

WORLD COMMENT

By JOE BURNS

Kentucky's Senator Alben W. Barkley opened the Democratic National Convention at Philadelphia with one of the most plausible and vigorous defenses of the Roosevelt New Deal ever presented to the American people mingled with an exhortation of previous Republican administrations and the 1936 Republican nominees and program.

The Senator's trumpet-like voice echoed long and loud through the Quaker City's gigantic Public Auditorium after which 15,000 Democrats gave vent to enthusiasm pent up since the elephant assembled his delegates at Cleveland a fortnight ago.

Hoover, Landon, Hearst, and Republicanism in general came in for blasts from the Kentuckian, who is no newcomer to the ranks of keynoters, having made the keynote address at the convention of 1932 which nominated Roosevelt and Garner. In turn, the farm, unemployment, banking, labor, securities, tariff and housing programs of the New Deal were praised and compared with those of the three preceding Republican administrations.

That "Constitutionalism" may be one of the main issues of the campaign was indicated by Barkley's criticism of the Supreme Court and its power of veto over legislative acts. Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln, and several members of the Court today do not believe the Supreme Court "to be beyond criticism and too sacred to be disagreed with" according to the Kentuckian. But he hastened to add a note of assurance with his causticism, "We shall abide by its (the Supreme Court's) decisions and seek to shape our program in accordance with them."

A hint of what the Administration may ask and expect if returned to power was given when Barkley said, "If in the future further constitutional amendment should become necessary to enable the people to work out their destiny and protect their fundamental rights, or to overcome some archaic interpretation never intended by its framers, I doubt not that the people will face that duty with the same calm intelligence which has guided them in the past."

That which came in for so much criticism at Cleveland—New Deal deficits and debts—originated in the Hoover Administration and not under Mr. Roosevelt, Barkley explained. The accumulated deficit during Mr. Hoover's Administration was six billion dollars, according to the keynoter, while the national debt has increased ten and one-half billions under Roosevelt. "States and counties and cities threw the relief burden on the Federal doorstep not under Hoover but under Roosevelt," Barkley says.

Out of the increase of ten and one-half billions in the national debt, "we have devoted eight billions dollars to relief and public works and three billions to State and National banks a part of which has been repaid. Out of it have been provided the funds for loans to railroads, insurance companies, industries, cities, counties and States; the refinancing of more than two million homes through the Farm Credit Administration and the Home Owner's Loan Corporation; the establishment of more than 3,800 civilian conservation camps; the stimulation of housing under the housing administration; and the assistance of more than 600,000 farm families to re-establish their ability for self-support." —

The followers of Dr. Townsend, Father Coughlin, and Rev. Gerald Smith, successor to the late Huey Long as the leader of the Share-the-Wealth movement, have formed a third party and chosen Rep. William Lemke of North Dakota as their candidate for President.

This marks the first break from the regular parties and the first formation of a new third party since 1924 when the late Senator Robert ("Fighting Bob") La Follette of Wisconsin bolted the G. O. P. and ran on a Progressive ticket.

This curious combination of economic theorists claims a minimum of 20,000,000 votes—enough to elect their candidate on the basis of the total cast four years ago and the estimated voting strength of the nation this year.

FREAK CALF IN COUNTY CAUSES WIDESPREAD ATTENTION

A freak calf, the property of F. L. Maxwell of near Liberty has attracted considerable attention. Pictures of the calf show the two hind legs deformed, both of them being turned up, and the calf propelled itself about the lot on its knees, in a way. One of the front legs, the right, was also turned up an inward.

Besides being deformed the calf was normal in every other way. The calf only lived about a month or six weeks, and was as spry as any other calves in the lot.

DONKEY SOFTBALL GAMES JULY 2 AND 4

On the nights of July 2 and 4, Thursday and Saturday, local fans will be treated to an exhibition of expert donkey riding and softball combined.

The local Firemen team has made arrangements to have a traveling troupe of trained donkeys here on the above dates. Just who will ride the said donkeys is at present unknown but efforts will be made to have some of the city's best known bronc busters perform for the customers. It may be arranged to have some strong out-of-town softball team meet a team of local all-stars in a regular softball game each of these nights to further please the fans.

The games are to be put on by the Firemen to help pay the expenses of the present softball season. There will be a small admission price and fans should turn out in large numbers on both nights. Final arrangements will be published later. Watch for them.

Softball

Monday night the Firemen brought the ten-game winning streak of Doc's Sandwich shop to an abrupt halt when they outplayed them for a 3-2 victory.

Both teams were minus men that had been playing important parts in the play of their teams all the season but the Firemen seemed to miss theirs the least. Doc's infield made several mental errors to keep that team in hot water in practically every inning but their weak attempts at the bat against Ray's teasing left handed pitching was the biggest reason for their defeat. The winners were favored with some freak hits but their ability to hit in the pinches won them a ball game. Jack Wiggins hit a long home run for Doc's first tally while a kit and an error accounted for the other run.

The defeat left Doc's a game and a half ahead of the smoke eaters, with 7 games left in the first half for the hash-slingers and 8 for the Firemen.

The second game saw as close a score, though a little larger, as was the case in the first game when the Reds won over the Merchants 7-6. Both teams presented a very improved club over their last appearance and both teams will upset someone's plans before the half is over.

The Merchants had two new men in their lineup, Stone, pitcher, and B. D. Anderson third base. The Camp team had several of the baseball players in their lineup and they made a lot of difference in the play of the winners. Anderson of the Merchants lined out a circuit swat in his initial time at bat.

Wednesday night the Whites won on a forfeit from Bugs Rutherford's crew. We can't understand where all the ball players have gone. A few weeks ago seemingly everyone in town wished to play and now Bugs can not get enough out to play. Anyone desiring to play should get in touch with Bugs and tho his crew is hopelessly out of the running for the first half, the team can use the remaining games of this half to get into shape for the second half.

In the second game of the night, Doc's team beat the Merchant's 5-1. The losers rapped Blanton rather freely but could not connect in the pinches while Doc's bunched their hits and slammed the pill out when hits meant runs.

Bradford pitched fair ball for the losers but miscues on the part of his mates kept him in trouble most of the game.

Jones of the Sandwich team hit a home run while Jack Wiggins of the same team hit a triple.

Monday's schedule: Merchants vs. Whites; Fireboys vs. Rutherford's.

Team	won	lost	per cent.
Doc's	11	1	.917
Firemen	8	2	.800
Reds	6	4	.600
Merchants	4	8	.333

World Comment—

Dr. Townsend's pension plan of paying $200 a month to all over 60 is well known to all. Father Coughlin's chief claim to prominence lies in his leadership of the National Union of Social Justice, which favors social security, including old-age pensions (no, however, the Townsend plan) sound currency, and strict neutrality. Reverend Smith is now the head of the Share-the-Wealth organization which claims several million followers. The exponents of this plan would divide all wealth and give each man, woman and child $5,000.

Just why William Lemke was chosen as the party's candidate for the presidency is not known. He was born on a farm in Minnesota, but now represents North Dakota in the House. He is a member of virtually every farm organization in the Northwest. He was co-author of the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage act, which would refinance farm mortgages with three billion dollars of new currency. The act has twice been defeated in Congress.

Although several third parties in addition to the Townsend-Coughlin-Smith or Union party will enter candidates in the national election, the new party holds forth the strongest threat to the regular parties.

Politicians, particularly New Dealers, feared Huey Long, and many believed he would run for President this year on a third-party ticket. Father Coughlin is admittedly a force in the mid-Western area. The refusal of Congress to make the U. S. a member of the World Court at the suggestion of President Roosevelt is attributed to Coughlin and Hiram Johnson, "isolationist" Senator from California.

This year, for the first time, these groups with enormous potential voting strength are going to the electorate with a candidate. In spite of the fact that they have millions of followers, although their strength is greatly exaggerated, their chances of electing William Lemke are small.

The histories of third parties in this country must be discouraging at the outset to the new party. Since 1900 there have been two movements which sought to draw votes from the Republican and Democratic parties. In 1912 Theodore Roosevelt bolted the party when the Taft organization denied him the nomination and organized his Progressive party, better identified by its Bull Moose emblem. Roosevelt exceeded the popular and electoral vote of Taft, candidate of the regular Republican organization, but Woodrow Wilson was elected by a large plurality in the electoral college.

In 1924 Senator La Follette of Wisconsin bolted the G. O. P. when Calvin Coolidge was nominated for a full term and organized a second Progressive party. He received several million votes but won only 13 votes in the electoral college.

Communists, Socialists, and Prohibitionists quadrennially enter candidates for the presidency but seldom receive as many as a million votes. The Socialists are regularly the strongest third party at each election, but their highest total for any election was one million votes accorded Eugene Debs in 1912. In 1932 the socialist candidate polled 881,000 votes and the Communists' nominee 102,000.

CENTENNIAL CONTEST CULMINATES IN THEATRE PARTY

The "Plymouths" of the Pearl White Bible class of the Methodist church entertained the "Pontiacs" last Monday evening with an enjoyable theatre party after having lost in a contest in which the "Pontiacs" were successful in reaching the Texas Centennial first.

The contest had been in progress four months and had done much to arouse interest in the class.

Gathering at Raby Park at 8 o'clock, the group went to the Cozy Cafe where banana splits were served. Following the treat a movie was enjoyed at the Regal Theatre.

Pontiacs present included the Leader R. P. Walker and Mrs. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Ned Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Millard, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Murray, Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Brooks, Elmo Washburn, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Britain, and Mrs. Francis Stout. Plymouths present were Leader Claude Boulware and Mrs. Boulware, Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Milner, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Morue, Mrs. Elmo Washburn, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey Curry, Mrs. Johnnie Washburn, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Whigham, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Gray, Mr. and Mrs.

Lorraine Webb, and Mrs. J. H. Hamilton. Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Zeigler were guests.

Al Jolson, probably the world's greatest entertainer, starring in what is heralded as the most pretentious musical extravaganza in which he has yet appeared, "The Singing Kid," the latest will be the feature attraction at the Regal Theatre on Saturday night at 10:30, Sunday and Monday.

The production is a splendid human interest drama which swings intermittently between rollicking comedy and heart wrenching pathos. It is full of color, glamor and romance, with two great specialty numbers in which scores of beautiful dancing girls appear, and with many catchy new songs.

The first of the big numbers is entitled, "I Love to Sing-a" Jolson and the famous Yacht Club Boys are featured in this number with Al singing the lyrical nonsense which winds up in hilarious and unbridled comedy. Al is also featured in the second big number, but this time with Cab Calloway and his Harlem band, and fifty dusky dancing beauties and their partners. The number is entitled "Save Me, Sister," and starts on a Harlem night club, later dissolving into a colored tabernacle with the colored sisters dancing up "dem golden stairs."

Here Al appears in blackface and sings with Wini Shaw, also made up as a high yellow gal. Calloway sings his "Hi-De-Ho" song, which he wrote himself.

Jolson appears in the role of a great Broadway entertainer, whose gold digging fiancée, after fleeing him of all she can elope with his manager who has cheated Al out of every cent he has saved. To top it all his voice goes back on him and he is rushed off to a summer camp by his doctor.

There he meets a beautiful, but impoverished girl, who thinks she can write but can't. Al and she fall madly in love, but she finds out that he has paid a New York publisher to buy her play, and jilts him. His voice recovered, Al returns to Broadway, but his mind is with the woman he loves. He drives his producer almost insane, until a fortuitous happening turns the situation into an amazing climax.

STUMPIN' THE STATE

With this issue we continue our series of biographical sketches of the candidates for Governor. Last week we told of the platform upon which P. Pierce Brooks of Dallas is basing his campaign, and reviewed the record of Governor James V. Allred. Tom F. Hunter and Roy Sanderford receive the spotlight now, and at a later issue F. W. Fishcer will be introduced to the voters through this column.

TOM F. HUNTER

Tom French Hunter was born forty-five years ago in a tenant farm home in Wise County, Texas. He grew to manhood in extreme poverty and worked as a cowboy in Kent County for a number of years. He taught school as a cowboy school teacher for five years, in the meantime graduating from the old Mayo College in Commerce and the Polytechnic College in Fort Worth. He began the practice of law in 1915, and made an outstanding success within a few years. He has never held public office, but has been vitally interested in politics for more than twenty years, and has led many fights for veic reform in both local and State politics.

Hunter entered the political arena in 1932 when he announced for Governor against Ross Sterling. Pitching a camp near the junction of the Honda and Frio Rivers down in Southwest Texas, the candidate cooked his own meals, baited hooks, and penciled the program which he was afterward to present to the voters in over 200 addresses. When the votes were tallied for the July primary, the effect the program had had upon the electorate was manifest when Hunter's total ran 220,000 to Sterling's 296,000.

It is political history how Mrs. Ferguson defeated Sterling in the second primary, served one term, and retired from the executive mansion.

Hunter's "continuing" candidacy from 1932 was received with enthusiasm by the voters of the State in 1934. With such personalities as Senator Small, Lieutenant Governor Witt, former State Chairman Hughes, and Attorney General Allred in the race, Hunter entered the second primary with Allred with a total of 241,000 to the Attorney General's 296,000. In the second primary he was defeated by 40,000 votes.

Hunter, in his third cam-

J. M. WITCHER ATTENDING COURSE FOR COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS

J. M. Witcher, County Superintendent, left Monday morning for College Station, to attend a three weeks' course for County School Superintendents, going on at A. and M. College.

Mr. Witcher, by mixing with other superintendents and exchanging ideas, and hearing lectures by the best educators, no doubt will bring back many ideas that will aid in the administration of school affairs in this county.

paign for the governorship, presents a three-point program to the voters:

1. Payment of old-age pensions without discrimination to all who are not barred by Constitutional restrictions or precluded by the Federal security act.

2. Levy a gross income tax with exemption of the wage-earning, small-income groups. Abolish the State ad valorem tax and increase State appropriations for a reduction of the school district tax.

3. Administer the pension fund through the commissioners' courts of the several counties, checked by an existing State department rather than by newly created State bureaus or commissions, with an attendant saving of hundreds of thousands for the aged.

Following a tour of the entire state, Mr. Hunter had this to say regarding the outlook for his nomination:

"I think it's a natural."

SEN. ROY SANDERFORD

"From the Heart of Texas into the hearts of the people" is the slogan of Senator Roy Sanderford, farmer boy, student, soldier, business man, statesman, and candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Senator Sanderford was born Oct. 3, 1894, in a small farm house in Bell County. He attended a small one-room country school near Belton and in 1914 graduated from Wedemeyer Academy. For two years he was a student at Baylor University. He was a pursuit pilot in the U. S. Army Air Corps for three years. In 1920 he was elected Tax Collector of Bell County, served two terms, and has since been continuously engaged in business. He was elected to the State Senate in 1932.

Sanderford distinguished himself in the Senate by his leadership for adequate relief legislation, as a member of the Economy Group in the Senate, and as a leader for legislation to protect the homes and property of the people from foreclosure, for the remission of tax penalties and interest, and for tax relief on property and lower interest rates on money.

Sanderford favors strict economy in government and promises to use the executive's veto power to reduce appropriations by twenty-five per cent. "where conditions will justify." He is the only gubernatorial candidate in favor of a sales tax. In his platform he states, "I favor a three per cent retail sales tax for the purpose of paying the Old Age Pension and to take the place of the present real estate taxes for general revenue, schools and Confederate Pensions."

As regards taxes, the Belton Senator declares for a "reasonable" chain store tax, "provided it treats everybody alike and does not exempt any special class of business." In addition, he favors a graduated land tax for county purposes beginning with small valuations. "The Federal Government could render no greater service than to loan $3,000 at 1 1/2 per cent interest on 21 years' time, without down payment, to families with which to buy homes," he says.

Senator Sanderford has been endorsed for the governorship by former Governor James E. Ferguson and Miriam A. Ferguson and the Ferguson Forum is a weekly hammering in his behalf.

Firemen Answer Two Calls Over Week End; Drug Store Damaged

Fire, starting from a gasoline blowtorch being used Mr. J. M. Prewitt in his work shop in the rear of the Gatesville Drug Store, caused damages, estimated at $400, Saturday evening about 8:45 o'clock.

Mr. Prewitt was welding a ring when gasoline blew out at the front of the torch, igniting the floor. He attempted to blow out the flames with blowtorch and almost succeeded, but the fire department was called to complete the extinguishing. Smoke completely filled the store, and caused some damage itself.

Insurance was carried on the equipment lost by Mr. Prewitt.

Sunday morning at 11:35, the fire department answered a call on Negro hill, when Elgin Hasty's home caught fire from a faulty flue. The fire was extinguished before much damage was done.

Laughs Under the Big Top!

Gay crowds are thronging Dallas for the magnificent Centennial Exposition. And why? Well, one good reason is that the Gaineville Community Circus is booked for three shows June 25, 26, and 27, and laughs and thrills will tumble over each other in three big rings of excitement. Juanita Bailey, daring aerialist, is as comfy on a dizzy high wire as she is here in the ample arms of Billy Essinger, caretaker, whose specialty is a hula in a grass skirt. The circus, the only enterprise of its kind in the world, is composed entirely of amateurs drawn from ranks of merchants, waitresses, judges, policemen, Sunday school teachers, and many other classes.

FREEPORT PLANS KINGFISH EVENT JULY 1

Freeport, June 25. — With wide interest in plans for the first Kingfish rodeo on record, to be staged at Freeport July 1

let to 5th, indicates a large coast feature of the Texas Centennial year observance.

While other deep-sea fishing rodeos, roundups and contests have offered prizes for the most or largest fish, the Freeport rodeo will be the first in which the kingfish is elevated to the top. Usually the wily arpon heads the prize list of the finny kingdoms at Gulf rodeos. During a rush day last season when the kings were hitting heavy, more than 1,000 kingfish were landed in a day.

VOLUME IV

GATESVILLE, TEXAS, FRIDAY, JUNE 26, 1936

NUMBER 54

Mrs. Fred Foote Sr., Pioneer Settler Buried Friday at Turnersville

Following an extended illness of eighteen months, Mrs. Fred Foote Sr., passed away on June 18, 1936. Mary Ann Young was born July 8, 1860 and was the daughter of Wm. Ewing and Mary Caufield Young, pioneers of our county and state, Mrs. Young coming to Texas in 1845 and Mary Caufield in 1846. They were married in Robinson County in 1857, coming to Coryell County in 1860, and settled at a spring about five miles from Turnersville. This place is still known as the Young ranch and is owned by his children.

Mary Ann Young was married to Fred Foote Sr., Dec. 30, 1885. As a bride she went to the Foote ranch, which she called home for fifty years, tho she was in Turnersville a few years. At the ranch this couple quietly celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary last Dec. 30.

To this union were born six children. She is survived by her husband and four children: Fred Foote Jr. of Loving, Texas; Mrs. Hazel Boswell, Adrian Foote and Nathaniel Foote of Turnersville; seventeen grandchildren, one great-grandchild; three sisters, Lizzie Freeland, Brownwood, Charlotte Pumphrey, Mercury and Nancy Hickman, Abilene; three brothers, W. F. Young, Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. J. C. Young, Brownwood; and G. T. Young, Turnersville; three step-sisters, Jessie Hopper, Brownwood; Sarah Sears, Oklahoma City, and Fannie Matthews, Huntsville. She is also survived by twenty-six nieces and nephews.

Mrs. Foote was one of a small number who were born and spent almost 75 years in Coryell County. She has seen the vast expanse of open country come under the plow; the transition from the ox wagon to the airplane.

Educational advantages of her day were limited. However, it is hard to find one with a broader knowledge of things in general than she had. Her first and only school house was a log cabin which stood near Tharp's Spring with the late Chauncy Gouddy as her teacher. Because of the danger of outlaws, Mr. Young hired a governess for his children. Many of you will remember Miss Felicia McVea of Gatesville who presided over the Young Ranch children for several years.

Mrs. Foote loved her county and saw in its many resources an opportunity to gather a very valuable collection of geological specimens. She was also interested in collecting stamps, old letters and many other items which are very interesting and of a historical value to Coryell County and her community. It is a pity for us to have to lose her wonderful memory of the history of Central Texas.

On Sept. 4, 1876, Mrs. Foote with her three sisters and mother joined the Unity Presbyterian Church at Turnersville. Her father was a charter member and an officer in this church. For almost sixty years she served her Master in this little church. If Jesus were on earth in the flesh today, how many could bring their garments to show Him her exquisite needlework as they did of Dorcas of old and say "She hath what she could."

Nothing gave her more pleasure than sewing up a ragged tear and making it beautiful, whether it were in a garment or a human heart. Many of the youth of her community would have been denied a higher education had it not been for her financial aid.

Mrs. Foote was a charter member of the Turnersville Chapter of the Eastern Star, to which she devoted much of her time, serving as an officer in various positions of the chapter.

For several years Mrs. Foote has expressed herself as anxiously awaiting her Master's call. Though often racked with pain, she has spent her last few weeks planning and preparing her house for her "last journey."

May we all say with the Psalmist, "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints."

TEXAS COINS BEING SOLD AT CENTENNIAL BOOTH

Dallas, June 25.—Texas Centennial half-dollars are being sold in the Varied Industries Building at the Texas Centennial Exposition, the booth having been recently opened, it was announced here by Beauford H. Jester, general chairman of the Coin Campaign, proceeds from which are being used to build The Texas Memorial Museum on the campus of the University of Texas in Austin.

The coins are also being sold at hotels, drug stores and department stores throughout the State, it was announced. Within a short time the coins will be available to those wishing them in any city in the entire State.

Ground for the Memorial was broken recently by President Franklin D. Roosevelt. The building will be rushed to an early completion and will be ready to receive the exhibits now on display in the University Centennial Exposition.

CATTLE COUNTRY THRILLS PLANNED AT FALFURIAS

Falfurrias, June 25.—Real cattle country spirit will prevail in this Brooks County seat on July 3 and 4 when the 8th annual barbecue and amateur rodeo is presented under the auspices of the local American Legion as one of the more than 250 Centennial year celebrations in Texas.

The Falfurrias rodeo has become famous throughout the southwest for the large number of skilled amateur contestants which it attracts each year. Calf roping (both breakaway and tie-down) wild cow milking, bronco riding, cow pony racing and other rodeo events are on the program. More than 200 cowboys and cowgirls will take part in the big opening parade on the morning of July fourth. Decorated floats and vehicles, portraying the "Old West at its Best," also will be in the parade.

A new dance pavillion is being constructed for use during the celebration.

L. A. Parton, Candidate For County Judge Has Word to County Voters

I am taking this opportunity to thank the people for the kindness shown me since announcing my candidacy for County Judge of Coryell County, and if I have failed to see you personally I assure you that it was my misfortune, for I am earnestly endeavoring to see each and every voter in the County. Would like to state that I am not running for the office on promises, for I feel that the people of Coryell County have had their fill of promises, and am sure that the voters would appreciate a deal of accomplishments instead of a bunch of promises that no living man could fulfill, and if elected to the office of County Judge, I promise only one thing, to serve the entire County with fairness and justice, and steer clear of any clique or clan which may serve as a dictatorship.

Respectfully,

L. A. Parton.

RULES FOR CHESS

First, Chess is played on a regular checker board. The men are placed on both sides of the board, (whites and blacks). Beginning at the first line of spaces, at the "slip corner" the men are placed on BOTH white and black spots as follows: Rook or Castle on first white spot in corner; then Knight or Horse on first black spot to first Rook; then Bishop on next white; King on next black; Queen on White; Bishop on black; Knight on white; Castle on black. The eight Pawns go immediately in front of this first line of men, on both the black and white spots. The other side of the board is set up the same, and the Queen is always on "color," or the white Queen on the white spot and the black Queen on the black spot.

In chess, men may be taken, not by leaping over them, is in checkers, bu by occupying the space in which they stand.

MOVES: A pawn moves forward only, the first move being one or two squares; after the first move the pawn can move only one square.. A pawn may take any man belonging to the enemy by moving one space diagonally to the square occupied by that man.

Knight has eight moves—two squares forward, and one square sideways in either direction; two squares backward and one square (in the same move) sideways in either direction; two to the left and one square either forward or backward; and 2 squares to the right and one square eithr forward or backward. As a knight map leap over any intervening man it is evident that he can remove a man of the enemy from any one of the eight spaces.

A bishop moves angularly any number of spaces forward or backward on the color on which it was originally placed.

The rooks move any number of spaces, as far as the line is clear either forward, backward or sideways.

The Queen has the moves both of bishops and rooks.

The King may move in any direction, one square at a time (except in castling). Each king is permitted to castle one during the game. The player moves his rook to the square next the king, then leaps his king over the rook to the square on the other side.

A player is not compelled to take a man within reach; but may refuse, if to his own advantage. When the king is situated so that he can be taken at the next move by an adversary's man he is said to be "in check." If the player is unable to avoid the attack by taking the king to a place of safety, he is "checkmated," and loses the game. Any man properly situated may attack the opposing king. The king is also able to take any man of the enemy. If neither player is able to checkmate his opponent's king, the game is drawn.

It it not practicable to explain the rules of chess in a-brief article, but a full explanation with illustrative games may be found in Hoyle's Book of Games.

RULES FOR CHECKERS

The game is played on squares of a single color. In the beginning the board is placed so that each player shall have a double or "slip" corner at his right hand, the same as chess.

The 12 men each player has are arranged in 3 rows so as to occupy the first three rows from the back of the board, men placed on the blacks only.

MOVES: The men may move either diagonally direction forward, or toward the opponent. When a man has penetrated the opponent's back line of men, or has moved to a spot on the opponent's back line, he has reached the "king row" and becomes a king. He should be crowned by a second "checker." This entitles him to also move backward.

JUMPS: Whenever a man finds an adversary on the next diagonal square with a vacant square beyond, he may jump over and take that man, thus removing him from the board. The object of the game is to remove the men of on's adversary from the board, or to block them so that they cannot move. When the number of men on each side has been so reduced that there is no hope of either player winning, the game is said to be drawn. Any number of onlookers may be present, but it is considered a want of etiquette to assist either player.

History of Checkers.

The origin of the game is buried in antiquity. It is an ancient game with the Chinese, and was well known to the Egyptians, Greeks, and Romans. A curious bit of sculpture on the wall of a chamber in ancient Thebes represents Rameses III playing a game of checkers with a goddess. The earliest description of the game in English is dated 1566.

History of Chess

The game is said to be of Hindu origin. It was played in Hindustan 5,000 years ago. The Arabs learned the game from the Persians and introduced it into Spain and Western Europe.

Chapter One

David Langston was building a house on his farmstead. To him it was the natural and expected fruit of his love for the land. To plough a furrow, to sow the seed, to gather in his harvest, made the acceptable cycle of life and to have a home of his own was the crowning fulfillment. Being young and shy and inarticulate, he did not carry the dream further, to include in the picture a wife and children of his own. Tilling his fields, searching the Lamberlost swamp for herbs from which Dr. Carey would compound medicine for the little community, sharing with friends and neighbors good times and bad, made a pattern he had not thought of changing.

But to David's neighbors in the Lamberlost country, the building of a house signified matrimonial plans and prospects. In that rural Indian countryside, removed from city contacts, there were few themes for conversation or gossip. In this year of nineteen hundred and ten no miracle of radio knit their lives in a world-wide neighborhood. For them the center of interest lay in their crops, the progress of the seasons, and birth and death—romance and marriage.

And so, all unsuspected by David, from the first breaking of ground for his little farmhouse, tongues started their busy wagging: For whom was he building it? Stubby Pratt, the local barber, Miss Sophronia, the village seamstress, Jack Ebben, proprietor of the General Store, and neighboring farmers and gossiping wives, all put their heads together over the burning question: Whom was David Langston going to marry?

Even Mrs. Biddle, who lived down in the center of town and was by way of being the village autocrat as well as the ruling voice in her own family, gave the matter thoughtful consideration on behalf of her daughter, Thelma. But there were some who held that David's secret love was pretty Ruth Jameson, the orphan girl who, with her little sister, Naomi, lived with Granny Moreland, next door to David's farm.

His "Best Girl"

The barn, of course, was finished first, just when the first frost had touched the corn and the pumpkins were moons of golden splendor. And David invited his friends to celebrate in a husking bee. As they met in the gaily decorated barn, little groups gathered in excited conference—how could they make David reveal his secret? It was Stubby Pratt who conceived the brilliant idea of sneaking a red ear of corn into the pile David was husking. When you stripped a red ear, you had to kiss the girl you loved!

And so, when David innocently husked the fateful ear, he felt his own ears reddening with embarrassment as voices avidly demanded: "Kiss your best girl, Dave!" And others babbled knowingly: "Now we'll find out who you're building that house for!"

Uncomfortably David glanced at the ring of faces about him. Thelma Biddle rolled her eyes invitingly and patted her blonde hair. She didn't want a farmer husband, but her mother had admonished her to set her cap for David, if she didn't want to be an old maid like Miss Sophronia! And Ruth Jameson, as David's eyes met hers with a trapped expression, flushed and caught her breath.

But already his troubled glance had passed her by and now a smile of relief lighted his face. Jumping to his feet he ran to the imp, Naomi, busily purloining a doughnut from the table. Lifting her up, chair and all, he kissed her heartily. "Naomi is my best girl!" he declared heartily.

Stubby shook his head in disapproval. "Pretty foxy, David! But we'll catch you yet!"

But David only laughed, naively unaware that, as a home builder, he had ceased to be a free and independent farmer! When the party was over he put the drowsy Naomi into a wheelbarrow to take her home, walking happily along with Ruth and Granny Moreland and his shaggy dog, Belshazzar.

"Look, Dave—" Ruth said softly, breathlessly, "the hunter's moon!"

Dave nodded absently, unconscious of the hungry heart that walked beside him, unaware of the adoration in the girl's uplifted eyes. His dreams were sweet but they were formless, disembodied, and the enchantment of the night took no certain shape for him.

Tell-Tale Twenty-One

Meanwhile, in the Biddle home, the most ornate that Twin Forks boasted and the height of rural elegance, Mrs. Biddle took Thelma to task.

"There were six red ears tonight, and not a single young man tried to kiss you—except that Lige Brown," she complained, as they undressed before the bedroom stove. "The neighbors are beginning to wonder why you don't get married."

Thelma shook her blonde head defiantly. "I don't like farmers! I want to live in the city..." "Your father was a farmer when I married him," her mother reminded her complacently. "But I never let him have a moment's peace till I got him in the real estate business. Now David Langston," she went on pointedly, "is the easy-going kind, too. Any clever girl can mould him, if her heart's in it. You'll be twenty-one in three weeks," she combed her hair vigorously, "and you've got to find a husband!"

Thelma looked troubled. "David is right nice-looking," she mused.

"Now you're being clever!" Her mother kissed her approvingly. "David is the most likely young man in Twin Forks—his farm is clear—he's building a nice house. If you manage right, you can be the bride he carries across the threshold!"

"Tell you what we'll do," she went on, drawing her nightgown over her head and slipping off her clothes beneath it, "we'll have a birthday party for you—and you give him a little encouragement. He'll propose."

"It would be fun—" Thelma sighed, "to be carried across the threshold..."

"You'll make a lovely bride," Mrs. Biddle said, in the tone of one who has settled everything to her complete satisfaction.

But in bed, with the last lamp extinguished and the house quiet, she lay awake for some hours, weaving careful plans to achieve her purpose. Cruel plans—but matchmaking mamas know no pity! She had not missed Ruth's blush in that tense moment, nor the breathless hope in the girl's eager eyes. But she could handle that... Granny Moreland was poor, and the support of the two orphaned girls was a drain on her meagre resources... She would, Mrs. Biddle determined craftily, present herself in the light of a benefactor, offering Ruth a home with her and ten dollars a month besides—they were in no position to refuse that offer! Then, once established in their home in a menial position, they could keep Ruth out of David's way. On the night of Thelma's birthday party, she could be kept busy in the kitchen. The rest would be easy... Smiling contentedly, she fell asleep.

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL By Dr. ALLEN G. IRELAND Director, Physical and Health Education New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

READING FAILURES

Because reading is so significant, it is the object of much discussion and scientific investigation. As a result many of the reasons for disabilities in reading among children are coming to light. We realize now how important these revelations are when we remember that the reading skills of a lifetime are formed in the early school days, and once established it is practically impossible to change them.

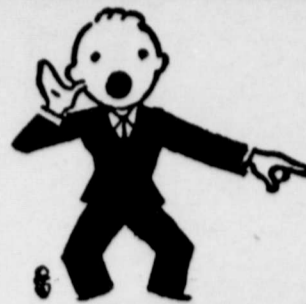

At the outset, the poor reader is discouraged. School is uninteresting—or worse, a terrifying experience. He feels inferior and wants to leave school early.

In high school or college, the poor reader is seriously handicapped. In business or in the professions, he remains in the group labelled failures, or, at best, mediocre. And the sad part of it is, he doesn't know why. Only recently have educators discovered the several causes. Today, the progressive school is attacking this problem early and seriously. Soon every school will do likewise, the sooner the better.

Defective vision has always been known as a cause of reading failure, but now we realize that the ordinary eyesight test does not tell the whole story. Accordingly the scientists are developing special apparatus and tests for the specific purpose of finding reading disability. I strongly urge every teacher to become familiar with these and to adopt them routinely as rapidly as possible.
