Many Attractions Draw People Wed.; Trades Day; Circus

"Lock up the house, we're goin' to town!" That's going to be the words on the tongues of—well, you guess, your guess will be as good as ours—people next Wednesday morning, as they prepare to "go to Gatesville" for Trades Day, and what is going to prove better, the circus.

With the blare of bands and the tooting of the calliope, memories will be circulating thru our minds as to just when did a circus come to Gatesville. We're going to be kids again and look back several years, when the real thrill of our lives were made happy with the announcement of the arrival of a circus.

Animals will be there, lions, leopards, hyenas, bears, pumas, birds of paradise, elephants, tigers, and the monkey family also—and America's most beautiful horses. It's a traveling university of natural history, according to reports.

As a prelude to the circus proper, a beautiful spectacular pageant is present featuring a Fiesta of Old Mexico which is headed by dainty Prima Donna, Miss Delores Gomez.

Other features will be Capt. Wm. Woods with his wild animals, Miss Eva Huntley with her elephants; Mr. Fred Lenord and his Kentucky thoroughbreds, clowns galore; the flying Tetteberry's, the Orton Family of wrist artists, Miss Teto Matsumono, Japanese artist, Miss Maudie Bailey, Queen of the Air, who is the original girl on the flying trapeeze, and many other outstanding acts and performers.

Yes sir, we'll all be there with the bells on!

KNOWLEDGE COMES TO THE FARM

Good farm cooperative organizations perform many valuable services for their members aside from their basic business of buying and selling commodities.

Not the least of these services might be classed as education. Cooperative executives must keep in constant touch with a wide variety of national and international problems which, though they are seemingly divorced from agriculture's most direct problems, influence the welfare of every farmer. Tariffs, embargoes, currency standards, changes in the money system, taxation—these may appear to be far away from the plow and scythe, but their relation to farming is comparable to that of the moon to the tides.

As a result, cooperatives have made steady and successful efforts to interest their members in these diverse issues. They are discussed in cooperative publications. They are often the topic of speeches made by cooperative leaders. The consequence of that is to bring the farm fireside a far more thorough, sound and conclusive knowledge of the great world problems than the farmer ever possessed in the past. That is the kind of progress that really means something—and that is worthwhile and permanent.

MOTHER SEILS GONE HOME

Emma Friederika Seils, nee Lengefeld, was born July 4th, 1863, in Tuengeda near Gotha Germany. In the twentieth year of her life she accepted Christ as her personal Saviour to whom she was faithful unto death. She was baptized and joined the Baptist church in Kassel, Germany, and since coming here, she was a faithful member of the German Bethel church. In 1888 she was united in the holy bonds of matrimony with Mr. August Apel who was well known here before his passing into the great beyond. After having been a widow for nine years, sister Seils entered again into wedlock with Mr. H. F. Seils who preceded her in death after four years of sojourning together.

Grandma Seils had not been really well for many years but approximately one year ago she began to fail seriously and grew weaker until on Nov. 7, 1935 her spirit took its flight to the maker thereof. Five of nine children born to her are Willie, Albert and Richard Apel, Mrs. Gus Koch, all of Texas and a daughter in California. These together with four sisters and four brothers also 17 grandchildren and 1 great grandchild mourn her passing. She will be missed by all her loved ones, her friends and the whole church. As long as Grandma Seils was at all able she never missed a service. Her prayers were a real talking to God and God's word was food for her soul which she enjoyed. Interment was made in the Hemmeline Cemetery and the burial service was conducted by her pastor, W. H. Puenning.

Glass, wood, stone, cardboard, bronze, pewter, iron, platinum, zinc, in addition to gold and silver have been used for making money.

Flat School News

At a recent chapel hour the school chose a pep squad leader and sponsor. Bernice Morgan was chosen leader. She is to appoint her helpers. Mrs. Lila Robinson was elected sponsor of the pep squad. Yellow jackets was the name given our athletic organizations. We feel like with the material we have and some practice, we'll be strong competition for some one.

Lack of practice was given the cause of our defeat from Pearl Friday. We expect, after more practice, to win from them.

Miss Euna Roberson spent the week end with home folks in Bruceville.

Eighth Grade News

The 8th grade met October 25 for the purpose of organizing their class. The following officers were elected; Lois Browning, president; Leola Webb, vice-president; Violet Cross, secretary; Betty Palmer, reporter. Mrs. Cleo Huckabee, sponsor. Program committee, Elizabeth Homan, Beth Donaldson and Dorothy Whigham.

The class is to meet once a month and on Friday.

Two projects, one to refinish and beautify the 8th grade room and one to add books to the library, were adopted. It is our desire to complete both projects at an early date.

J. L. MOORE

J. L. (Luther) Moore was born February 28th, 1879. He departed this life November 3, 1935, at three-thirty p. m. at a hospital in Waco. Mr. Moore was converted into young manhood and united with the Cave Creek Baptist Church where he held his membership when the end came.

Funeral services were held at the Turnersville Baptist Church conducted by Rev. W. T. Jackson and this writer. Interment was made in the Turnersville Cemetery in the presence of a host of friends and relatives.

He leaves to mourn his going his companion and the following children; John of Borger, J. L. Jr. of Longview, Clyde of Kilgore, Mrs. Ethel Hollingsworth of Turnersville, Nellie Faye and Addie Mae Moore also of Turnersville, his father, four brothers and four sisters.

His mother and small son preceded him in death several years ago. Everything in medical skill and human hands could was done, but God saw fit to take him to a better home where there is no more pains, no more tears and sorrow, but all is joy and peace. In the passing of Luther Moore, Coryell County has lost one of its best citizens. He was always ready and willing to help those that were in trouble. The weather was never to cold or the night to dark for him to lend a helping hand. "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord, Yea and from henceforth sayeth spirit they shall rest from their labors and their works shall follow them."

Oh, how hard it is to give him up but we know he is at rest with our Lord. To those who are grief stricken just look to Jesus for strength and comfort in this sad hour.

In the secret of his presence may we hide from day to day. Through beset with many trials and afflictions came our way. He has promised to deliver from the wilds of evils snare. From the noise from strife and darkness, he will hear his children's prayer.

Thou canst with eyes behold him,

He will make thy heart rejoice,

If through all trial and sorrow, Thou hast made the Lord thy choice,

Then no evil can befall thee, Trust in God and him alone, Angels in their arms will hold you,

Take you safely to the throne.

Written by his friend and neighbor and one who loved him. Rev. G. L. Derrick.

TOOK ALMOST A YEAR TO FINISH 1936 "MELODY"

Six months of extensive preparation, including weeks of dance rehearsals, lengthy research for magic sets, designing of dresses and gowns by Adrian, a complete Broadway dress rehearsal for the penthouse number and four months of filming was necessary at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios for their most ambitious musical, "Broadway Melody of 1936," which opens tomorrow at the Palace Theatre.

The modernized Manhattan penthouse, the setting for one of the five elaborate dance ensembles, is the largest ever built at that studio for a single musical sequence.

The furniture for the scene was controlled by springs and operated by a board similar in many respects to a piano. A slight touch on one of the keys caused a grand piano to rise to the level of the floor within five seconds. Other keys brought the same results with tables, chairs, fountains and lounges. By reversing the pressure of the keys the floor could be bare in a flash.

Stage talent from Broadway

the toasts of Continental capitals, radio sensations from coast-to-coast chains and screen luminaries from Hollywood have been merged to form the all-star cast headed by Jack Benny and including Una Merkel, Sid Silvers, June Knight, Robert Taylor, Eleanor Powell, Frances Langford, Nick Long, Jr., Vilma, and Buddy Ebsen, Harry Stockwell, Shirley Ross and Robert Wildhack.

Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed, famous for their song hits in the first "Melody" and other musicals, have written five special numbers for the John W. Considine, Jr., production, which includes "I've Got a Feelin' You're Foolin'," "On a Sunday Afternoon," "Broadway Rhythm," "You Are My Lucky Star" and "Sing Before Breakfast."

Dave Gould, creator of last year's dance sensations, "The Continental" and "The Carioca," has surpassed himself with his new "Melody" dance routines and ensembles, according to those who viewed the production.

Roy Del Ruth, considered by critics to be Hollywood's ace musical megaphonist, directed the M-G-M musical.

GATESVILLE, TEXAS, FRIDAY, NOV. 15, 1935

NUMBER 94

LETTER FROM SENATOR POAGE

Austin, Nov. 12.—Only two days remain of the Session, and it is still impossible to know just what in the final round-up will have been accomplished. The Senate has acted on all of the major items before us and will probably clean up all minor items this afternoon, but this will still leave the salary bill, the drivers' license bill, the liquor bill and the tax bill in conference committees, which may not report until the last night of the session.

Last night the Senate, after one of the most hectic sessions in recent years, passed a tax bill containing both a selective sales tax and graduated income tax, as a substitute for the so-called omnibus tax bill sent to us by the House of Representatives a week or ten days ago. The Senate had put in several days of hard work on the house bill, and had spent most of the day yesterday in perfecting the measure, but last night it went off on a new policy and completely abandoned the measures we had worked on during the earlier part of the session.

As sent to the Senate the house bill levied special taxes on a great many industries and occupations. The Senate State Affairs Committee amended the bill by reducing many of these taxes, and most of the Senate amendments in the floor simply carried this policy further. Several of us tried to increase the tax levied by this bill on natural gas, but failed. We did, however, succeed in putting a proviso in the bill which would have subjected notes and mortgages to taxation. I have always felt that the holder of an indebtedness on a piece of property should pay his share of the taxes, and have in the past introduced bills to accomplish this result. I sent up the amendment yesterday for this purpose and secured its adoption.

Later in the evening, however, we came to the question of substituting an entirely new policy of taxation, and I submitted my natural resource tax, which would, if adopted, have resulted in the abandonment of the entire State ad valorem tax, except 7 cents for Confederate pensions, and would have produced almost five million dollars additional money for the school fund, and around fifteen million dollars for old age pensions, as well as to have replaced the ad valorem levies lost to the school fund and the general revenue.

As I have previously explained, this would have passed the burden of taxation on to the consumers of natural resources, and at least 90 per cent of these consumers live outside of this State. The bill was, however, powerfully opposed by those interests that have become wealthy exploiting our natural resources without paying any appreciable tax to the State. Those and a few other powerful interests have long successfully attempted to eliminate themselves from and substantial tax burden, and they have recently hit upon the scheme of passing all of the additional burdens of government, including the cost of the old age pensions, on to those least able to pay, in the form of a sales tax. It was, therefore, little surprise that my natural resource bill was defeated by a vote of 11 to 19.

Immediately after the defeat of the natural resource bill, Senator Sanderford offered a general sales tax, which was defeated by a vote of 6 to 24.

Senator Small then offered what he calls a selective gross receipts tax, but which he stated on the floor was nothing but a sales tax, and which in fact contained an express provision written into the bill requiring all merchants to pass the tax on to the consumer. He sought to sugar-coat his proposal by providing a number of exemptions but everyone knows that, had it not been for the passage later in the evening of the income tax, he would have been able in conference committee to spread his sales tax to almost all items and then to have told House and Senate that we could take that or nothing. A number of us joined in an effort to increase the exemptions in his bill, and met with some success. However, his substitute was finally put to vote and received a tie of 14 ayes and 14 nays, with one present not voting. The Lieutenant Governor then voted in favor of the sales tax and its proponents sought to place the previous question on the whole tax measure, but failed.

After a few minor amendments Senator Burns sent up an amendment which added to the tax measures then pending a complete rate income tax on all incomes in excess of $1,000.00 for singles persons and $2,000. for married persons. I think that, as a matter of sound permanent policy, the State should leave the field of income taxes to the Federal Government, but if this State is going to attempt to levy a sales tax, which is essentially a gross income tax on the income of all citizens of limited means, then I think that we certainly should, in fairness, levy an income tax which will tax the income of the more fortunate classes. I, therefore, voted for the income tax.

After the income tax was adopted, a number of the members who had been very active for a sales tax, and who have always opposed any burden on wealth, immediately lost interest in the measure. The bill, as amended, was finally adopted.

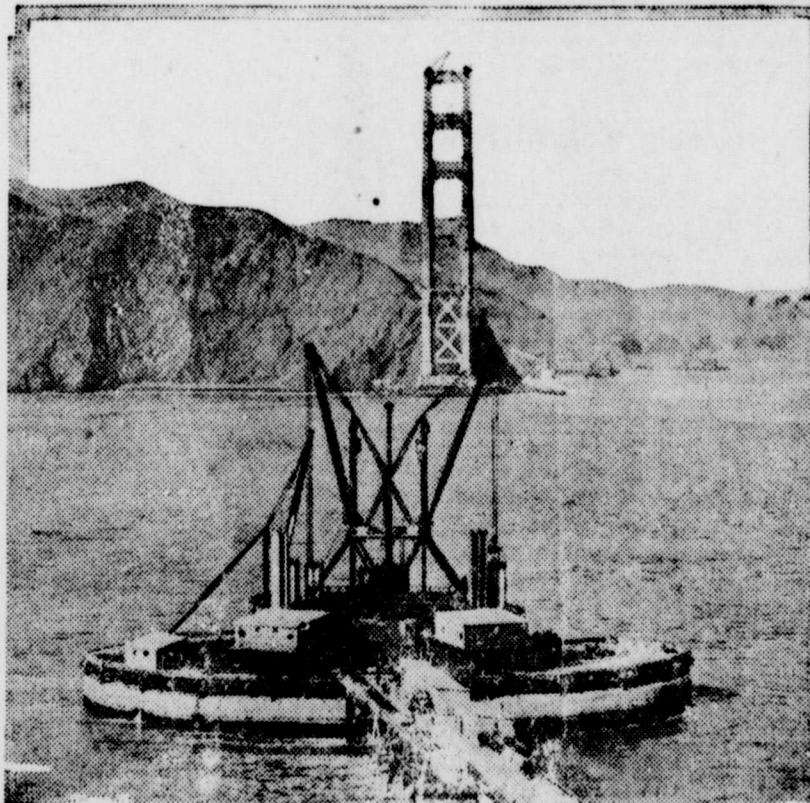

I voted against it because I do not believe that we should levy a sales tax in this state, but it is a much more equitable measure than the plan originally proposed by the sales tax people. In fact, they did not get an opportunity to enact the kind of burdensome tax they had hoped to, and they did find that the interests they were

GONZALES OPENS CENTENNIAL YEAR

Historic Gonzales Sunday closed a six-day celebration that was opened November 5 with a salute from a replica of the brass cannon which on October 2, 1835, roared forth the opening shot of the war for independence. A mile long parade of colorful pageantry was witnessed by more than 30,000 persons, including state dignitaries and many persons prominent in civic and official life of Texas and the Southwest. Pictured top above is a float entered in the parade from San Antonio, representing an early day sewing bee. In the center is reproduced the challenging "Come and Take It" flag carried into the battle by the colonists, and the cannon. Below is an entry in the "Run Away Scrape" section of the parade. The historical observance opened at Gonzales will be continued through the year in celebrations in San Antonio, Houston, Fort Worth and other Texas cities, and in the magnificent exposition to be opened in Dallas next June.

Golden Gate Bridge Rapidly Rising

A new and spectacular landmark has commenced to take form at San Francisco's harbor entrance. It is the south tower of the Golden Gate bridge that, with its twin on the Marin side of the Golden Gate, will support the world's greatest suspension span. Already the first sections of tower steel, some of the units of which weigh 70 tons, have been erected and approximately 1,500 tons of fabricated material are on the loading platform on the south pier fender in readiness to be erected. Photograph shows the south tower of the Golden Gate bridge. In the distance can be seen the north tower on the Marin side.

JAPAN marches on—into Chinese territory. Emperor Hirohito's military chieftains want to make China's five northern provinces into a separate state, Manchukuo fashion, because tax-ridden peasants become Communists and disturb the Japanese in their exploitation of Chinese natural resources and wealth.

The Chinese have long dreaded this step, since North China includes its richest territory and many important cities, such as Peiping and Tientsin, but have been expecting such a move since the establishment in 1933 of the puppet empire of Manchukuo is the former province of Manchuria.

Since 1894 Japan has brought 600,000 square miles of Chinese territory under its dominion. In that year the Japs declared war on China and took Korea, later renamed Chosen, a peninsula of 85,000 square miles. The peninsula of Liaotung, valuable as the gateway to the rich province of Manchuria, and the island of Taiwan, east of Fukien province, of 13,000 square miles were also ceded to the Nippones. Then, in 1932-33, you remember, the vast province of Manchuria, consisting of about 500,000 square miles, was conquered and established as an independent empire under Japanese tutelage. Henry Pu Yi, former emperor of Chinese, was made first emperor of Manchukuo.

Apparently the appetite of the Nipponese war lords was only whetted with this slice of Chinese pie, for North China is in the process of absorption, as stated above. As reported before in this column, war department reports from the Far East indicate that the Japs are carrying out a comprehensive plan by which North China, Eastern Siberia, South China, the Philippines and the Dutch East Indies would be incorporated into the Japanese Empire. China can offer no resistance and in ten years the Japs can take the Philippines, as Uncle Sam will withdraw at that date. Britain would probably fight for the Dutch East Indies and a lively scrap with the Russians must be had before Siberia will go over.

The nations of the west will, before long, be confronted with a "Keep Out! No Foreigners Allowed" sign in China, where British and American investments total half a billion dollars. Great Britain and France, the other great power with extensive holdings in the Far East, are apparently unwilling to dispute Japan's claims to supremacy and the United States does not intend to go to war to protect their inter- (Continued on last page.)

Purmel School News

School began Monday, October 21, and is now in the third week.

The industrial classes are organized and have their program worked out. Both the boys and girls are showing more interest than has been shown in several years. The community is very proud of its new building. The students are going to show their appreciation for it by making higher grades.

There are twenty-three enrolled in the sixth and seventh grades, and everyone seems interested in his work.

The two grades have been having contests in arithmetic. So for the seventh grade has been victorious.

The sixth grade has just received its Texas History work books. They are very anxious to begin work on them.

The third, fourth, and fifth grade arithmetic classes have been practicing addition, subtraction, and multiplication. Each class runs races to see who can get the most answers right. Wrong answers are not counted. So for Sybil Snider has been the fastest in the third grade. Charlotte Bertrand is ahead in the fourth grade. Kathleen Platt, Herbert Adams and Harold Fletcher have been having a close race in the fifth grade, but Kathleen has been a little ahead most of the time. All of the others in each class are trying to catch the leaders and are getting better and better. They hope to race the higher grades soon.

This is the first year the third grade has ever studied geography. Everyone in the class likes it fine. The fourth and fifth grade boys and girls like their new geography books, too. The fifth grade is beginning history and think it is very interesting. The fifth grade thinks the new spellers are much better than the old one, too.

The primary room has twenty enrolled, two new ones, Raymond and Lowell Buckner.

The first grade has almost completed their charts and will soon be ready for books.

They are all working hard and planning for Thanksgiving.

We are hoping to organize our rhythm band in a few days.

OYSTERS ADD ZEST FLAVOR TO LIVING

Oysters always have been linked in the connoisseur's mind with good taste, good health, and good luck which, all summed up, equal good living.

The thought that oysters brought good luck, especially if eaten on the first day of the season, was so prevalent in England at one time that it inspired many jingles and rhymes. The belief may still be current in some quarters.

Oysters' good taste needs little recommendation; they are a world renowned delicacy, acclaimed by gourmands everywhere.

With the exception of fattening starch, oysters provide nearly everything that the body needs to maintain strength and vitality. Oysters are especially rich in the mineral elements, containing 20 minerals and among them are iron, copper and iodine which are essential to health. The oyster also has generous quantities of the vitamins.

...EVEN IF THEIR FOOT SIZE IS THE SAME

• We've discovered that most hosiery ills come from attempts to fit all feminine types in one leg size in stockings. And it just can't be done... even if the foot size is the same!

That's why we urge you... with unusual fervor... to try Belle-Sharmeer Stockings. These sheer beauties are individually proportioned for shorts, mediums, talls and plumps. Literally made to fit the width of your leg as well as its length and foot size!

A grand idea... and it works! No worries about wrinkled ankles, twisted seams, pulled-

M. E. Badgers Play Hornets Here Today, 3 P. M.

This afternoon at 3:00 p. m. local fans will be privileged to see a most interesting football game. A game that will produce practically every thrill that the grand old game can afford.

The M. E. Home Badgers making their first appearance on the local gridiron will offer as good a class "B" eleven as can be found in these parts. The Home lads being rather light have been forced to develop an offense rather than a defense and Coach Sterling Prince has succeeded admirably in his efforts to do so. The speedy and well trained Badgers toss the pigskin around with the utmost of ease and their play more resembles basketball and believing in the adage that "a good offense is the best defense," the Home boys will show local fandom some wide open football.

There is nothing that we can say about the Hornets' passing attack that hasn't been said and if given the ball enough the locals can match pass for pass with the Badgers and can play just as reckless if not as smooth as the visitors and the fan missing this contest will have no one but himself to blame.

The opening kick-off is scheduled for 3:00 o'clock and the admission will be 35 cents.

We are pleased to know that some are reading our "stuff" and received the following interesting data from Mrs. Tom Mears after she had read our "Football Sketch" in the Nov. 8 issue of the News. As was expected we were wrong on some points but was assured by Mrs. Mears, who, by the way, was basketball coach at one time in the local high school and a good one, that though the errors were quite few, the write up as a whole was fairly accurate. ### Locals Defeat Hamilton 12 to 6 On Gridiron of Mud and Water

On a field made to resemble a lake, by a down pour of rain about an hour before game time, the Gatesville Hornets proved to be the best mudsters and defeated the Hamilton Bulldogs in their Annual Armistice Day game 12-6.

The visitors started off as if to annihilate the locals. Hamilton received and making five first downs reached the pay off stripe on the last play of the initial quarter without losing possession of the ball. Elansit carried the oval on the touchdown play. A place kick for the extra point was blocked. On this touchdown drive the heavier Bulldog line carried the locals back on every play and the outlook was as gloomy as the weather.

The Hornets then took a short kick-off and started an offensive of their own. After one or two futile stabs at the line Hair made a first down on a wide sweep around his own right wing. Here the Bulldogs received a 15 yard penalty for slugging. A few plays later the visitors were set back to their one yard line on another 15 yard penalty, this time for roughing. After two smashes at the line failed to gain, Hair stepped back and dropped a pass to McDonald in the end zone for a touchdown. A pass for the extra point was incomplete.

A Hamilton back took the next kick off and raced 50 yards before he was hauled down on the Gatesville 35 yard stripe. The Bulldogs then made a first down which by the way, ended their offensive threats for the day. The half ended shortly afterward.

The second half was strictly a defensive struggle, the locals making two first downs and the Bulldogs none. Where in probably knows as much about football as any one in town and especially local football, and her comments along with the following data are appreciated.

"In 1920, the last year that Fred Prewitt coached, the local high school played ten games with the following scores. Gatesville 7, Lampasas 0; Gatesville 22, Clifton College 0; Gatesville 59, Hico 0; Gatesville 87, Hamilton 0; Gatesville 55, Reagan 0; Gatesville 83, Stephenville 0; Gatesville 28, Training School 0; Gatesville 13, McGregor 0; Gatesville 0, Comanche 42; Gatesville 6, Waco 58. Waco that year had one of her strongest teams and Comanche played a bunch of college players.

"The squad that year was made up of the following:

LOCAL FOOTBALL YARNS

By TRUMAN BLANTON
News' Sports Staff

A football game is a serious matter to the two teams who are engaged in combat but many things occur during the progress of a game that, though taken seriously at the time, are later seen to be rather humorous. While engaged recently in swapping yarns with ex-Hornets a few of these odd and unusual incidents were mentioned and listed below are a few of them.

In a game with Hamilton in 1926 "Sparky" Hord, playing center for Gatesville, scooped up a Bulldog fumble and was in the clear for a touchdown. At the 10 yard line Hord looked back to see how close his pursuers were and stumbled and fell being tackled at this point. Later in the game, he picked up another fumble near the side line and was headed for pay dirt. The water boy had left the bucket about a yard inside the playing field and "Sparky" ran over it, losing his balance and falling again being downed. The game ended in a 0-to-0 tie.

This same year against McGregor with the score tied at 7-7, this writer punted McGregor to a 9-7 win. With the ball resting on my own ten yard stripe, a kick was called. Facing a strong West wind, I caught the ball too high on my

Common Everyday COLDS

"Colds" are dangerous! Don't regard them lightly. According to government statistics, diseases of the breathing apparatus are responsible for more deaths than any other single cause, including cancer or heart disease. While respiratory diseases often start seriously, they are closely related to "colds" and in many instances are directly traceable to catching cold.

Municipalities have made great progress in stamping out typhoid fever, smallpox, diphtheria and other communicable diseases that once demanded their grim death toll. But America's Public Health Enemy Number One, the common cold germ, still rages rampant as a constant threat to the health and safety of our loved ones. Frequently "common colds" pave the way for such serious illnesses as pneumonia, bronchitis, influenza, tuberculosis and other serious respiratory diseases that result in so many deaths each winter.

Any sudden change in temperature as you go from a warm room into a cold one disturbs the heat-regulating apparatus of the body and makes it susceptible to the vicious attacks of "cold germs."

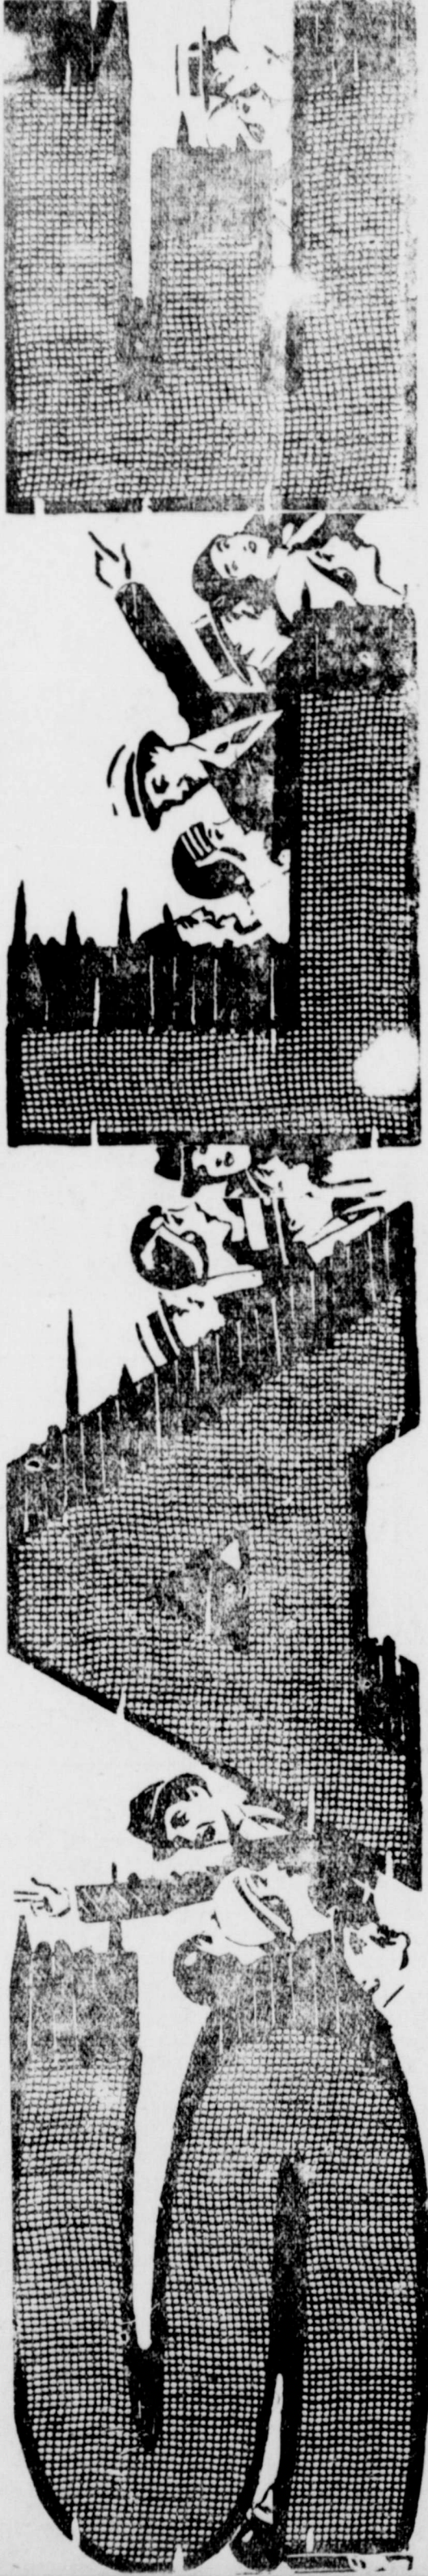

Your health and that of your family is your most valuable possession. Guard it this winter with proper ventilation and adequate heat in every room in the house.

Dusting the Covers of Texas History

Ashbel Smith, Secretary of State, paced in front of the desk at which President Anson Jones was sitting. The beauties of early Spring failed to catch the eyes of the two worried men. "The people are frantic in their hostility to the negotiation," Smith was saying. "What can be done?"

"The Treaty has been made; it will remain as it is until further arrangements can be made," President Jones answered firmly, for the fifth time.

A secret preliminary treaty with Mexico had been made by Elliot of England, in which Mexico recognized the independence of Texas. All the excitement in Texas had been occasioned by Jones' proclamation announcing that all hostilities had ceased with Mexico, and that negotiations were to be considered. Severe criticisms heaped on Jones did not daunt him, or cause him to retract a single statement he had made. He let the treaty remain as it was, and met Congress in June with a clear conscience.

The House and Senate immediately introduced and passed bills for the annexation of Texas to the Union. The bills were somewhat different, and neither house was willing to accept the bill of the other! A substitute bill, composed of parts of both the other two, was finally passed, and signed by President Jones.

Tactfully President Jones handled the representation problem. Fourteen delegates were from the twelve western counties; eleven from the five northern, thirteen from eight eastern, and twenty-three from the eleven middle. Not only was the West greatly pleased with the representation, but the other counties were also agreeable to the arrangement.

On the day appointed by the President, conventions in every county were held. The most able and experienced citizens were elected to attend the convention, but strangely enough, only two were native Texans. Others had come to Texas during the early part of the Republic.

Austin was crowded with delegates as early as the second day of July, though the convention was not to begin until the fourth. July the third almost every delegate had arrived; so a preliminary convention was held that afternoon. Gen. Thomas J. Rusk was nominated chairman of the committee to pass on the joint resolution of United States Congress. What would be the result?

How wonderful it must have been to be a member of that important group! To those who had such a part in the making of our history, tribute will be given at the Centennial celebrations in Texas next year, and new courage can be taken for the coming century, through recognition of their energy and strong will.

foot and the leather sailed out over the line some ten yards and then taking on the actions of a boomerang arched back over my head where I caught it behind the goal line for a McGregor safety. Did my face turn red!

Against Moody in 1928 the Hornets had just received a punt and put the ball in play on the Bearcats 35 yard line. On the first play Joe Johnson, on a wide sweep to the right, went over for a touchdown. The play was called back and one of the Hornets' ends penalized 5 yards for off-side. Taking the ball on the same play, Johnson raced 40 yards to again score. Again the play was brought back and one of the tackles drew a 5 yard penalty. For the third time Johnson, on the same play went across for the score. This time the other end received a 5 yard set back. With the ball on the 50 yard line the quarterback was determined that Johnson should score and again called his signal. But Joe was so completely exhausted by his three previous sprints that he asked to be relieved. Buster Gough then took the ball and on the same play carried it over for a touchdown that finally counted. Needless to say Gatesville won 45-10-0.

One of the most unusual games this writer ever witnessed as far as scores are concerned was played between Gatesville and Marlin in 1925. At the half the score stood 6-6 with all twelve points being the result of field goals by the drop kick method. Bodie Hunter the Gatesville quarter back, booted two as did the Marlin quarter back. Hunter barely missed another in the fading moments of the game that would have won the contest had it been good. Marlin won the game 15-13.

These are a few of the unusual happenings that the writer knows of and an effort will be made to publish more as the season progresses.

DEFEAT HAMILTON

by the Bulldogs. Despite the adverse weather conditions there was a fair crowd present and considering the conditions the game was excellent. The play of the Gatesville line in the second half was beautiful and the offensive efforts of Sonny Hair were almost unbelievable and it was largely thru his play that the Hornets emerged the victors. The play of the line of course was of a necessity very sluggish but McDonald and Clark, ends, played, heads-up and made the gains in their directions few and far between. The officiating was near perfect and helped greatly to make the game as interesting as it was. The officials were Jim Weatherby, referee; Bill Boyd, umpire; and Warren Weathers, head linesman. All are from Baylor.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

To San Francisco, in the early Gold Rush days, comes Mary Rutledge, of New York City, to marry—for his money—a rich prospector, Dan Morgan. Life has treated her badly, and she is determined to find comfort and security. She learns on arrival, however, that Morgan, having lost his fortune to a crooked gambler, Louis Chamalis, had killed himself, leaving her stranded and penniless. She sets out, therefore, for the Bella Donna gambling parlor, owned by Chamalis.

THE BELLA DONNA

Miss Rutledge stared out of the window of her room at the Bella Donna over the fog that was beginning to swirl and lift. Her valises were scattered around the room, some opened, with the clothes strewn around, as in a confused effort to unpack. The door opened, and she turned around, startled. It was Chamalis.

"I didn't hear you knock, sir," Miss Rutledge said coldly.

"I guess that's because I didn't knock."

Miss Rutledge turned away, and put her hand to her eyes. She recollected confusedly the evening before—the boisterous mad New Year's Eve at the Bella Donna.

"How do you feel?" Chamalis asked, not without solicitude.

She grimaced.

"I feel like New Year's morning, Mr. Chamalis."

Chamalis poured her a drink.

"Well," he said, "about that little discussion we had last night."

"Let me see," Miss Rutledge replied. "It was something about—marriage, wasn't it?"

Chamalis grinned.

"No, that wasn't me. Let's me and you understand each other. You ain't staying in San Francisco for to go into society. You're staying for gold, and you didn't bring a pick and shovel, either. Well, you'll be glad to hear you've staked a good claim. You and me go in cahoots."

Chamalis paused to admire her.

"Geel," he said. "You've got a pretty way of holding your head. Like a swan."

"Let's hear your business proposition," Miss Rutledge said sharply.

Chamalis snapped back into his businesslike mood.

"All right. Look . . . you had a lot of boys last night laying bags of gold at your feet. That wasn't their gold—that was mine. Only I don't have to dig and sweat to get it. Now, you work at a gambling table, see? You'll be such an attraction they'll crawl on their hands and knees across the Sierras to see you. And I'm offering you part of all you take in . . ."

"You mean—half?"

Chamalis grinned approvingly.

"Yeah—half," he said, with a shrug.

"But supposing I lose."

"You don't lose, unless you want to. That's the kind of little wheel it is."

"Was that the wheel Dan Morgan played?"

"The very same one."

Miss Rutledge turned away, with a gesture of pain. But she controlled herself before Chamalis could observe her emotion.

"Then it's settled," she said.

SWAN TAKES CHARGE

In this fashion did Miss Mary Rutledge, formerly of Gramercy Park, New York City, become the Swan, partner to Louis Chamalis, the most powerful figure on the Barbary Coast.

Even as Chamalis had predicted, men fought for the privilege of losing money at her table. Time passed, and her reputation spread along the whole Barbary Coast. But no man could boast that he had enjoyed her favors. As for Chamalis, he made no effort to conceal his passion for her. He showered her with diamonds, with imported gowns. Yet there were some things he could not purchase for her.

One morning they went shopping at the sea-front bazaar, and stopped at one of the make-shift trading stalls. It presented a startling picture of commerce in its crudest beginnings. Piled high were bales of clothing, valises, trunks, and other miscellaneous articles, in juxtaposition to produce, meats, and trays of fish. Signs read:

Hardware: One shovel $10.00
One axe 15.00
Box of nails 5.00

The Mayor of San Francisco passed with his wife, and Chamalis halted him.

"Good morning, Mr. Mayor. I want you to meet a friend of mine."

The Mayor was embarrassed.

"I'm sorry, sir," he said, "but I am with my wife."

Chamalis was livid with rage. He drew his gun.

"The two-faced coyote! The ungrateful hyena! I made him Mayor and I'll stop him being Mayor."

But Swan halted him.

"I'll get used to it," she said calmly, "and you will, too."

Nevertheless, Chamalis had an idea. Thereafter they followed the Mayor from stall to stall, overbidding him at every purchase, effectively preventing him from making a single purchase. Finally, only the fish counter was left.

"Do you want the fish, too?" the tradesman asked.

"No," Chamalis said, brutally. "Throw the fish to the Mayor's wife . . . she looks hungry."

But all of Chamalis's generosity fell on arid soil. Swan accepted his gifts lightheartedly, and gave nothing in return. Chamalis was in despair.

"Ain't there anything on your mind but gowns and diamonds and gold?" he pleaded. "Don't I mean something to you, too?"

Swan smiled sweetly.

"You mean a great deal, Louis. You mean more diamonds and gowns and gold."

Nor could Chamalis's obviously sincere pleadings draw anything from her but mockery.

Swan would shrug her shoulders.

"What would you like me to do? Look at you and swoon with love?"

"Yes," bellowed Chamalis, beside himself. "That's what I want."

Swan burst into laughter, which was cut short when Chamalis suddenly slapped her across the face.

Frightened by what he had done, Chamalis sought to apologize, but Swan was relentless. She made a sweep of the finery around her, the precious things Chamalis had bought.

"Send these things back!" she cried. "I don't want them!"

"I paid fifteen thousand dollars for them," Chamalis pleaded.

Swan laughed bitterly.

"I've just paid for them, too, and I've paid too much."

Thus matters stood between them when an incident occurred, little regarded at the time, which was to precipitate a crisis in their affairs.

NO VULGARITY PERMITTED

Sawbuck MacTavish, a prospector who had just struck rich dirt, stumbled roaring drunk into the Bella Donna, followed by his partner, Sandy, more sober and more cautious. Unheeding Sandy's plea, MacTavish threw his whole fortune upon the turn of the wheel—and lost. The keeper Sandy, however, had kept his eyes open.

"Come outside," he said to his partner. "I want to talk to you."

But MacTavish was still "high."

"I don't want to hear no scolding. I lost to the prettiest pair of blue eyes I ever seen. Come on, Swan, let's go somewhere and celebrate."

And he lurched toward Swan, grabbing her.

Instantly Knuckles, the bouncer, swung into action, bringing a gun butt down with sickening thud against MacTavish's skull. MacTavish fell prone to the floor.

The players, mildly amused, hardly interrupted their game.

"You should of taken his hat or first," one of them yelled hilariously.

"He asked for it, gentlemen," Chamalis observed, and pointed to a sign which read:

"NO VULGARITY PERMITTED AT THIS TABLE."

"I guess he didn't read the sign."

Sandy picked up his unconscious partner, and with a slow, significant look at Chamalis, began to carry him into the street. But nothing had escaped Chamalis's keen eye. He ordered Knuckles to follow.

Scarcely had Sandy reached the street when Knuckles caught up with him.

"Wait a minute, partner," he said ominously. "Where you going?"

Sandy turned.

"I saw how she ran that wheel," he cried. "Crooked! I'm going to tell the whole town."

He turned and started away, still carrying his partner, his back to Knuckles, who reached for his gun. A Chinaman, carrying a laundry basket, came between them, but seeing the revolver, dropped frightened on his face. Knuckles fired. Sandy lurched forward, dropping his burden. He reached for his gun, but before he could get it out, slumped forward—dead.

PLEASE THE MEN WITH THESE COLD WEATHER
DISHERS

You'll make a hit with the men, both young and old, if you keep them well supplied with these typical, old-fashioned winter dishes. They're the kind that Grandma served her "men folks," and they still hold favor with the men of today.

BAKED VEAL CUTLET

Two large carrots, 2 medium sized onions, 1 lb. sliced veal cutlet, 1½ teaspoons salt, large pinch of pepper, 4 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, 1 cup water.

Place carrots which have been sliced lengthwise on bottom of baking dish. Over this place sliced onions. Dredge the meat with salt and pepper and half of the flour. After browning in skillet, place in casserole on top of vegetables. Add water, milk and the rest of the flour in the skillet in which meat has been browned. Pour this over meat and vegetables in casserole. In a slow oven, 300 F., bake for 1½ hours.

KIDNEY BEAN RUM POT

One and one-half tablespoons rum, one-fourth cup brown sugar, 3 cups red kidney beans, 1 lb. ham shank, one-fourth lb. salt pork, 2 onions, 1 carrot, 1 bay leaf, pinch of thyme, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one-fourth teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon chopped garlic.

After soaking the beans for two hours, drain them, cover with water and cook with the ham shank, salt pork and seasonings for 2 hours, at the end of which time add the diced vegetables and cook for another hour. Add the brown sugar and rum just before removing from fire. The gravy should be thick, but do not allow the beans to become mushy.

SPLIT PEA SOUP

One-half teaspoon pepper, 2 stalks celery, 1 onion, 1 cup dried split peas, 1 quart ham broth, or 1 quart water and small ham bone.

Soak the peas for several hours and drain. Cook in the ham broth with the onion, celery and pepper until soft. If a raw ham bone is used cook it in water for an hour before the other ingredients are added. When the peas are soft, mash them through a sieve. Serve with toasted croutons.

PECAN CAKE

One pound pecans, sliced, three-fourth cup butter, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 2 cups sugar, 6 eggs, 1 grated nutmeg, 1½ pounds raisins, juice of 1 orange, 4 cups flour, three-fourths teaspoon salt, one-third cup evaporated milk.

Cream the butter and sugar. Fold in the yolks and whites of eggs which have been beaten separately. Sift flour, baking powder, nutmeg and salt. Add alternately to this mixture milk and orange juice. Then add nuts and raisins. Pour into large greased pan which has been lined with wax paper. Bake slowly in a moderate oven, 325 F., for 2½ to 3 hours.

THE PIQUANT CRANBERRY

Somehow Thanksgiving menus never seem complete without cranberries served in some form. And that they are versatile the following recipes prove without doubt.

JELLIED CRANBERRIES

Pick over and wash three cups of cranberries. Boil 2 cups of sugar and 1 cup of water for 5 minutes. Add cranberries and cook without stirring until the skins break and the berries become clear. Turn into a mold or bowl to cool.

CRANBERRY CONSERVE

Two lbs. cranberries, 4 oranges, 4 cups water, 5½ cups sugar, ½ bottle fruit pectin, 1 cup raisins, one-fourth cup walnuts.

Bring cranberries, orange juice, water and grated rind to a boil, cover, simmer 10 minutes. Add sugar and bring to a full rolling boil. Boil hard 1 minute. Remove from fire, add pectin, nuts and raisins. Stir well, pour into hot glasses and seal.

CRANBERRY PIE

Three cups cranberries, 2 tablespoons flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, 1 one-third cups sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 3 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons orange juice.

Mix ingredients and pour into an unbaked pie shell. Cover with strips of pastry and bake in a moderate oven for 40 minutes.

CRANBERRY SHERBET

One one-half cups cranberry juice (sweetened), one-fourth cup lemon juice, 1 cup water, 1 one-third cups sweetened condensed milk.

Blend cranberry juice, lemon juice and cold water. Add sweetened condensed milk and blend thoroughly. Freeze in a two-quart freezer. Pack in ice and salt for an hour or more before freezing.

SENATOR POAGE—

I am hopeful that by the time this letter is printed, the House of Representatives may have instructed its committee to strike out the sales tax, and that the pensions may be financed by an income and gross receipts tax, and that, in the course of time the State will yet turn to a natural resource tax as the basis of its revenue.

The liquor bill is in conference committee, and apparently will be finally passed in much the same form as it went through the Senate, prohibiting the sale of hard liquor by the drink, and leaving the sale of wine and beer as matters of local option.

The county officers' salary bill is also in a conference, and there has been very little indication of what would happen, as the committee has had scarcely any opportunity to meet, due to the continual sessions of the Senate, which lasted until 12:20 this morning, and will apparently last until late tonight.

The House finally acted on the drivers' license bill, and on yesterday, by a vote of 62 to 64, adopted a substitute for my bill, which substitute will have the effect of destroying the regulation that my bill contained. The matter will, of course go to a conference committee, but I am afraid we have a repetition of the history of past sessions and find the House refusing to accept any regulation.

W. R. Poage,
Senator District No. 13.

World Comment—

ests, so it looks like a clear bill of sale for Japan.

Here's something the Ethiopian war is doing for the U. S. Since the embargoes against Italian products went into effect, Uncle Sam has found new and ready markets for many of his surplus products. Within a few months our reciprocal trade with Sweden has boosted exports of American fruits and vegetables both canned and fresh to that country. Sweden's purchases here compete directly with Italian products. A Italian produce. In return, sharp with France by trade-maker No. 1 Cordell Hull while Mussolini is looking to the south.

France offers another market for our goods that will displace similar bargain is being made French traders will get larger quotas for wines and liquors that Italy would otherwise sell us.

Four months of the present fiscal year have elapsed and Uncle Sam has received only 47 cents for every dollar paid. The treasury reports that receipts through Oct. 31 amounted to $1,233,000,000 while expenditures were $2,627,000,000. Expenditures are running nearly $400,000,000 higher this year than in the initial four months of last fiscal year, which ended last June 30.

Treasury experts believe that receipts for the current fiscal year should total $3,700,000,000 or $700,000,000 less than had been estimated.

England is suspicious of France; France watches with a wary eye all British maneuvers in the current African crisis; Italy is at outs with both Britain and France. What an ideal setting for one Adolf Hitler, who only last spring was confronted with a solid front composed of these three nations, who were at that time determined to prevent Hitler from taking Austria or making war against Russia.

What is Hitler now thinking? We do not know what he is thinking and we do not know what his people are thinking. The German press is muzzled; it has only one voice and that is the voice of the dictator. And the dictator is the last man to tell us what the dictator really thinks.

As things are going now, the end of the Italian-Ethiopian war will find a disrupted Europe, filled with bitter resentments which will supersede the memories of the war and make Hitler's friendship the most powerful is the voice of the dictator. And even though Mussolini wins in Africa, the Italian people will have no stomach for another conflict against a more powerful foe to maintain the independence of weak Austria. The slow progress of the African war is exhausting Italian resources. All Italy is looking southward, not to the north toward Austria and Germany.

Should Hitler march into Austria Italy could hardly ask the aid of France or England, with which two countries she is now at sword's points. As one British writer remarked, Hitler is on velvet and is following the wise policy of making friends while preparing for war.
