Aided by sketchy descriptions furnished by June, police and Sheriff's officers took up the hunt with renewed effort in the belief that arrest of one or two of the kidnapers was not far off.

Coryell Cotton Ass'n Will Administer Bankhead Act

Administration of the Bankhead Act will be carried on in the various cotton-belt counties by the local production control associations, according to information from AAA headquarters relayed to officials here by A & M College Extension Service.

The allotment for Coryell county and the individual pro rata lot for each cotton producer has been received by D. W. Sherrill, county agent, to date. But, according to the agent, preparations have been made so that as soon as the count allotment is received work can immediately be put under way on the execution of the Bankhead Act.

Advance notices indicate that Texas has been allotted a 1934 production of 3,091,200 bales which may be ginned and sold tax free. All in excess of this must pay a tax at time of sale of 50% of the average central market price for 3/8ths inch middling as proclaimed by the Secretary of Agriculture from time to time, based on spot market quotations. At no time can this tax be less than 5 cents per pound.

Every producer of cotton is called upon to apply to his county cotton production control association for tax exemption certificates for his individual allotment. As far as possible signers of voluntary cotton reduction contracts will be given the same

SOUTHWESTERN U. DEAN SPEAKS TO SENIORS OF GATESVILLE

Miss Laura Kuykendall, Dean of Women, at Southwestern University, Georgetown, spoke to members of the Gatesville Senior Class at a meeting of that group Monday afternoon, at the high school.

Miss Kuykendall is travelling over the state in the interest of Southwestern, having already visited more than a hundred schools in Texas.

Indications for an increase in college attendance over the last year's enrollment are very very evident, in Miss Kuykendall's opinion.

She is very optimistic over the prospects for the university which she represents.

J. Y. HAMILTON SEEKS VOTERS SUPPORT FOR SHERIFF

To The Voters of Coryell County:

I am thankful for this opportunity to make my announcement as a candidate for the office of sheriff of Coryell county. I am not seeking the office through any malice, or to any selfish means, and if elected to the sheriff's office I will to the best of my ability discharge the duties thereof, with only one purpose in mind, and that to make you a faithful and efficient officer.

I have spent the greater portion of my life in the Evant Community. My people from grandfather Tom Hamilton on down to my father were reared in the Jonesboro Community.

It has been my good fortune to have had the opportunity of serving as deputy sheriff under the late Sheriff W. W. Hollingsworth, and also under Sheriff Mack Morgan of Hamilton county, Evant having been on the dividing line between the two counties.

To the people that know me I sincerely solicit your earnest consideration, and to those of you whom it has not been my pleasure to know, I ask you to make a thorough investigation as to my character as a man and my qualifications for running the sheriff's office.

If elected I pledge you my very best efforts and promise to conduct the affairs of the office in a business like and impartial manner.

I want to assure you all that any service rendered in behalf of my candidacy will be greatly appreciated.

Respectfully yours,
J. Y. Hamilton.

Highway 36 Will Be Built When Money Is Available

Highway 36, particularly from Gatesville to Temple, which has had it rise and fall in public interest has been recently stimulated by authoritative information.

According to news dispatches released at Austin, Highway 36 from Temple to Coryell will be put under construction as soon as funds are available. In other words, Bell-Coryell highway ranks high on the list of pending road enterprises and will be one of the first to receive earnest consideration from the highway department, as soon as funds will permit.

AUSTIN—Low bids for highway construction in 11 Texas counties received Monday by the state highway commission totaled $1,008,319. Contracts were awarded on six projects costing $508,178, which will be financed with state funds. The remainder of the work will be paid for with the national recovery act funds.

HIGHWAY 36 COMING NEXT

Although not making any definite commitments, the state highway commission, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Austin, has promised to award construction on Highway 36 across Bell county and on highway No. 2 across the county when the next allotment of funds is made available.

Bell county had expected this construction work to start long ago, but since it hasn't been started yet, the news is encouraging that the highway commission is going to get to it before very long.

With Highway 36 completed across the county and highway No. 2 re-routed and paved between Temple and Belton, this county will have the bulk of its arterial highways paved and serving this section.

There will remain then, only highway No. 5 of the major projects, to be recognized.

The Central Texas highway situation gradually is getting straightened out, largely through the efforts of highway committees of the Temple and Belton Chambers of Commerce and county commissioners' court.

For being located in the center of the State Bell county has been badly neglected in the past. It is time that the new deal reach this area.—Temple Telegram.

WTCC HITS THE BALL

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce, of which Gatesville is a member, began its annual convention session Tuesday at San Angelo. The opening day was filled with motion as the body passed a dozen resolutions affecting the entire state.

Without a dissenting vote the convention passed a resolution calling for abandonment of present relief methods and organization machinery.

The vote on the resolution came after a very stirring speech from Walter Cline, chamber president.

"Neighborliness and friendship to help man to become self-sustaining, is the thing for which west Texas should stand," stated Cline. "This is the only policy the government can adopt and hope to endure."

Another noteworthy resolution adopted by the convention, and the first, favored the minimizing of crime by eliminating technicalities in the criminal code and changes in the state pardon and parole system. The resolution asserted that criminals "are making a mockery of the law."

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce is a live-wire organization and apparently has the interests of the people at heart. Such organizations as this are the only organizations outside of the state legislative bodies that can get results. It's a task far too stupendous for any individual to undertake. Citizens should be ready to accept the offer of these constructive organizations to bring to bear pressure where pressure is needed if results are to be expected.

"Fashions of 1934" Coming With Styles, Comedy & Romance

One of the most colorful pictures to come from Hollywood in many days is promised by the management with the showing of the First National production, "Fashions of 1934," with William Powell in the stellar role at the Regal next Saturday night.

The picture is said to combine hilarious comedy with glamorous romance and a mammoth spectacle, the latter staged by Busby Berkeley, the musical comedy director whose flair for the unique and bizarre is exemplified in the beautiful specialty numbers in "Footlight Parade," "Gold Diggers of 1933," "42nd Street" and other pictures.

The prize number in "Fashions of 1934" is a most unusual spectacle in which 200 beautiful girls, do a fan dance in rhythm to music furnished by a harp orchestra.

One feature calculated to appeal especially to women is a gorgeous fashion show staged by Director William Dieterle. In the luxurious setting of a fashionable and exclusive Paris modiste shop, more than a score of girls display the very latest 1934 styles in women's evening gowns and wraps, sports suits, negligees and lingerie.

These are but some of the special numbers seen in a picture that is basically comedy drama in which William Powell as a high pressure promoter, corners the Paris fashion market and sets himself up as the king of fashions.

Bettie Davis plays opposite Powell as his co-conspirators and vies for his love with Verree Teasdale, who is seen in the character of an American show girl masquerading as a Russian Grand Duchess.

With two such comedians as Frank McHugh and Hugh Herbert teamed up, the fun promises to be irrepressible. As the somewhat flirtations aide of Powell, McHugh manages to get into romantic entanglements that are comical enough to stir the resiliencies of a deacon.

Drama of Life, Love Among Arctic Natives In Picture, "Eskimo"

The grandeur of the earth's white mantle of snow at the North Pole is shown in vistas that will stir film audiences in "Eskimo," great epic of the Arctic filmed by Col. W. S. Van Dyke for the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. The picture opens Sunday at the Palace Theatre.

Thousands of miles of ice and snow provide a background for the greatest record of a native people ever made on film. Gasps come thick and fast for the audience as they thrill to panoramas that defy description. One scene shows the "Midnight Sun" streaking a track across the ice for fully two hundred miles with the figure of a native in the foreground dwarfed to a tiny speck. Other views show millions of tons of ice shifting and rearing in the Spring "crack up" and endangering the lives of Eskimo hunters and fishermen.

Husband "Lends" Wife
Capt. Peter Freuchen's thrill-

ODD THINGS AND NEW—By Lane Bode

ing story of life and love among the natives in this northernmost point inhabited by mankind has been faithfully and beautifully recorded. Particularly amazing is the moral code of these Eskimos which permits a husband to have more than one wife, and friends on occasion. It serves also to "lend" his wives to his as the root of one of the strongest dramatic situations ever to reach the talking screen.

Great spectacles in the picture include the caribou charge in which more than 4,000 of the horned beasts go on the rampage; walrus hunts in which native boats are overturned and men injured in attempts to escape knife-sharp tusks; natives hunting whales in small boats; blizzards and icy hurricanes at temperatures that defied human life; polar bear hunts and native spear-fishing. Individual performances will long be remembered by audiences because of their utter simplicity. The players actually live their roles before the camera and the spectator is never conscious that a story is being "acted."

Mala, the native Eskimo who heads the cast, is superb in physique and gives a performance that will startle the public used to Hollywood's brand of actors.

No Camera Consciousness
Native Eskimos add a glamour of authenticity to the cast. There is not artificiality or "camera consciousness" among them.

Van Dyke has accomplished one of the most difficult jobs in direction ever attempted. He has blended the natives into a dramatic story that will be recognized as one of the screen's greatest achievements.

SOFTBALL SYMPTOMS

By TEDDY

The most exciting game of the season was played Monday night between the Baptist and the Roundtable. The Bachelors started off in a big way, tallying six runs before the churchmen marked. For two innings the pitchers were on even terms, putting three up and three down. The Baptist tightened-down when Busby made the spectacular catch of the game. It was in the fifth inning when the Baptists rallied to tie the score, and in the seventh marked again to defeat the Bachelors 9 to 8.

A bunch of hard-hitting Fire Fighters downed the Road-Gang in an easy manner Monday night by a score of 12 to 4. The Firemen are still in the winning streak, and are still improving in the field as well as at bat. They will make it hard for any club.

Ward's gang marked up another victory Tuesday night to defeat the State 16 to 2. Ricketts pitched his best game of the season, after pitching his poorest last Thursday. With eight men, Ward's bunch held the State without a tally until the seventh inning, when Harris started a rally.

Arnold's team continued to win by skunking the Roundtable 11 to 0 Tuesday night. Arnold's starting pitcher was ill, but his team had no trouble in crushing the Bachelors.

—MY—DOPE—

The dope, Ward's gang defeating the State with ease and Arnold's team crushing the Bachelors, was as doped. Anything could happen at any time, with the entire eight teams improving.

Today—State School will defeat the Methodists, but may have trouble.

Arnold will have no trouble in defeating the Highwaymen.

Monday—Arnold will defeat the Baptist by a small margin.

The Road Gang will defeat the Roundtable with ease.

Pidcoke Baptist Church

Encourage the pastor next Sabbath day by your presence in the church service. The pastor, Bro. Clark, makes a great sacrifice in coming so far to serve the church. We should consider it not only a duty but a privilege to come to God's house and worship.

We were proud of the large attendance in Sunday School last Sunday. There were over 122 present. Come again and bring your friends with you.

We have thirty-eight members in our adult B. T. S. under the leadership of our very enthusiastic president, this union is doing a mighty good work enlisting and enlightening its members. The contest between the two groups will close next Sunday, May 20. Help your side win.

This preacher expects his people at church.

Marcus M. Chunn, Pastor.

German Bethel Baptist Church

Sunday, May 20 is Pentecost and this day should mean so very much for the church of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. On the first Pentecost in the Christian era the Holy Spirit came to earth and is with us still. On one occasion the Master said: "The foxes have holes and the birds of the air have nests; but the son of man hath not where to lay His head". Is the Holy Spirit more fortunate? His dwelling-place is the heart and life of every child of Gods. How much of the heart and life does He inhabit

Mothers' Day was a great day with us at the German Bethel Baptist Church, homage was paid Mothers both the living and also those in the home above the skies. Many worshipped with us. Let us make Pentecost a great day by surrendering more of self. The Holy Spirit is the source of wisdom, spiritual power and salvation. If we would have pentecostal power we must have more than religious education, church organization, equipment and machinery. The power of the Holy Spirit is the crying need of the church in this age. Go to church on Pentecost and get the habit and then go EVERY Lords day.

BAPTIST NOTES

The Mother-Daughter banquet sponsored by the young women of our church was last Friday evening. The mothers were the guests of the daughters. This was another investment of the church in its young people.

Another of these features for the young people was the Senior Banquet at which the women of the church were hostesses to the seniors and faculty of Gatesville High School. Mrs. J. M. Dawson of Waco was the speaker at the banquet.

Our young people again come to the front in the Baptist Training Service. The following young including one adult made an average of 100 per cent each Sunday evening, in that organization, for the past five months; Leslie Smith, Irma Lee Brooks, Martha Lou Phillips, Mary Elizabeth Brooks, Gladys Marie Phillips, Ruth Rutherford, Julian Smith, Elaine Smith, Pauline Smith, Miss Irma Lee Rutherford and Mrs. Brack Jones. Awards were Bibles, books and a trip to the Southern Baptist Convention.

The pastor is very grateful to Rev. V. F. Lemons and Rev. Pit Boyd who filled the pulpit at both hours last Sunday. Grateful acknowledgement is also made to the choir, the pianist and the young people's department for the service they rendered on that day.

MRS. ANN SHAFER

Mrs. Ann Shafer, age 83, died at her home recently after an illness of several years.

Funeral services were held in the Killeen Cemetery at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon with Rev. W. O. Hopson officiating.

Mrs. Shafer had resided in Coryell county for 25 or 30 years and was a member of the Missionary Baptist Church.

The Baccalaureate sermon will be Sunday, May 20, and commencement exercises will be Monday night following.

Junior News

The Juniors had just about the greatest disappointment of our lives Thursday night when our vice-president, Jack Elam, became ill and we did not get to present our play. We have not given up, however, and expect to stage it Wednesday night.

The Juniors of 1934 are signing off as one of the most successful Junior Classes that ever attended this school—our own opinion, of course.

Sophomore News

The Senior Class was our guests on a picnic May 8, at Bone Crossing. We had broiled bacon, ham, eggs, cake and lemonade. Lawrence Beckett, a member of the Senior Class, lost a little of his dignity when he fell in a mud hole.

Probably we will be able to endure the "high and mighty" airs of the Junior Class four more days. Just wait until we get into their shoes next year, and we will show the school the proper attitude to take.

The Sophomore girls served the High School plain ice cream topped with chocolate ice cream Friday, and we even hunted up a sick Junior to divide with. Aren't we liberal?

Seventh Grade Party

The seventh grade was entertained Tuesday evening in the library of the Elementary School with a very cleverly planned party. After assembling in the library, sides were chosen for an airplane trip to Paris. Several contests were held, and the group that lost had to serve the other groups. CHAPTER IV.—Sonya pays a visit to Little Moon and finds her well on her way to recovery. On her return she rides to the top of Lone Mesa. There she again comes upon the strange young man, but she no longer fears him. When he reiterates his sorrow over his misconduct she indicates forgiveness and assures him a man can always change for the better.

CHAPTER V.—Befriending the wife of Hosteen Nez, a Navajo, she adds him to her circle of devoted friends. At a neighborhood dance she meets the mysterious stranger of the Mesa and demands that he tell her his name. Finally he confides to her that his right name is Starr Stone, that his mother believes him dead, and that he goes by a different name in this region. He departs with a tall, fierce Mexican, with whom he is mysteriously associated.

The next day Sonya went to town to mail her letter. She felt very virtuous and calm. All the strife and unease of the day before had gone from her. She had written dutifully to Rod and told him all the trivial happenings of every day—that is, all but those pertaining to the rider on the golden horse. At the store Mr. Parks was urbanity itself, bustling about to wait on her.

"Good morn," she told him politely.

"It's always a good morning, Doctor Sonya," he said richly, "when we see you here. You don't get down too often."

"No," said Sonya, "I've been pretty busy of late."

"Um. It sure does beat me how a woman can be a doctor. An' a doctor in these parts has got to ride hard an' far, take little pay, an' never be sure of that. You goin' to the dance over to th' Neidlingers next Saturday night? Bill Pingle from Big Town an' two others is goin' to furnish th' music."

"Sounds good, surely."

"Think you folks'll git over?"

"Why, yes," said Sonya, "I shouldn't wonder if we did. The Neidlingers always have such nice times at their ranch. Nice people."

In the room behind the store a man stood where the first sound of Sonya's voice had stopped him. The cigarette he had just rolled hung unsealed in his fingers. Until the girl had gone out, until the last sound of her feet on the boards had died away, until the sputter and roar of the old flivver lessened in the distance, he remained so. Then he flung the cigarette into a refuse barrel and went out the back-door.

Sonya Savarin loved the dances of the region.

Sonya danced and laughed and listened to the music of the violins, the gay accordion, with her arm on th's lean shoulder and that, and was extremely happy. She forgot the sorrows of the world and lived her youth to its full extent. Forgot Rod Blake and New York city and the man of Lone Mesa, all of which had troubled her of late.

Suddenly the music changed, some one yelled "Paul Jones!" and the circling couples broke like the colors in a kaleidoscope. They strung out in a huge oval, all of them holding hands, and began going to the right in time to the lively tune. A whistle blew, and they broke apart, each man taking the woman immediately facing him at the whistle's blast, and dancing on with her. Whirled from this pair of arms to that, breaking step, catching it again, suiting her step to each new partner's, the girl felt as if a wave of portent was bearing down upon her. Something was going to happen—something terrible and wonderful—she was afraid and exhilarated as she had never been in her life before—and here he was coming toward her in the line. He danced as she might have known he would, like the wind blowing in long grass—she could see him sway as he weaved in and out in "alaman-left"—and the whistle blew, and he was here, before her. Her hand was in his, his arm had gone about her, they were drifting away together—and all the lights on the walls were running together in a long blur.

Sonya held her breath and let it out in a long sigh, and felt suddenly the trembling of his arms.

Then the whistle blew again, and some one else had caught her hand, and she was circling right once more in the long oval.

When the number was over she went dizzily to where Lila sat fanning her flushed cheeks and sat down beside her. She wanted to rest, to gather herself together, to still the shameful tumult of her heart.

Some one claimed her, and Sonya went back to the maze of moving figures, but everywhere she went she was conscious of the brilliant eyes of this man. He stood against the wall a little beyond the main door, and he seemed to be alone. He did not dance again, even though there was another Paul Jones, but watched her in a grave stillness, and Sonya could not gather her faculties for her usual light banter.

What was the matter with her?

Why did her heart hammer in her breast with long slow beats, her blood flow through her veins like molten gold drenched in perfume?

What was happening to her? To her life itself? To her destiny and her hopes?

Tears came to her eyes, and she did not hear what her chance partner was saying. Fear was in her heart, and a certain terrible fire that mounted and grew. Time passed, and she was not conscious of it.

Finally, late in the night, the fiddles struck up "Home, Sweet Home," and the dance was over. This was the last number. A cowboy from the K Bar Z with whom she always liked to dance was asking her for it. She had just held out her hand when some one reached forward from the side and took it. Next moment she was gone out along the floor in the dreamy rhythm of the old sweet tune, and this time she was held so close that she could feel the beating of his heart, a thundering reverberation like tides on the shore. Desperately she raised her eyes and looked at him.

"Tell me," she whispered thickly, "what are you? Who are you?"

"Nothing," he said bitterly, "to you. Nothing—ever—and I'd give half my life to kiss one curl on your head—with a decent man's right."

The words came through his set teeth, and even in the tenseness of the moment she noticed that he did not slur his words at the ends.

"Then be decent!" she cried passionately. "Be decent!"

"Too late. I'm only looking in windows—from the outside—and I built the wall between, myself."

"Tell me your name," she said, "tell me."

"No."

"Yes. Tell me now."

"I can't. I haven't a name—any more."

"You have. Your own name. Not what you—you go by—where—where you answer roll call."

"Answer roll call! That's good. What do you know about me? What have you heard?"

"Nothing. I'm guessing, fitting things in place," she said swiftly, "and there's somebody across the Border who crucifies—"

"Hush! For God's sake, don't speaking of that again, ever, anywhere! Where did you hear of—such?"

"No matter. There is—and some way you're connected! It cuts me like a knife—you've got to tell me. Who are you?"

"If I tell you my name, will you keep it like you would your oath?"

"Yes. You know I will."

"Of course I know. I'm Starr Stone to my mother, who thinks I'm dead and buried. In this—country—I go by something different. Now are you satisfied?"

"No. I've got to know the rest. I will know it."

"Why? Heaven knows, you have little to thank me for—little to think of me for. I've blackened your first memory of me beyond all hope."

"Why do you speak carelessly sometimes and now correctly?"

"I've been two men. I am two men."

"What kind of men?"

"What does it matter? I'm a dead man—dead and damned and rotten! Don't trouble your darling head about me. I'm running true to form right now in being here, in holding you in my arms, in looking in your

"WHY HELEN, DON'T THE ICE TRAYS STICK?"

"MY DEAR, ICE TRAYS THAT STICK ARE OUT-OF-DATE . . ."

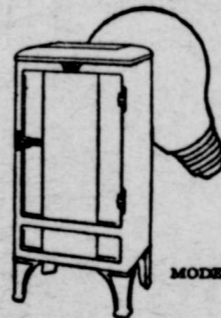

Ours is a Frigidaire '34"

Automatically—at a finger touch—ice trays glide from the freezer of the Frigidaire '34! But that's only one of the features of this fine Frigidaire.

For instance, the Super Series Frigidaire '34 has automatic defrosting; it has Lifetime Porcelain inside and out; it has the new Sliding Utility Basket for eggs and small articles; and the Frigidaire Servashelf that's so convenient when rearranging things in the refrigerator.

Nor is that all! . . . double Hydrator capacity; interior lighting; faster freezing; and more-than-generous food space, with extra room for tall bottles. And the powerful, quiet motor operates on a remarkably small amount of current! Will you come in and see what's happened in electric refrigeration?

face. If anyone this side of the border—anyone who counted—knew me, I'd not have done it. There's that much decency left in me. But no one knows, and I'm like a dying man begging for water I come back to look at you again and again. I'd crawl on my knees around the world to change my—leopard spots," he finished bitterly, "to look in your eyes with a clear conscience."

Suddenly the fire and the fear and the ecstasy which had warred in Sonya all night seemed to rise above her like a tide of sorrow and disaster. She felt as if she sank in swirling waters, drowned in tears. Her throat closed with an aching pain and one hard sob escaped her. Instantly the man looked down, holding her from him.

"My G—d!" he said, "what—what—Why, my G—d!"

Then he drew her to him close and hard, and the trembling of his arms intensified. The face above her small black head had gone baggard as an old man's.

The last soft strains of the tender tune were dying.

The feet of the dancers slowed. And suddenly from nowhere, out of the very night beyond the doors, it seemed, a hand fell on his shoulder, a powerful grasp whirled him about, Sonya with him.

A stranger stood there, a stranger so fierce and terrible in aspect that one knew him at once for a man of violence, of cruelty and death.

It was in his small black eyes above his olive cheeks black with shaven beard, in his hawkbill nose, in his thin-lipped mouth merciless as a panther's. He stood six feet two in his spurred boots, and he wore the wide sombrero of the Mexican Hidalgo, fine of material and ornamented with silver. A studded belt circled his narrow waist; a braided velvet jacket showed the muscled strength of his wide shoulders.

He was a Mexican, and a bad one. If ever one of that brand lived.

He spoke and the man before him stood rooted to the spot, his arm still around the girl.

"Hombre," he said in Spanish, "you disobey! Let's go."

And turning, he walked swiftly to the door. The arm slid from Sonya's shoulders, and without a backward look the Man of Lone Mesa followed. Alone, her feet like lead, her head whirling with a strange dizziness, her throat aching, Sonya crossed the almost empty floor and picked up her coat from where Lila was waking Babs.

Serge joined them, and they went out into the night among the roaring cars of the departing crowd.

Just as they passed out of the circle of light from the open doors a fantastic figure loomed for a moment beside them, its shabby garments and long white hair dim in the blending shadows.

"Beelzebub," said the soft voice of the servant, "leaves hell to work evil hereabouts. Beware, innocent one."

"What in thunder—" said Serge. "Who was that?"

"Only a strange old man I met at Myra's. You know—the old mad preacher who rides the Reservation on his donkeys. You've heard of him."

"Oh, the servant of the Lord? Yes, I have. Never saw him before, though. Well, let's get going, girls. Babs, lazybones, sit up while daddy fixes the robe for you. That's the girl."

CHAPTER VI

Shadows of Death.

IF SONYA SAVARIN had been troubled before, had searched her soul with fearful and bewildered eyes, that summer night plunged her into chaos. Shame was in her, and a breathless flame of ecstasy, and a fear that mounted hourly. And knowledge.

Knowledge, terrible, complete, devastating.

Destiny had reached and taken her, body and soul.

All that her life had meant was gone—her plans, her future, everything. Rod Blake, New York, safety and assurance, the sane and ordered things of everyday, they were all swept into the discard like so much trash.

And in their place stood Starr Stone—her blood leaped at her first conscious use of his name—renegade, mystery, what she did not know—and with him danger, wrong, disaster. He had touched her with his mysterious power, and she had turned and followed him. In her soul she had turned and followed. Like a bird charmed to its death, she had bent her eyes on his, and she was lost.

There was nothing in this world but Starr Stone's face, the blue light of his eyes, the curve of his lips, the grace of his lean body.

Rod Blake was a dream, a fantasy. His face was a stranger's face, his voice a far-off echo. There was nothing real about him, had never been to her, she knew now. There was nothing real but this man, this renegade, this outlaw who followed where a master led, and left behind him a great flare of light that glowed with shadows in her heart.

Fire and flame and darkness, joy and ecstasy and sorrow, fear and a vast strength, these were her portion, new given to her.

Presently she pushed her hair back from her forehead, went to the pool in the dark corner and, kneeling, washed her face with her hands. It was a strange baptism of abnegation, of acceptance. Whatever was to happen in the new future she was committed to it body and soul. Whatever happened to Starr Stone would happen to her; that she knew beyond all questioning.

Next morning she met Lila with a grave face, and the smart little woman looked at her and set down the cup she held.

"You may as well come clean, Sonya darling," she said gently. "Not to, will only prolong the agony."

"I know," Sonya said soberly. "Come out in the patio. There's still time before we have to begin supper."

And there, with the sun going down the western sky and the shadows lengthening about them Sonya told the story of the Man of Lone Mesa, and Lila listened with inheld breath.

At its close they looked silent at each other.

"You will understand, but Serge never will," said Sonya, "so we'll not tell him until we have to."

Lila laid her hand on Sonya's arm.

"Rod!" she said. "We have forgotten him!"

"No," said the other, "not I. Rod will be one of the things I'll have to face—one of the dangers. I shall write to him tonight—and tell him."

"What?" The word was in Italian. "Oh, not about Starr Stone or any of the other tragic things I've told you. Only that I cannot marry him."

"And you'll have him here as quick as the air lines can bring him," said Lila quietly.

"You're right," said Sonya after a moment's thought. "I'll not tell him—yet."

Serge came home from his day's riding dusty and tired, weary for sleep. As he was washing at the bench beyond the door he called in to them.

"Sis," he said, "I think there's going to be work for you ahead. I saw old Hosteen T'so today from up Long Ruins way, and he told me there are two sick Indians over there."

"Did he say just where they were?"

"Yes. In a hogan by Blue Water hole. Said there was a rug for you if you'd come. The medicine man's been making sings for them, but they're no better."

"H'm. Darn these medicine men!" said the girl, her brows drawing together. "They kill more patients than I can ever save. I'll start early in the morning."

"If you take my advice you'd better keep a sharp eye out for that very thing—the medicine man. Don't eat anything around where he is, and watch your trails for traps."

"I will," said Sonya.

SLAPPED BY BOY FRIEND GIRL BITES OFF HIS EAR

JUAREZ, Mexico, May 14.—Rebecca Hernandez, 28, bit her boy friend's ear off because he slapped her, she said in the Juarez jail Monday.

Police charged her with aggravated assault upon Manuel Medina McDonald.

"We had been drinking and he slapped me," Miss Hernandez said. "Then I bit him."

Police are holding the ear as evidence.

In Mexico, they explained, it is a more serious offence to mutilate a person's face than any other part of the body.

CORYELL COTTON—

allotments as indicated in their contracts, but these may be raised or lowered, according to allotments assigned the county by the United States Department of Agriculture. Those who did not sign reduction contracts may also apply on forms to be furnished by the associations for individual allotments of tax-free cotton. The first duty of every producer under the law is to apply for bale tags for all cotton produced prior to this season now in possession of the farmer. As soon as county production control associations have the forms the farmer should apply for exemption certificates for his allotted cotton for 1934-35.

Every bale of American cotton entering trade channels in the cotton year 1934-35 must have a bale tag which the farmer may obtain either by surrendering his exemption certificate or by paying the tax.

The amount of the tax is determined by the tax in effect at the time the cotton is ginned regardless of when it is sold. If stored and held for a year or more it must still pay the tax.

Cotton of 1 1/2-inch staple length or longer is exempt from the tax but the producer of such cotton must first prove his point before exemption is granted. Experiment cotton is also exempted from the tax. Contract signers who violate their contracts are to have their exemption certificates revoked, according to the provisions of the Act.

SCHOOL NEWS—

drawing to a close and we feel that we are not bragging when we say that we have had one of the best school years in the history of our school. Much improvement has been made on the school plant and we feel that our school work has been much better than usual. We have had a higher enrollment this year than at any time within the past seven years, and after using the various standards tests we find that our work compares favorably with that done in the best schools in Coryell County.

The School Board met with the teachers and it was decided to run our school a week longer. This will help us in completing and reviewing all of the subjects in the entire curriculum.

The Freshmen and Sophomores entertained the Seventh grade last Tuesday night, May 8. Every one had a good time. We played many games and enjoyed good music. Punch and cake was served.

Along with the advent of summer weather comes the desire to find a cool shade tree and rest, but so far, we have been able to resist this desire, and now, since Mr. Coleman introduced a new kind of ball game we have lost most of our interest in tennis.

Ewing School News

Mr. and Mrs. Eubanks were sponsors of a picnic last Friday afternoon and a picture show party that night for the High School students. All reported an enjoyable time, and wished many more such happy occasions.

The Seventh Grade enjoyed the program outlined by Mr. Stephens last Tuesday at the High School. We were very happy to know that one of our students, Mary Evelyn Eubanks, won first place. This is the third first place little Miss Eubanks has won and helped to win for our school this year. She and her partner, Roselle Worthington, having won first place in spelling at the County Meet, and she and R. M. Cummings winning first place in the arithmetic contest.

The Baccalaureate sermon delivered by Bro. Dunn of Gatesville Sunday evening was greatly enjoyed by all.

We are indeed proud of the work done in our school the past year, as in previous years. Our school has made a number of improvements during the past year besides raising the standard of work, as evidenced by the fact that in our seventh grade class of six pupils who took the achievement test for County wide graduation, all six passed. Also six members of the seventh grade won State Reading Certificates, those being: Roy Conner, Boyce Conner, Kenneth Conner, Edwinna Conner, Maudie Mae Moseley and Relan Moseley. The sixth grade is one hundred per cent on State Reading certificates, those being: C. W. Moseley, Glen Blacklock, and Lorene Smith.

There were three who completed tenth grade work here this term, they are: E. J. Conner, Virgil Collins and Clara Moseley.

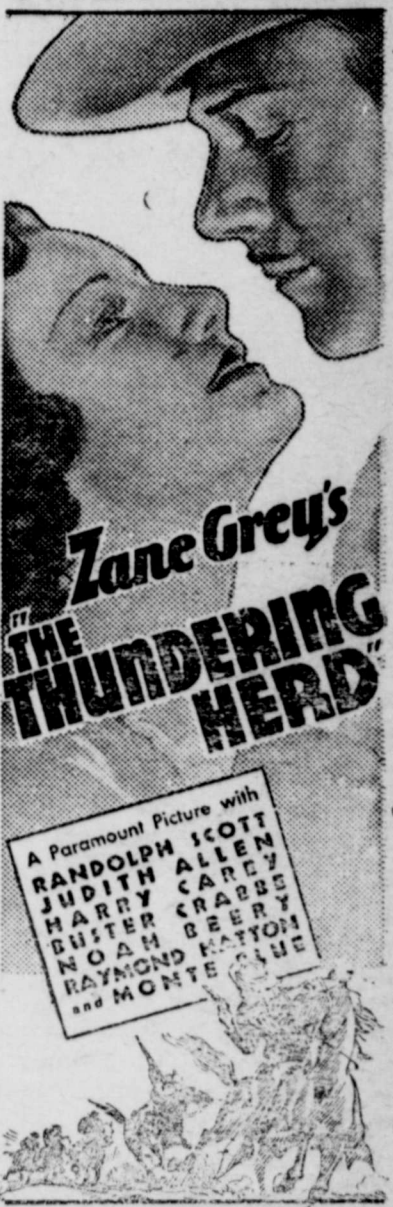

We hope to have an even better school next year as both of our teachers, Mrs. Eva Duncan, principal and Mr. Melvin Faubion primary teacher have been reelected. This will be Mrs. Duncan's fourth and Mr. Faubion's third year.
