Bosque Flood Job Is Included in the Work For Local CCC Camp

The rampaging Bosques, which periodically go on booming rises and often contribute largely to floods on the Brazos, will be affected by soil erosion control and water conservation work being undertaken by the erosion control work camp here.

In establishing soil and water conservation demonstrations the ECW camp here is also cooperating with land owners on the upper watershed of five streams tributary to the Bosque river, those being on Rainey Creek, the Mosheim community, Live Oak Creek watershed, Turnersville community on Hog Creek and the Cave Creek and middle Bosque watersheds near Whitehall.

The above named communities occupy a strategic position in an erosion control program since they are located in the principal farming sections with the watershed of Lake Waco.

XMAS WANT BOOKS FOR KIDS READY AT NEWS OFFICE

In line with the policy of the Coryell County News, Xmas Want Books for all the kiddies in the county will be off the presses this week, and the children of the county may get them and fill out their list which they want Old Santa to bring them, and leave them in the Coryell County News North Pole Post Office on Main Street. These will be published in issues of the News between now and the time Old Santa Claus comes, and we are certain he will see these and make a note of what each boy and girl in the county wishes to receive when he comes, that is, if they have been good.

Preliminary plans were made yesterday morning for decorating the city for the Christmas Holiday Season, and at the call of City Secretary Elland Lovejoy, eight of the business men called, gathered to work out the plans for this work.

So far, only preliminary plans have been worked out, and a committee composed of Horace K. Jackson, Elland Lovejoy and C. H. Wallace, has been named to formulate plans for the electric and other decorations, and also a means of financing the decorations.

December third has been set as the date to have the official opening of the Christmas season, and it is planned at this time to have the program or celebration in the evening beginning at about 6 p. m. and the merchants will have their displays ready, and there will be a general round of visiting the various stores "looking for Santa Claus."

Business men who were present at this meeting were Geo. Painter, Byron Leaird, Jr., H. K. Jackson, Pat Holt, C. W. Wallace, John A. Fletcher, Elland Lovejoy and Mat Jones. Others were called but were unable to attend on account of various reasons.

MORE DAYS TO SEE

WORLD COMMENT

By JOE BURNS

Interesting is Senator Gerald P. Nye's proposal for a constitutional amendment which would require a vote of approval by the people before this nation could engage in war.

The North Dakota representative asserts that in this way no group of politicians dominated by munitions makers and the like could plunge this country into a conflict of immense and incalculable proportions.

To say that such was the case in the World War would be saying too much. That there are always representatives in Congress and in the state legislatures dominated by the interests which do not have the interest of the people at heart has been proved time and time again.

But four hundred million Europeans were involved in war in 1914 by the will of a handful of diplomats and military leaders. Austro-Hungarian troops entered Serbia in the early days of August with the support of but a fraction of the peoples of the Dual Monarchy. The German decision to declare an offensive war against Russia and France as a result of the former's mobilization against Austria was arrived at by a small group of men at Potsdam, summer home of the Kaiser.

Many of the factors leading up to the cataclysmic conflict were engineered by the few men who dominated the destinies of most Europeans up to 1920. Austria and Germany were bound into close alliance, and the same alliance embroiled all Europe in warfare. That is, 60,000,000 Germans had to go to battle because of the stupid diplomacy of Austria-Hungary.

With the identical situation existing in Europe today but in altered form, it is no wonder that Senator Nye wants the American people to determine whether this country shall fight in the next war.

Germans, Russians, Italians, Austrians, Poles, Hungarians and Japanese are today subject to the crushing rule of demagogues and militarists. Most of these, it is true, are inspired by love for their country in their actions, but most of their actions are in turn inspired by a transient belief that they are men of destiny who receive their inspiration from G-d. "Me und gott."

As of two decades ago, millions of Europeans and Asiatics can be involved in war without their sanction or consent. American army leaders are of the united opinion that the deciding blow will be struck in the next conflict without the knowledge of the people of the attacking nation. In order to make the blow decisive, the attack, which will come through the air with mass bombardments and gas attacks, must be a complete surprise to the victim nation. No such plan would be possible if it were communicated to the entire nation.

This is the plan that will be followed. Nation x, attacking nation y, will through the space of several months increase its standing army to war-time strength. This, carried on secretly, would cause no undue alarm among neighboring states. Simultaneous with the gigantic attack, involving thousands of bombers and pursuit planes, a ground attack will be launched by the mobilized land forces, employing the use of tanks and other motorized equipment to facilitate speedy movements. Coincident with the air and ground attacks, the entire nation will be mobilized and notified that it is at war with nation y.

Within the last seven days Europe has come perilously near the precipice which means war. Tempers have flared, angry words have been exchanged—all the conditions which lead to diplomatic breaks generated from a mass of political intrigue, bombast and oratory.

Supplanting Ethiopia and the Rhineland as the focal point of European troubles, Spain is today the orbit around which revolves the scheming in continental European chancelleries.

In olden days described in geographies as "shut off" from Europe by the towering ranges of the Pyrenees Mountains, Spain threatens to involve France, Italy, Germany, Russia and possibly Britain in another war of catastrophic effects.

Not eager for conflict but attempting to achieve their aims by bluff, Germany and Italy have recognized the Spanish in-urgent leader, Francisco, Franco, as the legitimate ruler of Spain, an act unprecedented in world history. The Popular Front Government is very much alive as yet with its forces stubbornly defending Madrid in the face of repeated rebel attacks.

Hitler and Mussolini, who are at present acting together on all points of foreign policy, hope by recognizing France to so strengthen him diplomatically that the defeat of the Popular Front forces will be inevitable.

Angry words have been exchanged between Italy and Germany on the one hand and Russia. Talk of a diplomatic break between Rome and Moscow was prevalent as a result of alleged Russian aid to the Spanish government forces, but this was denied by Rome. Russia was incensed over new rumors of a German-Japanese treaty of alliance directed solely against the Soviet State.

France wondered what was coming next when Hitler sent his troops goose-stepping into the Rhineland. Further abrogation of the Versailles treaty limitations upon Germany is the immediate answer.

Germany's latest action in such directions is the abrogation of the clause which internationalized the chief rivers of the Reich and placed them under the supervision of the League of Nations.

Britain says little, but the empire islands is a bee-hive of activity. Munitions and armaments plants are running day and night, three shifts daily, turning out plants, guns, battle ships for Britain's revitalized defense forces. The Empire's answer to war—and to Mussolini's claims of Mediterranean supremacy for Rome

Someone is in charge of the Red Cross Roll Call in Coryell County and Gatesville. Quite unbeknowningly, a Chairman of Public Information was appointed out of this office, but as far as we know, that was the end of the connection or activities detailed to us by the Red Cross.

However, even tho we have been fortunate enough to miss the disasters that have come so near to us, as Waco and San Angelo, we believe we should make some attempt to call in a few dollars for this great work, with the assistance and guidance of whoever is in charge of this Red Cross Roll Call in this county.

Memberships may be had for $1.00, and subscribers should help in this movement, which will positively aid us if calamity comes. November 30, we understand, is when the drive ends, and there is still time yet. Most places, employees and employers join 100 per cent, there are drives in schools and in every organization. Will Gatesville and Coryell County?

A MODERN REUNION

IT'S a long time since sauerkraut graduated from the old barrel which stood in a dark corner of the cellar where you used to go to lift the wooden cover, smell the savory aroma and taste its appetizing flavor. If you like your kraut crisp, reminiscent of a good firm tender head of cabbage, yet having all the pungent aroma and savory taste of the home-made kraut, you buy it nowadays in cans.

But it's a very short time since kraut's bosom friend, beer, has graduated from the brewer's keg and become also available in cans. These cans contain as much as a bottle, but the beer tastes better than bottled beer because it has to be subjected to a shorter period of pasteurization. The secret of this new way of dispensing beer is that the cans contain an inner coating which performs the same functions as the inner coating of a brewer's keg.

A Worthy Couple

This beer in cans is now widely available, and the two cronies can stand in comfortable juxtaposition on your pantry shelves. But this worthy couple won't stand there long if you have such recipes in your repertoire as the following:

Creamed Sauerkraut: Sauté two tablespoons sliced onion and four tablespoons shredded green pepper in three tablespoons fat until the onions are a pale yellow. Add three tablespoons flour, and stir until smooth. Add two cups milk slowly, stirring until thick and creamy. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Add two cups of canned sauerkraut and heat thoroughly. This serves six persons.
Corned Beef and Sauerkraut: Place alternate layers of canned sauerkraut and canned corned beef which has been broken into large pieces in a baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven—375 degrees—for about forty-five minutes. This serves six persons.

Contrasts Plan of Crop Destruction With Famine Story Down the Ages

Old World Regimentation in Bloom

A sensational new book—Farming for Famine—is eagerly awaited by the agricultural world. Advance reports say the book, off the presses in a few weeks, unfolds the whole stormy story of food destruction—burning haystacks, slaughter of pigs, plowing under of crops—and loss of the American farmer's fat foreign markets.

Keen-edged strokes, Parmelee Prentice, sketches the story of the theorists of foreign origin that while vast American land lay idle, employment figures mounting and farm foreclosures increasing, peasant labor of the old world began supplying Americans with food. He quotes startling government figures of imports of meats, grains and dairy products. "We have been bringing prosperity to the foreign farmer while our own land lies idle," says the author, who is owner of Mount Hope Farm, Williamstown, Mass., the scientific experiments of which have brought world fame. "For instance, in 1935 we imported nearly 50 million pounds of cheese and more than 22 million pounds of butter, virtually demoralizing the industry in key dairy states.

History of famine and want during the last two thousand years is sketched in broad outline, and the pitiful story of man's age-old battle for survival is contrasted with the policy of food destruction and acreage restriction in a land that offers abundance to all. Hunger and human progress, the author asserts, are incompatible.

The publishers, Doubleday Doran and Company, Garden City, New York, will have the book off the presses early in September.

The average man can drive a golf ball 120 to 140 yards; the average woman only 70 to 100 yards.

To paint "First" and "Second" class on railroad cars in the United States would be un-American.

Coronation Festival of Autumn Rules for Night in Regal Ceremony

"Once upon a time" there lived in the land of Gatesville, in the county of Coryell, a kind and loving king known as Lord Jack Hestilow, King of Autumn. Now this king was a very good man and wanted his people to be happy, so he set aside one day each year for a grand Carnival to be held in his courtyard and in the castles of his dominion, the ancient castle of Gatesville High.

Now it so happened about this time the king selected a Queen, Lady Virginia Marie of the House of Olsen, to grace his court and to sit with him on the throne of his magnificent castle, the Gym. When the people learned of his choice they worked hard on the plans for the gala occasion when she would be crowned queen of Autumn.

The king sent for the best entertainers of the land to be present on the night of the festival. Among the entertainers who came at the request of the king was Mrs. Frances Christ, who told the king that she would direct a minstrel that would keep his people laughing forever. This pleased the king very much so he appointed other talented subjects of his land to help this kind woman. These people were Miss Mamie Sue Halbrook, Fred Schwarz, Mrs. Sherrill Kendrick, Miss Mary Carolyn Kelly, Jack Reesing, D. W. Diserens, Carl W. Bradley, A. R. Clary and J. W. Clark. They arranged for the coronation of the queen which was held on Thursday evening following the carnival and minstrel show.

First came the Heralds of the court, Frances Reesing and Nettie Jane Thomson, wearing colorful costumes of brown and yellow satin, and who stood on either side of the throne. Next came the Prime Minister, Jack Hearn, who announced the members of the court upon arrival.

His Royal Majesty, King of Autumn, Jack Hestilow, preceded by Bob Potts, crown bearer, who presided over the court, entered next followed by Duchess Nell Goodall, who wore a gown of cocktail red made with tight basque blouse, square neckline with silver straps across the shoulders and a full, sweeping skirt. Her escort, Duke C. H. Wallace.

Duchess Helon Walley of the Press Club, came next on the arm of her escort, Duke Jack Straw. She wore a vivacious young taffeta evening dress of cherry red with huge puffed sleeves achieved by a middle row of shirring. Duchess Frances McCoy and Duke Joe Baker of the Football Team next entered preceded by Maurice Ashby, team mascot. The Duchess wore a sophisticated gown of wine velvet, with a high draped neckline and wore a contrasting corsage at her throat. Representing the F. F. A, came Duchess Anita Lowrey and Duke Foy Wicker. The Duchess wore a gay amber-colored taffeta gown, lovely because of its simplicity of fashion.

Duchess Ruth Hamilton, in a gown of shell pink crepe, which was adorned with a novel arrangement of chrysanthemums, entered on the arm of Duke John Rufus Colgin and represented the Home Economics Club.

Depicting the Dramatic Club came Duchess Eloise Cook, in a gown of flaming red with a row of dainty white chrysanthemums along the square neckline. She was accompanied by Duke M. H. Sheppard.

Visiting Duchesses and Dukes included the Duchess Jo Berta Draper, lovely in an evening dress of old gold satin made with colonial puffed sleeves, tight basque blouse and full swirling skirt, who with Duke Walker Griffin, represented Oglesby High School.

Turnersville High School sent Duchess Gladys Reese Maxwell, and Duke Hildreth Mangum as representatives. The Duchess wore a shimmering gold taffeta gown ornamented by a lovely corsage.

Duchess Rachel Williamson, wore a gown of cocktail red taffeta made with circular flares at the shoulders and a full circular skirt. Her escort was Duke Robert Dillard, both representing Pearl High.

The Pearl Elementary School was represented by Duchess Fredonia Robinson in a gold taffeta gown made with chubby puffed sleeves. She was accompanied by Duke S. W. Hampton.

Coming from Copperas Cove were Duchess Mildred Teinert and Duke Gail Bain. The Duchess wore a stately gown of rust colored satin, with gold brilliants.

Next came the Princess Mildred Gandy and Prince Joe Reese Robinson. The Princess wore a flaming red velvet frock made on militaristic lines with brilliant buttons. At the center of the stand-up collar she wore a gay array of white pin-cushion chrysanthemums.

Princess Majorie Hall chose a gown of ruby-colored velvet with a ruffled treatment of the sleeves and neck. Her escort, Prince Douglas Pollard.

Then preceding Her Royal Highness came the lovely Princess Rosylene Anderson in an intense blue taffeta gown made with a tight basque with two-tone velvet flowers at the neckline and sunburst tucks to give the skirt fullness. She wore a jewel head piece.

To the strains of soft music came the beautiful Queen Virginia Marie Olsen wearing a gorgeous amber-gold taffeta gown made colonial style. Her train of white satin was studded with precious gems and dainty autumn leaves symbolic of the season. An Elizabethan ruff, worn around her neck added glory to the occasion. A silver and gold tiara was fitted on her head and she carried a white staff with silver sheen. Two dainty little maidens, Misses Carolyn Stewart and Beverly Ann Barber, dressed in gay red taffeta frocks, were the train bearers.

The flower girls, Misses Martha Ann Hallman and Sandra Johnson, wore amber-gold taffeta, as did their royal highness.

Following Her Royal Highness came the Duchesses and Dukes of the Gatesville Elementary School. In a lovely wine velvet gown came Duchess Mary Jane Slone with Duke Ben Owen Crow.

Duchess Dorothy Chamlee wore a gown of gold taffeta and had as her escort Duke Fred Post.

A hush fell over the subjects when King Jack Hestilow crowned his queen, Her Royal Majesty, Lady Virginia Marie of the House of Olsen, Queen of Autumn.

Like all fairy stories, "they lived happily ever after."

ASTAIRE AND ROGERS CO-
STARRED IN MUSICAL
SMASH

Whirling to new prestige in their sixth consecutive dancing triumph, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers set up a new record for themselves to shoot at with their "Swing Time," the most tuneful and original of all their vehicles. Its opening at the Regal Theatre Saturday night at 10:30 is awaited with eagerness by the local cinema-going public.

Teamed for the first time in "Flying Down To Rio," their featured status in that production was raised to stellar ranking in the successive "The Gay Divorcee," "Roberta," "Top Hat," and "Follow the Fleet," each of which surpassed its predecessor in popularity.

Now with the delightful Jerome Kern musical setting, brilliant cast and spectacular features of "Swing Time," the wing-footed celebrities bid fair to eclipse their previous records as America's favorite screen entertainers. They present several notable dances, one of which, "The Waltz in Swing Time," is scheduled to be the ballroom rage of the year, and a half dozen song numbers of which "Pick Yourself Up," "The Way You Look Tonight," "Never Gonna Dance" and "A Fine Romance," are acknowledged song hits.

In addition, Astaire appears in blackface for the first time in his career in the "Bojangles of Harlem" number, rated as the most amazing screen spectacle of the season, in which he performs a sensational hand-and-foot tap dance with a background of beautiful girls in a breath-taking setting designed by John Harkrider.

"Wheel," says the Scot, "I dinna ken a McIntosh ye kin get here—about, sin' they're all either married or verra rich. But there's a bro' MacTavish lad doon by the loch that's a bit fond of the coin, an' he might marry her, for the lass is nae so ugly."

To Experience New Taste Thrill Sweeten Your Coffee With Honey

Smart Hostesses Include Pitcher of Honey When Serving Coffee. Provides New Use for One of Oldest Known Foods.

HONEY is one of the oldest foods known. In fact, it is reported that a jar of honey placed in the tomb of one of Egypt's great queens some 3,300 years ago was found recently, still liquid and fragrant after all those weighty years. Honey is not only a delicious food, it's also a healthful one.

Child specialists stress its virtues in children's diets, because honey needs practically no digestion. The flavor of honey is due to the aromatic substances found in the nectar of flowers.

Incidentally, if you wish to experience a new thrill in your morning, afternoon or evening coffee, try adding a bit of pure honey.

The next time you serve coffee when you entertain, include a jar of pitcher of honey along with the cream and sugar, and give your guests an opportunity to try this new and delightful use for honey.

"You Always Said You Got the 'Breaks'"

Happy is the cock-sure driver who feels that Lady Luck rides with him and that he will always get the breaks. Happy, that is, until the inevitable emergency arises and the fickle Lady ducks out on him.

At high speeds, it doesn't take much to make a car leave the roadway. A moment's inattention, a badly banked curve, a hole in the pavement, a sudden swerve—any of these may prove fatal to the driver who depends on his luck. Almost 3,400 persons were killed in that way last year, according to Travelers Insurance Company records. Nearly 65,000 others were injured. In nearly every case the driver had only himself to blame, for no other cars were involved. Good drivers don't depend on luck. They depend on skill, and everlasting alertness.

thanksgiving" (Psalms 69:30).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it" (Malachi 3:10).

The Lesson-Sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Whatever inspires with wisdom, Truth, or Love—be it song, sermon, or Science—blesses the human family with crumbs of comfort from Christ's table, feeding the hungry and giving waters to the thirsty" (page 234).

Blend cream cheese with top milk. Mix together sugar, flour, salt, baking powder and lemon rind and add to cream cheese mixture. Add egg yolks and vanilla. Mix well. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a pie pan lined with rich unbaked pastry. Bake in a slow oven 350 degrees F. 25 minutes. Serve cold.

EGG-NOG PIE

Two teaspoons gelatine, 1/2 cup cream, whipped, three-fourth cup unsweetened evaporated milk, 3 tablespoons cold water, 2 eggs separated, one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg, one-eighth teaspoon salt, rum flavoring, one-fourth cup water, 1 cup sugar.

Soak gelatine in cold water, 5 minutes. Combine milk and 1/2 cup water and heat. Beat egg yolks with sugar and salt and stir hot milk into them. Return to double boiler and stir until thickened. Remove from fire and add gelatine and flavoring. Cool, and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and cream. Pour into baked pie shell.

Fold in sliced bananas. Pour into the chocolate lined pie plate. Garnish with whipped cream or meringue.

Lets Talk about Clothes
TEXAS STATE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN (CIA)

Denton, Nov. 23. — Dresses have gone "swing time." Now that the country has wholeheartedly accepted the new rhythm in popular music, fashion has stepped in to follow suit, and the resulting swing frocks are just the answer to a young modern's request for something semi-dressy.

They are especially good for afternoon parties, teas, or informal gatherings of "the crowd." For the cocktail hour, you can add a lame blouse. In one shop I saw a gold lame blouse, with squared shoulders accented by unusually large leg o' mutton sleeves. The blouse buttoned down the front with self-covered buttons, and a pepum effect was secured by a narrow gathered band at the front and back waistline. This blouse is worn on top of a six gored black file crepe skirt.

Girls at Texas State College for Women (CIA) are especially fond of a 20-gored skirt worn with a red velvet fitted jacket bound in black grosgrain ribbon. The jacket fastens with ribbon covered buttons.

Afternoon frocks in swing time are made of the file crepe or taffeta. One model has a wide band of silk rick-rack braid around the circular skirt, and this solid work is also carried out in the fullness of the leg o' mutton sleeves. A tiny egg shell satin collar and six gold buttons down the waist front are used for trimming.

Delicately applied yokes and sleeves of filmy marquisette glorify many swing frocks. The skirts are simple with not too much flare, and smartness is achieved through the unusual waist designs.

BIT'S PHILOSOPHY by DEAN E.V. WHITE

Some people overwork themselves doing nothing.

A full-grown sinner is one who hopes God will punish his enemies.

An excuse is no reason for not doing what you should.

To be jealous of another is an admission that you think he is smarter than you are.

Hornets Against Bulldogs in the Annual Battle

Turkey and football! Thanksgiving day and the annual battle of Hornets versus Bulldogs. The game that every fan will turn out for and had rather win than the rest of the season combined. That is the game for next Thursday and will probably be attended by the largest crowd of the season. The final game of the season and the Hornet's last chance to win a game in 1936 will be an inducement to every true-blue football fan in Coryell County.

Looking back at the records of the two teams finds McGregor on the winning side more than Gatesville. McGregor has always seemed have just a little bit more of what it takes to win games and district titles than have the Hornets.

Most of the credit for their prowess in football must go to the former Bulldog coach, Carol Woods. Rated as one of the best coaches in central Texas, Woods turned out many splendid teams during his stay in McGregor. He was good enough to take average material and turn it into a team that successfully took some of the best Hornet teams ever produced for a sound drubbing. The most recent disaster was the defeat of the '31 Hornet Machine that successfully won their first nine games, only to go down 27 to 7 at the hands of the Bulldogs.

With the departure of Woods McGregor has lost their constant winning streak. Harold Jenkins and the present coach, Lloyd Mitchell, have not been able to tune up a squad to old time Bulldog strength. The material is still there, bulky and tough as ever, but the magic touch of Woods is missing. That touch was evident in last year's meeting the Hornets, under Worley, a new comer to this section, were able to break the old jinx to the tune of 6 to 0.

The signs are favorable this year for the Hornets to repeat. McGregor is tough, make no mistake about that, although their season's record is poor. They have one of the largest teams in the district and are a potential menace to the life and health of the Hornets. They can be taken however.

Gatesville has had a ragged season. Probably they were overrated at the start of the season and dropped as many games as they were due to drop, but they still have the makings of a good club.

Worley and Schwarz have done well with the club considering the factors that were lacking. The Hornets have had no passers, no kickers, and a scarcity of blockers and runners that were equipped with natural ability.

The team started off with a flash against mediocre opponents but had tough going in their mid-season games. Inexperience and lack of aggression have proved their downfall and nothing could be done about it. It has not been the coaches fault and probably not the players'. Football is the most erratic game of them all. Psychology, luck and the breaks decide more games than does scientific coaching and mechanical playing. Inexperienced high school boys cannot be expected to play a brand of football on a level with the older boys who have made a study of the game.

Such a break may have decided Gatesville's season. The Clifton game and the defeat of the Hornets probably gave them a setback that they have not fully recovered from. If that game had been won the season might have gone differently, and then again it might have prolonged inevitable defeat. No one can give a satisfactory reason for any upset. The Southwest Conference will bear evidence of that.

No matter what the rest of the season has been this is the final game, and one that everyone wants to win. The Hornets can win if they go on the field determined to play football and not go panicky or wild, or loaf, as they have done in some of the preceding games.

Win or lose, there will be no fault-finding comment from the fans if the team plays its heart out and does its best. The Hamilton game, though lost, drew no criticism from the fans because the Hornets did their best to win and who can ask more?

Much could be written about this game, but every fan knows the old, old story. McGregor is the traditional rival and everyone wants to see a Hornet victory.

SO VERY GOOD

"Sure was fine," said a co-operator in the Carden Home Demonstration Club when speaking of a delicious fruit cake which she made last winter. She cooked it in a pressure cooker and reported it to be very successful.

Below is a tested recipe for a fruit cake which is to be cooked in a pressure cooker.

A FAMOUS OLD FRUIT CAKE

Ingredients: 1 pound grape fruit peel or citron, 1 pound pecans or black walnuts, 1 pound candied pineapple, 1 pound candied red watermelon rind or cherries, 3 pounds seeded raisins, 1 1/2 pounds figs or currants, 1/2 pound butter, 1/2 pound brown sugar, 1/2 cup fruit juice or sweet pickle syrup, 5 eggs, one pound flour, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon cloves, 1 tablespoon nutmeg, one-fourth teaspoon all spice, 1/2 teaspoon salt.

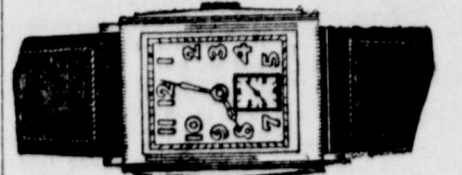

Directions: Wash and dry currants. Cut grape fruit peel or citron and pineapple in one-half inch cubes, leaving cherries and nuts whole. Cream the butter, sugar, and beaten egg yolks. Mix flour and spices, add flour and fruit juices alternately. Add fruits, and nuts, mix thoroughly. Last of all, add beaten egg whites. Mix dough thoroughly and place in baking pans which have been lined with butter paper which has been oiled. Cover the top of the pan with heavy brown wrapping paper which has been oiled. Tie the paper securely around the edge of pans to prevent water getting into the cake. Place the pans in the cooker and pour boiling water into the cooker half way up the pans. Place the top on the cooker but do not fasten the clamps. Keep at the boiling point 55 minutes. After that, clamp the lid down securely on the cooker. Close the petcock and raise the pressure to 15 pounds for 15 minutes. This insures cooking the cake to the center of the pan. Remove the cooker, take off paper covers, and place pans in a slow oven for 15 minutes. This dries out the crust. This recipe makes 11 pounds.

Note 1: Cakes can be made more attractive by decorating the tops with whole nuts, cherries, pineapple cubes and citron strips. Save sufficient amount when mixing cake for decoration. Just before placing cake in oven to dry out press slightly fruits and nuts on top of cake as desired.

SYNOPSIS

Carrie Snyder operates a rendezvous for the town's gay blades in small Crebillon, La. Paul Darnley, a misunderstood lad of eleven, makes her acquaintance. Shortly after, Carrie is ordered to leave town. Paul runs away from home and takes refuge with Nick, a tramp river fisherman. He rescues Lady, an orphaned youngster, from a train wreck and takes her to Nick's. Carrie hears of their plight and brings them to New York. She leaves her old life for the dry-cleaning business. Successful, she showers the children with every luxury. Paul graduates from college and takes a job with Dennis Ringrose, a literary agent. Lady goes to a finishing school. While riding on a subway, Paul accidentally causes the death of a man. From various sources he discovers that the man, Franz Eipper, has a sister, Lili. To assuage his conscience, Paul decides to help Lili and Carrie agrees to do her share.

CHAPTER VI

THE three of us held carnival all that summer, with Ringrose and Maggie Devlin to help out at the high spots. For now it was Lady, sixteen and lovely, who was leaving for Goucher College in the fall. The wild, loud little rowdy was gone now and another Lady was coming into being, with something of Paul's grave and fine serenity about her. She was making herself into the girl she thought he must love.

On her last night at home she slipped into my room.

"You'll take good care of Paul for me, won't you Aunt Carrie?" she said. "I know it sounds silly to ask you that, but you know how he is. He'll overwork in that office and ruin his eyes reading manuscripts all night if you don't watch him."

"I promise, Lady," I said. "Tell me, how are you two getting along these days?"

"I don't know, Aunt Carrie. Sometimes this summer I've thought he was really in love with me; then again I wasn't sure. But I can hope anyway, can't I?"

Holding her hope, Lady went away the next day with head high.

When Paul was twenty-five, a couple of weeks after Lady had been up from Baltimore for the Christmas holidays—she was in her third year then—the thing happened.

He was in the Grand Central subway station during the five-o'clock rush, on his way to deliver a manuscript. It was snowing heavily, and the concrete floors of the subway were black and slippery. He let two trains go because the crowd was so thick. Then, unwilling to lose more time, he joined the crush and was squeezing his way through the door when he felt someone pressing him from behind and holding onto him. He was going in as fast as he could, and the pressing and clinging made him mad. He glanced around, swinging his shoulders and hips to free himself. The door slid to and the train began to move.

Above the noise of the crowded train, Paul heard a screaming and shouting on the subway platform. Twisting himself around, he looked out and saw a man being dragged, along platform, his head bumping against the concrete pillars. The closing door had caught one side his overcoat and was still holding it. Looking down, Paul saw the flap of dark cloth inside the door, with a big button that was keeping it from slipping free. He tore at the button until it came off. Then the flap of cloth slipped free of the door.

A guard had signalled the motor-man and the train stopped. The door slid open and Paul looked down on the pale-faced man he'd shaken himself loose from. Subway policemen were lifting him to carry him upstairs.

Paul followed them and trailed the ambulance in a taxi. At Bellevue Hospital he got the name of the man, Franz Eipper, and his address from a nurse. He was still unconscious, she said, and probably had a skull fracture.

said. "Things always look better in the morning."

But he wouldn't go. Said he'd wait a bit for a call from the hospital—he'd left our number. So I went up alone, but I didn't sleep. About three o'clock the call came. Eipper was dead.

The next day Paul packed Eipper's things and put them in storage, and we arranged a decent burial for him, paying all expenses. That might help to lighten Paul's feeling of responsibility, I thought.

But it didn't. He kept on brooding about it. Even lost interest in his work at the office, and Maggie Devlin and Ringrose, who were devoted to him, couldn't bring him out of it. Two or three weeks passed, and still he looked worried and thin.

On her last night at home, Lady slipped into Carrie's room. "You'll take good care of Paul for me, won't you, Aunt Carrie?" she asked.

Paul's face was gray when he came in that night, about eleven, and told me the story. If he'd actually killed the man he couldn't have been more depressed.

"It's too bad it had to happen, but you mustn't feel so low about it," I said. "It was an accident, that's all. Even if you hadn't shaken Eipper off, he couldn't have got in. You just managed to squeeze in yourself, and he was behind you. You didn't make him fall; it was the slippery floor. If he hadn't slipped he could have wriggled out of the coat."

But nothing I said seemed to lighten his spirit.

He'd gone down to Eipper's boarding-house, he said, and seen the landlady. She said he seemed to have few friends, though he was a decent sort, kindly and considerate. He had never spoken of any relatives except a sister. Recently he had said that she might be coming to New York soon, and that if she did they would take an apartment together. Her address, the landlady said, could probably be found in the letters that he kept in his trunk.

"Well, Paul, let's sleep on it," I

He'd written Franz's sister, Lili, to tell her of her brother's death, and had heard from her several times, I knew. But he didn't show me her letters, and when I asked what she had said he was evasive. Finally one night, when I was about at my wit's end, Paul burst out:

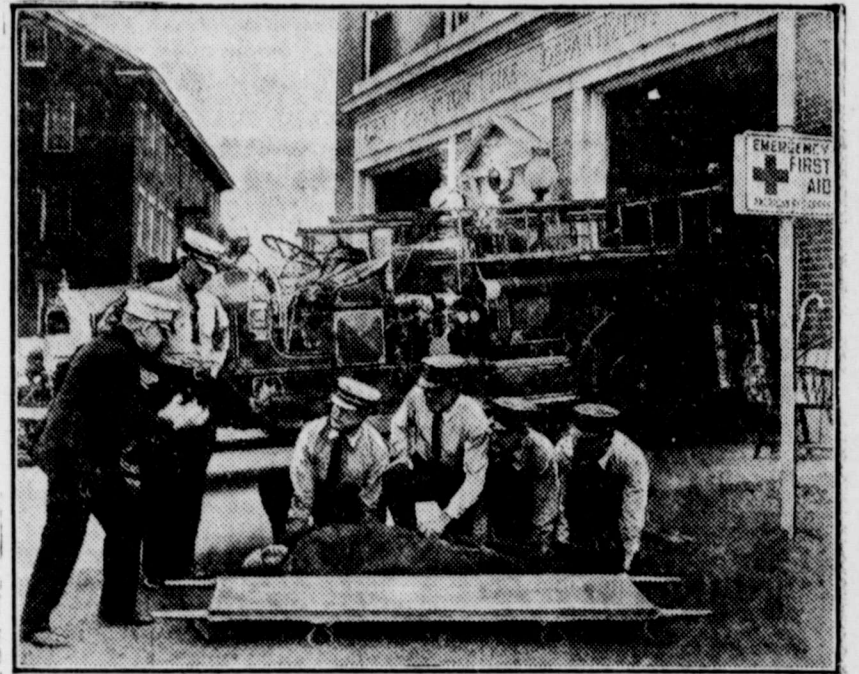

"I've got to help Lili Eipper get to New York. I think she wants to come, and I owe her that much, at least. Franz was going to do that for her, you know. Could she stay here with us for awhile, do you think, until she can find a job and get on her feet? She hasn't any money."

So that was it—still that load of responsibility, for Eipper's sister now. I didn't too much like the idea of taking in Lili Eipper. There was something queer about the whole thing—her many letters, Paul's reticence, his continued moroseness. But there seemed to be nothing else to do, and Paul must be helped out of this, somehow. So I said:

"Of course she can stay here. And what's more, we'll go down to St. Louis to see her. Then if she wants to come, we'll bring her up with us."

added. The job is not entirely finished but it makes her home "look like a different place." The space formerly occupied by the kitchen is now transformed into a sleeping porch with plenty of windows. The Yale-Brown Gridiron series dates back to 1880.

HIGHWAY FIRST AID STATIONS EXTEND FROM COAST TO COAST—These firemen in Rhode Island are prepared to save lives of motorists injured in accidents, just as are crews in similar Emergency First Aid Stations at more than 1,000 posts on the nation's heavily traveled highways.

The next club meeting will be with Mrs. Buster Krempin on December 2.
