

Gatesville Hornets Trounce Moody in Opening Game

Gatesville redeemed her record of 1933 in the season's opener Friday afternoon on the local field when the comparatively light and inexperienced team turned back a much heavier Moody club, 18-6.

The Hornets took the field with a spirit that caused spectators to gasp with awe, and it was this same spirit of renewed determination that led the locals to their first victory since 1932, leaving a crowd of fans, who had expected to see the Hornets suffer another defeat, wondering how it happened.

With a diminutive backfield composed of three men who barely tip the scales for a hundred pounds each and a fourth weighing 145, and a line scarcely larger paving the way, the Gatesville team made stellar advances through the visitors' line. In Albert Dickie, 112 pound fullback, fans saw a demonstration of charging, blocking and tackling that would make beef look indiscrete. Sonny Hair commanded the situation with his generalship while Chamlee utilized his recent improvement to a marked degree. James Scott, playing his first game on the gridiron, let his legs go wild and once started on the defense raced in on the heels of several plays to make good his tackling.

The Game

Moody scored first in the second quarter on a long pass which the Gatesville defense failed to knock down completely. The scorer was Gene Garner. Soon afterwards, the Hornets scored on a lateral, Hair to Scott, who skirted left end for fifteen yards. Both tries for points failed.

Toward the middle of the fourth quarter Ward, rangy Hornet end, took the ball from Hair on an old fake pass and ran around left end for fifty-five yards and a touchdown. Bauman's attempted kick for point was low.

With only a minute and a half to play, having taken the ball up the field on line drives, Dickie carried it across for the third tally. Bauman's third attempt at the goal was again low. The game ended after only a few more plays with the score 18-6.

Moody claimed eleven first downs to eight for Gatesville. The visitors attempted 21 passes; five were complete for 32 yards, one intercepted and 15 incomplete. Gatesville did not try a pass.

Garner and E. Rancher, backs, stood out for Moody with Townlin, center, showing up well in the line.

Not even the fans could pick outstanding linemen for the Hornets. Their play was cooperation and not individual strength. The work of the entire line was particularly impressing.

Coaches Op'ne

Asked for a statement of his opinion concerning the game, Coach Ewing said, "I am well pleased with the showing my inexperienced team made Friday. They hustled and played heads-up ball throughout the game."

Assistant Coach Baldrige stated, "I am tickled over the outcome. The game will be worth a lot to the boys in future contests."

The following lineups started the game:

Charles Baker was home over the week-end. He claimed he came home to get a hair cut. Charles, a poor excuse is better than none, but deep down in your heart you know the reason you came home. Truman Blanton, another product of Howard Payne, was also home over the week-end, but I know he came home to brush up on Gatesville's football prospects. He was well pleased with the way the Hornets performed.

Byron Leaird McClellan was not home this week-end, but was here the week-end before. There is something here that attracts Byrons attention, but he is going over in a big way at Baylor. Oglesby Woman Named New Postmaster News Via Washington Avers

TO SUCCEED SAM G. REED

Miss Ida Stockburger, of Oglesby, as been appointed postmaster of the Oglesby post-office. Miss Stockburger received conformation of her appointment from Washington the first of this week.

The new appointee will take office as soon as her commission arrives, according to local friends, which will include approval of the new postmaster's bond and other details.

Miss Stockburger is a native of Coryell county, and has spent the most of her years as a resident of Oglesby. She is a graduate of North Texas State Teachers College, Denton, and has taught school since her graduation.

Miss Stockburger succeeds Sam G. Reed, who has acted in the capacity of Oglesby postmaster for some twenty-five or thirty years. Mr. Reed has served under at least six Republican presidents. His time in office was interrupted by the Wilson administration, during which time Mr. Chas. Stockburger, brother of the new appointee was made postmaster. With the next Republican administration Mr. Reed was re-appointed to the position which he has held since that time.

Rep. Huddleston Says He Will Continue to Support Centennial

SAYS WE MUST NOT STOP

Earl Huddleston, of Oglesby, and legislator from this district, assured a representative of the News Monday afternoon that he would continue to support the Texas Centennial, explaining that he felt that the vote of Coryell people on the amendment two years ago indicated they were for the Centennial.

Questioned on his stand regarding the proposed special session for the purpose of passing Centennial legislation, Mr. Huddleston stated, "It is my opinion that the matter should have been covered during the last session and since it was not, I shall abide by the discretion of the Governor. If she calls the session I will answer present and continue to support its measures to the satisfaction of the people whom I represent."

Quoting a recent remark of the Governor, Mr. Huddleston said that it was his opinion that we should not fall down now, but go on with plans for a big celebration.

MORE COTTON GIVEN MATTRESS FACTORIES

Austin, Oct. 1.—Federal authorities have notified officials of the Texas Relief commission of an additional grant of 612,700 pounds of cotton for mattress plants being operated in this state by the commission. One of the twenty-seven factories is located at Gatesville with a daily capacity of 25 mattresses. This means about 12,250 more mattresses for the destitute people of the state, according to A. C. Allen, director of production for the commission.

Distribution of the first mattresses manufactured by relief labor is scheduled to get under way about October 10. Persons without bedding will be the first to receive mattresses. Distribution of mattresses and about 168,000 comforters is expected to be completed by the time of arrival of cold weather.

Mail-Carrier for 30 Years Now Retired Could Have Gone Around the World Thirteen Times

October 1, 1934 will always stand out as a memorable day in the life of Willis Jones, of Gatesville, this particular date marking his retirement as mail-carrier after thirty years of service.

At midnight Sunday, Mr. Jones automatically became retired with pension under regulations of the post-office department of the United States. Many interesting experiences are to be found in the life of Willis M. Jones, the sixty-one year old mail-carrier and long time resident of Coryell county.

Born at Eagle Springs, Mr. Jones received his first education there in the class with Pat Neff, now president of Baylor University. In 1899 he was married to Maude Bigham. Six children were born to this union, four of whom are living, two having died in infancy. The four are: Mrs. J. S. Floyd, nee Edith, of Alice, Texas; Mat M. and Dr. K. R., both of Gatesville, and Dean of Dallas.

When a boy at the age of eighteen, Mr. Jones was an employee of Honeycutt & Jenkins Druggists. His rooming-place was in the back end of the store. During the years 1898-'99-'00-'01 he was employed as assistant to W. B. Woodward, county clerk. In 1903 Mr. Jones moved to Rusk where he was employed for a year by Chrisman & Hammack, abstractors.

Returning to Gatesville in 1904, Willis Jones was appointed mail-carrier of Route No. 1 under Harry Harris, postmaster, on September 15, 1904.

For the past thirty years he has carried the mail for this same route, with the exception of the summer 1926, when he was city carrier. He was the first rural carrier and the first city carrier in Coryell county.

Beginning his travels on horseback Mr. Jones' means of conveyance have seen many change of times. The 1924 Model "T" Ford which he now drives has covered more than 125,000 miles. During his thirty years of service Mr. Jones has travelled on his route more than 330,000 miles without crossing the county line. Considering the total distance travelled, if Mr. Jones had made his journeys in a straight continuous line, he would have gone around the world thirteen times.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones plan to move to their old home place on a farm southeast of Gatesville at some time in the near future.

"Although I am not a mail-carrier any longer I expect to have plenty to do on the farm," stated Mr. Jones. Asked how he felt about being a man of leisure, Mr. Jones said, "I guess I'll get use to it, but it's going to seem strange for a while not going on the route every day."

Pledge

I will think—talk—write . . . Texas Centennial in 1936! This is to be my celebration. In its achievement I may give free play to my patriotic love for Texas' heroic past; my confidence in its glories that are to be.

The residenceship of Coryell was privileged to enjoy some free entertainment during the summer in the softball games played under lights in the evenings at the Fair Park. Lovers of sports were privileged to participate in this not-so-strenuous form of exercise from which they also derived a great deal of pleasure and entertainment. Now the same two groups of folk are wondering what will take the place of softball this winter. The nearest thing we can think of is a prospective commercial basket-ball league if the permission to use the newly erected gymnasium can be obtained. The City of Gatesville played a most important part in making possible the new gymnasium and it is logical that the citizenry should be permitted to enjoy the facilities of the building. We are confident that there is enough interest among the local and county people to assure many evenings of entertainment in the form of basketball competition.

A nucleus of the Coryell County Better Housing Program has been formed with the selection of a Community Chairman and Advisory Committee. There are six members on the Advisory group and it is likely that as interest in the program progresses many other members will be added, possibly one from each community in the county, providing interest is sufficient to justify it. The chairman and committeemen who will undertake to promote the program will not be in line for any compensation. The Better Housing movement does not come under the relief program nor is it a part of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. It is the result of a separate act of Congress, known as the Federal Housing Act, and no allotment was made to remunerate local workers. It is a civic project and should be handled with civic pride. The benefits to be derived for the county will be in putting unemployed carpenters and repairmen back to work and above all to stimulate business in the purchasing of various building materials, and putting more money into circulation.

Governor Miriam A. Ferguson assumed a very unselfish attitude in coming to the defense of the FERA by vetoing a resolution of the legislature criticising the federal relief administration. The Governor, in explaining the veto, stated that she felt more of the blame could be laid at the feet of the state relief commission than on the federal administration. The old saying, "Never look a gift-horse in the mouth," is unquestionably apt in this case and the governor, together with the state relief director, Adam Johnson, have apparently felt the wisdom of the proverb. Mrs. Ferguson explained that the resolution contained certain references that reflected upon the good intentions of the FERA. Adam Johnson said that on a whole he thought the federal government had treated Texas very well. Texas should not expect to gain much by attacking the source of a large part of the relief funds, and the governor probably senses this situation.

Junior Members Will Be Selected for CCC Camps

Austin, Oct. 1.—Plans for selecting 2938 junior members of the Civilian Conservation corps in Texas between October 1 and 15 were being completed today as Neal E. Guy, enrollment supervisor for the Texas Relief commission, issued instructions to the county administrators over the state who will actually pick the candidates. Coryell will have an estimated quota of ten boys.

Of nearly 3,000 selected, it is expected that about half of them will go to camps outside the state in Oklahoma, New Mexico or Colorado. The remainder likely will be absorbed by camps in Texas.

As in past enrollment, unmarried men between the ages of 18 and 25 who are American citizens and who have dependents to whom they are willing to allot a substantial amount of their monthly allowance, are eligible to be selected. They are to be taken from relief rolls or from families on relief rolls.

No two boys from the same family are eligible.

Men with criminal records are not eligible and neither are those with any history of mental derangement. A person previously discharged for any reason is not eligible to reenter a camp.

Each man will receive $30 per month, between $22 and $25 of which must be allotted to his dependents. Although the applicant agrees to enroll in the government service for six months, if unusual circumstances arise, he may be released from his contract and discharged.

Administrators were urged particularly to "select men able to perform ordinary labor without injury to themselves." Strict observance of the minimum age limit also was advised.

ROBBERS' ROOST

Every movement of that ride next day was a joy and a pang. It seemed as short as the preceding one had been long. Helen was gay, sad, thoughtful, and talkative by turns, but she did not infringe on the one subject that crucified Jim.

It chanced that as they surmounted the pass that led down into Star Ranch valley the sun was setting out of a glorious cloud pageant over Wild Horse Mesa and the canyon brakes of the Dirty Devil. Jim judged of its beauty and profundity by the sudden silence it enjoined upon his companion. She never spoke another word until Jim halted the team in front of the ranch-house porch. "Home!" she whispered as if she had never expected to see it again.

At Jim's halloo Herrick came out on the porch. "By Jove—here you are!" was his greeting, as cool and unemotional as if they were returning from a day's visit to the village.

"Yes, Bernie, here I am—thanks to my escort," replied Helen.

Jim helped her out, while some cowboys came running.

"I'll take the team down," Jim said, hurriedly.

"You come in," returned Herrick, as he gripped Jim's hand and gave him a searching glance. He kissed Helen and led her in, with his arm around her. Jim purposely lingered at the task of collecting Helen's worn and muddy luggage, and carried it in. Brother and sister stood with arms locked, and their gaze was hard to meet.

"Jim, you will have supper with us," she said, "I'll leave you and Bernie. . . . Oh, what will a tub and a change feel like!"

She gathered up her things and ran out of the living room.

"Helen hadn't time to tell me much," Herrick said. "Hays kidnaped her for ransom. Took her to a hellhole down in the brakes. Robbers' Roost, she called it. Held her there captive. They fought among themselves—gambling with my money. Heeseman's crew found them. There was a battle. In the end you killed Hays and brought Helen back. . . . That's the gist of her story. But I want it in detail."

"I have all the money, almost to a dollar, Herrick," replied Jim.

The Englishman regarded that as of little consequence and urged Jim to a recital of the whole affair.

Presently Herrick spoke with something of gravity: "Helen told me that I was to keep you at Star ranch. I hope you won't let this Hays debacle drive you away."

"It'll be impossible for me to stay," rejoined Jim briefly. "But thanks for your kindness."

"I'll have you manage the ranch—give you an interest. Anything—"

"Please don't embarrass me further. I can't stay. . . . It's hard to confess—but I have had the gall, the absurd luck, to fall in love with your sister. I couldn't help it. . . . I want you to know, however, that it has turned me away from the old outlaw life. I'll go away and begin life again."

"By Jove! So that's your trouble. Does Helen know?"

"Yes. I told her. It was after she asked me to come and stay at Star ranch. She said she would never feel safe again unless I came. So I had to tell her."

"Declare I don't blame her. I'd feel a little safer myself. That devil Hays left his trade-mark on me. Look here. . . . By thunder, Wall, it's a blooming mix. I understand you, and think you're a man to respect and like. Can't we get around the trouble somehow?"

"There is no way, Herrick."

"Helen has her own sweet will about everything. If she wants you to stay, you'll stay, that I can assure you. Is there any honorable reason why you ought not stay—outside of this unfortunate attachment to Helen?"

"I leave you to be judge of that," replied Jim, and briefly related the story of his life.

"I like your West. I like you westerners!" Herrick exploded. "Whatever Helen wants is quite right with me. . . . I can't conceive of her insisting on your staying here—unless there is hope for you."

"That is wild, Herrick. I can't conceive of such a thing. It wouldn't be fair to take her seriously—after the horror she's been through—and her intense gratefulness."

Helen came in to breakfast next morning attired in the riding habit she had worn on that never-to-be-forgotten day of their ride.

"By Jove!" exclaimed Herrick. "If I were you, I'd never want to ride again!"

After greeting her, Jim could only look his admiration and wonder.

"I am taking up my ranch life where it left off—with reservations from sad experience," replied Helen, as she took her seat. "Bernie, we had to trade Jim's horse, Bay. What can he ride today?"

"He may take his choice. There are any number of good beasts."

"By the way, Jim, I told Tasker to follow us at once with our horses. I shall treasure that horse, Gray. A robber's horse! . . . Tasker ought to be here soon, maybe tomorrow."

Jim felt the solid earth slipping from under his feet.

"I expected to leave today," he said, casually. "But I'll wait until tomorrow. Bay is a horse I hated to part with."

"So soon!" exclaimed Helen, with dark, inscrutable eyes on him. "Bernie, could you not induce Jim to stay?"

Herrick waved a deprecatory hand.

"Bernie has consented to let me share his ranching enterprise," she said. "I'd like to see it pay—a reasonable interest, at least. And I have rather conceived the idea that it'd be difficult, if not impossible, without you."

"Not at all," replied Jim, constrainedly.

Presently she arose: "Come, let us ride. We can discuss it better in the saddle."

Jim could not find his tongue. He was vastly concerned with this ride. After it, would he be as strong as he was now? To be near her. . . .

Jim got on the horse Barnes saddled for him and followed Helen who to his surprise took the road back to the ranch house. Perhaps she had forgotten something. But when he turned the bend she was mounting the trail that led up the right. If there had been giants on huge steeds pulling Jim back, he still would have kept on.

His thoughts locked around the astounding fact—this was the trail they had ridden down, after that encounter when he had kissed her. Sight and hearing, his sense of all around him, seemed strangely intensified. The pines whispered, the rocks had a secret voice, the sky turned blue, the white clouds sailed, the black Henrys loomed above and the purple-gray valley deepened its colors below.

Helen halted her horse under the very pine where they had stopped to listen to the hounds and cowboys, racing up the ridge after the deer.

"My sense of direction seems to be all right," said Helen.

"Helen, I fear it's better than your sense—of kindness, let me say. . . . Why did you bring me here?"

"Please look at my cinch," she replied, coolly.

Jim dismounted, more unsure of himself than ever in any of the many crucial moments of his career. He did not understand a woman. He could only take Helen literally.

Her saddle cinch was all right, and he rather curtly told her so.

"Then—maybe it's my stirrup," she went on, lightly, as she removed her booted and spurred foot.

"Well, I can't see anything wrong with that, either. . . . Helen."

Something thudded on the ground. Her gloves and her sombrero. But they surely had not fallen. She had flung them! A wave as irresistible as the force of the sea burst over him. But he looked up, outwardly cool. And as he did her gloved hand went to his shoulder.

"Nothing—the matter with—your stirrup," he said huskily.

"No. After all, it's not my cinch—nor my stirrup. . . . Jim, could any of your western girls have done better than this?"

"Than what?"

"Than fetching you here—to this place—where it happened."

"Yes. They would have been more merciful."

"But since I love you—"

"You are mad," he cried.

"And since I want you—presently—to behave somewhat like you did that day."

He reeled under that. The truth was almost overwhelming. The strong, earnest light of her eyes told more than her words. Her pallor had vanished. She was no longer cool.

"Jim, you might have saved me this. But perhaps it is just as well. You are laboring under some delusion that I must dispel. . . . I want you—ask you to stay."

"If you are sure—I will stay. Only, for G—d's sake, don't let it be anything but—but—"

"Love," she added. "Jim, I am sure. If I were going back to England, I would want you to go, just the same. . . . It's what you are that has made me love you. There need be no leveling. I lived years down in Robbers' Roost. That changed me—blew the cobwebs out of my brain. This wonderful West and you are alike. I want both."

"But I am nobody. . . . I have nothing," he cried haltingly.

"You have everything a woman needs to make her happy and keep her safe. The fact that I did not know what these things really were until lately should not be held against me."

"But it might be generosity—pity—the necessity of a woman of your kind to—to pay."

"True. It might be. Only it isn't. . . . I brought you here."

Jim wrapped his arms around her and for the reason that he was ashamed to betray the tears which blinded his eyes, he buried his face in her lap and mumbled that he would worship her to his dying breath and in the life beyond.

She ran soft ungloved hands through his hair and over his temples. "People, cities, my humdrum existence had palled me. I wanted romance, adventure, love. . . . Jim, I regard myself just as fortunate as you think you are. Lift me off. We'll sit a while under our pine trees. . . . Jim, hold me as you did that other time—here!"

Texas Industrial Activities

The weekly pay roll of the CWA beef canning plant at Paris is running $5,000 a week, working four shifts of six hours each canning about fifty head of cattle daily. Products will be distributed to needy families through the Texas Rehabilitation and Relief Commission.

Texas supplies more than half the spinach grown in the United States, with Crystal City the largest shipper of the crop in the world. The record Texas crop of 8,595,000 bushels yielded an income of more than $3,000,000 to its producers.

Texas Automatic Sprinkler Co. Dallas and Houston, has recently added commercial refrigeration and air-conditioning to its line of products, and now has fourteen salesman in Texas with their fabricating plants working full time.

Menard—Thirty-three 4-H club calves being fed this year in Menard county have out-gained all calves previously fed by Menard club members, according to Frank N. Newsom, farm demonstration agent. The calves weighed only an average of 218 pounds at the start but at the end of the first 60-day period weighed an average of 385 pounds. This shows a gain of 166 pounds per calf during the 60-day period which beats the past gain over the same period by 20 pounds to the calf.

We are told that most arithmetic will be discarded in the next half century. Unhappily, we shall not be here then.

World Comment

By JOE BURNS

RAYMOND MOLEY, former professional adviser to the administration has suggested that the National Democratic Convention of 1936, which will nominate Roosevelt and Garner for a second term, be held in Dallas. The Texas Centennial celebration would be, in his opinion a splendid background for the convention. Texas will be celebrating a century of independence. The Democrats will be celebrating a return to power after many lean years. They should celebrate together, in the opinion of Professor Moley, and he believes all Texans will agree.

WILLIAM GREEN, president of the American Federation of Labor, has released some rather discouraging unemployment figures. According to the head of American labor, unemployment increase up to mid-August before being slackened by fall business quickening. Even the fall pickup was below last year's, Green said. Whereas 800,000 went back to work in August last year, under the stimulus of President Roosevelt's re-employment program and Johnson's blue eagle campaign, unemployment increased by 40,000 during August this year. Deducting those having emergency and made-work jobs, Green put those without jobs of any sort at 8,585,000.

The munitions investigation has developed one interesting factor: The United States government readily divulges its secrets to private manufacturers, who just as readily sell the products of those secrets to any foreign nation.

In every war, soldiers are killed by weapons made in their own countries and sold abroad to enrich munitions makers.

The American munitions manufacturers have gone one step further: They have hired the military men in charge of those secrets—hired them away from the government the men had sworn to protect.

Perhaps you'll like to know just what the New Deal is. I didn't know until the other day or rather I couldn't give a sensible definition of it. Can you? Of course, we all have a rather hazy idea about it, something about a fellow by the name of Franklin Roosevelt and all that. But one member of Congress, Rep. Edward R. Burke of Nebraska, who defeated Gov. Charles W. Bryan for that state's Democratic nomination to the Senate last month, has said of the New Deal: "It seeks to cement our society, rich and poor, manual workers and brain workers, into a voluntary brotherhood of freeman, standing together, striving to gether, for the common good of all." And there it is folks.

FOOTBALL CHATTER

By TEDDY

Coach Ewing's Hornets showed up exceptionally well against the Moody Bearcats last Friday afternoon. A well-known sport-critic has stated that "ninety per cent of a good football team rests in the coach." If his men can get along with him and he can keep good discipline, he will have not trouble making a good mentor. Coach Ewing is well liked by his men, and he can keep good discipline. With his young and inexperienced crew, I think he can mold a good Hornet machine. He has fellows out there that are eager to play the game and men that have that "ole football heart."

I didn't dope the game last Friday. I know now that it was a good idea. Jinx Tucker, sport-editor for the Waco News-Tribune, doped it 13 to 6 Moody, and the Temple sport scribe doped it 6 to 0 Gatesville. If I had doped it I would have doped it in the neighborhood of Jinx.

We were all fooled, and the fans that failed to see the game got a bad sting. Ha! Ha!

The young Hornet club will take on Lampasas next Friday in Lampasas. The contract calls for the game to start at four o'clock in the afternoon. I would like to see the game played at night. It would mean much to both school. More local fans could attend the game, and the gate receipts would be doubled.

Lampasas is said to have a fast team with a good passing machine. Gatesville is weak on breaking up passes and had better get set for the Lampasas Badgers. Lampasas defeated the Lometa team 7 to 0 last Friday.

ALLRED PROVES HE CAN RUN FOOT RACE TOO

Governor-elect Jimmie Allred proved that he was a good runner in a foot race as well as in a political campaign at the East Bell county fair at Seaton yesterday.

Challenged by J. M. Bartek and Will Marek to match his sprinting abilities with them, the next governor of Texas doffed his coat and "measured up" to the tape.

He got a bad start. In the first 30 yards he was behind but a spurt of speed carried him over the goal ahead of his opponents.

He turned to Bartek who came in second and said: "You can't run as fast as Tom Hunter."

F. W. Chudej, former Ferguson supporter who supported Allred in his campaign this year, remarked from the sidelines: "And Marek ran as bad as Charlie McDonald.—Temple Telegram.
