

2nd Annual Coryell Co. Wool & Mohair Show Set for Thurs. May 6

Although the show has been announced far ahead, the Second Annual Coryell County Wool and Mohair Show will be held in Gatesville Thursday, May 6, according to plans recently formulated by directors of the Association.

Added features this year will be premiums offered on the heaviest fleeces shorn on the grounds on the day of the show from both breeds of sheep and from goats, there being divisions for both male and female fleeces. Exhibitors desiring to enter this contest must bring their animals to the show and have them shorn or shear them themselves at the appointed time.

It is hoped by the directors that this show will be one of the biggest held anywhere in Texas, and it can be made so if everyone takes part. Further announcements will be made from time to time, giving full details of the show.

ROARS FROM LIONS DEN ARE MINGLED WITH MUSIC OF JUNIOR ORCHESTRA

The snarling, growling roars of local Lions were drowned in harmonizing musical rhythm of the Junior Orchestra, capably directed by D. W. Diserens, and the very clever readings of little Misses Yvonne Davis and Sarah Frances Graham afforded entertainment for the regular mid-week meeting of the club.

The orchestra is composed of Jerry Davis, Tommy and Bill Lasseter, Harold Diserens, Loyd Brown, Leroy Powell, Johnnie Belle Coskrey, Ben Owen Crow, and Jimmy Dick Thomas. Their selections were "Golden Jubilee," "Serbian Peasant Dance," "Noble Spirit," "C'hu Shan," "Corona," and "Inauguration Grand March."

DISTRICT COURT AGAIN IS GRINDING; SWAN SONG NOT YET

Contrary to indications last Tuesday, District Court again swung into action and since our last writing, one case has been disposed of and another is "at the bat" now, and we won't say just how many more are to come up, but anyway, here's the lineup at this time:

In progress now is the case of Walter Ussery vs. Artvision Publishing Co.

Disposed of is the case of Tom Medart et al. relator, vs. Dee White et al. respondents, suit for writ of habeas corpus.

No announcement was made as to what other cases are coming up.

LOCAL CHILDREN TO BE ON AIR NEXT SATURDAY MORNING

"THE COMMENTATOR," TIMES HERALD SCRIBE GIVES REP. A BREAK

In Monday evening's Waco Times-Herald is a letter from Representative Earl Huddleston to the columnist who authors "The Commentator," and he says (the columnist) "and we give the member of the House from Coryell a break as follows:"

I am enclosing a resolution which Senator Hardin and myself introduced in the Legislature requesting the senate members to fill out questionnaires stating whether they are receiving any retainer fees from any corporation or not.

I do not understand why any member of the senate would oppose this measure, but they spent almost a half day condemning Mr. Hardin and myself for presenting this resolution. I think it's high time that the people of Texas are getting in touch with their senators if they indorse this move of Senator Hardin and myself. We did not make any charges, and it seems that the people should know the facts as they are, so why would anybody oppose the resolution if they are not on the salary of a corporation, and if they are, the people are entitled to know about the same.

I would appreciate you publishing the main part of this resolution in your paper.

Respt. yours,

Earl Huddleston.

Rep. of Coryell and Hamilton Counties.

1937 Soil Conservation Probably Start About March 1; Meeting Set

Due to the fact that in all probability the "sign-up of the 1937 Soil Conservation Program in Coryell County will begin around the first of March, meetings as follows are to be held for discussion of details of the act:

Oglesby, Monday, February 22 at 9:30 a. m.

Purmela, Monday, February 22, at 2:00 p. m.

Turnersville, Monday February 22, at 8 p. m.

Flat, Monday, February 22, at 2:00 p. m.

Copperas Cove, Tuesday February 23, 9:00 a. m.

Gatesville, Tuesday February 23 at 2:00 p. m.

The 1937 program is very similar to the 1936 program. There have been a few changes made in the rules and there will probably be more changes made which it is hoped to have by the time the meetings are held. The program as a whole is far more liberal to the producer this year than last. Provisions have been made whereby a farmer may earn a greater amount of benefit payments than last year. Severe penalties for exceeding the bases as established last year have been reduced to a minimum. A full account of the act will be carried in the Tuesday issue of the News.

RED CROSS MEETING IS CALLED FOR SAT. AT CITY HALL

County Chairman Brooks Sasse has previously issued a call meeting of the members of the local chapter of the American Red Cross in the City Hall Saturday, February 20 at 2:30 p. m.

Those who have paid $1.00 or more for membership in the organization and have received membership cards are asked to be present.

The purpose of the meeting is the electing of a Board of Directors, which in turn will name the officers for the ensuing year.

NEWS' EMPLOYEE RETURNS TO WORK AFTER BOUT WITH "FLU"

Woodrow Byars, who was recently employed by the News just in time to get sick and go home with a "good" (or was it) case of the flu, has just returned to the scene of his labors. At present Woodrow is in the "black gang," but he may move up any time.

He is a son of Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Byars of Gatesville, who recently moved here from near Lampasas. He is a graduate of Lampasas high school and for some time was employed by Alvis-Garner Co. in this city.

COUNTY BOARD SENDS LETTER TO LAW MAKERS

Coryell County Board of Trustees have sent the following letter to the Legislature at Austin: To the Hon. Sen. J. Manley Head, and to the Hon. Rep. Earl Huddleston of Coryell and other counties:

"The Coryell County School Board believes that the schools of this County could be better served by repealing the law concerning the transfer of territory from one District to another that was passed during the last General Session of the Legislature. They believe that the matter of changing district lines should be left with the local boards and the County Boards.

"They believe further that the County Board could be of valuable service if it should be permitted to have as many as fifteen meetings a year. The Board therefore ask that you, if you conscientiously can, support the two measures above.

Signed: A. T. Humes, President; S. A. Turner H. E. Huckabee, C. H. Graham, B. E. Morgan, J. M. Witcher, sec.

"SIGNER" NOT KNOWN IN GATESVILLE; SIGNS CHECKS IN WACO

An unknown "signer" of hot checks, or checks that came back marked "no account" and were no account, has been working the scheme on Waco merchants, to the tune of $250. They were passed on the First National Bank, but were not paid by them.

Included in the passings, were Ike Kestner, R. T. Denis Co., Watkins - Turner Co., Mousa Linen Shop, Abe Therrill. He usually gave a check for a larger amount than the purchase and asked for change. He managed to get away with $50 in cash and some merchandise.

The man held letters of introduction and seemed to know many people in Gatesville, but authorities here were unable to throw any light on his identity.

Others tried by the slick artist were A. F. Von Blon and J. A. Orem.

"THE SKY'S THE LIMIT;" ANYWAY, LOOK UP IN PAINTER'S

Looks like the Golden Gate Bridge, what with scaffolds and men scaling around over small boards and scaffolding, but just you wait and when the job is done "look up" when in Painters 'cause they're installing a new ceiling, and what's more we understand a certain lighting expert has discovered a way to give that unaccountable "glow" to the lights that will be installed.

It will be a revelation in interior furnishings, especially the ceiling, we understand.

Coryell County School Board Met Thurs. in District Court Room

Members of the Coryell County School Board met yesterday morning in the Grand Jury room at the courthouse, adjourning at 3 p. m. On this board were A. T. Humes, president; H. E. Huckabee, S. A. Turner, B. E. Morgan and J. M. Witcher.

The principal speaker of the meeting was Mr. Tinney, a representative of the State School for the Blind and Austin, who outlined the work done and asked for the cooperation of the board and the County Superintendent in seeing that blind and partially blind children be placed or sent to this blind school. The board voted that the County Superintendent handle the matter.

Turnersville bus route was established by the board to run by Buster, up Coryell creek, Pancake and back to Turnersville.

TUESDAY'S FIRE ALARM DUE TO FIRE IN AUTOMOBILE

Tuesday morning the local fire department was called to Sheppard Motor Co., where an automobile had caught fire. Before the firement arrived, however, the flames were put out with little damage to the car.

CORRECTION ON RULES FOR RHYTHM BANDS

Mrs. Rabon Balch, director of Rhythm Bands in the County Meet has asked that we make the following correction:

"All bands from seven and nine grade schools may choose their members from the first five grades. Ten and eleven grade schools must choose their bands from the first four grades.

The above correction speaks for itself, and Mrs. Balch believes this will straighten out erroneous information put out heretofore.

CROP LOAN APPLICANTS NOW BEING RECEIVED AT LOAN OFFICE

Applications for emergency crop and feed loans for 1937 are now being received at Gatesville by Ernest Nalle, field supervisor of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Section of the Farm Credit Administration.

These loans will be made only to farmers who cannot obtain credit from any other source, as provided by regulations issued by the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration. The money loaned will be limited to the farmer's immediate and actual needs for growing his 1937 crops or for the purchase of feed for livestock and in no instance may exceed $400.

BILLY MAC RITCHIE WINS ONE DOLLAR, MRS. A. L. SHARP, SUBSCRIPTION

On the last of the News' Picture Puzzle Contests, Billy Mac Ritchie, son of Deputy Sheriff Curtis Ritchie came out One Dollar ahead with his solution of the puzzle, and Mrs. A. L. Sharp, who stayed in and pitched throughout the contest is the only "repeat" winner of the contestants, winning for the second, and gets a one year's subscription to the News.

Due to misunderstandings when the names of other contestants are sometimes mentioned in the results of contests we will not here mention names of others entering solutions in this contest.

the Crusaders, and other forces of equal import in world history. DeMille now turns his unique talents to the ten important years between the end of the Civil War and Custer's dramatic stand at Little Big Horn, the decade that marked the beginning of Western expansion. "The Plainsman" is a masterful tribute to the men who made this possible.

All the colorful characters known and loved by America for the past two generations come to life again in this pageant of empire-building. "Wild Bill" Hickock masterfully portrayed by Gary Cooper; "Calamity Jane," played by lovely Jean Arthur; "Buffalo Bill," enacted by James Ellison; General George A. Custer, played by John Miljan, the famous Indian Chiefs "Sitting Bull," "Yellow Hand," and "Painted Horse;" President Lincoln and his wartime cabinet, are all included in this film.

Cheyenne Indians, several troops of U. S. cavalry, gamblers, frontier characters and settlers, all assembled and masterfully merged into a film which is as big as the mighty background it portrays.

The story of the Plainsman begins with the end of the Civil War and the unscrupulous gun-running among the Indians engineered by arms manufacturers eager to get rid of their surplus stocks. Heading out of Leavenworth, the "jumping off place" for the West, is Cooper, as the colorful Wild Bill Hickok. The stage to Hays City is driven by Calamity Jane. The two fall in love but Cooper resents the girl's familiarity with other men, and conceals his emotions.

Before they reach Hays City the party runs into Indian trouble. Cooper takes a hand at once, directing his efforts mainly against John Lattimer and guns to the Indians. The roles of these two frontier characters are carried by Charles Brickford and Porter Hall.

After Custer's army is wiped out by the Indians, Cooper goes after Lattimer and McCall. They contrive to make him a hunted man but he captures some of their teamsters. While awaiting for the army to come up, Cooper engages them in a poker game. The climax comes with the arrival of the troops and a tensely dramatic scene between Cooper and Miss Arthur.

The massacre at Beecher's Island and "Little Big Horn," where a whole U. S. Cavalry regiment was wiped out by the Indians have been faithfully reproduced, providing one of the finest battle scenes ever filmed.

SYNOPSIS

Wild Bill Hickok, Buffalo Bill Cody and his bride, Louisa, and Calamity Jane, Wild Bill's sweetheart, are en route to Hays City on the Overland Stage when a scout informs them that the Indians are on the warpath. General Custer sends Cody as a scout for an ammunition train going to the relief of General Carrington while Wild Bill leaves to spy on Yellow Hand, the Indian chief. Louisa and Calamity are left alone in the former's cabin when Indians storm the place.

CHAPTER IV

"What shall I do?" she asked faintly.

"Kin you ride?"

"Yes."

Calamity went to her.

"My horse is outside. Go out in the leanto. Open that door there—and wait. When you see 'em all in here, sneak out to th' horse and ride to town. Tell 'em there's Injuns here, with war paint on."

Fighting for strength, Louisa Cody did as she was told. From the stove in the leanto, she watched the slithering figures of painted Sioux come into the cabin. She saw the ghastly comedy as Calamity Jane pretended to regard them as visitors, and with forced gaiety implanted one of Lou's hats on the leader's head. She saw the play for time, the exaggerated hospitality as Calamity pretended to welcome them. She caught the menace in the gutters of a giant Sioux whom she had heard Calamity address as Painted Horse. They were questioning the frontierswoman, demanding to know where the soldiers had gone, what had become of the army mules with heavy packs on their backs.

Then even before she realized it, Louisa Cody was on the back of the horse, urging it to greater speed as she raced for the fort. She did not know how far she travelled, she only saw the lights of the distant fort crawling slowly closer. Then at last, she was there, gasping out her story.

The sharp blast of the bugle cut in upon her narrative, the danger call of the prairies, "Boots and Saddles." Men rushed about. Sabres clanked. Orders were shouted. Then to the clud of many hoofs, Louisa was off again, leading the way to the cabin.

Only emptiness greeted her. Emptiness, and the whine of the wind, the guttering of the old kerosene lamp, the torn remains of a hat upon the floor. Painted Horse and his warriors were gone. And with them, by force, the soldiers knew, had gone Calamity Jane.

Wild Bill had been following this trail for more than an hour. Caution had brought slow movement, if he could see others, Wild Bill reasoned, it was possible for them to have seen him.

A distant silhouette had brought this action. For days Wild Bill had ridden the upper reaches of the Republican River on a still hunt for the renegade chief of the warring Cheyenne and Sioux, Yellow Hand. They had been friends once. Perhaps now Wild Bill could learn the cause of suddenly flaming warfare —to say nothing of diverting attention from Buffalo Bill and the ammunition train he sought to lead to General Carrington. His plans had changed with the sight of this silhouette. It had been a band of Indians, riding single file across a rise of land, and leading someone on foot, a captive.

At last he reached the winding course of a small stream. There were many hoofprints of unshod horses in the wet sand. And there was something else! That white captive was a woman. There in the galloping horse, his arms extended, in a gesture of peace. Then suddenly a fear-racked cry broke from the woman's throat.

"Bill! Bill Hickok! Turn back! These are Yellow Hand's Injuns!"

The rope tightened about her neck, as a captor jerked her to the ground. But she rose again, dusting at Louisa Cody's dress, now sadly bedraggled. Wild Bill was only fifty yards away, still coming hard. Painted Horse had ridden out to meet him, making the gesture of peace. Wild Bill slowed his horse. Togeth-

"Keep quiet," Wild Bill commanded Calamity Jane. "You'll get a tomahawk in your brains if you keep asking for it. Indians will sell anything. Maybe they will sell you."

sand was the feminine smallness of a boot-print.

Swiftly, Hickok followed the trail, suddenly to halt again. He dismounted and picked something from the ground, juggling it for a long moment in his open palm.

"Calamity Jane!" he muttered. "It's that string of beads I gave her!"

The discovery brought a moment of conjecture. If a band of Indians had captured Calamity Jane, they had done it because the wily Yellow Hand had learned that relief was going forward to Carrington and believed that Calamity Jane might possess information concerning it. Wild Bill swung back to his horse. Soon he was out of the valley and hard on the trail of the distant band of Sioux.

A half hour later, Calamity Jane looked suddenly up from her position where she was being dragged by a rope between two lines of Indian horsemen. There were gutters of excitement from the band; warriors pointed to a distant, yet swiftly approaching object. Calamity Jane turned her aching head. A white man was approaching on a er he and the sub-chieftain, Painted Horse, were riding forward. At last the plainsman towered above her.

"Keep quiet," he commanded of the woman. "You'll get a tomahawk in your brains if you keep asking for it." Then: "Indians will sell 'most anything. Maybe they'll sell you."

Despite Calamity's objections, he began to bargain. Painted Horse refused money. At last Hickok brought forth his beloved watch and pressed the spring which set loose the tinkling Bluebells of Scotland. Painted Horse took the watch. He called for Wild Bill's gun and cartridge belt. Grudgingly, and against Calamity's outcry, Wild Bill did the only thing possible. He passed them over. Then a long harangue followed in Sioux.

"What's he say?" asked the woman.

"Says he's got to take us to Yellow Hand."

"And you'll get double-crossed," answered the woman. "Why couldn't you stay away from here, where you belonged?"

WORLD COMMENT

Joe Burns

A Subtle Proposal

The subtle argument of Mr. Roosevelt for packing the Supreme Court with supporters of his own political philosophy, submitted under guise of seeking an improvement in the whole Federal judiciary, has fortunately been broken by an alert press and by the good sense of the American people.

It is no longer a question of court reform or of expediting of justice, but a question of changing the Constitution so that Mr. Roosevelt may interpret this historic document to his own liking.

Were the reforms which Mr. Roosevelt desires submitted under different circumstances, they would undoubtedly receive favorable consideration, but coming from an executive whose acts have repeatedly been declared unconstitutional and from one who holds more power than any other American President ever held, there can be nothing but ominousness attached to the recommendations.

The subterfuge has been dispelled. On the basis of the assertion that Federal courts are crowded, it might be said that the Supreme Court has for several years had only about 100 cases left for its calendar at the end of each term. To believe that an increase in the number of justices would expedite the work of the Supreme Court is foolish. The late Justice Story once said: "If there were twelve justices we should do no business at all."

One must be credulous indeed who will believe that the proposals emanating from the White House would have been forthcoming had major New Deal measures been approved by the Court.

Washington, in his Farewell Address, warned his countrymen of the very thing which has been asked by Mr. Roosevelt. These were his words:

"If, in the opinion of the people, the distribution, or modification of the constitutional power be in any particular wrong, let it be corrected by an amendment in the way the constitution designates—but let there be no change by usurpation."

The present effort on the part of Mr. Roosevelt is but a subtly clothed effort to gain control of the judiciary by the method which Washington warned against. If Mr. Roosevelt wanted a change in the Supreme Court, and believed the people were willing to go all the way with him why did he not answer questions submitted during the campaign as to his intentions toward the Court and as to his opinion on a constitutional amendment limiting the power of the Court with silence? Why does he not now, desiring as he does such such fundamental change which will alter the entire system of government in this country, submit his proposals to the people in the form of a constitutional amendment?

Instead of a rational method, he springs his proposals upon a stunned nation and Congress, with congressional leaders and his own cabinet as ignorant to the contents of his revolutionary messages as were those in least touch with affairs at Washington.

If Mr. Roosevelt believes the Supreme Court is not interpreting the constitution as the people of this area wish it to be interpreted why does he cloak his proposals for a change in this court and consequent change under the ingenious proposal for a routine speed up in justice?

These are questions which the people of America must answer in their own minds. They are questions in which conscience and not loyalty to party or loyalty to the President must play the deciding role.

Conceding, for the moment, Mr. Roosevelt the highest and noblest motives in the present crisis—those of working for the betterment, social and economic, of the American people, we must, nevertheless, by approving his proposal, be casting a dark shadow over the future.

For if Mr. Roosevelt, with a congress full of his own supporters, can dispossess the members of the Supreme Court, may not any one of his successors do the same? Has not Mr. Roosevelt just presented to congress a plan of reorganization for the executive branch of the federal government which would increase the power of the chief executive?

The test of a democracy lies no more in the will of the majority prevailing than in the protection of the minority. Hitler and Mussolini undoubtedly express the will of a majority of their people, but in their countries the minority out of sympathy with their theories and concepts of government by dictatorship are subjected to indescribable sufferings and persecutions. What proof have we of the character of Mr. Roosevelt's successor, who, if the present plans of the present executive materialize, will step into a position of unprecedented power in this nation with greater executive powers than any other American president ever possessed, a Supreme Court subservient to his every wish and whim, and if a Democrat, a majority in the Senate and a probable majority in both houses of congress.

WASHINGTON WITH Congressman W. R. (BOB) POAGE

Of course, there has been more talk about the President's proposed plan of judicial reform than any other matter recently. There seems to be some very strong feeling that, although members are not willing to commit themselves to vote for any plan that will give the President the power to control the membership of the Supreme Court, they are anxious to work out these reforms that will give Supreme Court Justices a chance to retire as other Federal Judges have. To this end the House passed by an overwhelming vote, a bill allowing members of the Supreme Court who have served for at least ten years to retire on full pay at seventy years of age. This opportunity has long been available to other Federal Judges and I think it was nothing but an act of justice to make it available to members of the Supreme Court. I voted for this bill.

There also seems to be strong support for the proposals suggested by the President, that appeals on constitutional question be speeded up and that the government be given an opportunity to appear in any case raising the question of constitutionality of any act and present argument in favor of the act. These proposals seem to me to offer much good and I think they will pass. I do not know what will be the result of the proposal that the President be given the power to appoint new members of the Supreme Court. At present there is undoubtedly much more outspoken opposition to it than there is open support, but everyone here admits that the President will be able to change many votes. It is pointed out that in the last four years Congress has failed but once to follow the presidential demands; that was in the matter of the soldiers' bonus. I do not claim to know what will happen other than that we are in for lots of hard feeling. I think there should be judicial reform, but fear that it would be very dangerous to destroy the freedom of the Court. Many of the evils that have been attributed to judicial usurpation of power are actually due to a surrender of legislative power on the part of Congress itself, and certainly one of the greatest dangers now confronting our people is the willingness of many members of Congress to let other people and other branches of the government do their thinking for them.

Actually much of the legislation of this nation is done today by the Executive Departments of the Government through the means of departmental regulations—particularly since these departments have had so much federal money to distribute to those who would accept their rules and regulations. As an example, there is now pending in the Texas Legislature a soil conservation bill which proposes to remit certain taxes to counties for the purpose of aiding soil conservation work. This bill proposes to set up soil conservation districts along our familiar county lines. The Department of Agriculture recently advised the Texas A. & M. College that unless this bill was changed so as to make the districts follow drainage basins rather than the lines, and that if Texas did not let all "property occupiers," which include anybody who happened to be in the territory, vote in elections creating districts, and further if Texas did not provide that all violations of the regulations prescribed by the Board should be punishable by fine and imprisonment, that our State would get no federal money.

Dr. T. O. Walton and J. W. Chapman of A. & M. College came up here and appeared before a meeting of the Texas Delegation (the 21 Texas Congressmen) and we selected a committee, of which I was one, to take up the matter with the

Gina Cigna to Sing Role of Norma • For 183rd Time in Opera Broadcast

By GINA CIGNA

So many of opera's loves end in tragedy. Almost every familiar operatic heroine that comes to mind—Violetta, Madame Butterfly, Mimi, Fosca, Gilda, Nedda, Aida, Manon—each breathes her last before the conductor lays down his baton. Somehow it seems that before a tempestuous love reaches its climax, one or both of the principals must die; or at least, one must be left grieving at the deathbed.

There are, I suppose, several reasons for this. One certainly is that great composers almost invariably choose, for their most serious works, the classic Greek tragedy form, with its central figure overwhelmed by fate. But beyond this, perhaps, lies a reason to be found in the character of operatic music itself. For it must arouse emotions or it fails of its purpose. And in tragic love, with its sharp conflicts of loyalties and passions, these emotions are found in their purest and most intense states.

Vincenzo Bellini's "Norma," in which I will take the title role next Saturday afternoon at the Metropolitan Opera, has all these elemental passions. Its central figure, the high priestess, is torn between passionate love and jealous hatred and loyalty to her people.

It will be my first Norma in America, this one to be broadcast by the National Broadcasting Company and the Radio Corporation of America, but I have already sung it 182 times in the great operas of Europe and South America. The most memorable were my three at the Bellini centenary last year at his birthplace, Catania, Italy, at the foot of Mount Etna.

The tragedy is laid in ancient Gaul where the people, chafing under Roman rule, await only the decree of Irminsul, the Druid deity, to rise against their conquerors. But it is through Norma that Irminsul speaks and she, in violation of her vows of chastity, has borne the Proconsul Pollione two children.

The opera opens in the sacred grove with armed Gauls clamoring for war. Norma, weak in her love for Pollione, counsels waiting and they depart disappointed. Pollione, now following a new passion for the virgin priestess, Adalgisa, is also within the wood. He comes upon her in prayer and, stilling her compunctions, makes her promise to fly with him to Rome.

The unwitting Adalgisa confides in Norma. Moved by memories of her first passion, Norma is ready to release the distraught girl from her vows until suddenly she is confronted by Pollione. Bitterly she chides him for his perfidy. He swears that his love for Norma is dead, that it is his destiny to love Adalgisa forever. "My vengeance," cries Norma, "night and day shall rage around thee!" He defies her as the sound of the sacred bronze ends the act.

Beside herself with jealous rage, Norma thinks to murder her children and expiate her sin on the sacrificial pyre. She raises a dagger to strike, but her mother's love stays the hand. Still bent on her own destruction, she charges Adalgisa to care for her children that they may live with their father. Then the girl, trying to undo the damage she has caused, assures Norma that she will bring Pollione's love back to her.

Again Norma is a woman in love. Quickened by hope, she dreams of the supplicating lover's return. "A that thought," she breathes, "the bright sun smiles as in my first loved days of happiness."

Pollione flatly refuses. And now, in the full fury of a woman scorned, Norma decrees war. "Like ripened corn beneath the sickle," she rages, "shall the Roman forces fall!" But where the sacrifice to consummate Irminsul's rites? "Never," answers Norma, "did this dread altar lack its victim."

At that moment Pollione, surprised in the temple of the virgins, is dragged before the priests and the multitude clamors for his blood. Norma seizes a sword to strike; but she cannot. She hedges, begs time to question the prisoner. Instead, she pleads and bargains for his love, promising life and freedom if he will but renounce Adalgisa. Still he refuses. Norma threatens to sacrifice Adalgisa; "through her heart I shall strike thine!"

Then, in the last scene, occurs a situation so frequently met with in real life. Norma has summoned priests, bards and warriors, but she cannot bring herself to point out the victim. Caught in an emotional jam, she suddenly points to herself; she has broken her vows and the penalty is death. She mounts the pyre, to be followed by Pollione, as suddenly swept up by the same burst of emotion.

Giovanni Martinelli will be our Pollione in Saturday's performance and Bruna Castagna will portray the bewildered Adalgisa. Others in the cast will be Ezio Pinza, Thelma Votipka and Giordano Paltrinieri. Ettore Panizza will conduct.

Future Farmers Fling Fists

The leather flew fast and furious last Tuesday night in the high school gym when the Future Farmers of America (and Coryell county specifically) traded punches for the honor of their various communities. The cheers and jeers of the spectators mingled with the smack and thud of wet leather, while the eerie wail of awkwardly aimed punches whistling past opponents ears added a banshee note to the occasion.

When your correspondent arrived at the scene of carnage promptly at 7:30 a strange sight greeted his old orbs, and his old orbs have been greeted by many strange sights. There on the gymnasium floor was the familiar squared circle, so dear to the hearts of the followers of the ancient art of fisticuffs.

Placed appropriately in opposite corners were chairs for the contestants, and already lined up on one side of the ring were the judges, timekeeper and seconds. For a second your aged reporter thought he was back in the old Coliseum at Third and Denver streets waiting for One-round Riley and Kid O'Holligan to clamber into the ring to start the night's card.

Then the vision cleared, D. W. Diserens stepped into the ring, cleared his throat in the time honored formula and announced:

"The first fight on tonight's card, a three-round bout, is between Perry Hale and Billy Malone." Calling the battlers to the center of the ring he gave them the usual pre-fight instructions, and with the crash of the gong the battle was on.

The boys swung, the boys missed, the boy clinched, and then, probably by accident, they hit each other. Hale dropped his left to his knee, brought up his right from the floor and threw it at Malone, who threw his arms up before his face and ducked for the nearest corner. This went on for three rounds, at the end of which the judges awarded Malone two rounds and Hale one.

The next bout, between Joe Robinson and Bill Blanchard, was three rounds of fast and furious glove slinging with both boys giving and taking plenty. The judge thought it a draw and the crowd thout it a good fight.

The third bout was stopped in the third round and the fight awarded to Laymon Bell. His opponent, Kenneth Cook, was in too bloody and groggy condition to finish the fight.

Troy Kinsey decisioned Walker King in three rounds and Dean Turner did the same to Red Smith in the next bout.

The best battle of the evening came off when Foy Wicker won by a small margin from Bruce Jones. Wicker showed more familiarity with the gloves and ring technique than any of the other battlers. Punching with both hands and advancing with a small shuffle and roll he carried the fight to Jones all the way.

In the next three fights Paul Hopson won from Aubrey Lawrence, Doug Wiste decisioned G. T. Moore, and George Lam won over Joe Kelso.

There were some six remaining bouts on the program but your sporting scribe had to regretfully leave. The drafts from those wild punches were getting him down.

The Future Farmers, Mr. W. E. Lasseter, Mr. Diserens, Coach Worley, and all connected with the entertainment are to be congratulated for last Wednesday's program. This county could stand more get togethers like that, and here's hoping for more in the future.

District Basketball Meet

Waco and Rosebud meet at 3 p. m. in the second bracket, and Levita and Mexia meet at 4 p. m. in the third bracket.

Clifton drew a bye in the first eliminations but meets the winner of the Bynum-Mart game to be played a 7:30 Friday night.

Saturday morning at 10 a. m. the winners of the first and second brackets meet in the semi-finals, and the winners of the third and fourth brackets do likewise at 11 a. m. Saturday. The finalists meet at 7:30 p. m. to determine the district championship.

Levita stands a doubtful chance in the tournament because of a disrupted team. Mumps have put four members of the team out of commission, however, the boys are determined to give as good an account of themselves as possible in their weakened condition. To represent one's county in a district meet is a distinct honor and to these Levita boys go the good wishes of the entire county.

The girls team will not go to Waco as they will have their hands full here in Gatesville this week end with the girls' all star forward, will not com-

Other than the bill to retire Supreme Court Justices, which I have mentioned, the House passed only one other important measure. That was a bill extending until June 1939 the President's power to negotiate reciprocal foreign trade agreements. As I said last week, I feel that this is the only practicable way we have of increasing our foreign trade and I voted for the bill.

SAFETY---OR THIS?

DEATH, in the guise of heavily loaded motor trucks, rides the highways of Texas every day and every night. The toll of human death and injury of these vehicles is appalling.

In the five-year period, 1932 to 1936, inclusive, trucks in Texas have participated in 8,416 highway accidents in which 2,195 persons were killed and 11,962 injured. In 1936 alone, their record stood 2,208 accidents with 3,323 persons injured and 576 killed. These actual records of people killed, as shown by Texas newspapers, compared with the number of deaths resulting from all motor vehicle accidents, as given by the Bureau of Vital Statistics in Austin, show that the average Texas truck participates in twice as many fatal accidents as the average passenger car.

Likewise, as might be reasonably expected from their greater weight and size, and as shown by the records of the Texas Railroad Commission, the Carrier-for-Hire truck accidents, during 1936, have resulted, vehicle for vehicle, in three times the number of fatalities as for the average passenger car.

Increased liability to highway accident forms an inseparable result of BIG truck operation. But even now, the threat of greater highway hazards hangs over the people of Texas. Newspapers report that operators of BIG trucks have organized for the purpose of securing an increase in weight and speed limits, already too large. These are the elements, weight and speed, which, in highway accidents, spell "D-E-A-T-H."

The right to grant, condition or deny the use of the highways for profit, belongs to you, the people of Texas, notwithstanding the attempts of the operators of BIG trucks to take it away and give it to the federal government instead. Your present laws, limiting the size, weight and speed of trucks, were enacted by reason of your insistence, and by your insistence they have remained on the statute books. Their amendment would serve the sole purpose of increasing the profits of operators of the BIG trucks, with the certain results of also increasing the mounting injuries, deaths and property losses now taking place on your highways.

Public welfare and public safety demand that existing highway regulations shall be retained and enforced.
