JACK MORSE IS SINCLAIR AGENT AS JOHN MORSE GOES TO CLEBURNE

Jack Morse, who formerly operated a service station here has taken over the Sinclair Refining Company agency, replacing his brother, John G. Morse, who has accepted a position with Cooper Grocery Co. in Cleburne.

Jack has had considerable experience in the oil business and is to be congratulated on opening up this new venture.

In 1917 it was "The Yanks Are Coming," in 1836 in Gatesville it is "The Yanks Are Here" all of which means this week Gatesville was honored by the presence of the Central Texas Dentists Convention, and the hosts were Dr. Otis Ray and Dr. and Mrs. Clyde Bailey.

As there was no election of officers, the meeting was mostly one of a social nature, climaxed by a barbecue of goat, squirrel, chicken and other delicious edibles, in Raby Park where it is alleged that many a bicuspid sank deeply into tender morsels of juicy barbecued meat, with no thoughts of "Pie-rear," decayed molars, and loose lowers.

Among those present were Dr. and Mrs. W. B. McCall, Dr. McCall being the president of the State Dental Society, of Temple; Dr. and Mrs. Chas. F. Russell, secretary of the State Dental Society; Dr. and Mrs. D. K. Foster of Marlin, Drs. Rogers and Ezell of Corsicana, Dr. Voigt and Dr. and Mrs. Curry of Belton, Dr. and Mrs. Jack Koen of Hamilton, Drs. Taylor and Farris of Lampasas, Dr. and Mrs. Wilson Collins of Clifton, Dr. and Mrs. McDonald of Mart.

Gatesville and Gatesville dentists are to be congratulated upon being honored by having professional such as these to visit our small city, and it proves to "the outside world" that conventions can be handled in a pleasing manner as well as in larger cities.

Southwestern U. Chorus at M. E. Church

When the Southwestern University chorus appears at Gatesville on May 12, our citizens will have the opportunity of enjoying one of the most highly unusual programs of recent years. The Southwestern chorus is famous in Texas. Under the inspired leadership of Mme. Margarita Slaviansky, one of the very few internationally recognized women directors, the chorus presents a concert of great charm and beauty.

Madame Slaviansky received her training in music from masters in Russia, Germany and Italy. Upon the death of her father, Prince Slaviansky, who founded the Slaviansky Russian Chorus, in 1858, she inherited the directorship of this famous chorus. During the past twenty-seven years, Madame Slaviansky has directed this chorus with such success that its fame spread to all parts of the world. Upon accepting a position in the Music Department of Southwestern University, the directorship of the Russian Chorus was transferred to her daughter, Mademoiselle Mara Slaviansky.

Unlike the average choral club the Southwestern Chorus seeks to please its audience by the sheer beauty of its product. Making a program out of solos, ensemble combinations, and full chorus numbers, ranging from the classics to folk lore songs the chorus pleases its audience in spite of prejudice or previous experience.

Gatesville is to be congratulated on being the host of this excellent group.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION WARNS AGAINST MISLEADING INFORMATION

Washington, D. C., May 2.—The United States Civil Service Commission has sent a notice to post offices, warning that misleading information is being given the public by representatives of some of the correspondence schools which sell "civil service" courses.

For a long time, the Commission has been receiving complaints from different parts of the country which indicate that opportunities for obtaining Federal employment have been greatly exaggerated.

It was made clear that no school has any connection whatever with the Civil Service Commission or with other branch of the Government, and also that the Commission has no agents who solicit applications for civil service positions or who sell "civil service" courses.

No school can "guarantee" Government employment and none is given information regarding examinations, or any other information, which is not available to the general public. The Commission stated that it does not recommend any school, and explained that it is not necessary for anyone to take a course with a so-called civil service school in order to compete in a civil service examination. A special point was made of the fact that information concerning examinations may be obtained at any time, without cost, from the Secretary of the Civil Service Board at any first or second class post office or from the Commission's office in Washington, D. C.

Fred Post, Bob Cross, David Hinson, Yvonne Davis, Mary Jo Mulholland, and Harry Straw presented a short pantomime, which proved to be very entertaining. WORLD COMMENT

By JOE BURNS

ITALY CELEBRATES
BRITAIN'S DILEMMA
LONDON'S SETBACK

Climaxing seven months of warfare in Africa, Premier Mussolini announced to the Italian people the victory of his troops with the words, "Ethiopia is Italian!" And 400,000 Romans jamming the piazza of the Venezia Palazzo—home of the dictator—and 20,000,000 Italians gathered around radios and loud speakers from one end of the peninsula to the other responded with delirious shouting.

Il Duce received a simple communique from his African commander, Marshal Daddoglio, which stated: "Tuesday, May 5, at 4 p. m., at the head of the victorious troops, I entered Addis Ababa." Strange as it may seem, the Italians were the last of civilized peoples to know of the victory of their troops.

Thus ends one of the most stirring epochs in Italian history. But this correspondent believes the battle has just begun for Italy, for scourges far greater and complex than defeat in Ethiopia would have been confronting the nation of organ grinders today. Bankruptcy, an international boycott, and the ire of Great Britain are among the problems threatening or in existence today.

But, with characteristic vigor and decision, Premier Mussolini has prepared to send 500,000 Italian farmers to Ethiopia within a month to cultivate its broad plains and fertile valleys.

Ethiopia today is without native rulers. Emperor Haile Selassie, his family and all important state dignitaries are now in Palestine, having escaped from Addis Ababa to Djibouti, French port on the Red Sea, where they boarded the British cruiser "Enterprise" for the Holy Land, Palestine, or Switzerland, where the Negus owns a villa, will be the refuge of the one who claims descent from Solomon and the Queen of Sheba.

As a result of the Italian victory in Ethiopia, British prestige is at its lowest point since the Kaiser's hosts were romping over Tommies in the bleak days of 1916.

League of Nations' opposition to the war received its inspiration from British, who feared an Italian foothold on the "life-line" to the East. Britain's first move to stop the war came in the form of a gigantic concentration of naval craft in the Mediterranean. When this failed to deter Italy's Duce, troops were sent to Egypt and veiled threats were made of closing the Suez Canal, through which all Italian troops must pass to the black empire. Mussolini replied by sending three divisions of troops to Libya, Italian colony bordering Egypt.

As a last resort, a reluctant League was induced to impose economic sanctions against Italy. Britain today faces a loss of prestige that may deprive it of the leadership of the nations seeking collective security for Europe and of its dominant position among the Continental powers. Heretofore the might of Britannia has deterred similar Caesars from rash acts but the "upstart" in Rome has refused to be influenced by British diplomacy or naval strength.

Ethiopia is Italian. That is a "fait accompli" as far as the world is concerned. In other words, nothing can be done about it unless the nations are willing to go to war to deprive Italy of the fruits of her victory.

The British navy is still in the Mediterranean, being maintained there by the senile Baldwin at a cost of $160,000 a day to British taxpayers, but what can John Bull accomplish by such a concentration now that the war is over? On the other hand, a withdrawal will be an acknowledgment of failure of British diplomacy to stop the Ethiopian campaign of the Duce. Britain is faced with two alternatives — submit to its defeat with the best grace possible and watch the system of collective security collapse like a cardboard box, or go to war with Mussolini.

The battle between Hooverites and Landonites in California's primary was overshadowed by the huge majority given President Roosevelt over the combined totals of all Republican candidates. With almost all counties accounted for, the vote stood: Roosevelt, 652,201; total Republican vote (for Hoover and Landon), 484,915. To the Democratic total may be added 127,782 ballots marked for Upton Sinclair, leader of the "End Poverty in California" movement and Rep. John McGroarty, Townsend leader. The Democratic total may correctly be computed at 779,000 to 484,000 for the Republicans.

The fight for the State's 44 convention votes was between an uninstructed slate composed of Mr. Hoover's friends and a slate pledged to Governor Landon. Latest returns give the uninstructed slate a majority of 74,000 over the Landonites. This was the Kansas Governor's first setback—but his supporters were prompt to declare that because the winning ticket was uninstructed, their candidate was still in the running for the 44 convention votes.

Elsewhere Landon found reason for encouragement, for South Dakota and Tennessee voters instructed their delegates to vote for him at Cleveland. The strength of Senator Borah was again manifested when he ran only 1,607 votes behind the Kansas candidate in the South Dakota balloting.

The club adjourned to meet with Mrs. Draper Morgan on May 7.

Miss Martin gave us some useful information concerning foods for an adequate diet. Some foods used for an adequate diet are of starchy foods, three servings each week, white bread, vegetables and others. Proteins, three servings a week, milk, eggs, meat. A Source of Iron

The popularity of spinach as a source of iron for the body is being threatened, according to Mrs. Ercel Eppright, director of home economics at Texas State College for Women. She reveals that iron in combinations such as occur in many vegetable tissues is not completely available to organisms. In liver and heart iron is approximately 75 per cent utilizable, and in spinach it is not more than 25 per cent available.

OGLESBY

This progressive Coryell County town is located near the east line of the county on the Cotton Belt Railway and on Highway No. 7. It has a population of approximately 500 people. It is surrounded by one of the richest agricultural districts in the county.

J. N. Davidson built the first home here, on a survey that now bears his name. That was in 1854. An aged bois'd'arc tree near the Jim McKelvain home marks the site of this first home. About the time Wyatt Hall settled on what is known as the Wyatt Hall survey south of town.

On Blackwell's Branch Dick Blackwell and the Landford brothers established homes. Down on Station Creek Charles Karnes established in 1853; Pat Morris in 1854; Thomas Rucker in 1856; A. P. Pennington in 1866; Juan Lewis in 1870; and other, came later.

Mr. Davidson traded his lands to William Oglesby for the latter's ranch on Coryell Creek. Mr. Oglesby at once began ranching and farming on his newly acquired lands. The country was then open range, fenced only with rails. Up to the coming of barbed wire and the railroad, the country in proximity to Oglesby was the scene of enactment of some of the most tragic killings connected with the old cattle feuds.

In 1882 the Cotton Belt railway reached Oglesby's ranch. Mr. Oglesby donated land for a townsite, and the name of the place was changed from Hilltop to its present name.

M. B. Hitt bears the distinction of having been the first merchant, the first railway station agent, and the first postmaster. There was a school at Rock Springs, a mile from the new town.

The Baptist, Methodist, Primitive Baptist, and Disciples of Christ all soon had church established. About the year 1900 an excellent stone school building was erected in the town.

Early physicians here were D. M. Jordan, now deceased, C. M. Moore, and later F. C. Green and D. C. Homan, the latter two being natives of this county. In the 1890's and later, the town has had such business men as J. C. Stockburger, Sam Kester, Eph Pennington, B. A. McKelvan and others. Men now in business are T. P. Rucker, L. A. Woods, manager for J. D. Mann, Alex Baker, manager for Lee Hardware Co., R. S. Lewis, D. W. Jones, Alton Dalton, and several gas and oil stations. M. V. Dalton is Justice of the Peace, and John Crouch is Constable. Alex Moore, who spent twenty-seven years at Boone's lime plant, is operating a restaurant, and Melvin Dixon a grocery store.

The organizations of worship are as follows: The Methodist, who have an excellent building; the Missionary Baptist, who also have a large church building; and both divisions of the Primitive Baptist have buildings.

Oglesby Public Schools

Oglesby is proud of her schools. Two excellent buildings, one stone and the other brick, having a total of ten class rooms, with stage and auditorium. Approximately three hundred pupils are instructed here. The grounds are kept in good condition, and for the delivery of students from rural districts, two all-steel school buses, of the latest type are daily used.

The school year 1935-36 found the Oglesby school with twelve teachers in its faculty, and another bus added to its transportation unit. Commercial subjects were added to the curriculum and eight new typewriters were purchased for the commercial department. As the school term closes, it is found that two and one-half additional units of affiliation have been recommended. This will bring the total to eighteen, which, according to bulletin of the department of education is the maximum allowed a school of this size.

The Oglesby school system has been designated as the receiving school for the east part of Coryell County. It now affords high school facilities for eight school districts, including the original district and the three with which it is consolidated. The progress of his school is in keeping with the progress of the county as a whole and is a unit of which Coryell may be proud.

Industrial development is represented by the F. B.

AT "FEVER PITCH?"

All over the country for the next six months political writers will be reporting through the columns of newspaper and magazines that interest in the coming elections is at "fever pitch" or "white hot" or in some other figurative state indicating a high degree of intensity.

Statesmen will remark that never before in the history of the country has there been such a wholesome participation by the public in the affairs of government. Politicians nightly will reach the ears of thousands by the radio, and other thousands in political meetings. Newspapers will discuss every issue from A to Z. Partisan debate will invade the drawing room, the workshop, the clubs. It will appear, on the surface, that there is some justification for the usual remarks of the political writers that interest in political matters is high and hot.

But for all these outward signs, it will remain true (unless a great change actually has come over the country in two years), that about one out of every three qualified registered voter you meet on the street today will fail to vote on election day. Only about two-thirds of the voters will actually have a voice in the selection of their government. Why? Because, despite the indications of an intense interest in public affairs at least 40 per cent of the men and women in the country will be too indifferent, or too lazy, to go to the polls and vote. They will surrender the right of self-government to the other two-thirds.

The 40 per cent who will refuse to vote are (except for this deficiency) the people who really should select our government. Obviously, they are disinterested as well as uninterested. In other words, they are the rank and file without any especial ax to grind or profit to reap. They are not one of the minorities, seeking to promote a special interest—otherwise they would go to the polls to promote. Their vote is not for sale—otherwise they would go to the polls to sell it. They are the people who ought to vote and won't, and who will complain most loudly of conditions which they alone are empowered to correct.—Waco News Tribune.

"To Mother"

When God created Motherhood,
To grace this world of ours
He took the radiance of the skies,
The beauty of the flowers,
And all the lovely things of earth
And some of Heaven, too,
And blended them to make for us

Softball Teams to Swing Into Action Tues., 12th

SIX TEAMS TO BEGIN PLAY IN WELL BALANCED ORGANIZATION.

Wednesday evening at a meeting of the managers it was agreed upon to begin play in the local soft ball league Tuesday evening at 8:00 o'clock. There will be three night of play each week with two games each night. The nights agreed upon are Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.

There will be three teams from town, namely, Doc's Sandwich Shop, managed by Truman Blanton; The Merchants, managed by Seth (Lasses) Anderson, and the Firemen, in charge of Fire Chief Roger Miller.

Besides the above named teams the local CCC camp will enter three teams as follows: The Reds, managed by Clifton Fisher; The Whites, headed by Lieut. Smith, and The Blues, under the management of Johnny McFarland. Lieut Smith will have charge of all the Camp teams in general, but the above named men will act as field captains when their respective teams are on the playing field.

The strength of the Camp teams is unknown, but Lieut. Smith assures the fans that they will furnish plenty opposition. The three town clubs are rather evenly matched and each will present a strong lineup.

All in all, the league should prove rather interesting to both the fans and the players and a most successful season is expected. Tuesday's edition of the News will carry a schedule and the rules of the league in general. There will also be a column devoted to the league in each issue for the duration of the league.

Baseball Banter

County baseball reports pour into this office like molasses in zero weather. We received results of four games of last week end. If managers wish to keep the standing of their teams in a correct manner they should see that the results of their games are sent in, as this is the only way we have of securing said results.

Because this scribe is just taking over the duties of this column and also because of the aforementioned lack of cooperation on the part of the managers the team standings are more or less incorrect, but we give them, just as we have received them:

SATURDAY DIVISION Teams Standing

	won	lost	per.
Jonesboro	2	0	1.000
Mound	2	0	1.000
Pidcoke	2	0	1.000
Osage	1	1	.500
State	0	3	.000
Turnersville	0	3	.000

SUNDAY DIVISION

Teams Standing

	won	lost	per.
Seattle	3	0	1.000
G'ville CCC	2	0	1.000
Levita	2	0	1.000
Neff P. CCC	1	2	.333
Flat	1	2	.333
Pearl	0	3	.000

If all the managers will send in results of their games since the league started and will continue to do so we will be able to keep the team standing in good shape.

Results of last week's games are: In the Saturday division: Mound won over the State 10-3, while Pidcoke won on a forfeit from Turnersville. In the Sunday division games Seattle beat Pearl, while Flat defeated Neff Park CCC 8-6.

This week's schedule finds Jonesboro facing Pidcoke at Pidcoke, Turnersville opposing the State team at the State, while Osage tangles with Mound at Osage in Saturday games.

Sunday games pit Levita against Neff Park at Neff Park, Flat vs. Pearl at Flat, and Gatesville CCC takes on Seattle in a game at Seattle.

CORYELL COUNTY HISTORY—of his grandson, Robt. W. Brown). He later came to Texas and was commissioned a Colonel in the Texas Army.

In 1840 he joined the Texas Conference of the Methodist Church and preached at Trinity Mission and other places. In 1847 he founded the Texas Christian Advocate, which was the first church paper published in Texas; the paper was published at Brenham, Washington County, at that time.

In 1854 he moved with his family to Coryell County. The diary that he kept on his way to Coryell County, and for many years after his arrival, is now in the possession of his daughter, Mrs. J. D. Brown Sr., and shows the following facts: He arrived at Fort Gates November 3, 1854, and at Gatesville November 7, 1854, driving two oxen named Buck and Ball. On his arrival at Gatesville he traded his oxen to R. G. Grant on November 27, 1854 for four and three-quarter acres of land and $50.00 in cash or its equivalent. He preached the first sermon ever preached in Gatesville and his wife, Mary S. Wells, taught the first Sunday School. The exact dates are not shown in the diary, but are recorded between the dates of November 7, 1854 and February 1855. He founded and published "The Frontiersman," the first newspaper published in Coryell County. He was one of the charter members of the Gatesville Masonic Lodge No. 197.

He married Mary S. Fisher November 30, 1845. She was the daughter of Rev. Orceneth Fisher. Both he and Mrs. Wells were actively connected with organization of the early schools, churches, city and county governments, lodges, and other enterprises which helped to bring culture and civilization to Gatesville and Coryell County.

R. B. Wells died at Gatesville May 11, 1872, and Mary S. Wells died March 27, 1909. They left surviving several children and grandchildren, some of whom now reside in Coryell County.

Forty-six students representing five States will be graduated in May by Ottawa, Kan., University.

The company now seeking buried treasure on Cocos island will make a special search in a spot not previously surveyed.

EVANT SENIORS—

with artistically arranged bouquets of red roses and lamps with shades of colonial design. The windows were seaped with bluebonnets and the curtains were made of oak leaves and shucked corn of various colors. The menu designed from such food as was served to the early settlers, consisted of green onions, snapped peas, old-fashioned bettered hominy, cold sliced shicken, baked spuds, olives, corn bread sticks, mint grape juice, with ice cream in meringue cases topped with jello strips. The program spiced with orchestration was as follows: "We're All Pals Together," sung by the juniors, accompanied by Miss Scott at the piano. The invocation given by Truett Allen, member of the Senior Class, was followed by various informal toasts with L. Brun Lacewell, a junior, acting as toastmaster. The welcome to the seniors given by Clyde Elam and followed by a quartet rendition of "Since Your Path Crossed Mine," by Sidney Goff, Oleta Faye Shive, Robert L. Calhoun, and Rowena Blackwell, was responded to by Willie Nora Michael in behalf of her senior classmates. Yvonne Thompson offered in song a "Tribute to Seniors and Faculty," answered by a "Thanks" address by Mr. Warren, Senior Class sponsor. The "Rhythm Makers" contributed to the spirit of the occasion by singing "I Like to Ride the Horses" and "Twenty Four A Day" by Faye Lee; "The Right Somebody to Love," and "The Wedding of Jack and Jill," by Clarence Walker; "Keep That Twinkle in Your Eye," and "You Gotta Be a Basketball Hero," by Edwtn Harold Pinson; "Take Me Back to My Boots and Saddle," and "Home on the Range," by Clinton Walker, J. T. Calhoun, Billy Smitherman, and Harold Wayne Sawyer; then Mr. Carter, the Superintendent, painted a very clear picture of pioneers and gave some very interesting history of our county. He could not be let off that easily so he sang "Friends of Yesterday."

A last tribute was given the seniors by the juniors who sang "Meet Us Again in Evant." Everyone joined in singing "Memories," which was followed by "Lights Out," by the White Caps. Colonial costumes were worn by the guests; the girls really looked like young belles of the '80's, and the boys enlivened the occasion by wearing real wild west clothes. If Mrs. Carter had not been known well, she would have been thought to be a "belle of the '90's."

Mr. Carter's frocktailed suit topped the dressing part of it pretty well. This banquet was the first of its kind to be put on by the Evant juniors and probably the most enjoyable.

Mother's Day

"HER DAY"

She's hundreds of days! Every day is her day! It sounds like this (and isn't even noticed): "Mama, where's my cap? Mama, where's my book? Mama, c'n I go see Mary? Mama, I want some pie!"

Every day in the year is HER day, especially if we want something, or need her help. She never says "No," at least not often. She's always there to answer a question, fix our clothes, fix a meal so we can go somewhere quick, and doing odd jobs around at the "will" of the entire family.

Her special day is Sunday, May 10. Let's do something for HER that will show that we CAN appreciate how she has been "treating" us. Buy her something she has been denying herself in order that we can have that little something extra—that new dress, that show we have been waiting for, or whatever. If she isn't near you, write her a good, long letter and tell her how you miss her. Furthermore, if at all possible, see her on this Sunday, May 10.

SPECIAL CACHETS WILL BE STAMPED

Dallas, May 7.—Five Texas cities, staging Centennial celebrations in the near future, are among the 35 which have been extended special cachet privileges on mail, according to the department of information for Texas Centennial Celebrations.

They are:

Uvalde, May 7, Uvalde County Honey Festival.
Fredericksburg, May 8, The Founding Anniversary.
Freeport, May 14, Battle of Velasco commemoration.

Amarillo, May 15, Centennial Pageant.

Brownsville, May 16, International Pageant of Transportation.

The cachets have been approved by the United States post office department. Other cachets were used last week at celebrations held at Paris and San Marcos.

1824—On May 7 by the second article of a decree of the Constituent Mexican Congress, known as the "Constitutive Act," Coahuila and Texas, not being sufficiently populous to form each a state, were united into one state, known as the State of Coahuila and Texas.

1828—Texas law (May 5) provided that contracts made in foreign countries between emigrants or inhabitants and servants were valid, which included contracts with slaves to work for stipulated wages.

1840—Martin Van Buren was nominated for president at the first democratic convention held in Texas on May 5.

1845—On May 5 Anson Jones, president of the republic, issued a proclamation announcing the proposition of the United States to annex Texas as a state in the Union, and the conditional proposition of Mexico for the admission of the independence of Texas.—Texas College for Women (CIA).

THAT it's possible for a dead man to be elected to office in Texas. The election of a dead man is possible under article 3019 of the election laws which says that if a nominee dies before the election, and yet receives a plurality of the votes in the election, "the votes shall be counted in the returns made."

Other oddities about the Texas election laws: In determining the residence of a voter, an unmarried man's residence is "where he usually sleeps at night."

A convict who has forfeited his right to vote, nevertheless is liable for payment of the poll tax.

One of the exemptions from payment of a poll tax is for those who have lost a hand or foot. The courts have said the lost hand or foot must be "entirely severed."

If you, as a voter, plan to write-in some name not appearing on the ballot, be certain you have black ink, or a pencil. Red ink won't do.

ERSKINE ADVISES GREEK PHILOSOPHY FOR NEEDS OF TODAY

Denton, May 7.—"Go Greek. is the challenge left by John Erskine, eminent author, educator, and president of the Juilliard School of Music, in his recent address at Texas State College for Women on "The Moral Obligation to Be Intelligent."

"Our first moral obligation is to see intelligently the situation before us in which we must act, and having intelligently chosen the path of action, our second obligation is to act," declared Dr. Erskine, making a parallel of the old Greek teaching and our own need today.

Erskine has applied his philosophy in such best sellers as "Helen of Troy," "Galahad," and "Adam and Eve."

ATTRACTIONS OF OUR BULW COAST AREA DULY EMPHASIZED

Dallas, May 7. — Centennial year celebrations planned in 12 Texas coast cities will attract wide attention to the Texas Gulf coast and its opportunities for recreation and play, according to officials of the department of information for Centennial Celebrations.

The Gulf coast of Texas has gained increased attention as a summer and winter playground in recent years and the celebrations planned there during the summer are expected to attract large numbers of Texans and out of state visitors.

Freeport opened the coast events Sunday, May 3, with its nationally recognized regatta.

Interests of fishermen will be centered in three fishing rodeos planned at Port Aransas, Freeport, and Port Isabel. Port Aransas will stage the Texas Tarpon rodeo this year on June 19, 20, and 21. Freeport will hold the first Kingfish rodeo on record from July 1 to 5. Port Isabel will stage the Rio Grande Valley fishing rodeo on October 8, 9, and 10.

Commemoration of the Battle of Velasco at Freeport on May 14 will include reenactment of the landing of the Lively on the water-front.

Brownsville's International Pageant of Transportation on May 14, 15, and 16, including the dedication of the state's fourteenth seaport, and the exposition and water carnival at Corpus Christi from June 7 to 14 will be important events in port cities. Port Lavaca will present a Centennial regatta on June 1 and 2 and Bay City plans a Centennial observance for June 16. Galveston will feature its position as a resort city in the Centennial Splash week from June 6 to 14, the Oleander festival from June 19 to 21, and the Centennial Beach carnival from July 19 to 26.

GALVESTON PLANS SEVERAL COLORFUL EVENTS AS CELEBRATIONS

Galveston, May 1.—Galveston resort city of "Pleasure Isle" and great gulf port, has developed a comprehensive Centennial year program which will make it a center of interest to Texans and their visitors during much of the Centennial year.

Five events are planned in June, July, and August, following the opening Mardi Gras celebration held in February. They are the Centennial Splash week, June 6 to 14; the Oleander festival, June 19 to 22; the Water Carnival week, July 19 to 26; the Centennial Beach carnival, August 3 to 9, and the Annual Auxiliary Cruiser races, Aug. 8 and 9.

The Oleander Festival in June will be an outstanding Centennial celebration of the early summer, including the Junior Oleander parade on June 19; an historical pageant at the East Beach Lagoon and a boulevard frolic on June 20; a Grand Oleander parade a spectacular fireworks display on June 21, and the Grand Oleander ball the night of June 22. An elaborate display of oleanders will be on view in one of the Galveston hotels throughout the festival.

UNICAMERAL LEGISLATURE EXPLAINED

BY SENATOR G. H. NELSON

ARTICLE IV COST OF LEGISLATION

The 39th Legislature cost the people of Texas $312,747.08; the 40th cost $347,218.86; the 41st, $795,635.00; the 42nd, $1,089,380.75; the 43rd cost $1,109,472.54. Thus you can see that the actual expenses of operating your Legislature is mounting from year to year. The average cost for each man of the 181 members of the 42nd Legislature for stenographers and clerks was $956.75, for office assistants $367.00; for Sergeant-at-Arms $207.00; and for that of pages and messengers $201.00. The average cost for janitors and hands was $187.00; for postage $120.00, and for telephone and telegraph $187.00; for stationery, printing mimeographing and office supplies $650.00.

I give you the above figures to let you know that you cannot keep men in your Legislature without it costing you an enormous sum and that the more you have there, the more the cost. Still, the actual cost in dollars and cents for the operation of your Legislature is not the propelling motive for my adherence to the one-house system. In fact, from a saving on supplies, salaries and such like, the greatest saving will not come.

The greatest saving will come of the abolition of the free conference committee. Likewise because of the abolition of such committee laws will be passed which will comport with the wishes of the people. Let me give you three examples.

During the 44th Legislature at the first called session the question of passing a law in compliance with the expressed will of the people on the liquor question arose. A bill passed the State Senate of Texas which included the definition of a saloon such as would prohibit liquor being sold in Texas by the drink. A majority of the Representatives of the people of this State in the Senate voted for such a Bill. Likewise, a majority of the Representatives in the House voted for that same bill. Immediately following the passage by both houses of a bill containing this definition, it having in it certain other differences necessary to adjustment, a free conference committee was appointed by the Speaker of the House composed of three wets and two dries, and on that part of the Senate five wets. Not surprisingly, in due course, such committee reported to each of the Houses a Bill of their own liking, with a definition therein of the open saloon which would permit liquor to be sold anywhere in Texas by the drink.

It, therefore, became necessary for the very ones in both houses who had supported the Bill originally, to vote against it and kill such free conference Bill at the closing hours of the Legislature, with the result that thousands of dollars had been spent without the passage of any legislation. Forty days later that Bill in almost its exact state passed and became a law. The least estimated revenue that such a Bill would bring $10,000.00 per day.

It can therefore be seen that this one free conference committee on one piece of legislation cost the people of this State over $100,000.00. It is no question of whether you or I are against this liquor Bill as it is written. This example is given to show you what a free conference committee can do with reference to any piece of legislation.

In the 43rd Legislature at the regular session you will recall that there was much agitation over the paramutual race-track gambling law. A majority of both the House, acting as the representatives of the people of this State, voted against such law. You will likewise recall that it was thought that no major appropriation Bill would be passed at that session. Those who were in favor of race-track gambling were the ones responsible for the appropriation Bill being the last thing to be determined on the calendar. When the time for the closing of that regular session drew close at hand, the appropriation Bill in different forms, passed both the House and the Senate. Five conferences were appointed by the Lieutenant Governor, a majority of whom were in favor of race-track gambling in Texas, to serve on a free conference committee on the appropriation Bill. Likewise, the Speaker of the House of Representatives appointed five conferees, a majority of whom were in favor of the paramutual system, to serve on this appropriation free conference committee.

No one was surprised when that committee, composed of ten men, laid in the laps of the Senate and House of Representatives an appropriation Bill with a rider attached thereto which permitted the race-track gambling law we have in Texas today. The members of the House and of the Senate were compelled by such action to vote for race-track gambling in order to get one dollar for the deaf, the dumb, the blind or any other institution of the State of Texas, including the common schools, the universities and the courts of Texas.

Thus, we have race-track gambling in Texas today, not as a result of a mandate of the people, nor as a result of the wishes of a majority of the Representatives of the people in the Legislature, but because of the arbitrary power of the Speaker of the House and the Lieutenant Governor.

The people gave to the Legislature a mandate to pass a Pension law in this last session and provide revenue therefor. This matter came before the Legislature at its first and second called sessions. There were those in the Legislature who were in favor of sales tax as well as those who were opposed to such method of taxation. You will recall that the omnibus tax bill to support the pension law came from the House of Representatives. This Bill, in the main, was sponsored by those who were in favor of the sales tax. The Bill passed the House of Representatives without a sales tax being included therein, the sponsor of such Bill knowing full well that the sales tax would be tacked on when it got to the Senate, thus creating a difference in the two Bills as they might pass their respective houses.

Such action, in due course, took place in the Senate. The Bill was then referred to the House for concurrence which was refused thus sending the Bill to a free conference committee. The sponsors of the omnibus tax bill, being those who were favorable to the sales tax, joined hands with the opponents of the sales tax and instructed the conferees on the part of the House not to bring any Bill back to them which included in it any form of sales tax.

It can be seen that such action created a deadlock in the free conference committee, resulting in no revenue for the payment of the Old Age Pension law.

SYNOPSIS

Scornful of a bloody feud that exists between the Tolliver and Falin clans in the Kentucky mountains, Martin Reed, young city engineer, arrives to build a railroad over the property of the two families for a coal company. En route to the Tolliver home to make a deal with Judd Tolliver, Reed meets June, Judd's daughter, when he rescues her from a mudhole. At the Tolliver home he performs an emergency operation to remove gangrenous infection from the arm of Dave Tolliver who was shot by one of the Falins. Complications arise when June, who is engaged to marry Dave, falls in love with Reed.

CHAPTER III

"CHICK-A-CHICK! Chick-a-chick! Chick-a-chick!" Martin was giving a fair imitation of a moving train for the benefit of Buddie Tolliver, who was tagging after him through the woods toward the engineer's mountain camp. Finally he emitted a cloud of "steam" and stopped short.

"Okay, partner—here's where I turned to continue on toward camp. As he did so he came face to face with June.

"Well?" he inquired after a moment's awkward silence.

"Pappy wants to see yuh," she said at last. "He's changed his mind about signing the contract."

"Boy, oh boy!" cried the delighted Martin. Then he stopped and surveyed her suspiciously. "Wait a minute! Is this a gag of yours?"

"A what?" Her wide blue eyes did not falter.

"All right—skip it," he chuckled. "I'll take the risk."

"This way," she cried as he started away. "It's shorter."

They walked away together and unconsciously Martin helped the wild mountain girl to scramble over trees, pulled brambles out of her way and offered his hand when they crossed a ditch. Unused to such courtesies, she was thrilled to her bare toes.

"Swell!" Martin laughed. "Presented before the House and accepted unanimously. All right—what do you want to talk about?"

"Don't make no difference," she laughed.

"Okay! We'll talk about you." He helped her over another fence. "Some day—very soon now—your father'll have money. You'll be married to Dave—and what a lucky girl you'll be. And all this around here will be—maybe there'll be a big house over there—and lawn all the way down to here." He indicated the wild landscape.

"Let's walk faster," interrupted June, apparently not much relishing the reference to her marriage. "It's mighty near a mile yet."

"A mile!" Martin jumped over the fence. "But you said this was a short cut."

"Did I?" Her eyes opened innocently.

Arrived at the Tolliver home, Martin found Judd and the convalescent Dave in a listening mood. The latter was sitting up while Buddie lay across the bed he formerly had occupied, poring over a book the engineer had lent him.

Reed explained the terms of the contract as best he could, saying that the Tollivers would sell only the coal under their land and that their surface rights would not be affected. "And you get $5,000 in thirty days and a percentage of the company's earnings," he added.

"It figgers sensible, Judd," said Dave at last.

"If Dave says it's sensible, guess it's sensible," agreed Judd. "But there's one thing eatin' me. Ain't there no other way fer you to build yer railroad up t'our place cep't crost the Falins?" He was working himself into a rage. "We 'uns'll make no money by crossin' Falin land. No, sir."

"Mr Tolliver, I don't doubt that you have every reason to hate the Falins," Martin tried to calm him. "They must have done you an irreparable wrong, but . . ."

"They done me heaps," Judd croaked. "They shot my brother—Dave's father."

"And he shot Milt Falin," interrupted Melissa, who had been listening intently. "Now, Judd, tell him what started it in the first place."

"Why—uh—" Her husband was at a loss.

"He don't know—mountain men never do," said Melissa in a level tone. "But I know. I'm a woman. My gran'mamma, she tol' me one time—a long time ago—a Falin stuck a pinch bug in a Tolliver girl's hair—an' she come home a-cryin'. An' ever since—from the Ridge down to the Ticopee—there's been corpses a-rottin' in the air. We call it feudin'."

"Stop it!" cried Dave as Judd started to rise in his wrath. Then to Martin he continued, his words stinging like bullets. "We-uns don't want no preacher talk from you now, Mr. Reed. The Tollivers don't like the Falins—an' they know why! We don't want to be learned off by outsiders."

"But Dave . . ." cried Martin, seeing his plans about to collapse.

"You saved my life," continued the raw-boned young man grimly. "You was a-leavin' without a squeal when we turned you down. You couldn't do that without you was square. Jist don't argy, that's all. Now—where's me and Judd sign this here contract?"

"We-uns don't want no preacher talk from you now, Mr. Reed," Dave said. "The Tollivers don't like the Falins—an' they know why! We don't want to be learned off by outsiders."

got off the train," he grinned as he held out his hand.

"I ain't goin' to see you no more?" Buddie's voice was wistful.

"Nope! Not unless your Dad changes his mind about the contract. Leave's arm is o. k. now and there's no more excuse for me to hang around. Now you'd better scoot for home," he added as he shook hands with the boy in great solemnity.

"Kin I—kin I put my arms aroun' you?" he hesitated the toward.

"Can you?" Martin gathered him up and gave him a hug. "Well, now, say! You're not going to forget your promise, are you?" he asked as he set the boy down. "What did I tell you to remember?"

"That book larnin' is good for people 'cause it makes 'em build what's inside of 'em," the boy repeated slowly. "I won't forget."

"Great!" Martin patted his cheek. "An', some day, I'm goin' to build a steam shovel—an' a train—an' a automobile—an' a airplane—an' a—all them other things you told me about."

"Whoa!" laughed his friend. "If you're going to do all that, you'd better get home and start studying. Goodbye, Buddie!"

"Goodbye," grinned the boy as he started off, trying to give an imitation of Martin imitating a train: "Chick-a-chick! Chick-a-chick!"

The engineer watched him go, then
