

Cross and Huddleston Win; Flentge Leads by 940 Plurality in Race for District Attorney

Allred, Hunter Loom as Run-off Rivals

According to late indications James V. Allred and Tom Hunter will face each other in the runoff primary. The former's support mounted to some 40,000 votes above his nearest opponent, with C. C. McDonald running third 22,000 short of Hunter. Approximately 710,000 votes have been accounted for.

The consensus of opinion prior to the election was that C. C. McDonald, of Wichita Falls, favored by the Fergusons, would lead the ticket with Allred, also of Wichita Falls, running a close second. Tom Hunter, a third Wichita Falls candidate was rated third. Contrary to dope Hunter has thus far pushed ahead of McDonald and will probably go into the runoff in the place of McDonald.

Running fourth is Clint Small, with Witt and Hughes fighting it out for the fifth position.

Other State Offices

In the race for Senator Tom Connally stands way out in the lead over his two opponents, Joe Bailey and Guy Fisher, with a majority of more than 100,000 votes. Likely a runoff will not be necessary in this race.

Walter Woodul and Joe Moore seem to be the two likely candidates in the runoff for Lieutenant-Governor.

On Wednesday, July 18, the grand jury adjourned after having been in session for eight days, returning twenty-six indictments.

White and Burleson Will Enter in Run-off for Sheriff's Office

Witcher Leads Stockburger by 237 Votes as Both Enter Run-off

Three Coryell County candidates led the ticket for the three most prominent district positions as a result of Saturday's democratic primary election after unofficial returns had been tabulated. Two of the three were conceded winners and the third will go into the run-off leading the ticket over two opponents.

Cross Carries In Each County

In the race for district judge, Hon. R. B. Cross, who has filled the unexpired term of the late Joe Eidson, carried the three counties in his district by some 2,300 votes. His opponent was Hon. Tom L. Robinson, present district attorney and also of Coryell County. Three small boxes, one in each of the three counties, with a total voting strength of nearly fifty votes have not been counted for. Cross won by 702 in Comanche, 836 in Hamilton and 776 in Coryell.

Huddleston Defeats Livingston

Earl Huddleston, representative from Coryell and Hamilton counties and a resident of Coryell, was conceded a winner over his opponent, Dr. A. G. Livingston of Hamilton county, late Saturday night, when returns showed that he carried a heavy lead in both his home county and the residence county of his opponent. Huddleston was seeking a second-term election.

Flentge and Reese in Run-Off

Each county was represented in the race for county attorney by Ardell Williams of Hamilton, Tom Reese of Comanche and Harry Flentge of Coryell. According to present returns Flentge is leading the ticket with 4,921; Reese is second with 3,981 and Williams third with 2,982. Voting in the three counties was as follows: Hamilton—Williams 1,922, Flentge 532, Reese 333. Comanche—Williams 416; Flentge 1,299, Reese 2,762. Coryell—Williams 644, Flentge 3,090, Reese 886.

Allred Carries Coryell

Coryell County, a long-time stronghold of the Fergusons, polled its largest vote for Allred, 1,672 votes, McDonald running second with 1,471.

Sheriff's Race Close

A race which held one of the most popular places in Saturday's election was the race for sheriff, among five contestants. Joe White and John Burleson, only 31 votes apart, are destined for the runoff, with the former leading in the first primary.

Others Close

Two other races which might be considered close were those of County Clerk and Tax Assessor-Collector. In the clerk's race Mounce won a majority of 444 over Marvin Fletcher. Dave Culberson, present Collector won over Ivy Edmondson, Assessor, by 489 votes.

Co. Sup't Race

Out of seven candidates for the office of County Superintendent J. M. Witcher ran first and will enter the runoff with Stockburger. Witcher polled 237 votes more than his runoff opponent. Kit Carson ran third in the first primary with Coleman, Humes, Walker and Freeman running in the order named.

McGilvray New Chairman

NOTICE: Any erroneous reflection upon the character or standing of any person or firm appearing in its columns will be gladly and promptly corrected upon calling the attention of the management to the article in question.

Well, the first blow has fallen, and it was probably a hard blow to many. For those who survived the first deal, their anxiety will be prolonged. Getting into the run-off will have its inspirational effects for them. The most fortunate ones are those who had but one opponent. Whether they won or lost, the fact that the race is over will lift a great burden from their shoulders. The next three weeks will be rather quiet as compared with the past three weeks, even in state politics, with the possible exception of the governor's race. Rumors are that we may look for one of the hottest run-off contests in many years.

Mayor Lowrey favors building the new school gymnasium of concrete instead of frame, as was called for by the specifications. Although the initial cost might be slightly higher, this does not take into consideration the cost of painting on a frame structure and the higher insurance rate placed on this construction. The Gatesville mayor also pointed out the durability of a concrete building as compared with the other. Why not build one that will stand the abuse of rains and storms and remain standing for the benefit of generations to come?

A reader of the News contributed to this newspaper a story concerning the local volunteer fire department, which we think is very good. It contains many pertinent facts on the loyalty of that group and on a later date we want to publish the story for the benefit of our readers.

Investigation in a certain east Texas county revealed the fact that there were many names on the poll tax list of people who positively do not exist. This is only one of the many unscrupulous election practices that go on in the process of party voting. Fortunately for Coryell County we do not have anything like this with which to contend. The sanctity of the ballot is something which should be regarded with all dignity and reverence at all times.

The federal cattle buying program started in Coryell County Friday. This feature of the drought relief schedule will be of great service to this section. Farmers have been facing the situation of overstocked herds for the past few months and now that the government has come to their aid things will naturally begin to look more optimistic. Farmers will be able to reduce their stock to meet the feed supply and at the same time get a substantial price for the cattle sold the government.

SOFTBALL SYMPTOMS

By TEDDY

The Baptists had no trouble defeating the Methodists 14 to 1 Wednesday night. Wilson, Baptist hurler, allowed the Methodists only one hit. Blanton has a good infield, but he and Wilson are just as good when it comes to hurling the pellet.

The Firemen nosed out the Bachelors Wednesday night 11 to 5. This game proved to be closer than the score indicates. The Bachelors have a fair infield, but their out-field isn't so "hot."

Arnold's crew gave the Methodists a 5 to 0 licking Friday night. Joe Powell, Methodist ace, pitched his best game of the season, but his teammates failed to give him their support.

The Baptists, after playing for eleven innings, nosed out Gartman's gang 4 to 3. For five innings the hurlers managed to get 3 men up and 3 down. This game was the best one played this season with the smallest crowd out. In the eleventh inning, when Blanton's bunch scored their winning run, about half of the spectators came to their feet, while the other half sit with a sigh of agony. This game was protested by Gartman.

My Apology

I want to take this method to apologize for not being present at the games Friday night. I was the victim of a local dentist Friday afternoon, having a tooth extracted. I went to the ball diamond and turned the lights on and made arrangements for the games to be played, but later returned to town and did not see fit to go back to the field.

My Decision

I make this decision, disregarding the favors shown me. I want to thank each one that was kind enough to give the cigars and cold drinks, but "boys" I will not be bribed.

The Baptists won the game 4 to 3, as the score indicates. From what evidence I can gather, and looking up rules in 3 rule books, both teams were on the right side of the fence, but the game was on the other side. Blanton's error was that he returned Laudermilk to the game when he should have returned Rogers. Gartman's error was that he let Laudermilk return to the field when he should have made Rogers, or should have gone home when the substitution, Laudermilk for Rogers, was made, resting assured that he had the game sewed up. As you know the game was played out. The Baptists won 4 to 3.

—MY—DOPE—

Wednesday—The Baptists will win from Arnold's gang by a few runs.

Gartman's bunch will defeat the Methodists with out trouble.

METHODIST NOTES

Hooray for Valley Mills

Four of our boys who are active in the Intermediate Department of the Methodist Church are off (Monday) for Valley Mills Christian Adventure Camp and they leave lots of enthusiasm as they go. It is understood a like number or more girls will go next week to the same camp for the girls.

This is a Central Texas Conference Camp under the guide of the Board of Christian Education.

Rev. M. M. Chunn accompanied the boys, returning the same day, while Mrs. A. C. Schloeman plans to go with the girls.

You should have heard the sermon delivered by the Methodist pastor Sunday night on "True Citizenship."

The pastor stated in part, "There are but three vital issues today in the Texas political situation, one is equal distribution of taxation, placing it upon the profits with equity. The second is whether gambling is right or wrong, and of course no thinking man much more a Christian holds any view but it is absolutely wrong. The third, is the subject of control of liquor which is never controlled after it leaves the bottle.

The best way to tame a poison snake is to cut his tail off just behind his eyes and the only solution to the liquor traffic is to label it poison and brand it lawless and keep it in that category."

THE STORY

CHAPTER III.—The four men arrive at the ranch. Herrick announces that his sister, Helen, is coming to the ranch. Hays unfolds his plan for getting possession of the 12,000 head of live stock on the Herrick ranch. He and his lieutenants ride away to drive off the first bunch of cattle. Jim remains behind to shoot it out, if necessary, with Heeseeman, Hays' rival among the cattle rustlers. Jim sees a dust cloud, which he is certain denotes the arrival of Heeseeman and his gang. He stands with rifle ready.

CHAPTER IV.—Heeseeman tells Wall that Hays was once his (Heeseeman's) partner and double-crossed him. Herrick delegates Jim to go to Grand Junction to meet Miss Herrick. Jim gets Barnes, a young cowboy with him, to tell her that he (Jim) is a desperado of the worst type. Barnes does so, and later Jim tells her he is what is known as a "bad man," but the girl treats the information lightly.

And he attempted to assist her inside the back seat of the buckboard.

"If you are going to drive I want to sit in front," she said, frankly.

With a bow he helped her up the high step, cursing inwardly at Hank Hays and Herrick and the inscrutable fate that had brought this about. For some way or other he was lost. He almost forgot to wait for Barnes, who was saying good-by to a red-cheeked, wide-eyed girl in the crowd. Barnes came running to leap into the buckboard and then... Owing to the way he had packed the baggage there was not a great deal of room in the front seat. His heavy gun and sheath bumped against Miss Herrick.

"Are We Ready to Go?" She Asked Gayly.

"Rather tight quarters, with that gun there," he remarked, and swung the sheath round in his lap.

"Do you sleep in it?" she asked, quizzically.

"Yes. And never am dressed in the daytime till it's buckled on."

"What startling folks, you western Americans!"

"Some of us are indeed startling. I hope you won't find us unpleasantly so," he replied, and loosening the reins let the spirited team go. In a few moments the noise, dust, heat and the staring populace of Grand Junction had been left far behind and the red and black ranges lifted above the meadows and sage.

"Oh, glorious!" she cried, and gazed raptly ahead as the curving road brought into view a wonderful sweep of Utah.

Jim was hard put to it to keep the blacks from breaking out of a brisk trot. He thought grimly that he would have liked to let the team run off and kill them both. Far better that than what might be! Miss Herrick's photograph on her brother's desk fell infinitely short of doing her justice. It failed to give any hint of her color, of the vivid lips, of the glory and gleam of her hair, of the dancing, laughing violet eyes, of her pulsing vitality. Jim Wall felt the abundant life of this girl. It flowed out of her. It got into his veins. It heated his blood.

"The wind makes me cry," she said, merrily. "Or maybe it's because I'm so happy. You say we'll get to Star ranch before dark?"

"Surely."

"Oh, it's been such a long, slow, dusty, cramped journey," she exclaimed. "But now I want to see, to smell, to feel, to gloat."

"Miss Herrick, this is fine country. But tame compared to that all about the Henrys. You will see them when we top the next hill. I've seen most of the West. And the canyon desert below Star ranch is the wildest and most sublime of all the West, probably of the whole world."

"Indeed. You speak strongly, not to say surprisingly. It never occurred to me that a gunman—that is what you are, is it not?—could have any appreciation of the wonder and beauty of nature."

"A common mistake," Miss Herrick, rejoined Jim. "Nature develops the men who spend their lonely, hard, bloody lives with her. Mostly she makes them into beasts, with self-preservation the only instinct, but it is conceivable that one now and then might develop the opposite way."

"You interest me," she replied, simply. "Tell me of this canyon desert and such men."

Jim talked for a full hour, inspired by her unflagging interest. He described the magnificent reaches and escarpments ending in Wild Horse mesa, and the unknown canyoned abyss between it and Navajo mountains, and lastly, the weird, ghastly brakes of the Dirty Devil.

"Ugh, how you make me shiver!" she ejaculated. "But it's wonderful. I'm sick of people, of fog, rain, dirt, cold, noise. I'd like to get lost down in those red canyons!"

CHAPTER V

THEY came to a long, level valley, where the white road was like a floor, and the horses went like the wind.

What was going to be the effect of this extraordinary woman upon the fierce men of this lonely region? Upon that swarthy Hank Hays!

At last the horses had to be held in at the base of the longest ascent on the journey. Miss Herrick tucked her disheveled hair with the ends of the veil underneath the edges of her bonnet.

"What a run! I'm used to horses—but not tearing along—with a vehicle like this," she said, breathlessly.

"Wait till one of these old drivers gets a chance at you. I'm really no teamster."

"Are you a cowboy?"

"Didn't young Barnes tell you who and what I am?" queried Jim, turning to her.

"I grasped that you were a stranger to Utah—that you were from Wyoming, where you had killed many bad men, and that your mere reputation was enough out here to keep rustlers and desperadoes away from Star ranch. Mr. Wall, you certainly are a hero in his eyes."

It did not take great perspicuity to grasp that Jim was not far from that in her eyes. He groaned in spirit.

"I see that you will not tell me about yourself," she went on. "Pardon my inquisitiveness. But I must inform you that I expect to go into the ranching business with my brother. You will be working for me, then, as well."

"I hope you don't, Miss Herrick," he burst out, impulsively. "Somebody must tell you, it oughtn't come from a—a—rider like me. But this is no place for such a girl as ou. "What do you mean, Mr. Wall? That hardly seems a compliment to me. I can work, and I want to."

"Miss Herrick, you didn't get my meaning," replied Jim, hastily, with strong feeling. "It is not you who couldn't fit in. You've convinced me you could. And that is the biggest compliment I could pay you. . . . I meant that you will not be able to live, and work, too, the way you want to. You dare not ride around—or even leave the house. Even that—"

"For mercy sake, why not?" she demanded, in astonishment.

"Because, young woman, you are too new, too strange, too lovely to risk yourself in sight of these men at the ranch. . . . Not all of them. But some of them."

"You cannot be serious."

"I swear it, Miss Herrick."

"But what of the vaunted chivalry of westerners? I've read of Fremont, Kit Carson, Crook, and many others. And of the thousands who are unsung."

"That is true," he replied, his voice husky. "Thank God, I can say so. But you won't find that at Star ranch."

"You say I am too new, strange, too—too lovely to risk—I understand you, of course. I must doubt it, despite your evident strong feeling. You may be playing a western joke on me."

"I wish I was."

"My brother will know, if there is anything in what you say."

"No! No!" burst out Jim. "Herrick doesn't know. He never will know. He can't see through a millstone with a hole in it. Oh, don't misunderstand me. Herrick is a fine chap, but this is no place for an English gentleman and sportsman, any more than it is a fit place for his sister."

"That is for us to decide," she returned, coldly. "I shall ride, anywhere and everywhere. I've always ridden. I'd go mad not to get on a horse in this glorious country."

"I've done my best. I've told you," he said, curtly, as if he were also addressing his conscience.

"I thank you, Mr. Wall," she said, quick to catch the change in him. "No doubt you western folks regard Bernie as eccentric. And I'm bound to admit his ranching idea—ripping as it is to us—must appear new and strange to you. So I'll compromise. If it's really dangerous for me to ride about alone, I will take you with me. Not, however, that I'd be afraid to go alone. Then I would be perfectly safe, would I not?"

The 1330 feet of concrete tile for subirrigation in Palmer county laid in seven gardens in three communities during 1933 have had added to them 7000 more feet laid in 22 gardens located in eight communities. Even where water could not be spared for irrigation oftener than once in three weeks in gardens still held up well and the vegetables fared better than where surface irrigation was used.
Three hundred Fayette county farmers have beaten the drought to their forage crops by putting 15,000 tons of corn, cane and hegarl down in trench silos to feed their livestock through the winter.

You may not have your cake and eat it too, but farmers did get their cotton plow-up checks last summer when they were badly needed and are profiting again this year, says E. B. Isham of Deep Creek in Shackelford county who reports a yield of 65 bushels of oats per acre on land where he plowed under cotton last year and only 10 1/2 bushes on 15 other acres of similar land.
For setting out 300 tomato plants in her garden and 25 shrubs around the house, having a fully equipped sewing box, making a cup towel, apron and dress, and then writing the history of her club work Eva Kapchinski, 4-H club girl of Pine Grove in Grimes county was named winner in a county contest to attain these goals.

From a two acre plum orchard Ralph Masterson of Hardin county profitably marketed, mostly at his own front gate, 200 bushels of plums. Some of his trees are bearing this year for the first time.
Victoria—A trench silo has been completed by Herbert Wischkaemper of the Lone Tree Community of Victoria county to conserve what feed dry weather has left him. Mr. Wischkaemper's corn was burning up because of the drought, and so on the advice of the farm demonstration agent, J. L. Moore, he and two hired helpers dug the trench in four days. It is 75 by 8 by 7 feet and was completed with a total cash outlay of $8. Mr. Wischkaemper stated that he expected to fill the silo and he believed he could do so at about 75 cents per ton which would be the cheapest feed he had ever harvested.

New Braunfels—Early, deep, and thorough breaking of the land followed by deep planting, thin spacing, and good cultivation made the "lucky man" among the corn raisers of Comal county, according to George E. Ehlinger, farm demonstration agent. The "unlucky ones" were those who followed a haphazard system of preparing their lands.
A surprisingly good corn yield was made in this county without any rain since the last of March and the first of April. A number of farmers took advantage of good subsoil moisture and some improved their yield by planting corn rows with cow peas in the vacant row.

Herman Schulze with his corn in paired rows is making a better crop this year than last. Albert Soefje, Willie Kresche and Walter Schulze, his neighbors, are likewise making good corn with this system, plus early and good soil preparation, while some other neighbors had to cut their corn for forage.
Menard—Thirty-four choice Hereford calves selected from 9 outstanding herds in the county and averaging 225 pounds were started on feed the first of June by the 4-H club members of Menard county, according to Frank N. Newsom, farm demonstration agent. The starting grain ration was composed of 45 per cent oats, 45 per cent corn, and 10 per cent cottonseed cake.
