

Evant Athlete Breaks State Record to Win First in Pole Vault

Coryell county should be indeed proud to be able to boast that one young man from this vicinity has made a noteworthy record in interscholastic athletic circles.

Sid Goff, 17-year-old son of Will Goff, Evant, won honors in the county meet, later winning greater laurels at the district meet at Waco, has added another feather in his cap of athletic achievements.

Young Goff, representing the Evant school, went to the state class "B" meet at Denton last Saturday. He set a new mark in field events by breaking the state pole vault record of eleven feet. Goffs' jump was 11 feet 6 inches.

Sid Goff also placed third in the broad jump with a distance of 21 feet 3 1/4 inches.

More than two hundred contestants participated in the Denton meet.

Goff is a Sophomore in the Evant High School.

Location of Highway No. 7 to Follow Main Street Westward, Not Authentic

It is not likely that Highway 7 through Gatesville going west will be put under construction at any time in the near future, according to very authentic information.

This fact should help to settle a much argued and talked-about topic of conversation of current issue.

The main reason for this deduction lies in the fact that it is only logical that the gap between the east end of the five, and a quarter miles stretch from the city limits of Gatesville to McLennan county line must be finished before any construction on No. 7 westward is begun.

Rumors would have it that it is a settled fact that Highway 7 has been designated to follow Main Street through Gatesville, however, this is not so, although such could be the case. The matter of location is left entirely up to the federal engineers, who will probably act upon the recommendation of the state highway surveyors. Most likely the recommendation of the last surveyor, before the federal appropriation is made, will be the accepted location. What that will be is only a speculation at present.

The last appropriation from the federal government for highways included twenty counties in the drouth and storm area of Texas and Coryell will not partake in this appropriation.

County Judge Rob't W. Brown will leave for Austin Tuesday to appear before highway officials to present application for extension on Highway 7 from the end of the present paving on east Main Street to Lovers' Lane to connect with the construction now in progress.

From the federal standpoint such work as this comes under the N. R. M. which pertains to municipal streets. If granted, the appropriation will make aid for construction of curbs and gutters on that stretch.

It is estimated that the cost will approximate $6,000 for this 3,000 feet of construction.

Mr. Hall was born April 13, 1856 in Simpson county, Mississippi. At the age of twelve he came, with his parents, to Coryell county and settled near Coryell Church. On December 30, 1884 he was united in marriage to Miss Frankie Ann Dodgin, who preceeded him in death by ten months and two days. Ten children were born to this union, five of whom died in infancy. Surviving children are Dr. T. M. Hall of Gatesville, H. T. Hall of McGregor, T. G. Hall of Crawford, Mrs. C. W. Knight of McGregor and Mrs. J. E. Nelson of Floydada. CELEBRATE GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY; DAUGHTER HER 7TH—FATHER SEES SISTER AGAIN AFTER SIXTY-TWO YEARS

Married fifty years ago today, Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Warren, of Gatesville, are celebrating their Golden Wedding Anniversary.

The happiest part of their anniversary celebration will come Sunday, however, when at least six of their seven children will be with their parents in commemoration of the happy occasion. The children are, J. P. Warren, L. P. Warren, Mrs. A. V. Shirley, Mrs. Ben Adams, Mrs. M. E. Adkins and S. B. Warren. Edward Warren probably will not be able to attend the reunion.

By coincidence, on this same date, Mrs. Adkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren will be celebrating her 7th wedding anniversary. She was married on the 43rd anniversary of her parents wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Warren were born in Wilson county Tennessee. She came to Texas in '69 and Mr. Warren came here in '77. The couple was married at Osage May 11, 1884 by Rev. A. C. Gray.

To Visit His Sister

Mr. S. P. Warren, familiarly known to his many friends in Coryell county as Uncle Pinkney, plans to leave Sunday for Island, Kentucky to visit his sister whom he has not seen for sixty-two years. Mr. Warren will be gone about two weeks.

Asked if he thought he would recognize his sister at first sight, Mr. Warren said, "I am sure that I will. I have a recent picture of her that I am taking with me but I think I will know her without it."

MOTHERS' DAY

"The observance of Mothers' Day has developed into one of the greatest and most sacred occasions of the entire year. On this day—above all others—we may express our love and appreciation for one very dear to us. A remembrance on this day will bring great happiness to Mother," reads the captain paragraph in a department store advertisement.

The advertising copy-writer intended that paragraph to have the necessary appeal to bring Mothers' Day shoppers into the store in search of a material remembrance for Mother. Regardless of the commercial aspect of those printed thoughts the advertisement carries with it a sentiment that is honestly and sincerely worthwhile.

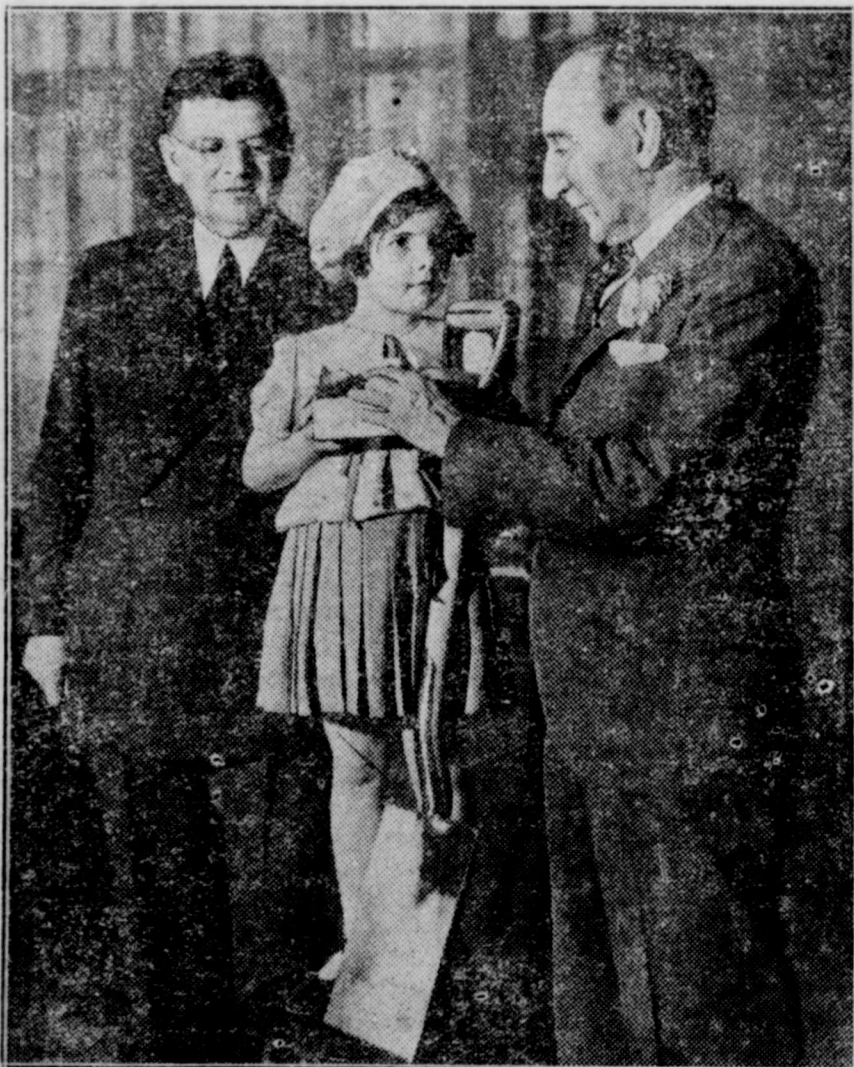

The occasion of Mothers' Day is not an annual festivity or a day of hilarious celebration; it is not the anniversary of the birth of any particular individual but a day which has been designated for respectful observance for that immortal character, Mother.

During one particular day of the year the people of this nation have learned to concentrate their praise and appreciation for their Mothers. Many Americans find an outlet for their expressions in giving gifts while others choose other forms of appreciative thoughtfulness. Regardless of the manner of praise or commemoration, Americans are becoming observant of Mothers' Day each year.

An attempt to develop into the beautiful character and life of the average American Mother would be a form of sacrilege, in as much as there are few men today, poets, authors, composers or painters who can in a measure of true justice make words or lines or colors depict the real American Mother.

We can, even in our humble ways, do homage to "her" on Mothers' Day.

HAMILTON COUNTY VOTES AGAINST BEER IN LOCAL ELECTION

In the election held last Saturday, April 28, in all Hamilton county voting boxes, for the purpose of deciding whether or not the sale of 3.2 per cent beer would be legalized in this county, the voters rejected the proposition to legalize the sale of beer by 64 votes. This information, while secured from reliable sources, was not the official count, which has not yet been made.

Hico voters registered dry tendencies, there being a total of 223 ballots counted, 94 of which were for the sale of beer and 129 against, showing a majority of 35 opposed to the issue.

In the county as a whole, a light vote was reported, with only 1740 ballots cast. Of this number, 838 were for the sale of beer, and 902 against, giving the "dry" side a majority of 64 votes.

At Aleman and Rock House, the vote was solid "wet" with the former casting 105 votes, all for the sale of beer, and the latter casting all 7 of its votes the same way. Other boxes in the county were reported as mixed. —Hico News.

Next week brings Coryell School to the end of another year. In looking back over the work of the past eight months we realize that there have been mistakes and failures, but there has also been a number of improvements of which we are rather proud. One of these is the attainment of the goal of standardization toward which we have been working for the last three or four years. We are to receive our certificate from the State Department this week.

Examinations are to be given during the last of next week. Attention has been called to the fact that a new system of grading is now in use. This is in keeping with our policy of raising our standard of work in order that credit from this school will continue to be accepted by other schools, and therefore, may be transferred from here without loss. Final examinations serve only as one of the ways of testing knowledge acquired and retained in study over a given period of time. In spite of their apparent disadvantages and the many objections to them, they are the means by which we are able to judge whether or not a student has earned credit in a given course. It is therefore, highly necessary that pupils and parents realize the importance of grades made during the next two weeks. Do this and we will avoid the usual misunderstandings that report cards usually bring.

Senior Class Play

The Senior Class play, "The Ghost Chaser," was given Friday, May 4. The amount of money made was $25.36. According to points Irene Dreyer was chosen by three judges as the best character and will receive a prize.

Seventh Grade Graduation

The seventh grade students attended the Graduation Exercises at Gatesville Tuesday and enjoyed the show, "Alice in Wonderland". They are proud of the fact that everyone passed.

Sports

We have a baseball game matched with White Hall for next Friday and we're practicing in order to win it. We plan to return the game soon.

Fourth Grade

The fourth graders are quite proud of themselves because everyone received a star in English last week. The third graders wonder if they have improved in their speech or just don't hear each other's errors.

We were glad to have Harold Rohloff of Prairie Chapel visit our room Friday.

Post—A farm water control plan which promises more uniform distribution of rainfall and less loss of soil from higher land is being worked out by Elmer Hitt, Pleasant Valley community, Garza county, in cooperation with W. C. Taylor, county agent. A lake on the north side of the farm gathers run-off water from an adjoining public road and surrounding land. By cutting an open ditch about 800 feet long Mr. Hitt will drain the water collecting in this lake to the main part of the field where it will be distributed by means of level terraces. The removal of surplus water from the lake opens up several acres of very fertile tillable land.

"Going Hollywood" High Spot Of Marian Davies Movie Career

"Going Hollywood" has brilliant dance ensembles by Mme Albertin Rasch and six new song hits by Nacio Herg Brown and Arthur Freed.

Marion Davies plays one of the most entertaining roles of her film career in the novel musical production, "Going Hollywood," her new Metra-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle which is to be seen Saturday, Sunday and Monday at the Regal Theatre.

The picture, an original story from the witty pen of Donald Ogden Stewart, actor, humorist and playwright, is a key-hole view of the real Hollywood, yet one spiced with catchy song hits and bizarre dance ensembles which make it one of the most entertaining films of the year.

Practically Plays Himself

Bing Crosby, noted crooner of radio and motion pictures, plays the radio crooner role opposite

Miss Davies.

Six jingly melodies have been created for the film by the noted composing team of Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed, co-authors of the national song hits, "Wedding of the Painted Doll" and "The Old Woman in the Shoe."

Their new numbers—"Our Big Love Scene," "Going Hollywood," "We'll Make Hay While the Sun Shines," "Temptation," "Cinderella's Fella" and "After Sundown," written exclusively for Miss Davies, promise to become nationally popular overnight.

To beautify the musical numbers, numerous original dance ensembles in gorgeous, colorful settings were created and supervised by Albertina Rasch, famous dance instructor.

Flame of the Border

He carried his hat in his hand as he whirled the horse around the corner of the ancient stone house, and did not look back, and Sonya listened to the shod hoofs striking into the defile that led down the face of the sheer cliff.

She sat stiffly quiet in her saddle and was conscious of a strange tumult within her spirit. What had she done, talking here in this high solitude with this mysterious rider whose inner self was black with unnamed sins—whose very presence in the land was a menace and a portent of disaster? For she knew past all doubting that this was the Blue-eyed One of whom the Servant spoke in his vague parables, that henchman of Beelzebub who went before trouble. And she who owed him hatred, who had vowed to take her pound of flesh from him because of what he had tried to do that day at the mesa's rim! She had talked with him, earnestly, and without scorn!

The next day she went to see Little Moon and refused the bundle of sheep pelts which Two Fingers offered her, along with the gorgeous finished blanket which the woman laid across her knees.

Sonya stroked the latter with appreciative fingers, but shook her head, smiling.

"What I did for you," she told them in Navajo, "was a giving—a service to my people. You are my people. I have chosen the Navajos before the Great Spirit. Let be. It is well."

After a long silence Two Fingers said, "It is well. And we and all the Navajos around here are your little people, under your feet. A soft blanket to keep your heels from the stones."

"It is very well," the girl said gravely, and knew he spoke the truth. There was to come a day when she would have ample and tragic proof of that, but it was just as well she could not see ahead.

From Chee wash she rode down along the levels of the sage to where the debouching canyon had given up its pitiful small caravan that day she had seen Mr. Satter from the school taking away the children.

On an impulse she turned and rode into this rugged cut that bisected the rising land. She rounded a far-in turn and came upon a habitation. For a time she sat on her horse and contemplated it—a good hogan set against the canyon's wall. There was little sign of prosperity. No rug bloomed on its hand made loom, the hogan was bare of comforts, the beds on its floor being thin and scant. Evidently these Indians were very poor.

She did not call or move about, but sat still in her saddle, waiting, and presently her patience was rewarded, for a soft step sounded behind her and she turned to see the wild buck, the squaw, and the littlest child of that pitiful drama in which she had participated.

She smiled at them, and when Sonya Savarin smiled, a window of her soul opened and disclosed a light. The family came carefully up to her.

"I come to see if all is well with you and yours," she told the man in Navajo.

"It is well with this one," he replied, touching the child, "but not with this one," touching the mother. "Her heart runs away in water, and she does not eat."

And looking closer Sonya saw in astonished sorrow that it was so indeed. The woman who had been plump and hale some weeks back, was now a scarecrow, her old velvet jacket hanging loose on her form, her tragic eyes sunk in hollows. Her brown lips looked dry and hard.

For a moment the girl felt such a revulsion against the whole white race as to give her an actual nausea. Her hands ached to get hold of Satter's fat neck for one good minute.

"So," she said, "I see. Have you told her that the little ones will be coming home soon? Did the agent tell you when to go after them?"

"No," said the man, "and I do not know where to go."

"Oh," said Sonya under her breath, "the dirty beast!"

Aloud she said slowly, "Well, you tell her to look up to the east and before many days she will see her children coming. What is your name, Hosteen?"

The man hesitated, since the naming of one's own name is not good, but this was a desperate matter.

"I am Hosteen Nez," he said presently, "and she is Cactus Flower."

"And I am Sonya—Doctor Sonya—from down on the desert beyond

"I Am Hosteen Nez," He said Presently, "and She is Cactus Flower."

Lone Mesa, and I will see the man who took the children. Maybe four sleeps, maybe five. You tell her eat and get strong."

"I will tell her," said Hosteen Nez, and his eyes looked so deep into Sonya's that the girl's heart hurt with their probing.

"I will come again," she said and, turning Darkness, went back down the great cut of Blue Sand canyon as she had come.

That night, talking with Serge and Lila in the twilit patio with Babs asleep on her lap, she protested passionately against the treatment of the Indians by the whites in authority.

Serge smoked in silence, his dark eyes gazing out along the gray sage stretches that were turning purple in the falling shadows.

"Kid," he said presently, "you're the best little scout ever, but I'm afraid that some day you're going to get yourself into a peck of trouble, messing in where you don't belong."

"Messing in where I don't belong!" cried the girl hotly. "Do you call helping that mother get her young ones back for the summer vacation messing in, when she's actually grieving herself to death in her ignorance and fear? Suppose it were Lila and Babs, for instance?"

Serge moved uneasily, knocked out the dottle of his pipe.

"Well, of course—"

"Yes, of course! That's it. That's always it from the white man's viewpoint. Well, old dear, you can just hold yourself in readiness to bail me out of jail, for I may need it. I'm going over to that school and get those youngsters and take them back to that hogan. If it's the last thing I do. School is already out for the season, and that fat Satter hasn't taken the trouble to return them or to even tell the father where to come for them. Can you beat that for sheer downright meanness? If you don't need the car, I'll take it and go over to the school sometime this week—maybe day after tomorrow. O. K., Serge?"

"O. K., honey. I'll begin looking round for ball in the meantime in case you find something you can use as an excuse to hop the school authorities."

Sonya was as good as her word. On Wednesday of that week she took the disreputable old car and set out across the wild and lonely land in the general direction of the government school for which Satter was the gathering agent.

The large rooms were sweetly cool in the early summer heat, and she took off her hat and leaned back in her chair in grateful enjoyment.

She had not long to wait, for presently the superintendent, a Mr. Claude Spartow, came in briskly with extended hand.

"Why, Miss Savarin—Doctor Savarin, I should say, though the austere title don't seem to belong to a girl like you—this is a pleasure, I assure you! Come right into my office."

He led her into his private office, a spacious comfortable place, its walls lined with filing cases, and pulled up the deepest big chair.

"There!" he said. "That's better. Now relax. You must be tired."

"No," said Sonya, "I'm not, and I'm in somewhat of a hurry. I've come for the two children of the Indian, Hosteen Nez, over in the big cut beyond Lone Mesa, just on the line of the Reservation. This case is rather pitiful, Mr. Spartow, and I'd like to enlist your attention to it. Mr. Satter will remember. I came upon him taking the children, not so many weeks back—very near the end of the term—and the parents are 'wild Indians.' They don't understand either the necessity or the methods employed in the matter of giving up their children, and I begged off the littlest one from Mr. Satter. The mother had run herself nearly into collapse, hanging on the buckboard's tail. She is in a serious condition now, with her grief over their disappearance. Doesn't eat. Looks awful. And Mr. Satter had forgotten to tell them where to come for the children. It is rather hard, when you think of it, on parents, you know, either red or white. As it would take the Hosteen some days to get here and back with his horses to fetch them, I'd like to take the children to them myself. I will be responsible to you for them."

As the girl talked the man's sharp eyes regarded her with an alertness of expression that changed to guardedness as she mentioned Satter's lapse of memory. Now he leaned toward her, smiling.

"Why, how kind of you, my dear Miss Savarin!" he said. "Few women of this day would take so much trouble for ignorant Indians. Of course you may take the little ones. But surely you're not starting back today? You'll stay with us for the night and get a good early start tomorrow, if I have my way."

"Oh, my, no!" said Sonya. "I'll get on my way as quickly as possible. Will it take long to get them ready?"

"If you really think you must go," he said regretfully, "I'll have them made ready at once. It won't take long."

The two were presently brought to her, their belongings in a neat bundle. They still looked as they had looked that day in the buckboard, like frightened quail.

Sonya smiled at them, took their unresisting hands.

Then she smiled at Spartow.

"I thank you, sir," she said gently, "and I shall not forget your kindness in letting me take them. I hope you'll ask Mr. Satter to tell the fathers next time, will you, please, Mr. Spartow?"

Mr. Spartow returned the smile with a look that promised to ask the government for a million-dollar loan if she thought it necessary.

And presently Sonya Savarin was driving down across the illimitable levels with joy in her heart and the hushed little Navajos huddled in against her with instinctive trust. She was thinking what fun she would have watching Cactus Flower's haggard face when she took them in to the hidden hogan in the canyon.

CHAPTER V

Deep Things Begin to Glimmer.

THAT little matter proved almost more than she could stand, however, for the Indian mother, watching the east continually since her previous visit, having taken her advice literally, collapsed at sight of her children, and Sonya had a brisk half hour in bringing her round again.

But all's well that ends well, and the girl finally rode away, leading her extra horse with a smile on her lips and the deep light in her eyes that Rod Blake called fanaticism.

Maybe it was, but it made her foolishly happy to see this poor family united again. And Hosteen Nez had looked over his woman's head at her exactly as Two Fingers had and called her Blue South Woman in the Sun. It was all he said, but it was pregnant with deep things, and Sonya knew it so.

So she opened her lips and sang. And then she came to the canyon's mouth and caught her breath sharply, for a man sat there on a golden horse. He looked like a young god with the sunlight on his hair, and his eyes as blue as the heavens, and the grave look on his handsome face.

"Forgive me," he said quickly "for being in your trail again."

"Why?" she said as quickly. "It is free country."

"Yes, I know. But I promised to stay away."

"That was from Lone Mesa."

"The intent was everywhere. I meant it, too—was goin'—going to keep my word, but I seem to come back regar!"

CHURCHES

MOTHERS' DAY SERVICE

There will be a special Mothers' Day Service held at the First Christian Church next Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. A cordial invitation is extended to the public.

German Bethel Baptist Church

The month of May has two outstanding days in which we must emphasize specific things: Mothers Day and Memorial Day. Sunday, May 13th is Mothers Day. Think God for Mothers Day but most of all thank God for Mothers; they mean so much to each of us. A captain and a sergeant games according to the way they handle the Road-gang Monday.

Arnold's team annexed another victory by trouncing the State-hill players, 14-0. Several of Arnolds' reliables were missing when the first ball was thrown but this didn't seem to affect the result of the game.

The Methodists, who have been lagging in the rear all during the season, without a legal win to their credit, came out of the bushes to take a hard fought game from the Roundtable, in a contest that went for an extra inning. Fans rumor this to be one of the most interesting games so far, that is to say one of the highest games.

It is interesting to note that the same matched teams last Tuesday night will play again on Friday night. Wonder if times will change? Tuesday's winners say, "Nay", while losers say, "Aye".

once found a mother and her two children hidden in some bushes starving; they gave them a loaf of bread. The mother took it eagerly like a famished animal, broke it into two pieces, giving one piece to the one child the other to the second child retaining none for herself. The sergeant looked up to the captain and said: "Is it because the mother is not hungry?" The captain replied: "No, sergeant, it is because she is a mother".

Joaquin Miller writes: "The bravest battle that ever was fought.

Shall I tell you where and when? On the maps of world you will find it not.

It was fought by the Mothers of men".

The love of the mother of Jesus followed Him to the crest of Calvary in spite of the fact that, so far as the world was concerned, He was a criminal and an outcast; despised and rejected of men; hated and hooted; spit upon; derided and desecrated; scorned and sneered at. Mothers in our age are doing no less.

"O Mother, when I think of thee,

'Tis but a step to Calvary!"

Tires feature this very same principle for the very same purpose—to provide you with positive traction under the most adverse conditions.

You'll need no technical knowledge to appreciate the advantage of this principle—a mere glance at the U. S. Cogwheel Tread will convince you of its road-gripping qualities.

What a glance does not disclose, however, is that this tread is made of Tempered Rubber, the toughest, slowest wearing tire-rubber ever developed—and underneath it is the extra strength of U. S. Safety Bonded cord body, the greatest security against blowouts known.

With death losses of 400 in a lot of 800, and 215 in a lot of 450, the owners called on H. M. Contrell, county agent, for help. In each case proper ventilation was installed to allow the gas to escape through a pipe from the cone top of the hover out through the roof. "CLEAN SHIRTS" GIVEN HEARTY BOOST BY NATION'S BUSINESS

A splendid piece of unsolicited publicity for the laundry industry appears in the editorial pages of "Nation's Business" for March. This publication is the official organ of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Here is the editorial as it appeared:

"We have until now kept aloof from the great shirt movement which has been agitating the world. We have never joined the Red Shirts of Russia, the Black Shirts of Italy, the Brown Shirts of Germany, the Blue Shirts, the Green shirts, or the Yellow Shirts of various other portion of Europe. We have resisted the temptation to join William Dudley Pelley's Silver Shirts of America.

"Now, however, we have decided to form our own shirt organization:

The Clean Shirts of America

"Clean Shirts of America" has nothing in common with the "Black Shirts," the "Brown Shirts," the "Blue Shirts," or any other variety of Fascism or Nazism, but has much to do with the laundry industry. It makes the member "clean shirt conscious," and to that extent improves the scenery of city streets and public gatherings, raises the self-approval of the member—who observes the requirements—and at the same time helps the laundry back to financial stability. Join now.

WITH JOHN GILBERT

"Its purposes are simple. The one requirement of its members is that they shall put on a clean shirt as often as they think advisable, giving regard to the day the laundry is due back, the state of the weather and the state of the wife's mind as to how often such a change is necessary. Added to that duty, each member is urged, but not required, to mind his own business so far as may seem convenient.

"The great strength of this organization lies in the fact that it is not 'constructive'. It has:

"No initiation fee; no dues; no officers; no ritual; no publication; no bill before congress.

"No member may ask another to join. Anyone, white or black, male or female, old or young, may join by saying (to himself) 'aye'. After that he need only put on a clean shirt when he thinks it is called for and mind his own business."

When you say "Aye" call the Gatesville Laundry, 40. We will pick up and deliver your bundle. Adv—
