The annual summer school session of the Gatesville Public Schools will open officially Wednesday morning, June 6, and will continue until August 8, according to Frank L. Williams, local superintendent.

SENIORS WILL WEAR CAPS AND GOWNS THIS YEAR

Senior graduates will be seen in caps and gowns during the commencement exercises this year for the first time in the history of the school, or at least for many years.

The uniforms have been rented by the class at a very nominal cost which provides a great saving on the part of the individual graduated heretofore necessitated in civilian clothes.

The caps and gowns are made of a light gray colored poplin material.

The uniformity of dress, economy and elimination of possible class distinction, have been pointed out as the three features in behalf of caps and gowns.

Most all towns and cities in this section of the state have followed the dignified cap and gown attirement for some time.

CLARENCE MAYBERRY IS SALESMAN FOR CARS LOCALLY

Clarence Mayberry, of Gatesville, has accepted a position with the Shepherd Motor Company of this city as automobile salesman for Plymouth and De Soto cars.

Mr. Mayberry, former Training School commandant, is a native of Coryell County and has resided in the vicinity of Mound. He is widely known throughout the county and has many friends in this section.

Shepherd Motor Company is fortunate in acquiring the services of such a capable man.

THREE MAJOR CHANGES IN COMMENCEMENT ACTIVITIES

Three major changes in the commencement affairs will be prominent this year in the Gatesville High School exercises.

First, the combining of spring and summer graduates in the formal ceremonies. This year there will be no summer grads.

Second, the selection by popular vote of the Senior Class of the three student participants in the exercises.

Third, the wearing of the caps and gowns by the graduates throughout the formalities of commencement.

Each of the foregoing alterations in previous arrangements have been made by either the choice of the members of the senior class or the faculty or by agreement on the part of both parties.

Students of the Gatesville Elementary School will be graduated Monday evening, May 28, at 8 o'clock in the High School Auditorium.

The two outstanding senior students will not make formal addresses at the commencement exercises and the names of the two high-mark graduates will not be known until shortly before the formal graduation.

There will be four senior students to take part on the commencement program, the president of the class, Charles Baker, and the other three by virtue of popular election by their classmates. They are, Martin Donaldson, Louis Woodall and Charlotte Davidson.

PASTOR SUFFERS FROM BURNS INFLECTED BY GASOLINE

Rev. Marcus M. Chunn, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Gatesville, was painfully burned about the face and hands on the back porch of the local parsonage late Tuesday-afternoon as he attempted to clean an overcoat with gasoline.

According to reports from the pastor's family he had many times previously cleaned his own garments with gasoline and had used all means of precaution. On last Tuesday while holding the overcoat over a pan of the liquid combustion took place inflicting injuries to the pastor.

POLICE CHIEF ISSUES FINAL WARNING TO DOG OWNERS

Chief-of-police Baker has issued a final warning to dog owners that all dogs in Gatesville must be tagged by June 1, if the pets are to run loose in the city.

All dogs picked up after June 1, will be put in the city pound and will be released to their owners upon the payment of the regular twenty-five cent pound fee and the $1 license fee.

Dog owners may procure license tags for their pets at the city hall, according to Baker.

Students of the Gatesville Elementary School will be graduated Monday evening, May 28, at 8 o'clock in the High School auditorium.

Valedictorian honors were won by Miss Nettie Jane Thomson. Miss Helon Chamlee was the winner of the salutatorian honors. Mr. E. D. Shelton, principal of the Elementary school will present the awards to the honor students.

'round the square

By The Snooper

Congratulations to Seniors; 'Round the Square is dedicated to you this week. Harry Dillshaw seems to be in a terrible stew over this gift situation. Elton Blackstock takes off a few spare minutes to play a little soft-ball. Bonnie Jean Sellers was kind enough to deliver the Editor some news on the golf tourney. Martin Donaldson is not only a capable platform speaker but a friendly chap. Louise Morgan should get an E-plus in personality, she's frequently seen around the square. Louis Woodall isn't bothered about convention, if a bike will get him there a bike is what he rides. Elmo Strickland certainly trusts the Snooper, charging me with three cents for a few days.

Wish I had room to mention more.

State Boy Victim Of Ax Beating by Another Inmate

Hobert Huff, Training School inmate, lies at the point of death from wounds inflicted by another inmate, I. D. Herrin, about 9:30 Thursday morning. Huff was hit some several times in the head with an axe. Herrin is being held by Gatesville officers in the local jail.

Louis King, state employee, working a squad of boys in the field, reported the occurrence.

According to reports, Huff, who is about 15 years old, left his work for a short time and walked to some shade trees. He was followed by Herrin. A short time later Herrin came back and reported to King what had happened, stating that he (Herrin) was the "one who did it."

"I aimed to do it last week," he said, "but the boys wouldn't let me."

Herrin gave his age as nineteen. A "cussing" is the only reason which Herrin gave for his attack upon Huff.

TO THE GRADUATES

The past few weeks have marked the closing of schools throughout Coryell County. The closing exercises will be climaxed with the commencement ceremonies of the Gatesville High School.

It has been said that many times in the past in addresses given to hundreds of graduating classes that, another great milestone in the walk of life is being passed at this time. Trite as such an expression may seem that phrase carries with it a world of truth and it is doubtful that a better expression could be made.

Not only the mothers and fathers of these young people but the populace of Coryell as a whole should be indeed proud of the attainment which these young representative boys and girls have made as they turn another milestone or go out into the world to practice those fundamentals of education which they have absorbed.

If we must, we may challenge those who have not taken advantage of the opportunity which has been given them. We may ask just what percentage of these young men and young women have benefited by the privileges afforded through the taxpayers of the county. We will not find 100 per cent of the graduating students to have taken advantage of the opportunity, but there are other features to be considered regardless of the fact that not more than half have gathered for themselves the real fruit of an opportune education.

As students have passed from one grade and one class to a higher one the number of students has decreased. Those who have dropped out will in most cases become ordinary citizens. Others who continue to pursue greater advantages in education will become the outstanding men and women citizens of tomorrow.

There is a natural tendency in the minds of high school graduates. "what's the use going on when times are so hard." Such an idea is probably met with accord on the part of the parents. There are a number of graduates, however, who will have the foresight to see the future recovery of this country and the demand for college graduates in the multiplied fields of industry and commerce. With a determination to be included among these sought-after individuals, a few will be willing to battle physical and financial handicaps in the pursuit of advanced education. These young citizens from the schools of Coryell County will be numbered among the leaders of tomorrow and not the ordinary citizens of today.

BACK TO FUNDAMENTALS

School children in Soviet Russia, says a current dispatch from Moscow, are going back to the old-time ABC's and study them much as school children do elsewhere.

For a long time the youngsters in the primary grades have been getting good doses of "dialectic materialism" and "economic determinism," and so on—stuff that would be over the head of the average high school pupil in America.

Now the Soviet authorities have at last discovered that it doesn't work. The kids simply can't take it in.

And one wonders if the resultant shift back to simpler and more prosaic methods of pedagogy isn't more or less symbolic. Running a nation on purely theoretical lines is a fine idea, maybe, but compromises with reality are inevitable.

A school child is a school child, the world over. His introduction to the three R's is apt to be pretty much the same under Marx as under the benighted capitalists.—Brownsville Herald

Monday, May 28—Fire Boys vs. Round Table, Baptist vs. Methodist.

SOFTBALL SYMPTOMS

By TEDDY

Arnold's bunch continued their winning streak Monday night by licking the Baptists 14 to 1. Summers is still improving as well as his teammates.

The Highwaymen downed the Bachelors Monday night 12 to 5. The game proved to be a thriller in the last inning when the Bachelors rallied to make five tallies.

The Fire Boys are by no means a set-up for any team. They may easily turn the trick and be on top at any time. The State gave the Firemen but little trouble Tuesday night, and the State gang is improving rapidly itself.

Ward's gang want to give up too soon. They have been on top alone up until now, but from now on they will have trouble in keeping up with the Firemen and Arnold's gang. If their men do not start showing up they will have plenty of trouble in holding first place. At present Ward's and Arnold's teams are tied for first, and the Fire Boys are not so far behind.

This writer will give the Bachelors credit for keeping their interest and fight up, although they do get punishment.

—MY—DOPE—

Arnold's bunch was doped to defeat the Baptists by a small margin. They did that and then some. The game started off like it might be close, but ended just a little one-sided.

The Highwaymen were doped to defeat the Bachelors and had but little trouble in doing so.

The Fire Boys were doped to defeat the State. They did, but should have licked them.

Ward's gang was doped to defeat the Bachelors with ease. Due to lack of men, and a threatening rain, each team won ½ game and lost ½ game.

Much interest has been created since all of the teams have begun to improve. The teams are more equal in their knowledge of the game as well as playing ability, and if they continue to improve it will be hard to say who will be on top this time two weeks from now.

Today—The Baptists will de-

FLAT NEWS

The Flat public school has just completed one of the most successful school years in its history. The pupils and teachers have certainly done fine work and the patrons are indeed proud of the progress made during the past eight months. The closing exercises lasted one week and culminated in an all-day picnic and barbecue on Saturday. A large crowd attended and everyone enjoyed the day immensely. Flat is one of the few schools that has become standardized during the past term and she is indeed proud of her achievement. Superintendent, Humphries with his efficient helper teachers, Mr. Huckabee, Misses Greene and Jones, and Mrs. Ludwick, have indeed done a splendid piece of work during the past school term.

Misses Jones and Greene have returned to their respective homes to spend their vacations. Mr. and Mrs. Ludwick plan to move to Waco soon. Mr. Humphries has returned to his home at Oglesby for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hamilton have recently completed a new home at Mound and are making their home in that community.

Misses Violet Cross, Glee Clawson, Inez Brazzil, Elizabeth Palmer and Glyn Brazzil were presented in a piano recital to relatives and near friends at the home of their teacher, Mrs. Cleo Huckabee, on Saturday night, May 12, 1934.

The Sunday School, under the capable leadership of its Supt., Mr. Earl Harper, is making wonderful progress. There is an average attendance of about 75 each Sunday and steadily growing. If you are not enrolled, you should be. There is a place for everyone in Sunday School.

Miss Jones has accepted a place in the White Hall school for next year, but she will always occupy a dear place in the hearts of the people of Flat.

Miss Violet Cross of the Flat community, a student of piano, studying under Mrs. Cleo Huckabee, was awarded a Gold Pin on May 12, 1934 as a reward for diligence in practicing and steady progress in her music for the past six months. Miss Cross is the talented little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Cross. She was presented in public recital in the home of her teacher.

Senior Picnic Day At Pidoce.

The annual picnic, which the seniors look forward to each year, was enjoyed at Pidoce last Monday.

Games of baseball were played in the morning, after which a delicious meal of appetizing eats were spread and served in picnic style. A delightful swim in the creek followed in the afternoon.

Fifty-four seniors were present. Miss Villa Holmes, sponsor of the class, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Williams chaperoned and enjoyed the day with them.

Gay Party Complimenting High School Group.

About seventy-five people were present and showered Miss Jones with flowers. The occasion was in the form of a farewell party as Miss Jones will not be on the faculty another year. The honoree received many beautiful bouquets as well as lovely pot plants. The pupils in her room presented her with a lovely friendship quilt as a token of the high esteem and love that they have for her.

Miss Jones is one of the most popular teachers that Flat has ever had, and the people, both old and young, dearly love her and are saddened that she does not see fit to return to them as a teacher for another year. Miss Jones is not only a conscientious

Mary Elizabeth Walley Entertains.

A very unusual and exciting hour was enjoyed last Saturday night when Miss Mary Elizabeth Walley entertained a group of her friends with a scavenger hunt.

The guests arrived in couples and were given slips of paper containing articles that they were to find and bring to the hostess' home. Some of the articles seemed very ridiculous and impossible to find, but nevertheless, Harry Dillashaw and Louise Morgan completed their entire list. They were awarded delicious cinnamon rolls for prizes.

The merry group included Misses Beverly Chamlee, Margaret Gilder, Ruth Raby Franks, Marjorie Wollard, Louise Morgan, Alice Earl Anderson, Rosa Lee Boyd, Joyce Baker, Irene Crow and Messrs Peyton Morgan,

NEWS FLASHES

The curtain has fallen on the last chapter in the life of the southwest's number one desperado, killer and marauder. Clyde Barrow and his woman companion, Bonnie Parker, have taken their last loot, stolen the life of their last human victim and have been dealt the eventual destiny of all murderers.

In a fusillade of gun-fire near a favorite rendezvous in the southwestern part of Louisiana, Clyde and Bonnie fell dead in the front seat of their Ford sedan. The couple were taken completely by surprise when a posse of Texas and Louisiana peace officers, hiding in an ambush, stepped out on them as they drove down a by-road. The attack was so sudden the bandits had no time to use the score of weapons which they carried in their car.

—And thus falls the curtain on the drama of a reign of murder and crime in the Southwest with no "curtain call" for the actors.

Byron Leaird McClellan, Elton Blackstock, Billy Bloodworth, Charles Baker, Harry Dillashaw, Grady Wells, Johnny Bradford, Clinton Chamlee and Buster Cummings.

After the young men left, the girls remained and enjoyed a "slumberless" party.

Egypt has few manufacturing establishments, and the weaving of linen and fez, which dates from an early time, is in a state of decline.

Constance Bennett
Makes Musical Debut
In 20th Century Film

"Moulin Rouge," the romantic musical, starring Constance Bennett in her first appearance for Joseph M. Schenck's and Darryl Zanuck's 20th Century Pictures, a United Artists release, comes to the Palace Theatre for two days Sunday.

Its story, based on a French stage success of the same name, will serve to introduce Miss Bennett in her first dual role, and as a singer of songs especially written for her by Harry Warren and Al Dubin, who composed the memorable hits in "42nd Street," "Gold Diggers of 1933" and "Roman Scandals."

Surrounding her is a cast which includes Franchot Tone; Tullio Carminati, stage star of "Strickly Dishonorable;" Helen Westley, one of the founders of the New York Theatre Guild, and a star in many of its productions; Andrew Tombes and Russ Brown, comedians in numerous New York stage shows.

The Boswell Sisters and Russ Columbo, famous radio stars are another attraction of the film.

Miss Bennett portrays both the stage-struck wife of a playwright and Raquel, gifted but notorious French music hall artist.

The plot has to do with the efforts of Helen to convince her husband that she should follow a career rather than make a home for him. It accumulates complications which include the situation of the husband making gallant love to her while thinking she is Raquel, and so putting himself in jeopardy of a divorce suit.

The action, for the most part, takes place backstage of an important New York revue and in the Park Avenue penthouse of the actress Raquel.

Mr. A. Shirley, Justice of the Peace, made a business trip to Fort Worth recently.

CHAPTER V.—Befriending the wife of Hosteen Nez, a Navajo, she adds him to her circle of devoted friends. At a neighborhood dance she meets the mysterious stranger of the Mesa and demands that he tell her his name. Finally he confides to her that his right name is Starr Stone, that his mother believes him dead, and that he goes by a different name in this region. He departs with a tall, fierce Mexican, with whom he is mysteriously associated.

CHAPTER VI.—Sonya, with a feeling of shame, realizes she is falling in love with a man whom she can only class as a renegade and outlaw, knowing that under the circumstances she can never marry Blake. From an odd character of the desert, known as the "Servant of the Lord," Sonya learns Stone is alive and safe.

Sonya looked back, and such a light broke on her tired face as should have humbled any man. It humbled this one to the very dust, beholding.

"Starr Stone!" she cried softly in

"Oh, Starr Stone! You Have Come Back!"

the silence. "Oh, Starr Stone! You have come back!"

"I'd come back from hell's edges," he said soberly, "Miss Savarin. I can't help myself."

"I don't want you to," she said swiftly. "Never. You must come to me—always."

She had stopped a few feet from him, and the man reined close beside her, laying a hand on hers, looking into her face as if he could not look deep enough.

"Of course you know," he said simply, "that I love you."

"Of course," she said.

"That I'm dust under your feet—nothing. Less than that. But I want you to know too that I love you as a better man could never love you. I don't love you—no. I worship you, could kiss th' print of your little foot in th' sand. You're a white angel on th' stairs of heaven, and I'm a devil in th' pit—and hell itself is in those separating miles, for me. I come back to look at you because I can't stay away—and I forfeit my life every time. I want you to know that, as a proof, sort of."

"I don't need proof!" cried the girl wildly, "and I know that too! Have known it ever since the night of the dance when you followed—when you followed—"

"Yes—when I followed—and left you standing there in the open floor like the yellow dog I was—and am!"

"No! Because you had to! Because if you double-cross—"

"Hush! I'm here now. Let's talk for a little while as if we were two ordinary people, with nothing between us to prevent. You're workin' yourself to death," he said, searching her face with anxious eyes.

"It's nothing. My part in life. A good one, a great one."

"Maybe. But you're a woman, and so sweet, so beautiful. I'm afraid for you."

"Don't be. I won't die. Nothing could kill me—now."

"Why now?"

"Because," said the girl gravely, "I've got a fight ahead. A fight to take you from whatever holds you, and I'll do it. We've just begun—you and I, Starr Stone."

Her face was like a flower of the dusk, beautiful and dim, but filled with a stern courage, a white fire of the spirit. His hand on hers closed tightly. Slowly he leaned toward her and Sonya leaned to meet him, his eyes, his breast, his lips. In the darkening night she kissed him and knew she had never kissed a man before. What she had given Rod Blake was pale friendship compared to the tide of life which engulfed her now.

Then she drew back, pushed the hair from her forehead.

"Strange," she said, "what life does to us against our will, in spite of all we've ever known, ever desired, ever planned."

"God, yes!" he echoed, "ever known, ever planned!"

"But we can fight back!" she cried. "We don't need to sink under its blows!"

"To a certain point," he said. "Beyond that—no."

"Yes! As long as there's life! I know what the human soul is made of—its strength, its courage. Men—and women too—have done great things, against all odds, because of it. Strong men, strong women. Everyone falls. Only weaklings stay down. Anyone can get up if he wants to hard enough. If he has a reason. I'm your reason."

The man groaned audibly, an inarticulate word of despair.

"If I had the world," he said thickly, "I'd give it all to be worthy to make you that."

He straightened in his saddle, gathered his reins.

"Come," he said, "I mustn't keep you. Do you mind if I ride with you a bit? It's dark enough—no one will see you riding with a man whose head carries a price."

Once again the cold fear shot through Sonya as she turned and rode out across the desert at his side.

At a lift in the dark sage levels Starr Stone stopped and held out his hand.

"I have a reprieve," he said simply, "for a certain length of time. I'll be in this country for its duration. Do you mind if I keep—coming back—while it lasts?"

"Oh," the girl said with a sudden catch in her voice, "you break my heart! What is all this? What is it?"

"Life's mistake—its sins—and penalties," he answered lowly; "its grasping at straws, its compensations. May I come if I'm careful?"

"Come!" cried Sonya. "Any time, any place!"

And, wheeling Darkness, she rode swiftly away to hide the sobs that shook her.

She came in late at home. Serge and Babs had long been asleep, but Lila waited in the dark patio, rocking slowly in the fringed hammock. They exchanged low spoken words and went together into the silent house.

As Lila struck a light she looked across its flame at Sonya.

"You've seen him," she said.

"Yes. At Tall canyon."

That was all and the two women went their ways on soft feet.

That meeting in the dusk at Tall canyon's lip was the beginning of a strange and pregnant time. Two days later Sonya, wringing hot cloths from a steaming water-basket on a hogan's sandy floor, looked up as a shadow darkened the doorway to the east. Starr Stone stood there leaning his graceful length against the lintel.

"Is there anything needing to be done that a husky man can do?" he asked soberly. "Water to bring, wood to get?"

"Plenty," said the girl quickly. "Both of those. Every one in this family is down except the two littlest children."

Without a word the man turned and disappeared, and presently he was back with two baskets of water. He set them inside the door and went away again, returning later with great quantities of the bleached and straggly dead wood of the juniper scrub which clothed the uplands here. He replenished the outside fire where Sonya had been heating her stones for the water-baskets, set the latter in to heat again, poured fresh water into the basket at her elbow.

"Anything to eat about?" he asked practically.

"Very little. There was mutton two days back, but the man's down and the woman, too, and the last went bad on me. I carry cereals, but I'm nearly out of those."

"O. K.," he said briefly. "I'll fix that."

Sonya went on about her ministrations, and in the course of an hour he was back with the dressed carcass of a freshly slaughtered sheep. Without comment he put small pieces to cook.

"This will do nicely," he said when Sonya came out of the hogan. "I've hung the meat in the tallest scrub I could find back of the corral. Wrapped it in a couple of sacks. It's in good shade and should cool out all right. What next?"

"Nothing," she said. "But this is priceless."

And when, two hours later, Sonya rode out across the hot sage levels, Starr Stone rode beside her on his golden horse.

"There's no one hereabout but Navajos, and they're few and far apart," he said. "I think we won't be seen."

"And what if we are?" the girl asked wearily. "Why should it matter?"

"We won't be. And you may need me where you're going, like you did back there."

"Oh, I will. Conditions are pitiful in nearly all these lonely places. No water—no food—no wood. Everybody too ill to get them."

"And what have you been doing about it?" he asked curiously.

"Getting them myself, wherever I could," she answered, "but it's beyond me now. There's so much to do. So many sick. I've buried three people—myself."

She looked at him with haggard dark eyes in her worn young face, and the man looked quickly away.

"What's the government agency doing?" he asked. "What about the schools? ... did they get doctors?"

"Of course. But they've got their hands full in their own vicinity. We're so far away here—on the very edge of the Reservation, you know. But I won't give up a single one of them without a fight and the best one I can put up."

When they passed the spot at the canyon's lip where they had met in the dusk, Starr Stone reached over and laid his hand on hers upon the pommel.

"Soul's covenant," he said; "it was that we made here. From everlasting to everlasting. No matter what comes, we'll remember the feel of the little winds, the look of the starlit sky: It will go with me to the end, wrapped in the center of my heart—Sonya."

"Soul's covenant," said the girl tragically. "From everlasting to everlasting. Amen."

And they rode forward into the dark mouth of the shadowed aisle, the good woman and the bad man, to that selfless service of humanity which is the immortal flame in the mortal dress.

GEORGE O'BRIEN DONS BOXING GLOVES

George O'Brien will be able to display his prowess in one of his favorite sports in his next motion picture.

He will don the leather gloves and box in scenes of "Ever Since Eve," Fox film scheduled to go into the Palace Theatre beginning Saturday.

O'Brien has been a boxing enthusiast all his life and has a fine rating among amateurs.

Several years ago, he and Jack Dempsey boxed on the same benefit program in San Francisco. George fought Soldier Martin, while Dempsey battled Willy (Phat) Meehan.

Since he always keeps in top-notch physical condition by constant training, his weight being 195 pounds, O'Brien was all set for the fight scenes in the picture. Mary Brian is seen opposite him in "Ever Since Eve" which George Marshall directed.

BAPTIST NOTES

Our Young People

The Daily Vacation Bible School has been postponed because of the illness of the pastor's wife.

Southern Baptist Convention

Quite a few of our people attended the Southern Baptist Convention at Fort Worth last week. They report a splendid convention. The mission board will send out 40 more missionaries to the foreign fields. The body will meet at Memphis, Tenn. in May 1935.

Williams from Grapevine, Texas will direct the singing.

We do not use any musical instrument in our religious work. We believe that it is wrong to do so. Eph. 5:18, 19.
