MAYOR, ALDERMEN ANNOUNCE IN CAMPAIGN

Pipe Organ Purchased by First Methodists; To Be Installed Soon

Members of the First Methodist Church of this city, and those in authority, have purchased a pipe organ, which will be here Wednesday and installation will begin at once. Cost of this instrument is reputed at originally $6,300.00.

This organ is an all electric organ with two manuals and twenty-two octave stops and 419 speaking pipes. A campaign has been instituted to raise about $5,000.00 with which to finance this wonderful instrument and also to take care of some of the church indebtedness.

Rev. M. M. Chunn, pastor of the church, stated, "I have never seen anything received with such enthusiasm as the congregation has accepted this program to raise funds for the church debt and organ."

Fuller details and date of the opening will appear later.

We desire to thank the Court for the splendid charge with which we were introduced to our duties and to thank the various officers of the court for their thoughtful and efficient attention to us while we were in session. Our bailiffs were prompt and efficient and all peace officers co-operated with us to the fullest extent. The janitor was very kind in looking after our comfort and desires. BONUS FINALLY PASSED BY SENATE, MAKING IT A LAW

Ex-soldiers of the World War will be paid on June 15, under the "Baby Bond" plan, as was made a law by the Senate yesterday, voted 76 to 19 to override the chief executive's veto. The house had smashed it last week 324 to 61.

This will put the $2,491,000,000 bond-payment plan on the statute books, and President Roosevelt and his financial advisers will have the serious problem of finding funds to meet the new drain on the treasury.

One peculiar idiosyncrasy in connection with the newest law in the United States, is that Ex-Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, now a resident of Holland, celebrated his 77th birthday the same day.

CENTRAL TEXAS BAPTIST PASTORS MEET THIS WEEK IN WACO

An attendance of nearly 200 is expected at the Central Texas Baptist Pastors' retreat in Waco this week, starting Monday and lasting five days. Rev. Clarence Morton, pastor of the First Baptist Church of this City will be present at the meet a few days, and it is probable that several pastors in this county will be there during the five days.

Dr. B. O. Herring of Waco will conduct the Bible study, Rev. Jeff D. Ray of Fort Worth will have charge of homiletics, and Dr. Wallace Bassett of Dallas will give the Scripture Exposition.

With only the last week to pay the city poll tax which entitles citizens to vote in the city election, announcement has been received from friends of Mayor M. W. Lowrey, Alderman Ward 1, Lewis Holmes and Alderman Ward 2, Dr. J. H. Hamilton, that they have their hats in the ring for re-election as city fathers, thus reminding, that there is to be a city election here this spring.

Reports from the City Hall showed yesterday that only 211 had paid their city poll taxes, with no record of the exemptions.

In the county, state, national, 2365 had paid, with 80 exemptions. Also, some of the records had been sent to Copperas Cove and it is not known definitely how many were paid there.

Tax Assessor-Collector Culbertson said yesterday, that the full roll would amount to some 3500 to 4000 polls, so the job is only about half completed.

So far, very little interest has been manifested in the local city election, but in the county, state and national, the political pot has been stewing for at least a month, with candidates coming out with every conceivable panacea for the good of "the peopl." It's certainly going to be a delightful year and one long on oratory and short on efficiency and government, but if you're interested, very interesting, if not, very boring!

Presidential Ball Benefit Cripples

January 30, national day, or night, for the nation-wide Presidential Balls, or entertainments, the benefits to accrue to the Warm Springs Foundation for the prevention and retarding of infantile paralysis, goes unobserved here in Gatesville, as usual.

Insufficient interest is the cause of this insolence and indifference and, all after the President, thru the AAA and all other acts which he has sponsored, has done for county and city, this is most certainly ingratitude in the Nth degree. It's just what you get for doing favors for anyone.

Practically every other community in the state and nation will have some sort of celebration for the children, if nothing else, but not Coryell!

ALLRED JAYSEE SELECTED NATION'S FOREMOST YOUNG MAN

Governor James V. Allred, who is 36, tonight received the first annual award of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce to the young man considered the most outstanding in the nation during the preceding year. Allred received a gold key.

President Allen Whitefield, national president in his presentation message said: "One has been selected not only as the outstanding young man for 1935, in the judgment of our committee, but as a young man whom others of the same age group can present to the nation as representative of the finest young man in character and achievement."

Competition included the Key brothers, Algene and Fred of Meridian, who broke the world's endurance record for sustained airplane flight; J. C. Furnas, author of the outstanding article on highway safety entitled "And Sudden Death;" Barnett

Hodes, Chicago, youngest corporation council of any large Finishing up the civil docket last week, the January term of District Court started on the criminal docket yesterday morning, disposing of seven cases the first day.

The State of Texas vs. G. R. Williams, charged with swindling over $50.00. Judged guilty and sentenced to 2 years in the penitentiary.

The State of Texas vs. W. D. Payne, charged with operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated; tried before the court, the defendant pleading guilty and punishment assessed at 47 days in jail and prohibited from driving a car for six months.

The State of Texas vs. Otto Sullivan, charged with forgery and passing a forged instrument; jury waived, and punishment assessed at 2 years in the penitentiary.

The State of Texas vs. A. L. White Jr., charged with theft of an automobile; plea of guilty and verdict assessing his punishment at 2 years in the penitentiary.

The State of Texas vs. Phillip Pearson, charged with robbery with fire arms; plead guilty, jury waived, tried before court, and received not less than two or more than 10 years in the penitentiary.

The State of Texas vs. John Dossey, charged with operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated; verdict of guilty and 40 days in jail, and prohibited from driving a motor vehicle for two years.

The State of Texas vs. C. B. (Charlie) Fisher, charged with forgery and passing. Jury selected, defendant pleads guilty. Sentenced to three years in the penitentiary. Sentence suspended in accordance with the recommendation of the jury.

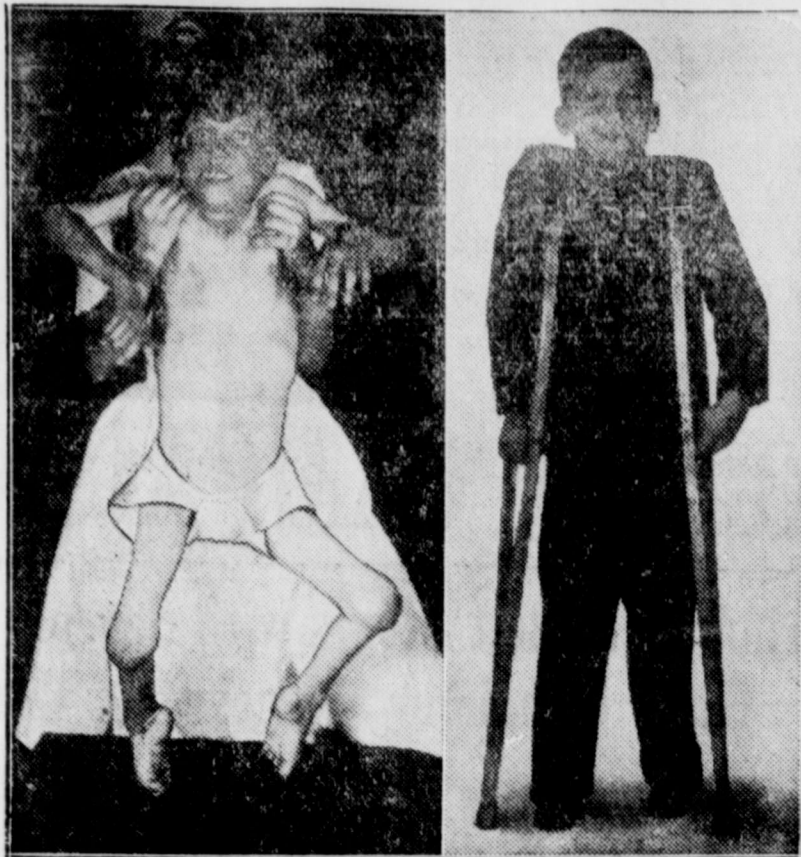

A number of other cases up, the charges "unlawfully selling intoxicating liquors," but these were dismissed on account of the offense being committed prior to the passage of the recent Texas Liquor Laws.

"NOBODY WINS!" LONELY BUCK STILL HERE FOR LAST ADV.

"For the first correct list, it's one dollar," that's the way last Tuesday's ad read, and, so far, it hasn't come in yet. This lonely dollar is still waiting for the right answer. Get out last Tuesday's paper and turn in a "Correct" list of the words, spelled correctly, of course.

A dual puzzle will be your meat, as the fourth, and last spelling adv. appears in today's paper, so, if you're very lucky, it might be $2.00 instead of $1.00. It's fun and educational—try it!

city, who made a record as organizer and author on tax questions, and many others.

Before and After Case of infantile paralysis handled at the Texas Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children.

Jazz music will be used for ammunition in the fight against the ravages of infantile paralysis, when in every city and town in the United States, a million people dance for the Birthday Ball of the President, January 30.

Texas, according to a report from the National Committee at Washington, D. C., on the Birthday Ball for the President, is leading the nation in its preparation for this war against disease.

To keep this top place, every community in the State must push its own dance to the utmost, says Col. Henry L.

Doherty, national chairman. The South is particularly interested in this humanitarian warfare this year, because, for the first time in history, 1935 showed an epidemic of the disease in this section.

According to agreement with President Roosevelt, every community keeps 70 cents out of each of the one dollar tickets to this biggest birthday in the world.

The only request that President Roosevelt makes is that all of the money raised at his birthday party be used directly for this same nation-wide fight to eradicate infantile paralysis.

Says Col. Doherty: "Despite the fresh financial ammunition given to combat the scourge, the 47 hospitals, less than one for every State in the Union, were inundated in a new torrent of ailing humanity flowing through their doors from the epidemic of 1935."

He says further that these hospitals are overcrowded and under-financed and need the support of the proceeds of the President's Birthday Ball as badly as does Warm Springs Foundation, Georgia, which institution will receive 30 per cent of the dollar for its scientific research work.

The 47 authentic, charitable children's hospitals are mentioned by the national chairman, the only one in Texas in that official list being the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children, located in Dallas.

This hospital has been in existence for the past 13 years, and during that time its staff has treated 22,000 children.

There is not a community in Texas but has sent from one to 25 of its suffering youngsters to this charitable hospital.

Because it is the only charity hospital for the treatment of children only, the Scottish Rite Hospital has been compelled to spend thousands of dollars to maintain its scientifically trained staff and give to all Texas children in need and in pain, the kind of treatment that deserves such national recognition as Col. Doherty has given it.

The President urges that all America enjoy these birthday parties of his, that the happier the dancers, the merrier the music, the more surely will the money realized grow into the vast amount that is so sorely needed to discover the cause and the preventive for this deadly disease and to eradicate it forever from among the children of the world.

A REAL TEACHER

Some day I am going to write the story of a certain Miss Brown, teacher, and the Four Corners School. More than one person of note in the literary field has asked me to do so, thus inflating my ego to the point of near bursting. Being pressed in this manner causes me to feel an obligation.

In case your curiosity is aroused, I will say here that Miss Brown was a person of extraordinary common sense. She was not a genius but as a teacher she was practical. Nor was her education above average. Let us say, instead, that she was an individual of personality. And so far as I could discern, that personality grew out of a real love of children and an intense loyalty to her job. Nothing more!

And I've wondered since if we shouldn't eliminate tests of learning and the like, and give more thought to the person who desires to teach. Certainly Miss Brown was successful beyond words, but not because of skill in the usual school methods. Although she possessed those skills, she was first of all a woman, one who relied upon an inner voice to direct her in leading children along the path of normal, wholesome everyday living.

SPECIAL NOTICE REGARDING COTTON CHECKS

Checks can be mailed out only to those who do not have any one interested in the checks with them. For instance if a landlord got a PARITY check all in his name and there is a tenant on this farm the check, according to the Contract, must be divided with the tenant in the same ratio as the crop was divided, therefore the proper papers must be fixed up in the County office.

The entire office personnel has been turned off and therefore it is practically impossible to handle all papers through the mail.

To those who are unable to come for their checks every effort will be put forth to get them to you as soon as new instructions come from headquarters.

To those who are in a position to come to the County Office for their checks may I urge you to do so at your earliest convenience.

Signed: County Agent, Guy Powell, Coryell County.

HOMEMAKERS BEGINNING TO REALIZE IT'S IMPORTANT TO BALANCE BUDGET

That the homemakers are beginning to realize how important it is for the family to have a well balanced budget, Mrs. J. D. Seales of Evant has shown great progress this past year. The following varieties of canned foods are found in her pantry: Peas, beans, sweet potatoes, Irish potatoes, tomatoes, soup, squash, okra and tomatoes, corn, pumpkin, cucumber pickles, beet pickles, corn relish, sandwich spread, mince-meat, pineapple, peaches, plums, berries, wild grape juice, wild plums, jams, jellies and preserves, giving a total of 612 containers.

Mrs. Seales plans to add English peas to her budget this year and she feels like it will be complete. In addition to the canned food she has 15 gallons of homemade lard, 400 pounds of cured meat and an estimate of $15.00 worth of homemade soap. She also sells cream and eggs which averages around $2.50 per week.

CONNALLY TO SEEK FUNDS FOR PERMANENT MARKERS

Washington, Jan. 13.—Senator Tom Connally, Democrat, Texas, has announced he would introduce an amendment to the Texas Centennial Act to authorize expenditure of federal funds on permanent markers and monuments.

The legislation enacted last summer appropriated $3,000,000 for federal participation in the 1936 Texas Centennial celebration, but limited its use to temporary structures which would revert to the government at the end of the exposition.

Connally's amendment would provide any permanent buildings or markers would become the property of the State of Texas. It was designed to permit monuments at such historic sites as the San Jacinto Battlefield.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE

James Buchanan, president of the Buchanan Motors Company, is in a quandary. His mind is filled with his coming wedding to Evelyn Fletcher, young debutante, intent on Jim's money, and his battles with his Board of Directors. After a long argument with his Board, he stalks out and walks aimlessly to the park, sitting on a bench partly occupied by a lovely young lady. They become friendly, and when she shows him an ad for a cook and butler, she inveigles him into helping her apply for the job as husband and wife—with Jim as butler, at Rossini Manor. Oddly enough, they get the job.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER II.

Curious as to just what station each held in life, Jim and Joan soon drew each other out. Jim admitted he was a Harvard graduate and quite an engineer. Joan admitted to a father who was a college professor before he died—his untimely death causing Joan to look for some means of sustenance. Thus, they learned as much about each other as each would admit. And, it wasn't a bad start. Friendships, love affairs and marriages have been started on less. It was no more than a face which launched a thousand ships, they say.

Like a prizefighter before his first big contest, Jim was tensely nervous as he waited for the guests to arrive. These were his first guests, and Jim wanted to receive them correctly. A butler should. He practiced, then practiced some more. Imagine his surprise when, as he opened the door and stood stiffly proper, some ten gentlemen, all in dinner clothes, but a trifle hard of face, entered. Such names as Flash, Swig, Pete, Steve, Mike and Chesty were banded around. At that, it was like Alumni Day in the State penitentiary.

After boisterous hellos to Rossini, whom they all addressed as "Chief," the mob sat down for dinner. Rossini, expansive as usual, stood up to address his guests.

"I told Flash," he nodded and smiled to his lieutenant, who sat alongside of him, "if I was going to go in for a big job, I wanted to surround myself with the cream. That's why you fellows are here."

Each one of the guests inflated accordingly.

Flash grimaced. "Some of them are only skimmed milk, Chief, but I did my best."

"You did pretty well—"

The conversation, dominated by Rossini, became much lower in tone. It was evidently conversation not meant for the ears of law-abiding citizens. Jim, serving the guests, could not but help overhear some of the conversation. His ears and his hair stood on end. It was a peculiar sensation—it was the first time his ears had ever stood on end.

Jim entered the kitchen. "I gather," said Jim as he walked over to Joan, "Mr. Rossini isn't one of our best people."

"Why? What have you heard?"

"Do you know this is the coldest May 10 since 1895. And I see by the papers that the Giants lost a double-header today."

"So you won't talk, eh?" Joan's eyes were wide.

Jim was serious now. "I'll say this much—I think we ought to get out of here."

"And go back to a park bench? You're a softhead!"

"What do you want us to do—embark on a life of crime?"

Joan shrugged. "It's not our apples! We merely say nothing, hear nothing, see nothing—until we get another job—unless you die of fright in the meantime."

Jim looked down at her. "I'm not worrying about myself—I'm thinking of you."

Joan softened. "I'm sorry—"

"Where is that guy?" It was the next day, and Mr. Rossini was in need of a drink. "James! James!"

Joan entered quickly. "I'm sorry, sir—but James is cleaning up the kitchen."

Rossini smiled, once again his expansive self. "That's all right. All we wanted was Scotch and soda."

"I'll get it, sir." Joan went back into the kitchen, and Rossini's eyes followed her all the way.

"Wonder why a dame like that falls for a butler?" Rossini exhaled his cigar smoke slowly. "The lucky stiff! I don't think I'm going to like that guy."

Flash leaned towards Rossini confidentially. "For my money—I wouldn't have either of them around here. If you ask me, Chief, I don't believe they're really servants. Did you notice her hands?"

"Why—her hands are very pretty."

Flash nodded. "Too pretty—for dishwater and brooms. If she has ever done housework before, I'm an embroidery designer."

Joan came in with the Scotch and soda on a tray. "Shall I mix them, sir?"

"Please."

Joan mixed the drinks, then left. Once again, Rossini's eyes half-closed speculatively as Joan's trim figure left the room.

"If she was your wife," said Flash, "would you sleep out on the porch?"

"No—why?" Rossini was surprised.

"Well—our James sleeps on the porch. The whole thing's not kosher, something's wrong."

Rossini's eyes narrowed. "How do you know all this?"

"I snooped around and saw it."

Rossini was disdainful. "Just a peeping Tom, eh?—I'm surprised you do a thing like that! I'm ashamed of you. If that's the way they want to live, that's their business. I don't want any more snooping, see!"

The following day Rossini did his best to present Joan with the slightest negligence she had ever seen. It was, said Mr. Rossini, a bonus.

"Like it?" asked Rossini.

"Of course I like it—it's beautiful! But I couldn't accept it."

"Why not?"

Joan was wide-eyed. "I'm afraid, sir, you don't know my husband."

"Maybe so," Rossini shrugged.

"But if he can't afford things like this for you, why should he deprive you of them?" Then, suddenly, "The two of you happy?"

"Yes sir—"

Rossini winked. "And he sleeps out on the porch."

"That's what he likes, sir."

"Then there's no accounting for tastes. Anyway—try it on—"

"What's the sense of that?"

"Because it was made for a pretty girl like you," Rossini held up the negligee for Joan to try on.

"I'm anxious to see you in it. You can slip it right on over your uniform."

"Well—there's no harm in that."

Joan slipped into the negligee. As she did so, Rossini held her tightly and kissed the back of her neck.

"Mr. Rossini—please!"

Rossini smiled a trifle too smoothly. "Why? I'm not hard to take."

He turned her around against her will until she faced him.

"Stop it—please!"

As is usually the way in such matters, friend husband appeared at the wrong moment—or is it the right moment? Jim's first impulse was to sail into Rossini. But any sailing Jim would have done would have meant Joan's job—and she needed that. Instead, he coughed discreetly.

"I beg pardon, sir."

Rossini swung around quickly. He tried nonchalance. "I was just trying to prevail upon your wife to take this little gift—in appreciation of her wonderful cooking."

"I noticed," said Jim bitingly, "how you were prevailing, sir. And you won't appreciate any more of my wife's cooking—because we're leaving at once."

No woman was worth Joan's wonderful culinary art. "Now, James," said Rossini placatingly, you don't understand. Does he, Joan?"

"I understand plenty." Jim turned to Joan. "Come on—before I punch this fellow on the nose."

Erosion's Terrific Destruction Shown In 2nd of Series

The problem of erosion is not new. This menace to our national agricultural welfare has been, and is, a never ceasing destructive agency moving on its way year after year with only an occasional opposition (until recently, at least) by some ambitious farmer who is determined to save his soil. The stark truth is that we have carelessly and indifferently permitted erosion of the nation's best farm lands to proceed with accelerated activity because of haphazard measures of land husbandry.

Man's activities in subduing the forest regions of eastern America, the prairies of the West, and finally the plains, valleys and inter-mountain regions beyond have proceeded along lines of reckless utilization. So vast were our original resources of land that no one was concerned with matters pertaining to any plan of conservation.

But now the nation has recognized, through the establishment of the Soil Conservation Service, the absolute necessity of a continuing battle against this process of land wastage if we are to avoid the ominous eventuality of becoming the world's outstanding country of subsoil farming with all the accruing and attendant evils of poverty, undernourishment, and declining social and economic values.

Thousands of farmers within the area of Region 4 of the Soil Conservation Service in the states of Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas, cultivating slopes stripped of the vitally important surface layers, have but the the slimmest opportunity of making a satisfactory living, whether prices are up or down. There are many—far too many—farmers eking a bare existence from depleted soils. They are housed in miserable dwellings and live pitifully inadequate lives. Their system of cultivating little plots of ground scattered between gullies and fields devastated by sheet washing can sustain but a bare living.

Land impoverishment by wind and water erosion is a farm problem that far outstrips any of the economic worries about which so much has been heard recently. The United States is enormously wealthy with respect to extent of land, but there is none too much good farm land. Most of the best soil is in cultivation and has been for some time. Part of this land was only moderately productive the day it was plundered of its virgin forest or broken out of the native sward of prairie and plains grasses.

Lands which were thoroughly protected through thousands of years by unbroken mantles of vegetation and had weathered to fine, mellow loams rich in vegetable matter and the elements of fertility, have been successively exposed to the dash of torrential rains and the sweep of havoc-playing winds.

The result of this man-induced devastation of the land has been so stupendous as to reduce and destroy the productivity of vast acreages.

According to figures compiled by the Soil Conservation Service following the national reconnaissance erosion survey in 1934, uncontrolled erosion has brought about the essential destruction of an area of formerly cultivated land exceeding the combined extent of the states of Illinois, Massachusetts and Connecticut, or the equivalent of 218,000 farms of 160 acres each. In addition accelerated washing of sloping fields has stripped from one-fourth to three-fourths of the productive topsoil from an additional 200,000,000 acres.

At least three billion tons of solid materials are washed from the fields and pastures of America every year. To load and haul away this incompressible bulk of farm soil would require a train of freight cars long enough to encircle the earth 37 times at the equator. More than 400,000,000 tons of solid matter are dumped into the Gulf of Mexico every year by the Mississippi River along with many more millions of tons of dissolved substances. These materials come from the farms of the Mississippi basin.

Soil losses from the Brazos River watershed alone reach the appalling figure of 104,250,000 tons annually. This loss refers to soil removed from its point of origin. Not all of it goes directly into the streams, but is temporarily lodged on lower slopes and part is deposited over productive bottom lands and in depressions en route to the streams. Thus the loss of soil from the cultivated land of the Brazos watershed, based on 6,748,324 acres, amounts to approximately 12.4 tons per acre each year.

The cost of erosion to the farmers and ranchers of the United States is conservatively estimated to be $400,000,000 annually, to say nothing of the stupendous damage to highways, railways and the silting of reservoirs, streams and harbors.

This appalling wastage is not merely continuing, it is speeding up with the removal of the absorptive topsoil. Over this erosion exposed material, which usually consists of impervious clay, rain water flows in volume of floods. Rich bottom lands are reduced in productivity or ruined outright by overwash of poor subsoil material and gravel swept from the hills.

YOU CAN'T GET AWAY WITH IT

NOTE: Fake accident racketeers are a threat to every honest business and every individual. Agencies of justice are bringing them to book and can continue to do so with your help. This is one of a series of articles describing tricks of racketeers—showing that these tricks do not work against organized business. Watch out for them yourself.

A Sock for Mother-in-Law

Before Doctor Samuel Harmon went to jail, in the days when his fake accident and fraudulent claim racket still looked like an easy way to make money, he had a henchman by the name of Pietro Trunio. Pietro complained one day that he had to support his wife's parents and they were a burdensome expense.

"Well," said the doctor slyly, "they could pay their way by having a little accident."

Pietro caught on. He suggested that his friend Vincent, a taxi driver, would help. Pietro instructed his parents-in-law in the art of accident faking, and an appointment was made with Vincent to be at a spot Sunday morning where the couple would cross the street on their way to church.

The couple were there at the appointed time and so was Pietro in his role of director, but no Vincent with his taxicab. He slept through the ringing of his alarm clock. The "accident" had to be started over again. An hour and a half later they were all there and the "accident" went off as scheduled. Vincent's fender just missed the old man and lady, he stopped his cab with screaming brakes, and the couple fell to the payment in simulated agony.

Then quickly they were bundled off to Dr. Harmon's office. That benevolent practitioner did a job of banging the old man to make him look like he had been hit by a cab.

"How about me? I have no bruises," cried the excited mother-in-law.

"Yes you have," said Pietro, giving her a straight jab to the face that broke her nose.

That was one time a man hit his wife's mother and got away with it. The mother-in-law's indignation was soothed by the assurance that her broken nose would be worth money to her. The pair sued the taxicab company and collected damages. Rather, Dr. Harmon collected. Very little reached the old people.

Dr. Harmon and his accomplices all thought they were getting away with it. But in the end, the relentless undercover work of the Index Bureau System maintained by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, trapped them. Dr. Harmon and the crooks and dupes who formed his fake accident ring were convicted and sent to the penitentiary.

Funeral Services Held Sat. Afternoon For Mrs. Fred B. Sterling

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon, January 25, at three o'clock at the First Methodist Church of this city for Mrs. Fred B. Sterling, who was found at her home in Dickenson, Thursday morning, January 23, a few minutes after 12 a. m., when her husband returned from work. Fumes from a bathroom gas heater caused the death. Rev. M. M. Chunn, pastor of the First Methodist Church of this city, conducted the services. Burial with a beautiful impressive service was made in the City Cemetery. The body rested at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Flentge until the burial hour.

Funeral services were held in Galveston at the home of Mr. Sterling's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Sterling. Rev. Bryant, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Galveston officiated. Music was furnished by the choir of the Church.

Born June 19, 1911 in Roschelle, Louise Hardin Sterling, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Hardin, endeared herself with all she came in contact. She moved with her parents to Fort Worth at the age of six. In 1926 she moved with her family to Gatesville, where she lived until the time of her marriage in 1933. She finished Gatesville High School in 1928. After one year in college at Texas Tech in Lubbock and three years at Southwestern University in Georgetown, she received her degree in 1933. After teaching school in Carol several months, she was married to Fred B. Sterling January 22, 1933. The same day of her death three years later. Several months ago in 1935, they moved to Dickenson where Mr. Sterling was a Humble Oil Company employee. She has been a member of the Methodist Church since the age of 10. One of the present day poets wrote beautifully of the death of the young, expressing the separation of earth's companions somewhat in this fashion, that "God loves the beautiful rosebuds and gathers them unto him to bloom in the gardens above," and this is eminently true in the death of Louise Sterling.

Possessing a radiant personality, and the gift of hospitality, she became the idol of those who claimed her friendship, both old and young. Her true Christian spirit expressed itself in her innate kindness, not only to her loved ones and friends, but to every living creature. Her life is an illustration of the line of the poet that, "it isn't how long one lives, but how well, that counts." Like Paul, she fought a good fight, she finished the course, she kept the faith. "To live in the hearts we leave behind is not to die." So the time to live in the hearts of those who knew and loved her.

Masses of beautiful flowers, fashioned into designs, banked the entire altar space and covered the casket wherein lay the form of the beautiful woman, so like a flower herself in the purity and serenity of a Christian sleep.

A legion of friends of the family and of Louise offer sympathy to all those who mourn the passing of her, whose death seemed so untimely. But all bow to the will of the Father, knowing that He doeth all things well.

She is survived by her husband, Fred B. Sterling, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Hardin of Austin and also a brother, Horace Hardin, of Austin.

Active pall bearers were: Billy McMordie, Marion Burleson, Harry Flentge, Eugene Alvis, Julio Lagarta of Baytown, and Bill Thomson.

Honorary pall bearers were: E. W. Jones, Rufus McKinney, D. D. McCoy, Roland Bone, Jack Wollard, David Franks and Charles Powell.

Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. John L. Sterling and two daughters, Bernice and Florence of Galveston, Mr. and Mrs. Julio Lagarta of Baytown, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Letherberry, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Price, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Price, Mrs. Grace Smith, Mr. John P. Waddill, grandfather of deceased, Vernon Waddill, Mrs. Oscar Rice and Mrs. Ida Cats, all of Rochelle; Mrs. Linnox Ligon of Austin, Miss Francis Tinsley of Southwestern University, who is president of the same sorority Mrs. Sterling was president of during her senior year at Southwestern. Also Felix B. Secrest and Jarrard Secrest, who attended Southwestern. Robbie Lou Gardner, Dorothy Hunter, Lois McDaniel, Maurine Hain, Lady Mildred Thomas and Mary Ruth Patterson, all of Fort Worth. Mr. and Mrs. W.

V. Waddill of Teague, Shields Norwood Sr. and Shields Norwood Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John Rogers and daughter, Nellie Pearl, Clyde Hall, Howard McShann and Mr. and Mrs. Otis Waddill, all of Brady. Mrs. R. H. Rogers of Rochelle, Mrs. Paschall Waddill and Orville Cottle of Placid.

BONUS ENACTMENT REST FOR GEORGE V ALLRED "MAN OF YEAR" HUEY MARCHES ON

THE PRESIDENT'S hand-penned veto of the immediate payment bonus bill was quickly overridden by the House Friday by an overwhelming vote of 324 to 61.

Mr. Roosevelt gave none of his present views on the bonus issue in his terse, 200-word veto message, beyond advising Senators and Representatives to look up his last disapproval of payment of the bonus. There was a change of only 2 votes in the dissenting column from 346 to 59 approval the lower chamber gave the Senate bill, providing for payment in $50 bonds, cashable on demand after June fifteen.

The Senate will debate and likely vote on the bill Monday, and by the time you read this the veterans' will be assured of their bonus, according to all Washington observers. Even Administration leaders in the Senate have announced their intention to vote for the measure and predict that it will go through by a big majority. Last week the Senate passed the bill by 74 to 16. Only 64 votes or a two-thirds majority are needed to secure enactment. It must be remembered that the three Senate leaders—Robinson of Arkansas, Byrnes of South Carolina, and Harrison of Mississippi—are up for re-election this year.

Three Texas representatives voted against overriding the President's veto: Fritz Lanham of Fort Worth, Hutton Summers of Dallas, and Milton West of Brownsville.

Last year the House overrode the chief executive's veto on the Patman inflationary bill by a vote of 189 to 131 but the President was sustained by the Senate.

The House bill, which was supplanted by the Senate proposal now being considered, was introduced by Representative Patman of Texas (whose home is at Texarkana) Vinson of Kentucky and McCormack of Massachusetts.

The Senate bill is sponsored by Senators Harrison of Mississippi, Byrnes of South Carolina, and Clark of Missouri, all Democrats, and Senator Steiwer of Oregon, a Republican.

Speed of action in the House was unchecked by the warning from Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., that the Federal Government will have to raise $11,300,000,000 between now and June 30, 1937.

The Supreme Court decision on the AAA left the Treasury owing $1,089,000,000 to farmers. Two hundred millions in impounded processing taxes were ordered returned to rice growers by the Court and many fear that 1 billion more collected from processors will have to be returned on order of the Court. One billion to three billions must be raised to meet the ever-present relief problem during the coming fiscal year, 5 billions for Treasury re-financing and, probably, 2 billions for the bonus.

Since the Revolutionary War, nearly 150 years ago, the Federal Government has paid out more than $17,000,000,000 in relief to veterans. Today the Treasury is still mailing checks to soldiers or dependents of five wars: the Mexican war, the Civil War, the Indian Wars, the Spanish-American War, and the World War. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935, the bill was $618,522,341.

GEORGE V will be taken to his last resting place at Windsor Castle today.

The funeral procession thru the streets of London from Westminster Hall to Paddington Station, for entainment to Windsor, will be a scene of somber splendor. King Edward VIII and many of the other crowned heads of Europe or their representatives will walk behind the gun carriage on which the body will rest.

The royal mourners will include the King and Queen of Norway, the Kings of Belgium, Rumania, Denmark and Bulgaria; Prince Paul, regent of Yugoslavia, and many Crown Princes and Princesses. President Albert Lebrun will represent France. The United States will be represented by Norman H. Davis, Ambassador-at-Large to Europe and head of the naval conference delegation.

Nearly one million Britons passed before the magnificent silver bier of the King, lying in state last week in Westminster Hall.

Twenty-six years ago Edward VII of Britain passed away. A glittering assemblage of European crowned heads attended the funeral. In the quarter of a century elapsing since that time only one ruler remains who has escaped the clutch of death or revolution. That is Haakon of Norway, brother-in-law of George V, who with his queen will attend the funeral today. What has happened to the others?

Alfonso of Spain and Wilhelm of Germany are now exiles from the kingdoms they formerly ruled.

Death has taken Frederic VIII of Denmark (1912), Franz Josef of Austria-Hungary (1916), Ferdinand of Rumania (1927), and Manoel of Portugal, who died in exile in 1932.

George of Greece (1913), Nicholas II of Russia (1919), Alexander of Yugoslavia (1934), were victims of assassins, and Albert of the Belgians fell to his death while mountain climbing, February 17, 1934.

Post-war history found republics on the increase until last year. Then George II of Greece was re-called from exile and placed on the throne. Austria has promised to re-call Otto of Hapsburg within the year and Hungary is eager to place a king on its empty throne. In France and Spain monarchists are active and hopeful.

GOV. JAMES V. ALLRED was the most outstanding young man in the United States during 1935 in the opinion of the National United States Junior Chamber of Commerce. In recognition of his selection for the notable honor, the Governor was presented with a diamond-studded, gold key at the annual banquet held at Houston last week.

The chief executive was lauded as being the youngest Governor of any State now in office. Allan Whitfield, president of the Chamber, listed the following achievements of the young Governor.

"Under his leadership in R You Ready?

ARE you ready for the oyster season? September is the month when these succulent bivalves are once more eaten with avidity all along our coasts. We have never met a real oyster lover who would admit that he had had enough oysters at any one sitting, and that is why we counsel an early start.

But you notice that we said "all along our coasts." Long standing custom dictates that those living close to the oyster beds should refrain from eating them during the hot summer months, and the oyster farmers are content with this arrangement both because it makes oysters an annual treat when the month with an R comes in, and because it is in winter that oysters are at their best.

Oysters Always Available

The people further inland, however, have the joke on their coastal cousins. They can go quietly on enjoying their oysters at any season of the year, oysters that have been gathered in winter and safely ensconced in tin cans which keep them just as good as at the moment when they are put in. Take for instance, this Oyster Stew: Scald three cups milk in a double boiler. Heat the oysters from a 5-ounce can to just below boiling, and add to scalded milk. Bind with one tablespoon butter and one tablespoon flour, rubbed together, season with one teaspoon salt and paprika, and last add one-fourth cup cream. Serve at once with oyster crackers. Serves four.

In Croustades and Pies

But oyster stew is not the only dish, by any means, that can be made with these delectable oysters. Try, for instance, these Oyster and Mushroom Croustades: Drain a 5-ounce can oysters and a 4-ounce can mushrooms. Make a sauce of two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour and the combined liquors from the oysters and mushrooms. Season to taste, add one slightly-beaten egg mixed with one-half cup cream, pour over the oysters and mushrooms and heat in a double boiler. Serve as an entrée in very tiny croustades or pour over tiny split baking powder biscuits. Serves eight.

Chicken and Oyster Pie: Make a sauce of two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, the oyster liquor from a 5-ounce can and one and a fourth cups thin cream or top milk. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Add the oysters, the contents of a 6-ounce can chicken and one-half cup cooked diced celery, and pour into individual ramekins. Cut rounds of toast large enough to cover tops, place one on top of each, and sprinkle with grated cheese. Place under broiler flame until cheese is melted and bubbly. Serves four.

In Maryland Style

Maryland is famous for its sea food and for its appreciation of delicate fish dishes concocted by its famous chefs. Here is one of the ways in which they serve oysters there.

Oysters a la Maryland: Brown one and a half tablespoons butter in a pan, add one and a half tablespoons flour, and brown again. Then add one and a half cups milk slowly, stirring until smooth. Add three teaspoons anchovy paste, one-half teaspoon salt and a few grains paprika. Scald the oysters from a 5-ounce can, arrange on buttered toast, and add thin liquor to the sauce. Add one slightly beaten egg yolk to the sauce, stir till hot and pour over the oysters. Makes four servings.

Texas has come momentous legislation such as an old-age pension law, licensing of automobile drivers. By a vigorous campaign against lawlessness this young man forced a clean-up of large-scale gamblers and law violators with a resulting substantial decrease in bank robberies in Texas in 1935."

THE NAME of Senator Huey P. Long, late "Kingfish" of Louisiana, was "vindicated" last week when his machine swept the State in the primary election. Every candidate on the Long slate was chosen by thumbing majorities.

Judge Richard Leche was elected Governor, defeating a bitter foe of the deceased Senator, Congressman Cleveland Dear. Governor O. K. Allen, kindly, gray-haired country merchant whom Long made chief executive, was chosen as successor of Long in his unfinished United States Senate term. House Speaker Allen Ellender was elected for the full six-year term and Huey's brother, Earl K. Long, was named Lieutenant Governor.

Thus all predictions that the Long machine would "break up" after the Senator's death proved false. Although the dictator is gone, the dictatorship is apparently destined to endure corruption at the polls were made by defeated candidates and Congressional investigation into the election may be made.

Though he is dead, the political spirit of Huey Pierce Long marches on.

SHOTS AT THE BASKET

By TED HARRIS
News' Sports Editor

Friday evening the local Hornets, displaying a somewhat better brand of basketball than they displayed against Clifton on Wednesday, defeated the Temple Junior College Leopards 23-to-18.

However the play of the local quint left a lot to be desired but it is hoped that the lack of practice last week, due to final exams, has been the reason for the Hornets' ragged play in their last two engagements. If there is not logical excuse for their poor showing against the Cubs of Clifton and the game last Friday, then the chances of repeating for County honors are rather dim. The big weakness displayed against Temple outside of their inability to hit the hoop was the poor passing and the undue amount of dribbling. Time and time again with teammates loose under the basket, the men advancing the ball down the court, missed their opportunities to score by foolish dribbling. A good dribbler is an asset to any team, but as a means of quick advancement of the ball, a dribble is the poorest way we know of, and any time a team persists in dribbling the minute they get their hands on the ball, then that team is destined to lose the first time they meet a quick breaking, fast passing opponent. There is not a man on the team that doesn't know that he shouldn't waste too much time with a dribble and there isn't a practice session that the coaches are not constantly yelling for more passing of the ball, and until the players realize what they are doing to the team as a whole by their dribbling their chances against any good club are nil. The team is blessed by one good dribbler in "Tooter" Hall and if there is to be any dribbling, let him do it.

The visitors presented a fair line up and though their offense wasn't so hot, they displayed a fair defense and more than a few of the Gatesville field goals were of the lucky variety.

Rodgers and Marek displayed nice ability in the handling of the ball while Madaley starred on the offense scoring 7 points.

For Gatesville, White played a fine all-around game and scored 5 points from his guard position. Hall played a good game but was off on his shooting form while Turner has a good offense scoring 9 points but his play otherwise was rather ragged and at times terrible.

As stated before if this is the kind of game Gatesville intends to play from here on then someone else will represent this county at the district meet.

The girls lost a heart-breaker to the Pearl Sextette by a score of 39-29 but the score does not indicate the closeness of the game. In fact, it appeared that the locals were on their way to victory up until the last quarter. Gatesville led 18-12 at the half and kept a lead until Rutherford, who had played a fine guard game, left the game via the foul route. This was the break Preston, the Dragons star forward, had been waiting for and she quickly found the range to force Pearl into the van and as the last few minutes went by, she increased this lead. Preston had done a fair job of scoring despite the fine guarding of Rutherford, and when the Gatesville star left the game, she ran wild and finished the game with 29 points to her credit. Mosely played a fine defensive game for the winners.

For Gatesville, Bates with 15 points, and Clemons with 12 played star roles while Sellers co-starred with Rutherford on the defense. We are looking forward to another game between these two fine teams.

In the third game of the evening, the CCC lads defeated the Pearl quint in a tight defensive game, 16-15.

Thornton, Sutton, and Whatley played leading roles for the camp team, while Keeton, Elam and Nabors were the shining lights for the losers.

GRAND JURY REPORTS—

It has been our regret that two of our members have found it necessary to be absent a part of the time because of sickness and it is our hope that those dear to the heart of W. J. Dube and B. A. Martin will recover with all speed.

We have investigated few serious violations of the law and desire to commend the citizens of Coryell County because they prove themselves as a whole to be law abiding. During our investigations we have received splendid co-operation from the citizens in reporting law violations and in answering promptly our summons.

We do feel, however, that this report should mention some violations that have come to our attention in order that the citizenship of the County may bend its efforts to their elimination.

We are informed that punch boards of various kinds and denominations are being operated over the county, and that they are clearly a violation of the Gaming Laws of the State of Texas. It is our feeling that some of our citizens may be operating these boards innocently, but that should the exhibition of these boards be continued that a full prosecution under the law should be made.

The disappearance of livestock and poultry over the county, especially turkeys and cattle prompts us to urge all owners of the same to brand or mark so far as is possible, their stock and poultry, with a distinctive mark, and that in the event of disappearance or suspected theft of the same that search immediately be made and that the loss be reported to the peace officers of the County.

We feel further impelled to mention numerous occurrences of Operating a Motor Vehicle While Intoxicated which are taking place on our streets and highways. Due to the present ease with which liquor may be bought and transported, we urge the strict enforcement of that law and the prompt notification of officers by citizens.

Though well known we should like to stress the importance of notification by offended parties of the peace officers, as to any injury they have received, as promptness on their part may enable the officers to speedily and efficiently apprehend those guilty of an offense. Having thus completed our labors we request that we be discharged.

Respectfully Submitted,
W. T. PERRYMAN,
Foreman.

$1214 TO BE SPENT BY NYA ON ELIGIBLES IN THIS COUNTY

County Superintendent, J. M. Witcher received notice that project No. 7521, N. Y. A. Form No. 5 had been approved on January 22. This project calls for 126 part time jobs for youths (16-25) not in school. This is a county project supervised by the county superintendent, but principals of schools will have local projects on their own school yards, school houses, libraries or kindred work.

Names of the eligible youths have been mailed to school principals. These youths must register at the city hall before further progress can be made.

The amount designated in the project in this county is $1214.00. For any additional information see Miss Boykin at the County Superintendent's office.
