper which comes out on Friday of that same week. We might also state that correspondents will be doing the news a great favor by sending in news before that date if possible.

We intend to make the School News page one of the most interesting features of our paper and with the cooperation of each school sending in news we can accomplish this intention.

Each school principal is requested to communicate with the Coryell County News and the only expense that is necessary is that individual schools must furnish their own postage in mailing news to this office.

Geologists Indicate Oil Near Ireland May Be 3000 Feet Or Less

Special to the News
By D. D. Grubb

Geologists Neely and Taylor returned last Monday from a trip to Fort Worth in the interest of the oil activities in this locality, with renewed hopes and stronger determination to carry on their work.

The geologists have made two locations and it is probable that they will make the third the latter part of this week. They spent much time and careful study in making necessary investigations, this has been responsible for their slow but certain movements and now the goal of their ambitions seems near at hand. Everything is pointing to the opening of a new oil field in Texas located in Coyell and Hamilton counties, according to signs.

Both Neely and Taylor are well known geologists and are rendering a real service to this present job. They feel confident that oil in paying quantities will be found less than 3,000 feet in this section.

Joe Pugh and his son, Joe Pugh, Jr., are the promoters of the new oil enthusiasm in Ireland. Both are experienced oil men. They have indicated that spudding in will begin at an early date.

Pennington Brothers Form Wholesale and Retail Oil Company

Announcement has been made to the effect that the Pennington brothers, Roy and Parker, will begin their operations as proprietors of a new Independent gasoline and oil company with headquarters in Gatesville Saturday, November 4.

Pennington Brothers will handle a complete line of oils and greases and a first class high grade gasoline. Their business will include both wholesale and retail departments.

The new service station now nearing completion, on Leon Street will be used as headquarters, according to Roy Pennington, and will be open Saturday for business.

MARKSMEN GET LEASE ON SPOT FOR GUN RANGE

Following a very enthusiastic meeting of Gatesville "marksmen" two weeks ago, at which time officers of the Gatesville Gun Club were elected, there has been a marked increase in interest shown by others desiring membership into this organization.

The club has secured a lease on six acres of land located at Cox' Spring five miles east of Gatesville. The grounds have been cleared and a temporary target has been constructed. At an early date permanent targets will be erected for small bore, pistol and highpowered rifle practice.

Seats and tables have been constructed near the springs providing an ideal place for picnics and outings for club members and guests.

There are about thirty members in the club at the present time and the membership committee composed of C. E. Alvis Jr., Clifford Adams, Rufus McKinney and Dawson Cooper are enlisting new members daily.

No-Money Auction To Be Feature Of 30-Day Painter And Lee Sale

Beginning today (Friday) the doors of Painter and Lee will be thrown open to the shoppers of Coryell county in a mammoth exhibition of merchandise featuring a "Good Will" sale which will last for thirty days.

One of the unusual features of the Painter and Lee Sale is the bogus Auction Money which will be given shoppers with purchases, this money to be used each Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoon, when various articles will be put up for auction.

German authorities are discouraging the publication or circulation in Germany of the American song hit "Lazy Bones," because it encourages idleness and does not conform to Nazi ideals.

'round the square

By The Snooper

I had a big time Saturday making observations while some of our friends from neighboring towns were in Gatesville. The Grove was well represented Saturday; if Zoma Doyle isn't one to make a swell impression then the drinks are on me, meaning she is unusually attractive. R. B. Forrest was one of the teachers here Saturday to attend the athletic conference; I hadn't seen him in a coon's age. Fred Robinson of Pearl still thinks that school has a good basketball team. D. E. Goolsby says the Jonesboro boys are on the warpath for the county championship. Mrs. M. A. Ward indicated that someone had been talking up the "News", and I didn't care. C. J. Shook has some mighty interesting facts on the Indian days in this county.

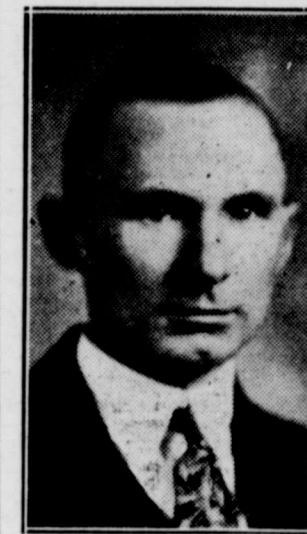

Mystery Continues To Prevail Despite Efforts To Establish Girl's Identity

Little did the residents of this locality realize that anything out of the ordinary was beginning to take place when the bus from Waco rolled into Gatesville Saturday evening and an attractive blonde, about twenty-three years old, stepped from the bus, but on Sunday morning the news had spread over the city and into neighboring towns of the mysterious appearance of a young woman, apparently a victim of mental amnesia.

When the bus stopped in Gatesville a young woman asked Earl Bond, Gatesville man who happened to be on the bus from Waco, where she might find a police station, stating that she was lost and could not remember who she was or where she lived. Bond notified Chief of Police Ed McMor-die and the next morning investigation was begun to establish her identity.

Various routes have been followed to enlighten the woman as to her past but all have failed, however certain facts have been discovered that should eventually lead to her identity. Dr. Hall, Baylor University Psychologist

To Lead Bible School

REV. A. W. FECHNER

OSAGE PASTOR TO HEAD 7-DAY BIBLE SCHOOL

A new type of training school will be launched by the Osage Baptist Church next Monday evening, November 6 beginning at 7 p. m. and continuing until 8:30.

Rev. A. W. Fechner, who was born and reared in this county, educated at Howard Payne College and Baylor University, and who served as suburban city pastor until recently when he accepted the pastorate at Osage, will direct the teaching.

For the past three years Rev. Fechner has specialized in this work along with his pastorate. The type of work to be done differs mainly in the respect that in place of taking up some specialists book on some phase of church work and devoting a week of study to it, one of the books of the Bible is taken up and the time spent directly in Bible study. The procedure is to start at the first of a given book and study it chapter by chapter. Large place has been given in these studies to the prophetic books which have been too much neglected. The book of Revelation will be studied in the Osage school.

The school will continue through one week and should be intensive and inspirational in nature. There is no charge or tuition. Already a number of people from Gatesville, Coryell City and other places have signified their intention of attending. Everyone is welcome to this week of special study.

Stores Will Remain Open Armistice Day To Close Doors Monday

Due to the fact that Armistice Day comes on Saturday this year the merchants of Gatesville have decided to postpone their holiday until the following Monday for the benefit of the Saturday trade; this same decision will be observed by the banks.

Wednesday afternoon a committee of local citizens called on the various merchants and business men of this city and a straw vote was taken resulting in the opinion that Monday instead of Friday should be observed as a holiday.

Rev. C. A. Morton has been ill for some ten days.

GEORGE BARCUS OF WACO WILL ADDRESS P-T-A

Hon. Judge George W. Barcus of Waco will be the speaker for the November meeting of the Gatesville Parent Teachers Association which will be held in the auditorium of the High School building Tuesday evening at 7:30. His subject will be, "The Home, the Builder of Ideals". Judge Barcus has had wide experience in legal affairs in Texas, and possesses a knowledge of home conditions which particularly qualifies him to bring a worthwhile address on the assigned subject. The patrons of the school are urged to hear him.

Preceding the address, the pupils of the sixth grade, under the direction of Mr. E. D. Shelton and Miss Edna Murray, will give a brief program which will include musical numbers, readings and the presentation of a one act play entitled, "The Servant of Mrs. Sentence."

DELMAR RAMSEY MADE ELIGIBLE AFTER HEARING

By Brack Curry
Thursday night, October 26, the district executive football committee met in Waco and ruled Delmar Ramsey, Hornet tackle, eligible.

The point of contention was that Ramsey attended eight semesters of school prior to the present session. Evidence was produced that he was not in the 1930-31 session of school. A statement was made by Mrs. C. L. Bean to the effect that Ramsey worked for her during the 1930-31 school semester. The committee called upon former superintendent, H. T. Johnson, who verified the statement made by Mrs. Bean. The committee accepted the evidence and Ramsey was allowed to play in the Mart game last Friday.

Coryell County News Subscription Sale To Extend To Armistice

In order to extend the opportunity to those who have not heretofore been able to take advantage of the unusual offer which the "News" has held for subscribers, it has been decided to continue the Half-Price Sale to include Armistice Day, Nov. 11. By making such a decision the special offer will be open for the benefit of "First Monday" shoppers and visitors to Gatesville.

The uptown booth on the north side of the square will be maintained again Saturday for the benefit of subscribers. It is not definite however that the booth will be open on Armistice Day, hence patrons are urged to place their subscriptions as soon as possible.

During the week subscriptions may be placed at the "News" office, next door to the Coryell Motor Company.

Rev. C. A. Morton has been ill for some ten days.

Small Gatesville Boy Sustains Broken Arm After Fall From Tree

By Emil Lee
Frank Blair Brooks suffered a broken arm late Thursday afternoon, October 26, when he fell from a limb of a tree some fifteen feet above the ground.

Frank was attempting to climb down the tree when he lost his hold. He fell from the limb, landing on his left side breaking his arm in two places.

His brother, who was sitting on the porch, quickly rushed to him and called to his mother, Mrs. Frank Brooks, for aid. She promptly appeared on the scene and assisted Frank into the house while an obliging neighbor called a doctor.

Frank Blair has been absent from school these days but it is hoped that he will be back soon.

Produce Firm Plans Season Opening Of Cold Storage Plant

C. D. Blackburn, manager of the Gatesville Poultry and Egg Company, has announced the opening of that concern's cold storage plant to be used during the turkey market this year.

The storage plant, located on the Cotton Belt Railway line, will be put into operation some time next week, and its main purpose will be to serve as a cooling or curing plant for turkeys as they are prepared for shipment. According to Mr. Blackburn, it is proper to cool each bird dressed thirty-six hours before shipment, in order that they might be ready for the retail market.

From two hundred and fifty to three hundred hands will be employed as pickers and packers while the plant is in operation. White people will be given preference as employees, however, negroes will also be entitled to employment.

The packing season will last approximately 12 days.

"Recovery Drive" Is Apt Name For Selling Affair At Laird's

Byron Laird, proprietor of one of the oldest merchantile establishments in this country, has announced his gigantic pre-winter sale in all departments of his store, to be known as "Recovery Drive." This sale will begin Saturday, November 4, and continue through the following Saturday, November 11.

According to a report from Mr. Laird, he is joining with a host of other home owned stores in a coast-to-coast drive to help speed recovery.

Rev. W. W. Ward, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Gatesville, will end his fourth consecutive year with his present charge next Sunday. Is it a likelihood that the Bishop and Cabinet of the Central Texas Conference will see fit to send him elsewhere if the customary action of this body should prevail over the endeavors of local people to retain the present pastor.

Not only the members of the local Methodist Church, but many of other denominational congregations, have felt the happiness in the appointment in Reverend Ward to this locality four years ago.

It is a remarkable record made by this local minister. Possibly the greatest achievement during his ministry here was the rebuilding of the church, done at a very crucial time. The new building has given to Gatesville one of the most completely organized and equipped churches to be found in Central Texas.

One of the most outstanding of Reverend Ward's accomplishments in church work has been the reorganization of the church machinery. He has had the support of local officials in handling the financial affairs of the church in a most remarkable manner. The total budget raised during the past four years has exceeded $42,000.00. The membership of the church has been increased and every department reflects wonderful results from Reverend Ward's endeavors.

The community in general will suffer a great loss should the conference choose to appoint him to another charge for the next year. He has stood squarely for the advancement of moral characteristics among the citizens of this locality.

Rev. Ward and Rev. Langston, presiding elder of the Gatesville District, were sent here together four years ago, and their work has been most harmonious in every respect in carrying on the work in this district.

Reverend Langston, who has served this district of Methodism in a most commendable manner, must leave Gatesville by virtue of the laws of the church. A presiding elder is not allowed to remain more than four years at one place.

Rev. Langston's departure will be felt greatly by not only the ministry of this district but by the laymen as well. The Sunday evening service at the Methodist Church here will be designated in his honor, and will conclude with the Fourth Quarterly conference.

Ireland Boy Student At Tarleton Injured When Car Overturns

Ben Roberts of Ireland suffered a broken wrist and dislocated shoulder, when the car in which he was riding Wednesday afternoon overturned on a curve between Ireland and Walnut Springs.

The other occupant of the car, George Slaton, of Colorado, is in a critical condition from internal injuries according to reports from doctors in Stephenville where the injured youths were taken for treatment. Both boys are students at John Tarleton College.

Halloween Party At Miss Letjebads

Misses Murrell Liljebad, Wilma Sadler, Louise Hall, and Dahlia Mae Murray were joint hostesses on the eve of October 28th, when they entertained a group of friends at "Liljebad Den" with a unique Halloween party.

Upon arrival, the young men were invited to climb the ladder to the second floor while the girls were ushered into the down stairs living rooms. After the arrival of all the guests the young men were permitted to fish for their partners by throwing a long fishing line down the stairs. The girls were thus invited upstairs where the spacious living room had been completely converted into a witch's den. Corn stalks, pumpkins, and lighted candles adorned the walls while in the center of the room, a witch's pot simmered brew for the witches and goblins.

After a number of exciting games, bobbing for apples in a tub, and much pop corn eating, all the lights were extinguished and the guests were invited by Witch Liljebad to quietly descend the stairs and assemble in the dining room. There they heard a harrowing tale of "The Missing Brown Eye", told by C. E. Alvis, Jr. visiting incognito as a man of the highway.

Returning to the Den, more games were enjoyed and delicious punch was served from the witch's pot.

The guests wore white robes and masks. They were greeted at the door by Mrs. A. D. Chestnut, costumed as the old black witch. Following numerous games of interest each one present gave a jest about her name and as the others guessed their identity they unmasked.

The delicious refreshment plate consisted of orange punch and devil's fool cake.

As a courtesy to their former teacher, Mrs. Tom L. Robinson, the entire personnel of the party motored to her home about four miles northwest of Gatesville, and presented her with a lovely shower of gifts.

"Tree Army" in Texas Urged to Build Proper Soil Terrace Outlets

College Station—The building of proper terrace outlets to check gully along roadsides and fields should be stimulated by the check dams built on farms by Civilian Conservation Corps in soil camps in Texas, thinks M. R. Bentley, extension agricultural, Texas A and M College. He has charge of the soil conservation work of this branch of President Roosevelt's "Tree Army" in Texas.

"In our rush to complete the terracing of eroding fields in Texas," says Mr. Bentley, "we have often neglected to follow up by building terrace outlet checks to prevent gully at terrace ends. In many sections this is an important point. The men in the C. C. C. camps in Texas are busy building permanent checks at important terrace outlets on properly terraced farms within reasonable driving distance of the camps. The dams are usually of concrete or rock masonry and represent the best outlets yet devised. As these structures are observed by farmers and the stories of their benefits passed along they may become standards for farmers all over Texas."

Soil erosion camps were established last June near Gainesville, Farmersville, Jacksboro, Dublin, Valley Mills, Cleburne and El Paso. Because of shortage of work within reasonable driving distance the camps at Gainesville, Jacksboro and Valley Mills are to be moved soon. Mr. Bentley states probably to Boyd, Wise county; Weatherford; and a third site yet to be determined. Four new camps are to be added as soon as the U. S. Army approves the sites. The proposed new sites are near Bowie, Belton, Taylor and Graham. October enlistments are expected to bring the strength to 214 men per camp.

Many people have wondered why C. C. C. men are not permitted to terrace fields. Mr. Bentley explains that "the object of all this conservation work is to conserve natural resources and that flood control work is regarded as a proper part of such conservation. Floods are aggravated by streams choked with sediment. Gullies supply more than their due share of this sediment, and therefore gullies are considered a problem. Terrace construction, on the other hand, is counted as private and not public work, although it does of course have important social effects."

ON TEXAS FARMS

Other things equal, good seed wins. Austin Bishop, Jr., Red River county 4-H Club boy, picked more than a bale of cotton to the acre on three acres planted to pedigreed seed. His father made three-fourths of a bale to the acre planted on the same kind of land at the same time.

Something green from the garden was used on the dining table of the Ed Skar home in Wharton county every day from late last fall until now with the exception of two weeks following last year's freeze. The gardener was Irene Skar, president of the Mulroon 4-H Club.

When half through terracing a field last year rain set in and prevented Oscar Mangold, Medina county farmer, from finishing the job. The rain was costly, the county agent said. The terraced land was the poor upland half of the field but it made 10 bushels more corn to the acre than the richer bottom land.

A one section farm in Hale county made money for C. H. Day and sons last year, the county agent reports. With the help of four sons Mr. Day grew wheat, cotton, alfalfa, sudan, oats, barley and grain sorghums and balanced crops up with hogs, dairy cattle, baby heaves and poultry. A garden and orchard helped too.

Anything from bathroom fixtures to false teeth are bought with canned products in Tarrant county this year, according to reports from home demonstration club members. Plumbers, laundries, filling stations, news stands and dentists are among the concerns accepting pay in canned goods.

Otto Weinheimer, Gillespie county farmer, is among those who are getting paid off for several years' work in making improved pecans grow on native trees. He expects to gather 4000 to 5000 pounds of paper shell pecans this year.

Centerville—It pays to terrace new land at once after clearing even before the stumps have been removed, declares Jesse Harcrow, Leon county farmer living near Buffalo. He is believed to hold the record for the size of area of new land terraced, having built terraces on 325 freshly cleared acres in the last three years.

Some of this new land cleared and terraced three years ago made 300 pounds of lint per acre this season whereas an unterraced field made 13 bales on 90 acres after four years in cultivation, reports R. S. McEachern, county agent. This unterraced 90 acre field made one half bale of cotton to the acre the first year after clearing, and then steadily declined in yield. The land terraced immediately after clearing is maintaining its production each year, Mr. McEachern says.

Terracing has also brought part of the yielding power back to fields of declining production, Mr. Harcrow has found. An old field that was terraced last year produced 150 pounds of lint per acre this season, as estimated in the cotton plow-up campaign.

New land, cleared and terraced and put into cultivation this year was estimated at 250 pounds of lint per acre in the plow-up campaign, and actually made 325 pounds of lint per acre. More than 90 bales were gathered from 135 acres not included in the plow-up.

Comanche—The fame of Denco reddish-yellow dent corn, a product of the Denton Experiment Sub-Station, is still spreading through Comanche county as more farmers try out this early maturing variety, says J. A. Barton, county agent. It was introduced in 1931 by 4-H Club boys.

Two Babies Burn to Death in Car Fire in Hamilton County

One of the saddest tragedies ever befalling Hamilton county occurred Monday when Mary Lou, age 3, and J. B. age 1, children of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Waiwer, residing one mile southwest of Lanham, were burned to death.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker had driven to their corn field to gather corn and left the two children in their Ford touring car at the turning row. They had only been busy at their work for about 15 minutes and were less than 100 yards from the car when they beheld it enveloped in flames. The wind was in the opposite direction which accounts for the delay in noticing the fire. They rushed to the scene but were too late to save them and their little bodies were burned beyond recognition. The accident happened shortly after 1 o'clock.

The remains of the children were laid to rest in the Lanham Cemetery Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock. They were the grandchildren of Mrs. Amanda Evans, pioneer resident of that community, who was buried in that same cemetery Monday of last week.

The heartfelt sympathy of the entire county goes out to the grief stricken parents and loved ones.—Hamilton County News.

ance against the Mexican Government the fact that it had failed to provide public education. The Governor today asked for the co-operation of public and parochial educators in a common cause.

An example of some of the experiences of farmers with the new corn is given by H. G. Layman who made 44 bushels of corn per acre on 6 acres planted to Denco this year while twelve acres of ordinary dent corn in the next field on the same kind of land made 25 bushels per acre. He reports that Denco matures 12 to 15 days earlier than other kinds, is very drought resistant, and is less subject to weevil damage.

Angleton—The bed room demonstrator of the Angleton Home Demonstration Club, Mrs. Otto Eberspacher, has not only fitted up one bed for a demonstration but she has made spring covers for all the other beds in her home also mattress covers, pads, and pillow covers, reports Miss Edith Giles, Brazoria County home demonstration agent. Very little expense was attached because she made practically everything from feed sacks. One mattress pad was made from thin unbleached domestic padded with a blanket which was too thin to be used as a covering. Mrs. Eberspacher refinished all the floors and the wood work of her home and has also refinished several pieces of furniture. A silk rug for the bathroom floor was made from old hose.

Weatherford—Raisony 101 chickens from 125 eggs set is the record of Vera Mae McQueen, 4-H club member of the Springcreek Club, she reports to Miss Janie Parks, Parker county home demonstration agent.

"I set my first hens about the 1st of March," says Vera. "By the last of April I had the 125 set and 108 hatched. I lost only 7 chickens out of the 108. Four of them drowned in the water tank, my little sister killed two, and the horse stepped on one. I have about 6 pans to feed in and 4 pans to water in. For an improvement I built a wire net pen to feed the baby chicks in and made larger coops for the chicks to roost in. I fed them plenty of milk. I have sold 35 of my chickens at 35c apiece and $33 worth of eggs from 25 hens since the first of January."

Marshall—Harrison county 4-H pantries were represented at the State Fair by 48 entries of canned products of which seven were prepared by Mrs. Will Huffman of the Athey Home Demonstration Club. She canned 502 containers of food for a family of two. Nor has she spent all her time canning, for as wardrobe demonstrator she was awarded a trip to A & M College last summer as a county winner in the wardrobe contest. She painted her clothes closet, equipped it with rod and shelves, hat stands, and shoe bag. Mrs. Huffman has also improved her yard as a yard demonstrator.

Starr Gravel Co., Mission, with a capital of $15,000, has been chartered to carry on a mining, excavating and quarrying business.

WORLD CONSUMPTION OF U. S. COTTON DECLINES

New York, Oct. 30.—World consumption of American cotton decreased somewhat in September due entirely to a drop in domestic use, but was larger than a year ago and much greater than either two or three years ago, the New York Cotton Exchange Service reported today.

Spinners it was reported, used about 1,193,000 bales of the American staple, against 1,262,000 in August, 1,168,000 in September last year, 1,024,000 two years ago, 886,000 three years ago and 1,217,000 four years ago.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 30.—Grace Watson apparently had her yawns stifled today, for she failed to make her appearance at General Hospital.

She came to the Hospital Saturday night with a dislocated jaw and explained that she had thrown her jaw out of place yawning.

After a physician set the jaw she was sent home but on the way out of the hospital another yawn came upon her. She tried to fight it off, was unsuccessful, and again dislocated her jaw.

Hospital physicians awaited her return yesterday, but Miss Watson did not appear. At noon today she hadn't been back.

EDUCATION WEEK FROM NOVEMBER 6 TO 12.

Austin, Oct. 30.—Governor Miriam A. Ferguson today proclaimed the week of Nov. 6 to 12 "American Education Week" and urged that it be a "period of special observance of the needs of our schools and a renewal of interest in educational progress."

The executive proclamation reminded Texans of their "glorious history" of public education. As early as 1832 Texans had asked from the legislature of Coahuila and Texas a grant of public land to be used for public school purposes. The request was refused.

Texas' Debt to the Oil Industry

The United States accounts for 60 per cent of the world's production of petroleum and Texas accounts for 40 per cent of the nation's total. East Texas alone produces more oil than any other country in the world except Russia and Venezuela, even with its production held down under production.—Progressive Texans, Inc.

The oil which Texas produces accounts in considerable part for the higher average of economic conditions in Texas, as against most of the other states. Those who produce the oil complain, and no doubt justly, of the returns. But the aggregate return serves mightily to keep men at work in the petroleum industry. It greases the gears of the mercantile, the manufacturing and even the agricultural machinery. Oil is a big part of our state's wealth. It helps to pay our taxes. It is in such quantities it will last a long time if properly conserved. But no finite quantity is inexhaustible. Texas petroleum will come to nothing unless protected from the wasters. A dry oil field means a discouraged community, but all fields can go dry and will go dry unless protected from reckless exploitation. Of course the foundation of Texas' wealth is its fields and pastures. Agriculture and animal husbandry make Texas and will keep Texas after the more ephemeral resources have evaporated. But the farmer who exhausts his soil, who allows it to wash into the drains, thence to the river and to the sea, is in a class with the oil land owner who allows his underground capital to be dissipated in a little time for all time.

ARE WE OVER—ORGANIZED?

Whether a public enterprise is a worthwhile enterprise or not there is always some objection to it. Whether or not an organization performs a duty that is becoming to the community in which it functions there is always some objection to its purpose or policy—it's a natural characteristic of people generally. Even when an organization performs a duty or accomplishes some worthwhile undertaking that reflects supreme credit upon its community, criticism may be expected—regardless. And what's more it is a fairly certain fact that the more prominent the organization the more profuse the criticism.

"Excess organization" is the term that has been used by a number of local criterians in their judgement of the local trend toward organizations in Gatesville and Coryell County, saying that people in this vicinity have gone "hay wire" on the subject of clubs, societies and organizations of various sorts.

Through our own personal observations we are led to believe that such criticism is illfounded and has no basis for argument. Our conclusion, which is contrary to this non-basical belief, is drawn from recollections of the records that have been made by many of the local organizations which have been functioning for some time, and we believe that those parties who have assumed a critical attitude toward the "organizing movement" in this section should investigate the records with us before becoming too intent upon their belief that organizing is being overdone.

Let it be known in the beginning that we are aware of the fact that there is such a thing as "excess organization" when nothing comes from organizing. As a matter of fact one organization in a community is too much organization when that group fails to accomplish anything for the betterment of that community.

The various 4-H clubs throughout Coryell County remind us of possibly the truest example where organizations are proving beneficial to their respective communities and to the county in general. Their worth is immeasurable, and the more 4-H clubs that can be organized in Coryell County the better. We are also reminded of the number of P. T. A. societies that have been set up in a number of school districts in Coryell County—another apt reason why more P. T. A. groups should be encouraged in this section, for the promotion of a closer relationship between school administration and school patrons.

There is adequate support in a prospective sense in at least two or three of the larger towns in the county to operate under the name of Chambers of Commerce. There is an organization that can do untold performances for civic promotion. The local Chamber of Commerce has functioned commendably since it was founded.

Locally, we are reminded of three groups, in Gatesville, that have great possibilities and have already indicated their seriousness toward accomplishing worthwhile recognition. The Morris Federation, the Round Table Club, and the Little Theater. Each has its particular duty to perform. The advancement of culture and artistic development, is the apparent purpose of the first named. Civic promotion primarily, fellowship secondary, is the aim of the Round Table club. The latter functions for the purpose of community entertainment in the realm of drama and for the promotion of personal expression among its membership. There is room for more organizations such as these in Coryell County.

We do not intend to make other various clubs and societies in the county obscure not making mention of them, but only mention a few to carry out our contention that Coryell County can ably support more of the kind and not fear "excess organization," with the understanding that those organization carry out a worthwhile purpose.

THE LOCAL TURKEY MARKET

Sometime around the 10th of this month the turkey market in Coryell County will be at its annual height. Birds will be shipped directly and indirectly to eastern markets for holiday consumption. Shipments will be made of turkeys on foot and killed, and the market is far beyond our average expectations.

One feature of particular importance that heretofore has never been brought to our attention is the fact that not only producers are to be benefitted by the extensive market but some two or three hundred laborers will be employed during the shipping season as pickers, packers and truckers to prepare turkeys for shipment.

The turkey season proper will last approximately twelve days, during which time there will be something like ten to twenty cars of picked and live turkeys shipped out of this county. It is estimated that on the picked turkeys alone there will be between $600.00 and $800.00 paid in wages to local laborers for the work they do in getting turkeys ready to be shipped, working day and night.

We might remind ourselves of the extreme value of this market to Coryell County in the assistance which it affords local unemployment which is so greatly needed at this particular time.

Will Civilization Be Destroyed?

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

At a recent clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons, Dr. Charles H. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., said, "The war of the future will be one of swift attack from the air. Planes will drop explosives and disease germs, which will be rained on centers of civilian population. This is a machine age and wars hereafter will be waged by technical men. We are spending a quarter of a billion dollars for warships which will be obsolete in ten years."

Is Doctor Mayo's statement correct? It certainly is, if the new social order, now in the making, continues to be entirely influenced by size, bulk and monetary power. The present civilization has been largely developed upon the mistaken idea that quantity is indicative of prosperity. Popular opinion acclaims the most prosperous man lives in the largest house, the most successful business enterprise is located in the most ostentatious building. The most important city is the one which can boast of the size of its parks, municipal buildings, bonded indebtedness and the financial security of its banks. The average man thinks of progress in terms of statistics, and success is measured by the balance sheet at the end of the year.

No sane person would venture the suggestion that we return to a condition of living prior to the time we possessed many of the comforts of our modern age. Nor would any person suggest that less money be spent on the development of the arts and sciences. Perhaps we need more of such cultural advantages. The permanence of our civilization, however, does not depend upon these possessions for the obvious reason that they all can be destroyed in the twinkling of an eye. In this respect Doctor Mayo is right.

What guarantee have we then against the destruction of our civilization? The rise and fall of nations attest the truth of the statement, "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." "If 90 per cent of reform is purely educative and the rest emotional and legislative," then it is not imperative that all forms of organized Christianity and all educational institutions teach the necessity of cultivating the spiritual values of life? Only when the spiritual transcends the material will our civilization be safe from those forces which laid in ashes other nations and completely annihilated their civilization.

Building Boom Gets Started

Figures show that the long awaited residential construction boom is beginning to make itself felt. During the first half of August, construction of this type as reported to F. W. Dodge Corporation, totaled $10,876,000 as against $8,812,300 for the same period last year—a gain of 23 per cent. This marked the fourth consecutive month in which advances were made over the comparable months in 1932.

For a number of years there has been a definite home shortage in America—for at least three of those years building was virtually at a standstill, and existing structures were subjected to more than usual depreciation, because of inattention to needed repairs. This wasn't due to lack of desire. It was due principally to lack of funds in thousands of families, and to a psychology of fear that prevented others, having ample funds, from spending. The first class is returning to its jobs now, and regular pay envelopes are brought home on Saturday nights. The second is discovering that rising prices will shortly make it impossible to obtain new buildings or to improve old ones at bargain prices. And both classes are going into the market for better living quarters. Still another beneficial influence is the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, which makes possible home financing that could not otherwise be obtained.

Yes, there's every indication that we're on the verge of a major building revival that will be particularly striking in the residential field. All who can should aid the relief program by taking advantage of low prices for land and material.

Brooks Shrimp, Inc., is a new corporation at Galveston to preserve and can shrimp.

Back to the Farm!

National interest has been aroused in a suggestion made a short time ago by Editor Walter P. McGuire of the Southside Virginia News, Petersburg, Virginia; the suggestion being that farm boys keep on the farm.

It's a simple suggestion, and a very sound one. How much unemployment has been caused by the trek from farm to city is problematical—but it would make an impressive total. These young men, for the most part, are untrained and inexperienced and unfitted for factory work. They rarely find jobs above the common labor level. They are the first to be dismissed when times get hard—and the last to be taken back when recovery starts.

They know farming—and the farm is where they belong, for their own good and for that of the nation. It is on the farm that they have their chance to prosper and live happy and useful lives. It's time the trend was reversed—with the farm-boys—turned—city—boys going home again.

The Need for Cooperation Grows

The farmer who believes that because government is seeking to do certain things for him, he need do nothing for himself, might ponder these words of Governor Henry Morgenthau, Jr., of the Farm Credit Administration: "I believe in cooperation both as a way of advancement and as a necessity for the American farmer. I don't believe any new form of economy or new regulation of production will ever make it less necessary. It is more likely to increase the importance of it."

Agricultural cooperation means that the farmer, in association with his fellows, is taking definite steps to help himself—and is adopting the soundest and most proven means of achieving a given end. The government itself recognizes that—and the careful reader of recent farm legislation will be impressed by the emphasis laid on cooperative methods. Indeed, Mr. Morgenthau says that the new system amounts to a chain of banks for cooperatives. The government is going to help by providing necessary financing, and the rest is up to organized farmers.

During three years of depression the membership rolls of the established cooperatives have constantly grown. During the next few years—the years of recovery—their rate of growth should be immensely accelerated. If that happens, and all indications are that it will, agriculture faces a bright future.

Parkways in Canadian are verdant with turnip greens this year in the effort of city fathers to provide for their people. Farm women are among those who have gathered greens for canning.

MELLOWED 80 MILLION YEARS!

... 80 million years of priceless filtering under earth!

Nearly every geological age has produced crude oil—but by and large the oldest ages seem to have produced the best of it for lubricating purposes. For this reason Sinclair uses the oldest Mid-continent paraffin-base crudes in making Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil—crudes which have mellowed and filtered under earth for an average of 80 million years.

Furthermore, Sinclair Opaline contains no petroleum jelly—that non-lubricating element which makes motor oil thick and sluggish when cold—thin and watery when hot. Sinclair Opaline has a genuine full body that is all lubricant—no waste. Try a crankcaseful. Note how seldom you need to add oil.

"Good-will"

SHAKESPEARE appraised good-will at its true value when he said:

"Who steals my purse, steals trash;
'Tis something, nothing;
'Twas mine, 'tis his and has
Been slave to thousands;
But he who steals from me my good name
Robs me of that which not enriches him
And makes me poor indeed.

Good-will is born of confidence.

Confidence is the inevitable result of ability to serve—proved over a period of time.

Good-will is prized more highly by the management of this store than any other factor in the business.

We long ago became convinced that when service is rendered and business principles of fairness, equity and justice to its patrons is practiced by any business, that profits follow—as surely as night follows day.

A transaction in this store means more to us than just the trading of merchandise for dollars.

It means that when we sell you merchandise we try to give you all or more than you expect for your money; we want to sell you the thing that best suits your needs and will render you the utmost in wear and satisfaction.

We are trying to build our business on a solid foundation; when people buy merchandise from Painter & Lee, we want them to know that we want them to be satisfied with their purchase before we are satisfied with the transaction.

Our sales force are instructed to tell nothing but the truth when selling merchandise. Oh Cynthia!

NORMA KNIGHT

CHAPTER II

A Brute of a Girl.

DINNER was a surprisingly elaborate meal. Knowing nothing of the benign services of caterers, Geoff found himself believing that the family usually dined on such dishes as squabs cooked with cream and mushrooms, white cherries in aspic, ice cream frozen in the form of rosebuds.

He thought it one of the pleasantest meals he had ever eaten. The gentle courtesy which prevailed in this charming family, Cary's blithe nonsense, Miss Nona's motherly solicitude, Captain Cary's interesting reminiscences, even Tenny's occasional childish pipe were a revelation to a young man who had known no family life whatever. He thanked his lucky stars that his year in Denver would be spent beneath this hospitable roof.

Just as the last bit of the ice cream was disappearing and Cary was holding a match to Geoff's cigarette, Tenny sprang up with a joyous cry.

"There's Cynthia! Oh, Cynthia, you did get home for dinner, didn't you?"

At once there was a soft bustle about the table. Miss Nona held out welcoming hands to her daughter. The men rose, Geoff looking appraisingly at the newcomer.

The girl was small. She had the bluest eyes Geoff had ever seen. Gentian blue, sapphire blue, a blue that had light and sparkle in it and was made bluer by the long dusky lashes in which it was set. Her hair was brushed severely off her forehead and caught in a knot at the back of her neck. Her mouth was too wide, and far, far too firm, Geoff told himself. She was tanned almost as deeply as Cary. No hint of her mother's charm softened her features young mien. Geoff felt a rising antagonism at the sight of her.

"Hello!" She put an arm about Tenny but addressed the room at large.

"Darling, if we'd known you could come early of course we should have waited!"

"I didn't know it myself until the last minute." The blue eyes swept the table where the last of the rosebuds lay melting on the green glass plates. "What a dressy meal you appear to have had!" The blue gaze traveled to Geoff and something in its direct inquiry made him uncomfortable.

"We've been celebrating!" Mrs. Aylesbury said gaily. "Do you know who this is, darling? Geoff Enslow—your godmother's son!"

Cynthia nodded curtly, kept her arm about the child so that there was no question of shaking hands. "How do you do? Are you staying in Denver long?"

He detected distinct unfriendliness in the question. Deuce take the girl! What had he done that she should look upon him with such open hostility? "A year," he replied briefly.

"He's going to stay with us. Isn't that keen?" Cary asked eagerly.

Geoff glanced at Miss Nona a little curiously. The happiness had all gone from her face, the warmth from her voice. Something like fear looked out of her soft brown eyes. What a brute of a girl this was, Geoff told himself, whose mere arrival so changed the atmosphere of her home. The Captain had extinguished the fat cigar he had lighted and tossed a napkin over it. The maid, summoned by Miss Nona, murmured something in a low tone to her mistress who in turn murmured back, glancing apprehensively toward her daughter. Cary puffed nervously at his cigarette. Only Tenny seemed happy in Cynthia's arrival. She kept her thin little arms about the other girl's waist and when Cynthia said something about running upstairs to wash her hands, Tenny went with her.

Geoff tried doggedly but in vain to restore the former gaiety to the party. A blight had fallen, Cary could only smile in sickly fashion, Miss Nona looked from the table to the door and back again.

Presently Cynthia returned, still wearing the dark swiss frock which was her office dress but with little curls and ripples testifying to the wet comb she had run through her hair.

"I'm starved," she began as she took her seat. "No lunch at all today and—"

"No lunch? Oh, Cynthia!"

"Absolutely no time for lunch—and I didn't quarrel with that fact, you may be sure!" She stopped as the maid set a plate before her; raised her eyebrows questioningly. Miss Nona hurried into speech. "I'm so glad you could come home for a good hot meal, dear. Was it terrible down-town today?"

"Pretty hot. Even the tourists felt the heat, and you know they're usually indefatigable. However, we sold about a peck of abalone rings, and silver bracelets with turquoise in 'em, and shell chains."

"Did you sell any more rings like your jade one?" Tenny's voice asked interestedly. "Wasn't it lucky your godmother sent you that just when the lady from Detroit wanted one?"

There was an appalled silence. Geoff was maliciously pleased to see the color rise in the girl's face until it flooded her temples and was lost in the waves of her hair. He asked blandly:

"The jade dinner ring? Too bad you didn't like it. I rather flattered myself it was a bit unusual. I helped my mother select it, you know."

"It was a mistake—Tenny, you shouldn't—" Miss Nona began agitatedly.

Cynthia bit viciously into the roll she had buttered.

"It wasn't a mistake at all! It happened that I needed other things more than I did a ring, and as I had a special customer who wanted it, I sold it. Sorry if your mother were to be hurt!"

The implication stung the young man. "I hope you don't think I mean to tell her!"

She lifted her shoulders in a little shrug. "I didn't know. You might feel it your duty to write her about it." She pushed her plate away. "I don't seem to be so very hungry, after all. The heat, I guess. Tenny, where's Hadji? Tell the rascal he's lying down on the job. He didn't meet me at the front door tonight."

This time Geoff partook of the feeling which kept them all silent. He glanced across the table and saw that Miss Nona's eyes were brimming with tears and that her chin was quivering like that of a terrified child. The sight gave him back his own composure. A girl who could frighten her mother like that deserved anything. Quickly, before Miss Nona could falter out the news or Tenny blunder into it, Geoff spoke.

"I'm afraid I've got bad news of your dog," he said, real sympathy in his voice. "You see—he got out somehow this afternoon and the dog next door—"

Cynthia sprang to her feet. "Miss Nona! You didn't— after all I said— after I'd warned you—"

She stopped, visibly fighting down the emotion that shook her. "I beg your pardon, dear! I'm sorry!" She turned to Geoff. "How badly is he hurt? Where is he? Oh, why didn't you tell me when I first came home instead of letting me—"

Tenny's arms were around her neck, Tenny's cheek was laid lovingly against hers.

"Hadji's dead, Cynthia," she said with a child's wise directness of speech. "He was hurt so bad Geoff had to shoot him to stop his suffering. Don't cry, Cynthia. Geoff didn't let him hurt long!"

"Dead?" She gently loosened Tenny's arms, took a step toward Geoff. "You shot Hadji?"

"I had to."

Something in the conviction of his voice reached her and she held out her hand.

"I understand. Thank you."

With Tenny tagging forlornly in her wake, Cynthia left the dining room and ran up the stairs. Geoff had an uncomfortable conviction that she had gone to her room to cry.

Cynthia was driving Geoff down town. Why she had proposed herself as his chauffeur Geoff did not know. She had come into the old parlor, entirely calm and composed, no traces whatever of tears in her face and asked quietly if she might take the guest down for his luggage.

Geoff had been a little astonished at the effect this simple request had upon her family. Miss Nona looked distressed, the Captain cleared his throat, Cary shifted his feet uneasily. What, Geoff demanded of himself, was the matter with this girl that everything she said or did appeared to paralyze her relatives? Was she a lady bully, a girlish tyrant who traded on their love to keep them in a state of subjection to her whims? He set his jaw—Geoff had a nice firm jaw of his own—and rather looked forward to a brush between this Cynthia person and himself.

"Pretty sight," he commented as the car made its swift if unimpressive way down the broad streets. The city was asparkle with lights, blazing against the soft darkness of the summer sky.

"Yes. Denver's pretty," Cynthia assented absently. They drove for a block or two more in silence which she broke abruptly. "You say you're going to stay with us for a year?"

"Your mother has asked me to," he replied with cool defensiveness.

"That's all right—I can see Miss Nona will love having you. The only thing—you'll want to pay board?"

The shock of it took his breath away. He felt himself turning scarlet in the darkness.

"Naturally," he began stiffly. "A fellow's self-respect requires it. I offered to—I insisted, but Mrs. Aylesbury—"

"I know," she answered. "You can pay it to me and not mention it to her."

"To you?"

"Yes."

He remembered the Captain's comment on her gift shop. "An expensive toy!" So that was it! The greedy young grabber needed more money and saw a way to get it without asking her family.

"I think I'd rather—I think it would be better for me to pay it to your mother."

"She wouldn't take it."

"But if I paid it to you and she didn't know—"

She smiled, a faint, rather weary smile that held something of scorn and something of tolerance. "So it's the effect on Miss Nona you have an eye to, not the preservation of a fellow's self-respect?"

He was silent through sheer annoyance. This was the most unpleasant girl he had ever met.

"No use getting angry," she admonished him. "I'm just trying to make it easy for you, that's all. I realize that you've been put in a difficult position; that you really would hate it, staying with us for a year as a non-paying guest. So I'm suggesting that you pay your board to me—"

"So you can put it into your gift shop?"

She slowed around in her seat to give him a cryptic glance.

"What do you know about my gift shop?"

"Nothing," he said curtly. "Only that you have one."

She nodded. "Oh, yes, I have one, all right. And I can use whatever sum you decide on as a financial recompense for the home life we offer you—don't I put it nicely?—I can use it in my shop." She laughed, a mysterious, mirthful little laugh which increased Geoff's irritation. She was finding him funny, was she? "It's the Odds and Ends, you know."

"I beg your pardon?"

"The name of my shop—Odds and Ends."

"I can imagine that describes it very aptly."

To his amazement she pulled the car to the curb, stopped it and offered him her hand.

"But why?" asked the dazed young man.

"I'm saluting you as a foe man worthy of my steel. I was so afraid you were going to be a polite supine sort of chap, horrified to death of me but covering your consternation with courteous murmurs."

The description amused him. "Taken from life?"

"Yes. We've had three of that kind in the last year."

"Had 'em? Had 'em where?"

"In the house; guests of Miss Nona. It was necessary to get rid of them—since they didn't pay board!—so I mocked 'em and I shocked 'em—and finally they left."

He digested the inference of this in silence.

She started the car again. "I'm in debt earnest about the board money. Sixty dollars a month—d'you think that's too much, considering all the petting and the mothering you'll get from Miss Nona?"

"I hate to hear you speak of your mother like that," he told her severely.

"Of course you do," she soothed him. "You've got a mother complex. Comes from having your own mother away so much. I expect. All right—go as far as you like with it. Miss Nona's a darling. And how about the sixty dollars? Tenny's father pays seventy-five, but then I buy her clothes out of it, too."

"You buy them! Do you receive Tenny's board secretly, too?"

"Not now," she sighed. "Mr. Montague—perfect fool that he is!—forgot and sent the check to the house one month instead of to the shop."

He asked an anxious question. "D'you spell it with two p's and an e?"

"No."

"Thank heaven for that!"

"Oh, I'd spell it with three x's and a row of w's, if that was what the public wanted. Give 'em anything they ask for—that's my motto. But quaintness is out and straightforward business is in."

"Well, go on about the check. What did your mother do when she discovered you were perpetrating a fraud like that?"

"She was shocked, of course."

"And returned the check?"

The slender shoulders beside him squared themselves. "No, I wouldn't let her. I needed it, you see."

Suddenly Geoff began to laugh. It started with a low rumble in his throat, grew to a deep roar and finally assumed such proportions of sound that passers-by stared curiously.

"Why?" Cynthia demanded.

"Thinking what a jolt my mother would get if she knew you, especially if she knew what you did with the jade dinner ring."

The car swerved a little. "I said I was sorry about that!"

"No need to be—and that wasn't what I meant. You see, Mother has pictured you all these years as a pretty, fluffy little thing. She even—uh—warned me against your flirting with me—"

"Of course. She remembered Miss Nona. But you see I was born in Colorado where clinging vines and pretty coquettes and sweet sentimentalists don't flourish. Altitude's too high for 'em, I guess. Now about that sixty dollars—"

"My dear Miss Shylock, I would gladly write you a check here and now but I don't believe the traffic cops would approve of your stopping the car just here. Is my credit good until we reach the hotel?"

"You'll promise not to say a word about it to Miss Nona?"

"Why should I? They get no benefit of the money. As it is I gather that they're called on pretty frequently to help you out with the shop."

"Well—put it on that basis then. It'll be just sixty dollars less I'll mulct from them every month."

"But listen!" he said in distress.

"D'you think I want them to think I'm the kind of guy who'll sponge on them for a whole year?"

"Don't worry," she told him. "They'll think a lot more of you than if you'd reduced friendship to a sordid commercial basis."

"What a queer girl you are."

"Do you think you're going to like me?"

"I'm quite sure I am not," he answered her.

She nodded dispassionately. "Some do—some don't. Here's your hotel."

She was still frowning slightly, when he returned, holding between his thumb and finger a slip of paper which he handed her.

"My first month's board money."

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, the personnel of the A. A. A. (Agricultural Adjustment Administration), and everyone else in a reasonable position in one or another of the departments whose mission in life is to find a place for the farmer in the recovery parade, are in a tough spot. Today it costs the consumer—farmer or city dweller—about 13 per cent more to buy most necessities of life than it did in June, when the recovery program was stage. In the face of this, the still largely in the planning farmer has watched his income drop steadily. When city prices touched 16 per cent above the 1913 level, farm prices declined to 30 per cent below.

As a result, the A. A. A. came out the other day with an announcement to the effect that it opposed overly rapid rises in the cost of manufactured goods. The A. A. A. is likewise studying a proposed food code which embodies a new approach to the farm problem. Under the code, minimum prices for foodstuffs would be fixed. Distributors of foodstuffs—a business with a $10,000,000,000 annual turnover—would agree to pay more to farmers in return for a farm promise to reduce output. Consumers' counsel of the A. A. A. is afraid the code would result in higher prices to the public than it can now afford, and this is the main bone of contention.

It is the duty of the Secretary of Agriculture to keep farm prices on a level with city prices. Mr. Wallace is as keen as any farmer to do that. But it's slow going. One great problem is that too many farmers are still disorganized, and it takes much longer to get them together than it does to prepare a plan of attack for industry.

"My First Month's Board Money—I'm Sure You Won't Try to Collect It Twice."

I'm sure you won't try to collect it twice—and the canceled check will serve as a receipt!"

(To be continued next week.)

INDIVIDUALS MAKE ORGANIZATIONS

People are interesting. Some large, some small, both physically and mentally—but all different. In fact, there is a great difference that exists not only in individuals but in organizations, in schools, in their faculties and personells.

You have met people who were pleasant, polished and refined. You enjoyed being around them. Others the exact opposite. You have gone into organizations and business enterprises where the moment you entered their door every employer and employee highly impressed you, both in efficiency and courtesy making you thoroughly enjoy every moment you spent with them. Others were discourteous and unpleasant—failures.

A business enterprise is only as successful as its personnel is efficient. A school or college and the courses it offers can only be as strong as its faculty. The standard maintained by the Tyler Commercial College and School of Business Administration is well reflected by the success of the school and its graduates.

The instructors have a long and splendid record of success, many of them having distinguished themselves by outstanding service in their respective fields. They are the pleasant and refined type and will be waiting to welcome you, to make your personal acquaintance and to be your friend, all united in one purpose—to serve you faithfully.

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of every individual. National and International Affairs Inseparable From Local Welfare.

The Federal government has started a planned and aggressive drive for credit expansion. The drive takes many forms. One is to renewed efforts to open banks which remained closed after the banking moratorium. Another is to make possible greater credit freedom in banks which are open but are still operating under restrictions. Another is to increase potential bank credit through open market purchases by the Federal Reserve. The public works program enters into it, as does the proposal to bolster basic industries with government loans. This last has already been done in the case of the railroads; it will very likely be extended to other industries in the future.

During the last half-year busi-production has shown steady and sharp rises. Between March and September, according to a New York Times graph, the general barometer went from about 60 to 79, the high of 87 being reached in mid-July. On the other hand, the amount of credit available for financing this production has changed very little. In March it stood at 16 billions of dollars, and in September at 16 1/2 billions. Where production has jumped a third, credit facilities have risen only about 3 per cent. The importance of credit is well illustrated by the fact that in this country, in these days, the normal amount of bank credit outstanding is $59,000,000,000, while the total money in circulation is but $5,500,000,000.

While this credit drive faces many problems, there is strong belief in many centers that it will be able to loosen credit to the point where any other means of inflation will be necessary.

Odds and ends of interest from the industrial front follow: Steel—Iron Age says that the industry is just beginning to work smoothly under code; main trouble is labor problems.

Electric Power—Report for late week shows 10 per cent rise over same week last year.

Railroads—Rumor grows that every form of transportation—rails, buses, trucks, waterways, aviation—will be brought under one federal agency. Freight car—loading in the fourth quarter of 1933 are forecast as being 14 per cent above year ago.

Dividend Payments—Ratio of favorable to unfavorable dividend actions by American companies sharply increased. Two-thirds of all changes in August were favorable.

Anyhow, Farmer Sutton's dog, Rex, known as the "canine menace of Widow Meyer Mountain" today was on record as having been so tried and sentenced to life imprisonment in his masters' back yard because he was indiscriminate in his bites.

Work was begun this week on a scout lodge in the athletic park for the Boy and Girl Scouts. The lodge will be large enough to accommodate a troop of scouts. It will be constructed of rock and concrete. The Girl Scouts have had such a plan in mind for several years, and, by selling candy and doing other work, have collected enough money to go a long way on constructing the lodge. The object of the building will be to afford a place of meeting for the scouts. The money put into such a splendid project as this will certainly go to a worthy cause.

The school attendance up to the present date is 773. The High School enrollment is 25 more than at the same time last year. This signifies that each year more pupils see a better opportunity of getting thorough training in our schools. This should be considered a compliment to the public schools. This increase in attendance will, in time, raise the scholastic standing of the school.

The inauguration of a physical education program in the High School should be heartily welcomed by the parents of the pupils. This course will provide a physical training which many students fail to receive outside. Each year more schools are adopting such programs and find them very successful.

The faculty, during the next six weeks, is going to make strenuous efforts to raise the standing of the school as far as grades are concerned. Due to various causes there were 70 pupils in the high school who failed a total of 112 subjects. These figures show that the standing of the school in the county and state will be lowered if this condition continues. The parents should co-operate with the faculty in remedying the situation.

MRS. DANIEL TURPIN

Funeral services for Mrs. Daniel Turpin were held Friday at T. W. Turpin's residence on South 7th Street. Services were conducted by Rev. W. W. Ward.

Lydia Jane Miller Turpin was born in Ohio, May 17, 1884. From there her family moved to Illinois where they resided for some time. She was married to Daniel Turpin in 1868 in the state of Missouri and to this union six children were born. They came to Texas in 1872 and bought a home near Mound, in Coryell county, where they resided until the death of Daniel Turpin in June 1911. After his death Mrs. Turpin lived with her children until a few years ago, when she entered the Masonic Home at Arlington. She passed away Thursday morning, October 26, 1933.

Mrs. Turpin had been a Christian for many years, having been converted at an early age. She joined the Christian Church of which she was a member for over sixty years.

Deceased is survived by two sons; Bill and Jim Turpin, one daughter; Mrs. Tom Cohagen of Venus, a step-son; T. W. Turpin of Gatesville and a number of grandchildren, all of whom were present for the funeral except one son, Jim Turpin.

Twenty-three lost babies at an old settler's day at Columbia City, Ind., almost turned the program into a baby show.

WE Are Ready for the Turkey Market

FOR twelve months we have been looking forward to the 1933 Turkey market, planning and making preparations to cooperate with the Producers of Coryell County in order that they may be assured of a worthwhile market for their turkeys.

Our cold storage plant will be open within the next few days, where turkeys will be prepared for shipment daily. Here they will be picked and packed for delivery to the Eastern consumers' markets. We will employ local people in this work.

We will have representatives in the field buying daily, and paying the regular market price. Each turkey you sell to one of our representatives will mean money in the pockets of local employees.

See Us Before You Sell.

Work is under way on the little cabin for the scouts which will be used for the purpose of Scout meetings, recreation and other useful meetings.

Each Boy Scout has to work a certain number of hours and then he can let some other fellow show his skill. The Boy Scouts are furnishing the labor and the Girl Scouts are furnishing the money for the materials by selling candy at the football games.

The work is going along nicely and with good speed. If this keeps up it will not be long until the project will be finished.

Girl Scouts Taught Ideals Of Womanhood By Organization Aim

The aim and purpose of a Girl Scout Organization is to instill in the girls the ideals of womanhood as a preparation for their responsibilities in the home and service to the community.

The program of the Girl Scout movement emphasizes the out-of-door life. It is planned to give girls a practical knowledge of health, home-making, first aid work, and handicraft. Through comradeship it is intended to develop initiative, self-control, self-reliance, and unselfish service to others.

The organization is non-sectarian and non-political. Its units willingly co-operate with educational and other groups whose standards are in accord with their own.

The Gatesville Girl Scout Organization is divided into three troops under the leadership of Misses Gladys Blankenbush, Ila Fae Selby, and Bess Holmea, who are assisted by a committee including Mesdames M. W. Lowrey, Levi Anderson and L. K. Thomson.

Texas History Class Visits Cave

The boys of the Texas History Class on last Wednesday, visited an old cave which is located on the Bosque river about five miles north of Coryell City. This was found to be an old Indian burial place. Parts of skeletons and charcoal from a fire believed to have been built by the Indians were found. The charcoal has been sent to the Laboratory of Anthropology at Santa Fe, New Mexico in an attempt to have it dated by tree-ring experts. Another trip is to be made Saturday for further excavations.

Junior Basketball Team

The boy's junior basketball team has started practice and beginning Wednesday they will work out each afternoon from 4 until 4:30. We had little hope for a team until two over-size athletes, Morris Gilmore and Odie McBroom, were finally able to prove that they belonged to the junior division.

Geography Project

The fifth grade has been working on a geography project. The class drew a map of South America on which they are pasting the products raised in the different countries. Each member is taking a great interest in this project.

Moonlight Picnic

The teachers, several families of the community, and a few visitors enjoyed a picnic at the Bosque crossing between Coryell City and Valley Mills Monday

STUDENTS ORGANIZE SPANISH CLUB

By Elton Blackstock
A Spanish Club was organized in Gatesville High School this past week to help make the study of Spanish more enjoyable.

J. W. Summers was elected president; Iris Morse, vice-president; Lowrey Burleson, secretary and Elton Blackstock, reporter.

The president appointed the following program committee: Ruth Edmondson, Durwood Taylor, Lucile Wilhelm and Edwin Prewitt.

Organized as a club, the members who enjoy Spanish may accomplish many ambitions that would hardly be possible if left to individual effort.

The club intends to give literary programs in Spanish at regular intervals, encourage daily conversation, present entertainments to interest the entire student body, and hold social affairs for the benefit of the club.

The members feel sure of the success of the club and are doing all they can for its development.

Pearl School News

Junior News

The girls, numbering only two, of our class have been busy in the kitchen. In their spare time they have made new curtains and the boys hung them.

Our flower bed, barring the cow which entered the other night, is doing nicely. Sweet peas are up.

We are planning our part in the Hallowe'en party for tonight. A crazy house is being planned, and will it be crazy?

Sports

The Dragons clashed with the Purnela Huskies last Friday Oct. 27 on our home court. It was a very interesting and exciting game all the way through. They were fine sports and played a real game. The score was Purnela 11 and Pearl 20.

The junior boys also played the Purnela Junior boys. The score was Purnela 17 to Pearl 12. Remember to come to the game this afternoon. The Dragons are to play Jonesboro again. The Girl's team will play their first game Friday. They are to meet the Pearl team.

Shop News

The manual training class has been doing some good work. We have made bread boards, and repainted the stoves for the home economics class. We have started several projects this week such as match boxes, camp stools, tie racks, book racks and several other useful things.

The first few days of work was devoted to making the new shop into a suitable work shop.

Personals

Mrs. Emmett Cox visited school last Friday.

Vada Ballard was absent Monday because of illness.

Mrs. Charles Reynolds visited school last Thursday.

Miss Merle Jones spent the week end with home folks. Our visitors Friday afternoon were the Purnela boys basketball teams.

The play entitled "Lonely Little Liza Lou" was staged Friday night by the Priscilla Club. It was enjoyed by a large crowd. We were glad to have them and invite them back again.

Hallowe'en Party

Ugh! Spooks! Goblins! Black cats! Witches! Soup!—that's all the talk of the school. Every student in school has been counting the days until the annual Hallowe'en party. The primary folk have had their false faces for days. The grammar grades and high school folk have very keen competition to see who will win the prize for the best costume.

There will be lots of eats and many thrilling games, weird music, a real fortune teller, a crazy house and oodles of fun for everybody. If you miss this you will miss the most fun of the year.

Home Economics

We have been very busy in the home economics class this week. We have been enameling stoves, making curtains and fixing the shades to put up. We have planned a very attractive room.
