HARVEY SADLER BURIED SUNDAY, JUNE 28

Harvey Sadler, who died at 5:40 o'clock Saturday morning June 27 at his home on main street was buried at the city cemetery at 4 o'clock Sunday June 28.

Mr. Sadler was born at Grandville, Tenn., June 1, 1862 and was married to Miss Loure Jarrett March 24, 1876. Eight children were born to this happy couple and seven remain to mourn his going. He became a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church at the age of fifteen and lived a true christian life.

Rev. C. A. Morton of the First Baptist Church of this city, conducted the funeral services which were held at the church and also the services at the grave.

Deceased is survived by his widow; three sons, Carl and Van of Waco and Frank of Houston, and four daughters, Mrs. J. C. McElhannon of Huntsville, Misses Louise, Vera, and Estelle of Gatesville, and four grandchildren, will and Betty Ann Sadler and Joe Carl McElhannon. One brother, Herschel Sadler of Gatesville and a sister, Mrs. Frank Burton of Nashville, Tennessee, neither of whom were present, survive.

Pall bearers were Messrs. Leake Ayres, Howard Compton, C. E. Gandy, J. M. Prewitt, Francis Powell, and Johnnie Reesing.

TWO GATESVILLE WOMEN FIGURE IN ACCIDENT NEAR HILLSBORO

Mrs. Ray Curtsinger and Mrs. Clark Jenson and her small daughter of this city figured in an unfortunate car wreck near Hillsboro late yesterday afternoon. From the meager information reaching Gatesville, we understand that one child in the other car in the wreck was seriously hurt. However, neither Mrs. Curtsinger, Mrs. Jenson nor her daughter were injured beyond bruises and abrasions.

Mrs. Jenson's husband is an engineer at the local CCC Camp and Mr. Curtsinger is pharmacist at a local drug store. Both the husbands rushed to Hillsboro immediately on receipt of the news of the wreck.

STORES DON'T KNOW WHAT TO DO THE "FOURTH"; BANKS CLOSE

Gatesville merchants, at this hour, are at a loss to know exactly what to do with Saturday, July 4. In the "rounds" today, some said, "We're going to stay open," some said "We're going to close Saturday," some said "We're going to close Saturday," some said "We're going to close Tuesday." Some said, "We're not going to close at all." Some have advertised when they will close, some did not.

The three banks, unanimous in everything, especially holidays, said "We're going to close Saturday." A newspaper doesn't know when it will close—probably never, so we simply can't say.

LOCAL GIRL TO VISIT LAND OF HULA DANCES AND GRASS SKIRTS

Miss Katherine Gordon, daughter of Boone Gordon of this city leaves Wednesday of this week for Honolulu and the Hawaiian Islands for an extended tour. The itinerary includes points between Gatesville, Pettus, and San Francisco.

Miss Gordon will be accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Morris Roberts, and Mr. and Mrs. George Ray of Pettus, who will leave Pettus Monday, July 6, leaving from San Francisco on the motor ship Malola, July 11, one of the newer ships of the Dollar Steamship lines.

CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY WITH PICNIC ON CORYELL

A group of friends and relatives met on Coryell Creek Sunday, June 28, to celebrate the birthdays of Mrs. John Barton and Mr. Tom Barton.

At noon a bountiful lunch was spread and the birthday cake was cut. The afternoon was spent in playing games and swimming.

Those who enjoyed the occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. John Barton and sons; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Barton and family; Mr. and Mrs. George Loer and family; Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Barton and sons; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Barton, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Carver and daughters; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Barton; Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Barton and daughter, all of the Mountain community; Dick Jackson of Buster, and Mr. and Mrs. Dossy Barton of Gatesville.

LIONS GROUP MEETING TO HOLD HERE NEXT FALL

In a meeting of Group 15 of District 2X, Lions International, held in Temple on the Kyle mezzanias roof June 18 Judge Floyd Zeigler of this city made an invitation, which was accepted, to have the next meeting here. The date of the meeting has not been set but will probably be some time in September.

L. L. Wilkes, superintendent of the schools of Hubbard, was elected chairman of the group, with Bill Baine of Waco, retiring chairman, presiding at the business meeting with Maynard Robinson of Temple president in charge.

At the Lions luncheon held here last Wednesday, it was decided that the meeting to be held here would be an annual ladies' night, with the wives of members being honored on that occasion.

COUNTRY HOME BURNED NEAR IRELAND FRIDAY NIGHT

The country home of Mr. and Mrs. Burnell, between Ireland and Aleman was destroyed by fire about 9 o'clock Friday night.

Mr. Burnell made a desperate effort to put out the flames by pouring water on them from a large tank but they got too great a start on him and when he realized his effort were not doing any good the flames had gotten such great headway that he was unable to save any of their household effects; everything was a total loss.

BAND CONCERT THURSDAY NITE IN RABY PARK

According to D. W. Diserns, bandmaster of this city, there will be a band concert Thursday nite of this week in the city park, starting at 8:15.

Mr. Diserns and his band played a concert Saturday nite, and was received by an enthusiastic crowd. Everyone is invited to attend these concerts, which will be throughout the summer months.

H. S. COMPTON HAS NEW MEMBER IN INSURANCE BUSINESS

Horace K. Jackson of Seymour has moved to Gatesville, arriving here Sunday, and has complete business arrangements with Howard S. Compton of this city whereby he becomes a member of the insurance firm operated here for many years by Mr. Compton.

To make his home here Mr. Jackson brings with him his family, consisting of Mrs. Jackson and children, Hallie Joe, J. O., and Horace K. Jr. Mrs. Jackson will be remembered as the former Miss Bessie Earl Gilder, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gilder.

Mr. Jackson has been in the insurance business in Seymour for a number of years, and was also City Secretary there.

CHARLEY BAKER LEASES PEEL CAFE

Charley Baker, who for the past several months has operated a fruit stand, will take over the operation of the Peel Cafe July 1, and will operate his fruit business in connection with the cafe business.

Mr. Baker states that the cafe will be "up to date" in every way, and wants all his fruit customers to call on him at his new location.

P. Pierce Brooks Spoke Monday on Candidacy For Governor's Race

P. Pierce Brooks, Dallas business man, candidate for Governor of Texas spoke here yesterday from the top of his novel campaign car which is equipped with loud speakers and a speaker's platform on top of his car. He charged Gov. James V. Allred with "carelessness, inefficiency, extravagance, waste and extreme unfairness." This unfairness Brooks said, "is very obvious in the Governor's refusal to provide funds for payment of old age pensions, while at the same time paying thousands of dollars each month, which rightfully belongs to the aged of this State, maintaining a political machine supposedly to make inspections of pension applications."

Mr. Brooks pledged to the voters here to exercise all his ability and 20 years' experience in business affairs in placing the State Government upon a good sound and conservative business basis.

Brooks said on the subject of old age pensions: "I will comply with the requirements of the mandate of the people of Texas at the polls in 1935, and provide measures to raise funds to immediately pay pensions to all over 65 years of age, and offer a referendum to the people to include pensions to all over 60. Under the present nullifying plan engineered by Allred, the mandate of the people as well as his own expressed promise has not been carried out.

He said the question had come to him from all over the State: "From what source will you provide old age pension funds?" His answer to this question is simply this, he said, "I have devised the only sensible and workable plan of taxation which will not fall on the shoulders of the people. A widespread gross receipts tax which will cover all big business and exclude only small business men and salaried employees over the State will not over tax any interest but will tax equitably every large corporation and big interest over the State, and will raise sufficient funds to meet the payments of pensions to all over 65."

Concerning his proposal to pass to the motorist of Texas a tax free automobile license plate, Brooks, said, "twenty-five states in the union had a lower license fee than Texas. The average car owner of Texas pays to the State Treasury in direct taxes approximately 30 percent of his car valuation, which is far more than and individual or corporation pays on any form of property that he owns."

Brooks made it clear that his plan would not take any funds from the various counties for retirement of road bonds. "The increased revenue from the sale of gasoline has amounted to from 3 million to 5 million dollars each year; this amount will offset any loss from tax free license plates. Under my plan there will be only a small registration fee of $1 to $2 for each license plate," Mr. Brooks said.

Brooks said he would inaugurate a State Department of Real Estate and Industry composed of business men from various sections of the State, without salary, to cooperate with Government Offices and Workers at A. and M.

When the Federal Government's new business with farmers came into the State of Texas four months ago, action and speed became the keynote of the agricultural center at the Agricultural and Mechanical College.

The two-wing building shown in the upper left, was built by the A. and M. College in which to house the 325 trained workers of the general Auditing and General Accounting divisions. It has 18,820 square feet of floor space.

The brick building on the campus of A. and M. College, shown upper right, with a floor space of 4,000 square feet, was rapidly turned into the disbursing office, a branch of the U. S. Treasury with a personnel of 83 who are busy writing checks for the Texas farmers participating in the various agricultural programs.

Lower left to right—Here are the 325 men and women carrying on the auditing and accounting work of clearing the remaining old AAA contracts, the checking and certifying of the Cotton Price Adjustment program applications and the working out of the details of the Agricultural Conservation program with its more than 300,000 farmer cooperators.

A majority of the work of these divisions, during the last few months, has been on the Cotton Price Adjustment Program. An average of 4,000 Cotton Price Adjustment applications per day are being certified for payment, amounting in number up to date to 186,000 and totaling $6,880,503.28.

Lower middle—The State Agricultural Conservation Committee holding its first meeting at A. and M. College to plan for the tabulation of the work sheets of the 300,000 farmers who have indicated their intention to cooperate in the 1936 Agricultural Conservation Program.

WORLD COMMENT

By JOE BURNS

To Herbert Hoover, the platform written at Cleveland by the G. O. P. was more important that the candidate chosen to bear the party standard.

To William E. Borah, the choice of the party nominee was of more importance than the platform.

To the man of the street, Borah was right, for a comparison of pledges and promises made at Cleveland and Philadelphia shows the two parties in agreement on more issues than there is disagreement.

The money, labor, agriculture, foreign affairs, and monopoly planks of the two platforms are essentially the same but with some minor differences. On the other hand, there is a great difference of opinion between the donkey and the elephant on unemployment, the tariff, and government finance.

Both platforms advocate a strong currency but the Republicans add "restoration to Congress of authority to regulate its value" to their plank. Both platforms pledge to deal with problems of monopoly, maximum hours, minimum wages, child labor, and working conditions in industry "with or without the Constitution." With or without the Constitution means by a Constitutional amendment.

As to agriculture, both parties promise a continuation of soil conservation with benefit payments. In addition, the Democrats pledge "government aid in debt refinancing, crop adjustment, and commodity loans," and the Republicans for "an export bounty on crops with production beyond domestic consumption."

Opposition to war and foreign alliances and the promotion of peace are pledged in both platforms. Monopoly comes in for bitter castigation with a promise in both platforms to enforce the anti-trust law.

The traditional advocate of states' rights, the Democratic party, declares for national handling of the unemployment problem "with state and local co-operation." The Republicans are for local handling of relief problem with the chief burden of financing to fall to the states and counties but with Federal grants to the states "while the need exists."

The controversial issue of reciprocal trade agreements continues in the party platforms with the Democratic pledge to a continuation of the agreements "to eliminate tariff quota and embargo barriers against American exports" and the Republicans just as firmly declaring for a repeal of the acts and "restoration of the flexible tariff and use of the tariff to balance agriculture against other industries."

Government finance has been a debatable issue since Roosevelt took office three and a half years ago. The G. O. P. platform promises to "stop the folly of uncontrolled spending," to balance the budget by cutting expenditures, to revise the federal tax system "for raising revenue and not for punitive or political purposes." The Democrats in their platform claim that deflation is stopped, and that the next step is to reduce the expenses of government. They promise retrenchment with a tax and recovery program directed toward "a balanced budget and the reduction of the national debt at the earliest possible moment."

The "repudiated" plank of the 1932 Democratic platform

STREET WORKING

We've been trying out some of the "backer" streets of the city lately, and notice, very agreeably, that their contour has been smoothed out, there are no longer terraces, drainage structures, and over-falls, permeating these streets.

This certainly is gratifying! It's not always "putting up a good front" that identifies a city or town. Take the side-streets, and see how the bumps go, and that'll be a better indication of "how the cow ate the cabbage" than anything we know of.

Not leaving out "Main" streets, they also have had numerous holes filled, and other changes made which also show that we are still progressing. Now, another good idea to go with all this is that delayed "Spring Clean-up Campaign." It's not too late to have it yet, and the Centennial visitors are going to be on us soon!

NO MEDAL FOR TACT

Although it's no time now for democrats to be differing among themselves, yet there's bound to be some justifiable criticism directed at blunt and tactless Jim Farley, commander-in-chief of the democratic party's battle forces.

Farley's top-sargeant attitude is calculated to ruffle the calmness of many of the president's friends. A case recently at point is Farley's crack after Landon's nomination by the republican party, in which Farley referred to Landon as a nonentity from a typical prairie state.

That was a first class bad break as a political maneuver, in our estimation. The intended slur at the west and at the prairie states in particular doesn't smack in the least of the act that a party chief is expected to make.

The remark is reported to have been written into Farley's speech by the democratic press agent, Charles Michelson. It also is reported to have been cut out by the president's private secretary, Stephen Early, when the statement was submitted to him before issuance.

Michelson put it back in and Farley said it. The result was a blow at the democratic party's campaign operation. It hurt the party in the prairie states.

Farley is a great executive, an astute politician, and No. 1 campaign manager. But you can't hand him any medals for tact.—Temple Daily Telegram.

HOW TO PLANT ROSES

Kingsville.—Roses planted in a bed only 24 inches apart are easier to water and cultivate, according to Mrs. D. M. Warner, Rivera home demonstration club member of Kleberg county. She also stated, "As the tops develop, shade is provided for the roots of the plants." Mrs. Warner arranged the rose varieties so that they would harmonize when they bloom.

MAX A. BLAU CONTOUR

Lipscomb. — Max A. Blum, farmer of the Booker community in Lipscomb county, was so well pleased with results obtained by contouring his cultivated land that he has contour listed all of his pasture, consisting of 130 acres, according to C. M. Gay, county agricultural agent.

Blau ran his furrows seven feet apart and in strips of four furrows or 28 feet wide.

He said, "The ideal time to contour list a pasture is during the growing season, preferably in the spring of the year, during a rainy spell. A better job of listing can be done when it is wet and less of the grass turf will be destroyed.

LEM KEITH HAS FARM PLAN

Dublin.—Lem Keith has plowed under a two foot growth of sweet clover. He planted this land to peas and plans to plow them under later, according to Mark Buckingham, Erath county agricultural agent.

Keith remarked recently, "While I am following mire soil-building practices than I will receive payments for from the government, I have followed such a plan for 20 years and have never been paid except through my yields for doing so." According to a statement by the county agricultural agent, Keith sold $1,500 worth of Irish potatoes from his farm last year.

F. B. Shannon, farmer of the Chalk Mountain community also in Erath county, is diverting 103 acres but plans to plant 152 acres of Sudan grass. He has already terraced about 50 acres of field land planted five acres of crop land to permanent pasture and he plans to do some additional terracing and same pasture contours this year.

Increase in shipping has resulted in the reduction of Suez canal tolls.

BISCUITS

Buttermilk Biscuits

Three cups flour, 6 tablespoons shortening, 1 1/2 cups buttermilk, 1/2 teaspoon soda, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt.

Sift flour, baking powder, soda and salt together three times. Cut in shortening with edge of knife, then add milk to make stiff dough. Toss on well floured dough board, roll out 1/2 inch thick, cut out and place in well greased pan. Brush top with melted butter and bake in hot oven 450 degrees F. until golden brown.

CHEESE BISCUITS

Two cups flour, 4 tablespoons shortening 1-3 cup grated cheese, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, sweetmilk.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together five times. Cut the grated cheese with edge of knife. Add slowly cutting constantly, just enough milk to make stiff dough. Roll out 1/2 inch thick on floured board. Cut with small cutter and bake on greased tin for ten minutes in hot oven 450 degrees F. Nice to serve with salads, tea or coffee at informal parties.

DROP BISCUITS

Three cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 4 tablespoons melted shortening, and sweet milk.

Sift flour, salt, baking powder and sugar together twice. Add melted shortening to milk, then add flour to mixture. Beat thoroughly. Drop from spoon into buttered pan; bake in a hot oven until a golden brown.

AUSTIN CENTENNIAL SHOWS TEXAS LILIES

Austin, June 25.—A large collection of water lilies, chiefly tropical varieties, has been given the University of Texas by A. J. Proebstle of Brazoria. Many of these lilies are now in bloom in seven ponds on the campus, making an attractive show for visitors to the University Centennial Exposition.

This blooming display supplements the large collection of botanical material in Gregory Gymnasium, in which appears 292 plates of water color paintings of Texas wild flowers, done in natural colors by Mrs. Helm Mott Wills of Georgia. Mrs. Wills is a former Texan, having lived in both San Antonio and Abilene. In the plates are 350 species.

"WE ALWAYS SELL FOR LESS"

GATESVILLE, TEXAS

THERE IS YET HOPE FOR TOWNS AND SMALL CITIES

A friend who came to Dallas from a black land town, said: "This is a noble effort, to bring back life and prosperity to our towns and little cities. But we must face facts. It can't be done. Take the case of my home town. In years gone by, it was a prosperous farming town. Today, with a ribbon of concrete to the big city, its doom is sealed."

Another friend—a prominent little city business man, said: "I admire your enthusiasm. But it can't be done. With our soil depleted, with the automobile and the concrete road carry our trade away, there is no hope for the town or little city; no opportunity for the ambitious boy."

After 26 years work in and with town and little cities, we answer: "There is no economic justification for the decay of any well located farming town or little city. On the other hand our larger cities, like Waco, Fort Worth and Dallas, cannot hold their own, much longer, unless prosperity comes again to our towns and little cities. In fact, the future prosperity of Texas demands renewed prosperity for our town and little cities. It will be a long hard fight. But growth and prosperity will come again to our town and little cities—when we give the same thought to their building that, during the past 3 decades we have given to the building of our larger cities. It can be done."

The Centennial contest for Better Towns and Cities is focusing attention on this all important problem. It is problem deserving the most serious thought of all, from the Governor to the humblest citizen.

The larger cities can help. But the solution must come out of the town to be helped.

We are gratified at the wide spread interest. From Falls county to the Red River—from Seymour to Louisiana line, civic leaders are responding.

The Kessler Plan Association, Dallas, is working out plans in cooperation of towns and small cities whereby they will be able to regain all or a part of their lost prosperity and size they had before the advent of automobiles and good roads.

POSTS SERVE DOUBLE PURPOSE

Pecos. — Mrs. Fern Tatom, food supply demonstrator of the Mounahans home demonstration club in Ward county, is making her grape vine posts serve a dual purpose.

She planted grapes on the north side of her house and posts were put up for the grapevines to grow on. She decided that as the grapevines would not grow very tall this season, she would plant a row of peas and beans on each side of the grapevines, thus saving water and making a double use of the posts.

Mrs. Tatom has also put over 200 tomato plants. Other vegetables in her garden include black-eyed peas, okra, string beans, corn, squash, watermelons and cantaloupes.

This demonstrator has also started a small orchard consisting of pears, peaches, and pecans.

Refrigeration Sets New High In Electricity Consumption

The remarkable development of equipment to generate, distribute and harness electricity since its earliest form in about 1850, is shown in this chart from "An Economist's Appraisal of Domestic Electric Refrigeration," published by The Temperature Research Foundation of Kelvinator Corporation.

Electrical equipment has been converted to our use in countless ways—commercial and domestic refrigerators, refrigerator cars, steel mills, automobile starting systems, beauty parlors, radio programs, x-rays, vacuum cleaning, dental offices, elevators, to mention only a few.

Regarding the growth of the refrigerator industry since the first electric refrigerator was produced by Kelvinator Corporation, the pamphlet notes that the rate of growth of electric refrigeration "set new high records—even for this miraculous industry." It also points out that "rapid growth of the numbers of refrigerators has not surrendered to business depression."

This authoritative study by Warren M. Persons, Ph. D., noted statistician and economist, is available along with other publications of Kelvinator's foundation, without charge, upon request to The Temperature Research Foundation of Kelvinator Corporation, 450 Lexington Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

"I AIN'T going to Chicago any more," a kinda sick-looking guy says to his neighbor in Iowa who he got back from a visit. "Oh, ain't you? What's the matter with Chicago?" "Well," he says, "maybe it's me and maybe it's Chicago, but I ain't fit to take the risk. I went down there last week and got my leg broke in four places." "Well, that's like you," says the neighbor. "It's time you'd learn to stay out of them places, or anyhow to stay out of the fourth one after they'd broke your leg already in all three of the others. I'd say it's just as much your fault as Chicago's." (American News Features, Inc.)

Social At Baptist Church.

Following a very profitable week of study the B. T. U.

members of the Baptist Church enjoyed a social Friday evening in the banquet hall of the First Baptist Church.

Mrs. C. A. Morton, general director of the Union, was assisted in the entertainment by Miss Irma Lee Rutherford.

Three very amusing stunts were presented and enjoyed by all present.

To show that everyone was joined in Christian unity, a large circle was formed and the lovely old hymn "Blest Be the Ties That Bind" was sung. Refreshments of orange juice was served.

FIRST WEDDING CEREMONY IN NEW BAPTIST CHURCH SUNDAY MORNING

Miss Belva Gene Johnson, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Johnson, became the bride of J. M. Pancake, popular young business man of Gatesville and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Pancake of the Pancake community near Turnersville. The ceremony took place Sunday morning, June 28, at the First Baptist Church of this city, with the Pastor, Rev. C. A. Morton, officiating.

The altar was adorned with ferns and palms. Miss Mamie Sue Holbrook played the prelude, "On Wings of Song" and accompanied Miss Verona Franks who sang "Because," as the prenuptial solo, and "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms," during the ceremony. Miss Halbrook played the wedding march from Lohengrin and Mendelssohn.

Ushers were Messrs. K. B. Watson and Wesley Webb, Durwood Taylor, the groom's best man and Miss Rozelle Gough, the maid of honor, who wore a pink net dress over pink taffeta with pink accessories, with a corsage of rosebuds and baby's breath, entered together marching down the center aisle and crossed to the altar. The bride entered down the left aisle and wore a lovely afternoon frock of navy blue triple sheer lined with shark skin with navy and white accessories. Her arm bouquet combined pink sweetheart roses and lillies.

The groom wearing a dark brown business suit came down the right aisle, met the bride at the altar.

Miss Halbrook wore a beige net over peach taffeta with brown accessories and Miss Franks a powder blue ensemble with pink accessories and both wore corsages of rosebuds and baby's breath.

Miss Johnson was a popular member of the younger set and attended the Gatesville High School of which she is a graduate.

Mr. Pancake is a graduate of Turnersville High School, 1931. He was formerly associated with Pat Olsen's Garage but now is manager of the T-P station on West Leon street.

Mr. and Mrs. Pancake left immediately after the ceremony for a honeymoon trip, destination unknown. On their return they will make their home in Gatesville.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Pancake, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Foote of Turnersville, and the sister of the groom, Mrs. Otis Crawford and husband of Turnersville.

sively made up of new faces and before the campaign is under way the same situation will exist within the ranks of the G. O. P.

Nowhere in evidence at Philadelphia were such old-time Democrats as Owen D. Young, former secretary of war Newton D. Baker, Bernard M. Baruch, and William Gibbs McAdoo. Nor were three former Democratic nominees, James M. Cox, John W. Davis, and Alfred E. Smith, among the leaders at the Philadelphia meet. Joseph P. Ely, prominently mentioned as a presidential candidate in 1932 and at that time Governor of Massachusetts, joined with Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State under President Wilson, James A. Reed, Senator from Missouri from 1910 to 1929, and Daniel F. Cohalan, New York lawyer, in a message to the Democratic convention calling on the delegates to "put aside" Roosevelt and substitute same "genuine Democrat." Oklahoma's former Governor, William H. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray visited with Governor Landon at his Topeka home and announced that he would vote the Republican ticket this year. New York's Senator Royal S. Copeland took his "walk" from the party and issued a statement declaring he would not attend the convention in spite of the fact that he had been elected a delegate.

Although certain elements of the Republican Old Guard still remain in the National Committee, Governor Landon and his followers are in complete control of the Republican organization and will run the campaign in their own way.

Herbert Hoover addressed the Cleveland convention at the invitation of John D. M. Hamilton, the Landon campaign leader and the new national chairman. Little was seen at Cleveland of Oregon's Senator McNary, the minority leader of the Senate, New York's National Committeeman, Charles D. Hilles, of Connecticut's committeeman J. Henry Roraback, Hilles and Rora back formerly dominated the G. O. P. in the East and dictated the choice of the party nominee. They lost control of their delegations at Cleveland when they refused to declare for Landon on the first ballot.

Henry L. Stimson of New York, Patrick J. Hurley of Oklahoma, Charles F. Adams of Massachusetts, and Walter F. Brown of Ohio—all Hoover cabinet members and former leaders of their party—had less to say that the delegates from the "typical prairie states" of Kansas, Nebraska, and Iowa at Cleveland.

Softball

Thursday night the Firemen won over the Whites while the Reds won over Rutherford's crew. The scores of the games are not known.

With two more weeks to run, not counting the games that were rained out near the start of the season, the first half has narrowed down to a two cornered fight between Doc's and the Firemen with the Red team of the CCC Camp being in a position to throw a monkey wrench into things at any time. Doc's leads by a game and a half, with six games to go, while the Firemen in second place have to play seven games.

The Firemen have 2 games left with the strong Red team, one each with the Merchants and Doc's and the Whites and two with Rutherford's. Doc's play the Reds twice and Whites three times and the Firemen once.

The week's schedule finds Doc's and the Reds, and the Merchants and Rutherford's tangling on Wednesday while on Thursday, due to the donkey game, only one game will be played, just which one we do not know at present.

WORLD COMMENT—

the fall. Norris, like Borah in Idaho, is facing the first real opposition he has encountered in the long years of his congressional service. He did not run in the Republican primary so Nebraska Republicans nominated former Congressman Robert G. Simmons, regarded as a strong contender. Democrats nominated Terry Carpenter, so-called "Norris Democrat." Senator Norris will run as an independent in November.

Carpenter was in Washington last week conferring with Norris, Roosevelt, and Democratic leaders and many expect him to withdraw from the race and declare for Norris. Otherwise Norris may be repudiated by Nebraska voters next November.

The nomination of Roosevelt in 1932 marked a triumph of youth and liberalism over conservatives and reactionaries of the Democratic party. The G. O. P. was four years late in discarding its old guard leaders but the nomination of Governor Landon at Cleveland certainly marked a breaking away from those who formerly controlled the party. The leadership of the Democratic party is almost exclu-

The SNAPSHOT GUILD
FIREWORKS PICTURES

In the picture at the left, an exposure of 3 seconds captured the light of the set pieces on the ground and the successive bursts meanwhile of the aerial display. An exposure of one minute recorded the buildings in the other picture.

CONSIDERING that it is an exceptional community that lets a summer go by without the celebration of some sort of event with a display of fireworks—Independence Day, Dominion Day, a local anniversary, convention or fair—the opportunity to obtain novel and beautiful photographs of such a display is lacking to few. Don't fall to be on hand with your camera that night when the fireworks begin.

Fireworks pictures are easy to take. The brilliant, gracefully falling streams of light from bursting rockets and the dazzling patterns of set pieces, both can be recorded with any camera that has a "time" exposure adjustment, and when the films are developed and printed, the exclamations of "Ah! How lovely!" and "Oh! Isn't that beautiful?" are likely to be repeated. Also you will be proud of the pictures as photographic studies.

Use a large stop opening and with box cameras, the largest. Have the camera on a tripod or some firm support that will allow its being pointed skyward. Set the shutter for "time." For the rockets and star shells, aim the camera at the space where they will explode. Open the shutter and let it stay open for two or three successive bursts, or, if the first one is large and graceful enough, turn the film at once for the next picture. You'll want variety in your fireworks pictures. Be careful, of course, to see that the view is unobstructed, and you must be prepared to close the shutter should any spectators get too close to the lens. For these aerial displays the chrome type of film will be quite satisfactory.

For large and brightly glowing set pieces, the camera may be held in the hands and snaps taken if you use the supersensitive panchromatic film and a large lens aperture. Otherwise set the camera for time exposure. If it is desired to bring out buildings or other objects, give time exposures even as long as a minute. Oh, "the rocket's red glare, bombs bursting in air." Click! Click! You have them.

"SALUTE TO THE MODERN NEWSPAPER," TITLE OF BROADCAST

Last night, if you were privileged to be tuned-in on your radio with the NBC Blue Network at 6:30, you heard a program, "Salute to the Modern Newspaper," a program that gave everyone who heard it, a new respect for the development, ideals and public-spirited service of the American Newspaper.

Full credit for this broadcast was given to the National Broadcasting Co., which presented it in recognition of the achievements of the Fourth Estate and on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the invention of the Linotype machine.

local civic organizations in their efforts to rehabilitate abandoned factory communities and to restore purchasing power to industries to move into Texas giving employment to many Texans," he said.

"During the past 14 years," he said, "I have been engaged in the real estate business throughout Texas, and I feel confident I know the needs of the small home owner as well as those of the landlord. I shall work earnestly toward a reduction in the ad valorem tax. I am a business man candidate and know the problems of the small business man over the State, and shall bring into my administration all the energies and experiences of good business to the end that the State of Texas should know once again a firm but friendly administration of its affairs, with equal rights to all and special privileges to none."

"In conclusion," he declared, "I pledge to the voters of Texas 365 days each of my time; I won't be chasing all over the State making pretty speeches, crowning queens and cutting ribbons, and running all over the country seeking personal publicity as our Governor has done for the past two years."

VOLUME IV

GATESVILLE, TEXAS, TUESDAY, JUNE 30, 1936

STUMPIN' THE STATE

It is due to Texas' great size that it has escaped the evils of machine government. In all states which rank above Texas in population—New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio—political machines have long dominated the municipal and state governments. For decades the tranquility of the Republican machines of these states was uninterrupted.

One feature of government which prevails in these and many others states today is the effort on the part of city political machines to dominate the state government. Again the size of Texas has been a factor in making such a condition impossible but the size of Texas cities has also entered as a factor. Houston, Dallas, San Antonio, and Fort Worth—the 4 largest cities—do not have a combined population as large as Chicago or Philadelphia or New York City. In each of the last named municipalities city machines have at one time or another controlled the state government.

Texas' four largest cities have their quota of candidates for State office but rarely are they favorite sons, as demonstrated by the votes of these cities. Only one governor since 1900—Sterling of Houston—has been from one of the four largest cities.

Of the fourteen candidates entered in the first primary of 1934 from one of the four largest cities, only two were elected—Walter Woodul of Houston, Lieutenant Governor, and Williams McCraw of Dallas, Attorney General.

Dallas failed to give gubernatorial candidate Maury Hughes and senatorial candidate Joe Bailey majorities in their home county.

This year Fort Worth and Houston have candidates in the race for United States Senator; Dallas has Pierce Brooks in the governor's race. Lieutenant Governor Woodul of Houston and Attorney General McCraw of Dallas are unopposed for renomination; Houston has two candidates for Railroad Commissioner, Dallas one; Fort Worth has a candidate for State Treasurer, and San Antonio an entrant in the race for Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Houston's candidate for the Senate, Congressman Joe Eagle, is offering the strongest opposition to Senator Sheppard, but the Fort Worth candidate is conceded little chance. Dallas' Pierce Brooks will be last in the gubernatorial race. Houston's candidate for Railroad Commissioner are both weak, but Dallas has a strong entrant in Frank S. Morris. Little is known of Harry Hopkins of Fort Worth, candidate for State Treasurer, but Pat Bullock of San Antonio is well known in educational circles of the State and is actively campaigning against L. A. Woods, seeking a third term as Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The fact is apparent that the large cities do not always bring out the strongest contenders for the State offices; consequently do not elect their candidates. The Houston Chronicle endorses Morris Sheppard for re-election to the Senate, yet Houston is Joe Eagle's home town. The Chronicle announces its support of Ernest O. Thompson for re-election to the state railroad commission in spite of the fact that H. O. Johnson and Goodson Rieger, candidate against Thompson, are from Houston. This is not a criticism of the Chronicle's editorial policy but just to illustrate our point. Nevertheless, this does not place a good recommendation upon Messrs. Eagle, Johnson, and Rieger as candidates for responsible position and the chances are the voters of the state will be influenced by the Chronicle's stand.

F. W. FISCHER of Tyler

The "Big Fish" he is called by Tyler folks. Not a name of ridicule but one of an affectionate group of neighbors who love and respect the man whom they hope to put in the executive mansion at Austin.

Proud Tylerites promise to put their fourth man in the governor's chair this summer. Richard B. Hubbard, was the first. He took office in 1876. Right on his heels followed Oran Roberts for two terms, 1879-1883, and then came the distinguished James Stephen Hogg to serve from 1891 to 1895.

Tyler's "Big Fish" or F. W. Fischer was born on a poor but well mortgaged farm near Martinville, West Virginia, in 1888. In 1901 he moved with his parents to southwestern Oklahoma and there engaged in general farm work, building dug-outs, breaking sod, building fences, etc. He studied law while farming and received a license to practice at the age of 21, in which profession he was engaged at Oklahoma City until 1917, when he enlisted in the World War. He resumed the practice of law at Wichita Falls in 1919 and in 1931 removed to Tyler. Since his removal to east Texas he has represented many independent oil producers and refiners in the great east Texas oil field.

Mr. Fischer's platform is best explained in his own words, which we quote:

"I believe a tax on oil and gas is the only fair way to raise the revenue necessary to pay the old-age pension—a pension that we have bound ourselves to pay in all honor and sincerity.

"After all, the oil belongs to the people of Texas. I believe the tax should be levied on oil for the reason that it is the only way the rank and file of our state can benefit from a product that has yielded such

Famous Writer Visits "Roads of Southwest"

J. Frank Dobie, author of many stories of folklore and history of the Southwest, and instructor of English at the University of Texas in Austin, pictured as he rested between jaunts about the Texas Centennial Exposition grounds at Dallas. astonishing profits to the few that have obtained possession of four vast deposits.

"Who would pay this tax? The people in other states who are carting away our wealth by the millions.

"By the program I propose, $100,000,000 a year will be paid to our people; $20,000,000 a year will be saved to automobile owners; $30,000,000 a year will be saved to the farm, home and other real estate owners with which they can pay interest on mortgages and make needed improvements."

"Tax the Untaxed," and "Untax the Overtaxed," is the slogan of the "Big Fish" of Tyler.

RECREATIONAL ASSOCIATION HOLDS MEETING

The Coryell County Rural Recreational Association held its regular monthly meeting Thursday night at the recreational hall at the CCC Camp.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Straus of Waco and Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Clark of Rosenthal directed the games for the evening, which were enjoyed by the 60 representatives and guests from the various clubs of the county.

The next meeting will be held July 23 at the same place and all clubs are urged to send representatives.

VISITOR FROM PANAMA HERE PAST MONTH

W. F. Morrison, who lives in Panama, has been visiting Mrs. W. C. Amert and other relatives here during the past month.

Mr. Morrison has been in the Canal Zone for 33 years, and and wife will be remembered by a number of people as the former Miss Mattie J. Fields, daughter of Smalley Fields, who was once public weigher here.

Mr. Morrison also visited the Centennial in Dallas while in the States.

During the 33 years he has lived in Panama he has been in the employ of the government as a blacksmith, but is now retired.

Art of Weaving Demonstrated

MRS. IDA CHITWOOD GIVES RECIPES TO NEWS READERS

Groups of recipes taken from the Centennial Cookbook compiled by Mrs. Ida Chitwood, noted cookery expert, will appear regularly in the News. These recipes have all been proved in the Southern Laboratory Kitchens which is the testing plant housed in the Flour Mills Exhibit at the Texas Centennial Central Exposition.

Selected as the most choice from among the thousands she has prepared and accumulated during her fifteen years on the lecture stage, Mrs. Chitwood has personally proved each recipe in the Laboratory Kitchens since her appointment as Director of Home Economics for the Flour Mill Industries.

RITZ THEATRE GETS NEW COOLING SYSTEM

Patrons of the Ritz Theatre keep cool from now on while enjoying the picture, as L. B. Brown, the proprietor, has received a new cooling apparatus which will be installed and ready for operation by next Thursday.

Mr. Brown states that this "washed air" system will be just the same as that used at the Regal Theatre.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
David Langston, handsome young farmer of the Timberlost country in Indiana, has started building a house on his farmstead. This immediately starts tongues wagging in speculation over which of the village belles is to be his bride. Although David has no definite plans for matrimony, he is devoted to Ruth Jameson, an orphan who, with her young sister Naomi, lives with Granny Moreland on the farm adjacent to his own. However, Mrs. Biddle, society autocrat, determines that David shall marry her daughter Thelma, and with this end in view, plans to bring the penniless rival, Ruth, into her home as a menial, to keep her away from David. The night of Thelma's twenty-first birthday party, she decides, Ruth will be kept busy in the kitchen!

Chapter Two

While Ruth Jameson's destiny was being twisted and plied in Mrs. Biddle's ruthless hands, Ruth herself was blithely ignorant of the future that was in store for her. With a song on her lips, she went about her daily tasks, helping old Granny Moreland, and seeing that little Naomi's neck and ears were scrubbed thoroughly before she went to school. Meanwhile, David's house rose up like magic in the clearing just beyond the wood. "I expected you'll be awfully happy in your new house," she said to him wistfully one morning. "Sure I will," he replied, entirely oblivious to the wistfulness in her eyes. "That's going to be the kitchen." A tiny frown puckered up Ruth's brow. "But David... I don't think that's right. It's on the north... and a south kitchen is more cheerful... for a wife!" "Funny... I never thought of that! Guess I'll change it," he said. And added, "That space over there is for the fireplace. An extra big one." "And you could pull up a mochair divan on winter nights, and sit there and smoke your pipe." The vision of David, seated before an open fire on winter nights, smoking his pipe, with Reichsner, the dog, at his side, did something strange to Ruth's heart. Suddenly she wanted to get away from this place, this house over which some day another woman would be mistress. "You must come over and have breakfast with us," she said in a strained voice. "Granny has made some mush." He acquiesced readily. "And I'll bring a pumpkin along," he said. "Granny may want to bake a pie." The Empty Nest Mrs. Biddle drove out to Granny Moreland's just in time to come upon a happy group eating a breakfast of fried mush. David, Granny and the two girls. Smiling sweetly, Mrs. Biddle sat down. "I just stopped by to see if you couldn't spare us some of your wonderful butter," she said. Then, as Granny sent Naomi to fetch some, she added, her voice dripping honey, "I've been wondering if Ruth wouldn't like to come and stay with us for a while? The girls would be company for each other — and Ruth could help with the work. I'd pay her liberally, of course," she added quickly as Granny looked doubtful. "Say ten dollars a month... And it wouldn't be like hiring out; Ruth would be one of the family." Startled, dizzy with shock and distress, Ruth looked away. She didn't want to live with Thelma and her mother! She didn't want to leave Granny and Naomi — and David! Her troubled eyes sought his. "What do you think?" she appealed to him. Oh, surely — surely he wouldn't want her to go! But David stared thoughtfully at the floor. "With things the way they are —" he suggested at last, "you could use the money..." That was sensible, of course, Ruth tried to tell herself, denying the sudden ache in her heart. Nervously she turned to Granny. "Shall I — go?" she breathed. Granny's eyes were looking far away, beyond the cheerful porch where they sat, facing this unexpected problem — beyond time, even. She was thinking of a dream she had had about the romans that nested every year outside her window. She had dreamed that when spring came again, the nest was empty... It was a warning, Granny thought, that her tired heart had not far to travel now... It might be well for Ruth to grow accustomed to another home — to make another happy circle for herself and Naomi... Besides, she reminded herself, thinking of David, a man never sees what's under his nose... He was, Granny felt sure, in love with Ruth. And if she went away, he would realize it! And Ruth — she looked at the girl's flushed, unhappy face — better for her to go away than to eat her heart out here with longing! She had tried to suggest to Ruth that a girl had to lead a man on to propose, if she wanted him — but shy little Ruth was not the sort to make advances... A Score to Settle "It's going to be mighty lonely—" Granny sighed involuntarily. And added quickly, "But I don't want to be selfish... Perhaps it's best..." Ruth drew a quick uneven breath. So it was settled, then! She turned to Mrs. Biddle, who was smiling complacently. "When shall I come?" she asked. And when Mrs. Biddle suggested that she drive back with her at once, Ruth nodded wordlessly and went to pack her few belongings in the shabby little telescope bag. It might as well be now... Only Naomi could not hide her feelings. Sniffing unhappily, she clung to Ruth when she came back, all packed up and ready to leave. "Don't go away, Ruth!" she begged. Ruth bent down and held the warm-hearted little girl in a tight embrace. "Don't you see, honey, I'll be earning money for us. When I come home to visit, I'll bring you something nice." "Store candy?" Naomi asked, brightening. "I will if you mind Granny," Ruth replied. "Don't forget to wash behind your ears and say your prayers and be on time every day for school." Naomi demurred. "I ought to have two sacks of candy for all that." Ruth laughed bravely and turned to her new employer. "I'm ready," she said simply. "I'm so glad you can come right along now," Mrs. Biddle gushed. "We're getting ready for Thelma's birthday party, and I know you'll enjoy helping." Winking back her tears, Naomi glared sulkily at Mrs. Biddle as she followed Ruth down the porch steps. Slyly she kicked the pumpkin David had brought, sending it crashing against their self-styled benefactor's knees. It was an accident, David explained hastily. But Mrs. Biddle knew better. "Children are so quaint!" she said sweetly, but in her heart she vowed to settle with little Naomi, too. (To be continued.)

"Don't go away and leave me, Ruth!"

SEASONABLE DISHES

The art of fine cookery may rise to higher levels of inspiration at this season for there are vegetables and fruits that seem to contain the very essence of the season in their delicate flavor waiting to be concocted into tempting dishes. The recipes that follow will provide a veritable tonic for all the family.

SAUTED CARROTS

Cook young carrots until barely tender. Cut in strips, brown in pan of melted butter to which 1 tablespoon of brown sugar has been added. These are delicious served with chicken or ham.

FRIED TOMATOES AND CUCUMBERS

Remove the skins of the tomatoes and slice into pieces the shape of orange sections—not in rounds. Peel the cucumbers and cut into slices of the same shape as the tomatoes. Roll the pieces in fresh bread crumbs, season well with salt and pepper and fry in plenty of butter until soft and well done.

STUFFED TOMATOES IN ASPIC

Six small firm tomatoes, 2 cups chicken salad, 2 tablespoons mayonaise, 1 teaspoon gelatine dissolved in 1 teaspoon cold water, Aspic jelly.

Peel tomatoes and remove pulp, having openings in tops as small as possible. Sprinkle insides with salt and let stand inverted for about ten minutes. Fill with chicken salad. Cover tops with mayonaise which has been mixed with dissolved gelatine. Decorate tops with sliced sweet pickles or sliced olives. Place a pan in ice water, cover bottom with aspic jelly mixture and let stand till firm. Arrange tomatoes on jelly, garnish side down. Add more aspic jelly mixture, let stand till firm and so continue until all aspic is used. Chill thoroughly, turn on serving dish and garnish around base with parsley.

ASPIC MIXTURE

Four chicken or bouillon cubes, 4 tablespoons gelatin soaked in 8 tablespoons cold water, 4 cups boiling water, 4 tablespoons lemon juice, salt and pepper.

Dissolve cubes in hot water, add soaked gelatine, lemon juice, salt and pepper. Strain through double thickness of cheese cloth.

ASPARAGUS GOLDEN SAUCE

Scrape, trim and cook the asparagus in boiling salted water till tender; drain very thoroughly and dress with golden sauce made as follows: In a double boiler make a paste with 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, add 1 1/2 cups milk, 1/2 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, and parika, 4 egg yolks. Add 2 more tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

ON TEXAS FARMS
Minnie Fisher Cunningham
Extension Service Editor
A. & M. College

Culminating the Centennial Farm and Home Demonstration contest, in which more than 2,000 farms and ranches were entered, winners have been selected in nine districts from among the 157 who were tops in their counties.

The five highest ranking contestants in each district have been selected and announced. The nine first rankers automatically become the State winners since there are nine placings in the State contest.

Judging these nine first class farms and ranches to place them in order of their excellence is now going on. And since district judges are reporting that the county winners were hard to choose between, the State judging is probably a very difficult business, calling for nice discrimination.

According to reports of county and district judges these Texans have honored their State and themselves by establishing splendid demonstrations of good agricultural and home practices.

To demonstrate—to conduct a demonstration—means in essence to show how a thing is done. Texas will fail to reap full advantage from the patriotism of these 2,000 demonstrators if many persons do not learn from their demonstrations how to carry on more successfully.

The announcement of the placing of the state winners will be made by H. H. Williamson, director of the extension service at the Short Course. And G. B. Dealey, president of the Dallas News will award the $2,500 worth of prizes which go to state and district winners.

The ceremony of presenting the awards will be broadcast over the Texas quality network during the regular Farm and Home hours 11:30 to 11:50 on Thursday, July 23.

At an evening session of the Short Course, on the same day, the winners themselves will interpret the significance of their demonstrations.

GATESVILLE, TEXAS, FRIDAY, JULY 3, 1936

STUMPIN' THE STATE

With the Spectator

If numbers mean anything, Morris Sheppard is facing more opposition for his seat in the United States Senate than at any other time in his entire senatorial career of twenty-four years. Five candidates have filed against the veteran and more names will appear on the primary ballot for this office than for any other.

Just how much opposition four of the five announced candidates will offer Sheppard is problematical but one—U. S. Houston—has strong support throughout the State and is actively campaigning to replace the Texarkanan. Eagle, who opened his campaign a month ago in his home town, is attempting to capitalize upon what is apparently strong wet sentiment throughout the State and opposes Sheppard on the grounds that he is the foremost exponent of the dry development in the nation, having written and sponsored the Eighteenth Amendment.

Of the other four candidates for the Senate, little is known. Guy B. Fisher of Bland Lake was a candidate against Senator Tom Connally two years ago but was defeated. J. Edward Glenn of Kopperl was an unsuccessful gubernatorial aspirant in 1932. Richard C. Bush of Waco and Joseph H. Price are new to the Texas political scene.

Texas usually chooses its representatives to the upper house of Congress from the House of Representatives. Both Sheppard and Connally—the present Senators—served in the House before being elected to the Senate.

Many states follow the precedent of promoting their governors to the Senate but only four Texas Governors have been elected to the Senate. These were Sam Houston, who served in the Senate from 1846 to 1859; J. Pinckney Henderson (1857-1858); Richard Coke, (1876-1895); and Charles A. Culberson (1899-1923).

With this issue we begin our second series of biographical sketches of the candidates. This series will be devoted to the candidates for U. S. Senator.

SEN. MORRIS SHEPPARD

"THE FOURTH"

Again we hear it! "What're you goin' to do the Fourth?"

As usual, everyone that's going to celebrate the Fourth is going to some other town or city for their celebration. It takes money. It takes money OUT of Gatesville and Coryell County. Right here, we have the physical equipment to make a very delightfully entertaining and profitable "Fourth" for the most particular.

The trouble seems to be, we can't get together on any ONE thing long enough to have a REAL celebration which would be enjoyed by the whole county as well as people from the nearby counties. Please, let's don't let this happen again.

Now, since you must go somewhere else to do your celebrating, do be careful of traffic accidents, burned fingers from firecrackers, and the many other accidents that help the insurance companies on any grand and glorious Fourth!

And in closing, we hope you have one of the grandest and most glorious Fourths you have ever witnessed, and more power to you!

service in the House and Senate than any other living member, is basing his candidacy for re-election upon his record of twenty-four years services in the Senate to the people of Texas.

He is a member of the Senate committees vitally related to the development and growth of Texas, occupying thereon positions of seniority and influence which can be obtained only through long and faithful service.

He is a member of the Senate Commerce Committee, which deals with foreign trade and the Merchant Marine, matters in which Texas with a tremendous export traffic in cotton, oil, sulphur and other commodities is notably concerned.

Senator Sheppard is chairman and ranking Democrat member of the Senate Military Affairs Committee and has taken a leading part in developing the National Defense. This committee deals with matters pertaining to the U. S. Army, which comprises not only the regular Army but also the National Guard and the Reserves. The military set-up in Texas is the largest of any State in the Union both as to personnel and housing. Senator Sheppard has been active in keeping this set-up intact and in securing needed additional lands and buildings at various Army posts in the State. He aided materially in winning for this State the location at San Antonio of almost all aviation training activities of the Nation, making San Antonio the Aviation West

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY

A group of relatives and close friends met at Fauntleroy Crossing Sunday, June 28, to honor "Uncle Jasper" Franks, who celebrated his 90th birthday anniversary on June 24.

The central attraction of the dinner, which was spread in the shades of the beautiful trees, was the birthday cake, adorned with 90 tiny candles, each candle representing a year of his life.

Those present on this occasion were the following: Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Franks and son Dale of Friendship, Mrs. M. E. Franks, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Lee and son of Turnersville, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Moore and son John of Hood Springs, Herman and Raymond Glass, Wanda Coward of Purmela, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Beard of Levita, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Pipes, Mr. and Mrs. Buck Huff of Oglesby, J. H. Griffin, R. V. Geeslin, Mr. and Mrs. Garland Bland of Indian Gap, Will Jackson of Turnersville, Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Franks of Levita, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wiegand and family of Plainview, Robert Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Pollard and family, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hackney, Mr. and Mrs. George Franks, Mrs. W. W. Hagans, Mr. and Mrs. L. Young, L. J. Music George Wiegand Sr., Grace Wiegand, Ruth Rutherford, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Fury, Mrs. John Defurr, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Sims, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Bart, Mr. and Mrs. Dugan Music, all of Gatesville.

Though we know you're growing old,

And your hair has turned to gray,

And you're waiting for your time to go,
When God will call you away.

And we hope you will not worry,

For we know you wouldn't be sorry

If, instead of growing old and gray,

Each year you'd grow young and gay!

JONESBORO REVIVAL

The pastor, Rev. W. C. Taylor of Ireland, wants the publicity to go out over the county and especially the Jonesboro territory that the revival begins there Sunday, July 5th.

Rev. Mr. Taylor has only been pastor for some two months but has captivated his people. He is a good singer and has secured the services of Rev. Marcus M. Chunn of Gatesville to the preacher during the period.

Funeral Services Held For Harvey S. Sadler Sun. In Baptist Church

Mr. Harvey S. Sadler, who died on Saturday, June 27, after weeks of acute illness, following many years of ill health, was of that pioneer and highly respected family which has had a part and figured large in Coryell County and Gatesville affairs for more than half a century.

Mr. Sadler was born in Granville, Tennessee, July 1, 1862. He came with his parents to Texas in 1869, living for some years in Valley Mills and Coryell City, but for the past thirty years has been a resident of Gatesville; was a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church since the age of fifteen years.

He was married to Miss Laura Jarrett, a young lady of charm and refinement, who throughout the years has been his devoted companion. To this union eight children were born, seven of whom are living; three sons, Carl and Van of Waco, and Frank of Houston; four daughters, Mrs. McElhannon of Huntsville, Misses Louise, Estelle and Vera, teachers in Waco, Taylor and Belton public school, respectively. A son, Elmer, died in 1916, leaving one daughter, Wilma, who with the widow, one brother, H. P. Sadler, Gatesville; one sister, Mrs. Frank Burton, Nashville, Tennessee, and three younger grandchildren, Betty Ann and Bob Sadler and Joe Carl McElhannon survive.

The home life of Mr. Sadler and his estimable wife was conducive to the upbringing of a noble family of children, all reflecting honor upon their worthy parents in lives that, as they touch hundreds of others in the educational and business world wield an influence inspiring and helpful.

The estimation which this splendid family is held was attested by the large crowd that came to pay their last tribute of love and respect to their friend whom they remembered for his life of unswerving integrity, kindly temperament and faithfulness in every phase of his life and work.

The profuse floral offering, coming from many places and many friends revealed the wide circle of those who sympathized with the family in their sorrow.

The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at four o'clock in the First Baptist Church, impressively conducted by the pastor, Rev. Clarence A. Morton, assisted by Rev. Marcus M. Chunn, of the First Methodist Church, and as the beautiful and comforting words being spoken the things of earth became trivial and transitory, and in their place, doubtless to all hearts, the immortal hope burned brighter as the minister voiced the old question of Job: "If a man die shall he live again?" and answered it with the words of Christ: "I am the resurrection and the life; whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die."

Out-of-town people who attended the funeral were Mr. Mrs. C. H. Reese and Stelle Reese of Clifton; Mrs. Mattie Jarrett, Mrs. Mattie Jarrett, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Jarrett, Mrs. Raymond Smith, Mr. and Mrs. John Tweedy, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Flucher, Mrs. Lela Jarrett, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Jarrett.

FREE- 10 DINNERS FREE

Our staff home economist, Mrs. Dallas Plauche, is going to stage a novel demonstration of electric cookery. She is going to cook 10 meals simultaneously in 10 NESCO electric cookers. She is going to do the cooking while you watch to show you how easy it is to cook with a NESCO; how it keeps the kitchen cool; how it eliminates guess-work and assures uniform results; how it cooks without attention; how it improves flavor by cooking foods in their own nourishing juices. To prove her points, Mrs. Plauche is going to give each of the 10 meals away to someone present in the audience. She is going to invite them to take the food home in the cooker, compare its flavor with that of food cooked the ordinary way and then try the cooker for three days without obligation. You may be one of those to take home a free meal. Don't fail to attend.

Anniversary of Birth Recalls
Lord Kelvin's Services to Science

LORD KELVIN, who put science to work for humanity, was born 112 years ago. No ceremonies are needed to commemorate his birth. Every cablegram that is sent, every mechanical refrigerator, every ship at sea—the age of electricity itself—are memorials to his greatness.

Lord Kelvin formulated the laws of thermodynamics, making possible the development of the mechanical refrigerator, in recognition of which, Kelvinator Corporation, pioneer in electric refrigerator manufacture in the United States, named their product and organization in his honor. Scientists in the field of thermodynamics refer to absolute zero as zero degrees Kelvin, measuring all changes in temperature on the Kelvin scale.

Lord Kelvin developed the first instruments for measuring electricity, the electrometers and electric current balances.

When the Atlantic Telegraph Company was formed to lay the first trans-Atlantic cable, Lord Kelvin was placed on the board of directors. The job proved too difficult for the engineers, so the brilliant English scientist showed them how it should be done.

The problem of safety at sea interested Lord Kelvin greatly. Compasses were not very accurate in those days. So Lord Kelvin created a compass based on entirely new principles. This compass, though modified somewhat, is still in use today.

Lord Kelvin's major interest, however, was in the study of heat—the science of thermodynamics. So great was his recognition of the importance of temperature, his biographers report, that he always carried a thermometer in his vest pocket. It enabled him to know, among other things, whether the room in which he sat was being kept at proper temperature for maximum efficiency, just as the built-in thermometer in every Kelvinator enables the housewife to know if her food is being kept at the proper temperature for maximum safety.

Lord Kelvin was born in Belfast, Ireland on June 26, 1824. He died on December 17, 1907 and was buried in Westminster Abbey. On his death, Sir Richard Glazebrook said: "In the century that has passed the progress of the world has been great; and toward that progress there were few men—may I say there was no man—who contributed more than Lord Kelvin."

3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together three times. Cut with the edge of a knife, then crumble with tips of fingers until the consistency of corn meal. Cut milk into flour with blade of knife. Toss onto dough board and knead for one minute. Roll 1/2 inch thick and cut with biscuit cutter. Place on greased baking sheet, brush top with shortening and bake ten minutes at 450 degrees F.

Actual construction of the first unit of the Texas Memorial Museum will get underway on the campus at the University of Texas within a short time, and will be rushed to completion so as to be ready to receive the exhibits which are now being shown at the University Centennial Exposition.

gether once. Dissolve yeast cake in sweet milk. Add beaten egg yolks and melted butter. Mix well and pour the mixture into the flour. Mix all together with a wooden spoon, do not touch it with your hands. Cover and set to rise for 3 1/2 hours. Turn out on floured dough board and pinch off small bits with finger tips and mold these lightly and quickly into round biscuits, place in greased pan. Do not let them touch, and bake in a moderately hot oven until a golden brown.

SAUSAGE BISCUITS

Roll biscuit out in an oblong shape to about the thickness of pie crust, then with sharp knife cut into four inch squares. Place a sausage link in the center of each square of dough and wrap the dough around the sausage link, pressing the edge and ends together firmly with the fingers. Prick the dough in two or three different places with a fork allowing the fork to stick completely through the dough, penetrating the sausage. Place in a pan and bake in a hot oven about 450 degrees F. until a golden brown. The sausage links must be pricked and boiled for three minutes in enough water to cover, then dried with a clean cloth before rolling in the dough.

This makes a splendid breakfast dish since it can be prepared the night before and placed in the refrigerator. The baking next morning does not require more time than the toasting of bread.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
 David Langston, handsome young farmer of the Lamberlost country in Indiana, has started building a house on his farmstead. This immediately starts village tongues wagging in speculation over which of the village belles is to be his bride. Although David has no definite plans for matrimony, he is devoted to Ruth Jameson, an orphan who, with her young sister Naomi, lives with Granny Moreland on the farm adjacent to his own. However, Mrs. Biddle, society autocrat, determines that David shall marry her daughter, Thelma, and with this end in view persuades Ruth, the penniless rival, to come into her home as a mental. The night of Thelma's twenty-first birthday party, she decides, Ruth will be kept busy in the kitchen!

Chapter Three

When Mrs. Biddle visited Miss Sophronia, the village dressmaker who was to make Thelma's party frock, she dropped a careful hint designed to send the elderly spinster flying to the telephone the minute her client had departed. Swiftly, as Mrs. Biddle had foreseen, she spread the news — it was Engaged — but not for long.

for Thelma Biddle that David Langston was building his house! And in a remarkably brief space of time even the except Granny and Ruth and Naomi — and David — knew that David was going to marry Thelma Biddle!

David did not understand why Dr. Carey twitted him when he called to deliver a batch of herbs to the doctor. He was puzzled, again, when Stubby, the barber, presented him with a shaving cup — "for a wedding present." — but in his innocence no suspicion penetrated.

It was not until the night of Thelma's party that he beheld the enclosing net in which fate — and Mrs. Biddle — had entangled him. And, being honorable and shy, he saw no way to extricate himself.

Thelma, in her gorgeous new frock, had monopolized him during the evening. David felt ill at ease and wondered where Ruth was. Excusing himself to wash his hands in the kitchen, after a candy-pulling contest, he found her, flushed and weary, turning an ice-cream freezer.

"David's Going to be Married!"

It was done now, Ruth said quickly, when he offered to help her, and her eyes lighted with joy at seeing him again. Her heart thumped madly when he said: "We've missed you!" And she lied stoutly when he asked if she were happy there. She smiled when he told her about the bathtub now installed in the new house. They had gone together to look at it in Jake Ebben's store. "We had a lovely time that day!" Ruth sighed.

But Mrs. Biddle broke in upon the happy interlude. "Thelma's looking for you," she said, taking David's arm and urging him toward the door. To Ruth she said shortly: "You can pass the ice-cream while the cake's being cut."

he stammered. "I never reckoned — an elegant girl like you — would want me!"

The Trap is Sprung

Ecstatically she threw her arms about his neck. "That's the sweetest thing a man ever said to me! I love you for it!" And she kissed him rapturously.

"Congratulations, David, my boy!" said a voice from the doorway.

David looked up, too bewildered to speak, act, or even think. Mrs. Biddle was standing there, waving her fan and smiling with tremendous self-satisfaction. "I cannot tell you how glad I am that Thelma has given her little heart to you."

Mrs. Biddle had reason to beam! Thelma had managed very cleverly. David tried to smile, to carry it off somehow. It was so hard to explain just now that the whole thing was a mistake...

Mrs. Biddle made it doubly hard; almost impossible, in fact. Without wasting any time she turned back into the room and exultingly rapped for attention.

"Listen, everybody. The loveliest thing has just happened! David has proposed, and my little girl has accepted him."

There was a flurry of excitement in the little room. Gay voices rose in noisy congratulation. A group of girls surrounded Thelma and gushed over her, while the men clapped David on the back and shook his hand heartily.

"I knew it two weeks ago," Miss Sophronia said importantly.

But Ruth, standing alone in the dining-room, the tray of empty ice-cream dishes in her hands, stared at them in tragic surprise. Her eyes filled with blinding tears, she stumbled back into the kitchen.

Stumpin' the State

Point of the country.
 Senator Sheppard is ex-officio member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, ranking Democratic member of the Senate Committee on Irrigation and Reclamation, and ranking Democratic member of the Senate Committee on Manufacturing.

He has assisted in securing through the War Department the establishment of several Reserve Officers' Training Corps units in Texas schools and colleges desiring them. He is the author of a bill to create a Federal Board of Foreign Trade to co-ordinate findings and recommendations of all Government agencies dealing with such trades and to develop a unified effort on the part of the Government to promote trade abroad.

He introduced in 1910 the first bill for an airplane mail route in American history. He cooperated in securing passage of measures for continued production of helium gas in Texas for Government aeronautical use.

Senator Sheppard is the author of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution in effect January 16, 1920 to Dec. 5, 1933. True to his conviction, he has never ceased to defend the amendment, and each year he observes its anniversary with an address in the Senate.

In the Senator's own words: "I base my candidacy not only on this record but on my ambition to go forward to further accomplishments in the service of the people of Texas and the Nation and to go forward with President Roosevelt and the Democratic party in the promotion of the New Deal program for Recovery and Relief."

THIS WEEK IN TEXAS HISTORY

1719, Father Hidalgo was placed in charge of the newly established mission, San Francisco de los Neches, founded by St. Denis and his party on July 3.

1833. The disturbances at Anahuac were settled on June 29, 1833.

1845. On July 4 President Anson Jones called a convention to meet at Austin to decide whether Texas should accept the offer of the United States for annexation.

1857. Sam Houston's nomination by the Unionists in 1857 led to the assembling of the first Democratic state convention in Waco on July 1.

1863. Galveston was blockaded by a Federal fleet July 2, and soon afterwards all the other Texas ports were closed.
