Rev. J. W. Dunn Opens Revival Services at Carden Community

Following a highly successful revival at the local Church of Christ, which was ably directed by the local pastor, Rev. J. W. Dunn, a second series of revival services began Monday evening at the Carden Tabernacle, four miles east of Gatesville.

The meeting just concluded was the most outstanding ever held among the Church of Christ people here in many years, according to many members of that denomination. The meeting lasted fifteen days and each service was attended by a large gathering of not only members of the church but by members of other local denominations and a host of non-church individuals.

The revival which began at Carden last evening enjoyed response of a large attendance. The meeting is being sponsored by the residents of that community irrespective of faith, "which is very gratifying to me indeed," stated Rev. Dunn, who was called upon by the Carden people to direct the spiritual services.

Mr. E. D. Shelton, principal of the Gatesville Elementary School is director of the singing.

The meeting will probably last ten days. Services are held each evening at 8:00 o'clock.

Huddleston Promises Voters Same Service If Reelection Comes

To the Voters of Coryell and Hamilton Counties:

During my campaign two years ago, before I was elected your Representative, I named a few things for which the people could expect of me as a member of the Legislature.

I pledged the voters that if permitted to serve them that I would vote and work for an honest and economical administration of our State government and that I would not vote for any additional taxes. I stated that I believed it was costing too much to operate our State government. My record during the one term which I served is proof that I kept my pledge on this question as I endeavored to do on all other questions. I supported the program of the Forty-Third Legislature which cut appropriations something like fifteen million dollars. I opposed all bills which would have levied additional taxes on our people.

I stated that I was a friend to the cause of education, and voted for bills which would take care of our worthy school teachers and our boys and girls. The Forty-Third Legislature passed several bills which accomplished this by way of changing certain laws but not placing any additional taxes on our citizens. I worked our County Superintendent, teachers and patrons for what they believed

REGAL THEATER INSTALLS WASHED AIR COOLING SYSTEM

By M. B. Sasse

The writer had the privilege of making an inspection of the new washed air cooling system at the Regal Thursday. Air drawn through a cascade of cooled water, is blown to all sections of the commodious auditorium by a monster fan.

Stepping into the Regal is like stepping from the blazing heat of the West Texas plains into the refreshing sea breezes of the gulf region. The velocity and temperature of the artificial breeze can be controlled at will.

Enthusiastic Audience Greet Allred When He Speaks in Gatesville

An enthusiastic crowd of 2,000 people heard Attorney General James V. Allred speak in the interest of his candidacy for Governor here Saturday night on the courthouse lawn. Allred was introduced by County Judge Robert W. Brown. The Attorney General dealt with three major problems confronting the citizens of Texas today—law enforcement and court reform, the pardon system, and the lobbyists at Austin.

He assailed the present law enforcement system of Texas, declaring it was entirely inadequate to preserve law and order. He advocated a modernization and reorganization of the state police system with a central bureau of identification and other up to date methods to cooperate with and assist officers.

In speaking of the pardon system, Allred said the Governor should not be burdened with the cares and responsibilities necessary to a judicious exercise of the pardon power conferred upon the executive.

"True, we have a Board of Pardons, but the trouble is that the Board is purely a creature of statute and has only the power to recommend and not to act," he said. "I propose a change in this system by constitutional amendment whereby the Board of Pardons would be given real powers and responsibilities by providing that the recommendations of the board should be binding upon the Governor.

He declared that its personnel should be freed from the influence of politics and proposed that the members be appointed—one by the Governor, one by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, and one by the Chief Justice of the Court of Criminal Appeals.

He cited several instances in which hardened criminals had been freed to murder and plunder the public.

"Self-respect demands that we rectify this situation at once!" he declared.

He urged the voters to check the records of other gubernatorial candidates who have served in the Senate.

"Find out how they stand on legislation which would require every public officer to disclose to the voters all his sources of income. Ask them to tell you. Make them tell you," the Attorney General emphatically urged.

Allred recalled briefly the history of a resolution introduced at the fifth called session of the Forty-First Legislature. The resolution declared, in substance, that if reports were true that members of the Senate were taking money from questionable sources the people were entitled to know the facts.

One Year (in Coryell County) . . . $1.00; Elsewhere $1.50

Entered as second-class matter June 24, 1933, at the post office at Gatesville, Texas, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

NOTICE: Any erroneous reflection upon the character or standing of any person or firm appearing in its columns will be gladly and promptly corrected upon calling the attention of the management to the article in question.

SHALL WE HAVE A COUNTY FAIR THIS YEAR?

Two years ago the reason advanced for not having a fair was that Coryell County was devoid of production and that there wasn't anything to exhibit.

Last year there was no fair because it was said that there was no money in Coryell County.

It is not for us to say whether the reasons were good but it is hard to believe that the broad fertile acres and the bountiful pastures of this county didn't produce enough to exhibit in any year. Coryell County ranked third in Texas in bank deposits per capita last year.

Coryell County has had a reasonably good yield from her gardens. The grain crop was better than fair. With a little rain we will make a corn crop. Evidences are that there will be a good cotton crop this year. Where wheat brought 40 cts. in 1933 it is selling for 75cts. this year. Where oats brought 15 cents last year they are bringing 35 cents this year. Cotton is going to bring a much better price this year than last. These better prices together with the $120,000.00 which has been or will be paid to the farmers of the county, before fair time, should look like there will be ample money in the county to care for a fair.

The question will be raised as to whether the people want a fair. The writer has spoken of the matter to more than twenty-five people in the last several weeks and without an exception every one of those spoken to have agreed that there was no good reason for not having a fair and more than that each of those citizens was favorable toward a fair.

The main question we must settle is whether we are dead in our tracks. Have we gone Stagnant? Is there no longer any civic pride? Do we no longer care for progress?

The News wants a fair this fall and we believe that the vast majority of the people of the county want a fair.

In order to know definitely who does and who doesn't want a fair we invite you to express your opinion to the News either by letter, card, telephone or in person. These opinions will be filed and counted. WE WANT A FAIR. DO YOU?

THE COURTS ARE WAKING UP

It seems that, after so long a time, the courts of Texas are waking up to the seriousness of the murder wave which has held sway for about two years. Texas has more murders per capita than any state in the Union and will continue to have such a rating until the courts begin to function as they should.

Richard Rehm, New York parole violator, was sentenced to death by a Dallas jury last Friday for the murder of Policeman Luke Bell on May 18.

O. D. Stevens, "master mind" of the mail truck robbery in Fort Worth in February of 1933, was given the death penalty at Fort Worth Friday for complicity in the murder of three men whose bodies were fished from the Trinity River last year.

Raymond Hamilton, one of the Barrow gang, was given the death penalty by a Huntsville jury earlier in last week for the murder of Major Crawson, a prison guard, last January.

After a year or so of wrangling in the higher courts these ruthless murders will perhaps pay for their crimes. There are many ways, however, for them to escape the electric chair. If the courts don't treat them leniently some governor will probably commute their sentences to life imprisonment and some other governor will likely pardon them so that they can kill someone else.

STUMPIN' THE STATE

WITH THE SPECTATOR

THE SENATORIAL race has not awakened much interest as yet, but when Congress adjourns you can expect plenty of lively campaigning with Senator Connally and Congressman Bailey on the "stump." Connally's supporters have been actively organizing over the state, but the Senator has remained inactive as far as personal campaigning is concerned. Joe Bailey has been making flying visits back to the State, speaking in the western section last week. Incidentally, Bailey has been attracting large crowds. He has been basing his campaign on his stand against the Ickes Oil Control Bill so far, challenging Connally to take a stand one way or another and charging that he is "straddling the fence." Take it from me, this is going to be some fight.

SEVEN CANDIDATES ARE running for governor—six of whom are "major" candidates or candidates whose potential strength is already known. Jimmie Allred, Maury Hughes, Tom Hunter, Charlie McDonald, Clint Small, and Edgar Witt may be classed in this category. Let's take a short glance into the "past" of these candidates.

JAMES V. ALLRED first entered politics in 1926—running for Attorney General against Claude Pollard, the incumbent—and losing in the second primary by only 4,000 votes—a good race for a comparatively unknown candidate against the well known Pollard. Jimmie emerged again in 1930 to make the race for the same office against R. L. Bobbitt—the Moody appointee to succeed Pollard, resigned. Allred led Bobbitt by 29,000 votes in the first primary and crushingly defeated him by a majority of more than 129,000 in the August election.

In the 1932 election Allred had formidable opposition in the person of Attorney Clem Calhoun of Amarillo. Allred's majority over Calhoun and another candidate was 250,000 votes—a remarkable victory.

And so Jimmie Allred, with a splendid record in the Attorney General's office behind him, enters the race for Governor of the Lone Star State and is the man considered most likely to lead in the first primary.

MAURY HUGHES is a well known figure in State Democratic circles—twice serving as a member of the State Democratic Executive Committee and in 1932 being elected chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee at Lubbock. Mr. Hughes was a delegate to the Democratic National Platform upon which President Roosevelt was elected. In June 1933 he was appointed a member of the State Recovery Board by President Roosevelt and as chairman of the board directed the setting up of the NRA and New Deal machinery in Texas.

Hughes entered the race at the insistence of friends throughout the state. He has a very attractive platform and is sure to make it "hot" for some body in this race.

This "review" of the gubernational candidates will be continued in next Tuesday's issue of the paper in the order in which they are listed above. The object of this is to enlighten the voters as to the qualifications and "pasts" of the leading contenders in the race. We promise you fair and impartial information concerning the present campaign and the forthcoming election. Until next week, we'll be "stumpin' the state."

Ford Motor Company Announces Price Cut On Trucks and Autos

Detroit, Mich., June 18.—Reductions of $10 to $15 in list prices of 1934 Ford V-8 passenger cars and $10 to $20 in list prices of Ford V-8 commercial cars and trucks were announced last week by the Ford Motor Company effective Friday, June 15.

Ford prices had remained unchanged since the introduction of the 1934 Ford V-8 last December, the Ford Motor Company not having participated in the recent general automotive price increase. The reductions announced are, therefore, a decrease in the original prices.

The price reduction on the standard and de luxe Tudor Sedans, most popular individual models in point of sales, is $15. Prices of other standard and de luxe body types were reduced $10 except prices of the Roadster, Phaeton and Cabriolet, de luxe types, which remain unchanged. Both standard and de luxe passenger cars have the same V-8 engine and 112 inch wheelbase chassis. Body types for both are identical except for the de luxe equipment.

CHAPTER XI.—At the Savarin ranch there is dire consternation over the disappearance of Sonya. Searching parties, working diligently, are unable to find any trace of the girl. Her horse, arriving home riderless, is the first indication of harm having come to her. With Serge, Marston visits the village store, the last place where Sonya is known to have been, but finds no clues. Her Navajo friends, remembering all they owe Sonya, take the trail, finding evidence of the presence of an airship where Sonya might presumably have been seized.

He was haggard and his eyes were large in his tanned face, and his arms were bound behind him. He was a prisoner with all a prisoner's indignities heaped upon him, but his tall form was erect, his blue eyes dark with the spreading pupils. He strode toward the table with his gaze on Diablo's face and saw no other in the silent mass.

"Senor," he said.
"Senor," said El Capitan, and the smile was gone from his face. It was black with fury.

"For five years, Quince, you have been with me—my best and ablest man. You have done my bidding quickly. You have led my raids. You have put my merchandise—safely through its secret ways. I have called and you have come, always. Always until lately. Lately you have come on laggard feet. You have held back at my orders. You have disobeyed me. And I have now the reason. That reason is a woman. A woman whom you have set before El Capitan Diablo. Whose word has been more to you than my word. Who, through your instruction doubtless, has come upon the key of my activities. Who has caught Quatro with the goods in his own store. Who holds Diablo and all his future in the hollow of her hand. Or would so hold him had it not been for Quatro's swift action in the matter. Senor—behold the woman!"

He had half risen again, leaning with one broad hand on the table. With the other he pointed dramatically to Sonya. And like a flash Starr Stone whirled and saw her.

It was the first inkling he had had that she was not safe in her own country, and her own pursuits, and the shock of it drained his face to a ghastly pallor.

"Sonya!" his lips formed soundlessly.

"Yes," said the girl defiantly, "they took me from my horse two nights ago—kidnaped me—by airplane—and brought me here because I stumbled on the fact that Parks is their agent in the smuggling of narcotics across the line. They think you told me—that you and I have planned to double-cross this wicked bandit here—this beast who says I'm lying!"

She waved a hand at El Capitan, nodded her black head toward him. "Ah! A beast, am I? El Capitan Diablo a beast?"

"Yes, senor—and worse," said Sonya Savarin. "You may kill me—as I do not doubt you will—but I am an American, and I do not bend to you either in body or soul. We are both Americans."

"Oh, Americans! And Americans do not double-cross?"

"No, senor."
"Well, we shall see. Quince—attention. What do you say for yourself?"

The tall man standing in the mottled shade looked long in his master's face. What years of wrongdoing, of obedience, of fear, were in that look only they two might say. For a long time it held between the wild blue eyes, the deadly black ones.

Then Starr Stone turned to Sonya.

"A misstep in my early youth it doesn't matter now what it was—put me in the power of El Capitan Diablo. For my freedom's sake I cast in my lot with him. For my life's sake I could never leave him afterward. I have raided, burned, and pillaged, but I have never killed a man nor harmed a woman or a child. I have been his brains in smuggling, his ablest lieutenant as he says. But now I'm through."

"With death as my sure reward for what I'm saying, I say here and now, before these witnesses, that I am done forever. Done with all wrong and all evil. That the leopard changes his spots at last. For the love of you in my soul I am made over new. They will kill me soon, and I hope they'll send you with me with all my heart—though hell itself can hold no torture for me to compare with the knowledge that I have brought you to this. That will be more punishment than my lost soul can bear. Oh, Sonya, forgive me for what I've done to you."

"Forgive you?" panted the girl, half sobbing. "Forgive you? I glory in you! And we'll go together, never fear! If not one way, then another. It will not be a long good-by. I promise you."

"Soul's covenant," said Starr Stone. "Soul's covenant," she answered. But here El Capitan leaped to his booted feet, his fist on the table again.

"It will not?" he rasped. "You think it will not? Carramba! El Capitan Diablo has yet the final word. You to the winds and the vultures, Quince, and may you remember many things in the interval."

"You," he turned to Sonya and leveled a finger at her. "I give to that one among my men who rises to this Quince's empty place. Manuel, my compliments, the lady. I believe you like a white-skinned woman with curls in the hair. And after you—the rest. And that, as they say across the Border, is that. Take them both away."

The four men moved to surround their prisoner, the marching feet passed swiftly, and Sonya watched the tall bronze head go out of the shade into the sun—around a corner. The world and all it held turned dark before her just as the senora reached out a motherly arm.

She dimly heard Manuel saying, "Careful, senora, careful—she is mine."

CHAPTER XIII

Love's Sacrifice.

WHEN she opened her eyes again it was dark in the deep-walled room, and she lay on the ancient bed. For a while she lay in a sort of stupid peace, gathering her faculties, which seemed to have been scattered to the four winds.

And then suddenly the values of life dropped into their appointed places, like the brilliant colors in a kaleidoscope, and she knew where she was and what had happened.

El Capitan had spoken, and she was still a prisoner, the property of a dapper Mexican bandit with predatory eyes and laughing, thin lips, Manuel the aviator. And Starr Stone was gone—oh, heaven! Gone to that ghastly fate which lurked in the poignant words, "you to the winds and the vultures." The wild blue eyes that had darkened and changed under the mandates of life, the long hands with their tender touch, the lips so warm upon her own!

And presently the senora came padding softly to the door on heavy feet, for she was old and excellently fed, and entered to her kindly ministrations.

Sonya whirled and faced her, her dark eyes burning in the shadows. "Senora," she said desperately, "have pity on me! Can you not help me? A knife, senora—with my next meal—left on the tray? In the name of that holy Woman whom you worship, please, senora!"

"I cannot, child," she answered gently. "Manuel would kill me. Come, let me wash your sweet white body with fresh water. And there is perfume, and a woman's clothes to dress you in—a scarlet dress, and golden shoes for your feet. Tonight you rest—Manuel's orders—but tomorrow you wear these things for him. You must forget."

Forget!
Forget—the vultures and the wind! Forget the stars, the soft winds blowing, the creak of leather, and Starr Stone's hand on hers laid on her pommel!

"If you have within you, senora," she said piteously, "any remnant of a woman's pity for another woman lost to all the light of life, leave me to fight it out alone. Leave me now."

For a long time the other stood and watched her, calculating, then nodded and turned away.

"I have not forgotten—for thirty years," she said cryptically. "You shall have your night, querida."

The sound of the bolt falling echoed in the empty passage.

And Sonya Savarin, who had guarded life so well, now stood at bay, holding her breath, pondering desperately how she might destroy it.

If only she had her bags! Her little case of instruments! But she had nothing—and Starr Stone was dying now, perhaps, or would tomorrow.

There was nothing left to do, no foes to face with lifted head, no schemes of hope to make, no one whom she might coax to help her.

And so at last Sonya, having exhausted all her resources, scanted at best in this terrible situation, made ready to bow in resignation. She knelt by the ancient bed, which had no doubt seen tragedies before, and folding her hands addressed her soul to its Maker in sorrow and humility.

How long she knelt so she never afterward could recall. Sometimes she prayed, weeping, for that other soul which had so grievously misspent its days, and these were fervent prayers, abased and agonized before the heavenly throne, begging for that mercy of the eleventh hour which has been divinely promised; sometimes for Serge and Lila and little Babs, even for Darkness. For herself she asked scant favor. It had been always so with her. Service to her fellow men, comfort for all suffering things, had been her passionate aim in life.

SOFTBALL SYMPTOMS

By TEDDY

The Firemen forced Arnold's gang to play an extra inning Thursday night and then rallied to defeat them 11 to 5. For a while it looked bad for the Firefighters, but when they did connect with the pellet they were hard to stop.

I take this opportunity to dope that these two teams will tie for first place; each winning all of their remaining games of the first half.

The Methodists turned the trick Thursday night by defeating the poor-looking crew of Ward's 6 to 4. Ward's gang has played worse ball, but I do not remember when.

The Baptists are still in the winning streak, defeating the State 13 to 5 Friday night. The churchmen have managed to acquire a good hurler in Wilson, and will continue to improve.

The Highway defeated the Bachelors Friday night 7 to 4. The Bachelors out-played the Road-gang most of the game, putting three-up and three-down several times, but could not hit. They have a good ball player in Baldridge, and Andy Anderson is of much credit to the Bachelors.

—MY—DOPE—

Today—The Methodists will defeat the State.

The Baptists will defeat the Bachelors, but will have trouble. Thursday—The Fire Boys will defeat the Highway with no trouble.

Arnold will have no trouble defeating the Bachelors.

The local volunteer Fire Department is going to sponsor three Donkey Softball games to equip the local softball diamond with a few more lights. The first of these games will be Saturday night, June 23.

to be the best interests for the schools in this district.

I promised as a member of the Legislature that I would not serve any special class but that I would represent every person in our district to the best of my ability. Regardless of the work of the paid libbyists I stood at all times for that which I believed to be for the best interests of the masses of the people.

In regard to the passing of laws I am of the opinion that the Legislature, generally speaking, passes too many laws. I voted only for those which I believed to be of benefit. If elected your Representative again I will continue to cooperate with the people of my district in the passage of such laws as they deem to be for the protection of our homes, our property and our lives.

I assured you that I would stay on the job and the records will show that I did not miss a single roll call nor a day. I sponsored a resolution the effect of which would require the members of the Legislature to work six days in the week.

I am asking the voters of my district for a second term and assure you that I shall endeavor to render the same service in the future as I have in the past. I solidly support of each of you and assure you that your efforts in my behalf will be greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,

demonstration agent is teaching 17 Mexican families to can vegetables by modern methods. A standard 4-H pantry is to be filled according to budget as a guide.

By making use of a few sacks of cement, some old pipe and a little time, Pei Harbison of Hebronville has constructed a homemade milk cooler that will keep milk for two days without ice. He does it by having fresh water spray over his cans, and the water instead of being wasted is used to irrigate garden and fruit trees.

Beauty is something more than its own reward up in Ochiltree county where lettuce planted last fall among larkspur thrived all winter at the farm home of Mrs. G. M. Cooper. The tall larkspur protected the lettuce which was sweet and good way into the spring.

Falfurias—The importance of waiting until maturity to serve heifers was recently illustrated in an exhibit of two fresh reifers from the herd of Garland Lasater in Brooks county. According to Louis Franke, county agent, one heifer which calved at 29 month produced 71.44 pounds of butter fat in two months and returned a profit of $10.72 over feed in that time. The other which calved at 23 months produced 52.26 pounds of butter fat in two months and returned $5.91 profit. The heifers were similar blood lines and were fed the same ration.

Canton—Van Zandt county 4-H club boys are keeping the farm records of their dads in the new AAA record book recently issued to help farmers keep up with production and acreages of crops included in the adjustment programs, reports W. D. Seals, county agent. Club boys are also conducting a better program with corn and cotton to furnish a supply of reliable seed to farmers next year. Demonstrations have shown that sowing mongrel seed has lost farmers much money in the past.

Mobeetle—A registered pig chain started in 1932 by local business men with 14 Wheeler county 4-H club boys has been extended this year to farmers, according to Jake Tarter, county agent. Two years ago 14 business men each bought a registered pig and let it out to a club boy with the understanding that he return to the donor a registered sow pig from the first litter. The second year 13 more club boys were recipients of pigs. This spring 12 adult farmers have been furnished registered pigs on this basis. The aim is to put a good registered sow with every farmer wanting one.

Edna—To help balance Jackson county farming 4-H club boys are demonstrating that beef calves bred and fed in the county make modest profits to supplement the cotton income. Last spring four club boys made $14 per head from their calves. This year 10 boys are preparing to feed calves.

RATTLER WHIPPED BY WHITE RABBIT

POTOSI, Mo., June 15.—A white rabbit was victor Tuesday in death battle with a copperhead snake.

The battle started when the copperhead tried to enter a small box which is the rabbit's home. Fighting desperately with teeth and hind feet, the rabbit bit and slashed, while the reptile struck back viciously.

But the snake was unable either to strike or retreat, so quick were its foe's movements, and it died coiled around the rabbit's feet.
