Every advertiser should be interested in having his own establishment cooled in summer, and in urging that those of his distributors and dealers likewise be improved in this way. If business men as a whole got behind the general idea of beating the summer slump through air conditioning, they would increase sales volume in the summer months from 30 to 50 per cent with little additional effort or expenditure for advertising or sales promotion. Instead of dodging the prospect of visiting a hot, stuffy store consumers would welcome the opportunity to enjoy its cool, pleasant atmosphere.

CHEVROLET The exceptional popularity which Chevrolet has enjoyed for many years has naturally had its effect on Chevrolet prices. Large sales have enabled Chevrolet to maintain consistently low purchase prices, which were recently lowered even further. As a result Chevrolet now offers you the lowest priced six-cylinder automobile obtainable-a big, comfortable car with Fisher Body styling and refinementsafe, weatherproof, cable-controlled brakes-the smoothness and economy of a valve-in-head, six-cylinder engine -and typical Chevrolet dependability. In offering this car, and the Master models, at substantially lower prices. Chevrolet hopes to repay the motoring public in some measure, for consistently placing Chevrolet so high in public favor.

Many mappy Returns

This Spring marks the birthday of the first American Newspaper

JOHN CAMPBELL, colonial postmaster of Boston, certainly set a good example in the liberal use of the mails.

Campbell corresponded regularly with the Colonial Governors of New England, keeping them posted on Boston news. So regular and voluminous was this correspondence that Campbell's letters finally emerged in the form of a printed pamphlet called "The Boston News Letter." And this was the first regularly and continuously published newspaper in America, appearing weekly from the last week in April, 1704, to the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

The newspaper carried advertisements . . . from its very first issue! And this advertising, telling the reader where to obtain the goods that he sought for his home or his farm or his business, lifted the mere friendly chronicle of village affairs into the realm of a service to the community. The news-letters, plus advertising, became a helpful, informative, and educational institution.

Today, as in 1704, and all the years between, the advertisements are your guide-posts to honest, dependable merchandise at a fair price. time home?"

Not Original Declaration Washingtonians and visitors alike view the beautifully engrossed and signed copy of the Declaration of Independence on exhibition in the Lie brary of Congress as the "original." But it is not that, says Pathfinder Magazine. The original is in the possession of the national bibliographic treasury, but it is not displayed. These facts were recently brought out in a brochure published by the government printing office. The copy ordered printed and proclaimed on July 4, 1776, has only the printed signatures of John Hancock as president of the less, impressive man who had been Have him blich the black team to the Continental Congress and Charles Thompson as secretary. Notwithstanding the learned Arabian's ingenious account, more recent scientific investigation indicates that the Egyptians were the first to domesticate the cat- a species of the African wild cat.

The life of the cats in the Valley of the Nile would seem to have been a bed of catnip, figuratively if not literally. They enjoyed high privileges in being held sacred to Isis and to Pasht. In fact, cat-headed deities were not uncommon in the Egyptian Pantheon.

Mistreatment of the cat was a base crime in those days. Diodorus related that a Roman soldier who had killed a cat barely escaped with his life from the hands of the infurlated people.

Five-Month Year Said to Have Been Used by Noah

Telling the seasons in olden days was a complicated business, says Pathfinder Magazine. We tick off the ian calendar of five-month year, thirty exposition. days to the month, and each month three weeks of ten days.

Sticks, tied in bundles, was the invariable way of telling the day and season with the greater part of the ancient world, and today some Amer-Ican Indians keep five bundles of this ty sticks, pulling out one stick for each day. The last bundle is repeated in each half-year to level things up, and the middle bundle is split in two to judge the approach of mid-summer

In the South Sea islands the "moo stick" is used to determine the seasons. A notch is cut in the stick after each passing moon. Borneo uses a calendar consisting of various lengths of tattooed poles. The Dyaks have a custom whereby they tell the season by the length of the sun's shadow. Calendar makers tour the country in the season of sowing and plant these colored poles on the farms. By a system of queer calculation they adjust these poles to a certain length, marked on the ground. Invariably this shadow marking proves accurate, and in due time the calendar maker again tours the farms to receive his payment of part of the crop.

The Word "Partizan"

The spelling partisan is used because the word is derived from northern Ital ian parterna. In English, this was writ ten and printed partizanes (pl.) in Danlel's "Civil Wars," Issued in 1595. The spelling partizan occurs in Shake spears's play "Antony and Cleopatra," as published in 1606, act 3, sc. 7, and was used by Markham, 1625; by Chamberlayne, 1667; was current in London and used in the London Gazette. the official publication, in 1693, and the Annual Register, 1760. It was accepted as the standard spelling by eminent writers thereafter-Sir Walter Scott, 1805, 1820, 1827, 1828; the duke of Wellington, 1810; Boutell, 1874, etc. The French spelled it partizane in the Sixteenth century.
