"IT'S A GREAT LIFE IF YOU DON'T WEAKEN" WEST POINTERS ADVISE

The life of a West Point cadet is in many cases almost as interesting to friends and acquaintances as the experiences are to the cadet himself.

Through the kindness of Mrs. Irvin McCreary, of Gatesville, the News has been very fortunate in obtaining a wealth of information concerning the activities of her brother, Bryan Arnold, at present a "Plebe" in the United States Military Academy, Young Arnold departed from West Point the latter part of July to become a full-fledged cadet.

The Life of a West Point Cadet
Military discipline is probably the outstanding training that each new cadet must undergo, linked with the fundamental principles of physical education to give the boy a sound well-rounded body. What leisure moments he may have during the first two months must be spent in learning the proper care of his rifle and the way in which to keep his equipment properly arranged. The "beasts" are taught obedience and action. Egotism and conceit are quickly banished.

When the Corps is organized men are arranged according to their height, irrespective of their classes. The first and third battalions are made up of the "flankers" (tall men, to you), while the second is composed of the "runts". Officers are appointed from the two higher classes according to rank. Corporals come from the second-class. In the molding of these men a cadet never loses sight of the great primary aim of West Point, the development of personal integrity.

Classes, or sections, at West Point are very small, with usually twelve men to one instructor. The professor explains the daily lesson and is sure that each student understands every point; the cadet in turn prepares a blackboard assignment and later recites orally, from the blackboard. There are no exams (what a treat that must be). This stimulates originality and self reliance.

Every cadet at West Point is given the advantage of partici-

tion in athletics which is also compulsory. Eight different sports are given for which each cadet must take part.

When graduation comes in June the first-classmen and third class for the coming year move into camp on the banks of the beautiful Hudson river; the new second-class is allowed a furlough which last until classes are resumed again in September.

While in camp the cadets are taught wartime tactics during the morning periods and recreation of various sorts in the afternoon. To them, this camp life is most ideal. With tennis, canoeing, golf and other recreations in the afternoons and evening social life centering around Cullum Hall are the attractions of the summer life on the Hudson.

A peek into the innermost inner life of the cadet shows us a picture of that which they call "drags". When an overly ambitious cadet utters a feeble pun or does something likewise unbecoming of a West Pointer he is given the drag which usually means a sousing in a tub of ice-water climaxed with a coating of shoe polish.

The mess hall is another source of much anxiety on the part of especially the lower classmen. When the upperclassman asks of the milk corporal, "How's the cow?", he means to inquire as to the amount of milk that remains in the milk picher.

And when the milk corporal replies, "Sir, she walks, she talks, she's full of chalk. The lactile fluid of the female of the bovine species is highly prolific to the third degree, sir", he means that there is more milk.

The experiences of the West Point cadet must be varied and interesting, the same being true as to his hardships and pleasures no doubt.

garments for other people. They all kept clothing accounts and 10 of them provided adequate storage space for their clothing. The cooperators, numbering 150, made 1,114 garments valued at 1,567.75. Sixteen of them kept clothing accounts, 30 provided storage space and 64 made foundation patterns.

In the yard demonstration, 13 demonstrators and 69 cooperators made cutting beds and rooted shrubs for their yard improvement. The demonstrators put out 555 shrubs in screen and foundation plantings, sodded nine lawns, planted 22 trees, built in three walks, one driveway and four sanitary toilets. All demonstrators have made landscape plans and the total cost of their work was $87.17. The cooperators have 366 cuttings rooted ready to transplant, and have already 446 shrubs and 55 trees.

Clairemont—"Just look what we have done," I said to my husband, as we stood in our cellar, giving our pantry the "once over" just a few hours before the pantry achievement tour. He agreed with me that we had accomplished something of which we could both be proud. The addition of $289.63 to our yearly income is going to be appreciated, and that is the value of our pantry, Mrs. N. A. Ward, pantry demonstrator of the Clipper Home Demonstration Club reported to Miss Veralee Jones, Kent county home demonstration agent. The 22 varieties of canned and preserved foods consist of 350 quarts of canned foods, and dried beans, cured meats, lard and corn meal.

"Mr. Ward says he is going to be a member of the club, on the side, for with both of us working in the pantry, we ought to have a pantry next year worth twice as much as the present one," Mrs. Ward said. "I have been canning for years, but I have learned many new methods of canning foods since I have been doing club work. I hardly ever have anything to spoil now; also I have improved the quality of my products. Being a pantry demonstrator has helped me in making out the family budget and the filling of the budget so that our family has had the foods that are needed," she added.

Columbus—"This is sure a happy Christmas for me", Mrs. Creston Gay told County Agent W. H. Young of Colorado county just before the holidays. Living three miles from Columbus she has been separated from two small daughters who live with their grandmother while attending school. From a turkey demonstration with Mr. Young she made enough on 315 turkeys to buy a good used car. Now she keeps her girls at home, carrying them back and forth from school each day. Next year she plans to raise 1000 turkeys.

Guthrie—All except five farmers in King county will plant an improved strain of certified Mebane cotton this season as a part of an effort by R. L. White, county agent, to get the entire county on one variety of excellent cotton. One farmer plans to grow a block of registered seed for supplying local demand for seed next year.

Franklin—Black-eyed peas will find a place every year in the cropping system of J. M. Caddle, Robertson county farmer, who planted this crop last summer when he plowed up cotton. As told V. L. Sandlin, county agent, from 5 acres of peas on rented land the Caddles canned 550 containers, harvested 1000 pounds for feed and seed, pastured 3 hogs on the patch for 3 weeks, almost exterminated the Bermuda grass pest, and improved the soil fertility.

foreman operating in his district. Two septic tanks have been installed, one at Evans and another near Oglesby. A crew of men has just been started making sewer connections in Gatesville. Forty-nine people are now employed in all sanitary construction work in the county.

About 250 pit privy units and 25 septic tanks have been signed in the county up to date, about twelve or fifteen schools being represented in the number of signers.

The county-wide health survey, which is employing twelve women is nearing completion, and all data from the survey reports is being tabulated. This information will furnish Mr. Culp and the regular County and City Health Officers with a complete checkup on the number of cases of the various diseases, extent of vaccinations, and general sanitary conditions in the various localities, upon which further work will be based under the direction of the State Health Department.

Inspections have been made of the city water and sewerage systems, tourists camps, and swimming pools, where these exist, and findings have been reported to the State Health Department for study.

Anybody in the County wishing to take advantage of the State Laboratory's free well testing service should get in touch with the County Sanitarian's office where information will be given for taking water samples. The office will send the samples to the laboratory free of charge.

A little lesson in heredity was pointed out the other day by George Kemp, Ballinger dairyman in conversation with the county agent. He exhibited two half sister heifers. One with her second calf sired by the herd bull was giving 40 pounds of milk daily; the other, by the same mother but sired by a scrub that broke in was giving barely enough milk for her calf.

The best turkey Miss Lila Young has been able to get in New York City this season was Texas canned turkey sent her by her mother in Jackson county. It was put up on shares with Mrs. A. E. Wilson of the Friendship Home Demonstration Club.

Reports received by the county agent in Kaufman county from 71 of the 116 boys enrolled in 4-H club work last year show that a total of $332.10 was made by these boys as return on labor and investment in a variety of better farming demonstrations.

From a garden 100 x 50 feet, Nellie Maude Bennett, garden demonstrator in the Sandia Girls' 4-H Club in Jim Wells county, produced 2263 pounds of vegetables valued at $54.35. The garden cost $8.50 in cash.

Giving an account of the factors that led to his success as the champion cotton raiser in Washington county last year, Melvin Loesch, 4-H club boy said: "Good seed, proper preparation of land and proper tillage is the main thing. If you do that much God Almighty will help you do the rest, but He won't do it all for you, you have to do your part."

A total of 2433 Dallas farm women, not members of home demonstration clubs, were given help last year in living at home making clothing and beautifying their homes through the efforts of the Dallas County Home Demonstration Council.

Belton—Home demonstration work in Bell county reached 74.5 per cent of all the rural population in 1933. This included 1406 families not hitherto directly helped by this work in the county. During the year 14 pantry demonstrators and 133 cooperators conserved 33,850 quarts of canned food and 59,070 pounds of cured food having a total valuation of 14,395.57. The 13 wardrobe demonstrators dressed themselves for 341.13 and made 103

Texas Industrial Activities

The Marble Falls quarries are shipping big orders of Texas pink granite to Los Angeles (for the Times building), New York (for a new edifice on Columbia University's campus), Houston (for the new Southern Pacific terminal) and to Port Isabel, Freeport and Texas City for jetty work. Rugged strength, beautiful coloring and susceptibility to a fine polish are some of the attributes of this stone.

The Craddock Food Manufacturing Co., Dallas, is planning to move into larger quarters and to double its present capacity. The new plan will increase the available floor space from 10,000 feet to 22,100 feet and the number of pickling vats—pickles are one of its major products—from eighteen to sixty. The company, established in 1926, was recently incorporated with $50,000 capital stock.

Texas is much interested in the possibilities of print paper manufacturing from Southern yellow pine. New chemical processes make paper-making one of the profitable industries in the yellow pine country, and Texas has huge potentialities along this line. The United States is now importing 54 per cent of its print paper, either in pulp or finished product, and the yellow pine forests of the South, it is estimated, can easily supply the deficiency now being imported.

In November Texas brought in 562 out of the 945 producing oil wells in the nation. The proportion in production was even more notable, initial production for the United States totaling 2,972,054 barrels and for Texas 2,757,187 barrels.

Construction of a $250,000 brewery at El Paso is to be started by Mexican capitalists, according to El Paso dispatches. Harry Mitchell Brewing Co. is another El Paso brewery chartered with $150,000 capital manufacture non-intoxicating beverages.

The heaviest single shipment of machinery ever handled by American railroads recently was received at Texas City—a 424,000 pound steel still for installation in the Pan-American refinery under construction in that city. Gross weight of the shipment, moved on two specially constructed cars, was 632,000 pounds.

Foods products manufactured in Sherman include peanut butter, pickles, relishes, mustard, rolled oats, candy, flour, corn meal, shortening, salad oil, potato chips, cheese, powdered milk and other milk products. None of the smaller cities of Texas has a more diversified industrial output than the Grayson County capital.

There's Money in "Them Thar" Hens!

Perryton.—With $83.04 in cash and $32.11 in the form of poultry and eggs eaten at home to show for his flock of 150 hens last year, C. O. Roach, poultry demonstrator concludes that money can be made from 10-cent eggs. The flock averaged 149 eggs per hen for the year on a ration which cost an average of 4 cents per dozen eggs, not counting skim milk. After all cost for building upkeep, interest, hatching and raising chicks and maturing for flock replacement was charged to the hens, it was found that they had made an average net profit of 55 cents per hen.

If money can be made on 10c eggs we know you can make money at present prices.

THE PRESIDENT'S BIRTHDAY

January the thirtieth will be President Franklin Delano Roosevelt's birthday anniversary. The philanthropic president of the United States has endorsed a very charitable enterprise in keeping with the occasion.

Due to the size of the immediate locality there will probably be no celebration in Coryell County, however, there will be many balls in Texas on January 30.

Throughout the President's wonderful recovery program he has found time to turn his attention to those 150,000 who are physically unfit, sufferers of the terrible malady called "anterior poliomyelitis".

A POSSIBLE SOLUTION

The Spring legislature and the people of Texas will be confronted with a stupendous problem if the proposed bill is introduced into the house amending the Dean Law regarding liquor traffic.

According to the provisions of the constitution it would not be unconstitutional to permit the transportation of liquor in the form of imports so long as the spirits are not maintained for sale in this state.

Senator Hopkins, of Gonzales, is now at work on a bill which would allow individuals to have shipped into Texas from wet states spirits for their own use after they have secured an importation permit, for which each would be charged something like $5 annual fee.

Should the bill be legal it is the opinion of the constituents that such a measure would deal a sharp blow to bootleggers in this state and keep the saloon or public dispensary out of the picture, and at the same time provide a wealth of annual income for the state.

It would not take a constitutional amendment to make such a measure legal, since the constitution is not affected. It would make necessary however an amendment to the Dean Law, which can be done through the power of the legislature.

Drys want three things; maintenance of the liquor amendment, banishment of the bootleggers and to keep the saloons out of the country.

The News sees two outstanding features of the proposed bill, one is the form of a strong point and another in the form of a weakness. Apparently the greatest weakness lies in the fact that thus far no limitations are placed on the amount of liquor a single individual might have imported for his personal consumption.

As for a strong point, the News sees in the proposed bill an opportunity to give satisfaction to the drys by staying off repeal submission until public sentiment is a bit cultivated.

The greatest feature of all, however, is the great amount of taxes that such a measure would provide for the state, which incidentally is greatly needed at this time.

Once the proper limitations are included in Senator Hopkins' bill as regards individual consumption the people of Texas might see the opportunity of continued progress in this state with the abolishment of bootleggers, saloons remaining outlawed and an appreciable bulge in the state till. The President looks with favor upon every loyal Democratic state that is doing its part toward carrying out the reconstruction plan and no doubt also looks with favor upon the Hopkins bill.

Indian Lore of Coryell County

By C. J. Shook

My great grandfather, William Robinson, came from Missouri in 1828 and settled in what is now Walker County. Nathaniel Shook came out of Arkansas in 1839 and married my grandmother in 1840.

My father was in several Indian raids in his young days and these adventures were discussed daily in our home thus I grew up accustomed to Indian lore and traditions.

Grandfather Williamson was scalped on our farm in April 1863. He was shot 17 times. Fifty-nine years after his being murdered I picked up an arrow point on the exact location of the depredation.

In my ethnological research in the last five years I have found many interesting things about our neighbor of yesterday concerning their habits, customs, traditions and methods of living.

In the past two years I have collected between five and six hundred pieces of Indian work. Some of these pieces are finished and in perfect condition. It seems to me that the earlier Indian was easier to get along with. I base this conclusion on the fact that the tribe around Cunningham Cave had more tools to work with than those on the War Path. The arrow points were more of one type and the scrapers were made of the same kind of stone.

About two miles from Cunningham Cave is a deep hole of water known as the Cottonwood Hole. On the bluff above the hole of water there are eight stationary mortars worked out of the rock. They are about 15 inches across and 20 inches deep.

The later day Indian made more of the war point and javelin types. I have several of them. I have never been able to find a tomahawk which measures up to the vivid memory of one I saw in my childhood.

In my collection I have two hammer stones which I dug out of Cunningham Cave. In this place I also found one perfect laurel leaf and two broken laurel leaves with snake heads on one of them as well as several good knives, one fire knife, several lance heads, some clubs, and fifteen blanks.

workmen than others because of the showing in their chippings and chipping locations. These experts would find the proper type of stone and break out the required blanks and send or take them to camp for finishing.

I have one lave mortar and matete found in the Cunningham Cave. I am sure that it is of Spanish origin. It is 7 inches across and weighs 3 1/2 pounds. I believe that the Indians were too lazy to put out the energy required to operate these heavy tools.

I have one spheroid which is outstanding in material and workmanship. I am told there are very few of these. I have one manos six inches long and 11 inches around. It weighs 31 pounds.

I have over 60 different types of tools many of which I do not know the names of.

My entire collection has come from a radius of five miles of Pearl and I have only two pieces which I did not pick up myself. I hope sometime to have something worthwhile. I consider my collection as worthwhile now but hope to make it even more complete than it is.

JAPAN'S HEIR By LEONARD A. BARRETT

Japan celebrated with characteristic jubilation the birth of an heir to the throne of the oldest dynasty of the world. The press reports that the processions were composed of persons from all ranks of social life marching all night long to ward the royal palace.

Buddhists in gratitude that a mikado was at last born in the imperial household. The present mikado and his empress have four children, but they are all daughters. Now that a son has been born to them, the one hundred million Japanese point proudly to the fact that he is to be the one hundred and twenty-fifth mikado.

The birth of the future mikado, however, suggests several interesting questions. What conditions of international relations will he face when he assumes the reigns of power? How efficient will be his defensive warfare? Will it always control the Pacific? How much additional territory will Japan possess if her population continues to increase at the present rate?

Moreover, will there be a Japan when the new ruler reaches his majority? A silly question? Not quite so. It may be a very visionary bit of writing, but if fancy is given free play, could we say that it is altogether impossible for Russia and China to unite in arms against Japan? China hates Japan, and Russia possesses organized man power. Could Japan withstand such an attack? By common consent she could not. What then would become of Japan and her new mikado? Who knows?

Operations of the Corsicana Cotton Mills are being gradually increased to maximum capacity with the weaving rooms operating on two shifts and the remainder of the plant on a single shift basis. New machinery has been placed on about 50 per cent of the loom equipment and the remainder is being installed.

WORLD FOREIGN COMMENT

THE RUSSIAN Parliament, called ZIK for short, met last week in Moscow. Premier Molotov emerged to say that the Second Five-Year Plan, now entering its second year, will "make life brighter and better for our people." Claiming that the production of Russian heavy industries was increased 11 per cent last year and that bumper crops had wiped out the grain shortage, Premier Molotov admitted that the meat shortage was still acute.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S steps toward promoting world peace by building warships and airplanes seems under the surface to be getting some where in Japan. A few months ago Tokyo dispatches bristled with war talk, but all that is changed now. One reason for this is the naval building plans of our President.

THE FRENCH have offered to scrap half their bombing planes if everyone else did. The reason is that the French bombing planes are obsolete, if not outright junk. Ours are highly efficient. France is doing everything in its power to get on the good side of Great Britain, without whose support she cannot hope to prevent the rearmament of Germany.

WOULD the American people deserve condemnation for any act of aggression if there were 331 people to the square mile in our happy land, and our population was increasing at the rate of 1,000,000 a year? The emphatic answer is no! This is the present condition of the Japanese nation. Throughout 1933 the Japanese carried on an intensive campaign to open up new markets and broaden old ones for the products of its industries. To
