Citizens should certainly back this movement as it will be for the benefit of all since the structure is to be placed in Raby Park.

TEACHERS RE-ELECTED AT FLAT

Re-election of teachers was completed by the Flat School Board at their meeting recently, and re-elected Supt. C. T. Humphries with his assistants, C. O. Huckabee, Estelle Humphries, Lila Robinson and Mary Huckabee.

PROCLAMATION

By authority invested in me as Mayor of Gatesville and after consulting the weather man, as hertofore, I now officially proclaim Wednesday, May 1, as Straw Hat Day in and for all citizens so concerned in the City of Gatesville and surrounding territory.

As hereinbefore stated, effective May 1, felts, fedoras, beavers, and the like are taboo. Any citizen caught so attired is taking his own chances and can expect no sympathy from any department of the city government supervised by the mayor.

Yours covertly,
M. W. Lowrey,
Official Mayor City of Gatesville.

It does the News' personnel good to know people are still talking about them especially when they say good things about the paper. Miss Fredia Weaver recently passed a compliment on an editorial as did Miss Vedona Franks threw flowers to us on a recent news story. Dr. Kermit Jones has a right to put on a big front after hitting two home runs in the Softball League and his attractive young daughter, Margaret Ann, winning second place in the News-Tribune recent baby contest. Gatesville did right well, James Robert Moss won twelfth place, and I guess Mr. "Tom" has something to puff out about too, as his grandson was also "in the money." Then, we see Mr. and Mrs. Bud McCurry "looking the pretties over" at a local department store. They're fixing up for the warmer weather weather, if it ever does.

BUSTER SCHOOL PROGRAM DATE CHANGED

According to announcement received here from Mrs. Clara Morgan, teacher of the Adult School at Buster, the proposed school program scheduled for Friday night has been postponed until Thursday, May 2, on account of inclement weather and mud.

Lad and Lassie Take Trophys at Waco Baby Contest; Relatives Here

Tinty tots take turkey in Tribune tussle! To be sure! With over five hundred entries in a baby beauty contest held by the Waco News-Tribune, Gatesville's babies walked away with two of the prizes, second and twelfth, prizes being for the second

MARGARET ANN JONES prize, a doll from the Goldstein-Migel baby department, and the twelfth prize, a pair of shoes from Leon and Lewis'.

Margaret Ann Jones, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Kermit R. Jones of Gatesville was second prize contest winner, and James Robert Moss, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Moss of Port Arthur.

JAMES ROBERT MOSS and grandson of Hon. and Mrs. T. R. Mears of Gatesville with whom James Jr., is staying, won twelfth prize.

Besides these prizes, the two youngsters made personal appearances at the Orpheum Theatre in Waco Monday afternoon and night.

Entries came from as far as Amarillo, Cisco, Houston and San Antonio, but were forced out of competition because those cities lie outside of Waco.

Through courtesy of the Waco News-Tribune, the News is privileged to present herewith, the pictures of the prize winners from this county.

Parents in this section have the same chance of their children winning prizes of this sort as those from any other section as is clearly indicated by the success of these youngsters.

BE MODERN

Historians and philosophers and other "wiseacres" are continually saying "History repeats itself." Maybe so, however, those who progress are not looking back. The pioneers don't look back to see how to pioneer a country; they look over the hill, always wondering what's on the other side. No inventor looks backward, except to use things and ideas that predecessors have worked out, using them to forward their new ideas. The lazy man follows a "copy" of what some one else has done. The wide awake man makes his own ideas, even tho they may be out of line with the staid and tried ideas of the past generations. It takes initiative, nerve and the old "intestinal fortitude" to break over the traces and get out of the rut.

What we're driving at is this, to progress, we must be modern. Self satisfied people never do "go places and do things." When you are satisfied you might as well be dead—at least, you are from the neck up.

Inventors, explorers, and "nuts" as we always call them are constantly working for the betterment of mankind in all the unexplored fields. We simply call them "crazy" or something of like meaning and then, ten or fifteen years later we "fall in line" and do exactly what they told us years ago we would do.

Any new idea is a "phony" when we first hear it, but it's "the McCoy" when we get used to it. Take the inventions and ideas, radio, artificial refrigerators, autos, airplanes, new styles in clothing, furniture or anything that may be offered—if it's new, we take a lot of time getting used to it, and are afraid to take a chance on it being good—maybe, if it's clothing, it's too daring, or furniture or any other gadget newly invented or designed—it'll be only a fad or go out of use soon. However, from these very new ideas come the "common usage" of civilization.

So, we say, "keep up with the times," if you don't keep the pace, you'll soon be replaced by someone who will recognize the value of the new idea while you're wondering what it's all about. The lazy man is old fashioned. The energetic man is modern. Let's all be modern! It pays!

STRAW HAT DAY

Straw Hat Day! What! Just another indication that we are shaking the cool of spring and the chills of winter and are working toward another goal, that of cool comfort, always it's trying to beat the "weather," since Texas, unlike California and Florida does not have "climate."

Hats for the season, run the gamut of styles from Panamas, turned down and up, colorful and novel bands, sailors or "Cadys" and many other kinds, including Mexican sombreros, and the regular barefoot-boy-straws so many of us still use and of course started out on. Then, for an oddity, there's the "Lion Tamer hat" or pith helmet, modeled after the tropical, or big game hunters hat. Well, to make a long story short, just take your pick, and suit your personality, or visa versa. At any rate, it's Straw Hat Day, May 1, according to proclamation by Mayor M. W. Lowrey, as you've probably noticed on the front page of the News. Either dig out last summer's, if you're so fortunate, or dig down in the jeans and get ready for a hot time this summer!

REVIVAL BEGINS AT FLAT

May 4. The public is cordially invited to attend all these services which will be held only at night.

Beginning at the Baptist Church at Flat Monday, April 29, the annual revival with Rev. Clyde E. Childress began and will continue thru Saturday

World Comment

By JOE BURNS

It seems to us that without any legislation whatever all the profits have been taken out of the last war.—Lynchburg News.

THE LEGISLATURE, after months of wrangling and indecision, has passed the $3,000,000 Centennial bill. The measure that now awaits the final confirmation of Governor Allred appropriates for all purposes $2,000,000 of which $1,800,000 is allotted to the Centennial as a whole with $1,200,000 going to construct and furnish a Texas building at Dallas, central city of the exposition. Government of the Centennial observances, for which a large part of the appropriation will be spent, will be vested in a commission of nine members, of which Lieut. Gov. Walter F. Woodul will be chairman.

AS THE FLEET begins its maneuvers in the Pacific, the House votes to make Uncle Sam's navy the equal of any fighting force afloat with appropriation of $465,000,000 for naval construction. This increase of $172,000,000 over last year's naval appropriation call for the U. S. to build up its fighting fleet to the full strength allowed by the London naval treaty, and bides no good for an agreement on naval limitation at the 1936 discussions among Japan, England and the United States. The bill calls for an increase of 11,000 in the enlisted strength of the navy, bringing it to a total of 93,500, which is considerably below that of England and Japan; the construction of new ships, including one aircraft carrier; the building of 555 new planes, and an increase in the personnel of the naval academy at Annapolis by allowing each Congressman to appoint four instead three cadets.

Despite criticism on the part of the press and objection by Japanese officials, the navy will stage its annual spring maneuvers in the Pacific, near Alaska, as mentioned above. One hundred fifty-three warcraft will maneuver over some 5,000,000 square miles of water to test the nation's defense against attack in its Pacific area. From the Aleutian Islands of Alaska to Hawaii and from Midway Island, the outpost of 1,200 miles west of Hawaii, to the Pacific coast of America is the theater of operations. 466 aircraft carriers will be in action, including the new Ranger. An invading force will be organized to attack the defending battle force. Admiral J. W. Reeves, commander-in-chief of the battle fleet, will be general superintendent of the maneuvers.

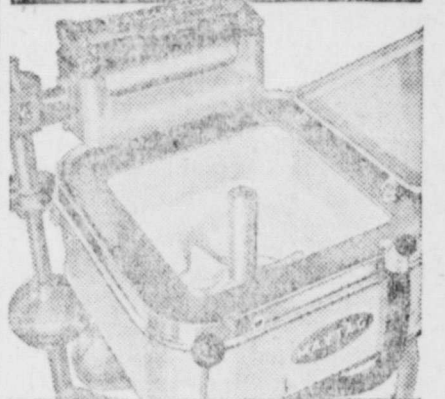

There has been a great deal of criticism both in the U. S. and in Japan of the maneuvers, as being provocative to Japan and directed against that nation. Yet Japan annually stages her maneuvers within 2,000 miles of Hawaii without protest on the part of the American government. The maneuvers are not directed against Japan or any other power, but are for the purpose of acquainting the fleet with Alaskan waters and preparing Hawaii and Alaska against possible attacks in the future.

SENATOR HUEY LONG received enthusiastic welcome in agricultural Iowa last week where he addressed the radical Farmers' Holiday Association headed by Milo Reno, The Kingfish, speaking before an amphitheater packed with farm folk, launched into an attack on the New Deal's financial and agricultural policies, charging that Roosevelt was involving the nation in ruinous debts that could not be paid. Long found time to explain in detail his share-the-wealth plan and to attack Agricultural Secretary Wallace in his home town of Des Moines. Reno criticized the AAA and demanded the resignation of Wallace from the Cabinet.

This is Senator Long's first invasion of the real West and his welcome there may encourage him to make another speaking tour in the agricultural states of the Middle West, where the drought and agricultural program of the Administration have created much opposition to Roosevelt. The speech made by the Kingfish was interpreted by many as the basis upon which he hopes to form a third party in 1936 and contest Mr. Roosevelt's re-election to the presidency.

HE AWAITS NEW HANDS

Science's hand of help and hope has been extended to Herbie Miller five, whose own hands were amputated after being run over by a trolley car. He is shown in his cot in Newington Home for Crippled Children at Hartford, Conn., in a gleeful mood, as he contemplates the day when he will have two artificial hands reacting to voluntary muscle control. The "miracle" will be wrought by Dr. Henry J. Kessler of Newark, N. J. The noted orthopedist made a muscle loop in the boy's left arm which was amputated just above the wrist. Under it was passed a skin tunnel which gives the boy control of the artificial hand that is now being manufactured in Germany.

Gardeners hung up a $21 value per garden record in 1934—and that in spite of the drouth—(we should have a rubber stamp for those last words!)—according to figures compiled by Extension horticulturist J. F. Rosborough from the annual reports from counties having Extension agents, where 22,683 garden reports showed $480,253 profit.

Good as this was, Rosborough is backing 1935 gardeners to beat it and to this end is coaching them on subirrigation to defeat the drouth. And warning them to watch out for mildew on the peas and all the varied crawling, creeping, sucking, chewing insects likely to cut down profits.

"Making the punishment fit the crime," he has a spray of poison or trick ready to meet each attack and wise gardeners will follow his advice as to which to use. That way neither time, labor nor money will be wasted.

To prune or not to prune? is the question that vexes tomato growers. Whether it is better to pinch the eager sucker and so increase the size and earliness of the fruit, or let them grow and lose this great advantage. Rosborough says nip 'em.

He says also stake tomato plants in the region of generous rainfall. In regions of limited rainfall staking is not necessary since it is done to insure that the fruit does not rest on the ground and become blemished.

Presbyterians Have Silver Tea.

A most delightful social event was the Silver Tea given by the Presbyterian Auxiliary at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Kendrick on Friday evening in which Miss Doris Jones of Waco played the double role of honoree and entertainer.

Miss Jones in a charming impersonator and it would be difficult to say in which characterization she excelled: The bad boy; the Mountaineer fiddler, the old lady or the quaint little story telling girl. Each was faultlessly rendered.

The audience was with her from the time she was presented by Rev. J. M. McLean to the last number, for two reasons: Love and admiration for Miss Jones and a deep appreciation for the Fine Arts in and all of its phases.

The spacious home lends itself well to an affair when a program is to be given with reception following, and was enhanced by gorgeous roses throughout.

The table with lace cloth, red, radiance roses, red candelabra and gleaming silver was given added attraction by the young ladies Misses Alice Earl and Rosylene Anderson Fay Byrom, Nancy Satterfield, Jean Patillo and Frances Goodall, who poured tea and served a dainty plate as Mrs. Pinkney graciously presided.

CHAPTER I

If working with a carnival is a business—then business wasn't so good.

Chick Thompson's puppet show wasn't doing well at all. They finished the act, and Fingers, Chick's aid, peeped through the curtain.

"Four dollars and sixty cents," he said disgustedly. "Swell business!"

"I make it four fifty," said Chick. "A great chance to pay hospital bills with business like that."

Fingers turned from the curtain. "How's Nell? See her this morning?"

"Yeah."

"Gee, I'll bet she's scared. I remember when my mother had her first baby—"

"You what?" It was Daisy, the pretty blonde third member of the troupe.

Fingers was flustered. "I mean—the first one I remember."

"I'll have to do some hustlin'," said Chick. "Poochy's gonna need a lotta clothes."

Fingers' eyes widened. "Poochy! Who's Poochy?"

"The kid."

"Why he ain't born yet?"

Chick was impatient. "What about it?"

"That's screwy—slappin a tag on a kid before he's born."

Daisy smiling kept silent.

"Well," Chick went on, "he's gonna be born, ain't he? You don't think I'm lettin' the kid come into the world without a monicker?"

"Poochy!" said Fingers contemptuously. "I never heard of a name like that."

"Well and me likes it."

"Hey, Chick!" a boy ran into the small booth. "They want you at the hospital!"

Chick dropped the strings of his puppets. "Hospital! What's up?"

"I dunno. They just phoned."

Chick swung around to Daisy. "Holy smokes! I'll bet it's happened! That's Poochy for you—showin up ahead of schedule! What a time I'm gonna have with that kid!" Chick grabbed his hat, "Take over the show, Fingers." He turned suddenly and clutched Fingers' arm.

"And listen—I want an honest count, see?"

Before Fingers could answer Chick was gone.

Chick had been sure it was to be a boy. It was. But about Nell—

The doctor had said "Bad heart reaction. We'll call you if anything happens." But there had been no need. Nell never awoke to see if Poochy had been a boy or a girl. Poochy now belonged to Chick Thompson alone. His Godmother was a carnival calliope and scarlet and yellow banners that waved in the sky.

Chick found a new happiness in Poochy. The three weeks time which the doctor had ordered the baby be kept at the hospital was up. But Chick wasn't ready to take Poochy yet. There were things to be learned about caring for a baby. With Fingers trailing along rather disconsolately Chick entered the Municipal Baby Center. Dr. Mary Hedges the lecturer stopped the pair when they attempted to enter the auditorium.

"I'm sorry young man, this lecture is only for mothers."

"Well, gee whizz!" said Fingers. "He's a mother."

Chick pleaded "Look lady—I got a kid and I gotta find out a couple things about handlin' him. With all the babies dyin' and everythin'—a guy oughtn't to take any chances. Just lemme go in this once I won't bother you much. I just wanna stay long enough to get the low-down on the thing. Will ya please?"

Dr. Hedges eyes softened. "Where's your wife?"

"She's dead," said Chick slowly.

"Oh," said the doctor. "I'm sorry. Come in."

Then the lecture was over. Between them, Fingers and Chick absorbed as much information about mothering a baby as was possible for two men to absorb. Which, probably isn't much absorbing. At any rate, Fingers—whose name referred to his deft digits, which in bygone days played hide and seek with men's pockets and pocketbooks—came in handy. Even Chick couldn't realize how deft Fingers' digits were.

"I guess bringin' up a kid," said

Chick, "ain't as easy as it looks. How about some dough?"

"Whadda you need dough for?"

"We gotta get the outfit, don't we? Them diapers and things."

"Oh," said Fingers airily, "you ain't gonna need no diapers."

"Whadda you want Poochy to do," snapped Chick. "Go around naked?"

Fingers began digging into his pockets. Finally he extracted several folded diapers. Chick was wide-eyed.

"Got plenty of diapers," said Fingers. A can of dusting powder came out. "Talcum, too." He placed the bundle in Chick's arms. "There it is—the whole works."

Chick grinned. At last Fingers' former occupation had come to some use other than to land Fingers in jail. Soon the pair were in the hospital, then up in the baby ward. The nurse examined the tags on the infants and Poochy was found.

"Yes, here he is. Lovely boy."

Chick grinned. "Thanks." He approached Poochy timidly. "Hello, Pooch. How are you, son?" Then Chick's voice broke. "Yeah, y-yo, 're okay." He spoke softly now. "You know, Fingers, I'm gettin' quite a kick outa this. Havin' a kid, I mean. It kinda does somethin' to you. Makes you feel big, sorta. Like you amounted to somethin'. It sorta gives you a new slant. Know what I mean?"

Fingers didn't, but he said, "Oh—absolutely!" Suddenly, Fingers grabbed Chick's arm. "Hey, Chick, look—ain't that Nell's old man?"

Chick's jaw set. "What does he want?"

The door opened and the superintendent entered. "Mr. Thompson, will you step out here for a moment, please?"

Chick and Fingers stepped out into the hall. Lawson, Nell's father, was waiting. "Hello, Chick."

"What do you want?" Chick snapped.

"Mr. Lawson wants to talk to you about the baby," said the superintendent.

"He does, huh? I guess I should know you'd come bustin' around."

"No use being unreasonable, Chick," said Lawson.

"Unreasonable! Don't make me laugh! You're kinda forgettin' a couple things, ain't you? You're kinda forgettin' who was unreasonable when Nell and me wanted to get married. You're kinda forgettin' what a nice sweet papa you were when you threw her outa the house."

"That's all in the past now."

"Is it? Not with me, it ain't! 'Cause I don't forget so easy, see?" Chick's voice rose. "Where were you when she kept writin' all those letters? Beggin' you to let her come home and have the kid. Maybe you don't know it, but you broke the girl's heart." Chick's words stuck in his throat. "Maybe—maybe if she coulda come home, things mightn't've worked out—the way they did." His eyes flashed.

"Say, listen—I wouldn't let a guy like you get within ten miles of that baby! Come on, Fingers—let's get the kid and blow."

Chick started for the door, but another man entered barring the doorway. "Wait a minute, young feller. You ain't movin' that way outa here."

Chick glowered. "Who says I ain't?" Before the men could reply, Chick's fist lashed out, catching the fellow's jaw.

"Wait a minute!" A gun leveled at Chick.

"Who are you?"

The man took a shield from his pocket. "Sheriff's office. I got a restraining order here, pending a hearing."

Lawson turned to Chick. "I was hoping it wouldn't be necessary to use it, Chick, but—"

"It means," added the Sheriff's aid, rubbing his jaw, "you can't have the kid till you prove to the court you're a fit parent."

"Who says I ain't?" barked Chick.

"Never mind that. You'll read all about it in the complaint. For the time being do yourself a favor and scram outa here—before I pinch you for hittin' an officer."

Fingers walked up to Chick. "Let's go, Chick. You can't argue with a court order."

Chick was beaten and he knew it. He walked from the building slowly.

Much interest is now being shown regarding the County Baseball League, all teams having responded to letters sent them except Ewing, Ireland and Levita, and answers are expected from them within a few days. The League is scheduled to start Saturday, May 4, with twelve teams in the loop, six in each division. The by-laws will appear in the Friday edition of the News.

Spring football training in the local high school is progressing nicely. There will be a free football game between members of the men that are eligible for the team this coming year and all seniors of this year and all men ineligible for the team this next year. The date of the game will be announced later, and all the rural schools will be invited to see the game.

***

We notice from a recent news dispatch where Sid Goff of Evant won first place in the pole vault division at the Baylor Invitation Track Meet, and third in the high jump division.

***

Softball players are losing interest in the spring sport. I rather think Old Man Weather is having something to do with this. The Firemen are still in their winning streak, and it looks as if they will cinch this first half. The Bachelors are showing less interest, in the writer's opinion, than any team in the League. The Independent crew has been showing up well, but they are not reporting to managers Gartman and Arnold as they should. The Oilers, under their new managers, Martin and Kirby, have started off in a big way, but are not reporting as they have heretofore.

Friday night the Firemen nosed out the Independent crew,

11-4. It was the only game for the night as neither the Bachelors nor the Oilers had enough men out to play their game. This game will be played Wednesday night. The Bachelors are doped to win the game, however, they will have to get more men out to do it.

Tonight the Independent team is scheduled to play the Bachelors in the first game. The Independents will defeat the Bachelors. In the second game the Oilers meet the Firemen. The Firemen will probably win from the Conoco club to mark up their eighth victory to one loss.

COPPERAS COVE NEWS

(From Copperas Cove Crony.)

School given 7 Affiliations

Tuesday, Superintendent E. W. Brooks, visited the Copperas Cove school, and while there notified Mr. Wagle that we were now affiliated in seven subjects. They are English 1 and 2, History 1 and 2, Algebra 1, Geometry and General Science.

For the past several years the school has worked hard for this and in the six years, Mr. Wagle has been at the head of the school, affiliation has been his goal. He has done his job well.

Next term we go into a remodeled and enlarged building, with seven affiliated subjects and a desire to continue to make this school the best of its kind in this section of the state.

There will be some changes in the faculty. Mr. Wagle has resigned and a music teacher has been added to the staff of teachers.

It has been a good year for the Copperas Cove school and hard work on the part of the school board and Mr. Wagle have made this possible.

J. C. Cullwell New School Head

J. C. Cullwell, for the past five years, principal of the Copperas Cove school, was elected superintendent by the school board last Wednesday night. Mr. Cullwell will fill the place left vacant by the resignation of J. H. Wagle.

In filling this vacancy, the school now lacks two teachers for the 1935-36 term. A teacher for the fifth and sixth grades and a coach and principal.

DUSTING COVERS — OF — TEXAS HISTORY

Louisiana was not the only State that sent volunteers to the aid of the Texans during their fight for freedom. Adventurous young men left their homes for Texas when the struggle first began. Some of them were heard of again; some were lost to their families forever. A pathetic letter published in the Texas Telegraph and Register from Cornelia Vancleve Barnes of New Haven asked for news of her brother. His family thought he had been mercilessly murdered by Indians, but she had his name posted with those of the Alamo dead, and she appealed for any news of him. Texas seemed three times as far away to anxious relatives.

A regiment of men was raised in Georgia partly through the efforts of Joanna Troutman, inspired with the fight the Texans were making, and willing to do something at once to help them. She made a flag of white silk, with a five-pointed star of azure tint in the center, for the regiment to take with them. On one side was written "Give me liberty or give me death." On the other, were the Latin words which meant "Where liberty dwells, there is my country." Her flag was unfurled at Velasco when the troops arrived in 1835, and they carried it with them to the fateful battle of Goliad.

A statue of Joanna Troutman, tall, stately, beautiful, stands in the State Cemetery at Austin, Texas. In one hand she has a threaded needle to represent an implement of labor, and in the other she carries the Texas flag she made.

The war was not won without cooperation of Texans as well as others. The general sentiment of the people was expressed by the Texas Telegraph: "We hear some complain—we exhort everyone not to shrink from duty, because he may not at present be either rewarded or remembered; for we trust that the time will come when services will be acknowledged, and merit duly appreciated."

It is to gratefully acknowledge such services and merit that the Texans will remember their ancestors with Centennial celebrations of 1936.

Increased sale of United States shirts in Brazil is expected as a result of the trade agreement between the two countries which reduces the import duty 25 per cent.

After seven years of litigation, the Government recently won a priority case on a patent for a process for removing poisonous spray residue from plants and vegetables, and this patent is now free for anyone's use.

The average height of corn is between seven and eight feet.

rizo Springs where she has been living for the past four months. Mr. and Mrs. Allan Millsap announce the arrival of a daughter born April 22.

A number of Copperas Cove people attended the Quarterly Conference in Bartlett, Thursday.

Melton Wallace, who has been working at Carrizo Springs, returned home last week end.

HD Club News

FROM MISS MARTIN'S NOTE BOOK

A new clothes closet costing $4.60 has been an added improvement made by Miss Dot Kemp, clothing demonstrator of the Union Home Demonstration Club.

The upper part of the clothes closet is used for storing quilts, while the lower part is for clothes. A rod extends lengthwise of the closet and four shelves are at the end. Hat stands and a shoe rack add to the convenience.

Seven fresh vegetables have been served from the garden of Mary Brown, gardening demonstrator of the Liberty 4-H club. These vegetables include lettuce, tomatoes, English peas, radishes, spinach, mustard and tendergreen.

Good lighting is an important thing in planning a clothes closet, thinks Miss Otha Berry, Hood Springs, H. D. Club. Miss Berry has a new closet which she has papered with a light colored paper and just inside the closet door she has placed a pocket in which she keeps a flashlight.

Domestic Club Meeting

The club met Wednesday, April 24 with Lurene Blanchard. The afternoon was spent quilting and piecing quilts and ripping tobacco sacks.

There were six visitors present. Refreshment of cake and hot cocoa were served.

The winners of the prizes were Jewel Spence and Dean Whitten.

Our next meeting will be on March 1st, to be held with Mrs. Madie Roberson.
