WORLD COMMENT

Joe Burns

AMERICA'S UNNEUTRALITY

The statement of Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada, at the time of his visit to the White House that "Every addition to your navy is an addition to the security of the world," signifies a hearty feeling of mutual good-will between the two Anglo-Saxon peoples. Official Washington welcomed the announcement of Britain's seven and a half billion dollar rearmament program as a great step toward maintaining the peace of fear-stricken Europe. Uncle Sam's billion dollar expenditure of armaments for the 1936-37 and 1937-38 fiscal years has met a hearty reception in British official quarters.

It has long been pointed out in this space and elsewhere that collaboration between Britain and France and the United States could keep the peace in the Orient and Europe, where the smoldering fires of fear, hate and distrust threaten to break out into a world-searing conflagration.

The reciprocal feeling of friendship between London and Washington found voice—perhaps unintentionally among Washington's lawmakers—in the new neutrality legislation which was recently passed to be enforced for two years. The neutrality act is among several factors coming into existence within the last quarter year which make keeping the peace less precarious.

The neutrality bill strikes a blow at whatever plans Germany and Italy may have for disturbing the peace during the next twenty-four months. For it indirectly and probably inadvertently decrees that those two powers shall not have access to the huge American market for raw materials—products available here which are just as essential to the pursuit of modern warfare as guns, gas, ammunition and troops.

The lay states that American merchant vessels shall not act as purveyors of materials of war—including raw materials—but that those powers with adequate navies and merchant marines of their own may obtain such commodities as steel, oil, cotton, wheat, and copper here if they have the cash to pay for them.

This means that with the outbreak of war and the prohibition proclamation by the President against exporting raw materials, only those states with sufficient navies and vessels to carry these materials and with adequate funds to purchase them will have access to these essentials.

Quite clearly this excludes Germany and Italy from the American market. While barring American merchantmen from the submarine-infested waters of Europe and the Mediterranean, it opens American ports to British and French freighters to buy all the goods they need to fight Europe's bad boys.

Germany and Italy have little gold to buy materials here if they had sufficient transports to convey these goods and navies to protest these transports. Britain and France, with great merchant marines, huge navies, vast gold stocks and financial reserves upon which to draw in wartime, need not want for raw materials, which they lack.

This may be neutrality—but it's neutrality with a double aim: keeping America out of future conflicts while aiding Britain and France in subduing the ambitions of the Fascist dictators.

Incidentally should Japan tackle China and the Soviets in armed conflict, the latter two

IN MEMORY OF MONROE TURNER

On May 9, 1937, a host of friends and relatives gathered at Lane's Chapel to pay their last earthly tribute to Monroe Turner who passed away Saturday morning, May 8, at 10:30 o'clock, after an illness of more than seven months. Although very ill he was very patient and had hopes of recovery until the last week when he talked of going home. He had always said if it was the Lord's will he was ready to go.

He lived a peaceable life, was honest in his dealings with his fellowman, never having trouble with anyone, he believed in all living a true life, had no time for anything hypocritical. He was known as Uncle Roe to almost everyone. He did not talk but little and was almost always at home. There is a vacant chair in our home now, but we hope to meet Uncle Roe someday where there will be not vacant chairs.

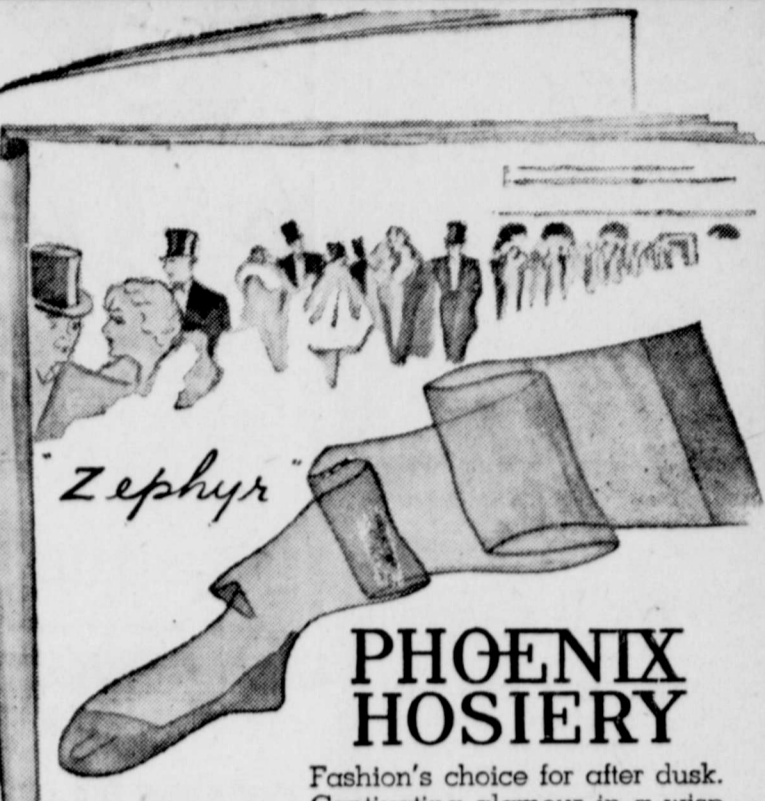

Daniel Monroe Turner was born April 29, 1867, in Jones County, Mississippi, moved to Texas in the fall of 1878 and moved to Coryell County in the fall of 1885, settling on the middle Bosque with his parents about six miles east of Turnersville where his mother and father both passed away. He remained there until April 1917, when he moved to his brother's, Willis Turner, near White Hall where he has since made his home.

Funeral services were conducted at the Lane's Chapel with Rev. Will Jackson officiating. He was laid to rest beside his father and mother in Lane's Chapel Cemetery.

Surviving are four brothers, Willis and Jeff of near White Hall, Rance of Gatesville, and Ab of McPhee, Colorado; and two sisters, Mrs. J. P. Farris of Gatesville, Mrs. T. M. Hurst of Swenson, and a number of other relatives.

Active pall bearers were Ruel and Rance Turner Jr., Buck Hinson, Tom Carter, Merdia Gilchrist and Spencer Allison.

Story Of Human Shelter Through The Ages Shows Continuous Struggle For Better Homes

THE nation-wide interest today in the subject of better homes for more people is no new thing. It started before the dawn of history when men literally roosted in crude tree shelters or cowered in lightless, heatless caves to escape the many cruel natural forces with which they had not learned to cope.

Tracing the history of human habitation from prehistoric times to the safe, attractive, and comfortable American home of today, it is shown in "Shelter," an illustrated booklet issued by The Ruberoid Co., New York, that many structural ideas now commonly regarded as new are actually very old.

Air conditioning, for example, was attempted more than 2,000 years ago by the Egyptians, who built on their roofs a device called a "mulguf," shaped like a trough with open ends, which sucked the prevailing cool winds down into the house much like a modern ship's ventilator.

The "covered wagon," usually associated only with American frontier days, had its counterpart more than 1,000 years ago in a chariot tent, used by the hordes of Attila the Hun when they were ravaging Europe. The penthouse gardens of modern skyscraper apartments had their origin in the roof-top gardens that were the rage in the Babylon of Biblical times. The modern house furnace can be traced back to the "hypocaust," a device by which heat was conducted from cooking ovens through the walls and under the floors of the homes of Imperial Rome.

Pointing out that the degree of civilization which man has achieved at any time in history may be judged in large measure by the character of his home, the Ruberoid booklet shows how the combined efforts of modern science, industry, and business have reduced construction costs to a point where an American family of modest income can today enjoy a home with comforts and conveniences undreamed of even by the kings and barons of an earlier day.

KNOW TEXAS

Denton, May 17. Texas can justly boast of the size of their state and the hospitality of the people. They can speak with pride of their industries—of oil, cotton, and cattle. And they could—though seldom do—do a little exulting over the higher educational facilities which reach into every corner of the state's vast area.

No section of Texas is beyond the reach of some of the higher educational institutions. There are 116 colleges, universities, and academies in the state, 71 of which are fully accredited.

In the accredited schools, there are 51,950 students enrolled, and the unaccredited institutions claim 11,320, making a total of 63,270 young men and women registered in Texas schools of higher learning. The enrollment in a single school varies from 90 to more than 8,000.

The state supports 16 colleges and universities. Largest of state schools is the University of Texas at Austin with more than 8,000 students in its regular session. Following the university in size are A. and M. at College Station, Texas Technological at Lubbock, and Texas State College for Women at Denton. This latter school being the largest standard college for women in the United States.

Within the State's borders are 33 denominational schools, four private schools, and 18 municipal schools. Junior colleges number 4, and they are topped by 36 four-year schools. There are 61 accredited coeducational colleges and schools in the state, six women's colleges, 3 men's colleges, 7 teachers' colleges, 2 medical schools, and 2 theological seminaries. Texas also provides for the education of negroes, with four negro colleges enrolling approximately 5,000.

powers—which would be the victims of aggression—would be deprived of needed materials for their armies by the neutrality law.

Americ's new neutrality policy not only has lessened the possibility of war within the next two years, but it has definitely swung the balance of armed superiority to Britain and France over Italy and Germany. Britain's giant rearmament program, supplemented by its already gigantic and potent fleet and air arm, together with the armed forces which France possesses on air, sea, and land effectively offset whatever machines of war the Italians and Germans have fashioned.

With the financial and economic scales tipped far in the balance for the two powers favoring peace, and with the American market closed to the militaristic powers in the event of war, Italy and Germany no longer hold the whiphand as they 838,142 in Mexico last year.

did when Mussolini sent soldiers to Africa to conquer Ethiopia and Hitler's revitalized Reichswehr marched into the Rhineland.

No person will be quicker to realize the advantage which Britain and France have so unexpectedly acquired from their American sympathizer than will the dictators of poverty-stricken Germany and Italy.

Observers of the Spanish imbroglio have recently emphasized the fact that the civil conflict there will have a steady influence on the expansionist aims of Hitler and Il Duce. For in Iberia the forces of the two dictators—armed with all the implements of modern warfare—have repeatedly and consistently been put to flight before the raw recruits of the Madrid Government. No longer do the British and French and their satellites fear the armed might of the Fascist warmakers.

Former Gatesville Girl To Wed June 22nd.

Rev. and Mrs. T. Edgar Neal announced the engagement of their daughter, Kathleen, to Dr. Robert Marshall of Bowie, in a well appointed morning coffee at their parsonage home Saturday morning from 9 to 11 o'clock.

The entertaining suite was abloom with choice roses in lovely containers on mantle, bookcase and stands. The desk was adorned with a beautiful bouquet of Talisman buds and ferns, which was a gift to the honoree from her fiancée, while the fireplace was banked in privet blossoms and pink roses.

The diningroom table was laid with a gorgeous linen cloth, embroidered in peach and yellow roses. In the center of the table was the Maypole wrapped in colors of green, peach and yellow, with a canopy of maiden hair fern and sweetheart roses. Surrounding the Maypole were figures representing bridesmaids, who held the scrolls which announced the engagement of this very popular couple.

The Maypole was flanked by trim urns, containing Talisman roses and sweetheart buds. On the buffet was a vase of Talisman and dainty Bess roses.

Mrs. J. W. McCammon presided over the silver coffee service and Miss Frances Brown served the gilled olives in bacon blankets at the other end of the table. On the tables were hot rolls, open face sandwiches, candied fruit peel, mints in the chosen colors of green, peach, and yellow, and other dainties were served from silver trays.

In the receiving line were Mrs. T. Edgar Neal, Miss Kathleen Neal, Mrs. L. W. Marshall of Fort Worth, Mrs. Kirby Orr of Terrell, sister of Mrs. Marshall; Miss Ruth French of Sherman, Miss Vickey Evans of Fort Worth and Miss Willie Myrtrice Clark of S. M. U., Dallas.

Out of town guests were Mesdames W. P. Boggess and C. A. Ryan of Fort Worth, Mesdames Walter Boyd, R. O. Sory and E. L. Smith of Mexia; and Miss Lois Scott of Gatesville.

Assisting in the dining room were Mesdames W. W. Gage, Festus Pierce, D. McCarver and J. S. Murchison, and those contributing to the musical program were Mrs. Boyce Martin and Mrs. Claude White, who sang suitable selections, and Wynkie Pierce, who gave several piano numbers.

The bride-to-be made a beautiful picture in a strached lace frock, trimmed in black, and fashioned in redingote lines. With this she wore black accessories and shoulder corsage of tinted daisies.

Seventy guests called during the hours—Corsicana Daily Sun.

Rev. and Mrs. T. Edgar Neal and Miss Kathleen will be remembered as former residents of this city, Rev. Mr. Neal being the Methodist pastor here about twelve years ago.

Waco Girl to Wed Gatesville Boy Soon

Following is an excerpt from a story in the Sunday Waco News-Tribune in which the approaching marriage of Miss Charline Taggart of Waco to Bernard Laudermilk of this city was announced:

"Mrs. Charles Taggart entertained at her home, 2125 McKenzie avenue, at a tea for 70 guests Friday afternoon, announcing the approaching marriage of her daughter, Miss Charline Taggart to Bernard Laudermilk, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Laudermilk, of Gtesville. The wedding will take place at the home of bride's parents June 6 at 6 p. m.

"Receiving the guests were the hostess, honoree, Mrs. T. J. Davies, Mrs. Fred Stolte, Mrs. J. H. Spence. Presiding at the punch bowl was Mrs. T. Q. Wright, assisted by Mrs. G. W. Johnson and Mrs. John Moore. The home was decorated with roses and other spring flowers.

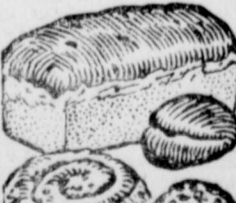

The bride-elect's chosen colors of pink and white were accented in the mints and the punch, while the wedding date was announced by scrolls bearing the inscription "Charline and Bernard, June 6," attached to corsages of sweet peas which were presented the guests.

"The dining room table was laid with a Venetian cloth over blue satin, with pink rosebuds and fern banking the frozen unch bowl. The ladel used for the punch was an antique given the bride's grandmother, the late Mrs. J. E. Tyson, on her twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

Miss Taggart is a graduate of Waco High school and of the Lurline Byrd dancing school. She has been a pupil of Mrs. Martha Fowlkes-Haun's school of expression.

"Mr. Laudermilk is a graduate of Gatesville High school and will receive his degree in June from Baylor university where he has been prominent in athletic activities. He is the newly elected coach of Grapevine public schools.

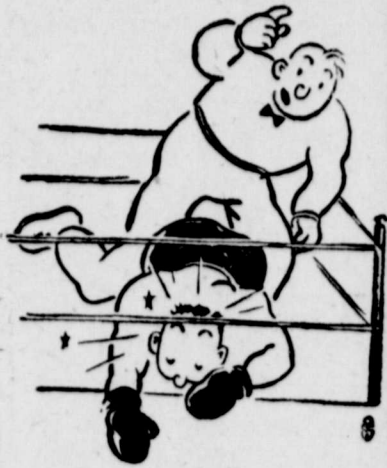

"A number of parties have been planned in honor of Miss Taggart."

THREE AUTHORS SOLVE MYSTERY AND FIND PLOT

Three authors in search of a plot solve the mystery in "The Crime Nobody Saw," the screen treatment of the popular play by Ellery Queen and Lowell Brentano which opens on Thursday at the Palace Theatre.

The three are Lew Ayres, Benny Baker and Eugene Pallette. They are given twenty-four hours to deliver a play for which they had already drawn several large advances, and the day before the play is to go into production finds them still without an idea.

The murder of their neighbor, right in their own living room, however, gives them plot and more in large measure. In order to solve it they impersonate police officers and run afoul of the law. They discover that there apparently were two murders and one crime, and the climax is reached when they find out that the murdered man wasn't the person they thought he was.

The story is described as a typical Ellery Queen brain teaser which defies solution from the most skillful of movie or fiction mystery solvers. "Ellery Queen," according to a well-guarded secret, is in reality the writing team of Frederick Dannay and Manfred Lee who, in collaboration with Lowell Brentano, wrote the original of "The Crime Nobody Saw" for the stage.

Others in the cast are Ruth Coleman, who carries the love interest opposite Ayres, Colin Tapley, Vivienne Osborne and Jed Prouty.

The play, "Ready Made Family," will be presented at 8:00 o'clock Friday night, May 21, at the Ames school house.

NATION'S TELEGRAPH BILL IS SLASHED BY $3,000,000 IN DRASTIC CUT

Gatesville, Texas, May 17. Drastic reductions in rates for overnight telegraph service which will become effective June 1st, will provide substantial savings to the residents of Gatesville, it was disclosed last night by Miss Madge Miller, local manager of the Western Union Telegraph Co. A tariff filed Saturday with the Federal Communications Commission will reduce the cost of both short and long messages and cut the telegraph bill of the nation by approximately 3 million dollars.

"The effect of these reductions," Miss Miller said, "would be that the charge for 25 words will be the same as, and in some cases lower than, the present charge for a ten word night message and that long messages can be sent at relatively even lower rates.

"The ten word night message will be discontinued and the initial charge for night letters will be for 25 words instead of for 50 as at present. The maximum charge for a 25-word night letter will be fifty cents, even for the greatest distance in the U. S. "Words in excess of 25 will be charged for in groups of five instead of ten as at present. Typical reductions in the rates for night letters from Gatesville are:

For 25 words—

CHECKS READY FOR OLD AGE PENSIONERS

With May checks for approximately 126,000 needy aged ready for mailing, payments this month are being delayed until the federal grant is received from Washington, W. A. Little, acting director of the Old Age Assistant Commission reported Saturday.

"Our understanding is that the Social Security Board is waiting for a deficiency appropriation from Congress and that all the other states are in the same position that we are in. We will mail the May assistance checks immediately upon receipt of the federal matching funds. This might be in a day or so, or it might be a week before the grant reaches Austin.

"When you consider that more than 100,000 needy aged are waiting for their assistance warrants to pay grocers, rental agents, etc., the seriousness of this delay becomes apparent. I ask that people who deal with the agent give them due consideration until the checks can be released," Little said.

He added that the federal money generally is received between the first and tenth of the month. He said that the Texas share of May payments is waiting in the State Treasury.

"Our grant has been approved already for the April-May-June quarter, and we have received and disbursed funds for April. But we have heard nothing of the May-June part of the allotment," he declared.

The approved grant for the April-May-June quarter totals $2,539,807.73, and the April third of it already received and disbursed was $846,602.59.

"SERVICE"

That word! These days, you find it everywhere, and sometimes in places where it doesn't belong. But motorists agree that it does belong in "Humble Service Stations". Humble service they say, is more than a phrase: it stands for clean restrooms, for ice water when you're hot and thirsty, for trained men, for first aid kits, for fire extinguishers, and for a friendly helpfulness which is typically Texan. Discover this for yourself: Stop some day soon, for service where you see the Humble sign.

"EAT WHAT YOU CAN AND CAN WHAT YOU CAN'T"

The heading above originated somewhere and should be applied locally. It's blackberry time in Coryell. There are more blackberries per, and more bushes per, than were ever known in these parts. All of which demonstrates very clearly another dire need for Gatesville, and something which no doubt many have thought before, should be done here. This Coryell County needs a canning plant. Not a WPA canning plant, where at least half the product must be given for the canning, but a commercial canning plant, where at least half of the product must be given for the canning but a commercial canning plant which will market its products along with others in the east and north where the demand is greater.

Just because there is to be a short, or relatively short blackberry and dewberry season, does not justify this plant but a little later there will be fruits of all kinds. There will be cucumbers for making pickles and a large amount of other produce which we believe could be canned commercially at a profit, both to the cannery and those who grow the products.

In the tomato belt of East Texas are canneries and shipping sheds. In the Rio Grande Valley both are operated. In Central South Texas the onion, celery and other crops are shipped. So, in nearly every district in Texas some product or products are prepared for the hungry northern and eastern markets, which benefit the producers in these sections as well as the profitably operated canning plants.

We believe one could be successfully operated here.

Lets Talk about Clothes

Denton, May 17. Ladies of leisure strolling on the bench, housewives in the hot city, and women who spend their time in a country home have a great deal in common this summer in the way of workaday and play clothes.

Shorts have proved to be just as practical to sweep and dust in as for sun-bathing, and they are easily ahead of a shapeless house dress in comfort and attractiveness. Running them a close second for wearables are the tricky overalls being shown everywhere. They come in seersuckers, linens and toughish muslins, and are just as effective in prints as in solids.

Better still for a spring cleaning day are dark colored slacks of sharkskin topped by a 3-4 length figured smock or by a fitted and flared jacket top of printed cotton. These are officially sanctioned by girls at Texas State College for Women for the garden, house, beach, vacation resort, country or almost any place of daytime relaxation or home work.

Muslin, which is being made in a nicely rustic, semi-crinkled texture, is being used widely

STATES HAVE OPPORTUNITY TO SHOW WARES IN HUGE BUILDING AT NEW YORK FAIR

NEW YORK, (Special).—Included in the limited edition book of unusual size and beauty which the New York World's Fair 1939 incorporated has sent to state governors and, through diplomatic channels, to foreign governments, is the following text devoted to.

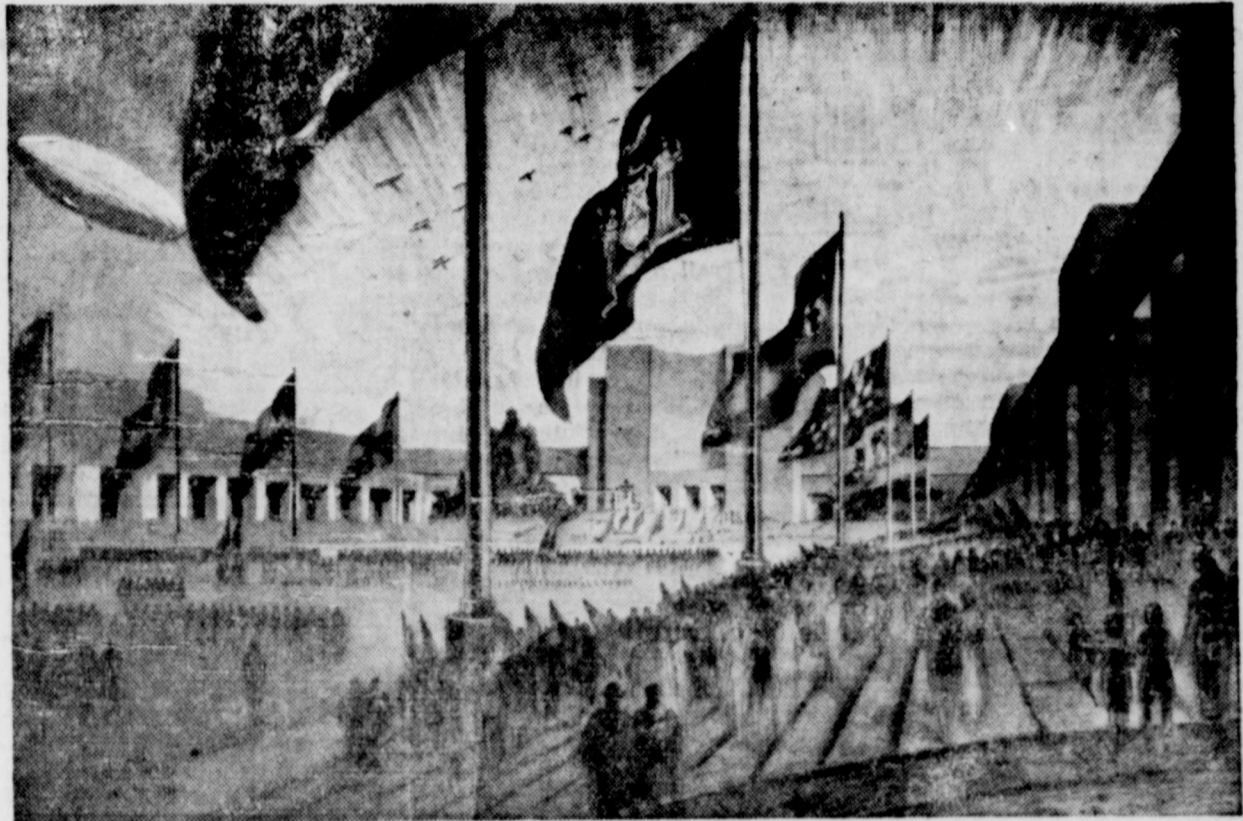

The Sovereign States of the Federal Union

George Washington, in declaring that the public felicity and prosperity of America depend upon the firm union and the unceasing cooperation of the sovereign American States, divined the future. The prosperity and the greatness of these United States have arisen from the free and unimpeded circulation of ideas and products in the world's greatest consumer market.

The Fair gives to each State the appropriate setting and opportunity to announce to the world its unique and indispensable contribution to America's rich and colorful civilization. The Fair contemplates a Hall of States, in the imposing Government group and flanking the structure which the Fair looks to the United States to build, to house the exhibits of the forty-eight States, and the Territories. Those wishing to participate more extensively will, in addition to their exhibits in the Hall of States, either erect their own buildings or obtain space to display their products and attractions in one or more of the exhibit zones.

The State of New York has naturally taken the leadership in the participation of the sovereign States of the Federal Union. Its total appropriations for Fair purposes may exceed $5,600,000; and the New York State World's Fair Commission appointed by the Governor, has been active for some time. Other States already are beginning to express enthusiastic interest in participating more extensively than at previous world's fairs.

The many visitors will find a fresh cause for pride and enthusiasm in the revealing exhibits of their respective States. But beyond this, the exhibits will enable the States to make a persuasive presentation to all visitors of what they have to offer to the consumer and to the tourist.

this season. Brightly dotted cotton also comes to the fore to make up one of those new "Miss Muffet" dresses with a demure deep yoke front and back, short puffed sleeves, full circular skirt and white rickrack braid as trim. These workaday numbers button up the back and are worn over shorts, slacks or another dress.

With these advantages there is no longer any reason for the phrase "bedraggled housewives," since she can easily look her informal best in the midst of her hardest work.

ETIQUETTE RATES HIGH IN COLLEGE LITERATURE

Denton, May 17. Why "No Nice Girl Swears," is a question which must be interesting to students at Texas State College for Women because it has proved to be the most popular book in the "Browning Room," of the college library.

Modern fiction takes second place in collegiate preferences, but psychology books are close runners up for the honor. "Anthony Adverse" has, in spite of its length, changed hands more quickly than any other novel, and one mystery book, S. S. Van Dine's "Benson Murder Case," was favored with a great deal of thumbing.

SYLVIA SIDNEY GOES ON FASHION SPREE IN NEWEST MOVIE

Sylvia Sidney has 141 costume changes in "You Only Live Once," in which she is currently co-starring with Henry Fonda at the Regal Theatre Saturday nite, 10:30, Sunday and Monday.

But it's the first time in a year that the star has had a chance to go on a clothes spree. Her mountain girl portrayal in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," obviously was devoid of clothes glamour, and she didn't have to worry about gowns in her dramatic role in "Fury."

Among the creations designed for her is a gay dinner dress, combining the use of two materials, dove gray chiffon and wild-rose pink satin. The soft fullness at the bosom and sleeve and the flowing lines of the long tunic are essential points of this model.

Striking a new and exciting note in lingerie are the honey-moon pajamas of frosty blue chiffon, with a pleated tunic flowing down to a rippled pelum.

Severely trimmed yet distinctly feminine are the lounging pajamas of white striped navy flouard.

Another outstanding item is a mahogany brown wool costume described as being able to go places or stay home and be equal to any occasion.

Slenderness is accentuated in every line of an unusual model in midnight blue crepe.

Something different for crisp days in town in the stunning rust taitleur, the ingredients are 3 parts novelty wool, very British, with a dash of lemon and brown in piping and scarf.

Simplicity of Grecian lines also heightens the charm of another taitleur.

GATESVILLE, TEXAS, TUESDAY, MAY 18, 1937

NUMBER 41

I have never seen a legislative body that was apparently so lacking in independent leadership as the American Congress. There are any number of able and highly respected members, but the procedural system that makes it almost mandatory that any important legislation originate in a Committee charged with handling that kind of legislation, makes it impossible for these individuals to exercise the influence on general legislation that they would exercise in a more individualistic legislative body.

Most of the Committees in turn rely very largely upon Executive recommendations and the result is that with the President fishing on the Texas coast the whole governmental machine has materially slowed down, including the Congress. The Senate was only in session two days this past week and House four. Neither one accomplished very much.

On Wednesday the House finally passed, by a vote of 171 to 153, a bill providing for two and one-half million dollars of federal aid for reforestation of cut-over lands. I think the purpose is laudable, but it certainly seems to me that if we are to effect and economies in government we are not going to be able to extend this kind of aid to privately owned lands and I voted against the bill.

The Agriculture Committee is still working on the Sugar Bill and it is reported that they are ready to bring a bill out as soon as Chairman Marvin Jones, who has been ill, is able to attend their meetings. It is understood that the bill they will recommend will divide the American sugar market and establish quotas giving the American sugar producers approximately one-fourth of the total market, giving another large share to Hawaii and Porto Rico and the largest bloc of all to Cuba, with a relatively small per cent of the market left to other nations. I have not yet been able to understand why we should limit domestic production of any commodity that we import in great quantities, as we do sugar. We are told by the State Department that we must do it in order to maintain a stable government in Cuba. I do not know why the American farmer and sugar consumer should be called upon to carry the burden of maintaining a stable government in Cuba. As I see it, it is more important that our own people be given every opportunity to supply the American market and that American consumers be given an opportunity to buy sugar at the cheapest possible prices, than it is for the American Congress to attempt to protect the investment of the international bankers in Cuba. This sugar bill has brought the biggest lobby to Washington that I have seen. I think it will bear watching on the part of the people.

This past week an Associated Press report from Texas discovered that I liked to go down to the Botanical Gardens and putter around. There is not room there to do any real work, but it is about the only opportunity I have of getting in the open. When he found someone who preferred to work in a flower garden than to play golf he considered it so unique that he took some pictures of me and they appeared in a number of the papers. The next day four other photographers came by to get similar pictures. I do not know what they will do with these pictures, but if they publish them all I am afraid that the folks back home are going to get the idea that I am making a crop here in Washington, rather than legislating. I told these reporters that in order to make some of my people believe that these were authentic photographs they were going to have to state that I was digging worm—although I have no place to fish except among the gold fish in the Capital fountains.

During this week there has been a delegation of Texas business men here to urge the establishment of a "Cotton-Use Laboratory," somewhere in Texas. I consider this one of the most important things that could be done for Texas and the South, and I had personally taken the matter up with the Department of Agriculture about two months ago. Other Texas Congressmen have urged the same thing and recently the Texas House of Representatives passed a bill, providing a quarter of a million dollars of State money to buy a site and erect buildings for such a laboratory, if the Federal Government would maintain it. The Texas delegation appointed a committee, of which I am a member, to work out the project and it is our plan to push it to the best of our ability just as soon as we are advised that the Texas Senate has passed the above mentioned bill.

Field Tours Planned of Gatesville S.C.S. Farms May 20th and 26th

The Gatesville Soil Conservation Service Camp located at the old fair grounds is preparing to receive a large number of visitors from Gatesville and surrounding communities and adjoining counties during the period from May 15 through May 29, according to E. E. McAllister, technician.

Thursday May 20 and Wednesday May 26 from 2 to 5:00 o'clock p. m., have been set aside as "Special Visiting Days," during the two week period. On these two days groups of 4-H club members, Future Farmers of America Chapters, Smith-Hughes instructors, county farm agents, and farmers and business men are expected to make specially conducted tours of the Soil Conservation Service area. It is pointed out by Mr. McAllister that persons who cannot come on the two special days send a post card to the local camp office setting out the day during the visiting period that they will want to make a farm tour.

All groups of individuals will be conducted to the various farms in the project area where the different phases of the coordinated erosion control program will be explained. These trips will give the visitors an opportunity to see just how the soil and moisture conservation program operates on a field and farm unit basis.

More than 15,173 acres in the Gatesville camp area, representing 76 farm owners and operators, are under a five year cooperative agreement with the Service. Of the acreage under agreement a total of 826 acres were found to be so steep or eroded as to be unprofitable for cultivation and have been retired to new pasture and permanent waterway. Visitors will see how vegetative means of control minimizes erosion hazards on steep land while at the same time making these formerly un-

Presto! Youth Pays for College Education By Magic

Lee Roy Neal, Dallas youth, pays his expenses at North Texas State Teachers College, Denton, where he is a freshman, by presenting magic shows at club, school, and church gatherings over North Texas. Neal is said to be the only student in the United States who gets his education "by magic." In his repertoire of more than fifty acts is this cone trick which he does here for the photographer to prove that the magician's hand is quicker even than the camera's eye. Neal admits he has never been able to draw from the cone cancelled tuition receipts, but he has learned that audiences will pay to see him draw from the "horn of plenty" such things as bright red scarfs, handkerchiefs, and long strands of silk cloth.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: Philippe Martin, a young Parisian actor, kisses Monique Pelerin in a darkened motion picture theatre, mistaking her for his friend, Yvonne. Through the meddling of a reform busybody, Philippe first loses his job and then is brought to trial. He is sentenced to pay 1,000 francs or spend three days in jail.

Chapter Four

FAME COMES TO PHILIPPE

Monique rushes over to the cashier's office of the clerk of court. "If you please," she says nervously. "I'd like to pay the fine in the Martin case."

The clerk takes the money and hands her a receipt. "Will he be released immediately?" she inquires anxiously. "Immediately." The Clerk turned to an attendant and handed him a tions. Monique takes advantage of his confusion to make her escape. That night the foyer of Maillot's theatre is jammed with people seeking tickets for the opening performance. Maillot revels in this unexpected burst of business until the box office girl makes clear to him that it is Philippe they are all coming to see.

"But Martin isn't in our show," he says bewildered. "I fired him. Isn't that funny?"

"Funny?" says the box office girl. "It's crazy. If you don't get him back a thousand dissatisfied females will tear you to bits."

Panic-stricken, Maillot sets out to find Philippe, to beg, to implore him to return to the show. Philippe is at his lodgings with his friend, the Prompter. When they hear the knock on the door they both hide in a closet, thinking it is a bill collector who is calling. Reassured at the sight of Maillot they both emerge.

Maillot is not long in coming to the point. "I have been thinking," he says, "that I may have done you card. "Release Number 6663636." Number 6663636 was being escorted from the Bertillon Bureau when the order came for his release. "Who paid the fine?" he asks in bewilderment. "A girl? Was she pretty?"

The attendant shrugs his shoulders. "Well anyway she has two of the prettiest little ears—"

Philippe waits to hear no more but dashes out of the courthouse in time to catch up with Monique who is hurrying away.

"Mademoiselle," he calls, "please . . . You've made me very happy and . . . grateful."

Monique turns upon him furiously. "Will you leave me alone or shall I call the police?"

Philippe is not in the least put out. "Do you want to have to pay another fine for me?"

"It wasn't for you," Monique says angrily.

"Then why did you pay it?" Philippe asks.

Monique hesitates before answering. "Do you suppose," she says, "that I want all this ridiculous publicity to go on . . . The Monster in jail . . . The Monster escapes . . . The Monster released." She sniffs contemptuously. "The Monster!"

"Then you don't think I am one?" Philippe asks hopefully.

"I don't care what you are! I don't want to have anything more to do with you." She turns to go, but Philippe catches her wrist.

"I won't let you go until you permit me to repay you," he says grandly.

"You won't!" exclaims Monique. "No!"

"Very well! Pay me then."

This is a "stumper." Philippe, who has never seen a thousand francs, begins to stammer explanaan injustice. Perhaps you have talents I may have overlooked. Let me see your profile . . . M-m-m. Just as I thought. There's something there. And I understand you have a voice. Give me your B-flat."

Philippe clears his throat preparatory to launching a B-flat that will impress even Maillot, but the producer interrupts him.

"Never mind. I know it's good. You know, ten days ago I said to myself, 'That Martin has something.'"

"Is that why you fired me?" Philippe asks.

"My dear fellow, that was nothing at all. Only a joke. You have a great future, Martin. I'm having the whole show re-written for you." And now as to salary—you were getting how much?"

"Five Hundred francs," the Prompter whispers. But he is too late.

"Three hundred francs," says Philippe.

"I heard you," says Maillot, pointing to Philippe. "Very well, we'll make it."

Philippe is about to grab the offer but fate again intervenes. The conversation is interrupted by the sound of water boiling over, in a dish that Martin and the Prompter have been concocting for supper. Martin and his friend begin to argue over the amount of seasoning that is to be put in, and Maillot mistakes the conversation for an argument over his terms. He raises his offer to 1,000 francs a week, and presses a week's advance pay into Philippe's trembling hands.

"And listen," says the producer, starting for the door, "if you can think of anybody else you'd like to attack, it's all right with me."

FIELD TOURS PLANNED

profitable acres furnish a part of the farm income.

Contour cultivation, strip crops, terraces, vegetated terrace outlets and outlet channels, meadow outlet strips, wildlife plantation, and gully control are among the important phases of the complete erosion control program which will be seen and finally explained to camp visitors.

Mr. McAllister points out that cooperators with the Service in the Gatesville camp area have been responsible for the widespread use of erosion control measures and practices on many farms in this section of Texas which are not inside the Camp area. "Cooperators in carrying out their parts of the coordinated program have shown other farm owners and operators just how practical it is to institute erosion control programs on their own farms," Mr. McAllister said.

"The entire program of the Soil Conservation Service is directed toward that control of rainfall which would reduce (a) runoff, (b) erosion of agricultural and grazing lands, (c) the covering of fertile valley lands with comparatively unproductive erosional debris, and (d) the filling of stream channels, reservoirs and ditches with the products of erosion. Such control will have an important direct effect toward reducing the volume of water entering streams, thus minimizing flood hazards.

"The desired control," Mr. McAllister says, "is secured by the retirement of excessively erosive land from cultivation, the practical use of engineering structures and mechanical procedures where applicable."

... "I Said Goodbye to Grey Hair Forever!"

"My hair was faded and streaked with grey. I looked old. I felt old. Now I look and feel young. I owe it all to Clairol. In one simple 3-in-1 treatment my hair was shampooed, reconditioned and tinted back to the color and luster that was the envy of my girlhood friends."

Clairol does what nothing else can! Ask your beautician. Write for FREE booklet, FREE advice on care of hair and FREE beauty analysis.
