E. K. STEPHENS

The many friends of Mr. E. K. Stephens were shocked Friday at his sudden death which occurred in Waco. He had been in ill health for some time, but was thought to be improving. He went to Waco Thursday for treatment at a hospital and died a short time after an operation.

The body was brought to the family residence here on South 6th street, where on Saturday morning his pastor, Rev. C. A. Morton of the First Baptist Church, conducted a short funeral service, after which the remains were carried to Jacksboro for other services and burial in that city.

Mr. Stephens was a rural mail carrier which place he has filled here for the past several years. He is survived by his widow and two daughters, Maxine and Wanda Ruth.

CORRECTION

Friday, we had a story on "Fire Insurance Rates," and erred in stating "the fire rate had been reduced from 49 cents to 45 cents per $1000, assessments, when it should have been $100. We got too heavy on the goose-eggs, we suppose. Thanks to Raymond Ward for calling our attention to this error.

"It's A Small World"

400,000 TONS of Pennsylvania coal have been bootlegged into New York City according to the Anthracite Institute, and twelve men have been arrested, charged with operating a sort of "coal speakeasy." Those in the know would order a "bushel of peas" which meant a ton of pea coal, or a "dozen eggs" meaning the large size, etc. Four hundred thousand tons is a lot of coal, and detectives are now employed to follow the coal trucks. If you own a coal mine, it's getting so you can't let it out of your anthra-sight.

DR. C. G. ABBOT, of the Smithsonian Institution, has perfected a steam engine which operates on the heat of the rays of the sun. This "solar heater," as he calls it, may someday deliver a solar plexus blow to coal and oil as power-sources. It is more efficient than any such device ever made, comparing with coal at about $3 a ton. It can be used for refrigeration, air-conditioning, cooking, heating, and so on. If the sun goes under a cloud, though, you're out of luck unless you've stored up a spare supply of power.

IN Bradford, Pa., they held a "Flying Grandfather Air Race" and Paul P. Lyon, sixty-two years old, who is three times a grandfather, won by a whisker. The grandpilots had to put their planes over a course of 25 miles and grandpa Lyon averaged 79 miles an hour—pretty good for an old bird, agreed his three grandchildren who fly with him regularly.

NEW YORK STATE tried to abolish lawsuits for alienation of affections because these "heart balm" cases were in many instances just a "racket." But the courts now say (in a split decision) that the Legislature had no power to say you can't collect if someone steals the affections of your wife or husband, unless the Legislature can provide a substitute. So New Yorkers who've had their spouse stolen are waiting for a substitute, and wondering what the law-makers will do about it.

THEY FINALLY solved the mystery of the "bathing beauty in the Post Office." A picture of the bathing beauty was sent through the mails some weeks ago, and she lost her legs in the Post Office—that is, the picture didn't show any legs when it was delivered. Inasmuch as this was one of the principle reasons for taking and sending this picture in the first place, a flock of inspectors went to work at once to see what might have become of the fair limbs. Other pictures in the mails also lost things. One roll of movie film became an entire blank—didn't show anything. Other films showed funny globs, blobs and star-shaped spots. Finally they found that radium was doing it—laboratories were shipping radium by mail, and even though it was wrapped in lead containers, it would still ruin photographic plates in another mail bag way across the room.

AMERICA won most of the events in the Olympics, and most of the winners were Negroes. They wouldn't recognize Jesse Owens' new world record of 10.1 for the 100 meters because he had the wind following him. That was about all the wind could do—follow him. There's no catching that boy.

MR. SON, of Japan, won the 26 mile marathon—thereby giving his country, the Land of the Rising Sun, its first first place in the Olympic sun.

Cottage Cheese and Mustard Make Ideal Sandwich Spread

Clever Hostess Now Uses Cottage Cheese for Sandwich Spread in Addition to Serving It in Many Types of Salads

MOST folks consider summertime, when picnics and outings are in full swing, as the sandwich season supreme. Yet with the amount of entertaining housewives do today, it might be safer to say that the sandwich enjoys year-round popularity.

Whether your favorite sandwich is the good hearty peanut butter type usually found in every school child's luncheon box, or a caviar or anchovy spread of a deluxe tidbit, you will find a variety of spreads, fillings and ways of serving them, to suit almost any meal or social occasion.

Clever housewives have recently given more attention to the use of cottage cheese as a sandwich spread. Formerly its popularity was confined principally to salads, but now it is fast becoming a leader in the sandwich world, as well.

The hostess who enjoys serving delicious sandwiches, the kind which are bound to bring forth exclamations of delight from her guests, will do well to remember the possibilities of cottage cheese as a sandwich spread, the next time she entertains.

One cottage cheese sandwich which is especially delectable is that which combines prepared mustard and cottage cheese. Try it and see if you don't enjoy this new taste thrill.

COTTAGE CHEESE SANDWICH: Use either white, whole wheat or cracked wheat bread. Spread the bread first with mustard and then cover with a generous serving of cottage cheese. Chopped nuts, olives, pimientos, dates or raisins may be added if desired.

If you prefer the open faced sandwich or canapes when entertaining, follow this recipe:

COTTAGE CHEESE CANAPES: First cut the bread into attractive shapes with cookie cutters. Spread with mustard and cottage cheese. Top with any of the following: nut meats, pickles, cherries, caviar, pimiento, or stuffed olives. If you desire a fine, smooth texture in your cheese spread, force the cottage cheese through a potato ricer or sieve before using.

Here are a few hints on the care of cottage cheese in the home. Be sure and keep the jar of cottage cheese in a refrigerator or ice-box until consumed.

Purchases of cottage cheese in the new type glass jars or genuine safedged tumblers are suggested as being the most sanitary and most likely to retain the full quality and flavor of the cheese during its use in the home.

Making a Hobby of One Kind of Picture Subject

Many amateurs make hobbies of finding subjects with which to typify a single idea, phase of life or activity. Here are two pictures from an amusing collection picturing "Innocuous Desuetude."

WEALTHY art collectors often indulge their fancy by specializing in one kind of picture subject, such as landscapes, marine views, genre sketches or portraits, and assembling the pictures in a separate exhibit.

As an amateur photographer you do not have to be wealthy to enjoy a similar hobby. With your camera you, too, can make a specialty of one kind of subject and derive even more pleasure than does the art collector, because you have made the pictures yourself.

Choices for a one-subject photographic collection are endless. There are all sorts of appealing individual objects, types of which may be selected; there are the different activities and phases of life, the various phenomena of nature, and the characteristics of human nature, all of which may be portrayed in interesting pictures, if you will cultivate a discerning eye for them, and have your camera with you when you go places.

We know a clever amateur who chose as his subject WIND—big winds, hurricanes, cyclones, blizzards, breezes and zephyrs. He was so enthusiastic that he would hardly take his camera out if the wind were not blowing. His pictures consist of things in movement under the impetus of wind, or the results thereof—trees bending under the force of a storm, pretty girls with tresses and garments fluttering in the breeze, white caps at sea, wind-blown snow drifts, whirling chimney smoke, wind-whipped flags and bunting, and the havoc wrought by wind.

Another has specialized in faces of cows and produced a collection of cow portraits wonderful to behold. It is surprising how much amusing variety there is in the expressions of cows, especially those taken when the cow is alarmed. All who see this collection laugh.

"Innocuous Desuetude" is the subject of another collection, being "off-guard" snapshots of human beings in all sorts of attitudes of repose, and chuck-full of human interest—bench warmers in the park, tramps, dozing fishermen, water-front loafers, and gossipers on the steps of the country store.

Still another, a circus fan, specializes on circus pictures, inside of the big tent and out. No one can see his snapshot collection of side-show freaks, clowns, barkers, elephants and gaping spectators without immediately yearning for peanuts and pink lemonade.

Picture hobbies of others are fires, lightning, waterfalls, yachts, railroad locomotives, and so forth.

Pick your subject and try it. There's a world of fun and adventure in it, and a great chance to use your artistic talent in the photography.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

THERE was a new efficiency man took charge of an iron foundry in Ohio lately. He posted a lot of new signs to make the men work harder. One sign said, "Any man caught smoking around this foundry will be fired immediately." So, one day, as the new efficiency manager was walking in to hang up his hat, he seen a man in overalls smoking a cigarette where some goods was being unloaded. "Here," says the manager, "you seen that sign over there, didn't you?" "Sure I seen it." "Well, I'm going to make an example of you. What's your pay per week?" "Thirty-five dollars." "All right, here's a week's wages." The man stuffed the thirty-five bucks into his pocket and said "Thanks." "Now, go," says the efficiency man, "but I ain't fired that I know of. I work for the express company, and I'm just waitin' here for to get this receipt signed. But I appreciate the thirty-five bucks, anyhow." (American News Features, Inc.)

BIT'S PHILOSOPHY
by DEAN E.V. WHITE
TEXAS STATE COLLEGE for WOMEN (CIA)

Some people mistake their notions for convictions.
Better be a recluse than keep getting on other people's nerves.
One makes enough mistakes when he does his best.
Better be ignorant than know the wrong things.
He is a cheat who would make you believe he is superior to himself.

Our Merchandise Fair And Community Game

41 Churches and Clubs entered into our Coryell County Community game and friendly voting contest on Saturday. We are proud of this fine response. Bear in mind please, if you want to win the $100.00 Grand prize, it means that you have to put forth an effort EVERY day, not only Saturday. It is going to be loads of fun and excitement, and in the end—the prize money goes for a good cause, no matter who wins and no one individual can profit by it.

BEAR IN MIND THE FOLLOWING

- You can vote for your favorite organization, free, once each day and receive credit for 100 votes.
- There are over four million votes in the form of coupons for 1000 votes each, scattered throuth the county. Every family had one. Ask them to vote these coupons for your club or church.
- There are no blanks in the friendly contest. Every club or church entered in it, will receive a bonus check regardless of whether they win one of the grand prizes or not. 2% of all you purchase go back to your church or club, and the size of your bonus check depends on your purchases. Each organization entered should appoint a team captain to look after the collection of the sales slips and present them at the end of the campaign for redemption. Every time you make a cash purchase, you not only get extra votes toward winning the $100.00 grand prize, but you also add to the size of the bonus check your church or club will receive at the close of the campaign on Oct. 10th.
- 1000 extra votes in addition to 200 votes for every cash dollar or part thereof spent, will be given for each $5.00 unit in your individual purchases. Make the most of it!
- We have spent months preparing for this event. We have scoured the country to secure values in merchandise to make this celebration of 18 years in Gatesville a memorable event.
- Team captains and group leaders should confer with Mr. Wurder, our contest manager, every day. He will help you all he can, to put it over.
- We are just getting started. It is anybody's game yet. If your favorite club or church is not listed below, start them today and get into the game.
- A bulletin giving the relative standing of each group in the contest will be posted in our store every morning.

"The Dependable Store"

(C) 1936 Julius Wunder

SYNOPSIS
Jeff Hawkins and Wahoo Jones, bandits, join the Texas Rangers to procure inside information about payrolls and gold shipments to send to their outlaw pal, Polka Dot McGee. Hawkins falls in love with the beautiful daughter of the Rangers' commanding officer, Jones likes his new life as a law officer and the two men decide to remain Rangers, breaking with Polka Dot. Hawkins, however, refuses to accept an order to go out after McGee and resigns. Jones sets out to capture Polka Dot but is killed by the outlaw. Infuriated by the death of Jones, Hawkins starts out to bring McGee back, dead or alive.

CHAPTER X
Riding straight to the home of Maria Valesquez, Jeff arrived as the afternoon sun was beating down on the white adobe structure. Only Maria was at home. She disguised her astonishment at seeing this man who was supposed to be safely in jail and came forward to welcome him as of old.
"Jeff! Where you been? Come in! Come in!" she beamed, her white teeth flashing in a smile.
"Where's Davie? Where's Sam?" the man demanded shortly.

"Oh—Davie is here, and Sam—he'll be here purty quick."
"Fine. I'll wait for him." He moved into the living room, selected an armless rockingchair and moved it deliberately so that it faced the front door.
"You have dreenk, Jeff? Wine or wheesky?" Maria asked cheerfully.

"No, thanks, Maria — a little later."
As he spoke the bedroom door opened and Davie, unarmed, ran in and threw his arms wildly about his hero. Once there he gave way at last and began to sob.
"Don' cry, Davie," Jeff patted him reassuringly.
"Everything is all right." Gently as a mother he rocked the boy until his sobs ceased. Then he carried him back into the bedroom and returned to continue his vigil.

Half an hour later Sam rode up to the house. Catching sight of Jeff's horse at the hitch rack, he drew both guns from their holsters and tiptoed to the back entrance of the house. Kicking open the kitchen door, he confronted his former pal. Jeff whirled like a flash but had no time to draw.
"Take his guns, Maria," Sam commanded.
Jeff did not move from his chair. Maria hesitated.

"Haven't you heard that a Ranger never gives up his guns?"
"You ain't a Ranger any longer and besides I've got the drop on you," Sam grinned confidently.
"I see you have, but it ain't goin' to do you any good."
"You mean I'm going to have to kill you sitting there just like that?"
"Unless you want me to kill you first." As he spoke Jeff noticed out of the corner of his eye that Davie had tiptoed out of the bedroom and was crouching on a chair beside the table. And on that table were several heavy objects, including a corked whiskey bottle.

"I always liked you, Jeff," pleaded Sam, fiddling uncertainly with his guns. "Why d'you have to come prowling around now?"
"Why'd you kill Wahoo? I thought you liked him too."
"Killing's too good for a double-crosser." Sam showed his tobacco-stained teeth. "I will say this for you—you stated your case plain."
"I'll state it plain again. I quit the Ranger service rather than go after you, and Wahoo took my place, but this time I don't quit. Either you're going with me peaceful-like or I'm going to have to kill you like you killed Wahoo."

"Jeff," the bandit laughed shakily, "you always was the craziest maverick ever lived. You talkin' about killing me, and all I got to do is move my finger—and blow you right through the house."
"That don't mean anything, Sam."

"When you shoot I'm going to grab my gun"

Soon as you shoot I'm going to grab both my guns and start pumping lead into you fast as I can. Remember I've got surer aim than you ever had."

For a moment Sam stared helplessly at his tormenter. Then he tried a new tack.
"Remember that girl I took away from you in Saint Louis?"
"Arabella?"
"Yeah. Well, I tell you what I'm going to do. Maria here is a great gal—good cook and number one on the love-making. Me and the boys have been thinking of moseyin' for California. . . . I've made a nice stake—I'll promise to get out and you can have your cut, as usual—and—I'll throw in Maria to boot. What do you say?"
"Too late, Sam," Jeff's voice was like ice. "I say you better drop them guns and come with me."
"I don't want to kill you!" the bandit exclaimed with a so-help-me expression on his face. "Didn't want to kill Wahoo either, 'ceptin' he got me riled. Why, I . . ."
At that moment Davie saw his opportunity. Picking up the whiskey bottle he hurled it with all his might at Sam's head. The bandit ducked and fired wildly as he sprinted for the kitchen door. Jeff returned the fire but his aim was not so good after all. Maria caught Davie to her bosom and dragged him into the safety of the bedroom as the fusillade continued.

Cursing with fury at his own weakness, Sam leaped on his horse and was spurring away when Jeff leaped through the door and fired again. The horse faltered in its stride, then fell, throwing the bandit over its head.
McGee sprang expertly to his feet, then plunged into the brush which surrounded the cabin in dense thickets.

"I'm not going to kill you, Jeff," he shouted back. "But you'll never get me in here."

But the road agent had underestimated Hawkins' ability as a tracker. Try as he would he could not widen the distance between them as both fought their way through the undergrowth. From time to time a slug from the Ranger's pistol would come dangerously close to the hunted man, but he would not surrender. Once, when he had managed to catch a breathing spell he shouted back:

"I'll lead you through this brush until your tongue's hangin' out, you long-legged jack rabbit."
"There might be some chance for you, kid, if you'd give up and let me take you in," Jeff shouted back. "Goin' on this way ain't gonna do you a bit of good." He fired repeatedly in the direction of Sam's voice.

There was no reply, nor did the brush ahead give evidence of the bandit's movements. The Ranger crept forward cautiously, fearing a trap. He tried to peer over the thick vegetation for some sight of his enemy. Then he crouched suddenly as Sam, tired of running away at last, crept into view over a huge boulder, a revolver in either hand.

"Drop your guns, you fool, I've got you covered!" yelled Jeff.
Perhaps Sam did not hear. Perhaps he did not care. Perhaps he intended to shoot it out with his former friend. Anyway he crawled on doggedly.
Deliberately Jeff took aim and fired. The bandit gasped and slid slowly from his rock.
Almost reverently the Ranger walked forward and removed the guns from Sam's lifeless hands. Then, his victory bitter in his mouth, but conscious of the fact that he had done his duty as a Ranger, avenged Wahoo's death and rescued Davie, he turned and plodded slowly back toward the home of Maria Valesquez.

PEACH BORER APPEARING COUNTY AGENT TELLS HOW TO KILL

Many reports are being made that peach tree borers have killed peach trees in the home orchard. The following discussion is taken from "Home Orchards" issued by the Extension Service:

The peach tree borer is a yellowish-white worm about an inch long usually found under the bark around the ground line of the trees. Its presence is indicated by a gummy or jelly-like substance oozing out of that area. The adult is a moth which resembles a wasp, and lays its eggs on the body of the tree near the ground line in July and August. They hatch in a short time, burrow into the tree, and here they live during the winter and early spring. The tree should be examined for borers in September, and if they are found, treatment should be given between October 1st and 15th. In north Texas treatment should be made October 1st, but in South Texas treatment should be delayed until October 15th, as there is danger of damaging the trees if the material is applied while the weather is still hot. Best results are secured in treating the infested trees when the daily temperature is approximately 70 to 80 degrees F.

Paradichlorobenzene is a chemical that will control borers if it is properly applied. For trees three years old or older, the proper dose is one ounce. Trees under three years should not be treated as damage may result. In treating trees for borers, first pull the soil back to the crown of the root system, and scrape all gum and loose bark from the body. Then mound the soil around the body to a height of four to six inches, and pour one ounce of paradichlorobenzene on top of the mound in a circle two inches from the body of the tree. Do not let the paradichlorobenzene come in contact with the bark of the tree. The mounds should remain around the tree for six weeks, after which time they may be pulled down to the surrounding soil level.

If any further information or discussion is desired please contact the county agent.

JOHN LEONHARD, NATIVE OF GERMANY, BURIED AT COPPERAS COVE SAT.

Funeral rites for John Leonhard, who died last Friday, after a brief illness following an operation, were held in the German Methodist Church last Saturday morning. Rev. O. C. Raeke conducted the services. Interment was in the Copperas Cove Cemetery.

Mr. Leonhard, was born in Eazlsdorf, Bayern, Germany, in 1866. He came to America in 1892 and had made his home in Copperas Cove since. He was united with the Church in 1897 and has served as steward, trustee, and Sunday School teacher. He was married to Miss Minna Wolth, and to this union were born six children.

Mr. Leonhard has been a resident of Copperas Cove for 45 years, coming directly here from Germany as a youth 25 years of age.

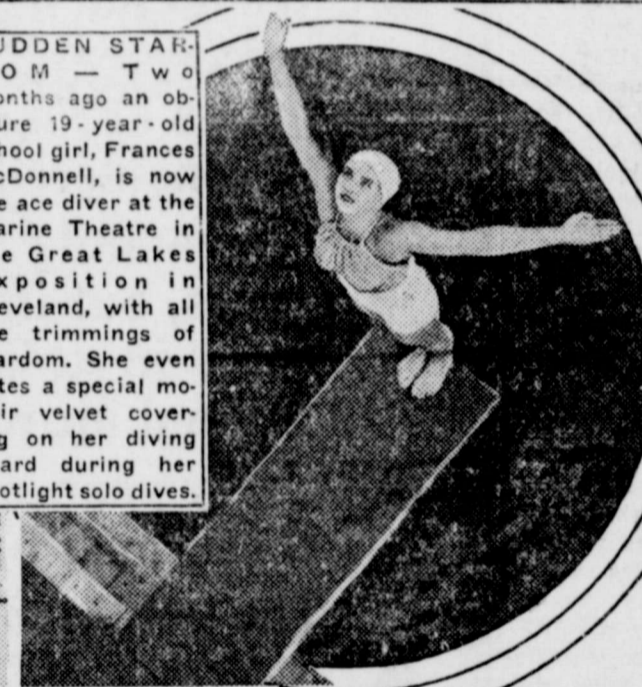

Upon arriving here he went to work as a section hand for the railroad at $14.50 per month, and from this saved the money to make the down payment on his place.

Mr. Leonhard, who was 70 years old, is survived by his widow, two sons and four daughters.—Copperas Cove Crony.

Hornets Fighting for Position on Team

By James Read Saunders,
News Sports-Editor

With a squad of fifty men, largest in the history of the school, the Gatesville High Hornets are whipping into shape for the initial bout with Moody next Friday night. Although making no extravagant claims for his men, Coach Worley is well pleased with his material and progress they are making. And well he should be too, for the squad boasts the best prospects for annexing the district title since 1929.

Many of the fans are asking why all these wild prophecies and pipe dreams. The answer is, an abundance of material with several talented performers among them.

On the line there is nearly four men to every position and very little to choose between them. At ends Wicker, Laxson, McDonald, and Jones are all showing up well, although this may be the weakest part of the line. Wicker and Laxson will probably get the call as they pack a little more experience. Roy Adams, Williams, Voss, Parrish, and Brazzil should account well for themselves at the tackle positions. Lester Williams, gargantuan one hundred ninety-five pounder, should frighten his opponents out of their wits with his bulk, looming up like the Rock of Gibraltar on the line. Brazzil, a nice defensive player, should see much service by virtue of his aggressiveness. All five of these boys should give Worley enough beef and power to wipe out any enemy line.

With a choice of five guards the line should stop up its speed and fight in running plays. Out of Cotton Davis, Clovis King, "Poison" Ivy, Glen White and E. L. Taylor. Line Coach Schwarz should develop two much needed guards in order to cross pay dirt this year.

C. H. Wallace, rugged little one hundred and forty pounder, will hold down the pivotal position with his accurate passing and brainy defense work. Royce Davis will relieve him as needed, and between these two the Hornets should be well represented at the center slot.

The backfield boasts of a galaxy of individual stars that should give the fans their money's worth this year.

Alternating at the signal barking post will be "Buzz" Colgin and "Jumping Joe" Baker, with Colgin probably seeing most service. Baker and J. C. Byrom will fill the halfback posts and should delight the spectators with their blocking and broken field running. At fullback, Douglass White will be the powerhouse of the machine. As reserves and just as powerful as the regulars will be Fore, Joe Ned Brown and Hinsley.

For passing and kicking, the Hornets will depend upon Hinsley and Fore. In practice these boys have been getting off some beautiful passes and kicks and if they show up as well in a game then the team will be well represented in these positions. As an added attraction this year the fans will witness something hardly ever seen in Class B football, placekicking for extra point. "Badger" Hinsley has been consistently botting the ball between the uprights from the twenty to thirty yard lines. Gatesville may need this boy's artistic toe this year as many a game has been decided by a three point field, goal or an extra point after a touchdown. The first college team to ever defeat a professional team did so only by the grace of Taldon Manton's educated toe when the College All-Stars defeated the Chicago Bears 7 to 6 at the Texas Centennial.

With the abundance of material to draw on Coaches Worley and Schwarz should send a powerful and well coached team to the field next Friday night. At any rate, the game will be interesting enough for everyone in Coryell County to turn out for.

Flashes From the Enemy Camps.

Quoting verbatim from the McGregor Mirror we read, "Well does this writer remember the victory of the Methodist Home over the Gatesville crew to the tune of five touchdowns last fall. Even in the rain that fell before and during the game, the Orphans handled the ball on tricky laterals that caught the Gatesville team flabfooted and completely demoralized them to make it a riot."

While he was so rosiely reminiscing, I wonder if that writer recalled the Thanksgiving Day game of that same fall between his own Bulldogs and the Gatesville Hornets. Probably not, as McGregor seems to have a very lax memory concerning their own defeats.

Friday afternoon this writer saw a much heavier McGregor team go down in defeat before these same Orphans to the tune of 7 to 0. McGregor has a larger and heavier team than Gatesville but should give the fast Hornet backfield no trouble as they are too slow to even catch their breath. Weak on pass defense the Bulldogs should go down before Gatesville, unless they improve greatly before Thanksgiving Day.

The defeat of Teague last Friday by Mart 32 to 0 is a rather disturbing event to the dopest. Teague was counted a possible district champion and Mart, with a light and green team, given only an outside chance.

The Mart Panthers are always a strong team and have sent many stars to the college gridiron. Always a high spot on Gatesville's schedule this game should be especially interesting this year.

The highly touted Valley Mills Eagles barely nosed out Rosebud 6 to 0 in last Friday's game. Although the score indicates possibly a weak Valley Mills team they are still probably the toughest spot on the Hornet's schedule. Early season scores cannot be depended upon as an accurate barometer for a team's entire season work.

Young Composer Plays Viola

Judy Blackwell's father didn't want her to dance. Her mother's love of music aided in influencing the young lady and Judy, now a viola player for Jose Manzanera and his South American orchestra, which plays regularly in the Ford Exposition Court at the Texas Centennial in Dallas, agrees today that not only was father right, but mother as well.

A father's disapproval of a dancing career for his daughter and a mother's love of music resulted in a situation which finally culminated in a radio contract for Judy Blackwell, composer and viola player with Jose Manzanera and his South American orchestra which appears in nightly concerts from the Ford court at the Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas.

As a child Judy had an overwhelming ambition to become a ballet dancer and while still in grammar school she obtained an engagement to dance publicly at the magnificent salary of one dollar for each performance. But her father objected and compelled her to stop dancing.

Judy's mother had been a well known concert singer before her marriage and had a great love for music, so she alleviated her daughter's disappointment by promising to help train her voice. After three years of strenuous work at vocal lessons, Judy turned to the violin and viola as a new medium of expressing her musical knowledge.

Followed a series of musical shorts made in Hollywood for Warner Bros. and Paramount. The climax was a Spanish Technicolor short which gave Judy her first serious contact with Spanish music and its possibilities. She became so fascinated by Spanish melodies and the rhythms that when an opportunity came to join Jose Manzanera's orchestra, which played nothing but Latin American music, Judy welcomed it above all things.

Judy mastered the tempos which were stranger than the countries in which they originated. There were yara yares and tristes from Peru and Bolivia; boleros and criollas from Cuba; bambucos and pasillos from Panama, Columbia and Ecuador, and dances from Nicaragua. With these the young musician revelled. She studied old scores and manuscripts and unique tempos and composed "Pampero," a tango which has been played many times.

Judy is happy that her father refused to allow her to become a ballet dancer.

WORLD COMMENT

By JOE BURNS

Unpublicized and unheralded is the bitter battle raging between Democrats, Republicans, and in some states, lesser parties, for the control of the Senate, House, governor's chairs and legislatures in most of the forty-eight states.

But this does not lessen the importance to either of the major parties as to who will have a majority in the next Congress or to the local organizations all over the nation, where patronage—the life-blood of the local political machine—is dependent upon the control of the numerous boards, commissions and councils.

To President Roosevelt, his re-election coincident with the election of a Republican House would mean a frustration of much of his program for the next two years by a party in violent and uncompromising opposition to increased government debt, federal relief, unbalanced federal budgets, etc. To Governor Landon, the election of a Republican House is absolutely essential if he is the nation's next chief executive. He must have a Republican House as a basis for bargaining with a silyly Democratic Senate, as no matter how many G. O. P. Senators might be elected this November the Democrats will still have a majority in that body.

The Senate of the Seventy-fourth Congress consisted of 70 Democrats, 23 Republicans and two Farmer-Laborite, and one Progressive. Thirty-three Senators are up for reelection this year, one more than the usual thirty-two as both of New Mexico's representatives must face the electorate. Ten Democrats of Southern States have been renominated, which is tantamount to re-election. They are John H. Bankhead of Alabama, Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Richard B. Russell Jr., of Georgia, M. M. Logan of Kentucky, Pat Harrison of Mississippi, Josiah W. Bailey of North Carolina, James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, Nathan L. Bacham of Tennessee, Morris Shepherd of Texas, and Carter Glass of Virginia.

There are forty-six hold-overs to more than amply fill the places of whatever Democratic incumbents may fall by the wayside in November. Three new Senators from the solid south will join the huge conclave of their political brethren at Washington in January. Allen Ellender, former Speaker of the House of Louisiana, was elected to fill the full term of the late Senator Huey Long. Succeeding Florida's two deceased Senators, Park Trammell and Duncan U. Fletcher, are two Townsendites, which are probably the only ones espousing the $200-a-month pension plan of the good California doctor in that body, are Claude Pepper and Charles Oscar Andrews.

From the above it can be seen that the next administration—be it Republican or Democratic—may expect fifty-nine Democrats ranging from ultra-conservative to progressives in the Senate of the Seventy-fifth Congress.

This number will probably be increased. Five Democratic incumbents and four new nominees are confronted by stiff G. O. P. opposition but it is reasonable to expect that some of them will come through. James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, Carl Hatch and Dennis Chavez of New Mexico, W. J. Bulow of South Dakota and John E. Erickson of Montana have cleared the hurdles of re-nomination but have strong Republican opponents, as do newcomers Josh Lee of Oklahoma, James A. Curley of Massachusetts, Edward C. Johnson of Colorado, and the unappointed successor to the late Louis Murphy of Iowa.

Republican holdovers number twelve. Ten Republicans are standing for re-election—Hastings of Delaware, Borah of Idaho, Dickinson of Iowa, Capper of Kansas, Couzens of Michigan, Norris of Nebraska (who has been a consistent supporter of the New Deal since 1933), Keyes of New Hampshire, McNary of Oregon, Metcalf of Rhode Island, and Carey of Wyoming. Senator Wallace H. White Jr. of Maine was re-elected in the September 14 general election there. Thus the Republicans are assured of only thirteen members in the Senate next January compared with fifty-nine Democrats. All of the ten G. O. P. Senators have stiff opposition from Democratic nominees.

LET'S DISCUSS BARGAINS

There's something about a cut price that interests us all. Everyone boasts of bargains and proudly displays "something just as good for a little bit less."

At MAYES STUDIO we know—or think we know—most of the answers on both sides of the table.

On one hand we have the lure of the "special price;" on the other, pride in "special work." These two are not eternally at odds, but for the long pull—the conscious building of quality—well, I wonder!

Volume—Volume—Volume! That seems to be the slogan of modern business methods. To be frank, we'd appreciate a bit of volume ourselves; but first of all we want to make SUPERIOR pictures.

All that to tell you that right now we are building—we are holding our prices at their regular level for the time being. When we do announce "Bargain Day" at MAYES we want it to be firmly based upon a long line of honest achievement.

There are details and more details to demand our strictest personal attention from the camera-room, through the dark-room, the finishing-room and finally to the delivery counter. Slight one of these details and the finished photograph will prove disappointing—although you may not be able to put your finger on the lack. But it will show in time. There have been books and books written on the Chemistry of Photography. (we've studied a few of them) and it's a complicated and tricky field.

Our aim? Worthwhile photographs at legitimate prices—and this for YOUR protection as well as our own.

World Comment—

Of the two-third parties now represented in the Senate, each has one holdover. The Wisconsin Progressives have Senator Robert M. La Follette Jr., until 1941, and the Minnesota Farmer-Laborites have Senator Henrik Shipstead until 1941.

Following the death of Minnesota's Republican Sen. Thomas D. Schall in Washington last year, Gov. Floyd B. Olson appointed Fred M. Benson, a member of the Farmer-Labor party, to fill out the unexpired term. Olson was nominated by the Farm-Laborites for the Senate and Benson for Governor, but following the recent death of Olson, a convention of Farmer-Laborites named representative E. M. Lundeen as the party's nominee for the Senate.

Although no change of party control will take place in the Senate, Republicans have great hopes of controlling the House at the next session. There are 435 members of the National House. The composition of the last House was: Democrats, 322; Republicans, 102; Farmer-Laborites, 3; Progressives, 7; vacancy 1. This gave the Democrats a majority of 209 over all parties.

A bit of addition gives the Democrats a start of 102 in the matter of House representation for next session for, as in the case of electoral votes, eleven state of the South will send solid Democratic delegates to Washington. From Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Texas and Virginia go to the 102 members who make up almost one-third of the Democratic representation in the House. In addition to the solid delegations from the South, Colorado, Idaho, Maryland, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and West Virginia sent in 1934 solid Democratic delegations to the House.

Delaware and North Dakota were the only state in 1934 to elect solid Republican House Delegations.

Nevertheless, in such normally Republican States as Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, and West Virginia, which since 1930 have elected numerous House members, do Republicans expect to draw heavily from the Democrats and offset the advantage enjoyed by the latter in the South.

Thirty-five governors will be elected in as many states in November. Spirited battles are taking place in such key states nationally as New York, Michigan, and Ohio. Only five of the thirty-five gubernatorial offices are held by Republicans. Twenty-nine are held by Democrats, one by a Farmer-Laborite.

Denton, Sept. 21. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President and one of the leading figures in American life today, will be presented at Texas State College for Women (CIA)

March 9 when she will give two lectures.

Mrs. Roosevelt has for many years played an important part in the educational, sociological, and political affairs of the day. She will discuss the "Relationship of the Individual to the Community," and the "Problems of Youth."

Let's Talk about Clothes

Denton, Sept. 21. Footwear this season, more than ever before, combines comfort and beauty. The war between low and high heels is still raging, with the manufacturers settling the problem by offering both types of heel with each shoe design.

Collegiates are eagerly following the trend toward the high-throated, moderate heeled style which is being shown with sport afternoon, and street costumes. Suede is the most popular material, and it is trimmed with calfskin, patent leather, alligator skin or novel stitching. Contrasting colors are used in heel and toe trimmings and latest reports from Paris given nothing smarter than to match the toe of your shoe with leather accents on your dress.

Shoe designers are growing more particular about fitting the shoe to the costume, especially since the fall fashions are featuring patterns taken from other decades and other nations. The shoes are named and confused buyers find such things as "pagoda pumps" to go with Oriental dresses, and kent oxfords to finish English tweed suits.

Since colors are becoming more popular in every division of the world of fashions, girls at Texas State College for Women (CIA) prescribe the use of a little imagination in the choice of blending shades for a costume. Don't let your blends match too perfectly and "kill" the effect—contrast makes for a smart appearance, and the selection of smart, richly-colored shoes may make or break your new fall ensemble.

Says Dangerous Varicose Veins Can Be Reduced At Home

Rub Gently Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunches, the best advice for home treatment that anyone in this world can give, is to get a prescription known as Moore's Emerald Oil.

Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you should notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are no longer troublesome. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that old chronic sores and ulcers are often entirely healed.
