DECORATION DAY, or MEMORIAL DAY, is the day for decoration of the graves of Soldiers, Sailors and Marines who have "given there all" for the glory and honor of their country. We call your attention to this because Thursday of this week, the 30th, is Decoration, Memorial or Poppy day.

A brief history of this day is timely now. Originally, it was a day set apart for the decoration of the graves of soldiers who fell in the Civil War, and for the holding of commemorative exercises, which originated in the Southern States. In 1868

Gen. John A. Logan, then Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic issued a general order setting aside the 30th of May for this purpose. Alabama, Florida, Georgia and Mississippi observe April 26, and May 19 is used by North and South Carolina on account of the flowers blooming earlier in these states.

Now, it is customary, both north and south, and credit for this beautiful courtesy belongs to the women of the South.

Since the World War, this date has also been adopted by the various American Legion posts of the country as Poppy Day, at which time, poppies are sold and the sale of these is used for the benefit of veterans who were wounded and disabled in the last great crisis.

As we are informed neither the Legion or any of the churches here will have Memorial services, but let us hope, that at the outset, some thought will be given those who gave the supreme sacrifice, that their gift to the world will not have been in vain. And, to the living veterans, we salute you, as the forgotten heroes, of even such a short time in the past.

"MELODY CRUISE" THE ONLY MUSICAL EXTRAVAGANDA OF YEAR IS TONIGHT

With approximately seventeen youngsters, carrying their weekend bags up the gangway, "Melody Cruise" swings her nose into the stream of entertainment at 8:15 tonight, guided by the skillful Pilot, Capt. Raye Virginia Rayford, and her First Mate, Beulah Gamblin.

Following quickly in succession, are Carl McClendon, in a solo specialty "Step Along." The "Mill-Tappers," Janet Sadler and Laverne Ament, proving that the Marines have the situation in hand. Then the "Fedora Street"—sounds high hat—featuring Ray Virginia McCreary and Beverly Ann Barber. Martha Ann Hillman and Dorothy Ayres follow with "Just Fancy." Well—you come and see for yourself.

Included in the cast besides these, are many of Gatesville's future Vernon Castles (Mr. and Mrs.), Ruby Keelers and Fred Astaires, and a duet by Clinton Chamlee and Helon Post Chamlee, all climaxing in an elaborate "Ship Wedding," nautical, but nice, which brings "Melody Cruise" to the safe haven of a wonderful evening's entertainment.

The Captain, herself, shakes off the brine, and to piano and voice accompaniment, does an intricate dance, "Moonlight Madonna," which in itself should bring down the house, according to dress rehearsal reports.

TRUCK TIRES AND TRIPS, TURNING TREACEROUS TONS ON TERRA

Unused to the laborious work connected with construction, since there has been so little for the past few years, but with the advent of a seemingly building boom here, a dumptruck, loaded with gravel, about 3:00 p. m. yesterday unceremoniously dumped its whole load in the middle of the street at the corner of 9th and Main.

Shovels were quickly brought into play by the two men on the truck, and it was reloaded and hauled to its destination, the new First Baptist Church that is being built. This unruly gravel will probably inert for many years, as a part of the concrete foundation of what will prove to be one of Gatesville's proudest monuments to the Christian faith.

About 6:30 this overworked truck pulled the same stunt almost directly in front of the News' office. Fortunately there was no traffic jamb and no one injured in either accident.

Rules Governing T. B. Eradication Program Of Cattle in Coryell

This County was automatically placed under quarantine when the Federal T. B. test was started here, and cattle that have not been tested for Tuberculosis are not to be moved into this County or shifted from point to point in the County until they have been tested. This does not include cattle that are to be shipped for immediate slaughter.

Livestock dealers in milk cattle of any type are not allowed, according to this quarantine, to sell milk cows in this county unless the animals have been tuberculin tested. The dealers can notify the veterinarian in charge of this program at room 207 in the Courthouse in Gatesville on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays of each week if he has any cattle in his pens that he wants tested so that he might sell them, and the test will be completed on Thursdays, Fridays, and Saturdays for him.

It is requested that no person buy a milk cow or cows that have not been tested under this Federal program. It is a strict violation of this quarantine for a cow that has not been tested to be moved into a herd that has been tested.

In the event that a reactor is found in a herd, the diseased animal is appraised by two men, one representing the Federal Government, and one representing the owner; and the owner receives two-thirds of the appraised value from the State and Federal Government after he has disposed of the animal in accordance with instructions to be given in each case.

In the event that an owner refuses to have his cattle tested, the Livestock Sanitary Commission of Texas will place a Quarantine on his premise. This means that if a man's premise is quarantined he cannot move any cattle from his premise, he cannot sell milk, butter, or cream, and any cattle that are brought on his premise after it has been quarantined cannot be taken away. Neither can he move cattle from one pasture to another.

Everyone is notified in plenty of time, usually three days ahead of time, when to pen his cattle, and again when to have them penned for the final reading.

Weather conditions of any nature does not interfere with this work. The work is carried on under all weather conditions.

Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Hardie and Belva Johnson visited Miss Noleta Hardie of Stephenville Sunday night. Miss Hardie accompanied them home where she will spend the summer.

The prospects for re-electing President Roosevelt and a Democratic Congress in 1936 are splendid at this time, regardless of the prestige lost by the President in the last few months and the dissension in Democratic Congressional ranks. It is a foregone conclusion that Mr. Roosevelt will be re-nominated by the Democrats. Apparently "Roosevelt and Garner" will again be the battle-cry of the Democrats, although there has been talk of substituting a candidate from the Middle West for Vice-President Garner. The President wants Garner and that is enough to insure his re-nomination at the convention next July.

A scant fourteen months from now the Republicans will have to choose a candidate. There are twenty-one outstanding possibilities for the G. O. P. nomination that will be discussed in a subsequent article. Everyone agrees that the next Republican candidate for President will have tough sledding trying to defeat Franklin Roosevelt but now, for the first time since 1933, he is conceded a chance. The wisdom of the spending of the $4,000,000,000 work relief fund will determine how good a chance he will have.

Senator Huey "Kingfish" Long is expected to enter the Democratic convention next year with the support of the Louisiana delegation and perhaps those of a few other Southern states, and seek the nomination. Of course he will be overwhelmingly defeated. The question is, Will dissent Democrats walk out of the Democratic rally with Long and form a third party in opposition to Roosevelt? Huey couldn't be elected. But if he runs, it will be to lay a foundation upon which he might win the presidency in 1940. This may be his strategy; maybe not. Some say Huey is too smart to run in '36. Perhaps, at this time, Huey himself does not know what he is going to do.

Washington political gossipers are talking of a possible fusion ticket under the leadership of the Brown Derby candidate of 1928, Al Smith. Such a ticket would have the support of tory Republicans and Conservative anti-New Deal Democrats, if there is any difference. This talk may have more foundation than it would appear at first. The Democratic conservatives realize that they are more and more being thrust into the background. The regular Republicans will likely pin their hopes on a liberal.

With the addition of Dennis Chavez of New Mexico to the Democratic Senate ranks and young Rush Holt of West Virginia reaching the required age to qualify for his seat in the Senate next month, there will be seventy Democrats in the Senate, twenty-four Republicans, one Farmer-Labor and one Progressive. In the House of the present Congress, the Democrats have 309 and the Republicans 113. The trouble lies in the fact that all of the Democrats in both Senate and House are not New Dealers. The Carter Glasses, Huey Longs, Thomas Gores, and others as much like Republicans as Democrats to the New Dealers. The Democrats and New Dealers have one thing in common—an intense hatred of the Republicans. This will re-elect Franklin Roosevelt in 1936.

One-third of the ninety-six men in the Senate come up for re-election next year. The Democrats will have a majority in that body—even if they lose every Democratic Senator who comes up for re-election—until Jan. 3, 1939. Granting that Democrats are elected to the Senate from the eleven States of the Solid South, which appears likely, the party can maintain a Senate majority until Jan. 3, 1941, by holding in 1936 or 1938 only eight other seats in normally doubtful States. If a Republican President should succeed Mr. Roosevelt in 1937, he would have a hostile Senate on his hands throughout his four years in the White House.

Mrs. Mudge and Mrs. Midge
 Played a fiendish game of bridge.
 No one evidenced surprise
 When their final scores were ties.
 Said Mrs. Midge, "I'll not begrudge
 First prize to dearest Mrs. Mudge
 If I may win—odd though it seem—
 Your recipe for that ice cream!"

"FROZEN VELVET" was the enthusiastic comment of one woman on the texture of the very first marlow she had ever eaten. She immediately followed it up by clamoring for the recipe, to be tried promptly thereafter in her own automatic refrigerator; and when told that marshmallows were the only secret of the "frozen velvet" she was politely incredulous but still more anxious to try it herself.

Marshmallows have a flair all their own for imparting smoothness to ice creams made without agitating. Use either a mechanical refrigerator, an ice cream freezer or a mold packed in an ice-salt mixture. The mold requires a tightly fitting cover sealed with adhesive tape. Even if you have never been able to make a perfect one in your life before, you can't help succeeding when you make it with marshmallows. The luscious lumps of ice cream magic consist in large part of corn syrup and gelatine; and as every housewife of the pre-electric era knew, corn syrup and gelatine were two guarantees of smoothness in old-fashioned freezer ice cream. Now they guarantee the same melting sleekness in desserts; frozen without any stirring at all.

Furthermore, you don't need to worry about the correct proportions; the marshmallows are made just right for perfect ice cream. Nor need you worry for fear the remaining marshmallows will dry out between times, and perhaps be less effective when you want to use them again. The campfire marshmallows now come in triple-sealed economy packages containing four separately sealed quarter-pound pack-ettes. Keep just one of these pack-ettes for six months if you like; the day you take it off the pantry shelf to use it, you will find its contents as fresh and sweet as the day you bought it.

And here is the very simple and very delicious marlow (or marshmallow ice cream) which so impressed the lady of our anecdote:

MACARON MARLOW
 16 marshmallows 1 cup whipping
 1 cup milk cream
 8 macaroons

Steam marshmallows and milk in top of double boiler over boiling water. Crush macaroons, add to marshmallow mixture, and chill. When cold and slightly thickened, add the stiffly-beaten cream, and pour into refrigerator trays, freezer, or mold. Freeze without stirring.

TEXAS HISTORY

Stephen F. Austin's name had been proposed for the presidency of the Republic, and the campaign that followed his nomination was a severe and cruel one to him. Austin told his friends that he would be candidate if they requested him to be: "I shall not decline the highly responsible and difficult one now proposed, should the majority of my fellow citizens elect me. My object has been for the general good and liberty and prosperity of Texas." Austin believed that he could be of real service in securing the annexation of Texas to the Union.

Accusations hurled at Austin during the campaign were enough to break his heart. Although the people had elected Archer, Austin, and Wharton to act as their representatives to the United States, some accused Austin of going there in the midst of danger to "eat fine dinners and drink wine." After all the things he had done for Texas to be accused to unjustly! He was quoted as being opposed to independence; he was accused of saving the life of Santa Anna; he was supposed to be mixed up in land speculation. People said that his secretary and intimate friend, Samuel Williams, needed him to protect land speculators when Austin heard of the attack, he thought Williams had turned against him, and had made public all their confidences of the past years. Williams was in Louisiana when he heard of his supposed infidelity and wrote at once assuring Austin of his friendship and loyalty. Austin wrote at once for him to come home where he was needed.

Sam Houston had been nominated as the people's favorite. A hero after the battle of San Jacinto, where ever he went he had the admiration of all. He was a personal friend of President Jackson; so he had influence in getting Texas annexed to the Union.

Austin was rather indifferent to the overwhelming election of Houston. He was in ill health, he was lonely, and the charges made against him in the campaign left scars that were never to heal.

"The prosperity of Texas has been the object of my labors, the idol of my existence. It has assumed the character of a religion, and the guidance of my thoughts and actions for fifteen years," Austin said. No greater tribute could be paid to Austin than to say that he fulfilled his every ambition for the State, and spent a lifetime of service for it.

The memory of "the father of Texas" will not be forgotten when the State observes in 1936 the Centennial of its achievement of independence.

SURVEY SAYS ROOSEVELT TO BE RE-ELECTED

Wellesly, Mass., May 20.—The Roger W. Babson statistical organization today announced that a survey just completed indicated that President Roosevelt would be re-elected in 1936, but that nearly half the persons questioned said they had lost faith in the new deal.

The study "shows that President Roosevelt continues to hold his strong personal popularity among the electorate. At the same time, however, the new deal has suffered further losses in confidence in the last year."

"While many believe a third party ticket to be in the field," the announcement added, "the big majority have no fear of its influence on the 1936 results."

HOUSE COMMITTEE OKEHS CENTENNIAL

Washington, May 24.—Without objection, the house foreign affairs committee today joined a senate committee in sending to the floor for passage a resolution authorizing a $3,000,000 appropriation for the 1936 Centennial celebration in Texas.

Texas senators and representatives, successful in every effort they have made thus far to obtain support for the exposition, planned to seek quick action by the full senate and house but there was no indication when that could be accomplished.

The committee made one major and several minor changes in the proposed legislation in executive session today, selecting Vice President Garner—Texas' highest-ranking member of congress—a member of the commission which will directly handle the appropriations. The original resolution named Secretaries Hull, Roper, and Wallace.

Mrs. Emma Coate, who recently celebrated her birthday, has lived in her native village of North Curry, England, for 104 years.

Mrs. C. M. Crawford Entertains.

"Ye graduates we invite to our abode—on Saturday night. Seven thirty is the hour; Moon Hotel—the bower" were the attractive invitations sent to twenty-five guests by Mrs. C. M. Crawford in honor of Ernestine Chitwood and Mary Elizabeth Hearn of Waco.

Beautiful ferns and spring flowers decorated the party rooms where bunco, treasure hunt, and marshmallow games were played. In games of bunco, Ruth Rutherford and Martha Ann Powell won prizes.

Refreshments of ice cream and angel food squares were served to the guests.

FROM MISS MARTIN'S NOTEBOOK

Balanced meals are being served from the garden and pantry shelf of Mrs. T. N. Grubb, co-operator in the Ireland Home Demonstration Club. She has canned 289 pints of food since January 1, 1935. She served the following Sunday:

- Fresh corn
- Vegetable salad
- Stewed buttered onions
- Fried chicken
- Cream gravy
- Home made rolls
- Berry pie.

Chinese cabbage which resembles celery to some extent in appearance has been grown successfully by Mrs. Faye Franks, pantry demonstrator of the Mountain Home Demonstration Club. This cabbage can be shredded and used raw or cooked as ordinary cabbage.

Mt. Zion Club

"You should have two serving of fruits a day," said Miss Gladys Martin, County Home Demonstration Agent to the Mt. Zion Club Tuesday, May 21, at the Mt. Zion school house.

The two servings of fruits should consist of one-half cup of tomatoes or citrus, at least three times per week for each person.

Such canning problems as, "Why do beets turn white?" were discussed and the following answer was disclosed. Too old, too great a change in temperature. Put hot water or vinegar on hot beets and cold on cold.

Members present were Mesdames May Brasher, Grace Young, Jeff Young, Callie Bell and one visitor, Miss Gladys Martin.

The Club will meet Tuesday, June 4, at the school house, and will be glad for all to come.

MRS. I. W. MILNER PASSES AWAY AT HOME

Funeral services were held from the Baptist church at Turnersville Sunday afternoon, May 26, at 2:30 o'clock, for Mrs. I. W. Milner, age 88, who died at her home there early Sunday morning, following an illness of only a week's duration.

Rev. Loper, pastor of the Baptist Church at O'Donnell, conducted the funeral rites, which was attended by a large number of friends and relatives of the family. Rev. Byers, pastor of the Clifton Baptist church, assisted in the last rites at the grave.

Before Mrs. Milner's marriage she was Miss Nancy Jones. She was born in Alabama in 1847. While still a child she moved with her parents to East Texas, where she later married Mr. I. W. Milner. Some years later they moved to Coryell County and settled near Turnersville. Mr. Milner preceded her in death thirty-four years ago. Mrs. Milner had been a faithful and loyal member of the Baptist church for seventy-two years.

She is survived by two sons and two daughters as follows: Joe Milner of Turnersville and John Milner of Gatesville; Mrs. Claude Buster and Mrs. Wiley Mangum. She is also survived by one brother, John Jones of Lexington.

Pall bearers were Duane Hobbin, Leonard Milner, Johnnie Milner, Douglas Hollingsworth, Granville Mangum and Hildreth Mangum.

"SWIMMING BUFFALO"

His mother, Mrs. Buffalo, told him, "now, don't go near the water." He did. His carcass has been washed by hundreds of Texas storms and floods. He's been covered up at times, and the creek changes its course toward the sea, and here he comes to view, again in the torid Texas sun.

Consequently, Royce Davis of the Davis Ranch near Coryell Church community found his sun bleached and rain-washed head in a creek half buried in the mud.

Mr. Davis did not state what he would do with this buffalo's head, but it will probably find its last resting place in some museum, where future generations (of children, not buffaloes), will view with awe and admiration, one of the near extinct animals that were the original Americans and didn't have to come over on the Mayflower.

CHAPTER V
WHAT HAS HAPPENED

When Chick Thompson's wife dies in childbirth, Chick is left with the care of little Poochy, his child. His wife's father obtains a court order for possession of Poochy, but Chick steals the baby and makes his getaway. He returns to the carnival, in which he had owned a puppet show, two years later. His pal, Fingers, is with him. Daisy, a girl who has always loved Chick, is overjoyed when he returns. When a Children Society's investigator is barely stalled through a ruse, Chick becomes nervous. Daisy, anxious to marry Chick, tells him of the investigator's words that Poochy can't be taken away if Chick has a wife. Chick immediately sets out to find a suitable mother for Poochy. Daisy is heartbroken.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Chick went on his date. He went, but he didn't get very far, for Helen Holbrook proved to be the wife of one Dr. Taylor, and, therefore, could be of no use to Poochy as a mother. Disgruntled, and more than a little disillusioned, Chick returned to his small apartment.
 "Oh, Daisy!" There was no answer to Chick's call. "Daisy!" Chick ran quickly through the apartment. No doubt about it—Daisy was gone! He walked back into the living room, a vast vacuum of loneliness enveloping him. Suddenly, he thought of Poochy's room. He opened the door quickly, silently. There was Fingers, slumbering near Poochy's crib. At least, the baby wasn't left alone! Chick grabbed Fingers' shoulder. Fingers woke with a start. When they were out in the living room, Chick spoke. "Where's Daisy?" His tone was low. No sense waking Poochy. "Phfft!" said Fingers. "Gone bye-bye!"
 "Cut the comedy. Where'd she go?"
 "Search me. She phoned for me to come over and mind the kid. When I got here she was all packed. Said she had a wire from her folks and had to leave for Florida right away."
 "Florida! Her folks are up in Seattle."
 "That's what I thought. But I was too tired to argue with her. Say, how'd you make out with that dame?"
 "What dame?"
 "The one from the incubator."
 "Oh, her? She's a phoney."
 "Looked like a 'natural' to me."
 Chick talked fast. "Yeah. That's what I thought 'til I got to talking to her. They all look great till you come to sizin' 'em up. So Daisy left me flat, huh? That means she's leavin' the act, too."
 "I guess so."
 "Well, that's just dandy. What I should have expected. I suppose, you can't trust 'em. Any of 'em! Now I gotta start breakin' in another girl." Chick started to pace the room. "I don't know what kick she had comin'! I gave her a swell berth, didn't I? I let her take care of Poochy, didn't I? Gee whiz, I did everything for her. That's the thanks I get for it."
 "Yeah," said Fingers, "that's a woman for you."
 "Whadda you know about it? Go on home. Whadda you hangin' around here for?"
 Fingers shrugged and started for the door. "Night, Chick."
 "Night," Chick mumbled, then, "Fingers—"
 Fingers stopped in the doorway. "Thanks for comin' over. Good-night, kid." Chick turned and walked slowly towards Poochy's room.
 When the sun rose the next morning, it seemed no different than other suns. Yet it must have been. Chick would have sworn to that! In the first place, another investigator from the Children's Society came to the carnival looking for Poochy. But Chick had been forewarned. He grabbed Poochy and ran, Fingers following. If the investigator hadn't come they wouldn't have landed in that restaurant. If they hadn't landed in that restaurant, they wouldn't have seen the truck passing with the sign on it about the baby contest and the $500 prize. If Chick hadn't seen the sign, he wouldn't have had an idea. If Chick hadn't had an idea—well—

"It's a cinch!" Chick was enthusiastic. "A lead pipe cinch! Listen—the Children's Society wanna take him away. Why? Cause they think he's being neglected. But they gotta prove it, see? Now, how they gonna get up in court and say the world's most perfect baby is neglected? It don't make sense, see? They wouldn't have a leg to stand on."
 "But suppose you don't win? asked Fingers.
 Chick looked up. "What do you mean—don't win? How can I miss? All they gotta do is take one look at Poochy—and the contest is over."

"Yeah, I know. But suppose 'somethin' happens and you don't win."
 "If we don't, then the whole thing must be a frame-up." He crossed the room. "Look at the float I got."
 Fingers was skeptical. "Don't looks so hot to me."
 "No! That's cause you ain't got any imagination. Wait'll I get it all fixed up with flowers an' things."
 "Poochy oughta be dolled up, too," insisted Fingers. "It's a shame Daisy ain't here. She'd know what to do."
 "And I don't, huh?"
 "Yeah, I guess you do—but Daisy could—I forgot to tell you, Dick. I found out where she is."
 "Who cares? A moment later Chick asked, "Where is she?"
 "I was talkin' to Mac yesterday. He says she left town."
 "She has? Where'd she go?"
 "I don't know. Mac just said she left town—and ain't comin' back."
 "Thought you said you knew where she is!"
 "I wish I did. I'd like to see Daisy again."

"Oh, you would, huh? Well, you can have her. I'm gonna be too busy with the contest. We gotta win it, Fingers. We can't afford to have nothin' go wrong."
 "Oh, you'll win it all right."
 "You bet we will. Can't you picture Poochy and me marchin' along in the parade. I can just hear everybody sayin', 'My, My—what a remarkable child!' It's a pushover, Fingers—a pushover."
 Poochy might—might with reservations—have had a chance. Only he picked the wrong time to play games. While the judge was examining him, Poochy pulled his beard. The judge was hurt, physically and morally. A beard-pulling child—of all things!

The announcer's voice boomed over the amplifiers. "Each judge will write the name of the baby he has selected, on a piece of paper which he will then seal in one of these small envelopes." He held up the envelope for the crowd to see, then placed it on the table in front of him. He stopped, for a man was dashing up to the judge's stand to talk to him. The man was Fingers. "Hey, listen," Fingers jabbered, "the man up there—on account of every once in a while—you wanna wait—the noise of the plane is no good." He pointed in back of the announcer. "He told me to come." The announcer turned. As he did, Fingers' deft digits soon acquired the small bundle of votes, and another small duplicate bundle substituted. Into Fingers' pocket went the real votes. "They keep coming and coming. I rushed down—in case they can't hear—so I said sure, I'll go. What'll I tell him?"
 The announcer's lower jaw hung low. "What the devil are you talking about?"

Fingers pointed into the air. "He thought maybe that the noise"—
 "What noise? I'm not bothered by any noise. Who sent you, anyway?"
 "The man. I'll tell him no noise. I'll tell him it's all right. I'll tell him you said it."
 Fingers dashed off quickly. The announcer shrugged. Maybe he was wrong. He turned to the package of votes and proceeded to open it. "Here we go, ladies and gentlemen," came the bellowing voice. "In a few moments some little baby is going to become famous. Makes me feel like being young again." As he opened each package, the expression on his face became more intense. But there was nothing to do about it. He spoke into the "mike" again. "Well, here it is, ladies and gentleman. The votes were divided four to one. The one vote went to that very lovely child, No. 16, Carolyn Henderson. The other four votes—and the winner of the contest—No. 14, Poochy Crawford." The announcer called still louder. "Poochy Crawford—No. 14. Well, isn't he here? No. 14—Poochy Crawford!"
 Chick was electrified into action. "Yeah! Yeah! Here I am!" He dashed up to the Judges' stand. "Here I am! I mean, here he is. No. 14—Poochy Crawford."
 The announcer's lips were set in a thin line. "Congratulations, Mr. Crawford. Will you say a few words into the radio?"
 "Yeah, sure."
 Chick would have been immensely pleased if he could have seen the delight written on Daisy's face when the decision was announced. Of course, Daisy was among the spectators. Wasn't Poochy concerned?

UNITED TEXAS DRYS DRAFT BIG CAMPAIGN
 Dallas, May 24.—The United Texas Drys tonight announced plans for an army of 6,000 speakers to cover the state in opposition to legalization of liquor in the election Aug. 24. The announcement was made at the closing session of the organization's state-wide convention here.

 W. N. Wiggins, convention secretary, said the speaking tours would start as soon as county organizations could be set up. He added that county set-ups would be perfected at mass meetings within 30 days. He said youth would be enlisted through a state-wide oratorical contest expected to bring 3,000 young people into the speaking campaign in addition to 3,000 adult speakers.

 Dr. Truett and Dr. Boaz will form a speaking team which will cover all major cities, Wiggins said, with the first meeting probably to be held at Southern Methodist University stadium here soon.

BANKHEAD ACT EXTENSION IN 1936 AGREED

Washington, May 24.—Extension of the Bankhead compulsory cotton production control act through 1936 as approved today by President Roosevelt and congressional agriculture leaders.

Congressional members said the extension was agreed upon on condition 12 cent a pound loans would be made on this year's cotton, but the president, at his press conference later in the day, said this subject was not discussed.

Chairman Smith (D-SC) of the senate agriculture committee, announced he would offer the extension plan as an amendment to the agriculture adjustment amendments.

FARMING OUTLOOK BEST IN 5 YEARS, MYERS SAYS

Houston.—The outlook for agriculture is the best in five years, William T. Myers, governor of the Federal farm administration said Tuesday. The Nation's farmers are making a real comeback, Myers observed. "Cotton made the first comeback. Next came grain and now live stock and poultry."

 "The government removed the surplus from the market last year, and this year hogs, beef and poultry and all farm products will bring a good price. They will be produced in greater quantity."
 Collections by the farm credit administration are holding up well, Myers reported.

THE MIND ON THE JOB

The prosperity of a community depends very much on the success of its business concerns in pleasing people. And in order to please people, there must not merely be enterprise and judgment on the part of business managers, but there must be an intelligent determination on the part of the employes to make the concerns for which they are working successful.

If you were to interview the managers of retail stores in most towns, they would tell you about various troubles encountered in finding competent salespeople. They would speak of many applicants who had been tried out and who failed to make good. These unsuccessful ones could not keep their minds on the job.

They were interested mostly in the fun they were going to have after they quit work. If allowed the use of the telephone, they would constantly be conversing with their boy and girl friends about their dates.

Every job is a problem. In a retail store particularly, there is an unlimited chance for anyone to expand his usefulness. He can make the store's service more attractive to old customers. He can attract new ones. The chance for such development should be an extremely interesting thing to any ambitious young man or woman.

We have in the local stores many salespeople of just that type. We need still more of them. In so far as the employes of business concerns show that spirit, they create a future for themselves.—Waco News-Tribune.

FIRE IS NEVER A TEA PARTY

According to news reports from New York City, firemen there recently attended a $75,000 tea party.

They responded to an early morning alarm and found flames engulfing a five-story warehouse stocked with tea. With characteristic skill, they attacked the fire, using several hose streams. As the water heated in the flames and filtered down through the packages, a fine brew of tea ran out into the gutter.

Firemen will tell you, however, that there never was a fire that could be considered a "tea party." Fires bring hard work, danger—death.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters reports that thousands of people lose their lives in fires annually, while the property loss runs into hundreds of millions of dollars.

This loss directly concerns everyone—fire may strike anywhere without warning, unless proper precautions are taken. Check over your property today. Look for fire hazards in connection with the chimney, the furnace or stove, the heating pipes, hot ashes, rubbish and papers, paint or oil-soaked rags, and electric wiring and appliances. Check up on careless habits that invite fire—especially in connection with matches and smoking materials. Train children to be careful. Substitute safe habits for your old careless ones.

Remember—a fire is never a "tea party."

President Roosevelt wants the NRA extended for two years by Congress. But he recently told a Senator that he would not oppose even a ten-months' extension.

Result: The Senate Finance Committee has approved a draft of a resolution which, in the words of one commentator, "offered an emasculated Blue Eagle less than ten months to flutter to its grave."

The resolution would extend NRA to April 1, 1936, and would draw its teeth by eliminating all regulation of intrastate business, and all price-fixing, with the exception of mineral resource industries.

A sheet of parchment nearly three feet square was required for the wedding certificate of the Duke of Kent and Princess Marina.

Military parades, fireworks and illuminations marked Latvia's recent celebration of the sixteenth year of her declaration of independence.

SOME THINGS THE CCC ARE DOING

By Young W. Lee

There is soon to be a CCC Camp located in Coryell county. The primary object is to conserve the soil by terracing.

By terracing the farms we not only prevent soil erosion but we prevent the rush of water to nearby streams, thereby lessening the danger of overflows which often are disastrous to property and human life as well.

The CCC first began the conservation of forests, which means that our forests will be re-established, where run off water will be retarded, there by reducing flood dangers. Not only that, but by growing our lumber nearer home we reduce freight rates and give employment to people in the lumber industry which was fast being reduced.

But let's see further, by forests conservation we conserve bird and animal life; birds, by having nesting places will grow in numbers to war upon insects which destroy crops. Big game hunting will, within a few years, be again in our forests. Streams will be clear, fish will thrive, wet meadows will not be drained to lower the water table and rob vegetation of needed moisture. Not only is the government repaid as shown above by the protection of its citizens and property, but experimental improvement cuttings in Indiana State Park forest have shown a net profit of sixteen to twenty-two dollars per acre. Even the conservation may be considered an infant industry because it has proved to be a success in a financial way.

The above is some of the primary objects of the conservation camps program but the greatest accomplishment of all was the conservation of the character of the young men of our nation, many of whom had tramped for days, anxious and willing to work, seeking in vain for something to do, but by force of circumstances over which they had no control, were being forced toward a life of crime.

But by the establishment of the CCC Camps they were taken from a slough of despondency and lifted to plane of hope for their moral and physical welfare and, faith in their country and its government.

I say all honor to the founders and workmen of the CCC Camps. Future generations will look upon their work and give them equal honors with our forefathers who fought for our political freedom, and justly so for these men are fighting for our physical existence as a nation.

The life of the queen bee has been known to extend over seven years.

HOW TO KEEP FROM GROWING OLD

Always race with locomotives to crossings. Engineers like it; it breaks the monotony of their jobs.

Always pass the car ahead on curves or turns. Don't use horns, it may unnerve the fellow and cause him to turn out too far.

Demand half the road—the middle half. Insist on your rights.

Always speed; it shows them you are a man of pep even tho an amateur driver.

Never stop, look or listen at railroad crossings. It consumes time.

Always lock you brakes when skidding. It makes the job more artistic.

In sloppy weather drive close to pedestrians. Dry cleaners appreciate this.

Never look around when you back up; there is never anything behind you.

Drive confidently, just as tho there were not eighteen million other cars in service.

Thursday night the Firemen defeated the Independent crew, 18-12. Sonny Hair, diminutive Independent hurler, pitched on even terms with Carter Ray, smokeater pitcher for a couple of innings but weakened in the third and the Firemen rallied to defeat the Independents.

The Conoco club defeated the Bachelors on that night 9-0 by forfeit.

Friday night the Firemen again defeated the Independents 12-4. Summers, stalwart Independent ace, blew-up and was replaced by Sonny Hair, who could make a fair hurler, but lacks endurance. It seems as if Carter Ray is having some trouble with the twelve inch ball. Ray was considered among the best hurlers in the League when playing with the 14-inch ball, but isn't doing so well with the small pill.

The Oilers won their second game of the week from the Round Table Friday night by a forfeit. We understand the Manager of the Bachelors, David Franks, has resigned. Franks has worked hard with his boys in an effort to get them out to play but it seems the Bachelors wish to "Tom Cat" in preference to playing ball. The Oilers are certainly getting a lot of practice by winning their games by forfeit, and when the time does come for them to play, it appears they will be plenty hard to stop. Many more of these forfeits, and we'll start doping the Oilers to win by a "forfeit."

Tonight the Oilers meet the Firemen in the first game, and will give the smokeaters one of their best games of the year. If we were wagering, we would take the Oilers for the second time this season.

In the second game the Bachelors are doped to lose to the Independent crew by a narrow margin.

There are still two games to be made up. Wednesday, tomorrow night, the games of May 17 will be played. In the first game the Independent team is to play the Bachelors, and will probably defeat the Round Table club. In the second game the Oilers play the Firemen. The Oilers are doped to drop this game to the Firemen, however, it will be no set-up.

Thursday night, May 30, the Firemen are pitted against the Bachelors, and will lick the Round Table to a fare-you-well. In the second game the Conoco team meets the Independent aggregation. The Oilers are doped to defeat the Independents by a small margin.

did well at bat, getting a triple and driving in two runs.

If you will notice the teams standing below, some teams have not played as many games as others. It is not our duty to decide when the games are to be played nor when a team is in or out of the league. Managers are to refer to the Arbitrary Committee for this information.

Jonesboro won 7-0 from the Training School, and we have no report on the Plainview-Ireland game.

Liberty won from Osage 14-8, while Hubbard defeated the strong Mound team 9-4. Simons, Hubbard hurler, played a good game, allowing Mound to only 6 hits, while his aggregation piled up ten.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO IN A CASE LIKE THIS?

A man comes to your door. You answer his knock, keeping the safety-latch on the door. You don't know him, and he can't identify himself as a representative of one of the established companies you've come to know and trust. He's selling something you've never heard of.

QUESTION:
Would you open the door?

ANSWER:
No. Not if you're like most of the women who keep house and buy things for themselves and their families in this community.

REASON:
Experience has taught them that the greatest danger in admitting strangers is the danger of being sold something without a reputation.

RESULT:
Women, who know that a value is as much a matter of "right to exchange" and "right to demand a refund" and "known reputation" as it is a matter of dollars and cents, buy through the ads in the Coryell County News. They know they get double protection when they do.
