From 'Way Out West

People who don't think local softball is being noticed elsewhere will be interested to learn that the News is in receipt of a letter from Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Burchett, 1665-B, 11 St., Santa Monica, California, in which they have included their selection for an All-Star softball team.

In closing, the Burchetts write, "Lots of good luck to the good old Coryell County News, the best paper in Texas."

WHEAT, OATS LOANS WILL BE OVER SOON

According to Walter Moore, local representative of the Emergency Feed and Seed Loans program of the Federal government, the Seed Loans on fall wheat and oats will be discontinued on September 15. Those who are interested in procuring loans to finance the planting of either fall wheat or oats should contact Mr. Moore prior to that time.

The monthly feed loans program is not in any way affected by this ruling. Those who need loans to buy feed for stock should apply to Mr. Moore for such loans.

T. W. DAVIDSON FAVORS GARNER

DALLAS, Sept. 2.—T. W. Davidson, former lieutenant governor and an Allred-for-governor leader in Dallas, added his support to the movement to name Vice President John N. Garner as democratic national committeeman from Texas.

Davidson, who returned Saturday from the American Bar association meeting in Milwaukee, said he would support heartily the vice president for the national committeeman's post now held by ex-Governor James E. Ferguson.

The report of Dr. Beebe that he sighted monster fish far down in the sea is the first corroborative testimony as to the dimensions of fish that got off the hook.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

John A. Hughes, adjustment assistant, returned from College Station Saturday at midnight with 4,360 tax-exempt certificates for the cotton producers of Coryell county. The exemption certificates were cut proportionately to bring them in line with the allotment for Coryell by the State Board of Reviews. These tax-exemptions represent 14,853 bales of cotton at 478 pounds net lint to the bale.

Cards were mailed out Monday morning to all whose certificates were received but since Monday was Labor Day the cards were not carried out on the rural routes until this morning (Tuesday).

The procedure for handing out tax-exemption certificates begun at eight o'clock Monday morning in the county courtroom. Tennants and landlords are urged to bring in their cards which in turn will greatly facilitate the procedure. Each individual is requested by the county agent to come in person. Since these certificates are very valuable and may not be replaced, the holders should take every precaution not to lose them, for "it's like losing a $1 bill," according to Mr. Sherrill. They should be kept in a safe place or left with the ginner, who will tag the cotton at the time of ginning.

In instances where there is a combine of landlords and tenant, the landlord will receive the same proportion of certificates as there is cotton grown by the tenant.

It has been suggested that certificates of landlord and tenant be presented to the ginner at the time of ginning so that he may detach, in case of a third and fourth tenant, three-fourth from the tenants certificates and one-fourth from the landlord's, according to the net weight of lint in each bale.

Ginners who have Interim certificates are urged to bring these in so that the producer can receive the number of original certificates due him, after the proper number have been detached to care for the cotton ginned under the Interims.

Producers who have cotton for the first time in 1933 or 1934, with no cotton on the base years (1928 to 1932 inclusive) on that farm will be given certificates by the state board out of the 10 per cent reserve. These will come later however, when all counties have submitted their Bankhead allotments. These producers will be notified by card when the certificates arrive.

All landlords and tenants with cotton during the base years may expect their certificates to be in the county agent's office.

I will think—talk—write . . . Texas Centennial in 1936! This is to be my celebration. In its achievement I may give free play to my patriotic love for Texas' heroic past; my confidence in its glories that are to be. . . . .

Roads and good roads will be the main issue, or should be, if the Texas Centennial Commission hopes to carry out the idea of a "See Texas" exposition in 1936. Regardless of whether the Centennial location goes to Houston, Dallas or San Antonio, the millions of visitors who come to the Lone Star State for the big birthday party will no doubt want to see as much of Texas as they possibly can during the limited time they have to spend here. It is only practical to realize that good roads will be essentially important, and too, modern highways will add greatly to the appearances of our state. New highways are being constructed all over Texas and if this immediate locality doesn't partake of the road program Coryell county is going to have the distinction of being one of the few counties in this state without any hard surfaced highways. It seems a pity to think that the geographical center of the state should not be the highway hub of the state. We trust that something will come to pass that will provide Coryell with at least one concrete highway connecting the eastern part of the state with the western plains of Texas or northern boundary with the southern border. We think of no greater ambition than to see a splendid concrete highway passing through this section that will allow visitors from out of the state to travel in comfort from one end of Texas to the other.

In another section of this paper there appears a story by Sup't Frank L. Williams, of the Gatesville Public Schools, written in the form of an appeal. This matter is really a distressing situation, when boys and girls from the rural section of the county are keen to pursue their education beyond what their own schools have to offer. It is natural that they should want to come to Gatesville, the county-seat town, to finish their high school education. Residents of this city who have available rooms to rent should get in touch with the schools authorities rather than wait to be called upon.

The local administration of the AAA continues its work with the recent announcement of the purchasing program on sheep and goats. Sheep, ewes, one year or older, may be sold to the government for $2.00 a head, thus allowing the owners to cull their herds. Goats too, may be sold for $1.40 per head, offering the same opportunity. We are beginning to wonder what we will be able to get for our old nearly broken down touring car when car-owners are included on the relief program.

Now that court has adjourned and the election is over, it's up to the merchants to throw out their own bait to bring the folk to town. Trades Day has never been given any particular attention in this vicinity but with a little emphasis it might be the very thing.

World Comment

By JOE BURNS

JAMES E. FERGUSON announces that he will withdraw his claim to a position on the National Committee if Vice President Garner will accept the post. At Austin, Democratic nominee James V. Ailred placed his approval upon Garner as committeeman. The Vice President, however, has refused to comment and at the last report was striking for the river with his rod and reel.

Argentina, Brazil and the United States are trying to stop the Chaco warfare in South America, which has been raging with short intervals for four years. The three nations have now proposed a truce, during which time it is hoped a treaty of peace can be drawn up. Paraguay has accepted the truce, Washington reports, apparently willing to let her troops rest after their sixth major offensive which penetrated far into Bolivian territory. Bolivia, at this writing, does not seem inclined to agree to a cessation of fighting, as she does not want to allow the Paraguayan troops to remain on her soil.

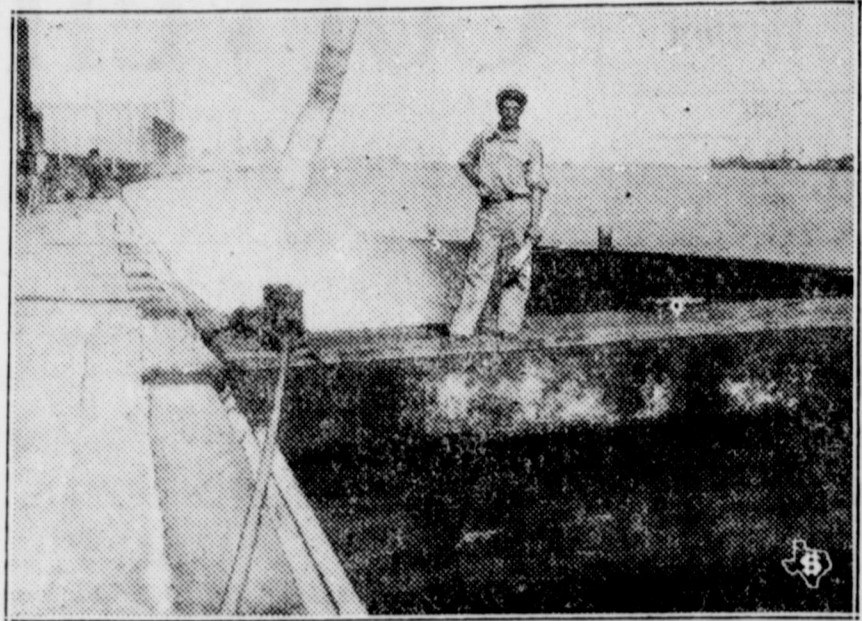

THE GOVERNMENT expands its cattle buying program with the announcement by the Department of Agriculture that registered stock will be bought. The new program will start next week, according to the official bulletin. The additional cattle buying program was prompted, it is announced by the fact that Herefords form a large percentage of the cattle in the drought relief states. Texas has more registered Herefords than any other state in the Union.

SENATOR HUEY P. LONG roared into New Orleans Friday night accompanied by a large detachment of National Guards acting as his bodyguard. The Senator, along with a group of state legislators, will start an investigation into the affairs of the city administration in the immediate future. In an interview with the United Press, the Kingfish declared that he would have Mayor Walmsley out of office in thirty days. He also promised the conviction of the city administration on misconduct in office through association with underworld characters.

UPTON SINCLAIR, dynamic Socialist and novelist, won the Democratic nomination for governor of California over five opponents last week. Sinclair's principal opponent was George Greel, publicity manager for Woodrow Wilson during his tenure of office, who had the support of Senator William G. McAdoo. Sinclair promised support of President Roosevelt's policies while Creel was regarded as a conservative.

While Republicans were jubilant over Sinclair's victory, which they maintain will bring about the defeat of the state's

A WORD OF THANKS FROM YOUNG W. LEE

I wish to say to the voters of Justice Precinct No. 1 that I appreciate ever so much the nice vote given me in the last primary, though my opponent won by a majority of 62 votes. I carried three of the five boxes in the precinct. I would not exchange that confidence of my old neighbors for any office in the county without their endorsement.

I have no ill feeling toward anyone supporting my opponent, as they had the same right to vote for him as if I wasn't in the race.

Respectfully,
Young W. Lee.

ROOMS AND BOARD NEEDED

By Supt. Frank L. Williams

Several appeals have been made for rooms for light housekeeping and for straight room and board for school students, but so far very few indications of results have appeared. There are many school students from the rural schools over the county who desire to board outright, to do light housekeeping, or to work for room and board. Calls come in every day for one type or another of this accommodation. Anyone interested in any form of such living conditions is requested to call the high school office and make such report. Students will then be given a list of possible living quarters and will be directed to them to make their own arrangements.

FIRST MISTAKE IN 50 YEARS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—School Boy Rowe and the treasury department no doubt could find sympathy together now, for both know the sting of having records snapped.

The treasury's vast telegraph system had a record of no important errors in transmissions for 50 years; that is up until a routine telegram was sent out in connection with hiring 40 or 50 persons to conduct the government's tax inquiry in Chicago.

The telegram offered the prospective employes a per diem pay of $20, whereas it should have been $11.40.

ROBBERS' ROOST

by
ZANE GREY

THE STORY

CHAPTER VII—The gang is about to break with Hays over the abduction, but he explains that he robbed Herrick and stole Helen for ransom. Realizing that Helen will be worse off if she falls into Heese-man's clutches, Jim Wall rides on with Hank and his men. Heese-man's riders are discovered in pursuit. After a running battle in which Latimer, one of Hays' men, is wounded, Hays leads the gang into a canyon retreat, difficult of access and easy to defend—The Robbers' Roost.

CHAPTER VIII—After camp has been made, Jim seeks out Smoky Slocum, and secures his promise to aid in case Helen is threatened with harm by the villainous Hays. Jim hears a wild cry in the night. Before he dies, Latimer, who was wounded in the fight with Heese-man, tells Jim and Smoky that Hays has held out some of the money he stole from Herrick.

"Air you insinuat' you mightn't git yours?" demanded Hays.

"No. You might say I was askin' for all of us" replied Jim curtly.

"Wal, I'll git the outfit together an' do some askin' myself."

"It's a good idea. It might prevent the split—provided you divide the money you stole from Herrick."

"I'll wring thet white cat's neck" hissed the robber.

"You're wrong, boss. She didn't tell me. She doesn't know you robbed her brother. Sparrow confessed before he died."

Hays swore a mighty oath. "An' he squealed?"

"Yes. To Smoky an' me. We kept it secret until we had to tell. They knew somethin' was wrong."

"All the time you knowed!" There was something pathetic in the fallen chieftain's shame and amaze. By this time he seemed to realize his crime.

"You see, Hank, how your outfit has stood by you, even in your guilt."

"Ahuh! . . . If it ain't too late—I'll make amends," he rejoined hoarsely, and stalked away in the darkness.

Jim had breakfasted before the other men were up. With rifle in hand he headed toward the western exit.

Loneliness was paramount. There was no sound—only an immense silence. No life at all! Not a winged creature hovering over that ghastly region! But over this scene of desolation slowly spread the solemn blight of heating, blazing sun, soon to mantle all in illusive copper haze.

Before that hour arrived, Jim Wall took up the field glass. Below in the camp the men were lazily stirring to a late breakfast. The door of the cabin was open. A glint of gold crossed the dark aperture. Then the tall form of Hays stalked out. He yawned. He stretched wide his long arms. His ruddy face gleamed in the glass to that sight. Wall's whole being leaped.

"By heaven!" his voice rang out. "Hays, that's your last morning's stretch. . . . Before this day's done you'll stretch forever!"

Let his men have their hour, thought Jim daskly, but if they did not mete out justice to their chief the end was nevertheless fixed and unalterable.

Jim settled back and raised his fieldglass more from habit than any semblance of the old watchfulness. There was nothing to see but the stark denudation of the brakes.

Suddenly into Jim's magnified circle of vision crept dark objects—a long line of them.

He was so startled that the glass wavered out of line. He moved it to and fro, searching. What could that have been? An error of sight, a line of cedars, a conception of idle mind!

"There!" he breathed. He had caught it again. Not cedars—not brush, but moving objects! . . . "By heavens!" he muttered. "Am I dotty?"

Horses! A line of dark horses! His straining eyes blurred. He lowered the glass with shaking hands. "So help me—it looks like riders!"

A third time Jim caught the objects. He froze the glass on them. Horses and riders—horses with packs! A bursting gush of hot blood ran all through him. It looked like Heese-man's outfit, at least three miles away, approaching slowly by a route far to the south of that over which Hays had come.

"About three miles," muttered Jim. "Coming slow. They're lost. . . . But that wash they're in heads into the Hays trail. . . . If they strike that they'll come fast. Not enough rain yet to wash out our tracks. We've not time to pack and ride out. . . . By thunder, they've cornered us! Now, Hank Hays—"

Jim took one more straining look. No hope! It was a big outfit and not traveling so slowly, either. The leader bestrode a black horse. Jim remembered that horse. Snatching up his rifle he slung the field-glass over his shoulder and ran down off the bluff to the camp.

To his profound amaze he espied Hays bound hand and foot, with a stick behind him and through his elbows. The robber sat in an uncomfortable posture against the wood-pile. In a second Jim saw that Hays had been gagged and his face was so contorted by rage that it appeared scarcely human.

"What's up!" cried Jim, breaking out of his bewilderment.

Hays gave vent to an inarticulate sound, but it was expressive. Jim wheeled to stalk under the shack, his hand on his gun, as if he half expected Heese-man to have arrived before him. To his amaze Miss Herrick was sitting at the rude table eating breakfast. A big gun, that Jim recognized as Hays' property, lay conspicuously in front of her. Happy Jack, whistling as usual, was serving her.

"What does this mean?" demanded Jim.

"Ask the men," she replied, curtly.

Outside and below the shack sat Smoky on a rock, with the others standing near.

"Mawnin', Jim," drawled Smoky, with a grin. "You see we've got a new chief."

"Who hawg-tied the boss?"

"Reckon I did—with a little help."

"What for?"

"D—n' if I know. Our lady prisoner made me do it."

"Miss Herrick forced you to tie Hays up?" queried Jim, trying to conceal his exultation.

"I should shiver she did. Struck Hays' hair-trigger gun—cocked—right into my belly, an' says: 'Will you tie this villain—an' swear by your honor not to release him or allow any of these other men to do so or will you have me shoot you?'"

"How'd she get that gun?"

"Wal, she snatched it quicker'n lightnin', that's how. An' when she cocked it with both hands it went off bang! The bullet went between Hank's legs. Ticked him. You can see the hole in his pants. Scared? My Gawd, you never see a man so scared. Thet gurl, cool as a cucumber, cocked the gun again, an' held Hays up—then all of us.

"We was sittin' at the table. She made us all stand, hands high, an' then she performed thatt little trick with Hanks' gun agin my gizzard. Jim, I hope to die if I didn't go cold an' stiff. But I promised on my word of honor—as a robber—that I'd tie Hank up, an' make the other fellers play square. It was so funny, too, thet I near bust. Hays, soon as he was helpless, got over his scare, an' then was he mad! I reckon no one on this earth saw a madder man. He cussed so terrible thet she made me gag him."

"Well, I'll be—blowed!" gasped Jim.

"No wonder. We was wuss. We'd had breakfast, an' Hank was tryin' to face us fellers. I'll say he came clean, Jim. He divided all the money he got from Herrick an' his sister, an' the gold things an' diamonds. 'Fellers,' he said, 'I could lie an' say I meant to give this to you later. But I'm not built that way. I double-crossed you all—first time in my life. I meant to keep it all, an' the ransom for the gurl. But now there won't be no ransom, for I'm not goin' to give her up. She's mine, an' I can do as I want, an' if any of you don't like it you can make your kick now.' . . . Wal, we was so plumb flabbergasted thet we didn't see the gurl, who came close on the sun side of Happy's shelter. She heard the whole d—n' show. . . . Jim, I wish you could have seen her when she stepped up to Hank. I don't know what did it—mebbe her eyes—but he shore wilted. It was then she snatched his gun."

"So that's the deal!" ejaculated Jim. "What are you going to do?"

"Don't ask me. I gave my word an' I'll keep it. For that matter the rest of our outfit air fer the gurl, ransom or no ransom."

Suddenly Jim awoke out of his stupefaction to remember the approach of Heese-man.

"Smoky, I know what you're all —When you see a fire think of insurance. When you think of insurance see H. S. Compton.

going to do, and that's fight," he flashed, curtly. "Heese-man's outfit is coming. I sighted them perhaps three miles. Traveling slow, but sure. We've no time to pack an' get away. We've got to find the best place to stand an' fight, an' pack our stuff into it pronto."

"Heese-man!" cried Smoky, coolly.

"So it's come. I reckoned on thet. Git busy, men."

ON TEXAS FARMS

Minnie Fisher Cunningham
Extension Service Editor
A. & M. College

Some watering, careful cultivation after the watering and a mulch of barnyard manure are factors in the success with shrubs which Mrs. H. N. Harrison of Kleberg county is enjoying in spite of the drought. She has used many native shrubs that are drought resistant which has helped, but responsible for her "good luck" more than any of these items she regards the fact that she started with prepared shrub beds with the soil thoroughly pulverized.

"You can tell to a row where the cotton was plowed under last summer, because the crop is larger and standing the drought better there than on other land," Boy Lyles of the McDuff neighborhood in Bastrop county told his county farm demonstration agent W. S. Millington.

In the fall of 1933 Clyde Keeney of Eldorado put up the first trench silo of feed ever to be stored in Schleicher county. "Proof of the pudding was in the eating" and the only trouble he had with his livestock in relation to this feed was keeping them off the wagon while he was scattering it. Last year he stored 2700 bundles of feed in the trench. This year's plans are to put up ten or fifteen thousand bundles if the drought permits.

In Archer county Felix Ordner threshed oats and barley for 17 farmers in his neighborhood and in every case where the grain was planted on land on which cotton was plowed under last summer the yield was increased from one-fourth to one-third.

Two trench sites were dug in Brazoria county in 1932. This year there are 75 in use in that county. The two in 1932 carried about 150 tons of silage. In less than three full years this amount has increased to approximately 11,250 tons.

College Station—Farmers who entered the cotton plow-up campaign last year and chose the option plan, receiving part cash and part options as payment then later borrowing 4 cents per pound on the optioned cotton, received participation certificates which they are advised to hold on to by G. E. Adams, assistant state agent of the Extension Service. "These farmers who borrowed on their options agreed to pool cotton and allow it to be sold by the manager of the pool. It is rumored. Mr. Adams said, "that speculators are going through the country buying up these participation certificates for very small sums. These certificates may become worth as much as $15 per bale and farmers who sell them for less are likely to suffer some loss."

Plains—"I set out some tomato plants April 26 and irrigated them from the surface; I set out some more June 1 and have been subirrigating them through tile. The plants set out over the tile are almost as large as the ones first set out," Mrs. J. V. O'Neal, cooperator in the Plains Home Demonstration Club in Yoakum county, told Lillith Boyd, home demonstration agent.

"Of course the plants are younger, but they have small tomatoes," Mrs. O'Neal said. "The vines over the tile are a richer green in color, and I believe they will be stronger vines."

McKinney—By saving seed from her spring turnips, mustard, and lettuce, Alamo Crone, garden demonstrator for the Cottage Hill 4-H club in Collin county, has seed to partly plant her fall garden, according to Helen Dunlap, home demonstration agent. Miss Crone now has lima beans, pinto beans, and black-eyed peas growing for fall production.

Gilmer—"The problem with my fruit trees this year will be pruning the limbs again for many of them have been so overloaded that they broke," W. C. Fowler, of the Indian Rock community in Upshur county, told the farm demonstration agent, W. M. Burkes. Mr. Fowler followed the spraying schedule outlined by the agent, and it is to this that he attributes the freedom from insect injury, the healthy condition of the trees, and the bumper crop.

On account of the drought the fruit is smaller than it normally would have been, but due to terraces to conserve moisture, spraying, pruning, and proper cultivation Mr. Fowler has made a profitable crop from his orchard. He has customers coming from eight to ten miles for peaches.

San Benito—J. J. McCarthy of Rio Hondo in Cameron county has found that it paid him $200 per acre more to plant good tomato seed on his farm than to plant cheaply priced seed, according to Henry L. Alsmeyer, farm demonstration agent. Mr. McCarthy planted two fields to tomatoes this year, one with good seed and the other with a cheaply priced seed. The value of the yield from the good seed exceeded the value of the yield from the cheaper seed by more than $200 per acre. Next year Mr. McCarthy will plant only the best seed that can be bought.

Childress—Three carloads of good seed wheat have been bought by farmers of Childress county for planting this fall, according to V. E. Hafner, farm demonstration agent. Not only is good seed wheat introduced into the county, but the contract also provides that all of the seed be treated for smut.

WILLIAM OSCAR JONES

William Oscar Jones, age 55, died suddenly at his home in the White Hall Community Wednesday morning. Mr. Jones had been in failing health for several months but was still able to be about his work.

Mr. Jones was born in Mississippi but came to Texas as a youth and made his residence at Mosheim. Later he moved to White Hall and has since resided in that community. He has been a resident of this county for more than forty years.

He is survived by his widow; three sons, Hollis, Elland and a younger son; two daughters, Mrs. C. C. Crawford and Miss Doris Jones; a brother, Dero Jones; and a host of other friends and relatives who grieve at his departure.

Funeral services were held at the White Hall Baptist Church Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock with Rev. C. A. Morton of Gatesville officiating. Entombment was in the Turnersville cemetery.

HARRIS ACCEPTS JOB AS CLIFTON COACH

Clifton College is delighted to announce that Mr. E. B. Harris has been secured as Director of Athletics.

Mr. Harris was raised in Bosque county but is widely known throughout Central Texas.

He is a graduate of Clifton College and of North Texas State Teachers College. He has served many years as teacher and coach at the State Training School at Gatesville.

Mr. Harris needs no introduction to the people of this part of the State; everyone that knows him knows that athletics will be in safe and efficient hands as long as he directs it. Mr. Harris will also instruct the courses in Physical Education.—Clifton Record.

LAMPASAS TO HAVE LIGHTED GRID FIELD

CLIFTON MAN VICTIM OF ANGERED BULL

Frank Oswald was the unfortunate victim of a young Jersey bull last Monday afternoon at Fort Worth Stock Yards. Frank and his brother, Will Oswald, had shipped two cars of young cattle to that market, and while in one of the pens as Frank was stooped over washing his hands in a watering trough in the pen, the young animal, which had not seemingly paid any attention to the men about the pen, made a run and before Frank was aware of his danger the bull struck him viciously just below the left hip, breaking the bone just below the joint.

Mr. Oswald was immediately removed to a hospital in Fort Worth where he was put under the care of physicians and nurses to remain for several weeks or until the injury has sufficiently healed to make it safe for his removal to his home south of Clifton.—Clifton Record.

Native Texan Escapes Heat With Byrd in Little America

ONE of the first pictures received from Admiral Byrd's present expedition near the South Pole shows Joe Hill, Jr., (at extreme left) of Canyon, Texas, taking a "breather" after hard work in the sub-zero temperature. On August 24, Hill, the youngest person in Antarctica, celebrates his twentieth birthday, his first away from home. He is the son of President J. A. Hill, of West Texas State Teachers College, and was preparing for aeronautical engineering at the University of Texas when chosen to accompany Admiral Byrd to the South Pole regions. Tractor experience in West Texas wheat fields qualified Hill as a member of the expedition's winter party, tractor division, whose activities are reported every Wednesday night at 8 o'clock Central Time over the coast-to-coast Columbia network.

Estes Resigns

COL. CARL ESTES

Col. Carl L. Estes, East Texas publisher and editor-manager of the Tyler Courier-Times and Morning Telegraph, owned by the T. B. Butler Estate, Thursday announced his resignation from these publications effective Sept. 1st. Estes established the Telegraph for the Butler Company four years ago.

Going to Tyler 11 years ago as advertising manager of the Tyler Courier-Times, he advanced rapidly until he became editor 5 years ago, and editor-manager 3 years later. The papers, six column, carried no leased wire news service when he went to the East Texas city. Under his direction they were completely re-equipped mechanically, full leased wire services installed and, due to the forceful, fearless and outspoken editorial policy he pursued, particularly in connection with the fight on "hot" oil, they have acquired a State-wide reputation as metropolitan dailies.

Commenting on his resignation in Dallas Thursday, Estes said: "I will continue the fight on 'hot' oil and will now devote my full time to my own publications and will continue my residence and headquarters in Tyler." Col. Estes publishes an oil magazine and is interested in a number of other East Texas newspapers.

Col. Estes, widely known East Texas political leader and at present a member of the Texas Relief Commission, has recently been put forward for National Democratic Committeeman from Texas by friends in several North and East Texas counties, it being known that he stands in high favor with the incoming State administration as well as the National. He was one of the four delegates-at-large to the Chicago Convention, and led the Texas delegation in placing the State standard alongside that of California, which resulted in the stampede to President Roosevelt

Fair Radio Find

You may be hearing the voice of Ernest Lee, 8, Chicago, on the air waves one of these nights. He is shown here as he entered the World's Fair radio audition. With him is Norman Ross, announcer at the Fair's Lagoon theater. The contest, being conducted at Newspaper Row in the Hall of Science, is open to anyone, and the winners will be starred in a coast-to-coast NBC broadcast, after the closing, Aug. 18.

The government censor in Germany has placed a ban on the Fox Film "Stand Up and Cheer."
