LEAIRD'S HAT SHOP'S GONE FIFTH AVENUE

Featuring Caribbean blue leather on the modernistic "swing" chairs in Leaird's newly decorated hat shop, with mirrors galore, tables with those big round mirrors, and even shiny hand mirrors, Leaird's has certainly gone "Fifth Avenue."

Ceiling lights, and maroon rugs separate the "lows and the highs," and lend a "big town" store appearance to this milady's paradise, which besides hats, includes all those delicate unspeakable so dear to the ladies. Go see for yourself!

Miss Joe Armstrong of Seymour came Sunday for a visit with her sister, Mrs. Carrol Wallace at the State Training School.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH OF LAMPASAS BURNED; LOSS IS ABOUT $40,000

The First Baptist Church of Lampasas was completely destroyed by fire of undetermined origin Sunday afternoon at about 4:30 o'clock. The loss, including a fine organ and furniture, was estimated at between $35,000 and $40,000.

The church was of stone construction and it was thought the fire started in the roof. Only last May the church celebrated its fiftieth anniversary.

BANKS, COURT HOUSE CLOSES BUSINESS AS USUAL ELSEWHERE

Gatesville banks, courthouse offices, schools and post office were the only ones who "took French leave," on George Washington's birthday, yesterday.

Other business institutions knuckled down trying to make a living as usual. Even the City Hall had their "meter reader" out, so could not close. Too bad, too bad!

We all are willing to take a holiday when we can.

COUNTY LIBRARY TO BE OPENED HERE SOON

Coryell County and Gatesville are at last to have a Public Library, according to Mrs. Frank Kelso, after receipt of this information from Mrs. G. T. Willis, Supervisor of Women's work, for the WPA, with headquarters at Waco.

The library will be situated in the building designated as the City Library Room in the City Hall, but will be operated by the WPA, with Mrs. John Frank Post in charge.

A large number of books will be furnished by the WPA it is understood, but donations will be received by the City Secretary Eiland Lovejoy for placing in the new library. Magazines and other publications will also be carried in the library.

Circulation of a certain percent of the books will be made to reading clubs and others in the county, and the books may be withdrawn for reading and designated reading hours will be announced later for the library.

Many people long interested in such a project have been working on this idea for some years, but materialization of the idea has just crystallized in this project.

CHORAL CLUB TAKES KTEM FIFTY STRONG

Included in the merchant-sponsored radio program Sunday over radio station KTEM was the Choral Club of the Gatesville high school, some fifty strong that made the trip for the 2:30 to 3:00 o'clock program. They were "on" in addition to the regular feature, the Colvin Family.

Numbers given by the Choral Club were "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," "Nightfall," "Sylvia," and "I Heard You Go By." A trio composed of Misses Belva McCoy, Martha Jean Patillo and Jack Hearn sang "By the Bend of the River." Jack Reesing was accompanist for the club.

A school bus transported the club, with Misses Mamie Sue Halbrook and Lois Scott, as director and chaperon respectively.

Those who made the trip, whose names we were able to get were John Rufus Colgin, James Weaver, Herschel Wilhelm, Chester Franks, Leyman Bell, Burl Davis, C. H. Wallace, Bob Thomas, W. J. Thompson, Douglas Polard, Joe Pat Booth, Julian Smith, Helon Chamlee, Mildred Gandy, Frances Brown, Ruth Rivers, News.

Margarite Kelso, Mary Evelyn Eubanks, Martha Ann Powell, Gladys Marie Phillips, Ethel Weigand, Flogene Martin and others in, addition to those mentioned on the program.

This program was sponsored by the following merchants of Gatesville: K. B. & Tom, Davidson Bros. & Co., Gatesville Laundry, Arnold Drug Co., Witt's Hatchery, Meeks Cafe, Gatesville Beauty Shop, G. P. Schaub, Byrom & Walker, Fletcher & Beerwinkle and the Coryell County News.

Everybody is not only invited, but urged to make the trip to Austin Thursday, February 25, to be present at a hearing for Coryell County before the State Highway Commission at 10:00 a. m. The caravan will leave the court house square at 6:30.

Judge Floyd Zeigler, in a release to the News yesterday, announced the hearing had been set as follows:

"Coryell County is listed for a hearing before the Highway Commission at Austin on Thursday, February 25, at 10:00 a. m., with reference to Highway No. 7 from Gatesville to Evans. The delegation from here will meet at the court house at 6:30 a. m. and go in a group to Austin.

"Any interested citizen who desires to make this trip, will please contact the arrangement committee composed of Andrew Kendrick, George Painter and L. S. Holmes, and if unable to contact this committee, then contact either H. K. Jackson or myself, and leave your name and transportation to Austin will be provided.

"Matters of this nature should be of vital interest to every citizen of the county, for that reason I urge everyone who is interested in good roads to make this trip."

Floyd Zeigler, County Judge. After the muds of January, the dusts of February and the floods of last fall, it seems to us like a waste of time to say more. But numbers count in a trip like this. The speaker of the delegation will be there, but sometimes his speech doesn't carry much weight unless there is a small arm behind him. The "mud and bump" army must be there if we are to get anything besides "sweet talk."

So, we'll see you, yourself, in Austin Thursday at 10:00.

This exhibit, the most comprehensive ever undertaken by any State, is being assembled by the Texas Natural Resources Institute, of which Judge John M. Sellman of Dallas is general manager.

The Institute, following the close of the international exposition, plans to maintain this exhibit in Dallas as a permanent showing of the industrial and manufacturing potentialities of the State.

Since creation of the Institute, and the beginning of its work, it has received more than 50,000 inquiries concerning commercial possibilities. Of these only three or four, notably petroleum, lumbering, natural gas, helium and sulphur, have been developed on a large commercial scale.

Outstanding inquiries to the Institute have concerned building and ornamental stone. Inexhaustible supplies of these exist near transportation arteries. The exhibit will stress the importance of Texas developing these resources in the dawn of an industrial area, so that it can keep pace with other sections of the country.

Transportation lines are so interested in the showing, which will be under one roof, that they are transporting the raw materials to Dallas without charge. Competent geologist will be placed in the field at once by the Institute to make a thorough canvass and insure that every resource will be on display.

"FATHER'S DAY?"

Yesterday was not Father's Day, but it was the birthday anniversary of the Father of Our Country, George Washington.

Washington was, and for that matter is, and will remain one of the outstanding men produced by America. Although he was the first president of this country, and the most popular figure of his time, he was more or less a victim of circumstances. Being the leader of the Army of the Revolution, the next step in his progress which followed naturally was to be made the First President.

He was a farmer, a rich land-owning farmer, and yet he could see the problems which faced his less fortunate countrymen, and proved this by his actions.

Thus a man, no matter how big his position, no matter how much material accumulation he has, if he keeps the less fortunate in mind, he is just that much larger in the eyes of his countrymen. So, with Washington, and for this reason, as much as any other, he is honored and revered to this very day, and will be thru the glorious history of this country.

BASKETBALL SEASON TO END IN BLAZE OF GLORY

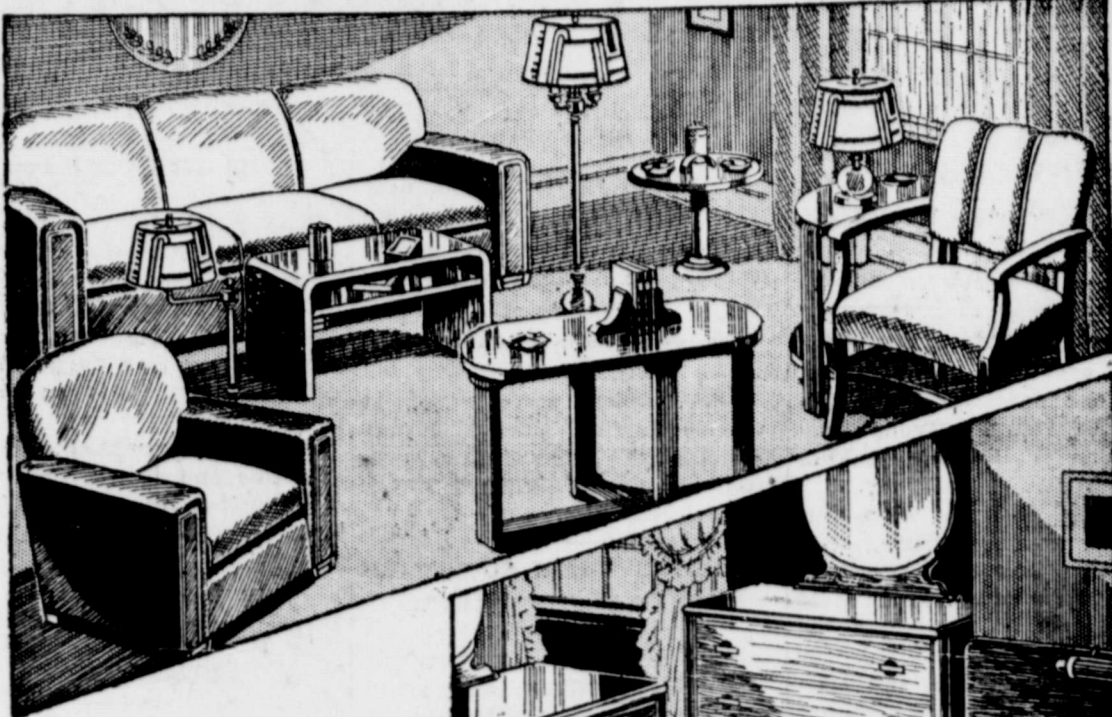

Beginning at 7 o'clock next Wednesday night Coryell County winds up its 1937 basketball season with one of its biggest and best programs of the year. Following an exceptional season of irregular teams with streaks of hard luck and upsets, this brilliant closing should send every fan away satisfied. Both boys and girls of the entire county will take part in this extravaganza of brawn and beauty, this conglomeration of mind and matter. It will be stupendous, magnificent, colossal, and titanic.

On Wednesday night the boys will open the program with a friendly inter-county tournament with three games scheduled for that night. Beginning at seven o'clock Pearl takes on Copperas Cove, at 8 o'clock Gatesville and Evant tangle, and Turnersville and Jonesboro furnish the finale at 9 o'clock. The winners of these three games will draw for positions and play Friday night in the semi-finals, with the finals on Saturday night.

The girls of the county have an equal part in this swan song of the '37 season. On Friday night the Gatesville, high girls play Irene high school in the local gym. And a word to the wise about this Irene team.

There are five girls on this team who have played together for four years. In these four years those girls have reached the ultimate in teamwork and harmony and have perfected a basketball machine that is amazing to watch. This year they lost only one game, and that too the Moody girls team of Galveston, probably one of the best girls outfits in entire country. The Irene club has one of those rare combinations that so many coaches dream of and seldom achieve, good material and plenty of time to get them working together. Five girls playing together for four years is something seldom seen outside of semiprofessional teams.

On Saturday night the season winds up in a dazzling, scintillating blaze of athletic competition never before witnessed on a Gatesville court.

From the four corners of the county will come a hand-picked all-star girls team to engage in battle the Irene club. Out of this talent-laden piece of Texas will stream forth the best of five high schools to participate in this game, the first of its kind ever to be played here. Below are listed the girls to play in this all-star game:

Pearl: Preston, Moseley, Henderson.
Jonesboro: Smith, Rutherford, Young.
Turnersville: Cathey, Jones, Flat: Wyatt, Thompson.
Gatesville: Apel, Hinson, Eubanks, James, Whisenhunt.

These girls, the cream of the crop in their districts, will uphold the honor of their county in this super-battle of the year. Against Irene, one of the best high school aggregations in the state will be pitted the best of Coryell County, resulting in one of the best games ever to be played in Gatesville's gym.

This week's basketball card, far above the average in playing talent and spectator interest, should draw a packed house of ardent lovers of the game from every part of the county. All those connected with these games should be congratulated for bringing to Gatesville this sporting entertainment. In this tournament and all-star games the entire county will be represented with basketball at its best.

The boys tournament, beginning Wednesday night with semi-finals on Friday night in conjunction with the Irene-Gatesville game, and the finals on Saturday night in addition to the Irene-All-Star game, is a brilliant and fitting windup to the 1937 basketball season in this county. Seldom is such entertainment offered and every fan should take advantage of this opportunity to see his favorite player in action.

Uncle Sam Looks to Texas in Battle To Rewin Markets Lost to Foreigners

With more than 50 per cent of America's sulphur export market lost to foreigners in last six years, Uncle Sam is counting on sons of the Lone Star state to shoulder responsibility not only of recapturing our lost markets, but of preserving the domestic industry thus assuring U. S. farms and factories an adequate supply of sulphur at low cost in time of either peace or war. So declares Porter A. Whaley, inset, upper left, general manager of Texas State Manufacturers' Association. Texans are already in forefront of this battle to regain lost markets and among leaders is J. T. Claiborne, Jr., inset, upper right, native of Tarrant County, and vice-president of a leading sulphur company. Center, big plant erected in 1931 by large Italian sulphur company in Sardinia, Italy. (Ewing Galloway Photo.) Lower right, loading sulphur in Brazoria County, Texas.

SAN ANTONIO—America is counting on the sons of the men who defended the Alamo and fought with Sam Houston to regain the sulphur markets it lost nearly six years ago to foreign nations. So declares Porter A. Whaley, vice-president and general manager of the Texas State Manufacturers' Association, who cites figures showing that Texas, which produced about 40 per cent of the total world's supply of sulphur in 1931, today produces only about 20 per cent. "According to United States Bureau of Mine statistics," Mr. Whaley said, "America's exports of sulphur have declined from 65,183 tons in 1929 to 402,383 in 1935, a loss of more than 50 per cent of our foreign markets. The reason for this is not hard to discover. The war lords of Europe have stimulated production in their own countries with huge subsidies to producers and high tariff barriers. These government premiums on sulphur sometimes run as high as $7.00 per ton, Italy last year handing 30,000,000 lire over to her sulphur producers to be used in expanding export sales. "Uncle Sam must rely on Texas as America's largest producer to shoulder the responsibility of winning back our sulphur markets," Mr. Whaley declared. "And, since the sons of the Lone Star state have never taken defeat lying down, I am sure that Texas can be counted on to do her part. We must realize sulphur's importance, not only on our farms and in industry, but in the defense of our liberty in event of conflict. "With many a foreign nation rattling sabers and re-stocking arsenals in preparation for the next war, anything can happen, and while I don't want to be an alarmist, I think we must consider the importance of the preservation of the American sulphur industry from every aspect. Because we are America's chief source of supply, it's virtually a case of Texas against the rest of the world in the battle for markets and the struggle to hold down the cost of sulphur to our own consumers. Texas "boys who have made good" are in the forefront of this battle. To a large extent Texans are guiding the destinies of America's sulphur industry today, not only here in Texas in the effort to produce sulphur as cheaply as possible, but also in New York where, as officials of the U. S. companies, they direct the fight to regain the lost markets. Among them is J. T. Claiborne, Jr., Tarrant County native, who is now vice-president of the Freeport Sulphur Company; R. K. Shirley of Van Zandt County; Roy B. Johns of Johnson County; T. J. Knapp of Galveston County and others well known to many Texans.

THEY DON'T Drink IT ALL

Twenty-five million dairy cows on four and a half million American farms produce more than 100 billion pounds of milk a year. The nation's consumers don't drink all this milk. Only a little over a third of this is sold in the fluid market.

Until the development of ice cream and later dry and evaporated milk, the only market for this other milk was butter and cheese. Since the turn of the century, however, almost every year has seen additional uses for milk. Each has helped to establish a more dependable year-around market for all milk produced.

For 80 years Borden, through research and salesmanship, has carried a leading part in developing uses and markets for milk that have made dairying the greatest source of agricultural income in America.

Charles Butterworth, starring on Fred Astaire's program these days, indulges in the unusual practice of getting the reaction of friends as he goes about writing his scripts. The one he's talking to must be a fair weather friend.

Jack Benny, leader in the parade of laugh makers, has a pretty dismal time as he rests between rehearsals for his show with Mary Livingstone, Don Wilson, Kenny Baker and the Phil Harris orchestra in the NBC-Hollywood studios.

Fred Allen in a mood more characteristic than the happy one you find him in each Wednesday night. He begins work on his scripts immediately after his first broadcast and has the idea for next week's sketch before he does his midnight show for the West Coast.

All play and no work make a comedian a pretty dull boy, says Ed Wynn, whose new Saturday night program is delighting thousands. He is shown here as he makes a last-minute joke substitution in his script before going on the air with Graham MacNamee and Don Voorhees' orchestra.

A most unusual shot is this of Stoopnagle and Budd in a serious conversation with the man who signs the checks for their Sunday broadcasts. Left to right: Stoopnagle; Harry Von Zell, announcer; sponsor Lawton Campbell, and Budd. It's all about a joke, too.

Phil Baker, the great American Editor in his radio series, looks mighty preoccupied with his typewriter and he is. Baker, who punctuates his programs with an accordion solo each week, spends ten hours a day in preparation for his half-hour show.

TRAVELS 10,000 MILES, WRITES BOOK IN TWO WEEKS
"WORLD'S MOST PROLIFIC WRITER" BETS $1,000 AND WINS

IT WAS Monday when Arthur J. Burks, ace detective story writer, started out to conquer the Northwest. He had bet a friend that he could make a ten-thousand-mile trip from Chicago through the Northwest to Vancouver, write a book about his experiences, and have the first draft complete when he returned on the second following Monday. He succeeded. His book, "Electra, Carry Me Home," will be published in January by Robert Speller, Manhattan publisher.

ARTHUR J. BURKS, whose "Electra Carry Me Home" proves that the West still holds adventure.

The book was started in Chicago's massive opera house; it was finished as the dawn of the next-to-the-last day of the bet crept through the windows of Burke's hotel room in Wenatchee, Washington, his home. His parents, his friends, his school acquaintances, whom he had not seen in eighteen years, had to wait until his typewriter rattled out the two words that were worth a thousand dollars to him: "THE END." Then he emerged, more than a little weary, and renewed old acquaintances.

Together with the friend with whom he had made the bet, who went along "to keep Burks from copying things out of guide books," the writer covered virtually every point of importance in the northwest. By day he flew; by night he wrote. Unexpected experiences crowded into the trip—at Minneapolis and St. Paul; at Brainerd, Minnesota, scene of an annual whisker derby; at Billings, Montana, center of big game hunting and dude ranches; at Red Lodge, Montana, where a new highway rises to a height of 10,500 feet, crosses a plateau where "the angels sit"; at Yellowstone Park out-of-season, where there is nobody around to say "oh!" and "ah!" at the geysers, nobody around to watch thundering mountain thunder or smoking river smoke; on the beautiful and precipitous Cody road; at Valley Ranch, where Burks spent three days and almost didn't get any farther; at Cody, Wyoming, home of Buffalo Bill; at the desolate Blackfoot Indian Reservation, where he met Chief Jake Stands Over Bull sitting over a punctured tire, and where he got lost and had to follow the Billings aerial beacon across fields to get back; at Seattle, where Burks once recruited in the marines—a career which culminated after years as aide to Smedley Butler in foreign lands; at Vancouver, where there is the only Sikh temple on the North American Continent; at magnificent Grand Coulee Dam, the greatest project in the history of mankind, at Wenatchee, Burks' home and the seat of the nation's apple industry.

In all, Burks wrote approximately 90,000 words on his two weeks' trip. "It could as easily," he said, "have been as long a book as Anthony Adverse. I never saw so much romance, so much activity—why, I could have written ten books—one on the Grand Coulee Dam, another on old Doc Siegfried, who pushed the Red Lodge highway over those mountains by sheer force of personality, and in spite of terrible odds; another on the Park out-of-season; still another on—but why go on? The country reeks with stories!" Burks has travelled in almost every country in the world and has written fourteen books. "Electra," he says, is his best book; and this lightning-fast jaunt was his best trip. As he stepped out of a Northwest Airliner at Chicago, with his bulky manuscript under his arm, all he had to say was: "See America first—and I mean it!"

Brief Outline of '37 Agricultural Conservation Program, Payments

Briefly, the 1937 agricultural conservation program provides for payment to land owners and producers who divert from cotton acreage certain areas which are planted to soil building crops to be plowed under green. There will be established from the crop land of the farm three bases to be known as the soil conserving, the cotton and the general bases. The cotton and the general or feed bases for the farm will be practically the same as established under the former AAA programs. The soil-conservation base will be that land which is normally planted to soil-conserving crops. may be diverted from cotton for pay is 35 per cent of the cotton base acres and the maximum from general base is 15 per cent, just as it was in 1936. Since no minimum reduction is required under the regulations, it is suggested that producers plan for a minimum diversion of 20 per cent of the total cultivated acres.

The new program does not provide for payment for the eradication of Johnson grass. In 1936 small grain could be harvested and followed by peas and this acreage earn conserving and soil building payments, whereas in 1937 all feed crops harvested are charged against the general feed base. There will be no deduction for overplanting, either for the general or the cotton base.

The following listed crops are classified as soil-depleting: corn of all kinds; cotton; potatoes; truck and vegetable crops, including melons, dry beans and peanuts harvested for nuts; grain sorghums, sweet sorghums, millet, broomcorn or sudan grass harvested for grain, seed or forage; small grains harvested.

Soil-conserving crops are as: Legumes, including cowpeas, winter peas, alfalfa, clovers, etc.; peanuts, of pasture; grasses including dallis, rye grass, and bermuda; grain sorghums (seeded solid), sweet sorghums, millets or sudan grass, not harvested for grain, seed, or forage; or grain sorghums seeded in rows and the entire crop plowed under green; cover crops, including small grain providing a reasonable growth is left on the ground or plowed under.

Payments for diverting from the cotton base will be made at the rate of five cents per pound on the adjusted yield. Payments for diverting from the general base will be 90 per cent of that allowed in 1936, the average for Coryell county being approximately 8.64 per acre. This payment will be made for diverting only such parts of the general base as is in excess of the home consumption needs for the farm, but in no case will payment be made for diverting more than 15 per cent of the general feed base of the farm.

How Payments Are Made

Payments for diverting acreage from the cotton and general bases will be known as Class I or diversion payments. Class II or soil-building payments may also be earned when desired. Soil-building allowances and soil building payments are two entirely different terms which should be thoroughly understood by producers, as confusion of the meaning of the two terms leads to misunderstanding. Soil-building allowance for any farm means the largest sum of money that will be paid as Class II payment for the farm. Soil-building payment is the money earned by carrying out soil-building practices on the farm. A farm may earn more than the oil-building allowance but cannot collect more, and only that part of the soil-building allowance which is earned by soil-building practices will be paid.

The soil-building allowance for any farm which has a cotton base and a general base which exceeds the home consumption needs of the farm will be $1 for each acre of the soil-conserving base plus $1 for each acre diverted for payment in 1937; $1 for each acre diverted in commercial orchards on the farm of Jan. 1, 1937; $1 for each acre of crop land on which only one crop of commercial vegetables was grown in 1936; and 25 cents for each acre of fence non-crop open pasture land which is in excess of one-half the crop land and which has a carrying capacity during the normal pasture season of at least one animal unit for each five acres.

Other Payment Details

Soil building payments on the farm may be earned by the following listed practices and payments: Alfalfa planted on crop land in 1937, $2.50 per acre; cowpeas, velvet beans or other locally adapted summer legumes on crop land in 1937, and the leaves stems and vines plowed under in 1937 provided a reasonable good growth is attained, $1 per acre; green manure crops of small grains such as wheat and oats plowed under as green manure after making a reasonable growth in the spring of 1937, $1 per acre; and sorghum in 1937 and all of the crop left on the land or plowed under providing a reasonable good growth is attained, but not less than two months growth, $1 per acre; establishment of permanent pasture of perennial grasses on crop land or non-crop open pasture land in 1937, $3 per acre; terracing land in 1937 in accordance with good terracing land in 1937 in accordance with good terracing practices, 40c per hundred feet.

Division of payments between landlords and tenants will be the same as provided for in 1936 except that where a tenant or other interested party is not to receive a portion of the 1937 payments, such application for payment must be sent to Washington for review and action by the director of the southern division, which probably means a six-month delay in settlement of the case.

When a work sheet is filed on a farm all other land in the same county owned or operated by either landlord or tenant must also be covered by a work sheet, even though compliance is not to be carried out on such other farms.

TEXAS OLD AGE PENSION PAYMENTS

Austin, Feb. 22.—Commenting upon the Social Security Board report received late last week, Director Orville S. Carpenter of the Old Age Assistance Commission pointed out this week that Texas was paying more of its aged than any other state excepting Ohio, which has a larger population that states with higher average grants had fewer recipients than Texas, that the average payment for this state was larger than that of any other southern state, that states with larger populations than Texas were paying fewer old people.

Other large states, such as California, Illinois, New York, and Pennsylvania, have less old people on the rolls than have we. We are adding more names this month so that the February rolls will probably expand until we will be paying more aged individuals than even Ohio, although its population is larger than ours," Carpenter added.

WORLD COMMENT

THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY VS. THE NEW DEAL

D. Stanley High who has the Washington reputation of being one of the President's closest advisers, in an article in "The Saturday Evening Post" outlines the undercover battle for control of the Democratic party between the liberals of the New Deal and the conservative leaders in control of the party before the Roosevelt nomination and victory in 1932, a battle which he believes will flare into a free-for-all fight when the nomination of 1940 rolls around.

The strategy of the conservative leaders, according to Dr. High's article, "Whose Party Is It" is not one of opposition to President Roosevelt and his pronounced liberalism, but one of "taking into camp" the chief executive.

The President's policy of surrounding himself with a group of idealists and placing control of all New Deal agencies and administrations in the hands of independent Republicans and independents has proved extremely hard to bear by such old-line leaders as Carter Glass and Joe Robinson and John Garner, we are told, and the task of taking the President "into camp" has been delegated to none other than the Vice-President, Dr. High states.

Not only the failure of the President to place good Democrats in many of the key positions of his administration, but also his practice of taking progressives and others of liberal tint into the party making of the Democratic party a New Deal or liberal party, has alarmed and agitated many Democrats.

In Minnesota and Wisconsin the campaigns of 1934 and 1936 saw the national administration favoring third party candidates over the regular Democratic nominees. In Minnesota the Democratic candidate was, under pressure, persuaded to withdraw in favor of the Farmer-Labor candidate, Ernest Lundeen for the senate and Elmer Benson

For the governorship, Senator Bob La Follette ran for reelection to the senate under Rooseveltian indorsement in 1934 and brother Phil La Follette was elected governor of Wisconsin in 1934 and 1936 with the backing of Jim Farley.

George W. Norris, Republican member of the last congress, after refusing his party's nomination for reelection last spring, was drafted by the New Dealers and ran as an independent, defeating a Democratic and Republican opponent.

Dr. High names Works Progress Administrator Harry Hopkins and Governor George Earle of Pennsylvania as the most likely to receive President Roosevelt's indorsement for his party's nomination in 1940.

But either of these would be unacceptable to the old-line Democrats who still retain a powerful voice in their party's councils and particularly in the Senate. According to Dr. High, Senator Byrd of Virginia, Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri, or ex-governor Paul McNutt of Indiana would be the choice of Messrs. Glass, McAdoo, Harrison, Robinson and Company.

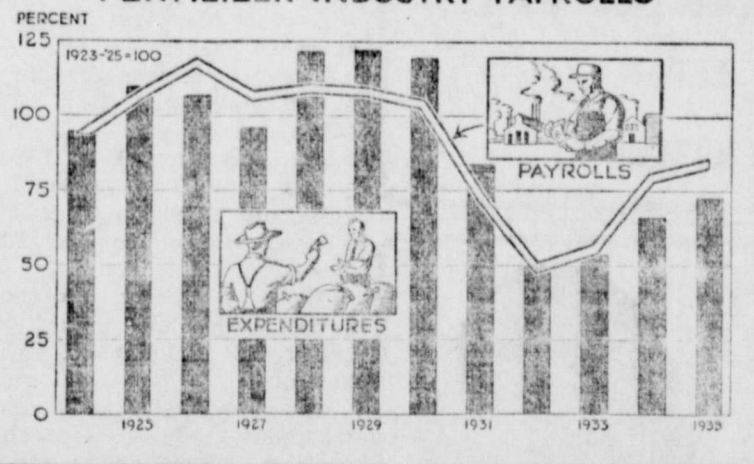

That a battle royal between these two opposing factions is probable for, the 1940 convention has long been the forecast of competent observers of national politics. At that time, Mr. Roosevelt will be on the way out, devoid of any means of putting political pressure on the aggressive lieutenants of his party.

While the President and the national committee which he controls will undoubtedly have a strong voice in the choice of delegates, they will probably find, as did Woodrow Wilson in 1920, that an out-going President has little to say in the actual choice of his successor.

There is, without doubt, widespread discontent among the old-line Democrats which will not have an opportunity to express itself before 1940.

What may be the first point of dissension before the opposing factions is Mr. Roosevelt's proposal for increasing the membership of the Supreme Court. Senators Glass, McAdoo, Byrd and others of like political views form the crux of the opposition to the President's plan.

FARMERS' FERTILIZER EXPENDITURES & FERTILIZER INDUSTRY PAYROLLS

In the 12 month period from September 1, 1928 to August 31, 1929, when the nation was at the peak of its prosperity, Texas farmers bought 187,215 tons of commercial fertilizer, excluding cottonseed meal. As farm prices declined and farm income fell, Texas farmers bought less and less fertilizer until the period of 1932-33 saw the total drop to 30,843 tons. With the better farm products price level, Texas farmers began buying more and more fertilizer, and during 1935-36 they purchased 60,016 tons.

When farmers' income goes up, more dollars are available for fertilizer, factory pay envelopes grow fatter, more jobs are created in the industry, and more workers have more money to buy the farmers' products.

Lets Talk about Clothes

TEXAS STATE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN (CIA)

Denton, Feb. 22.—The stores are showing interesting new hunches for early spring shopping and they're excellent finds for the budgeteers with a slim clothes allowance. Bolero suits with all kinds of chic, the brief little jackets just clearing the waist line, the sleeves either long or short, some trimmed with braid to achieve even more Spanish savor.

We finds suits and still more suits—soft tailored affairs, minus all that difficult precision seaming and styling of last season. Dress and coat outfits or suit and coat or soft woolens are special favorites with girls at Texas State College for Women (CIA). Coat dresses to wear with furs are made with fitted streamlines of the smartest untrimmed coats of the new collections.

With suits getting out and around under fur coats or thick fleecy swaggers, the top problem is an interesting blouse. We have found a good supply of trim tailored affair with much swank, ideal for suit wear and designed by an expert. Short sleeves fit smoothly into trim shoulders, a good collar—always the test of a good blouse—and two chest pockets.

Such simple, but clever blouses have always eluded shoppers at a time when they were needed most, but they are here—right in time. All the colors are available, and the materials is a good thick crepe that launders beautifully.

For a few dollars you can buy a bright colored handbag of soft doeskin. The greens and scarlets are spectacularly good with bright blu and gray tones coming in for second place. Most of the bags are one style, the handle strap effect, but they're well made, smart and ideal to perk up the old winter coat or ensemble.

SYNOPSIS
 Wild Bill Hickok, Buffalo Bill Cody and his bride, Louisa, and Calamity Jane, Wild Bill's sweetheart, are en route to Hays City from Leavenworth when the Indians go on the warpath. Cody is sent by General Custer as scout for an ammunition train going to the relief of General Carrington while Wild Bill leaves to spy on Chief Yellow Hand. Meanwhile, the Indians attack Cody's home and take Calamity Jane prisoner while Louisa escapes and heads for Fort Hays to get help. Wild Bill meets the Indians taking Jane to their chief and is also taken prisoner.

CHAPTER V
WILD BILL eyed her.
 "Maybe I belong where I'm going," he answered.
 The journey was a long one; they

"Why don't you let this girl go?" Wild Bill asked. "She doesn't know anything about it at all." Yellow Hand fixed him with a glance. "Hickok say too easy she don't know."

made it together, their arms bound together to a sapling pole. For a time they passed the miles in silence. At last Calamity could stand it no longer. She became garrulous, about the dress she wore, about the fact that Bill Cody was to be a daddy, about her capture. At last, she asked:
 "Bill, did you give up that watch and guns and all, just for me?"
 He looked at her for a long moment, as they trudged along. This woman meant much to Wild Bill Hickok. Yet he tried to tell himself that she meant nothing. He strove to find an answer, and failing, gave thanks for the gutters which suddenly had sounded from the Indian band. Far ahead there showed the tepees of Yellow Hand's camp. An hour later, the pair faced their true captor.
 The chieftain had risen at their approach, a painted, grave-faced man. The man and woman could not help respecting him. After all, he was fighting for what he believed to be his heritage. Besides, what stood revealed in the background of this tall warrior showed them the real enemy of both Indian and white. It was a pile of boxes, some already broken open, revealing scattered seven-shot repeating rifles, and carton after carton of ammunition. In plain stencilling were the words:

JOHN LATTIMER,
 HAYS CITY, KANSAS
 FARMING TOOLS.
 "I thought that was the kind of farmin' tools that hombre was handlin'," grunted Wild Bill to his captive partner. She had no chance to answer. Painted Horse had begun a long harangue in Sioux, an explanation to Yellow Hand of all that had transpired. He showed the watch, plainly obsessed by it. Fumbling to press the spring which played the tune, he touched instead the one which opened the case. It flew open.

 "Agh!" he grunted, and showed Yellow Hand the picture which the watch revealed. "His squaw."
 Wild Bill pulled hard at his breath. Beside him, Calamity Jane gave a tremendous sigh.
 "Aw Bill," she whispered, "then you do care. Wearin' my picture around in your watch!"
 "Couldn't get it out, without scratchin' the case," growled her comrade.
 "Aw Bill, yer lyin'!"
 He kicked her shin for silence. Yellow Hand was speaking—in stilted English.
 "One time Hickok my friend. Maybe so my friend now. Which way go guns and bullets?"
 Bill Hickok straightened. They knew then that the pack train was somewhere in these hills! He attempted insouciance.
 "That's easy, Yellow Hand. They went down Leavenworth way."
 A scowl crossed the Sioux's features.
 "Hickok—my friend—speak with straight tongue. Hickok — white man's friend — speak with forked tongue. Which way — soldiers go with bullets?"

 Again Wild Bill tried to lie. Eagerly Calamity Jane sought to aid him. For long minutes the cross-play continued. Then suddenly, Yellow Hand gave a gesture of disgust. "Take 'em away!" he commanded.
 "But listen, Yellow Hand!" Wild Bill begged. "Why don't you let this girl go? She doesn't know anything about it at all."
 Yellow Hand fixed him with a glance.
 "Hickok say too easy she don't know." Again he gave the order to remove the captives. Late that night, when the moon rose to the slow beating of drums, the guard was changed at the tepee wherein they had been held captive for hours. They had talked of many things during this long time, of older days, brighter days when Calamity Jane was little more than a child and Wild Bill a tenderfoot in the West.
 "Bill, you still love me a little, don't you?" she had asked this so many times in the long hours. Bill had not answered. But suddenly he straightened. His hand touched hers; he rose.
 "Yes—well—I reckon maybe I do, Clam," he said jerkily. Then he stepped forward, as if by divination. Yellow Hand was at the tepee, painted warriors behind him. He was beckoning only for Wild Bill. The drums began a louder, more eerie beat.
 Calamity Jane watched him leave. Then she saw captors returning for her. She rose and walked between them through the long line of tepees, at last to reach the open. Suddenly her hands leaped to anguished eyes.
 "Good God!" she begged. "Don't do that to him—don't burn him at the stake!"
 "Hickok squaw tell which way soldiers go with bullets," came the slow intonations of Yellow Hand.
 Vaguely Calamity Jane heard the bellowed commands of Wild Bill for silence. More clearly she heard the beating of the drums, the whipping of torches as painted braves kept them flaming, the wisps of smoke as they ignited the creepers of tinder like grass which trailed to the dried sage roots piled about the feet of the man she loved. Again and again the determined voice of Yellow Hand drove its command into her brain. The trailing flames licked slowly along the ground. Calamity Jane, her hands clutching before her eyes, could stand it no longer:
 "Put out that fire! I'll tell—the pack train went by Deep Valley across the upper ford!"
 The drums ceased their beating. Swift working warriors blackened the creeping flames. After a time there was silence, except for the sobbing of a woman beside the unconscious form of a man she loved.

Assembly
 The Five-Y Class under the direction of Miss Painter presented a Valentine play in assembly for the fifth, sixth, and seventh grades Tuesday Morning. The characters were Billy Tom Alford, Maxine Lovejoy, E. J. Robertson, Quane Fletcher, Doris La Rue Riley, Marie Burchett, Billy June Rutherford and Perry Henderson. We were happy to have some visitors for the program.

First Grade
 Miss Holmes' pupils are studying the first signs of spring. They have made several trips to the park to collect rocks and plants. They have made rock collections in the sand table. Some of the boys are making bird houses, and plans are being made to study birds and insects. Miss Lockard's pupils have just finished their post office and are beginning to study the first signs of spring.

Third Grade
 The pupils in the third grade are happy to have Miss Grantham back in school after an absence of several days because of the mumps.
 The Three-X class has been studying Holland. The pupils have decorated the blackboards with pictures of windmills. They have learned to use water colors. This class is happy that only one pupil was absent last week. Billy Joe Warren was absent one day.

Assembly
 The Six-Y class presented a play in assembly last Friday in honor of Lincoln's birthday. The play was entitled, "Lincoln, the Gentleman," and those who took part were Mildred Grayson, Norma Jean Boylan, Lester Robertson, Mary Jo Mulholland, Lawrence Grayson, and Camille Lester. Marie Meharg played a piano solo and Fred Post was the chairman.

Library Club
 Josephine Clary was elected president, Yvonne Davis secretary and Mildred Grayson reporter of the Library Club at the regular meeting last Monday.
 The Club is very interested in books, and when the most popular books were selected last week the list included "Peg O' My Heart," "Bear of Blue River," and "Dan's Boy." The members of the Library Club are especially proud of the new fifteen volume set of "Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia" as are all of the students in our school.

Reporters Club
 Gene Stinnett and Tom Post Thompson have been elected group captains in the Reporters Club. The members of each group are working hard to become better reporters, each one trying to get more and better reports than the other.

Personals
 Miss Gordon returned to school Monday after having been absent
