

Only Producers May Sell, Barter, Exchange Or Assign Certificates

LOCAL TRANSFERING READY

Local transfer of the cotton tax-exempt certificates is now ready, according to word from the county agent's office.

Information and instructions concerning the handling of sale and transfer of from one producer to another came from headquarters yesterday.

Regulations provide that local transfer shall be between producers only at the rate of 4c per pound. Both the buyer and seller are required to appear at the county agent's office where they shall sign the necessary papers. Here the transfer will be properly recorded and approved by the adjustment assistant, John A. Hughes, who has charge of the Bankhead work in Coryell county.

Regulations

Local sale or transfer of certificates: "Any producer holding surplus certificate(s) may sell, barter, exchange, or assign to any other cotton producer situated within the county where originally issued the remaining unused portion(s) of his certificate(s) at a price of 4 cents per pound. In such case the statement attached shall be executed and filed with the Assistant in Cotton Adjustment, which shall be executed and filed with the Assistant in Cotton Adjustment, who shall keep a record of the same in his office. The transfer of such certificate(s) shall be approved by such Assistant according to the form provided in the cover of the certificate. An accounting shall be made to the Chief of the Cotton Production Section, and such Assistant shall make a final report of all such transactions and submit therewith all his records relating thereto when called upon by said Chief."

After as many as possible of the local transfers are made, those holding surplus certificates may, at a later date to be announced in this newspaper, surrender them to be placed in a pool.

It is likely that Coryell will have 2,000 bales in certificates which will probably net $40,000 in addition to the cotton they sell at the increased price.

The pooled certificates will be sold to surplus producing sections of the country and after all expenses are paid the profits will be prorated to the producers—unused certificates being returned. This is an important factor of the Bankhead Act.

Quota of 900 Head Is Set for Sheep Buying As Work Gets Started

INSPECTION BEGAN MONDAY

Sheep buying began yesterday with J. W. Mann, appraiser, in complete charge. Coryell's quota is 900 head of live sheep per week.

When producers are notified they are urged to have only ewes of one year and older penned. The present ruling is that no freshly shorn sheep will be accepted unless the owner can make affidavit that he sheers twice a year.

Producers must skin the condemned sheep and deliver the pelts in good condition with the live sheep to the shipping point. Carcasses must be either burned or buried.

AAA OFFICES MOVED INTO NEW LOCATION

The county agent's office, together with the various AAA departments has been moved from the county treasurer's office to the county courtroom. The office has been departmentized with the heads occupying individual desks.

In speaking of the change, county agent Sherrill said, "We are highly pleased with the new location, which, with the additional room will undoubtedly give us more efficiency and complete cooperation between the branches of the AAA program."

All available jobs have been filled and the work is being carried on in a creditable manner.

City Council Appoints Attorney Secretary After Prewitt Resigns

SECRETARY JOB, NON PAY

At a recent meeting of the city council C. E. Alvis Jr., present city attorney, was appointed city secretary and will serve jointly in the two offices. This action followed the resignation of Fred G. Prewitt, who will retain his position as book-keeper of the city records.

The change in administration was brought about by the confusion which has recently arisen in the minds of many who felt that the elective job of secretary carried with it the position of book-keeper, which in reality is an appointed office, according to Mayor Lowrey. The elective office of city secretary is non-remunerative, except that the office pays $12.00 annually. The position of book-keeper is appointed by the city council and the two are separate and distinct.

Mayor Lowrey stated that hereafter the elective job of secretary-attorney will take the place of the two respective offices.

FACULTY INCLUDES TWO FROM CORYELL

The revised list of teachers for Brownsville Junior College, High School, Junior High School and elementary grades was released Saturday by E. C. Dodd, superintendent of schools and president of the Junior College.

The position of principal of schools and dean of Junior College made vacant by the resignation of J. W. Irvine remains to be filled.

Classes in both junior college and city schools begin Tuesday and Wednesday, Supt. Dodd announced.—Brownsville Herald.

The faculty list includes Miss Sara Lane Martin, instructor of English, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Martin of Gatesville, Texas.

Dean Irvine, who has taken a position with a San Antonio text book publication, will be remembered as the son of Mrs.

First Day of News' Subscription Drive Nets Worthy Results

CAMPAIGN WILL BE SHORT

The third and final subscription sale, for the next twelve months, got underway Saturday morning, sponsored by the Coryell County News. Representatives of the News established a booth in the Brown Building on the north side of the square, the same location which has been used heretofore.

Results of the first day's campaign were very gratifying. A proportionate number of new and renewal subscriptions were taken on the advent of the unusual subscription offer.

The Half-Price Subscription Sale will continue until Saturday, October 13. The duration of the current sale is only for four weeks, whereas six weeks have been the accepted time limit in the past.

After the closing date, the subscription price of the News will be re-established at the regular rate of $1.00 per year. During the campaign the price is being cut to 50c a year for all residents of Coryell County. Residents of other counties may subscribe at the reduced rate of $1.00.

"A Semi-Weekly—Giving Its Readers News While It Is News," is the slogan of this newspaper, a motto which is given constant consideration by the publisher and the staff of the News.

MRS. M. W. HATCHETT AND DAUGHTER ARE DEAD

News of the death of Mrs. M. W. Hatchett and her daughter, Lilla DeWinsor, both residents of San Antonio, reached their Gatesville relatives Monday. Death came to the mother and daughter Sunday.

Mrs. Hatchett was a former loyal churchwoman of Gatesville, a regular attendant and participant in the services of the Methodist Church for a number of years.

Ewing Divides Squad Into Separate Teams For Initial '34 Tilt

HORNETS MAY TAKE TO AIR

Local pigskin fans had their first opportunity to see the High School aggregation in action when the first team played the "B" team Friday afternoon. The object of the game was to show Coaches Ewing and Baldrige the defects of the boys when in action and also to bring out the qualities of some of the new prospects.

Although the score was heavily in favor of the regulars, the second string boys put up a remarkable fight, taking into consideration their previous experience. The "B" team was made up mostly of new material from rural communities.

The blocking of the regulars was fair but the offense failed to click during most of the game. The offense was slow in making holes for the backs but the backs showed remarkable adaptability in following the blockers when the second stringers were cleared out.

The regulars tried five passes and all were completed. The passing of halfback Joe Powell with Hazen Ward, first string end, on the receiving line clicked perfectly and seemed to indicate that the Hornets might be planning to rely strongly on the air this fall. Powell and Hair showed up good in the backfield, the diminutive quarter showing his ability as a broken field runner several times while Powell made it look as if he might be the hardest hitting back the school has had in some time. Bauman, veteran of two seasons, made several nice place kicks after touchdowns by the "A's," being pulled back from the line.

It looks as if the 1934 edition of the Hornets will be young and inexperienced. Yet, in the squad of forty-two men who are now reporting regularly to the coaches are some of the best talent G. H. S. has ever had.

The team's success depends on the ability of the rural talent to deliver. If some of the youngsters come through, the team will probably finish well up in the standings; if the lack of experience among the new players is too much to overcome, the Orange and Black may finish as far down the line as it did last year.

Rev. J. H. Baldrige was the principal speaker when the East Gatesville Union of the Methodist Young People met at the First Methodist Church last Friday evening.

A large number enjoyed the interesting program in spite of the inclement weather.

Studes Answer Call to College Campus

The fascinations of college life await a number of boys and girls from Coryell county who enroll in the higher institutions for their first time this fall. On the other hand, the anticipation of reunions with former classmates, will bring a like thrill to those returning to school.

This section of the state will be well represented in various colleges and universities over the state this year.

It is almost impossible to enumerate all of the young men and young women from Coryell who have already left or who will leave soon for school, however the following list has been available, and there are probably several others:

Texas U.: Mary Jane Colgin, Bernard Laudermilk, A. H. Meadows Jr., Jack Bone, Martin Donaldson.

John Tarleton: Grady Carson, Beatrice Farmer, Dessie Lee Hair, Billy Bloodworth, Faye Hamilton, Erma Doyle.

Baylor U.: Elaine Cross, Margaret Gandy, Byron L. McClellan, Mildred Patillo, Brooks

Sasse, Nelse Alexander, Virgil Hudson.

Trinity U.: Lloyd Neil Kirkpatrick.

Howard Payne: J. R. Saunders, Elton Blackstock, Truman Blanton, Charles Baker.

Hillsboro Junior College: Blaine Bone.

Baylor Medical: Elworth Lowrey, Henry Haynes.

Baylor College: Ruth Raby Franks.

Four-C College: Milton Cook. C. I. A.: Merle Scott, Jimmie Doris Edwards, Ethel Routh, and Louise Blankenship.

Pledge

I will think—talk—write . . . Texas Centennial in 1936! This is to be my celebration. In its achievement I may give free play to my patriotic love for Texas' heroic past; my confidence in its glories that are to be.

The fact that the Little Theater membership drive has progressed rather slowly to date may be explained by the lack of understanding on the part of those unfamiliar with the organization. It is probable that many of these very people would not hesitate to subscribe to the guild if they knew its ideals and purposes. The Little Theater is not backed by a selfish motive. Those who compose its membership and devote their time and efforts to its success receive no remuneration save the pleasure derived from participation in and love for dramatics. Heretofore only those who have taken an active part in the presentations have composed the club, but this year it is hoped to get others into the organization who will not necessarily fill this position but will contribute from the various other angles of dramatic study. The News is a strong supporter in the Little Theater movement and intends to do whatever is possible to promote interest among the residence-ship of this city and surrounding vicinity.

Price-fixing on the part of code authorities has not proven successful in most instances, is the opinion of this newspaper. Especially is this true in regard to small concerns. We do believe however that it will serve a worthy purpose in the end but not as a permanent ideal. It will only be a short time when we will learn to install in our personal philosophy a code of ethics to include fair competition, and that we believe to be the motive of the present price-fixing system.

* * * *

The housing situation in Gatesville would make one think that small town life must not be so bad after all, since neighboring cities report no gain in demand for rental property.

* * * *

Seldom may there be found a man who cannot enjoy the comforts of living when told how well off he really is—this applies to the farmers of today who were also the farmers of yesterday. The United States Department of Agriculture reported last week cotton gained from 8.8c per pound this time a year ago to 13c now. Wheat gained from 75c a bushel a year ago to 89c. Corn rose from 57c a year ago to 78c. Even hay jumped from $8.30 a ton on July 15 to $10.50 on August 15. It is odd to note that chickens and turkeys dropped in price while gains were registered in butter, milk and eggs. Mr. Farmer, if you can convince the local merchant you should be able to get more of his merchandise for your products than you got from him a year ago.

* * * *

It's uncanny the way some people whom we think ignore us are the first one to set up a howl when we make an honest mistake.

* * * *

The reason some folks think it takes them such a long time to get anywhere is that usually they are never headed anywhere.

World Comment

By JOE BURNS

The recent primaries and the general election in Maine seem to indicate a definite trend toward Democratic candidates. This rock-ribbed Republican state gave a strong endorsement to the New Deal and its policies when the Democratic governor, Lou's Brann, elected two years ago in the Democratic landslide, was re-elected by over thirty thousand votes over his Republican opponent. The veteran Republican senator, Frederick Hale, seeking his fourth consecutive term, just nosed out his Democratic opponent by a few hundred votes. In the 1928 election Hale was elected with a majority of over 80,000 votes. At this writing the Democrats have refused to concede Hale's election and have hinted that they will contest his victory. The Democrats won two of the state's three House seats in addition to the governorship.

In New York state Republicans captured only two congressional seats out of a total of twenty-five at stake.

SEN. TOM CONNALLY is on his way to Istanbul (Constantinople) Turkey, where he will be a delegate to the inter-parliamentary union opening there September 24. Connally and Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas will represent the American Senate in the union, to which delegates from the parliaments of the world come to discuss international matters. Connally, a member of the senate foreign relations committee, attended the union's 1930 conference in London.

The strike situation is such a complicated affair that we have refrained from commenting on it but anyone can discern that news of the strike is unpleasant. You read about a "Rhode Island mill town like a shambles after all night fighting, store fronts bashed in, bullet holes in buildings. You see photographs with soldiers behind barbed wire entanglements, strikers fighting in a quiet New England graveyard. And the death list continues to mount.

JESSE JONES of Houston, chairman of the RFC, sent a message of glad tidings to the cotton growers of the country last week when he made the official announcement that his corporation had set aside $250,000,000 for cotton loans. The huge sum has been decided on as support for the loans to the farmers at 12 cents a pound on the cotton they hold. Chairman Jones declared the allocation of a quarter billion dollars would take care of over 3,000,000 bales. All the federal guessers predict a crop of three million bales for the Lone Star State.

NOTES

Mr. Pickberg, general counsel for the NRA, has figures which show that since early 1933 more than 4,000,000 peo-

Recent Bride Honoree At Shower.

A shower of miscellaneous gifts was presented Mrs. Bayle Baker, formerly Miss Aline Beverly of Copperas Cove, last Friday afternoon at a pretty party given by Mrs. Sam Ward at her home on East Saunders Street.

The gifts were attractively arranged on the dining table under an umbrella decorated in pink and white. The colors of pink and white were carried out in other decorations, and refreshments consisted of ice cream and angel food cake.

Various games formed the afternoon's pleasure, and a short reading by Miss Pauline Haney was enjoyed. Each guest present registered in the Bride's book.

Nearly thirty people were present and showered the honoree with lovely gifts.

Mrs. Anderson Honors Son With Birthday Party.

Leake Ayres Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Anderson of this city, has recently reached the important age of six. In celebration of this sixth birthday anniversary his mother invited a group of children for an afternoon of fun and frolic at their home last Saturday afternoon from the hours of four to six.

In the midst of the merry games prizes of mints wrapped in packages were presented each guest, and Master Johnnie Johnson was awarded an individual prize for being the most accurate contestant in an exciting and clever stunt.

At refreshment time the birthday cake was cut and served with ice cream cones to fifteen small boys.

Popular Guest of Miss Gandy Honored here last Week.

An outstanding affair in this city several days ago was a Treasure Hunt given by Miss Margaret Gandy complimenting Miss Martha Louise Bolinger of Dublin, who was a guest in the Gandy home.

The exciting adventure ended at Straws Mill and the treasure of $10.00 was found by Mr. and Mrs. Lee Colwick and Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Jones Jr. Refreshments of pimento cheese sandwiches and soda pop were served to the group following the treasure hunt.

Attendants were Misses Penelope Hardin, Raye Virginia Rayford, Elaine Cross, Ethel Routh, Buchie Wollard, Joyce Baker, Louise Hall, Mary Elizabeth Willay, Marjoris Wollard, Lindsay Belle Dickie, Beatrice Farmer, Mary Lou Morris, Katherine Gordon, Frances Austin, Messrs Marion Burleson, Floyd Zeigler, W. Blue Bonnet Workers Hold Regular Meeting.

Mrs. Mac Parks was hostess to the Blue Bonnet Workers

Club at an all day meeting at her home, Thursday September 6. The morning was spent working on foundation patterns. Two were cut and fitted that day.

At the noon hour a delectable meal of meats, vegetables, pickles, sweets and iced tea was served.

In the afternoon blocks for a flower garden quilt were pieced for the hostess. In our regular business meeting our Council Delegate gave us the list of articles to be entered at the County Fair and each member was assigned her part of the work to be done in the matter. Lovely pal gifts were received, after which iced tea and cake were served.

The meeting adjourned at five o'clock, and the next meeting will be with Mrs. Johnnie Berry, Ethel and Otha. All members are urged to be present as Miss Martin plans to be present at that time.

ROBBERS' ROOST

THE STORY

CHAPTER IX.—In the "roost" the robbers make permanent camp. Jim keeps a watchful eye on Helen. She steals from her tent at night to tell him that she fears the outlaw, Hank Hays. While they whisper, Hank steals upon them. Jim makes him believe that he has spurned a bribe from the girl to rescue her. Heese-man's riders are seen approaching and the desperadoes prepare to fight.

CHAPTER X.—Helen is taken to a cave. Jim and Smoky Sloocum open fire. A sharpshooter has the range of the cavern. Smoky crawls out and shoots him. Hank Hays, crawling to an advantageous position, kills Heese-man. The besiegers withdraw in panic.

She loosened her hold and raised her head to look up at him. He saw only her eyes, tearless, strained in overwhelming gratitude.

"No—not yet!" he blurted out. "We must hurry out of this."

She arose, still clinging to him. "Forgive me. I am selfish. We can talk some other time. I should have realized you would want to leave here at once. . . . Tell me what to do. I will obey."

Jim stepped back and shook himself.

"You kept me from thinking," he began, ponderingly. "Yes, we must leave here. . . . Put on your riding clothes. Pack this dress you have on—and all you have. Take your time. We're safe for the present. And don't look out. I've got to bury Hays and the men."

"My spirit wouldn't faint at that," she replied. "I saw you kill the wretch—and I could help you bury him."

"I won't need you," replied Jim, constrainedly, and wheeled away. Madly he rushed to and fro, while he searched the dead robbers, to fling their money and valuables in a pile. Then he dragged them to the brink of the wash and toppled them over.

Action had begun to steady Jim. He did not compose him. He shoved all the money into his saddlebag. Next he packed every one of his shells. He might be attacked again in that hiding place. Then he selected supplies for two packs and filled them, not forgetting a few utensils.

His next move was to strap blankets and saddles on the two gentlest horses. Those he led back to the cave, where he packed them. After that he had only to saddle Bay and the gray horse Helen had ridden there.

He hurried back to the girl, calling: "Are you ready?"

"I've been waiting," she said, and came swiftly out. The rider's costume brought out the rounded grace of her form. She had braided her hair. The sombrero he remembered shaded her face.

"Where are your veil and long coat?" asked Jim, seeing her as on that unforgettable day.

"He burned them," she answered in a stifled voice.

"Get into this." And he held his slicker for her. It enveloped her, dragged on the ground.

"We're in for storm. Rainy season due. You must keep dry."

Turning to the gray horse, she mounted.

"Ride close beside me where there's room. Just ahead where there's not," he directed her.

Jim tied the halters of the two pack animals to their packs, and started them off.

Helen looked back as one fascinated, but Jim bent stern gaze ahead.

"I would destroy this canyon if that were in my power. Come," he said.

Soon they entered the wide, shallow wash, in the sand of which Jim espied footprints filling with water. They rode out of the tail of the storm and into a widening of the wash, where it reached proportions of a small valley.

"Are you all right?" Jim queried. "Oh, I did not know I could feel rapture again. Yes, I am."

"You're dizzy, just the same. You sway in the saddle. Ride close to me, while you can. . . . Give me your hand. Don't talk. But look—look! You might see what I do not see."

They rode at length to a canyon head, down which the hoof tracks turned.

"We came this way by night, but I remember," she said. "Do you dare to follow them?"

"We must not."

"But that is the way to Star ranch!"

"Yes, on the trail of desperate men, and across that Dirty Devil river. These summer rains. It will be in flood. I would not be able to get you through."

"You know best. But just to be free . . . to see my brother, Bernie! It is unbelievable."

Jim Wall looked away across the brakes. Presently he said, "I will try to find a way out of this hole. The country is strange. I'll be lost soon. But somewhere up out of here—we'll find a lovely canyon where there is grass and water. I must not run into cattlemen; robbers are not my only enemies. I don't want to be hanged for—for saving you."

"Hanged! Oh, you frighten me!"

"I didn't want to tell you. It is no sure thing that I can safely elude the rest of Heese-man's outfit, if I try to get out through the brakes. It'd be far safer to hide you a while—south of here, out of the way of riders."

"Take me where you think best," she said tremulously.

"When you get out, you must go home to England."

"I have no home in England. Bernie is my only kin, except very distant relatives who hate the name of Hertick."

"Then go to a country as different from this naked, stony wilderness as day from night. Where it snows in winter, and in spring there are flowers, birds, apple blossoms. . . ."

"No, I shall not leave," she replied positively.

A flash of joy leaped up in Jim at her words, but he had no answer for her. He led on, away from that broad, fresh trail, into an unknown region. And it seemed that this point of severance had an inscrutable parallel in the tumult within his heart.

The sun set in an overshadowed sky and storm threatened all around the horizon. Far north the thunder rolled, and to the south faint mutterings arose. Jim could not hold to a straight course. He wandered where the lay of the land permitted. Rising white and red ground, with the mounds of rock falling, and green swales between, appeared endless and forlorn. He began to look for a place to camp.

At last, as twilight darkened the distant washes and appeared creeping up out of them, Jim came to another little valley where scant grass grew and dead cedars stood up, spectral ghosts of drought, and on the west side a low caverned ridge offered shelter. He led over to this and, dismounting, said they would camp there. Her reply was a stifled gasp, and essaying to get out of her saddle she fell into his arms.

Current Highlights of the Agricultural Programs

By D. W. SHERRILL, Co. Agent

Tax Certificates

Concerning exemption certificates the Government has set the price of 4c per pound, however there can be none transferred until the rules and regulations concerning same are received from Washington. Whenever these regulations arrive they will be given to the press immediately so that the farmers may accommodate themselves by either buying or selling certificates. It is understood that the transfers will be approved by the county committee. Farmers desiring to sell remnant may submit to the ginner the correct tax-exemption certificates, that will be required. There is no ruling which prohibits the sale of seed cotton to any person, however when this cotton is ginned the tax-certificates of the person that owns the cotton must be submitted.

Corn-Hog Compliance

Certificates of compliance on corn-hog contracts for second payment are being mailed today to Washington. All 166 signers complied with their corn-hog contract in Coryell county.

General AAA Programs

It is very understandable why there is some confusion in the minds of farmers concerning the new agriculture programs of the Government especially the Bankhead Law, because of the newness of the program and because new problems have demanded new remedies. The AAA programs tend to adjust farm production and marketing rather than to reduce only. Whenever world markets demand and purchasing power will allow, farm production of wheat, cotton etc. may be stepped up in line with the economic conditions.

It is thought that when the cotton farmer sees the benefits as well as the admitted imperfections of the Bankhead Law they will be very glad to join hands with each other in a great common war against low prices for cotton. Farmers who have been fortunate to raise more cotton than their bankhead quota this year are very fortunate in that they may use all of their tax-exemption certificates and can well afford to buy an unfortunate neighbor's surplus certificates for which he will get 4c a pound, and needs this price since his cotton crop was short. So the program is one for the common good of all farmers and has been put on in the fairest and most equitable manner as was humanly possible. It is realized that some individual might have been hurt a bit by the program due to the nature of the law itself, however, it is thought by those who have studied the situation earnestly and reasonably that as a whole even with the present serious drought that the farmers are in a better and more hopeful financial condition than in several years. It is impossible with the program in agriculture as big and as far reaching as the AAA programs in all commodities and especially the Bankhead Law, that every farmer could be satisfied.

The various committees both community and county and the county agent admit that they are only human and have made some mistakes, but they have done the very best that was possible to be done under the present law and the rulings and regulations which govern these officials. There has been a sincere endeavor to treat every person which the programs concern with absolute impartiality, and on an equitable and fair basis. It is doubted that any other group or set of men could have put on the program that has been put on without having some misunderstanding, and quit a bit of criticism, but the officials who have administered the Bankhead work have only done the thing which they were instructed to do.

We may yet find out the real effect of the Bankhead Law after these certificates have all been used up or properly transferred and after the market has given the cotton price a real test. We should not judge too soon the value and the effects of the Bankhead Law. Contract signers have agreed to reduce as much as 25 per cent from their five year base average in cotton acreage in 1935. It is thought that should we go back to the cut throat competition between farmers that cotton acreage would greatly increase and that the price of cotton would recede to previous low levels.

To give concrete illustration of what the cotton program has meant to the south, to Texas and to Coryell county there is herewith recited a concrete example of a landlord near Gatesville who on Nov. 5, 1932 received from a bale of cotton as his part $6.99. On Sept. 6, 1933 the same landlord received for his part of the bale of cotton $10.40. This was after the cotton plow-up campaign of 1933. On Sept. 6, 1934 the identical weight of bale and identical date of the previous year his part of this bale of cotton was $21.97. Of course tax-exemption certificates were had for this landlord's part of the bale of cotton. Even if the landlord was short of certificates and had had to buy his part for this bale of cotton at 4c a pound his rent would have been $16.95, after certificates had been bought. The above comparisons in price and amount of money received for cotton should give conclusive evidence that the cotton programs even outside of the drought have been very instrumental in securing for the farmer a more stable and certain price for what he raises.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Woodson were in Fort Worth recently visiting friends and relatives.

Billy Thomson underwent a minor operation on his nose in the King Daughters Hospital at Temple the latter part of last week. He is improving nicely and is being cared for at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Thomson of that city.
