Hornets Taste Real Competition in Game With State Gridmen

OFFENSE FAILS TO CLICK

Coach Maurice Ewing watched his football prospects go through the first real skirmish of the year Tuesday afternoon when the Gatesville gridsters met the Training School clan on the local field.

Despite the fact that the Gatesville club was soundly outplayed in every department of the game and every local player outweighed by his opponent several pounds, spectators agreed that "where there is life there is hope."

The handicap of fright which hovered over the high school boys was too much to overcome before the final whistle, but a world of experience was gained for the Hornets in the practice tilt.

Coach Ewing used the mainstay of his club in an attempt to locate strength on the defense and offense as well. On more than one occasion the Hornets held the onrush of the State for downs within the five yard line to recover the ball. The local offense failed to click.

The Gatesville squad has one week from today in which to get into shape, when they meet the Moody club here in the first official game.

"Sparkin'" Under Study For Debut Performance Of Local Theater Group

SHOW HINGES ON ROYALTY

The question of royalty will decide the first fall presentation of the Little Theater, according to Director Alvis. If it is within bounds, "Sparkin'" will be the name of the one-act comedy to be staged by the local dramatic organization at the official opening of the Auditorium.

"Sparkin'" is a comedy of humorous dialogue with a clever twist in plot. In it there are four rural characters, one male and three female. This is a Samuel French play written by E. P. Corkle.

The membership drive has begun to show progress and it is hoped that those desirous of subscribing, but who have been overlooked will get in touch with the membership committee before the drive closes.

A valour front curtain, cyclorama, street scene and spot light are the major furnishings which will outfit the new stage, through the efforts of the Little Theater. More equipment will be added as needed and as funds will permit.

All patrons and friends of the district school are invited to attend the opening exercises, and students are urged to be present for the routine of enrollment.

PLANS PROGRESSING ON BIG RODEO EVENT

Elaborate plans are already underway on the Rabon Balch Ranch for the big Rodeo which will be held there on October 9.

Those who attended the last show on the Balch ranch will no doubt be present again on the ninth of next month, together with a host of others who missed out on the last performance.

Calf roping, bronc busting, wild cow milking and goat roping will be only a few of the many rodeo attractions, according to Mr. Balch.

I don't know why I should look it but I am surprised at the number of people who have tried to make me feel old the last few days. Harry Davis was one of those who reminded me that even he was beginning to feel old. With my back almost turned I could see two individuals pass by dressed in the redest of red; it happened to be Mesdames A. D. Chestnut and Ione Hearn wearing the latest in saleswomen attire. Louise Morgan is a business woman in the strictest sense of the word, and are things "popping" around her—why not, its pop-corn she's selling. Get acquainted with Ben Poole, he can tell some yarns of local happenings years ago.

Coryell Son and One Of State's Colorful Jurists Meets Death

JUDGE IKE CULP SUCCUMBS

I. W. (Ike) Culp, former Coryell county resident, and prominent in state-wide political affairs, died at his home in Temple Tuesday morning after an extended illness of heart trouble.

Ike Culp was born in Coryell City on September 22, 1870, the son of J. R. and Nancy Miller Culp, his parents coming to this state from Tennessee.

Judge Culp was educated in the schools of Coryell and later attended Texas University where he studied law. He was admitted to the bar in 1899 and practiced law in Killeen for a number of years.

According to a report in the Temple Telegram, "he was a member of the 36th legislature of Texas from Bell county. He also was a member of the 36th legislature and served on important committees of both sessions. In all he served four terms in the state legislature.

"He ran and was defeated for the office of lieutenant-governor of Texas in 1901. He lacked only 4,000 votes of election. For several years he was a member of the democratic state committee. He was an able attorney in civil and criminal law.

"He was a member of the Bell county and state bar associations, a past master of the Masonic lodge, a 32nd degree Scottish Rite Mason and Shriner, member of the Knights of Pythias and a past member of the Kiwanis club. He was a member of the Baptist church.

"He was married in 1901 to Miss Emma Hoover of Bell county.

Survived By Wife

"He is survived by his wife, three sons, I. W. Jr., Jack, and Evetts; three daughters, Mrs. Joe Wheeler Harris of Temple, Mrs. W. P. Hobby of Houston, and Mrs. Gerald D. Ford of Houston.

"His mother, Mrs. J. R. Culp of Coryell City, and two brothers, J. R. Culp of Coryell City and Jesse of Killeen, also survive."

GODDESS OF "SOMETHING" FALLS FROM GRACE

The Goddess of Justice has apparently fallen from grace. At least it has fallen from the top of the courthouse, for a certainty. The massive figure, symbol of justice, knowledge or something has descended to earth from its perch of former years on the north gable of the building.

Why the statue now lies prone on the ground, badly mangled and devoid of her previous grace is a mystery, unless it is that her removal was intentional, to refinish the building along more modern lines.

Pledge

I will think—talk—write . . . Texas Centennial in 1936! This is to be my celebration. In its achievement I may give free play to my patriotic love for Texas' heroic past; my confidence in its glories that are to be. . . . .

Due to the general manner in which the recent story relative to the change in the administrative offices of the city was handled, there still seems to be a certain amount of confusion existing in the minds of many local residents as to what it might all be about. The good faith of the mayor and council inacted the change with the purpose in mind of clarifying the technical situation which has brought on so much misunderstanding and confusion. The constitution provides that there shall be a city secretary to be elected by popular vote and the office shall carry with it a stipulated salary. However, it does not state just what the extent of the salary shall be. The city council voted this salary at $12.00 per annum. In order to have a competent book-keeper in charge of the records of the city it was decided some several years ago to give the council the vested power to appoint such an officer to hold this position as long as he proved to be competent. A fixed salary was adopted to compensate the book-keeper for full time duty. The main thing is that the two offices in question are separate and distinct. Recently some of the candidates for the office of secretary were under the impression they were running for the position of book-keeper also, which in reality is the paying office. In order to establish the identity of the two offices Mr. Prewitt resigned as city secretary and the present city attorney was appointed to fill the unexpired term. This paper is familiar with the action that has taken place and the cause for such action, which we think is entirely justifiable.

Turnersville will be the setting for a Pure Food Show, the dates of which are September 21 and 22, today and tomorrow. There will be two sessions daily beginning at two o'clock and lasting until five, and again from seven o'clock until ten. Many valuable prizes will be awarded during the exhibition, to which only a nominal admission will be charged. The Methodist Church of Turnersville is sponsoring this apparent worthy project. The church-people and citizens of that energetic community are to be recognized with praise for their efforts in undertaking a feature that will bring together before the eyes of local residents and visitors the products raised and made at home. The exhibition is very timely. Just at this particular time is does the farmer and housewife a world of good to let them see with their own eyes the unlimited number of home-raised products produced by themselves and their neighbors.

Credit conditions are as tight as they were four years ago perhaps, and despite the fact that depression-felt people are crying for more lenient credit requirements they are enjoying the idea of paying as they go without a stack of bills at the end of the month to throw them into a panic. Many business concerns have gone on a cash basis and such a move has been profitable both for the merchant and the consumer. Easy credit has taught many a person a good lesson during the past few years.

HOME-MADE RIG TO DRILL AUSTIN YARD

AUSTIN, Sept. 11.—Maybe there's going to be an oil well in sight of Texas' Capitol dome.

An Austin resident started drilling a water well in his back yard, but at a depth of about 200 feet he struck the the Edwards lime, an oil producing formation which generally is much deeper than 200 feet.

Encouraged, the man rigged up a homemade rotary drilling set and he's going after oil now instead of water to irrigate his garden.

For fear he'd become tangled with the Railroad Commission on his drilling activities, he doesn't want his name or address publicized, but several University of Texas geologists are taking a great interest in

FOOTBALL CHATTER

By TEDDY

Due to a number of requests and the interest this paper carries in sports, this writer will endeavor to create more interest in the Hornet camp through the columns of the News.

Coach Ewing had a hard time last year getting the boys to play. He had just enough men, one might say, to make a team. He was continuously "petting" the boys so they would play. This year it is all together different. He is working them. If they fail to train he can put them on the bench.

On Tuesday of this week this writer witnessed the local squad and the State Training School in a scrimmage game. The State, with a much more experienced team, looked exceptional good against the inexperienced club of Coach Ewing. From what this writer could gather, the local club looked good, but the entire squad lacked "insides." The ordinary football fan will understand what this writer means. Coach Ewing has found a good way to put the "insides" in a team. Put them up against a much stronger team and make them fight.

There were more fans on hand Tuesday to witness this game than I expected. Fans should keep behind the Hornets this year and let them know that the hope of winning hasn't died.

A week from today the locals will meet the strong Moody team here. Coach Ewing is putting his club through the mill to get in shape for this game. Luck to you Coaches.

THE STORY

CHAPTER IX.—In the "roost" the robbers make permanent camp. Jim keeps a watchful eye on Helen. She steals from her tent at night to tell him that she fears the outlaw, Hank Hays. While they whisper, Hank steals upon them. Jim makes him believe that he has spurned a bribe from the girl to rescue her. Heese-man's riders are seen approaching and the desperadoes prepare to fight.

CHAPTER X.—Helen is taken to a cave. Jim and Smoky Slocum open fire. A sharpshooter has the range of the cavern. Smoky crawls out and shoots him. Hank Hays, crawling to an advantageous position, kills Heese-man. The besiegers withdraw in panic.

CHAPTER XII

TO JIM WALL it seemed a miracle that he did not snatch Helen to his breast. Like a wind-driven prairie fire his blood raced. He set her upright on the ground.

"Can you stand?" he inquired. She essayed to, and, letting go of him, plainly betrayed her spent condition. Jim helped her into the shallow hollow under the rock.

In the quarter-hour before dusk he had unpacked, hobbled and fed the horses, built a fire and put water on to boil.

He carried his bed under the shelf and unrolled it, changing and doubling the blankets and folded the tarpaulin so that it could be pulled up in case rain beat in.

The fire sent a ruddy light into the cavern, and all at once Jim discovered that the girl was watching him.

"Are we safe here?" she asked. "God only knows! I think so—I hope so. It's a lonely desert. Our enemies have gone the other way. They knew they nearly wiped out Hays, and they'll try again with reinforcements. They knew Hays had a fortune in cash—and you."

To his concern and discomfiture, she ate very little. She tried, only to fall. But she did drink her coffee.

"You'll pick up," he said hopefully. "Sleep, though, is more necessary than food."

"Jim, I can't pull off my boots," she said later. "Please help me." She was sitting on the bed when Jim took hold of the boot she elevated.

"Look to see if you have any blisters," he said. "I'll bathe your feet in a little cold water and salt."

Bringing a pan of water, he knelt before her.

"Don't stand on ceremony, Helen. Stick out your foot."

She put out her small feet. Jim lost no time in pressing them down into the cold salt water. Then he rubbed her feet until they were red.

"Put your stockings back on and sleep in your clothes," he said. "Before you crawl in I'll bring a hot stone."

"Ooooo!" She stretched out with a slow, final movement and pulled the blankets up under her chin.

Almost instantly she fell asleep with the flickering firelight upon her face.

Jim walked out to find the horses close to camp and making out fairly well on the grass. He patrolled his beat between the flickering fire and the sleeping girl heedless of the rain, sleeping for hours, on guard. And after that when he slept it was with one eye open.

Toward dawn he got up and rolled his bed. The air was raw and cold, blowing a fine rain in his face.

By the time breakfast was cooking daylight had broken. Finding a thin, flat rock Jim placed Helen's breakfast upon it and carried it to her bedside. Then he called her.

"I've brought some food and strong coffee," he said.

Jim repaired to his own breakfast, after which he wrapped up biscuits and meat to take on the day's ride.

She pulled on her boots, and crawling out and straightening up with slow, painful effort she asked for a little hot water. Jim fetched it.

Free then to pack, Jim applied himself with swift, methodical hands.

She mounted unassisted. Jim helped her into the long slicker.

"It'll be a tough day," he went on. "But we're starting dry. Hang on as long as you can. We absolutely must get out of these brakes."

With that he lined up the pack animals, and they were off.

Jim traveled as best he could, keeping to no single direction, though the trend was northerly and following ground that appeared passable. The pack horses led. He followed them and Helen brought up the rear.

The rain fell all morning and let up at intervals. Then black clouds gathered, and a storm, with thunder and lightning, burst upon them. Water ran in shoots off the rocks.

At length the fugitives came to a veritable river at which the lead horse balked. Bay, however, did not show any qualms. So he put Bay to the task. The big horse made it easily, with water coming up to his flanks. Whereupon Jim rode him back, after which the pack horses, intelligent and sensible, essayed the ford.

Then Jim returned for Helen.

"I'll carry you while you hang on to your bridle," said Jim, riding close to the gray. He had to lift her sheer off her horse and around in front of him, where he upheld her with his left arm.

They made it, with the splendid horse staggering out under his double burden just in the nick of time.

"You are doing fine. We have come eighteen or twenty miles. But I don't like the look ahead."

When once more they were on the way Jim gave her a biscuit and a strip of meat. "Eat. The rain will be on us soon."

Late in the afternoon they rode down out of these low gravel hills that had limited their sight, into a long, green, winding valley. A red river, surely the Dirty Devil, ran, ridged and frothy, under a steep wall of earth.

"I can't hang on—longer," faltered Helen, faintly.

"I'll carry you. Why didn't you tell me sooner?" reproved Jim. He knotted her reins and dropped the loop over the pommel of her saddle. Then he lifted her off her horse onto his.

So Jim rode on, aware that her collapse and the terrible nature of the desert and another storm at hand were wearing away even his indomitable spirit.

Ragged, red bluff stood up all along his right, with acres of loose rock ready to slide.

They swung in behind the bluff, and then out again to the higher and narrower bank upon which the old trail passed through the corner.

"Whoa, Bay," called Jim hauling up to wait for the gray. "I don't like this place. Don't look, Helen."

As she made no reply Jim leaned back to get a glimpse of her face. Asleep!

"Come on, Gray," he called to the horse behind, and to Bay: "Steady, old fellow. If that narrows round there you want to step sure."

It did narrow. Eight feet, six feet—less! Bits of the steep bank were crumbling away. But the pack horses had gone round. It would not be safe to try to turn now.

Suddenly Jim encountered a still narrower point, scarcely five feet wide. The edge had freshly crumbled. It was crumbling now.

Bay stepped carefully, confidently. He knew horses with wide packs had safely passed there. He went on. Jim felt him sink. One hind foot had crushed out a section of earth, letting him down. But with a snort he plunged ahead to wider trail.

Jim's heart had leaped to his throat. He heard thud of hoofs behind, a heavy, slithering rumble. Looking back he saw the gray horse leap from a section of wall, beginning to gap outwards, to solid ground ahead. Next instant six feet of the trail, close up to the bluff, slid down in an avalanche.

"Close shave for us all!" cried Jim, huskily.

Right at his feet a red torrent rushed with a wrestling, clashing sound from out a deep-walled gorge of splintered, rocking walls.

This was a tributary, a vicious child of the hideous Dirty Devil. It barred Jim's progress. Thirty paces to the fore, on the widest part of the bank, stood the pack horses.

The rain had slackened. The girl, stirring in his arms, roused him out of his bewilderment.

He rode on to a huge section of cliff wall which had fallen from above and now leaned at an angle over the trail. It appeared to be a safe retreat.

Jim dismounted carefully with Helen and, stooping as he moved under the leaning rock, he set her down on dry dust.

"Is it the end for us?"

He did not answer. Folding the slicker into a pillow he laid her head back upon it. Scrambling up, he removed the saddle from Bay and dropped it under the shelter. Then, leading the horse, he stepped forward to where the gray and the pack animals had halted.

World Comment

By JOE BURNS

IT IS GOOD NEWS to all Texans interested in the 1936 Centennial to hear that Houston and San Antonio have joined hands with Dallas to make the celebration a grand success. Dallas' bid, which was accepted over the offers made by her two sister cities, totaled $7,791,000 and added to this will be the State and Federal appropriations of $5,000,000 each-making a grand total of nearly $18,000,000 for the six months exhibition.

ALL TEXAS DEMOCRATS are much interested in Sam Rayburn's candidacy for the speakership of the National House, as it would mean much to the entire state. Rayburn, recently re-elected to Congress from the Fourth Congressional District, has just returned home from Washington where he has been marshaling votes — and many we hope—for the office. Accompanied by Raymond Moley, former "brain truster" and close friend to the President, Rayburn will visit with the Vice-President Garner in his Uvalde home and from there will make an intensive tour of Mexico.

A short time ago Paul Mallon, Washington correspondent, reported a movement to promote Marvin Jones of Amarillo as a candidate for speaker in order to break up the Texas delegation support of Sam Rayburn. Now Jones, who represents the Eighteenth District in Congress, is definitely regarded as a prospective candidate. In Washington last week Con. Jones refused to make a statement concerning his candidacy but added, "Naturally, I should like to be speaker. Who wouldn't?"

Some of the smartest statesmen in Europe are predicting wars in the immediate future. Mr. Litvinoff, who has been making Russia so many friends in the last few months, gave a stern warning to the world Tuesday that "the threatening danger of tomorrow is war." "Everybody knows," he said,

"that the exponents of the ideas of war and open promulgators of refashioning the maps of Europe and Asia by the sword are not to be deterred by paper obstacles."

Everybody knows that Premier Mussolini has been shouting war for months. Now, to add to the belief that he really expects war soon, comes the announcement from Fascist Italy that all the nation's males above the age of eight will have to enter compulsory military training—or turn from marbles to machine guns, as one paper expressed it.

NOTES

A hindrance to Sam Rayburn's candidacy for speaker of the House of Representatives is noted by the fact that, in addition to Vice Presidency, Texans hold a dozen committee chairmanships in the House and two in the Senate.

The State Senate will have its first blind member for the next four year. Olan R. Van Zandt, blind member of the House, will succeed Cecil Murphy, incumbent, in January.

Notice is hereby given that on November 14, 1933, at a stockholders' meeting of the Planters State Bank located at The Grove, Texas, the proposition was duly submitted to the stockholders to close the business of the corporation and that at said meeting the following resolution was adopted, to-wit:

"Whereas the stockholders of the Planters State Bank of The Grove, Texas, have been called and are now in meeting assembled to consider the liquidation of this bank; now therefore, be it

"RESOLVED, That the business of this bank be closed; that all depositors, and all creditors of every nature, be paid in full; that after paying all depositors and creditors, and discharging all remaining liabilities, the remaining assets of said bank be distributed proportionately among the stockholders; and that this bank surrender and have cancelled its corporate franchise. Be it further

"RESOLVED, That the officers and directors of this bank be hereby authorized and directed to take all necessary steps, and execute all necessary papers, to carry into effect this resolution."

NOW, THEREFORE, we, the undersigned directors, certify that the foregoing proceedings were had at such meeting and that the resolution hereinabove quoted was duly adopted.

ON TEXAS FARMS

Minnie Fisher Cunningham
Extension Service Editor
A. & M. College

If you are looking for someone who can "make a profit on the hole in the doughnut," as the old saying goes, try P. A. Hunter, dairyman and farmer of Brooks county, who is building a new home from adobe and making the hole from which the dirt comes into a trench silo.

In Archer county 134 home demonstration club girls and women have reported planting fall gardens since the rains. Swiss chard, pinto beans, kale, beets, carrots and radishes were favorite vegetables with these gardeners.

"There are ways for us to fill our pantries in spite of the drought," Mrs. Homer Stewart told the Cottle county home demonstration agent. Some of Mrs. Stewart's ways were to exchange lard, of which she had plenty, for peaches to can; to sew and take her pay in peas; to can beef from cattle condemned for removal and use off her farm, but permitted as wholesome for home use.

A. J. Hoff who runs a small country store in Ander, Goliad county, told the farm demonstration agent, "The cotton program is bringing results. Several accounts on my books which had run up to $150 and $200 and gone unpaid for a long time have this year been paid in full. I am in favor of regulating production until everything is normal again."

Coryell county farmers and ranchmen have been staunch in their support of the AAA program. The county had 1700 cotton contract signers; 2300 Bankhead applications; 166 corn-hog contracts; 1100 applications for the sale of cattle in the drought relief program; and when the sheep program is under way they are ready to cooperate with that also.

Ballinger—Between 500 and 1000 green hides will be salted down for fall and winter tanning in Runnels county as a by-product of the condemned cattle bought in the Government cattle-buying program, according to an estimate by Elmo V. Cook, farm demonstration agent. These hides are being salted down by the producers who are using 35 to 50 pounds of salt per hide to preserve them until cooler weather when tanning will be a more pleasant occupation.

Falfurias—An eleven-acre field will be converted into permanent pasture on the farm of A. A. Cosby, Brooks county farmer, because of the success of concho grass planted on the land when it was rented to the Government in the cotton reduction program, according to Louis J. Franke, farm demonstration agent. Mr. Cosby always plants a surplus feed crop and this year he seeded the rented acres to concho grass by scattering hay. Because of the deep plowing last fall, the eleven acres supported thirteen head of stock and the pasture was in excellent condition after 128 days of drought. Mr. Cosby is so impressed by the return from the pasture in the fact of the virtual failure of his feed crops that he plans to convert the 11 acres into a permanent pasture by planting Italian rye this fall and Rhodes grass in the spring.

Mount Vernon—Planting every third row in peanuts and corn proved a success on six acres of cotton grown by Dee Yancey on his bottom land farm in Franklin county, according to V. O. Teddlie, farm demonstration agent. As the county committee restricted him to 1200 pounds of lint cotton, Mr. Yancey planted peanuts and corn in every third row. He will have 1000 pounds of cotton in spite of the drought, and he has harvested three big loads of peanut hay and has cut three loads of corn which he will crush with his other feed.

Crockett—"I have had more orders for canned tomatoes than I could fill," Mrs. Charles Rohloff, cooperator in the Latexo Home Demonstration Club in Houston county, told Miss Orene McClellan, home demonstration agent.

Instead of letting the tomatoes waste in the field when the tomato market dropped, Mrs. Rohloff canned 500 cans of tomato juice and 450 cans of tomatoes. In addition to the tomatoes, she supplied her customers with 300 cans of green beans and field peas. Mrs. Rohloff plans to specialize in tomato juice and is working to standardize her product.
