A BIT OF THE BESTA

That's what School Days are! A "little bit of the besta" of anyone's life. Ask anyone who is now out and in the mad scramble for livelihood will have to say.

School, in the proper sense of the word, means equipping one's self for life. Stress to be placed on all phases of prospective future life, the physical, mental and moral. Athletics are especially wonderful in school for the participants, mental exercises also aid in equipping one, and moral exercises or practices are also very necessary to round out the completed, educated human being.

In your schooling, prospective students of primary, elementary, high school and college age, we urge YOU to see that your education is rounded out and includes these three necessities. PHYSICAL, MENTAL and MORAL phases.

1-MINUTE SAFETY TALKS

By Don Herold

SPOTTED FERVOR

Automobile accident prevention improved greatly in spots in the United States in 1935, although the country as a whole was almost as bad as it was the year before.

Deaths from automobile accidents for the whole country in 1935 totaled 36,100, according to statistics—one percent more than in 1934. But five percent more cars were registered, so the national record was slightly improved—not much.

In certain localities, however, the toll was reduced. BY AT LEAST ONE-HALF.

Exceptional records were made by Providence, R. I., Evanston, Ill., Lynn, Mass., Syracuse, N. Y., Allentown, Pa., Greensboro, N. C., Hoboken, N. J., Lansing, Mich., and Pittsfield, Mass.

This spotted improvement is something about which to be glad. If accidents can be marked decreased in spots, they can be equally decreased nationally—eventually. If they can be decreased in spots, it proves that they CAN BE decreased.

As soon as the public accepts the fact that automobile accidents are a disease that can be stamped out like small-pox and are not merely a calamity that has to be taken, then the battle will be half won.

Get behind the safety movement in your town. Make—or keep—your town one of the spots. Ten deaths subtracted here and there will soon add up to several thousand on a national basis.

And you, yourself, can be a safety spot all by yourself. You may not be able to improve on your 1935 record, but you may be able to improve on your 1936 record. Most of us have our accident and death or injury AHEAD OF US—and that is the accident prevention in which we are most interested in after all.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

SOME husbands and wives fight. Well, anyhow, the funny stories all say they do. And I reckon more than half of the funny stories in the world are about fights between a woman and her husband.

Mrs. Harsh thought she wasn't treated right by her husband because he didn't act polite to her. And he ought to be ashamed of himself.

So one day when she was bawling him out, she says, "The way you treat me! It's rotten! Why anybody would think I was the cook!"

"Not if they et one of your cakes once they wouldn't!" he says. And I reckon that started a quarrel.

MIKE PRIBBLE TO APPEAR IN CENTRAL TEXAS RODEO

Mike Pribble, world famous rodeo star and expert trick and fancy roper, now gives a brief discourse on "Bronc Riding" as may be seen September 15 to 17 at the first annual Central Texas championship rodeo to be held in Katy Park, Waco.

"Ride 'em cowboy! The gate swings open and the trouble begins. This is one of the most popular events of the rodeo. The horses used in this event are the pick of the bucking horses gathered for rodeo purposes. The riders in the event are cowboys who have made riding of bucking horses a means of their living, and they are really masters of their art. The present day bronc rider is far superior to bronc riders of by-gone days, since the rules and equipment are figured to the cowboys disadvantage. Staying aboard the mount is only a small item.

"Used in this event are slick saddles passed upon by a committee of recognized judges of the world. These saddles have a sixteen inner seat, five inch cantle board, and a fourteen inch tree which anyone can readily see would be no advantage on a bucking horse. The old style tight-fitting and deep-seated saddle is as much out of place to the contest cowboy as the hoop skirts are to the modern woman.

"Horses are drawn each day by the riders. Riding is done with halter and one rein. The rein must not have tape or knots and must not be wrapped around the hand. The rider must not change hands on the rein. One arm must be free. Rider must leave the chute with both feet in stirrups and both spurs against horse's neck. Each horse must have a flank rope. These requirements must be heeded, and a dozen others are necessary for the rider to uphold in order that he is not disqualified. 'Simple' isn't it? Not exactly—but there'll be more than a score if real riders risking their necks for your enjoyment at this championship rodeo of Central Texas."

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD WED. AFTERNOON FOR MRS. E. P. STEVENSON

Mrs. E. P. Stevenson, known to close friends and neighbors as "Granny" Stevenson, passed away Tuesday night about 9:00 o'clock, after a few weeks' serious illness, at her home on North Lutterloh.

Mrs. Stevenson was born in Memphis, Tennessee, Feb. 1848 and came to Texas early in life. She married in 1867 at the age of nineteen, and five children were born to this union. Only three children survive her going away. They are Mrs. Adye McGuire and Mrs. Effie

Jones of this city and Emmitt Stevenson of Dallas. She is also survived by five grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Deceased had lived in this section of the country for the past 52 years. Her husband preceded her in death 31 years ago. Mrs. Stevenson, for the past few years has been somewhat infirm in health and has also been blind for the past few years.

She has been a member of the Methodist Church practically all her life, and a member of the local Methodist Church for many years. She bore her afflictions without a murmur, and tried to make life a blessing to all whom she met. She dearly loved her church and was truly a sainted Christian.

Funeral services were held at the residence Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock, conducted by Rev. Marcus M. Chunn, pastor of the First Methodist of this city. Interment was made in the City Cemetery. Pall bearers were Jim Martin, Leake Ayres, Claude Byrom, John P. Reesing, T. P. Ingram and John Burleson.

Mrs. M. W. Lowrey and daughter Anita and Misses Frey Byrom, Tince Franks, and Bertha Lillian Stewart are house guests of Mrs. Claude Byrom and daughter, Fay, who have recently moved to Austin.

Knitwear Rates A+ for Campus Wear

Courtesy of the Knitwear Institute

The two-piece suit at the left is in a smooth cashmere knit, perfect for travelling and perfectly at home on the campus. It is in natural color with a maroon zipper extending almost to the leather belt. Note the heart-shaped breast pockets. The suit at the right is knitted in striped design of wool ratine and zephyr using the popular dubonnet shade combined with navy blue. The two flap pockets at the hips are echoed by simulated ones above. The low V neck has a turned-back collar and a silk kerchief worn ascot-style. One of the leather belts is in blue, the other dubonnet.

PERFECT for travelling, and perfect for the campus! That describes the new machine-knitted suits to a T. Starting off for school and college in a burst of self-confidence that comes from knowing that she is clad in the very smartest of apparel, the young girl student is all set to make straight A's right through her courses.

Simplicity is combined with practicality in the clothes offered for college wear this fall. So many new ideas have been worked out by American manufacturers in both designs and colors that the jaded Senior has become just as enthusiastic as the timid Freshman.

The two suits shown above illustrate all these points: They are simple in silhouette and carefully tailored, and extremely practical, since they don't wrinkle when packed or worn for travelling and emerge from airplane, boat, bus or train fresh and ready for classroom wear.

Sweaters and skirts are the hardy perennials, of course, although the popular culottes are ranking high in the fashion textbook. Contrasting sweater sets—navy blue with orange, brown with bright yellow, black (brand new and very chic) with smoke gray—pass all exams with flying colors. Slip-ons under classic cardigans, of course—but also the new combination of sleeveless slip-on over long-sleeved turtle-necked sweater.

The dressmaker type of sweater is another campus style that has high ranking. These are on the "feminine" side, having absorbed a little from the dress fashions now being highlighted. They have broad shoulders, new necklines—either high V, or standing collars, high square effects, drawstrings or soft bows—and sleeve interest.

SYNOPSIS
Jeff Hawkins and Wahoo Jones, bandits, join the Texas Rangers to procure inside information about payrolls and gold shipments to send to their outlaw pal, Polka Dot McGee. Jones begins to admire the Rangers, likes his new environment as a law enforcement officer and wants to abandon his career of outlawry. He tries to advance a budding romance between Hawkins and Amanda, beautiful daughter of the Rangers' commanding officer, by telling the girl that Hawkins is wildly in love with her.

CHAPTER VII
JEFF climbed off the accommodation train at Junction, Kimble County, Texas, to be welcomed by four substantial citizens of the town who had originally called upon the Rangers for aid.
"I'm Jeff Hawkins, Ranger Company D," he introduced himself.
"Holy Mackerel — only one?" groaned a sandy-haired member of the welcoming committee.
"There's only one fight, ain't saloon and proceeded to round up his jurymen as well as all those who had witnessed Higgins' murder of the Hartford brothers. Within the hour he had brought back a nondescript gang of cowboys, Chinese laundrymen, and the town's one important banker.

Returning to the saloon he found that the quaking prosecutor had called in Judge Abercrombie and arranged an impromptu bench, witness stand, etc., on the small stage at one end of the long room. Working like a whirlwind he got them all placed and was just calling the court to order when a soft voice in the doorway inquired:
"Where do I sit?"
It was Higgins himself, a florid individual in a white, wide-brimmed hat, who swaggered into the saloon as if he owned the place.
Under the harsh scrutiny of this bad man, Jeff's witnesses quailed gun, Ranger. My partner and me has got you covered, Jess," he added to his boss, who occupied the prisoner's bench, "Move over. I want to hit this Mr. Hawkins right between the eyes."

As Higgins smilingly obeyed, a pistol cracked. It was not Hawkins who fell, however, but the man who had interrupted him. As the other Higgins supporter whirled in surprise, the gun cracked again and he also fell forward on his face.
"I thought them boys was lackin' in dignity for a court of law," remarked Sam McGee as he stepped nonchalantly into the saloon. "I can't understand men that's got so little respect for law an' order. Judge, proceed with the trial." He winked covertly at Jeff.
"As Judge and Coroner, both, of Kimble County, I find these worthless skunks come to their untimely end through their own willful negligence," orated Abercrombie after heaving a deep sigh of relief. "They were a little bit slow on the draw. Now, gentlemen of the jury, have you reached a verdict?"
"Guilty as..." began the foreman, leaping to his feet. The rest of the sentence was drowned in a burst of wild cheering as spectators to this strange trial let loose their enthusiasm. Knowing he was licked at last, Higgins yawned mightily and held out his wrists to the sheriff for the handcuffs which were awaiting him.
"I sentence Jeff Higgins to a term of twenty-five years at hard labor at Huntsville! Court is closed!" the Judge nearly whooped in his relief.
Several hours later Jeff and Sam were lounging against the long bar of that same Eldorado Saloon. The place was crowded with townspeople celebrating the passing of the incubus which had sucked them dry for years.
"I want you to do something for me," remarked Jeff as he gulped his third drink.
"I'm listenin'," grinned his pal.
"It's all off, Sam," Jeff resumed after a long pause. "You got your way an' I'll go mine. You're not going to do business in Kimble County after all. You're leaving it the way I'm leaving it."
"Why you old scissor-bill!" Sam stared as if he had seen a ghost. "Why this sudden change of heart? Was it because the good citizens here made up a purse and bought you that ranch as a token of appreciation for your good work?"
"It wasn't that, Sam," Jeff refused to take offense at this thrust. "I don't know what's happened to me since I came down here... but I've changed my mind 'bout our partnership... this deal down here... everything."
Sam drank his drink in silence and for a time listened to the music of a band which now occupied the stage where the trial had taken place such a few hours before. Finally he leaned his elbows against the bar and gazed thoughtfully into the fly-specked mirror behind it.
"I don't know what it's all about... but if that's the way you feel, it's good enough for me," he said softly.
"Thanks, Sam." Jeff's voice was hoarse with emotion. "Let's have another drink, and call it quits." Then, as they clicked glasses, "Here's to you, and I hope we never meet again."
"We can't help meeting again," McGee answered bitterly as he swallowed his liquor at a gulp. "I hope we don't have to shoot it out when we do." He wiped his mouth with the back of his hand, then walked out of the Eldorado without a word of farewell.

Polka Dot and Hawkins say goodbye

there? Let's get started. Where's the sheriff's office?"
The sheriff, when he was located at last, proved to be a weak sister.
"Naow, Mr. Hawkins — we shouldn't be in a hurry to fill out this warrant against Higgins. Murder is a serious charge," he protested.
"Sure, it's serious! Higgins killed the Hartford brothers in cold blood."
"Well," the sheriff, caught between two fires, hemmed and hawed. "I agree with you, but... who's goin' to serve this warrant?"
"I am. I understand Higgins hangs out at the Eldorado Saloon. Fill out the papers now and we'll go right down there."
"I'm a married man," quavered the rotund officer as he obediently signed the warrant. "Maybe you'd better serve it by yourself."
The boss of Kimble County was not at the Eldorado when Jeff arrived but the prosecuting attorney was lounging at the long mahogany bar.
"It's impossible," protested this lanky individual when Jeff introduced himself and produced the warrant. "I can't prepare a big case like this in a minute's time. Besides, you'll never get witnesses... or a jury. And the Court House has been used for a warehouse for a year and a half."
"I'm calling this trial right here in an hour," responded the Ranger firmly. "There'll be a jury... and plenty of witnesses. Now get busy."
So saying, he strode out of the while the prosecutor dodged the issue as much as he could and the judge finally instructed the jury that: "If Mr. Higgins is guilty he should be punished, but," clearing his throat, "on the other hand, defendant says he killed in self defense. No one but Ira Johnson saw the shooting, and he, sad to state, turned out to be a very poor witness. Therefore, we don't want to hang or send to jail an innocent man. So you gentlemen of the jury must weigh the evidence VERY CAREFULLY."

This was too much for Jeff. Leaping from his place in the impromptu courtroom he stepped forward and faced the panel.
"There is only one verdict," he thundered. "You know it as well as I do. So forget what the Judge just said."
"I object," cried the defense attorney.
"Sit down an' shut up." Jeff wheeled upon him. Then, returning to the jury, he continued, "There's only one way to clean up a county like Kimble—get rid of men like Higgins for good. If you don't respect your own courts of law, you'll never get away from lawlessness. Are you cowards? Are you afraid to speak your thoughts—or are you citizens of a great state?"
The jurymen hung on his words, but suddenly the spell was broken by a mellow voice from the back of the saloon.
"Jest a minute," said the newcomer who plainly was one of Higgins' men. "Don't reach for that

PEAS

TAKE A BOW

THERE'S no dodging the fact that peas play an important part in our modern diet. Therefore it is fortunate that peas are universally available in cans, the best peas harvested at their prime and clapped into cans so quickly that they lose nothing of their fresh taste and nutritious qualities.

In this form they not only save the housewife a lot of work, but they enable her to combine them with other foods in ways that would be almost impossible if she had all the work of cleaning and preparing them to do.

Here is a recipe, for instance, that would be really too much trouble, if the housewife had to prepare everything from the start, but which is practically no trouble at all when she gets her peas and salmon from a can and her macaroni from a package.

This Serves Eight

Salmon, Pea and Macaroni Casserole: Put enough macaroni to make two cups to cook in boiling salted water. Flake the contents of one tall can salmon, removing bones. Drain one cup of canned peas, grate one cup of cheese and cut four slices of bacon in halves. Make a white sauce by cooking one tablespoon minced onion in three tablespoons butter a few minutes, adding two and a half tablespoons flour, and then adding two cups milk slowly and stirring until smooth. Add two tablespoons chili sauce and season with salt and pepper. By this time the macaroni should be done. Drain it and fill the casserole in this order: half the macaroni, half the salmon, half the peas, half the white sauce. Repeat. Cover with the grated cheese and lay the bacon on top. Bake in a hot—400 degree—oven for about thirty minutes.

MISS SYBIL LEONARD HAS POEMS PUBLISHED

Miss Sybil Leonard has recently had the honor of having five of her poems published in the American States Anthology, being a book published in two volumes annually by the Gallean Press, and contains poems written by young American writers. Only ten writers were chosen from Texas and Miss Leonard's poems were among those to receive such splendid recognition. Her poems are lyrics in form, "South Wind" being the title of one of the five.

WHAT with talk of silhouettes and gored skirts again, anyone with a wardrobe full of straight lined dresses, is going to welcome a mid-season fashion trick of Rochas, the French designer. Rochas shows wide bands of color up the sides of narrow skirts, like the stripes on a guardsman's trousers. At his Paris opening, a heavy white cotton lace evening gown had stripes of military red broadcloth. A clever fashion, flattering to heavy figures as well as slender, it suggests an easy way to disguise that last year's model.

Woman in the News

From shoe model to foremost New York shoe fashion consultant in nine years is the record of blonde Ruth Kerr of Oregon, who styles shoe polishes for the Shino-la-Bixby Company as a sideline. Yes, shoe polishes have to be styled, too, these days. Fall shoe and shoe-shine colors, according to Miss Kerr, fall into three brackets: staple colors, which are black, brown, navy blue and gray; promotion colors, to be green, wine and London Tan; and high fashion colors, which include any number of special shades sponsored by individual stores.

GATESVILLE, TEXAS, FRIDAY, SEPT. 11, 1936

Allred Sets Date for Session of Texas Legislature September 28

Governor yesterday called a special session of the legislature to convene Sept. 28. The Governor said the primary purpose of the session would be to raise additional revenues for payment of old age pensions.

While the Governor did not commit himself at this time, it was expected the subject of enabling legislation to make other benefits of the Federal social security act available to Texas also would be submitted.

One Subject Definite

"The only subject definitely in mind at this time," Allred said, "is the financing of old age pensions. There may be others. I don't know right now."

"TOM AND JERRY" CREATOR HERE

H. E. Ryan, cartoonist and originator of the newspaper comic strip, "Tom and Jerry," which is featured through the Federal syndicate and appearing in papers all over the country is spending the week in Gatesville.

Travel gives Ryan ideas for his work and at the same time he makes an effort to introduce them where they are not appearing in the local papers. A series of cartoons was drawn by Ryan in full colors for the NEWS. These will be on display in our windows and changed from time to time.

"I need a place where there is lots going on to get my best ideas, so I came to good old Texas to take in the Centennial celebrations. I not only have had the time of my life in Dallas and Fort Worth but I have really gained some wonderful western ideas for my work. I must say I will have many a good word to say for Texas, and the reception tendered me," was Mr. Ryan's statement in the News office today.

4-PAGE CIRCULAR CARRIES NEWS OF BARGAINS IN JOE HANNA'S STORE

In the mails today, is a four-page circular, the product of quick turnover and some sleepless nights, carrying to the people of this trade territory, endless bargains shown by this ahead store, Joe Hanna's Cash Store.

No pains has been spared to properly display the "wears" for the "wearers" that Mr. Hanna has to offer at unbelievably reasonable prices.

Another feature of this progressive store is the "no interest, no carrying charge" sales plan which has been extensively advertised in local newspapers during the past few weeks. Contrary to some rumors, there is no carrying charge on "time" purchases made at Joe Hanna's Cash store.

MISS INA CORINE BROWN SPEAKS AT WOMEN'S MISSIONARY MEETING

The Woman's Missionary Society of the First Methodist Church of this were indeed fortunate to have with them at their meeting Tuesday afternoon, Miss Ina Corine Brown of Chicago, Illinois.

Miss Brown was born in Texas and received her early education near Gatesville. She is a graduate of Southern Methodist University and spent 13 years in Nashville, Tennessee, as the secretary of the Missionary Education of the Young People. Miss Brown has traveled extensively in the South, teaching, speaking in colleges, summer camps and conferences. For four years she has been a trustee of the Payne College, which is a negro school located in Georgia. In 1929 and 1930 she traveled in Europe and Asia studying problems of the various races, especially the negro race. Since 1934 she has been connected with the University of Chicago.

In speaking to the group she told of her trip through Africa tracing it from west to east.

Miss Brown said her experience had taught her that the best method of travel was to "smile and look helpless at the proper moments." She also spoke of the living habits and customs of villages; of their meagre means of transportation. There are no railroads in that portion of the Congo because the elephants destroy the tracks; no telegraph nor telephone wires because the giraffes get their neck tangled in them. Strange as it may seem, Miss Brown said that they had "skipped the horse and buggy age." To her one of the strangest things to see would be a clearing in the dense forest for an air plane landing field.

In speaking of the negroes, she left this question in the minds of her listeners: "How shall we help the Negro?" Her answer is, "Not in benevolence, but in a spirit of atonement."

Because of their social usefulness journalists in Brazil are to be exempt from taxation.

It looks like the Lions are hunting the Johnsons, instead of the Johnsons the Lions, in the Amateur Night Contest to be held in the new City Auditorium on the night of October, which is being promoted under the auspices of the Gatesville Lion's Club.

Talent seems to be as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth, and singers are not coming in as well, as it could, especially here in Coryell County.

Figure it out—that skit, song, dance, music, pantomime, or whatever other form of entertainment you may have and fill out this coupon, and mail it in or bring it to Chairman C. H. Wallace, at the office of the Community Public Service Company.

Prizes of Ten Dollars for the first, Five for the second, and $2.50 for the third have been offered, and the first prize winner will also receive an audition over some radio station, if an audition can be arranged.

Amateur nights have been carried on over the country and are proving to be very popular on radio and state performances.

The Lion's Club is expecting talent from every section of the county, and assures those who enter that impartial judges will be selected from out of the county which will make everything go off as it should, and that no partiality will be shown to any one from any section.

As yet a director, or master of ceremonies has not been selected, but will be in the near future.

No entrance fee will be required of the participants, and uniforms or special dress will not be essential, as this is a talent performance, and uniforms and stage equipment will not be necessary.

October 1 has been selected as trial night, so that the program and continuity of the performance can be worked out, with suitable intermissions and other arrangements.

WORLD COMMENT

By JOE BURNS

At two points nine thousand miles apart was last week demonstrated a mechanical cotton picker that actually works. Stoneville, Mississippi, and Russian Turkestan were the sites chosen by the Brothers Rust—Mack and John—for the tests of their machine which they have worked on since 1927.

Stoneville because it is the heart of the world's greatest cotton-growing region; Turkestan, because Russia's cotton fields lack hand-labor and need machines.

Russia's immediate purchase of two machines and the enthusiasm with which the picker was received by spectators of the demonstration at Stoneville point to commercial production by the new firm which had its beginning in Rust's small garage on the outskirts of Memphis.

The cotton-picker can pick one acre an hour. In seven and a half hours, it can strip as much cotton as a field-hand picks in an entire eleven-week season. Under favorable conditions, a two-row machine could pick a half-bale from two acres in one hour at $1.50 cost.

John and Mack Rust were reared in Stephens County, Tex.

as, and were submitted to the back-breaking toil of cotton picking. As they reached manhood they avowed to perfect a machine that would eliminate this sort of toil from the farmer's schedule.

Today, they refuse offers from implement manufacturers to turn out their cotton-pickers in mass quantities because of the inevitable economic chaos which would result in the unemployment of one million Negro and white pickers. They have appealed to the Federal Government to work out a plan for the economic rehabilitation of the cotton pickers, and with the funds which they expect to derive from the future sales of their machines expect to endow a foundation which would assist jobless sharecroppers to unite in cooperative cotton-farming groups.

Although the record shows the maxim, "As Maine goes, so goes the Nation," to be without foundation, both parties are concentrating an unprecedented number of speakers, funds and propaganda on winning the State election there.

For years, it is true, Maine has served as a barometer on the way the Nation will vote in November as the general election there on State officers is held in September. This year, a United States Senate seat, the governorship, and three national representative posts are at stake and Democrats and Republicans vie for the psychological effect which a victory would have upon their workers and the voting public throughout the Nation.

With straw polls, including that of The Literary Digest, and of the American Institute of Public Opinion, showing the national candidates to be apparently running neck and neck, both parties are eager for a boost which would send their candidate soaring above his opponent.

Both the polls mentioned above, place Maine in the solid Republican column but this does not necessarily indicate victory for the G. O. P. State candidates nor defeat for the Democratic standard bearers there.

Popular Gov. Louis J. Brann, only Democrat to serve two terms as Maine's chief executive since 1865, is his party's candidate for the Senate seat held by Republican Wallace White Jr., candidate for re-election. Two Democrats and one Republican hold the State's posts in the lower house and it is upon these and the Senate race that the Democrats are laying their hopes.

They recall that in 1934 G. O. P. Senator Frederick Hale slipped through to re-election by only 700 votes over his Democratic opponent. Gov. Brann's popularity is unparalleled for a follower of the donkey in the rick-ribbed Republican State of Maine (prior to 1932, it might be said).

"Business indices up to highest point since 1929."

"Unemployment estimated at 11,000,000 by American Federation of Labor."

A bright picture and a dark one simultaneously projected, upon the Roosevelt Administration.

President Roosevelt, in his

Sunday evening fire-side chat, stated that Government spending 'was in large part responsible for keeping industry going and putting it in a position to make reemployment possible.'

But a business upturn was in evidence late in 1934—two years ago—and recovery of the heavy industries which were expected to absorb most of the unemployed has continued unabated.

It might be said that one objective of Government spending under the present administration has been accomplished: a

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. IRELAND
Director, Physical and Health Education
New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

THE MIDDAY LUNCH AT SCHOOL

Of the needs of the growing child, food stands at the top, for in it are the materials out of which the body manufactures strength and energy, blood, and tissues. How much then does the child need? The importance of this question is obvious, since under-feeding means deficient growth and overfeeding is wasteful at least, and sometimes actually harmful.

From experience and scientific study we know that three good meals a day is the minimum essential for growing children. Many require, in addition, the familiar "after-school snack" or the before-going-to-bed bowl of crackers and milk. Nothing is quite so satisfying as to see a tired, listless child "perk up" after such an extra lichen. On the other hand, nothing is so pathetic as the usual happy, active child who becomes indifferent and irritable from not getting enough to eat.

One of the causes of the latter condition is an inadequate midday lunch at school. Natural, energy lost in the morning must be restored. For this food is necessary; food that is ample in amount, attractive, palatable. Given a hot creamy soup, a tasty sandwich, a tall glass of milk, and a cheery lunch period; and school takes on an entirely new aspect for many a child.

Next week: Are we giving our children enough practical education in school?

EXCELLENT CAST IN NEW GENE AUTREY WESTERN

Gene Autry, handsome Republic Western star, is an evening's entertainment by himself. So is Burnett, his pal, neighbor and acting contemporary. But when you have these two plus six story is an assured success.

Not that "Oh Susanna" which comes to the Regal next Saturday night at 10:30, also Sunday and Monday, lacks for plot, color and character interest. It doesn't.

In fact the story, which has to do with a bad man masquerading as a radio star at a dude ranch, is probably Mr. Autrey's best photoplay to date.

Frances Grant who did a small part in "Red River Valley", plays opposite the handsome Autrey. Among supporting players are Ed Piel, jr., Fred Burns, Gerall, Ken Cooper and Alfred James.

Menus for 'Me 'n You'

By Aunt Em

When the mercury climbs high and your spirits droops at the prospect of guests—don't be discouraged—utilize the popular "cold plate" as a basis for inviting summer meals. Be sure to serve something hot with it—coffee or a clear hot soup—for too much cold food has the opposite to the cooling effect desired. Here some suggestions for informal menus.

Consomme Royale

Molded Meat Loaf
 Vegetable Salad
 Chocolate Refrigerator Cake
 Hot Coffee
CONSOMME ROYALE
 One can consomme, 3 egg yolks, 1 cup milk, 1/2 tsp. salt, 1-8 tsp. paprika.

Beat the egg yolks until light, add the milk, salt and paprika. Fill a shallow greased baking pan to 1-4 inch depth with the mixture. Place in a moderate oven and bake until custard is firm. Cut in 1-4 inch cubes and put three or four cubes in each cup of heated soup.

MOULDED MEAT LOAF

Two tbsp. gelatine, 1/2 cup cold water, 1 cup boiling water, 2tbsp. lemon juice, 1 tbsp. horse radish, 2 tbsp. worchester sauce, 1/2 tsp. onion pulp, 1 pimento finely chopped, dash cayenne, cloves and nutmeg, 2 1/2 cups of coked ground ham, 1/2 cup mayonnaise.

Soak gelatine in cold water; add boiling water. Cool and add remaining ingredients. When beginning to thicken pour into loaf pan. Chill until firm. Unmold on platter and garnish with parsley.

VEGETABLE SALAD

One pkg. lemon flavored gelatine, 2 cups boiling water, 2 tbsp. vinegar, 1 tsp. salt, 1 tsp.

vanilla, 2 doz. lady fingers, 3 (tbsp. warm water.

Dissolve gelatine in boiling water. Add vinegar and salt. Place in refrigerator cabinet until mixture begins to thicken, then fold in celery, cabbage, carrot and green pepper. Turn into mold and return to cabinet until ready to serve. Unmold on crisp lettuce.

"It's A Small World"

THE WEATHER has been doing some mighty funny things this summer. About 40 million acres of the U. S. A. has been turned into a desert, temporarily at least, and when the rain does come in these regions it washes away the top-soil because there's nothing growing to hold it in place. The wind has been blowing away the top-soil too. This is what happened centuries ago in China and parts of the Sahara and they became permanent deserts. Meanwhile New York City and some other areas have had more rain than usual and 9 inches fell in five hours in Maryland. There was a snowstorm over Newark, N. J. when the temperature on the ground was around 80. The snowstorm swirled furiously 12,000 feet up—aviators enjoyed this remarkable spectacle in a 20 degree temperature just before landing at Newark. In Ohio two gigantic waterspouts came roaring in from Lake Erie and whirled right up on shore, doing considerable damage, slinging box cars and parts of houses around. Down in San Carlos, Chile, (it's midwinter of course down there) there was a heat wave in spite of the cold because the Quizapu Volcano erupted and its heat was felt in several nearby cities. This volcano is a mighty hot one and the last time it got going, it spewed ashes in a fine gray mantle, over a radius of 2,000 miles! Is it any wonder the Weather Man goes a little nuts sometimes?

IN A BLAZING SUN that sent up the temperature to 98 degrees, two opposing "armies" of gleeful youngsters had a snowball fight the other day in Brooklyn, N. Y. The "snow" was furnished especially for the occasion by a near-by ice-plant and 2 tons of it arrived in two trucks—one for each army. The boys, attired in bathing suits, went right to it before an audience of about 1,000, and after snowballs had caused black eyes and bruised limbs on both sides, the battle was declared a draw. This is the first mid-summer snowball fight on record in these parts.

NEW YORK CITY needs more water again—and so the century-old town of Lackawack, N. Y. in the Catskills, will be wiped off the map. Its 500 inhabitants will have to move or swim because New York authorities will build a dam there to impound the waters of Round-out Creek as part of the new water supply system. Before the hemlock bark was exhausted, Lackawack was quite a tanning center. Now, alack, it's to be just another puddle to quench the greatest thirst on earth.

HELEN BUCK, actress, is back from Europe wearing the newest thing in jewelry—a tiny finger-watch which is so small it is set on a ring like a large jewel, and she wears it on her third finger. It keeps perfect time, and keeps her on time for all engagements, although she denies it is an engagement ring.

JUST TO SHOW YOU how fast Father Time moves along, one of our snoops dug out the following statistics: the distance covered by the tiny balance wheel in a wrist watch is 4,000 miles a year; the number of times that a wrist watch "ticks" in a year is 157,680,000 (this is without counting the "tocks"). Half of all the watches made in the U. S. A. are wrist-watches.

"ANYTHING to be accomodating" remarked a Judge in Coney Island Court the other day, when Frank Rogers asked to be put in jail. Rogers said his friend Bernard Kelly was in jail, so he wanted to get in too. Consulting the record, the Judge confirmed the fact that Kelly was in for 30 days, and had 20 more days to go. "So I'll give you 20 days" he said to Rogers—"then you'll both get out together." "No thanks," said Rogers, "I'll take the full 30 if you don't mind." "O.K." said the judge. "I'll make it 30 days then." But he had a hard time thinking up something to put Rogers in jail for. Finally he called it causing a commotion in court.

SPORTS

HORNETS CONTINUE TO GRIND

With two weeks to go before the opening whistle of the Moody game is blown the local football machine is gradually whipping into shape. A September sun is no inducement to any kind of work but warfare is raging fiercely and freely on the practice field.

Blocking, one of the most important phases of football, is being stressed. Every man on the first squad gives promise of being a good blocker if they can be snapped out of their lethargy and learn that aggressiveness in football will win the game.

Take a look at the forward wall. Lack of speed and confusion among the guards is occasionally disrupting a nice running attack. Ingram, Taylor and Cotton Davis show up nicely as defense but frequently miff their assignments of offense, which will be just too bad in a game. A guard, to be an asset to a running play, must be fast enough not to hinder his own backs. These boys have the qualifications if they will put out.

Parrish, at tackle, stands out by virtue of his flight and alertness. This boy is rapidly learning the game and may see much service this season. Voss at the other tackle position possesses enough weight to be a valuable man if he learns how to throw it around.

Wallace and Royce Davis are handicapped by lack of height at center in pass defense but will qualify in the other departments of the pivot position. Both are rugged enough for line play and experienced enough to become valuable men. Davis may possibly see service at the guards lot also.

Wicker, at end, should make a good showing this year. Fast and rangy, he should fit well in the passing attack with a little more experience and practice at hanging onto the leather. McDonald at the other terminal position, adds enough weight and fight to complete a fairly well balanced line. If a trick knee does not hamper this boy, he should make a valuable man on defense.

In the backfield three men stand out with their versatility. Baker, Fore and Hinsley all pass kick and run, with equal dexterity. Hinsley is especially adept at heaving the ball, using an easy, overhand toss that floats into the receivers hands.

Colgin and Baker can both call signals and together with Byron make a trio unexcelled in broken field running. White and Brown (names not colors) will supply the line plunging.

All in all, a well-balanced backfield and one that should go places behind a fighting line.

World Comment—

complete and indisputable business recovery. But on the other hand, the program of the administration for reducing the relief rolls has utterly and completely failed.

The cost of this government stimulated business upturn and of the care of the unemployed to the government has been tremendous. The total spending of the administration appears to be:

Fiscal year of 1934, $7,105,050,084.95.

Fiscal year of 1935, $7,275,825,165.57.

Fiscal year of 1936, $8,879,798,257.00.

Fiscal year* of 1937 (estimated), $7,763,000,000.00.

In an article in Today Magazine, Harvey Dow Gibson voices the conviction of what we believe a majority of the citizenship of the country.

He says: "We cannot hope to maintain our Federal relief program indefinitely. We cannot wish to do so. When the department was acute, our government came to the relief of its citizens in a manner and to an extent never before known in the relations of any government with its people. I am not greatly disturbed by the fact that to do this we had to go into debt some billions of dollars. Nor am I too worried over the fact that for the past few years we have been operating on an unbalanced budget. The emergency called for help rather than caution.

"I am deeply concerned, however, so that the millions who were rescued from want and despair shall delay their own recovery and their return to the exercises of their human right of self-sustainment and self-respect.

"We pride ourselves in the fact that this is a country of equal opportunity, and surely there is no greater obligation laid upon us than to maintain that condition. There is no quicker way of closing the door of opportunity to our citizens than by maintaining millions of them on a government dole at a time when business is reviving. This is ultimate to pauperize both the employed and the unemployed in the same ill-advised gesture."

Mr. Gibson believes that the presence of large sums of money for relief begets the idea of need where it did not exist before. As an instance, he cites the relief lists for the nation as a whole. In July 1933, there were 3,107,000 relief cases; in April of 1934, 4,355,000 families who could not live except through government aid; in December of 1935, with business conditions still better, 6,073,000.
